Residents want city to park 'cruisers'

Some homeowners fed up with cruising gave city officials an earful at the Plymouth City Commission meeting Monday. Several residents who live near

Main Street complained of cruisers urinating in their back yards and showing up drunk on their front

But the most repeated complaint was over noise, which continues past

"We'd like to try a curfew," said Greg Dimit of Dewey Street.

said he opposed curtailing young people's rights, Dimit said, "We'll change houses with you for a week."

Dimit and some other residents said they were seeking to move from Plymouth due to the cruising prob-

Other residents living near Main said their property values were dropping, and urged the city to do more to serve taxpaying residents.

THE CITY has been wrestling with the problem for five years, city attorney Ron Lowe said. There is a curfew for those 16 and under who police can tell "to get off the street,"

"A very large portion of the people who are down there are over the age of 18. A curfew is not going to address the ages of people who are down there."

Each year, city officials come up with new ways to try to keep cruisers in line, Lowe said. "(This year), cruising in some ses is worse and in some senses better," he said. JEAN MORROW, a city commission watcher, said he hears over his police scanner police trying to call the homes of cruisers who get in trouble, but parents aren't home.

"I don't want any of my tax dol-lars going for ice festivals," Phyllis Smith of Ross Street told commis-

Smith suggested spending the money on more police to head off rowdy cruisers.

BUT IF police crack down hard on cruising, the city can be sued, Lowe

"There are a number of juries out there that are hitting municipalities with very large judgments (for plain-tiffs who claim infringement of civil rights)," he said.

Should the city lose such a suit,

in taxes," Lowe said.
Bill Decker, who runs a Main Street insurance office, suggested that adults organize and post themselves in lawn chairs in the evening, in sight of cruisers.

'When we're out there in force, they'll say 'Let's leave here and go somewhere else,' " he said, as cruisers may not want to be around

SOME RESIDENTS complained of racial arguments between cruisers and fights.

There had been more fighting between cruisers this year, acting po-lice chief Robert Scoggins said. Police are doing what they can to keep problems in check, he said.

"I welcome any suggestions from citizens who live along the Main Street corridor," he said. City commissioner Jerry Vorva, a former police officer, suggested that adults might not want to be out on the streets to discourage cruisers. One night he saw 10 cruisers walking with canes, he said.

"There are violent people out there. They're coming down here and they're bringing their weapons with them.'

Soviet emigres happy over failed coup

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

As the most tumultuous day in Russia since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution unfolded, Soviet expatriates living here expressed both doubts and cautious optimism Wednesday.

Southfield's Oleg Slutsky, owner of the Omelette and Waffle Cafe in Plymouth, said that despite the failure of the coup, democratization of the Soviet Union is far from

"I don't think Gorbachev will end up back in power. The two biggest and most powerful entities in the country are the KGB and the army," said the Moscow native.

"The country is in their hands. Do you think they are stupid? I don't think things are changing. They just want to make it easy for everyone right now."

IT IS SLUTSKY'S hunch that Mikhail Gorbachev will lose power, while Russian President Boris Yeltsin will retain power.

"I think Gorbachev will be retired. The people want him, finally, but the Communist Party doesn't want him. Yeltsin knows what he is doing. No one will touch him," Slutsky said.

A majority of Soviet citizens live in villages under Stone Age conditions, Slutsky said. So isolated are they that the concepts of freedom and democracy are totally foreign. What little freedom they've experienced "is like a drop from the ocean," he said.

PREDICTING THE Soviet Union's future is difficult, Slutsky

"Everyone has a prognosis, but it is like forecasting the weather. Everything is in God's hands. So who can say anything about Russia and the Communist Party?'

Oleg Slutsky

Slutsky has learned to distrust what the Communists say.

"Three years ago, the govern-ment said everyone could have their land and grow crops; that they could buy land and pay it off. Then the government said you can't have machines, tractors or combines. What am I supposed to do? Put my tears into this piece of ground?"

SHORTLY AFTER moving here two years ago from the Soviet Union - a feat that took nine years Eugene Kocherovsky, who is Jewish, made a statement that proved prophetic.

Massey files suit in auto park dispute

Auto dealer Don Massey is trying one more time to put a new car dealership on Ann Arbor Road west of Haggerty.

Plymouth Township trustees last month rejected his plans to build an auto park on land he owns on the north side of Ann Arbor Road, between Bill Knapp's restaurant and

And now, Massey's attorney, John Thomas, has filed suit in Wayne County Circuit Court in an effort to win a rezoning under which a car dealership could be built.

"The property is best suited for commercial development," according to the suit filed Aug. 5.

On behalf of Massey, Thomas is asking the court to stop the township

ON JULY 16, township trustees voted against the rezoning that was sought by Massey to allow construction of the 16-acre auto park. To rezone there "would in the future jeopardize the township's landuse plan," said Trustee Ron Griffith.

Canton will sue to stop Mettetal sale

staff writer

Amid loud echos of applause, Canton trustees took the first steps Tuesday in launching a lawsuit to fight the public purchase of Mettetal Airport in Canton. "We implore you as our governing body to stand up for our township and stop their continued rape of our community," said Richard Murphy of Canton Concerned Citizens referring to the proposed purchase of Mettetal by Plymouth and Plymouth

IN A 4-1 VOTE the Canton trustees gave the law firm, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone the go ahead to prepare a lawsuit to stop

favor of pursuing legal action.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter was against the move. "I will not spend the money of the township on a lawsuit where we are not in good standing," she said.

Trustee John Burdziak and treasurer Gerald Brown were absent. Most of the more than 125 people who packed the board room were in favor of Canton taking legal action to stop the public purchase. "The overwhelming point that continues to draw the citizens of Canton together is economic quality of life we want to preserve in our township," Murphy said. The law firm must receive board approval before filing the lawsuit and Canton is expected to call a special meeting late this week to vote on that move

The urgency for action is spurred by an Aug. 28 Plymouth Township meeting where that board is expected to accept a federal grant to buy

Assuming Plymouth Township votes in favor of the grant "and you decide not to take action you will have an airport basically forever,' according to attorney Andrea Fischer, of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone. Canton won't be able to get rid of or control the airport, she add-

The basis of the lawsuit would include the idea that the airport has to be consistent with the local government's land planning, environmental issues and other concerns, Miller, Canfield attorneys said.

MARTY BURNSTEIN, an attorney representing the Klochko family who currently own Mettetal, emphatically asked the board to "stop."

"Not because it's the most popular thing to do, but because it's the right thing to do," he said.

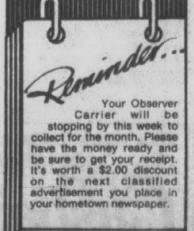

Burnstein referred to eight failed attempts to stop the purchase. And each time, he said, local and federal

Schools plan to put more beef in classrooms

A cartoon that recently caught the eye of Plymouth-Canton Superin-tendent John Hoben shows a student standing in front of a tape measure. Next to him are his mother and teacher. Holding a paper marked, "Grade inflation, Education Standards," the teacher says to the Mom, "He stopped growing a couple of years ago. We keep lowering the measurement so his feelings won't be hurt."

AFTER TRAVELING to Eastern Europe and conferring with some of the United States' top educators this summer, Hoben is convinced American schools need to get bullish on

In an attempt to boost student achievement, Hoben is proposing higher standards for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Beginning with the class of '96, Hoben wants to make algebra a required course for

"I'd like to see us start the formal teaching of algebra at sixth grade for those that are ready," said Hoben, who came away from Czech-oslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Germany with the view that European students perform better because more is expected of them.

"I think it's appalling that right now under state requirements, student athletes can get D's in four subjects and E's in two and still be eligible," said Hoben. "It seems to me to

What's needed in Plymouth-Can-ton schools are higher standards, higher expectations, and the conviction that students are workers and teachers are facilitators, said Hoben.

"Homework is required in foreign schools," said Hoben. "I'm suggesting that students be assigned home-work in a different discipline each day - math, language arts and science as a minimum, so there is some

Hoben also is calling for more advanced placement classes, in which high school students can earn college

"WE HAVE AP classes now in science and in math and calculus. I'd like to see us double or triple our offerings across the board in all subject areas. I think we have the op-portunity to do that, and we have the teachers capable of teaching it. Stu-dents should be prepared enough to Hoben also is an advocate of President Bush's education plan, "America 2000." The plan requests $690 million to achieve six goals:

• All children in America will start school ready to learn.

 The high school graduation rate will increase to at least 90 percent.

• American students will leave grades four, eight and 12 having demonstrated competency in chal-lenging subject matter.

• U.S. students will be first in the world in science and mathematics

· Every adult American will be achievement.

• Every school in America will be free of drugs and violence and will offer a disciplined environment conducive to learning.

Denis Doyle, co-author of "Win-ning the Brain Race," makes a point regarding Japanese education with which Hoben agrees.

standards in all aspects of life, but believe the single most important attribute we as people bring to bear on problem solving is effort, " Doyle writes. In fact, the idea of natural ability or talent is not very import-en points to James Garfield High School in the barrios of Los Angeles as a working example of that philosophy. Insistence on the upgrad-ing of standards at Garfield brought about a 12-fold increase in seven years in the number of students enrolled in math and science courses.

"They didn't need a bat, ball and bullhorn to do it; it was done with "hug power," said Hoben, who learned of Garfield's success at a ummer conference.

So far, the Board of Education is receptive to Hoben's ideas. Trustee Roland Thomas said, "I'd advocate this not only for Plymouth-Canton, but nationally.

"I think our kids are better able to handle concepts at a younger age than we have given them credit for. I've always felt about mathematics in particular that during the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, there's a lot of repetition of what kids learned

"I think the real goal ought to be to teach these young people how to think, analyze and solve problems, particularly as they relate to curriculum areas like math, science, and even into the sociologies and psychologies," Thomas said.

As for required homework, "that's a difficult process," Thomas added. "I don't want to see a kid with six hours of homework periodically. That doesn't do justice to education. I want to see teamwork on the part of teachers to assign homework to Trustee Dean Swartzwelter said, "What Dr. Hoben brought back from Europe fits in with all the strategies we as a school board have been looking at for the past two years.

"IF WE ARE to be competitive in the next century, we have to start, and start now. It's the strategy all U.S. K-12 schools have to go with. Presently, we are far behind the rest of the world in just about everything. The only thing we are ahead of the world in is attorneys," Swartzwelter

"Most of the things Dr. Hoben pre-sented sound like things I would ac-tively support," said Trustee Les Walker. "They're in tune with the national priorities in education and nt in some cases specifically dentified goals and time lines for improvements that we've been talking about in a more general way."

Trsutee Barbara Graham said the suggested changes, including required homework, "are things parents have been asking for for years." "I disagreed with Dr. Hoben when he said we don't have to necessarily have more hours in the school day, she added. "With all these new programs and all the information kids have to try and learn, I don't know if we can fit it into the same hours we have now."

Hoben says he's not sure how students will react to his ideas, but "I'm not too sure they wouldn't react positively to it. I think what we are trying to do is prepare them for work in the 21st century. To be competitive, they will have to compete. Some schools are already are doing this. I'd just like to see us take some leadership in this role and move

"I'm very encouraged about next year," he said. "I think it was a real success for a first-time event."

Watts, who has organized the downtown hoedown, said he did lose money on the celebration, which took place Friday through Sunday in Kellogg Park. Still, "We did what we hoped to do," he said.

Taste fest tickets sold well. "We had to turn a few people away," Watts said.

Other food events, the elegant picnic and classical brunch, also went over well, Watts said, even though the picnic had to be held in The Gathering due to rain.

Watts said music events were well attended. "A lot of people took the time to come up and tell me they liked it," he said.

He added that the park was nearly full Saturday for kids entertainment

Watts said that for next year, he hopes to book some nationally known sic acts to close each day of the festival, to draw interest.

Overall, "I'd give it a B-plus, I'd say we could do better," Watts said.

Mother can't stand son's drug sentence

The Oakland County prosecutor believes he has some good ammuni-tion with which to defend Michigan's tough "over 650 drug-lifer law" the one requiring life in prison for people convicted of possessing 650 or more grams of cocaine.

The average person sentenced to life in prison under the Michigan's drug-life law is a white male, 32 years old who sold drugs for profit, not necessarily because of addiction, according to prosecutor Richard Thompson.

file after reviewing statistics provided by the Michigan Department of Corrections on the 144 people sen-tenced under the drug-lifer law during the almost 13 years it has been in

"OPPONENTS of the law want you to believe the law puts a lot of underprivileged, 18-year-old kids in prison for the rest of their lives because of a mistake," Thompson said. "That simply isn't the case. Thompson, one of the state's staunchest supporters of the drug-lifer law, said he expects the information to be useful as state legislators come under increasing pressure

One such person is Linda Fannon whose son, Gary, a 1986 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was 18 in July 1987, when sentenced under the drug-lifer law. The law mandates a life sentence - with no chance of parole - for anyone convicted of possessing a pound and one-half or more of cocaine.

Thompson, who has obtained more than 80 drug-related indictments from the Oakland citizens grand jury over the last two years, says the over the last two years, says the tough law helps police use little guys in a drug operation to get to middle-managment operatives.

"Very often the little guys won't talk," Thompson said. "That is, until they realize they face life in prison . . . then they're often ready to make a deal."

LINDA FANNON insists the law is a miscarriage of justice. "Murder-ers and rapists aren't punished that much," she said.

Fannon, who lives in Westland, in-sists Thompson, and others like him, are using the law to boost their own image as tough crime fighters, ". . .

to build a reputation.
"I don't defend drugs," she said. "I hate them. People like my son should go to prison . . . but not for the rest of their lives, not for a mistake." Linda Fannon has been interviewed by newspaper columnists and talk show hosts recently as she focuses public attention on the case of her son, and what she considers the unjust drug-lifer law that put him in prison.

She said there are extenuating cir-cumstances in her son's case. One of the Canton Township detectives involved in her son's case, for example, was subsequently fired for allegedly using drugs.

The detective's dismissal was upheld in arbitration, Fannon said. But he was never charged with a crime. "There's no fairness there," she said.

SHE ALSO challenges the Wayne County prosecutor whose office could have charged her son with a lesser offense - one carrying a lesssevere sentence

But most of all, Fannon challenges the inflexibility of the drug-lifer law that takes away judicial discretion.

Gary Fannon is currently in the Ryan Regional Correctional Facility in Detroit. His mother said he is 16 college credits short of an associ-

"He's coping," she said. "He's earned numerous commendations for helping other inmates learn to read. He doesn't deserve to be in prison for life."

impose life sentences without parole, if warranted.

But it's precisely that kind of tampering with the the drug-lifer law that Thompson hopes to thwart with his profile of the typical felon now serving a life sentence.

THE U.S. SUPREME Court up-THE U.S. SUPREME Court upheld the constitutionality of Michigan's tough drug law, Thompson said. "And I believe it will be upheld this fall (when it's scheduled to be reviewed by Michigan's highest court). But the biggest challenge will come from legislators who want to change the law."

Thompson said he disagrees with

Thompson said he disagrees with the image promoted by those who want to change the law. "They want you to believe the law picks on people who simply made a one-time mistake. That's bunk."

Statistics provided by the Michigan Department of Corrections seem to substantiate the prosecutor's con-tention that those doing life under the drug-lifer law are far from being the first-time innocent.

Of 144 persons convicted between 1979, when the law went into effect, and last June 27, six are age 19 or younger. Most are between 20 and 29 (52 inmates) or 30 and 39 (50 people). There are 25 people between 40 and 49 currently in prison under the drug-lifer law, and 11 who are 50 or

Thompson acknowledged. "But what about the other teenagers who die or become addicted because of the cocaine they were carrying?"

RACIALLY, according to the cor-rections department, 70 of those serving time under the drug-lifer law are white, 63 are black, six are Hispanic and five are classified as 'other' (Arabic, Asian, Indian, etc.).

But the most telling part of his profile, Thomson said, is the number of inmates who said they do not use drugs. "That disputes the theory most of them sell drugs because they're addicted. They're in it for Figures on the number of druglifers who themselves use drugs is incomplete and, according to the Department of Corrections, unreliable. Of the 144 inmates less than 50 answered when asked if they themselves are drug users.

And even those responses are sus-pect, according to prison spokesman Gail R. Light, whose office provided information for Thompson's drug-lifer profile. "The information on drug use was voluntary," Light said. "And there is no way to verify the answer."

Thompson, however, remains con-vinced that many dealers — particularily white-coller types in Oakland County — are not hooked, but sell drugs because of the enormous prof-

Report outlines ways to halt urban sprawl

In courthouses and town halls across the seven-county region, local officials in fall will look at a list of controversial ideas to halt urban sprawl.

The ideas include property tax base sharing, mandatory regional planning, local "impact fees" for new development, and revamped public transportation funded by a regional sales tax.

"Every county commission and every local unit" will be asked to schedule the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments' presenta-tion, said John Amberger, executive director of the 140-member, seven-county planning agency.

"Public participation has been de-layed," said Gerald McCaffrey, SEMCOG chairman from the Macomb County Intermediate School District, until local elected officials have had their input.

"MULL THEM over," Marilynn Gosling, Oakland County commissioner who co-chaired the yearlong regional development initiative (RDI), told the SEMCOG executive committee Friday.

"It will take some time to determine who should do what," said Gosling, referring to seven broad recommendations drafted by the RDI steering committee.

"Urban sprawl" is the eating up of farms, woods and wetlands for development as population is stable, accompanied by abandonment of land and utilities in older cities.

The RDI study was prompted last year when the city council of Auburn Hills (pop. 19,000) approved plans for a 2-million-square-foot megamall. Neighboring communities saw the mega-mall as a potential economic and environmental disaster to them.

Earlier, SEMCOG released a draft of its conclusions as to why urban sprawl has occurred: racial bias, governmental subsidies to "green field" fringe development, and land use decisions based only on profits and property taxes.

THOSE CONCLUSIONS and these seven recommendations will be pre-sented to SEMCOG's general assembly in October and to all interested of the 230 counties, cities, villages and townships in theregion after-

1. Balance local resources by reducing reliance on the property tax, including perhaps sharing municipal property taxes. (The state Legisla-ture is expected to pass a school tax base sharing bill this session.) Oak-land County is expected to do most of the sharing.

"Adopt and aggressively sup-port anti-discrimination programs" in every local unit, with all schools implementing racial and cultural understanding programs.

3. Develop land use guidelines encouraging compact development, protecting of farm lands, preserving of older communities and balancing of jobs and housing locations. 4. 'Create "a mandatory regional planning review process" for projects with multi-community impact.

5. Adopt state laws requiring "con-currency" for new develpment — roads, sewer lines and public safety equipment must be in place before development begins. Local units would need state power to levy "im-pact fees" on developers who would "pay the true costs of additional mu-nicipal capital nicipal capital costs generated by the development."

6. Prioritize state and federal spending to maintain older communities with existing infrastructure.

7. Revamp regional public trans-portation with support of a regional sales tax in order to "link residents of older communities with the developing job markets of the suburban

Developer on board

A Plymouth developer has been appointed to serve on the newly formed National Advisory Board of Work-Basked Learning, which is under the U.S. Department of Labor. Robert A. Demattia, president of the R.A. DeMattia Co., is the only ember from Michigan. The board sists of leaders from business, education and labor.

Former Secretary of Labor Eliza beth Dole selected the 15-membe mmittee in October 1990. Dole said one of the commission's goals is to reach out to the 50 percent of America's youth who don't go to col-

ge. Since then the board has designed several strategies to improve and expand training and apprenticeship programs for America's work force. "It is quite an honor to be a part of the commission," DeMattia said. 'For America to be successful in the global market, we need to create better ways of providing our working men and women with skills for a lifetime of productive work." DeMattia's input, based on his background in the architectural, de-sign/build and construction industry, has helped the commission explore the feasibility of developing a volun-tary system for accrediting industry-wide training programs.

In the construction industry, the apprenticeship style of training and instruction serve as an important set of credentials, DeMattia said.

"Employers know exactly what skills an applicant has, and the sys-tem of hiring is fast and efficient."

Other members of the commission include: Allen Jacobsen, CEO, 3-M Corp.; Doris O'Connor, senior vice president, Shell Oil Corp.; John J. Jacob, president, The Urban League; Lynn Williams, president, United Steel Workers of America; and Jack MacAllister, chairman and CEO, U.S. West Inc. and chairman of the Plymouth man heads area Elks

James Logsdon of Plymouth was appointed District Deputy Grand Ex-alted Ruler for the Elks' Southeast District of Michigan last month at the Grand Lodge Session in St. Louis, Since his initiation in 1978 into the nevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Logsdon has been active in scholarship programs for high school graduates and with veterans in hospitals in Allen Park and Ann Arbor. He's also worked on drug awareness programs, free throw contests and other Elks programs at the local, state and national levels.

Logsdon is a member of the Elks National Foundation, which contributes millions of dollars each year to support these programs.

Logsdon was elected Exalted Ruler of the Plymouth Lodge No.
1780 in 1984. He was elected president of the Past Exalted Rulers' Association in 1985.

He has chaired various committees at the district and state levels, and was elected District Vice Chairman in 1988 and Southeast District Vice President in 1989.

The Plymouth Lodge boasts 2,200 members and draws heavily from Canton, Livonia, Plymouth Township and Plymouth.

Levin, whose current district in-cludes Redford Township, is already raising money and working on his 1992 re-election campaign even though he doesn't know what district he'll end up in, he said in an interview with The Observer and Eccentric Newspaperslast week.
"We're already organizing, but it's hard when you don't know where you're running," he said.

He declined to speculate on what formidable congressman he might have to take on to survive. Unquestionably, he'll run, he said.

The elimination of two of Michigan's congressional districts before the 1992 election is necessitated by the state's population loss. Most of the 18 districts could be somewhat affected by new boundaries, but some will undergo drastic changes that will undoubtedly pit congressman against congressman in a reman against congressman in a reelection fight.

"WE'RE NEXT TO Detroit which had the biggest population loss so we're in a geographically vulnerable position," Levin said. "Sure I'm doing everything I can to fortify my ssigned the task of redistricting. Each house drafts a bill to redraw district lines, then they try to agree and get the governor's signature. If the Legislature and governor can't agree, the issue will be settled by a panel of federal judges.

Detroit's 13th and 1st districts had the largest population losses, but aren't likely to be changed much because the U.S. Voting Act prohibits redrawing boundaries of majority black districts in any way that would jeopardize the chances of electing black candidates.

LEVIN'S DISTRICT, which also suffered population loss, abuts De-troit. Other districts that abut or are part of the city are the 14th represented by Democrat Dennis Hertel, the 18th represented by Republican William Broomfield, the 18th repre-sented by Democrat William Ford and the 18th represented by Demo-crat John Dingell, all powerful vet-

EPAIRS TO the city parking deck, which officials had put off for several years due to budget constraints, will be performed by the end of this year at a cost of $142,342.

Commissioners on Monday approved the low bid presented by Calculus Construction. The repair bill will be paid for by the Downtown Development Authority. The parking deck will remain open during the fall festival, City Manager Steve Walters said.

Watercolor seascapes, landscape pas-tels and brightly colored paper mache horses, giraffes and rhinoceroses are among the treasures on display through Saturday at D & M Art Studio and Gallery in Old Village, 710 North Mill, Plymouth.

The exhibition of artworks was produced during a six-week series of week-long camps that taught young artists about creating art works.

The projects focused on watercolor, encil drawing, clay, paper mache, collage and printmaking

The sessions, which ran through mid-August, produced nearly 100 artworks, many of which were displayed in the

"We wanted to showcase their talents at the end of the summer," said Sharon Dillenbeck, who owns D & M and co-directs it with Joan Ther.

"By holding the art show and giving awards, we hope to encourage them in pursuing their efforts in art," she said.

MORE THAN 200 children from Canton, Plymouth, Farmington Hills, Novi, Livonia, Redford and Garden City at-tended the day camp, where Dillenbeck, Ther and Elaine Savola instructed children in several art media.

"We wanted to give them a taste of all the media we could. We gave them something from everything so if they didn't like the structured drawing day, then they'd like the papier mache day,' Dillenbeck said.

Visiting artists James DeArmond, Susan Argiroff, Bladen McClelland, Betty Manthey and Yolanda Menchaca demon strated pastels, watercolors, printmaking, acrylic painting, marbling and col-

"The kids learned that they could do anything they wanted. They learned that they could turn their abilities into creating art," Dillenbeck said.

Theresia Radtke, 10, of Plymouth Township, created two pencil drawings on display in the show, one of a mallard, the other of a seal.

"I think the art classes are wonderful. I think Theresia even surprised herself at what she was able to draw. She signed up for their graphic design classes this fall," Linda Radtke said.

DURING THE art show, which opened Tuesday, awards were given for categories that included Best Design, Most Creative, Most Original, Best Use of Color and Best Compostion.

There were Gold Palette, Silver Palette, Gold Key, Gold Coin and Studio Awards, which earned artists gold or silver medals, free art classes from D & M, and gift certificates courtesy of Northwest Blueprint and Supply Co. in Livo-nia. Northwest also donated two easel sets and assorted art supplies as awards.

Artists were allowed to enter two pieces in the show if they had participated in the camp or taken art classes at the studio in the last year.

SC scholarship created in memory of Marie McGee

The Schoolcraft College Founda-tion has established the Marie McGee Scholarship Endowment in memory of journalist and Livonia activist Marie McGee.

A member of the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Advisory Committee, McGee died in May 1990. Her endowment will be used to fund scholarships for returning adult women to Schoolcraft.

S'craft offers speakers bureau

Schoolcraft College faculty and staff, as well as interested community residents, have volunteered their time to form a college-community

Speakers have expertise in a wide range of subjects which may be offered as a lecture, discussion or slide presentation. In addition, speakers are available on specific college programs and major educational issues. The service is free to area groups and organizations. To obtain a copy of the speakers bureau program, retain a speaker or become a member of the speakers bureau, contact the department of institutional advancement at 462-4417 at least one month before the program date.

An encore

Music festival offers diversity

HE PLYMOUTH Music Celebration left us hoping for an encore. For three days the strains of blues, azz, classical and country music could be heard drifting from Kellogg Park. The new, different event added a diversity to the cultural menu in Plymouth.

THE EVENTS also took into account the tastes of the entire community. Apart from the different types of music, there was also something for the kids. There was a performance by "The Ronald McDonald Show" and a living science program for children.

And it was free. But money is always a hitch. Mike Watts of Plymouth, the organizer of the event, said Music Celebration didn't make money, but said he expects to bring the concerts back to Kellogg Park again next year.

We're happy to hear that.

To fund the musical acts, tickets were sold to food events such as a taste fest, an elegant picnic and classical brunch. We hope the financing stays in place and other sources are found.

WE WOULD LIKE to see the Music Celebration grow and mature. And so does Watts. Next year he hopes to book some nationally known music acts to close each day of the festival.

We'll be looking forward to that. It's music to Fire safety program delivers

CHOOLS ARE often under attack for what they're telling or not telling kids in the classroom.

But there was an incident in Plymouth Township last week that showed school programs can do more than educate: They save lives

And that was evident when Justin Bailey, 5, grabbed his 3-year-old sister, Kelley, and led her to safety when a toaster sparked a kitchen fire.

There was nothing exotic about the fire. It happened when the children's mother, Cindy Bailey, was in front of the house paying a bill.

BUT BECAUSE Justin had learned how to deal with fire through the Safety Town project, he was able to save his sister's life.

Safety Town teaches children to stay low, under the smoke caused by the fire and to not open

They're told to leave the house immediately and not go back in for any reason, according to Larry Groth, Plymouth Township fire chief.

Cindy Bailey said she and her husband decided to send Justin to Safety Town after receiving a flier on the program. It's a flier that possibly

We just hope the public recognizes that Plymouth/Canton schools are there to do more than just teach reading, writing and math. They're there to help our childen learn how to deal with a complicated and at times dangerous world.

Tuition cap

Controls won't hold rates low

OUSE SPEAKER Lewis Dodak and some Democratic leaders were seeking publicity and sending a message - we hope - with their price control proposal for college tuitions.

Their idea is to seek a constitutional amendment limiting annual tuition and ree increa state universities to the rate of consumer price inflation. Voters would have to approve.

If their goal is to rattle the cages of university boards, which this summer have jacked up fall rates 6.5 to 20.4 percent, fine.

BUT IF TUITION caps are intended as serious public policy, the plan shows economic, historical and political illiteracy about price controls.

· Tuition hikes would be limited to the consumer price index (CPI). But the CPI is irrelevant to colleges, which use a higher education price index (HEPI). Colleges don't shop at the same grocery stores as families.

• Price controls don't work. They didn't work for the fourth century Roman Emperor Diocletian. Price controls didn't work for 70 years in the Soviet Union, resulting in a notorious black market. Price controls were the object of mirth in World War II and the subject of evasion when President Nixon tried them in 1971

 If imposed, tuition caps would prompt universities to pare costs by offering fewer laboratory courses and more textbook-only courses. The quantity and quality of higher education would be diluted.

BESIDES, THERE already are better tuition control mechanisms that all skilled politicians

First, the governor appoints members of 10 university boards. Former Gov. James Blanchard could have used his power in the mid-1980s to boot out Oakland University trustees who or tuition rates he considered too high. Instead, he reappointed them.

Second, state party conventions nominate candidates for the three largest university boards. If tuition hikes are so serious a problem, both parties' delegates could use tuition caps as a "litmus test" on candidates for the University of Michigan, Michigan State and Wayne State boards. So far, they haven't even tried.

Third, parents and grandparents who have enrolled young children in the Michigan Education Trust, a pre-paid college tuition plan, should have a vested interest in keeping tuitions low. As voters, they have enough numbers to decide university board races, which in Michigan are typically tight. As political activists, they could have even more clout.

THERE'S NO chance in the world that a twothirds majority of both chambers of the Legislature will put Dodak's proposal on the 1992 ballot. The speaker would waste his debt-plagued party's scarce resources by trying a petition drive.

The best - perhaps only - chance of holding down tuition rates is through political leadership. Candidates and parents should make tuition caps an issue at the 1992 Democratic and Republican state conventions, persuading one party or both to nominate candidates who will pledge to hold down tuitions as much as is feasible.

Amendments regulate power of federal, state government

Amendment IX - The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Amendment X — The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

NLIKE THE specific restraints of amendments one through eight, the Ninth and Tenth amendments hint that there may be limits on the government's power beyond those already specified.

The Ninth Amendment recognizes the personal rights that may be entitled to constitutional protection from government interference. The Tenth also acknowledges the basic political principal that all powers belong to the people.

Only those powers delegated by the people may be exercised by the government either federal or state. Thus the Bill of Rights ends on the note sounded at the Constitution's beginning affirming the sovereign power of "We, the Peo-

Fear keeps suburban residents out of city

Consider a recent poll conducted by Schoolcraft College students. It reveals suburbanites are more frightened than ever at the thought of traveling into the city of Detroit. The polling questions probed the effect of the widely publicized beating of two suburban women following the Freedom Festival fireworks. The beatings, recorded on videotape, made national headlines.

A whopping 63.9 percent of the 400 persons surveyed said they were less likely to visit the city because of the Freedom Festival incidents. More than 70 percent believed that police protection in Detroit is less than adequate.

An indication of the depth of fear is that more than 78.5 percent of those questioned admitted that the city of Detroit has attractions unequaled in the suburbs. Nevertheless, they stay away.

In what a pitiful state we find ourselves. WE ARE prisoners of our own paradise.

Surrounded by our dream homes, with manicured lawns, crowded freeways and out-of-control proper-ty taxes, we have abandoned perfectly fine cultural and recreational facilities for the lure of strip malls and rarely-used commons areas.

We have so depleted our resources that we are unable to duplicate the facilities abandoned to the ravages of urban blight.

A whopping 63.9 percent of the 400 persons surveyed said they were less likely to visit the city because of the Freedom Festival incidents. More than 70 percent believed that police protection in Detroit is less than adequate.

For decades, those who could afford the fare, have bought a ticket on the white-flight express, confident in the knowledge that they were making a down payment on a piece of the American dream

But as reality has closed in, the dream is revealed to be a little more than tarnished. A once familiar city whose streets we walked, whose facilities we enjoyed, and in which we invested millions of dollars has been allowed to disintegrate into what most would perceive as a haven for

A COLLEAGUE and I were recently exchanging views on the mutual admiration we share for Detroit's sister city on the Great Lakes, Chicago. The envy oozed from our every word.

Steve Barnaby:

Certainly, the windy city has its flaws, every urban area does. But the leadership of metropolitan Chicago continues to support its core. The people follow that lead. And it shows in both the amenities offered by downtown Chicago and the attitude which emanates from those who live and do business in that

Unfortunately, we suffer from a crippling case of inferiority. In a recent exchange with several influential hoteliers, I was shocked to hear them all readily surrender to the idea that "Detroit is no Chicago," that we never will be able to create the same kind of business in this

And we never will if we continue. to abandon what we have built.

Now is the time to slay the mon ster called fear and take control ofthe valuable resource which pumps economic prosperity into this region.

Store boycott urged to stop pornography

To the editor:

My heart is truly saddened by the apparent indifference of many of our citizens. I hear of Kmart's expansion plans, and then read of the 15 slayings in an apartment in Milwaukee (connected with sexual perversion).

I would like to shout out, "People, wake up! Don't you know that when you are shopping at stores such as Kmart and Hudson's you are putting money into the coffers of pornography kingpins?" Pornography is a proven cause of many of the sexual crimes committed against women, children and yes . . . men.

Kmart owns Waldenbooks, and despite many requests of concerned, knowledgeable citizens, has refused to stop selling pornography. Target (owned by Hudson's) has also refused to stop the funding of Playboy by selling its line of Playmate items.

Other stores such as Penney's, Sears and Meijer have listened to their customers and complied with this change.

We have alternatives, and a duty to protect our families from poten-tial harm. I believe we, as individuals, can do our part. Please get the facts, become involved. One way to do this is to join the American Family Association, P.O. Drawer 2440, Tupelo, Miss. 38803.

Artist showed compassion

Judy Gibbs should be very proud of her painting, "Mourning Moslems." And the show officials, who suggested it be moved to a less prominent spot, should be ashamed

As well as entertain, art should inspire and motivate us to be better people. Judy Gibbs follows a distinguished tradition by her rendition of grieving Kuwaiti women. Voices for peace, human dignity and an end to abuse and oppression have been raised by many artists throughout the centuries.

I think particularly of the great artist Kaethe Kollwitz. In her sculptures, lithographs and etchings, she challenged, "No more war," and victory over poverty.

"The Potato Eaters" by Vincent Van Gogh is another testament to victims of injustice, as is, in our own time, "Miners' Wives" by Ben Shahn. The artistic expression of tragedies and problems can, and does, bring healing, reconciliation and solutions.

Judy Gibbs is making the world a more loving one by the compassion her work arouses in human hearts. I

FARTHER NORTH, in St. Paul, Minn., the Court of Appeals has re-versed a lower court ruling, in which a jury found a woman guilty of vio-lating a Minneapolis ordinance re-quiring that homes be kept in a clean and sanitary" condition.

The charges were brought after a complaint was filed in 1989 and the woman's home was inspected by a representative of the Minneapolis Health Department. The inspector testified that five plastic garbage bags and a barrel on the back porch, clothing on a back yard clothe boxes stacked against a wall, used plastic pop bottles and other items found at the home constituted unclean and unsanitary conditions.

A jury found her guilty and a judge sentenced her to 35 days in jail or a $700 fine. The appeals court found that the ordinance was "vague and discretionary" as applied in this

So if you are a messy housekeepe and you live in Minneapolis, you'd better make good use of the vacuum and the duster. Cleanliness is not just next to Godliness. It's the law.

AND BACK DOWN South, in Canton, Miss., a Jackson woman whose child was born dead has been charged with manslaughter because she allegedly used cocaine during her pregnancy. The charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The assistant district attorney prosecuting the case says a conviction could set a national precedent. The woman's attorney says her client's privacy was invaded.

"It is part of what we see as a trend nationally of the government trying to be involved in the private lives of pregnant women," she said.

That visionary founding father and first Treasury secretary was a point still valid today: Lawmakers can pass a ton of thoughtful legisla-tion; but unless your administrators have the energy and resources to do the job, the laws are a waste of time and paper.

That's particularly true in modern Michigan, where our safety regula-tions are being shredded.

THINK OF MICHIGAN'S budget as an apple pie with three roughly equal pieces:

1. Social services - it's driven not by the Legislature but by the high divorce and soaring illegitimate birth rates. To Democrats, it's a source of votes, hence sacred. Even Gov. John Engler doesn't want to cut aid to families with dependent chil-

3. Everything else - prisons, courts, state police, attorney general, labor regulations, business regulation, natural resources, public health, mental health, and so on.

Some parts of "everything else," such as prisons and courts, are leaping skyward faster than income and population growth.

BUT THE REGULATORY side of government has been butchered, and it will get worse

Engler and the GOP have visions of a $1 billion school property tax cut. The money would come from "everything else."

Schools are suing the state for categorical aid, and communities are suing for court support. If (when) they win, the money would come from "everything else."

That third piece of pie was squeezed by Blanchard in the 1980s. Engler is squashing it in the '90s.

LET'S PLAY "connect the dots," the kids' coloring book game, to see the big picture:

Sunday Mass, dinner to honor 50-year priest

The 50th anniversary of the or-dination of the Rev. H. Norbert Clemens, a Basilian priest at Cath-olic Central High School, will be commemorated at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, in St. Genevieve's Church in Livonia.

Friends and alumni are invited to join the Basilian Fathers of CC and Clemens as he offers a Mass of thanksgiving. Immediately following will be a reception in St. Genevieve's Activities Building. The reception will conclude at 5:30 p.m.

An evening dinner reception will be held for invited guests.

"Father Clemens is well-remembered by more than 9,000 students who have benefited from his teaching and good example in academics, in religion and in school spirit," said the Rev. Richard Elmer, CC's director of development and alumni.

"He has the prayers and best wishes of the entire Catholic Cen-and happiness."

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, Clemens graduated from Assumption High School in Windsor, Ontario. He entered the Religious Congregation of St. Basil in 1933, graduating from Assumption College in 1937.

For 43 years Clemens has taught English and theology at CC. He has also directed first-rate drama pro-ductions and moderated school or-ganizations, including the senior class and the Mothers' Club.

Currently chaplain of CC's athletic department, Clemens also has taught at St. Thomas High School in Houston, Texas, and at Assump tion High School. From 1965-1968, he served the Basilians' Mexican Missions, supervising the construc-tion of and directing El Centro Cultural, a school to foster native Mexican vocations to the priesthood and religious life.

John Gallagher, superior general of the Basilian order; Thomas Brennan, president of Cooley Law School and former Michigan Supreme Court Justice; Judge James Ryan of the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals; and Robert Santello, CC athletic director.

"Fifty years a priest; that kind of single-minded commitment to vows and to the work of making men out of boys is uncommon," said Ryan, who as a CC student acted in plays directed by Clemens. "And in this instance, it is in a priest who has devoted 43 years of his 50 years of priesthood to shaping and molding the moral values of young men at the same

"His style of bringing adoles-cents to a mature appreciation of developing for themselves a set of moral standards is unique in that he is blessed with the ability to capture the attention and the loyalty of male adolescents and to focus their attention on subjects that tend to bore young people, by which I mean shaping a personal code of conduct. That is a great

"He teaches kids to love them-selves and their Creator, and to re-spect one another," added Ryan, whose two sons also were taught by Clemens. "He is teaching the same personal moral code in 1991 that he taught in 1941. To sell young adolescents on the idea of commitment to that kind of a personal moral code takes enormous teaching genius, but he has found a way to appeal to teenaged boys decade after decade, imparting the same fundamental message which is his credo as a Basilian: Teach me goodness, discipline and knowledge.

Brennan agreed, adding that Clemens "married me and my wife, Polly, as well as my son Tom and his wife. Father Clemens has probably married more people than any other priest at CC. He has a great relationship with students. "He loves the boys when they're at CC, and he loves them when they continue as alumni," said Brennan, who was taught by Clemens. "He's a great guy."

Golfers change course

By Neil Zipeer staff writer

Loud crowds, or a team's "sixth man," can often make a difference in an important basketball game. Knowing how to play the outfield wall can work to a home team's advanatge in baseball.

The Plymouth Salem golf team hopes learning to putt effectively on difficult and quick greens can give the Rocks the home field advantage they will need to improve on last season's 8-4 finish in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Salem returns a veteran squad of six seniors but switched golf courses since last season and find themselves on a tougher course. The Rocks moved from Brae Burn Golf Course to Hilltop Golf Course be-cause of a combination of reasons, according to ninth-year Salem coach Rick Wilson.

"We felt like we were more welcomed at Hilltop than we were at Brae Burn," he said. "Brae Burn already had three teams there, and I don't think they wanted to keep all three schools. Hilltop is also closer to the school.

"The advantage we have of having six seniors return may be offset by the fact they don't have a lot of experience playing on the new course. Hopefully, we can learn how to play Hilltop and use it to our advantage.'

THE KEY to success may be learning how to putt on Hilltop's tough greens.

You can easily three-putt on their greens and four-putts aren't unheard of," Wilson said.

Veteran cast boosts Salem hopes for '91

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The post-season tournaments are 2½ months away and the farthest thing from the collective mind of the Plymouth Salem girls basketball

But, traditionally, coach Fred Thomann has the Rocks playing their best late in the season as was the case last year.

The Rocks won the Western Lakes Activities Association title for the fourth time in six years, and Salem advanced to the Class A semifinals where it lost to eventual state champ Detroit King.

Providing a solid base for the 1991 outlook is the fact seven of the 13 varsity players return from that team, which finished 22-4 and was the class of Observerland.

"It's the first year since Dena Head's senior year that we've had this much experience," Thomann said. "Our senior class is a good one. We have five kids coming back who have a good game base."

THE ROCKS also reached the Final Four when Head, now a star for the University of Tennessee women's team, played her final season at Salem in 1987.

But Thomann isn't predicting, or necessarily expecting, this year's squad will do as well as that team or the last one. The point is the Rocks have the potential to be a good team and could possibly be there in December again.

"What we try to do is get to the next game and be better," Thomann

basketball

said. "That's been our mode for years, and we're not going to change that. We will continue to challenge our players with our schedule and practices." The senior class includes tri-cap-tains Emily Giuliani, Kelly Austin and Darcie Miller. Seniors Martha Bol and Allison Fyke return as do juniors Christy Parimucha and Cyndi Platter.

Varsity newcomers are juniors Tonya Wheeler (wing), Shelly Sockow (wing), Caryn Tatterton (guard), Cindy McClure (guard), Amanda Tubaugh (wing) and Leslie Gotts (guard) - all of whom played on the JV team last year.

"Our playing base is in our senior class so we are a veteran team," Thomann said.

SALEM IS solid in the front court. The 6-foot-1 Miller started last year in the middle, and Giuliani and Platter got a lot of playing time.

Miller averaged 10 points and 10 rebounds, and Giuliani, who missed a lot of the regular season with encephalitis, played well in the league and state tournaments. She came off the bench to score 13 points and help the Rocks beat Ann Arbor Pioneer 63-57 in a regional game.

Canton roller skater 3-time gold medalist

staff writer

Rod Jellse knows a World Champion when he sees one. The artistic roller skating coach from Redford should know, having en a world champion himself in 1957 and coached several others.

His latest prodigy is 14-year-old Jeff Angiulli of Canton, who recently returned from the U.S. Amateur Confederatin of Roller Skating Competitions in Philadelphia, Pa., with gold medals in three events, including Freshman Boys Figures, Advanced Men's Loops and Freshman Team Dance (with three-year partner Sarah Kemp of Northville).

"I've seen a lot of people come and go," said Jellse, who coaches Angiulli at the Riverside Arena in Livonia. "But what makes Jeff unique is that he has superior concentration and reacts under pressure. He could Angiulli, who began competitive skating as a 7-year-old, first qualified for national competitions in 1986 and has since won nine gold and four silver medals.

"HE (ANGIULLI) has done a phenomenal job in the low divisions from Juvenvile to Elementary to Freshman - he's moved his way up," Jellse said.

Despite having one more year remaining as a Freshman, Angiulli plans to jump next year into the Juniors with hopes of finishing in the top two. By placing in the top two at next year's nationals, the incoming freshman at Salem High would earn a spot in the 1993 U.S. Olympic Sports Festival.

'Jeff's at the turning point of his career," said Jellse, whose son go to the top. He has the ability, al- Shawn won the Juniors a year ago. though he's a way from that right "It's very possible that he could be in the top two at that level. He has already beaten the Junior men in one competition." At 5 feet, 71/2 inches and only 106 pounds, Angiulli is a slender, angular figure at the rink. Right now it's more coordination than strength," Jellse said. "It's more accuracy than strength, but now we're going to try and develop him physically."

Anguilli, an honor roll student, is not afraid of putting in long hours.

In preparation for the Philadelphia competition, he trained seven days per week, six to 10 hours per "Ron can be a good friend and he's pretty calm most of the time," Anguilli said. "He's most intense during the nationals. If he doesn't get mad at you, you wouldn't try as hard."

ANGIULLI'S FAMILY is committed, as well, to Jeff's ultimate goal of being a world champ and traveling to compete in Europe.

Linda, Jeff's mother, estimates the total costs for practice time, lessons, equipment and costumes run anywhere from $10,000 to $12,000 per year. "It's not much of a financial change for us until you become world class when some of your expenses are covered," she said. "But it's been worth it." Jeff's goals are to follow the paths of World Champs Justin Bates (of Flint) and Tony St. Jaques.

"He's a perfectionist and quite coachable," Jellse said. "He's the type of person many champs are made of. He's his own worst critic. When he doesn't skate well he's not so happy. When he's done something wrong and comes off he already knows what it is."

Angiulli is taking a month off from his roller skating, trying to be a mainstream teenager.

"I like to hang out with my friends," he said. "They're into soccer and football, but they understand it (roller skating) now more than they used to be."

And bringing three gold medals home doesn't hurt his cause.

"It's tough trying to do everything well," Anguilli said. "I'm happy I won all three because I hadn't done it before. It was rewarding because I worked hard all year."

Golf event raises money for charity

As chief executive officer of the Detroit Pistons, Tom Wilson realized the dream of winning a pair of NBA championships.

But the Rochester Hills resident hopes he can fulfill another dream Monday in the first annual Boys Hope Open at the Tournament Players

The charity golf event, co-sponsored by Anheuser-Busch Companies and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, hopes to raise enough funds to open a second Boys Hope youth home in Sherwood Forest area of

"Tve never been involved in something like this before where I was able to meet some of the kids and see the program in action," said Wilson, the honorary chairman of the event. "Our goal is funding for a new home. I believe the program has an impact on the lives of these kids. They also get a genuine feel for home."

Boys Hope is a long-term, educationally based program which offers a group home living experience for well-adjusted, intelligent young boys (normally ages 10-14). Boys Hope students are provided live-in houseparents, tutoring, financial assistance and counseling toward college, a college preparatory high school education (based on Judeo-Christian values) and a stable environment.

STUDENTS COME to Boys Hope because their needs can no longer be met in their own homes. Family situations, which might create a such a need placement at Boys Hope include the death of a parent, illness or disability of a parent, abandonment, abuse or neglect, and serious problems in family relationships.

"Now that I've had a chance to meet some of the people, it's great to be involved personally," Wilson said.

Wilson said Piston general manager Jack McCloskey and assistant coach Brendan Malone will participate in the event along with actor Jeff Registration is from 11 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. Monday. A buffet lunch will begin at 11:30 a.m. The shotgun start for four-person scramble begins at 1 p.m. followed by an open bar at 5 p.m. and dinner (including door prizes and auction) at 7 p.m. (Dinner only is $50.)

A single entry fee is $300 (includes golf, cart, lunch, open bar, awards, gift and dinner). Some tee or green sponsorships are available for $1,000 (includes display sign on tee or green, program listing and dinner).

For more information about the event, call 862-0707.

Seniors lift Rocks

If early indications are any sign of Salem's future, Wilson is optimistic. The Rocks finished 14th out of 24 teams Tuesday at the Brighton Invitational, which features some of the state's best golf teams.

The Rocks finished better than most of their WLAA competitors, including Farmington and Walled Lake Western, but Wilson has one major concern - next season.

Because six seniors return, Wilson realizes next season will require a major rebuilding job.

"I'm real concerned about next season, but this is an ideal situation for the six seniors," Wilson said. "Because six golfers shoot and five scores are taken, it's up to the seniors to play themselves out of a job."

Jason Behnke and Chad Edgar were the only golfers to depart from

SENIOR BRIAN Botwinski, who finished 12th in Brighton, and senior Dave Weaver, are the Rocks top two golfers. Both have golfed at Salem

Seniors Jeff Kotlarczyk, Jeff Hopson, Joe Gumbis and Ray Alvarado round out Salem's group of six. Sophomore Josh Edgar may also see some time on the course, according to Wilson.

"I told the seniors that if they get knocked out of their starting posi-tions then it's their own fault," Wilson said. "They're all seniors, but only Botwinski and Weaver have actual match experience."

"I think we are as strong or stronger than we were last year. As far as how we look in the division, I think we are as good or better than most of the other schools, but I don't think we will beat up on anybody," he

U-M defender plays new position

By C.J. Rieak staff writer

Changing positions prior to your senior year does not bode well for a college football player. Alex Marshall knows this.

Still, the Redford Bishop Borgess graduate did not argue, either when he was initially moved from outside linebacker to defensive line midway through the 1990 season, or when the switch was made permanent during University of Michigan's spring

Nor did Marshall ever consider forsaking this, his redshirt year, at U-M. "I had planned on being back for my fifth year," he said. "That was never a question."

The only question was, where would he be on the football field?

Marshall's career as a Wolverine has been in reverse since 1988, his first year of eligibility. He had a stellar start; indeed, he started 11 of 12 games at outside linebacker that season, collecting three quarterback sacks and seven tackles for loss.

AS A SOPHOMORE (in eligibility), Marshall led U-M in tackles for loss (11), tied for the team lead in fumble recoveries (two) and was second in sacks (six). But he was fifth that season in total tackles, and going into the '90 campaign his consistency was openly questioned by Wolverine coaches.

'Positions aren't that important. I knew the defense thoroughly before I moved. When you know something, it's not a big deal. I just want to play.'

Midway through last season, Mar-shall — who had been bothered by injuries early in the year - moved to defensive tackle. "We had some injuries (at defensive tackle), and I was the next logical choice," he said. "Early in the year, I wasn't healthy, and when I came back I wasn't play-

Neil Simpson and Martin Davis were entrenched at outside linebacker, so Marshall went along with the move. He played well enough at tackle to get into four games, and during drills last spring he emerged as one of the six players defensive line coach Tom Reed will shuttle into the three positio

MARSHALL DOWNPLAYS his changing roles. "Positions aren't that important," he said. "I knew the defense thoroughly before I moved. When you know something, it's not a big deal. I just want to play. It isn't not liking one position or another. I want to play the game."

Reed contradicted Marshall's views. "It's not easy (switching positions)," the Wolverine line coach said. "But he's a veteran, he's been around, he's started before. Those things should help him."

The reason, Reed insisted, Marshall was moved was twofold. "I think Alex can maximize his potential better at defensive tackle than at outside linebacker," he said. "It's like Tripp Welborne (Michigan's now-graduated All-American). He came in as a wide receiver, and he probably would have been a good ne, but he was a better safety.

SO WAS the switch made for Marshall's benefit? "It was a move of necessity last year," Reed admitted.

"Alex is the same way."

"This year, it's a little bit of both." It's true, Reed said, the defensive line remains "an area of concern."

Marshall could help eradicate the worries, if he can . .

"Be consistent," said Marshall.
Reed agreed. "That's it," he said.
"He has to be more consistent. It's not complicated. He's a little older, so maturity should help." Marshall's weight was a bit of a problem when he played linebacker. It won't be now; he's 6-foot-4, 260

Perhaps he's grown to like his new position. Only time will tell.

U-M NOTES: Marshall isn't the only one needing to upgrade his consistency. Erik Knuth, entering his junior year of eligibility, will also see plenty of playing time for the Wolverines at noseguard. The 6-1, 253-pound Redford Catholic Central grad (from Plymouth) is small for his position, which makes survival tough. Still, Reed believes Knuth could be a factor for U-M

National stars prevail

Ariana Poniatowski's two-run homer keyed a four-run third inning that helped the Nationals win the Commercial Carpet Corporation Softball League all-star game Sunday, 9-7 over the Americans at Central Field in Plymouth.

Krista Miller was the winning pitcher, tossing a complete game a five-hitter. She struck out nine and walked 10 in seven innings.

The teams emerged from the first inning deadlocked at 3-3, but the Nationals were ahead to stay after the third-inning rally.

Mary Jo Kelly was the starting and losing pitcher for the Americans. She gave up three hits, seven walks and eight runs in four innings and was replaced by Karen Seremet, who allowed a run and three hits.

Julie Nicastri had an RBI single and later stole home in the National first inning. Beth Bisio added an RBI double. The Americans rallied in the bottom half with Amy Yocum's tworun double and Becca Bloch's runproducing groundout.

RENEE DORY added an RBI single in the third for the Nationals, who got single runs in the fourth and fifth innings. Tina Schafer drove in a run, and Bisio tripled and scored the last run on an error.

The Americans came back with two-run innings in the fourth and sixth. Erin Kelly had an RBI double and Mary Jo Kelly a solo homer. Ann Zazula hit a triple and scored on Bloch's sacrifice fly.

Bisio had two hits and scored three runs for the winners. Erin Kelly had two hits and Block two RBI for the Americans.

Playing for the Nationals were Miller, Poniatowski, Cyndi Knuta and Kathy Misteravich of the Farmington Hills Majestics; Sarah Schimmelpfenneg, Nicole Sequin, Dory and Schafer of the Canton Cobras; Rachel Allor, Bisio and April Switala of the Livonia Commanders; Marian Huhn, Tanya Osborn and Nicole Noch of the Farmington Fantastics.

The American roster included Zazula, Mary Jo Kelly, Amy Yocum and Kim Cinco of the Livonia Spitfires; Seremet, Allison Stein, Kate Mackie and Becky Thursam of the Farmington Hills Diamonds; Amanda Tubaugh, Dawn Marrocco and Jenny Coleman of the Salem Shags; Erin Kelly, Mandy Young, Bloch and Lisa Craven of the Livonia Lasers.

In a pregame ceremony, Lois Mackie, the owner of Commercial Carpet and the league sponsor, pre-sented the league championship tro-phy to Majestics coach Dick Miller and medals to his players.

Salem is challenged by difficult schedule

Salem lost three starters, however, and one was ju ior Yolanda Jackson, a post player who transferred to Willow Run last January. Platter is improved and will probably start up front with one of the three playing a wing, Thomann said.

"Our front line — four seniors and a junior — is a veteran cast," he said. "Miller and Giuliani had major success at the varsity level, and Cyndi Platter is ready to emerge as a really good player. Martha and Allison are solid kids who play hard."

Salem has the unusual but nice dilemma of having two highly-seasoned point guards in Austin and Parimu-

Austin underwent major knee surgery last year and missed the entire season, and her injury pressed Parimucha into service and gave her a chance to gain valuable experience. Austin is completely recovered, and the Rocks have another quality point guard in Gotts,

"WE'RE IN A good situation there," he said. "(Austin and Parimucha) have played 20-plus games apiece, and I expect our running game is going to be there based on those two players. And we have a third I think can be a tremendous addition."

Thomann is undecided which one will play the point, but one of the remaining two will play the off-guard spot with the other rotating in at either position.

Something the Rocks will need to develop is a perimeter game. Sarah Ruete, the leading scorer a year ago, and Betsy McAllister were excellent shots from the outside but both have graduated.

Salem should have no trouble scoring inside with proven scorers at those positions, but the Rocks will need some balance. Thomann said.

Parimucha, who averaged 51/2 assists and 21/2 points, has an accurate shot from 16 feet and showed that in the regional tournament last year. Gotts also could develop

"This year our perimeter players have to get better, so we can have better access to the post game," Thomann said. "But I expect we're going to be able to deliver the ball to our post players pretty well.

"THERE WILL be times when we'll need to be able to shoot the ball from the perimeter, but the key question still is 'How well are we going to rebound and play defense? Are we going to get second shots and loose ball recoveries' — the intangible things that let your team move from being a good team to a better team? I think we're going to be able to score points. The question is can we stop people?"

Salem begins the season Tuesday with a home game against Flint Powers, expected to be ranked either No. 1 or 2 in the state. The Rocks play Waterford Kettering and three Catholic League teams (Mercy, Marian and Regina) before starting WLAA play with Livonia Franklin. "THERE WILL be times when we'll need to be able to

"I think we're going to contend (for the league title)," Thomann said, adding Plymouth Canton, Northville, Livonia Stevenson, Westland John Glenn and Walled Lake Central return most or all of their starting units and Franklin might have the WLAA's best player in

"There are some awful good teams in the league, and our schedule is stronger than last year. We could be better than last year but without the same success."

Darcie Miller begins her third year on the Salem varsity and is the leading scorer and rebounder among returning players.

Lally weighs options after defeat

what was happening when I walked in late Saturday night to a packed Malarkey's Pub on Wayne Road in Westland .

This was boxer Brett Lally's favorite hangout, but patrons immediately wore concerned looks for their favorite son. HBO was beaming loud and clear on the TV monitors, maybe too vivid and real for Lally's friends

Admittedly, my heart sank when the Westland native was decked by World Boxing Council Super-Welterweight champ Terry Norris, the man who put Sugar Ray Leonard into retirement. The knockdown occurred only 14 to 15 seconds into the fight.

"This couldn't be happening," I said to myself.

The rest is well documented.

The John Glenn High graduate went down two more times before the bout was stopped at 2:40 of the first round at the San Diego Sports Arena. The HBO graphic said Norris threw 39 punches and landed 25 for 64 percent, compared to Lally's six of 33 (18 percent).

Cable announcers George Foreman and Larry Merchant immediately began speculating about Norris' next opponent.

sion (154 pounds) for him to fight," Merchant chirped.

Brad

Emons

"There's that bald-headed guy still out there," said Foreman, rubbing his head. "You know, the actor over there in Italy. Maybe he'll come back for another big pay day."

WHETHER NORRIS puts Marvin Hagler into permanent retirement, or moves up to meet James "Lights Out" Toney or Michael "Second to" Nunn, is purely fight speculation.

The big question is whether Lally, a journeyman fighter with a 29-6 record, had his last big pay day (reportedly $100,000).

After losses to Donald Curry, and now Norris, maybe it would be wise for the 28-year-old Lally to contemplate retirement. He has 45 days (the mandatory spension period after a knockdown) to weigh his future.

"Brett's not quitting, he's going to start over and take it as a lesson," Lally's last fight at the Laurel Manor in Livonia (back in June). "It was a real learning experience, just Brett should have stayed down after the first (Norris) knockdown, used up the count and gathered himself. Brett was just too excited and wanted to take the guy's head off."

Lally won the North American

Boxing Federation's junior middleweight crown earlier this year by boring down on his opponent and scoring inside. That brawling style, however, went out the window against Norris, a fighter with speed. punching power and accuracy.

AS THE PATRONS from Malarkey's jumped out of their seats with excitement when Lally won the prefight stare-down, it was later revealed that he may have lost the bout earlier in the day during the Norris, normally low-key, started spouting off and Lally took offense. The two got face-to-face and even butted heads. There was even a disagreement about what type of gloves should be used. "Brett lost his temper and let his fight plan go out the window," said brother Bradd, his manager and trainer. "Brett was as shocked as anybody. It shocked us when he at the same hotel all week and kept running into each other. They almost got into it at a restaurant. The pro-

Bradd said his brother was never more ready for a fight, even right up to the opening bell. He had trained for four weeks at 7,000-feet elevation at Big Bear Mountain in California. He had received favorable press from the papers in Los Angeles and

The small ring was even to Lally's

"That's his game, he likes to rumble," Bradd said.

Lally, however, may have got caught up in the emotion of it all. He led with his head instead of bobbing and weaving it.

"BRETT WAS all offense and no defense," Bradd said. "The darndest thing is that nobody has seen him at his best. It's a shame.

The question remains: Is Lally at Fishing rules haven't changed much

Rouge Park Golf Course

Offer Good:

HE BIG SURPRISE was no I came across a Michigan Fishing Guide from 1961 recently and expected to find several monumental differences in the fishing rules from 30 years ago. But to my surprise, the only major differences were the obvious ones.

License fees have increased. A resident fishing license in 1961 cost a mere $2 while today's anglers shell out a whopping $9.85 annually. Non resident fees have ballooned from $5 to $20.35 (which is OK by me because I've fished beside some greedy, obnoxious Ohioans during fall salmon runs) while a trout and salmon stamp has risen from $2 to

Another obvious difference was the lack of salmon regulations, which was also expected since salmon weren't introduced into the Great Lakes until the 1970's.

The only other obvious difference was the lack of a health advisory. Today's Michigan Fishing Guide contains three-and-one-half pages of advisories on nearly every species of fish in Michigan waters. Because of public awareness and environmental concerns, the fish are probably less contaminated today, but in 1961 there was absolutely no advisory in

SURPRISINGLY, SIZE and posession limits have experienced minimal changes over the years.

In 1961, the minimum legal size limit for brook, brown and rainbow trout was seven inches across the state. Today, the seven inch minimum remains in effect on streams in the Upper Peninsula only. Brookies, browns and rainbow need to be eight inches in length on Lower Peninsula streams and 10-inches on all lakes including Great Lakes and connection waters.

The general minimum size limit on walleye (known as pike-perch in '61) and black bass have increased by two inches in the past 30 years, jumping from 13 to 15 inches and from 10 to 12 inches respectively. (Today there are special provisions on certain bodies of water such as a 13-inch minimum on walleye on lakes Erie and St. Clair, the Detroit and St. Clair rivers and a few isolated inland lakes.)

creased from 45 inches to 50 inches while the daily and possession limit on muskie has been restricted from no limit in 1961 to one per day.

Some annual seasons have been extended by a few days and others have been shortened, but none of the changes are particularly surprising.

ELK PERMITS AVAILABLE

Applications for the December Michigan Elk hunt are available at license dealers and Department of Natural Resources field offices across the state.

Applications must be postmarked by Sept. 15 (which falls on a Sunday, so they actually need a Sept. 14 postmark).

There will be no Octobeer elk hunt this year since DNR wildlife biologists expect to meet the harvest objective through the Dec. 10-17 hunt.

Application fee is $4 (non refundable). The DNR expects to receive more than 35,000 applications for the 155 elk permits available for the 1991 season. The DNR will issue 98 anterless only permits and 57 hunter's choice permits.

Spinners work their way back

By Stewart Francke special writer

F IT was the Seventies, and it was soul, and it was a hit, it was most likely the Spinners.

Though the Detroit-born R&B group has never received the praise that is routinely addressed to the Temptations, the Four Tops or the Commodores, the Spinners, with their classic call and response vocal style and remarkable string of hit singles, have perhaps the greatest ability to express joy simply and directly in song.

AND THOUGH they haven't had a hit yet in this decade, original member Henry Fambrough feels that the chance of it happening is not remote.

"If anybody can have a hit," Fam-brough stresses, "the Spinners can. Musicality is coming back around again. We managed to have a hit in every decade but this one, so we're trying for that now too."

Fambrough first began singing with fellow Spinners Bobbie Smith, Pervis Jackson, Billy Henderson and Philippe Wynne in Ferndale in the late Fifties. John Edwards replaced Wynne as the principal lead singer and front man in the late Seventies.

Initially managed by the re-nowned producer Harvey Fuqua, the Spinners were signed to Motown for much of the Sixties. Though they scored a hit with "It's a Shame" while still at Motown, the group didn't fully hit their stride until they moved to Atlantic Records and began working with Thom Bell, one of the architects of the "Philly sound."

"WE LEFT Motown in 1971," Fambrough recalls. "We just didn't have the concentration on the Spinners sound that we would need to get us over the hump. So we got lost in the shuffle. When Thom Bell said as he left, 'By the way, next year at this time you're going to be the number one group.' We said, 'Yea sure.'"

But with unstoppable hits such as "Working My Way Back To You," "Rubberband Man" and "Cupid," the Spinners eventually earned 12 gold records and six Grammy nomina-

The key to their success is their smooth, gentle vocal harmonies, and the quality of the material that Bell either wrote or selected for them.
"Spinners," their first LP, contained four classic singles that are still heard regularly today — "I'll Be Around," "Could It Be I'm Fallin' In Love," "One of a Kind" and "How Could I Let You Get Away?"

THEIR NEXT LP, "Mighty Love," solidified the group's tight professionalism. It also established a focal point that continues in their tremendous live performances today; each member alternates singing lead, creating an arresting and graceful

"We spend about 75 percent of our time on the road today," said Fambrough, who sings baritone when not taking his lead turn. "We do a lot of private functions — IBM, General Motors — as well as clubs and state

When not touring, Fambrough, who is also a gourmet cook, lives in Troy. "Moving to Troy," he explains, "is not something that I planned. In fact, I had just bought a condomini-

"AT THE time, our director was also into real estate on the side. He kept on after me about showing me a home in Troy. I finally said, 'OK, I'll look at it, but I know I'm not gonna buy it. When we finally got here - it took over an hour - I fell in love with it. I've got a little pond and a barn and a lot of land."

The Spinners were well ahead of their time in being one of the first publicly altruistic performance groups. Known as one of the first groups with a conscience, they host-ed a benefit for the incapacitated Jackie Wilson prior to his death. They are also active with the Urban League, the NAACP and Operation Push.

The group is currently in between recording contracts and working on new material in the studio. They are financing the recording themselves.

Though there is great satisfaction at having made it to the top with his boyhood friends, Fambrough stresses that his group's success is tied to

"We do like being together, but it's a business together. We made a pact in the early days that we were going to stick with it and we just stuck to gether. Now, business is very good

Help us make steps in the fight against SIDS

If you knew a healthy, happy baby had died suddenly without reason, you'd want to help. There are over 7,000 babies who die from a cruel, mysterious killer. It's called SIDS: Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Perhaps you've heard SIDS referred to as "Crib Death." But maybe you didn't hear that SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year.

babies of all races and religions. And it's not hereditary.

Donations of your time and dollars will make a difference. And we can make bigger steps to fighting SIDS.

Coup rattles business travelers

Talk about bad timing

A press release announcing a business trade mission to the Soviet Union in October was postmarked Aug. 16, just days before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was ousted in an apparent coup.

But local sponsors are optimistic that the 10-day trip to Moscow and Minsk can still come off as sched-

Service key to longevity, say auto dealers

By Gerald Frawley

10B *(R,W,G-8B)

Fifty years of selling cars.

Think about what's happened in 50 years. World War II ended, the atomic bomb was created, the Berlin Wall has been built and destroyed. Heck, man has walked on the moon.

Sure, the Chicago Cubs haven't won a World Series, but that's still a lot of water under the bridge

And yet, three area Ford dealers have achieved the status of being around for 50 years. As defined by Ford, to qualify as a 50-year dealer, the business must have remained within 50 miles of its original location and stayed within the same fam-

Bill Brown Ford in Livonia and North Brothers Ford in Westland both mark their 50th anniversary this year; Stark Hickey in the old Redford area of Detroit, actually its 65th year as an automotive dealer. But Stark Hickey is no longer owned by the original family. Longtime general manager Clarence Kruse purchased the firm three years ago.

Jim North, president of North Brothers Ford notes that how an auto dealership is run has changed greatly over the years. Auto dealers have expanded their focus from selling new cars to being complex multiservice businesses. They've had to adapt to changing regulatory cli-mate, increased their technical abilities, and automobiles and customers have changed a great deal. "The product we're dealing with is much more complex, and that makes the business that much more complex," he said.

Today's automotive dealership, North said, is five separate business-es: new car sales, used car sales, service department, parts department and collision shop.

"All of these are operated separately out in the community they're stand-alone businesses if so desired," North said. "It's our job to keep them all running smoothly."

Things were much different when his father and uncle Ray and Earnest North opened their first dealership — a Plymouth dealership — in Lincoln Park. Five years later, they

the needs of its customers, Gunnigle

This includes not only certified mechanics, high tech equipment and tools, but changing the way service is provided. For example, in its expansion, Bill Brown added a "fast lube service" of sorts to its service department, he said.

Oil changes, lube jobs, - those services that can be done quickly have been separated from the more extensive repair and maintenance jobs so they can be handled more quickly, Gunnigle said.

The service is break-even at best. In fact, it even costs the dealership more to have a trained service tech do the lube and maintenance and safety check than is charged the customer, he said. "He is specially trained to look for abnormalities to point out things that may not be

Dealerships that want to last 10 years, let alone 50 years, must look to better management procedures aimed at taking care of the custom-er, he said. "They must become transportation specialists — not just

"We have to get back to more personal service - kind of like running a small garage or dealership in a small town," Gunnigle said. "People like the feeling they get from personal service — like when the guy who wrote up the original order (to purchase the car) is the guy you see hen you come back for service."

CLARENCE KRUSE, president of Stark Hickey, said the longevity for any dealer is customer service and consistency.

And customer service means more than just lip service to the word service, he said. "If a customer has a problem, I have to make it my prob-

"I think that's important to remember," Kruse said. Selling an au-of ownership is a big part of that. "They know who they're dealing with, and they can be confident they'll know who they'll be dealing with in the future," Kruse said. "The most common heard complaint after sale is 'Nobody knows me

This consistency of ownership also translates into consistency of employees. A vast majority of Stark Hickey's sales and service staff has been with the company for more than a decade - some have been with the company far longer.

Kruse said he has always believed that promotion from within is the best philosophy because that adds to the consistency of service that peo-ple demand today.

This is all a continuation of what began when Stark Hickey opened the original dealership 65 years ago on the corner of Grand River and Maplewood. That philosophy continued when Stark Hickey's son Bill took over the business and it will continue since he bought the business

Jake's breaks 'never on Sunday' tradition

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

In a break with retail tradition. Jacobson's department stores will open on Sundays beginning Sept. 8, the first Sunday after Labor Day.

Sunday hours will be noon to 5 p.m. and will affect stores in Ann Arbor, Birmingham, Dearborn, Grosse Pointe, Livonia and Rochester Hills. Jacobson's Clearance Center in Troy has been open Sundays since the store premiered in November 1989.

"All of our stores in the Midwest 14 of them — will be affected," said James Batterson, vice president, sales promotion for the Jackson-based retailer.

"The primary reason to go for-ward is that we've been hearing more requests from our customers to do this for a long time. So many people are in the workplace now. Schedules are busy. Business has gravitated toward the weekend. We try to accommodate customer inter-

Jacobson's tested the waters last holiday season, opening Sundays between Thanksgiving and Christmas for the first time in the 123-year history of the company.

"Last holiday season was difficult to evaluate because of the difficult economic conditions," Batterson said. "We feel the Sunday openings did have some positive effect." Batterson claims store employees are in favor of opening Sunday.

"All are confident it's going to result in increased business. Their earning opportunity increases. The type of scheduling we do will make it easily accommodated."

ALTHOUGH MORE staff will be

"Customers will receive the same level of service as always," said

The Jacobson's store in the Columbus City Center in Columbus, Ohio, has been open Sundays since April. Surveys and market research of the company's Florida operation have not been completed. No final deci-sion has been made yet for that mar-

The Sunday opening is intended as permanent change, not a trial run, Batterson added.

"How much it will improve sales is difficult to say," he said. "We're making sure we're prepared to see that extra business with advertising and inventory above normal levels."

Retail expansion planner Howard Green, of Howard Green & Associates in Troy, says Sunday shopping has become an inevitable trend.

"It's an extraordinary phenome-non," Green said. "The last holdouts are the auto dealerships and they too will have to change. Supermarkets are open 24 hours a day. This is the way we live. Consequently retail has to conform to what consumers want in order to compete." The Sunday opening should give a boost to the 45 store Laurel Park Mall where Jacobson's serves as an anchor store at Six Mile and Newburgh roads in Livonia

"I'm certain it will bring in more traffic. No doubt about that," said Mike Buescher, marketing director. In Birmingham, where Jacobson's is a downtown landmark, the story isn't the same. We just did a survey of three dozen businesses and only one said it would open on Sunday when Jacobson's opens," said Bob DeLaura,

The only thing that would persuade me to open Sundays is a promotion in town that would bring people downtown.

As chairman of the downtown merchants committee, DeLaura says special promotions like Night on the Town and Winterfest attract enough pedestrian traffic to make it worthwhile for independent shopkeepers to open their doors on Sunday.

"It's difficult to gauge, but I don't see where their spillover will help us," said DeLaura. "(Jacobson's) has its two parking lots on either side of the store. I don't think it will create more traffic for us." At the 14-tenant Great Oaks mall at Walton and Livernois in Roche ter Hills, shopkeepers are thrilled with the announcement, said Debbie Mazer, sales promotions manager,

"We tested last Christmas season for five weeks. Everybody showed quite well for sales," she said. "Most of them are thrilled.

The move to Sunday shopping has been a longtime evolving phenome-non, according to Chris Lenz, retail manager with Arthur Anderson & Associates, a public accounting and consulting firm with many retail cli-

"It's just a reaction to the environment and competition. It's the smart thing to do," Lenz said. "Who shops where and when is changing along with the demographics of the work force.

Jacobson's will continue to remain closed on seven holidays, including Christmas, New Years Day, Easter, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day and Thanksgiving.

Craftsman puts heart, soul into work

He relies on a number of tools to do his work.

Phillip Hawk moved his shop to Plymouth in June.

By Julie Brown staff writer

Phillip Hawk doesn't have a great deal of time to make his own shoes

Hawk, a saddler and shoemaker, moved his shop to Plymouth's Old Village in June. He'd previously had a shop inside the Scott Colburn saddlery in Livonia.

"I wanted to take a new direction in my work," said Hawk, a Redford resident. He's begun to focus on a narrower area.

That doesn't include making a lot of shoes for himself. It was in 1984 that he last made such a pair of shoes on purpose. He guarantees the fit of shoes he makes, and has occasionally needed to make another pair for a customer because the first pair didn't fit quite right.

"It has happened a few times in the past. It doesn't happen very much now."

He works with leather to create hoes, belts, saddles and other items. Hawk makes modern shoes totally by hand, including classic walking shoes for women, classic dress shoes for men, and boots for both. Shoes start at around $550 and boots start at just under $800.

"THE METHODS of construction are superior, and I do use the best leathers I can find." Customers tend to take good care of their shoes, he said, and the shoes last a long time. Hawk also creates historic shoe reproductions 'I started shoemaking in a historical context." Hawk was born in Denver. His father was in the service, so the family moved around. "I consider Virginia home. I probably always will," said Hawk, who trained as a saddler and worked at Colonial Williamsburg in Virginia. A number of years ago, he was working as a singer with a Mexican musical group in Colorado. "In performance, a costume is worn." That costume included a belt and holster with a pistol. Hawk approached a saddler in Denver for help. He then designed and decorated a belt and holster, "and just fell in love with the leatherwork. He took an apprenticeship in the field. Hawk later moved to Virginia. He found virtually no Western riding was being done there at that time; Hawk now prefers English saddlemaking to Western.

Polish history, contributions author's source of inspiration

Do you know what Polish-Americans John Dingell, Barbara Mikulski and Clement Zablocki have in common? Can you name the religious order of sisters that arrived in the U.S. in 1874 and became the largest and most important Polish sisterhood in

The answers (The three were elected to Congress; the Felician Sisters) are on page 26 of "The Polish Trivia Book," written by John Vraniak of Plymouth Township.

Vraniak's book came out in 1989 and is going through its third printing. That printing will take the book, published by Avenue Publishing Co. of Hamtramck, up to about 15,000

"It's doing real well," said Vraniak, a senior quality engineer with the Ford Motor Co. Powertrain Operations in Livonia. He describes his book as the exact opposite of a Polish joke book.

He didn't want to produce a trivia game, and thought a book would be a better choice. Vraniak paid a great deal of attention to the book's format, wanting to make it readerfriendly. He talked to many people about the format, discussing it with Polish-Americans and others.

Answers to questions are found on the opposite page, meaning readers don't have to flip through the book to find what they want to know. Vraniak didn't sort the questions into categories, such as sports or history, thinking that some readers might bypass such sections. Instead, questions from a number of different subject areas are found on each

HE WAS ALSO interested to learn of the contributions Poles have made in U.S. wars, including the Revolutionary War. Polish-Americans have fought in all wars since the country's beginnings, he said, and have made significant contributions.

Vraniak, who grew up on the east side, didn't learn much about Polish and Polish-American history as a student in the Harper Woods schools. Such history typically isn't taught in school, he said, and many young Pol-ish-Americans are unaware of the contributions their countrymen and women have made.

"Oh, absolutely. They know little Vraniak started his research in 1986 and took a couple of years to finish. He did research at area libraries, including the main branch of the Detroit Public Library.

At the time, he was traveling quite bit for Ford, and found he could take materials with him on business trips and do work on planes and at other in-between times.

He didn't use a computer to put together information. Instead, Vraniak wrote questions and answers on 3-by-5 cards, which were

"It worked out great." He was pleased to find a publisher without much difficulty, and knows many first-time authors aren't as fortunate. Vraniak enjoyed working

Craftsman's work is a labor of love

He was approached by Colonial Williamsburg officials. He worked there from 1964 to 1972, beginning in the shoemaker's shop. The man in charge there resigned, and Hawk was put in charge of both the shoe-maker's shop and the harness and saddle shop.

HAWK'S WORK at Colonial Williamsburg included training others who ran those shops for years. "Now they're about to retire," he said with a smile. You know how that makes me feel?"

He teaches classes in various aspects of leatherwork at his shop. Hawk has also taught at Schoolcraft College.

He came to Michigan in 1972 and managed the craft division of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village in Dearborn for a little over two years. Hawk then went on contract with the National Park Service for a two-year U.S. Bicentennial program.

He became an employee at Scott Colburn in Livonia after that, and established his own business there in 1986. Hawk's now reducing the diversification in his work for economic reasons. The first thing to go

Hawk is reducing the number of types of footwear he makes, but still does historical footwear for those willing to pay for authentic reproductions. His primary love is the 18th Century.

HAWK, WHO travels to participate in festivals and shows, has a feeling that historic reproduction is a realm he will gradually phase out. Hand crafts in general are be-coming somewhat of a lost art, he said, although exceptions remain.

In the 18th Century, labor was cheap and materials were expensive. The opposite's true today, he

He makes saddles by hand, but finds there isn't a great demand to-day. Handmade saddles start at about $2,500.

At his Plymouth shop, on East Liberty in Old Village, Hawk has his workshop, showroom and fit-ting room in one area. Tools of his trade line the walls. The smell of leather is both noticeable and wel-

He'd looked at another site in Plymouth, but things didn't work out there and he's glad he ended up where he did.

"Oh, I love it," he said of Plymouth. "It's a neat little town."

Hawk's wife, Jocelyn, teaches physics and computers in Dearborn Heights. Their daughter, 18, is about to start studies in nursing at Niagara University in New York.

Hawk also has three sons, living in Denver, Boston and Alaska, and three grandchildren.

His interest in singing is still going strong. Hawk, a tenor, sings with the Michigan Opera Theatre and does liturgical work for a church in Troy. His daughter sings and plays the violin, and they've performed together in concert.

Hawk's pleased with the fact that his students have gone on to become excellent craftsmen. He knows that he's a much better craftsman himself than was true when he was at Williamsburg.

"I always hope that the quality of work, as in anything else having to do with my life, is growing."

INDING TOOLS to use, or just to look at, wasn't a problem Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Plymouth Historical

Members of the Midwest Tool Collectors Association met at the museum. More than 20 tables in the basement were covered with a variety of tools for trading, buying and just

"We are, of course, antique tool collectors," said Lars Larson of Melvindale, Michigan director for the

THE AREA meeting attracted members and their spouses from throughout Michigan, as well as some from neighboring states and said Larson, a carpenter. "It's great. The camaraderie's very important."

He began collecting tools more than 35 years ago. Larson's grandfather came from Sweden, and Larson inherited his tool collection when he

Saturday's get-together included a demonstration of a foot-powered lathe. Demonstrations and displays are featured at meetings; meetings typically don't include display of many tools made later than 1910, Larson said

Some antique tools are priced as low as $15, while others run up into thousands of dollars. Most are collector items, Larson said, and owners don't generally use the tools.

Most members of the association work in the trades. The emphasis for collectors is on hand tools.

"Power tools are becoming collectible, but at a very slow rate.

um officials were pleased to host the group's meeting. They didn't ask to borrow any tools Saturday to do repair work at the museum.

"What we ought to do is dig out some of the stuff where we don't know what the heck it is," said Beth Stewart of Plymouth Township, mu-

"Sometimes, you come up with some really good 'whatsits' and it's people like this who know."

Picking the brains of such knowledgeable people is a tremen-dous help, Stewart said.

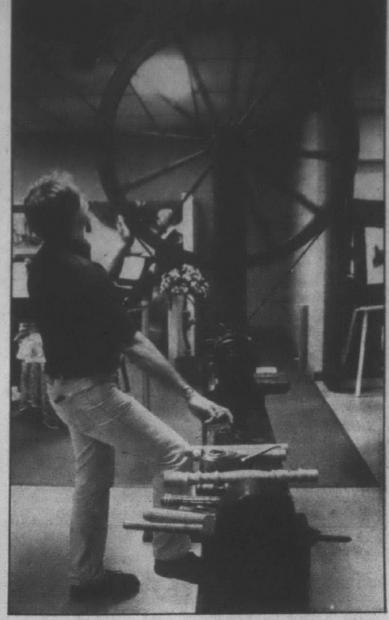

ASSOCIATION MEMBERS typically have a "whatsit" session at each meeting, Larson said. A member will hold up a tool while others determine how it was used.

Meetings usually attract some walk-in visitors, and that was true in Plymouth. The association has gained some new members that way. "We're happy to have them, we really are," Larson said.

EENAGERS AT Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton know that young people don't just think about themselves.

Members of the church's Senior High Youth Group recently returned from a mission trip to West Virginia. The 16 students and four adults did construction and repair work through the Almost Heaven Habitat for Humanity program in Circleville, W.Va.

"I thought it was a rewarding ex-erience being able to help the peo-" said Autumn Bunch, 16, a Canton resident and senior at Plymouth Salem High School. "They needed the help and we had the opportunity to help them." Those thoughts were echoed by Mark Colburn, 16, a junior at Plymouth Canton High School.

"It was a really eye-opening experience," said Colburn, a Plymouth Township resident. "It was a lot of fun, but it was quite a shock. You just take all of that for granted, don't even think about it."

VOLUNTEERS FROM Geneva left Sunday, Aug. 4, traveling in three vans borrowed from the congregation. They worked Mon

through Friday of that week and headed home Saturday, Aug. 10. Participants stayed in a local church. Conditions weren't quite what the students were accustomed to at home; there were no showers, so the volunteers bathed in a nearby

"I think it was a great opportunity to get out of our sheltered suburban lives," said Carrie VanderWeele, 17, a Canton resident and freshman at Grand Valley State University. Group members not only saw a stan-dard of living different from their own, she said, but experienced it

Church members had heard about young people from other congrega-tions going on such mission trips, said Pam VanderWeele of Canton, youth coardinator at Geneva.

Adults at Geneva have participated in Habitat for Humanity projects in Detroit and have supported the or-ganization financially. This was the first time teenagers from the church went on such an out-of-state mission

"THE KIDS in our church decided that was what they wanted to do this summer," Pam VanderWeele said. Prior to leaving, they raised more than $2,000 to support the trip, holding a car wash, bake sale and other fund-raising activities.

'We worked on a number of different projects," said Jim DeLong of Canton, a youth elder at Geneva who went on the trip.

One group tore a tar paper roof off a house and put on a new tin roof. They worked on that the entire week and almost finished, said DeLong, owner of Ancor Inc. in Madison

Another group put an addition on a trailer, walling in a porch with windows and doors. The addition will eventually have a roof put on.

Others worked on construction of a building to house Habitat for Humanity volunteers, laying cement blocking and working on the plumb-

Some did painting or helped to put up aluminum siding. Extensive knowledge of construction techniques isn't required for Habitat for Humanity volunteers.

Projects are done on an equal-opportunity basis, with girls and women doing their fair share. "One of our girls was on the pickax for parts of two days," Pam VanderWeele said.

"She loved it."

THE ORGANIZATION'S volunteers build and repair homes for needy people. The emphasis is on self-reliance, with recipients expected to contribute financially or through their own labor.

"It was really great to watch all their faces turn from frowns when we got there to smiles when we got the project done," said Melissa De-Long, 14, a Canton resident and sophomore at Salem. She and others appreciated the warm welcome they received in West Virginia.

"I think it was a growth experience for a lot of people," said John Mincher, 16, a junior at Canton and a Plymouth Township resident. His dad is a floor contractor, so he'd learned some things about construction from him.

Volunteers took along some tools and used others provided at the site. Ryan Crosby, 18, of Canton didn't miss the TV, VCR and other comforts of home, but did miss some of his tools and his truck.

"You can't experience it until you're there and you're in the community with the people," said Crosby, a freshman at Michigan State University.

HE AND OTHERS said they were too busy to think much about the comforts of home. The food they ate wasn't of the gourmet variety, but they didn't mind.

You were just so hungry after working all day, it tasted good," Carrie VanderWeele said.

Each team had its own name. One was 4H, for Hard-Headed Hammer Heads. Another was known as the A-Team, while the third was known as Cork and His Crafters. Team members kept journals to record their experiences, although one team's journal unfortunately fell out of the van

"I liked it," said Laurie Knapp, 16, a Canton resident and junior at Sa-lem. "I had a lot of fun and it made you appreciate what you had a lot more.

Students who went on the mission trip are: Christopher Collins; Jaclyn Conklin; Autumn Bunch; Carolyn Fedorko; Tammi Kelly; Laurie Knapp; Ryan Crosby; Katie Ryan; Mike Scharmen; Carrie VanderWeele; Selena' Bastine; Melissa DeLong; Amy Austin; Josh Stickney; John Mincher, and Mark Colburn. Adult leaders are: Pam VanderWeele; Jim DeLong; Dave Bastine; and Cork Worscheck

Personality type: It influences outlook on life

This is the season for "back to

As students return to campuses, we reflect upon the various types of students who enter schools and take instructions In a book that contains the maxims and aphorisms of the wise men of centuries ago, we see depicted before our eyes four categories of students: the sponge, the funnel, the strainer and the sieve. The sponge absorbs everything and retains it all; the funnel merely all and retaining nothing. The strainer rejects the wine, retaining only the dregs; and the sieve expels the dust but retains the flour.

This is an analogy that holds true in many areas of life and characterizes different types of personalities. There is one type of person who, like the sponge, would absorb everything and retain it. Thanks to limitations of the senses and the structure of memo this is, of course, not possible. And for good reason! If we remembered every face we encountered, every word spoken, every incident transpired, we would be living in a nightmare of shadows.

IF WE KEPT everything we owned, we would truly possess nothing. Think of the housewife who refuses to part with old uten-sils. Think of the man who cannot relinquish a broken tool or a shab-

Life to these people is an attic of useless trash. To some extent, life would be unbearable if we did not subject our emotions to a periodic housecleaning. We ought not to nurture every grievance, to hold fast every joy, to be dejected by every

Nothing in life is worth the fuss and bother. They are immune to life's pain and joy: blind to its beauty, deaf to its poetry, and uncon-cerned about its problems. They simply do not care enough to become involved in the concerns of this world.

There is a third type of personality who exemplifies an evil far greater than the funnel. We refer to the strainer which rejects the wine and retains the dregs. There are some people who are seemingly capable only of absorbing the pt. the rotten, the in This is the person who has eyes. only for the evil in life, and is blind to the good.

IN ALL AGES and societies, there are embittered, hate-ridden souls who walk through life searching for victims upon whom they project the venom of their hostility: the bigots, the hate-mongers, the twisted and distorted people who bring pain in their wake.

Who among us has not seen the person who goes out of his way to inflict hurt on others, who enjoys others' suffering, who delights in cruelty? This is the strainer type of person who expels the wine and retains the dregs of life.

The highest moral attainment is symbolized by the sieve which rejects the chaff and retains the noble and nurturing qualities of

The Carnegie Hero Foundation was established some years ago to recognize and award heroic human deeds. In 40 years, it distributed 10,000 awards for heroic acts. The world contains many of the sieve type of person who separates a bit of heaven out of earthly dross.

Such a person discovers the won-der of life in all that he does. He finds life's blessing in the eyes of a beloved friend, in the smile of a cherished child, in the engrossing aspects of one's life-work, in the glories of service.

These, then, are four types of people. Before you start assigning your various acquaintances into these respective categories, take a closer look at yourself - the four types are all contained within you.

You can be a sponge, absorbing everything and learning little; or a funnel, choosing nothing and ignoring everything. You can be a strainer, retaining evil and losing the good; or you can be a sieve, rejecting life's corruption and refining its raw materials by idealism, dedication and sincerity.

The answer lies within us.

Americana

History, crafts converging at Greenmead

special writer

From the crafters to the crowds, it's a festival of fun for the family.

For the fourth year in a row, the Livonia Historical Commission will host the Americana Craft Show Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 24-25, at Greenmead Historical Village, Newburgh and Eight Mile,

Another world awaits at Greenmead, one from the 1800s. White clapboard houses, a Methodist church and a Quaker meeting house, an old-time general store and a train depot will whisk you back in time, while standing amid the village's 104 acres of historic buildings.

"It (Greenmead) has an atmosphere all its own," said Sue Daniel, commission chairwoman.

Again as last year, there will be four categories of crafts in the 60-exhibiter show: wood crafts, country crafts, Victorian crafts and textiles. "We have more fabric, more textile crafts than we had last year," Daniel said.

Wood crafts and stuffed bunnies, clowns and umpty-dumpty dolls bring the Banchoff and Masek family to the village show. Lorainne Banchoff, along with daughters Diane and Carol and son-in-law, Mike Masek, will share booth 56 again

The wood itself is different, too. It's bought in the Northern Michigan town of Gladwin, where dead trees are planed and processed by the Amish. "The wood, pine or oak, is always cut from dead trees," Banchoff said.

Plymouth arts and crafts fair sports winning tradition

Moore: The Plymouth Community Arts Council's Artists & Craftsmen Show is a winner on the arts and crafts show circuit.

"It's one of my favorite shows - a personal favorite and a financial favorite," the Plymouth resident said. "It gets tremendous crowds and it's beautifully organized, the most smoothly run show I do."

The 20th annual show will boast 102 exhibiters from Michigan and Ohio Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 7-8, at Central Middle School, Church at Main, Plymouth. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m.

THE SHOW, part of Plymouth's annual Fall Festival, has a reputation for quality.

"Many artists and crafters use it as a reference when applying for other shows," said Carolyn Simons, co-chairwoman with Chris Szary for the past five years. Both are Plymouth residents.

The show is a major fund-raiser for the arts council.

Last year, it generated $15,000 through booth fees ($75 a booth) and admission donations ($2 for adults, $1 for seniors and students, free for kids younger than 12 accompanied by an adult). 'Proceeds go toward student art scholarships and general operating costs," Simons said.

A SHOW highlight is the booth of student-made wares. "Students set their own prices, which are very reasonable," Simons said.

Moore, a member of the Michigan Association of Calligraphers and a former graphics designer for the Plymouth Symphony League, is returning to the show for the ninth straight year. "It always draws people interested in the arts, whether to browse or buy," she said. "People coming to buy have specific needs at home or are looking for gifts. People interested in browsing are either looking for tips or just interested in the process involved. Moore has practiced the art of calligraphy since grade school. She makes 22 stops a year on the Michigan arts and crafts circuit.

Her 10-year-old business, "Some-thing Moore," offers two lines: Christmas cards and framed drawings. Prices range from $7 to $35. Custom orders are welcomed

This year, Moore will debut four new Christmas card lines instead of just one at the Plymouth show. What keeps Moore going? As the former high school English teacher put it: "I've always had a love affair with words whether reading them, teaching them or writing

FOR 22 years, the Plymouth Community Arts Council has been a cultural arts leader. Its mission: to develop artistic appreciation and foster artistic excellence.

The volunteer-driven group works from a second-floor nook in a historic building off Plymouth's Kellogg Park. Its arts programming has touched many facets of the Plym-

The family takes pride in their work, perfection is stressed, ingrained in the woodwork of Lorainne and daughters by husband and father Peter Banchoff, who died in January after a 10year struggle with lung cancer. This is the first year, he will not be in the show at Greenmead. The legacy of taking pride in your work lives on through his wife and daughters.

"My father was always woodworking. He built every house we ever lived in," Banchoff said. "He taught us perfection, to take something apart and fuss with it until it's right."

LORAINNE BANCHOFF, having learned the art of cutting and routing wood as her husband did, will feature cradles, benches, magazine racks and shelves made from pine and oak in the show.

The beauty of natural wood grain in a child-size rocking horse belies its strength. "It can hold 200 pounds," said Mike Masek of Livonia.

The rocking horse is a joint effort of Mike and Carol (Banchoff) Masek. Carol cuts out the wood during the day while working her full-time job as mother to toddler Lindsay, 21 months old, and a new baby just 10 weeks old.

"I come down to the workshop when they nap," Carol Masek said. "It takes about three hours to cut out and assemble the horse."

Carol and Mike enjoy woodworking. They are proud of their craftsmanship and enjoy the sense of accomplishment they receive in return.

"It's nice to have someone purchase your work, to hear someone say how nice it is, how well crafted," Mike Masek said.

Joshua and wife, Hannah left their New York home in 1826 bound for the wilderness of the Township of Livonia where "wild beasts were abundant and the only roads were Indian trails and new paths laid out by the settlers and marked with blazed trees.

The village is divided into two time periods. The west end contains homesteads from the 1850s; the east end is a recreation of the corner of Newburgh Road and Ann Arbor Trail as it appeared during the early 1900s.

Americana Craft Show hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day There's no admission charge and parking is plentiful. Greenmead's entrance is on Newburgh.

History comes alive here

She worked in a room set aside at Maplewood until the early 1980s, when the museum moved into the log structure, which had once been a pub and then a gas station.

"We're inexperienced," said Betty Smith, a Garden City native and current chair of the historical commission, referring to the museum's collection of artifacts, items that have previously een donated or loaned for use.

BECAUSE OF a perpetually small operating budget, $4,300 this fiscal year, there has never been money enough to buy items. Commissioners readily accept gifts, including a collection of turn-of-the-century farming tools loaned many years ago by a local farmer.

Alas, the tool display is now pitifully void. The farmer recently reclaimed his tools after becoming embroiled in a dispute over a water bill with the city manager.

Bancroft was manning the museum on the afternoon the farmer arrived to collect them. "He kept saying he didn't really want to take them back, but he'd already threatened to do it." Smith responds: "Now we know we're not supposed to take things on loan. Only on Smith's favorite donation: a miniature church of rock. "People ask me what this dumb thing is doing here. To me, things like this are interesting.

The miniature represents a moment of time in 1957, crafted in prison by Lester Elierhorst after he shot Garden City mayor James Tierney during a meeting of the city's planning commission.

"JOBS TO be Done in the Museum," a carefully prepared list of 28 items, is tacked to a door for easy review. Item one, attending to flower beds in front of the log building, is complete and checked

Betty's name is marked next to item six, cleaning and waxing the floor. In fact, the floor looks spotless. Vera is attending to item 19, buying posterboard for a mobile display.

Betty and Vera attended to item 20, moving the desk under the telephone and rearranging the furniture to make room for one large file cabinet. Item 16 is the purchase of such a cabinet.

John Niemi has completed items 27 and 28, inserting locks on four showcases and painting a display case. Niemi was tapped as a volunteer after a visit to the museum earlier this year. Now,

Betty credits him with "doing most of the work around here.'

Another hopeful is newcomer Lee Sleep, a former writer who has promised a spate of publicity in an effort to drum up more volunteers.

Partially because of a dearth of volunteer effort, the museum is open only one afternoon a week and on special occasions like family reunions in the park.

Smith's ultimate goal: "I'd like to see this be a place someone could come and visit."

THE OLD school desk, shiny with new varnish, nudges next to a grinding stone weathered with age. To one side is the chair used from 1932 to 1964 by Garden City's first postmaster, Glen Donner. A washing machine and portable laundry tub are next, followed by a mangle topped with typewriters of various vintage.

Across the way is a King cream separator donated by Joe Del Frato, Indian arrowheads found by Edmund Wolfe on his Warren Road farm and a lace-trimmed sunbonnet and caplet donated by Calla Helka

Old registration records indicate that in 1919, there were 13 registered female voters, three with the last name of Lathers, the founding family of what is now Garden City. In 1919, voters were registered by sex. The list for men is momentarily

There are displays of toys, bottles, shoes and jewelry. There are badges, including those worn by Arthur Nagle, the first police chief, and Thomas Ross, the first president after the village became a city in 1933. There is a burial flag, pastel Depression-era glass, high school yearbooks, military garb from both world wars and photos from days gone by.

VERA DONATED a swatch of intricately embroidered fabric, a piece that had been her mothers. "I like museums. I like history. But I don't like all that stuff in my house."

The gathered items reflect Americana, a shared heritage from Garden City over the past century. Of equal importance, the museum reflects perhaps the finest quality of that heritage — a shared effort meant for the good of all.

The Garden City Historical Museum is open 1-4 p.m. Wednesdays, 200 Log Cabin, in City Park, off Cherry Hill, between Merriman and Middlebelt. For more information, call 421-

How interested are you in selling your home?

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?

Good. We knew you were intelligent.
In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*

And if knowlege is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties:

That's a median household income of more than $50,000—$10,000 more than the income of the people who don't read our newspapers. So when you advertise in your Observer & Eccentric newspapers, you not only reach thousands of smart people, you reach people with substantial incomes.

Now, that's something to smile about.

Our circulation area has 90% home ownership and look at the value of our reader's homes:

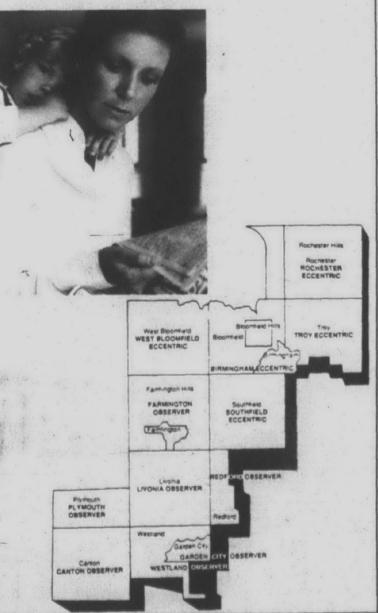

FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*.

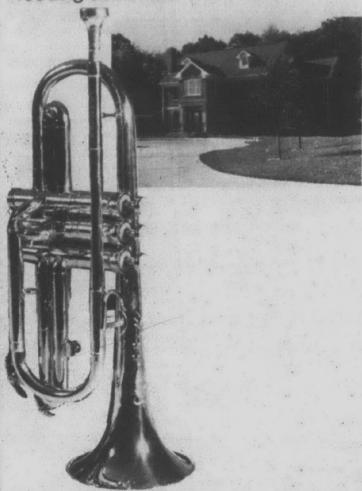

So, we can offer you one quarter of a million adult readers and a very rich market, what else do we have for you? How about an award-winning newspaper— a newspaper that people trust and look forward to reading? One that reaches 25 communities with important local news that's not available anywhere else.

That's us.

By the way, did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper—the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers?

Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.

What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

In fact, we've just introduced HOMELINE, a great new way to find out about open houses simply by using your touchtone telephone.

Be sure to mention it to your Realtor* so that when it comes time to show your home, it will be described on HOMELINE.

This 29-year-old chef is busy every day planning the menus and overseeing the kitchens in the Dearborn complex. He has been there five years.

Everything from hot dogs to $100-plus catered evening events, including sit-down dinners, comes under his supervision.

We visited those three herb gardens. The first,

Dr. Howard's, contains culinary and medicinal herbs, plus other plants such as rhubarb, hol-lyhocks, onions and horseradish.

When the horseradish plant is large enough

(several years old), the roots are ground and add-

CHOIR AUDITIONS

The Rackham Symphony Choir will offer free training to experienced choral singers who need to strengthen their music reading skills.

Auditions will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday, Sept. 4-5, at the Wayne State University Music School, on Cass between Kirby and Ferry, in the Patroit Cultural Conter. the Detroit Cultural Center.

Call 886-3480 for an audition appointment.

• ARTS CLASSES

The FAR Conservatory of Therapeutic and Performing Arts, 1669 W. Maple in Birmingham, will hold registration for its fall semester from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7.

The conservatory uses the creative and therapeutic arts to serve children and adults with physical, mental and emotional impairments. Class will be offered in music, music therapy, art, art therapy, movement, dance therapy, gymnastics, drama, drama therapy, ice skating and ice hock-

The fall session will begin the week of Sept. 16 and end Jan. 31.

JURIED EXHIBITION

One Livonia artist will participate in the Michigan Surface Design Association juried exhibition Sept. 7 to Oct. 6 at the Midland Center for the Arts, 1801 W. St. Andrews.

Sponsored by the Midland Art Council and Michigan Surface Design Association, the exhibit features the work of 26 artists who are current or former residents of Michigan, including Cynthia Wayne Gaffield of Livonia.

Juror Lenore Davis, a fabric artist and educator and a Cranbrook Academy of Art graduate, defines surface design as "the concern of creating color, pattern, line and texture with any medium on the surface of any material for the purpose of

"I support a broad definition as well, surface design being the finding or creating of objects and producing integrated or applied surface design with the intent of decoration or artistic statement. Surface design may be part of art making, art is not necessarily a characteristic of surface design."

Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Fri-

The Easy Way to Sell Your Property and Save...

We help you sell your home, townhouse or condominium with major savings to you. As licensed real estate professionals, we provide valuable services which enhance your ability to sell your property. We charge a low pre-determined fee rather than a percentage of the sale price of your home. (Our fee is payable only when your property is sold and closed). THERE IS NO

WHAT YOU DO:

1. You show your property...(or we'll show it for a small additional fee payable only if sold to the parties so shown).

WHAT WE DO FOR $2950*

- 1. We discuss the "BAD" as well as the "GOOD" in all offers and try to save you money wherever possible.
- 2. We place your property into our exclusive marketing system to get you buyers.
- 3. We send an ad on your property to potential buyers now looking for property.
- 4. We place your property on the Multiple Listing Service.
- We help you avoid problems and assist you should any problems come up.
- 6. We do all the paperwork.
- We follow through on your sale until it closes and you get your check.
- 8. We help your buyers obtain financing (many times there are seven or eight methods).
- 9. We protect you with our satisfaction guarantee.
- 10. We charge no fee unless your property sells then we are paid at closing.
- 11. We estimate your net proceeds at the time you place your property for sale and when you receive an offer to buy.
- 12. We guarantee in writing, to advertise your property every week in the newspaper.

Knowledge of personality types helps sales

Adjust your sales approach to the personality of your customer if you ant to make the deal.

That's the advice a syndicated real estate columnist recently passed along to brokers, agents, other sales professionals and guests at the Real Estate Roundtable.

"We're really talking about help-ing people feel more comfortable ... perhaps be more relaxed and more trustful," said Thomas Ervin. "I see a lot of jitteriness out there. People are indecisive."

Ervin briefly outlined four personality types - dominant, influencer, steady and compliant - then sug-

"A person who is dominant is kind of bossy. They want to get to the bottom line. They don't want to engage in pleasantries," he said. "If you compliment a dominant person on his tie, you'll put him on the defen-sive. He'll wonder, 'What do you want from me?'

"You must be direct," he said. "This is what they're like. This is what they appreciate."

The influencer, Ervin said, is a so-

"THEY'RE VERY outgoing, personable, good communicators. They're usually upbeat and very positive. The primary emphasis of an influencer is relationships. They

"Visit with them a little bit, build a little rapport. If you're direct with an influencer, they're offended," Ervin said.

The steady personality type is team player, he said.

"These people are really the glue of our society," Ervin said. "They want to cooperate, participate, do their share, but they don't want to run the show. They're motivated by eration. You must be sincere with this person.

The compliant person is a fussbudget, Ervin said.

"He's a detail person - it's either correct or it isn't correct. He's the kid in fourth grade who when it was a rainy day, he had his boots on and all the buckles were buckled.

"Did you ever have a person take lint off your clothing?" Ervin asked, as the listeners nodded and chuckled. A compliant person will have all of his tools neatly arranged on a pegboard in the garage with an outline of the tool drawn so they can be lined up just right.

"YOU MUST be correct with this person," he said.

People are a blend of personality types, Ervin said, but most can be pegged as to dominant kind. The idea is to come across as normal from a customer's perspective, not necessarily your own, he said.

"The issue is when you interact with another person, will you - not can you - read the personality trait they're exhibiting and become more normal like them?" he said.

Ervin also touched briefly on a couple of other points.

"Who's need do you satisfy when you complete someone else's sentence? Your own. What message do you send? I'm brighter than you · "No handshake is normal except the one they (customers) give you. Put your hand up and prepare for a medium handshake. Be prepared to lighten up.

• "A blending statement (when facing opposition) isn't, 'Yeah, but,' rather, 'I understand.' You provide a

"Should you always look people directly in the eye? I think not. Ervin was well-received.

"He told me things I already knew, but things I need to be remind-ed of," said J.B. Bernard, a commercial leasing agent with Guida Associ-ates. "He put it in simplistic terms, He made it understandable."

knowledge of the real estate field ... and he certainly understands different personalities," said Mark Canvasser, an owner of Steuer & Canvasser, a Southfield real estate investment/management firm.

"The best thing with all of these things is it opens your eyes. It doesn't let you get closed minded," said Ken Elder, owner of Window Works in Bloomfield Hills. "Every time I come to one of these things it makes me think a little differently."

Michigan court upholds board's right to ban dogs condominium that gives the board the discretion to allow or disallow dogs. The board has passed a rule authorizing that no dogs can be brought into the condominium prospectively. I know there are some cases around the country that have prohibited that procedure by the board. Is there any law in Michigan on the subject?

Yes. A recent Michigan Court of Appeals decision basically upheld the right of the board of directors to issue banning rules, even though the condominium bylaws per se allow the board to exercise discretion regarding the number of dogs allowed. The court reasoned that the passage of a rule absolutely prohibiting dogs was not analogous to an amendment to the condominium documents. This is contrary to other decisions around the county, but in Michigan it is the law unless it is reversed by the Michigan Surpeme Court or is revisited by the court of appeals.

Our board is at a loss because we were convinced that we have a male prostitute working at our cond um. He is a tenant who has been livin the complex for several months with a written lease for a year. We have received numerous complaints from the neighbors and want to know if we have any authority to take any action.

The first question the board has to ask is whether it wishes to get involved in this matter. Assuming that the condominium documents prohibit immoral or improper behavior, the association may have a basis to pursue the owner of the unit as well as the male tenant.

First, I would check whether all the requirements of the condominium documents have been met with respect to the lease arrangement. Assuming that they have, I would ask the affected co-owners whether they wish to file any complaint with the local police. To the extent that they do not wish to participate or that the police are not prepared to take action, the board should attempt to document the problem and write the co-owner and the tenant a letter alleging that conduct has been observerd that is a disturbance to the members of the association. The letter should be carefully drafted with the assistance of counsel.

Assuming documentation can be obtained that the tenant is using the premises for improper purposes, legal proceedings should be begun against the tenant and the co-owner. The co-owner may have a basis to seek eviction against the tenant, in which case it may eliminate the need for the associaton to pursue the tenant directly.

Houses of tomorrow evolving today

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Meet George Jetson? Be George Jetson?

Probably not. The house of the year 2000 will not be an elevated space platform with malfunctioning transport tubes, runaway walkways, mechanical arms deftly (and sometimes harshly) inserting a pipe in your mouth.

According to Gopal Ahluwalia, director of research at the National Association of Home Builders, the home of tomorrow will closely the outside

But on the inside - to paraphrase tabloid television - that's a whole different story.

Ahluwalia said changes are being driven by the demands of home buyers - not by the desires of build-

"The quickest way to go bankrupt in this business is for a builder to build what he thinks people want, and not what the people want."

Lifestyle changes that include people entertaining more and working in their homes; demographics changes like the aging of baby boomers and an increased number of women in the work force; and the introduction of new technologies force builders to be more accommodating,

TOMORROW'S HOME will be a two-story colonial, with a two-story foyer and nine-foot ceilings, instead of eight-foot ceilings, Ahluwalia

Reversing a trend of recent years, homes of the future will be built on smaller lots. But in keeping with present trends, homes will be slightlarger than today's average, Ahluwalia said.

Buyers may be willing to accept ter designed to accommodate features like two master bedrooms (one on each floor) with fireplaces, media rooms, exercise rooms or areas large well-lighted kitchens, two full baths with separate showers and tubs, and two half-baths, Ahluwalia

Homes of the future will also most likely include home offices, sunrooms and Florida rooms, Ahluwalia said. They will have two-car garages for the most part, but three-car garages will become increasingly more common, Ahluwalia said.

focus their efforts on energy efficiency with mere advanced furnaces, water heaters, windows, insulation, low-flush toilets and reducedflow shower heads, Ahluwalia said.

ALLAN SHAPIRO, president of Singh & Shapiro Construction Inc. in Southfield, said that from what he's seen, the national association's predictions seem pretty close to the

"That sounds exactly like what my wife wants," he said.

Shapiro disagreed with one item the popularity of nine-foot ceilings. Nine-foot ceilings may add an air of prestige to a home, but from a cost standpoint, they don't make

"Studs come in eight, 10, 12 two-foot increments ceilings will mean wasting one foot per stud." Builders are conscious about controlling costs through waste reduction.

"It might happen in upper end homes, but they (nine-foot ceilings) won't become common.

Shapiro said some other aspects of the study stretch credulity, but most of it is not beyond reason. For example, it's conceivable that larger homes will be built on smaller lots.

 one would think economics would force municipalities to accept higher densities - but he hasn't seen any indications that's happening.

RICHARD KOMER, president of Wineman & Komer Building Co. in Southfield, said much of the study's findings make sense.

Larger kitchens, home offices, better designed and open floor plans, media rooms - most of these predictions are well founded on market-

"Two-story colonials give people privacy — they can get away from the rest of the house — but it is also less expensive," he said. A colonial means less roof space per square foot, less truss, easier heating and less wall space to name just a few of the economies as a multi-story struc-

But builders must be careful not to get caught in the trap of following

"Not everyone is going to want a two-story colonial.'

There are a growing number of older buyers without children who will want less space and single-floor

"That (the two-story home) may be true for the family, but the empty nesters are thinking ahead to when they won't want to climb stairs."

Komer said he believes homeowners will continue to press for more open floor plans, bigger rooms and better design in their homes. Media rooms will become more important as people seek their entertainment at home. "We know this is happening already - the marketing studies show people are spending less for enter-

Large kitchens make sense because they are the most common gathering places - which is surprising as more people eat out today

"The kitchen has become the focal point of the home," he said. Even though the kitchen is used less, buyers are looking for fully equipped

"What it all comes down to is con-venience," he said. Today's buyer is looking for convenience.'

JOHN P. BOLLAN JR., vice president of Bollan Building Co. in Troy, said not everything the NAHB study is relevant to the southeastern Michigan market.

Michigan no longer responds di-

"It used to be things were tried out there (on the East and West Coast), and then they would make there way here," he said.

That's not necessarily the case now. The recession that precipitated the collapse of the East and West Coast housing market hasn't had nearly as great an impact in the Midwest, he said.

But southeastern Michigan's independence from other markets doesn't mean the NAHB's predictions are invalid.

Bollan said he can see a time when municipalities will permit higher densities. "Whether it will be before the year 2000 is another matter."

Other factors such as local patterns and weather will also affect Michigan housing. Sunrooms and Florida rooms, for example, are popular in the South and Southwest, but not here. Decks are far more popular, he said, but decks go unused for most of the year.

"Around here, people would trade a sunroom for a larger family room or great room," he said. The great room - the evolution of a combined family and living rooms - has never really taken a firm hold in this part of the country, he said. People in Michigan seem to prefer homes with a separate family room - for living in - and a living room for doing nothing in.

"People around here just like that extra room — they grew up with it and don't want to lose it."

Bollan said he believes builders may even revive the now almost extinct front porch. Past trends have driven people from the front to the back of the home in search of privacy, he said, but he has noted an increased interest in home plans that include porches.

DANIEL BARTON, president of ton, said he thinks the NAHB is wrong in one important aspect the exterior.

The NAHB study predicts that home exteriors will resemble the home of today in most ways, but Barton is betting otherwise.

"I'm not just betting - I'm build-

Barton is building a "Victorianstyle ranch," he said, adding that while the two sound contradictory, people will be impressed with the re-

"People who have seen (the plans) have been really impressed. Home buyers are beginning to tire of the contemporary and Tudor architec-ture that has become so prevalent in the last decade.

"I'll think we'll see a return to good and varied architecture.

Barton explained that he believes the status symbols of the last decade - big, opulence, excess - will be replaced by classical themes.

"If you want to impress someone, you won't take them home and show them your big house, you'll take him home and show them your Van

Fine arts, classical music and culture will be the prestige symbols of the 1990s, he predicted.

new roles for builders Future demands

staff writer

Houses aren't the only things that will be changing by the year 2001 — builders will change too.

Cost controls, competition and technology will place new demands on builders who will have to change the way they construct houses and do business, according to National Association of Home Builders director of research Gopal Ahluwalia.

Niche marketing, Ahluwalia said, will allow builders to improve their ability to target specific markets — both in building specifically for them and advertising for them.

Michael Tobin, president of Mike Building Co. in Farmington, said better marketing is a logical extension of what builders are already doing.

"That's no surprise," he said.

By building in a certain location and including certain features, builders are able to attract certain buyers. The real changes will come in getting those buyers to models.

By using computers, direct mailing, and marketing studies that have more information on what certain buyers are looking for, builders will be able to be even more specific, he

A LABOR SHORTAGE and increased material costs, Ahluwalia said, will mean more manufactured components in houses of the future.

Manufactured components may have been a problem years ago when quality was suspect, but many of the bugs have been worked out of premanufactured components, he said.

shortage may be less of a problem than material costs brought on by a lack of materials.

Lumber, the basic building material. fluctuates widely in price even now, he said. Manufactured components constructed from particle boards and other composites permit builders to use more of the lumber that does exist.

"It makes good sense because it's more affordable, and it will become a necessity," he said.

Years ago, Tobin pointed out, carpenters built roof trusses on site. Today, trusses are pre-built by companies that do nothing else.

Tobin said he is less certain labor shortages will spur the use of manufactured components that would change house building from con-

"Right now, I can get all the labor I need," he said. But he agreed it's possible that a labor shortage could be brought on by a lack of new people going into the construction indus-

BUILDERS WILL become manufacturers of building products and components, Ahluwalia said, because it is a natural outgrowth of what they do now, and because it will reduce the turnaround time from idea to market.

Currently, builders are responding to the manufacturing industry by incorporating what products are produced as they come to market, he said. With increased marketing and a better knowledge of what buyers want, builders will begin making demands for products that don't exist.

Eventually, large builders will buy manufacturing facilities and become the innovators who produce products for themselves and other builders, rather than wait for the manufacturers to catch up.

"They as builders know what's needed and what's not."

Tobin disagreed, saying it will be the rare builder who becomes a manufacturer. "It's really not necessary - everything we need and more is already available some-nction with manufacturers — routinely offer eir customers service contracts. For a fee, which generally rises as the appliance gets older, the con-tractor will undertake to perform all repairs — ei-ther without additional charge or according to a specified schedule of charges.

How can you determ tract is right for you? ne whether a service con-

The key to your decision must be a clear under-standing of the contract, including the fine print, combined with an evaluation of your own needs.

Here are some things to cons While a service contract may offer a way out of high repair costs, you should remember that you are buying a form of insurance.

AS WITH any insurance policy, a service con-tract is based upon mathematical probabilities. Not surprisingly, these tend to favor the contractor rather than the consumer

If, for example, an all-inclusive one-year service contract on a new dishwasher costs $50, you can assume that the contractor has based his price on the knowledge that the average appliance of that type requires considerably less than $50 in repairs uring its first year.

Nevertheless, there are often very good reasons to buy a contract. Things do go wrong with appliances, and you may decide that it's advisable to pay

· Is the contract all-inclusive? Some contracts allow an extra charge for labor but not for parts. Others may require you to pay for the repairman's travel time. And some contracts cover only a portion of the appliance, such as the motor in a washing machine or the heating elements in an electric

• Does the cost of the contract rise significantly with the age of the appliance? In most cases it does. The cost of a service contract during the first two years after an appliance is bought may be extremely modest, but this is also the time when minimal pairs are needed and warranties are in effect.

Is the contract redundant? If you buy a service contract for an appliance at the same time you may rise astoundingly and by the time the appliance, you may find that many, if not ance is five or six years old the cost of the contract.

Some contractors may offer lower rates on older a service contract only includes major elements of an appliance, it may still be worthwhile if you can make small repairs and adjustments. This is particularly true when the cost of a contract is adjusted according to the degree of service anticipat-

A home handyman who feels confident that he can deal with most contingencies may be wide to buy a contract that covers only major repair work.

Can the contract be transferred? Some contracts apply only to the purchaser and cannot be assigned to others should ownership of the appliance be transferred. Similarly, contracts from local retailers may have no value if you move to a distant area or if the store owner goes bankrupt.

Fences can make good neighbors

A fence is the most popular form of boundary marker or garden screen because of its advantages over other methods of dividing plots of land. A fence takes very little time to erect when compared with a wall or especially a hedge, which takes years to establish. Most fencing components are relatively lightweight and are therefore easy to transport and handle on-site.

In the short term, a fence is cheaper than a wall built of masonry, although one can argue that the cost of maintenance and replacement over a very long period eventually cancels out the saving in

Wood does have a comparatively short life because it is susceptible to insect infestation and rot when exposed to the elements, but a fence will last for many years if it is treated regularly with a chemical preservative. In any case, if you are prepared to spend a little money on plastic and concrete components, you can erect a nearly mainte-

WHEN YOU measure even a small garden, you will be surprised by the overall length of fencing required to surround your property, so it is worth considering the available options carefully to make sure that you invest your money in the kind of fence that will be most suitable

IN ADDITION, there may be local restrictions on fencing if the land surrounding your house has been designed as an open-plan area. Even so, many authorities will permit low boundary markers such as ranch-style or post-and-chain fences.

At least discuss your plans with your neighbors, especially as you will require their permission to enter onto their properties, and it is always an advantage to work from both sides when erecting a
