Wing support

Bob Probert of the Detroit Red Wings is supporting a local fundraiser.

"On behalf of the Detroit Red Wings, I encourage everyone to support the Brandy Memorial Pet Walk scheduled for Sept. 28 in downtown Plymouth," he wrote, in a letter addressed to the communities of Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

"The Pet Walk is an excellent way to show your support to the community and most important, Mott Children's Hospital. Thanks for caring."

Author update

The Plymouth District Library is seeking to update its file of local authors. Authors who wish to be included can provide a short biography including titles of published works.

United Way

The kickoff celebration for the Plymouth Community United Way annual fund-raiser is scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday at the Mayflower Meeting House.

The goal is to raise $510,000 to finance 16 local and 21 state agencies that provide services to the community. The campaign runs through Nov. 30.

Mouse vote

Politics may be important, but voting isn't always serious. According to the election results in Plymouth for the recent general election for state representative, one wag turned out to cast his or her ballot for Mickey Mouse as a write-in candidate.

The candidate, Georgina F. Goss, was running unopposed.

Others receiving write-in votes were John Steward, 2; Jerry Vorva, 13; Deborah Whyman, 3; Dennis Shewsberry, 1; and Anyone, 1.

It leaves you wondering if there are any Goofy fans out there.

Lilley closing

Wayne Disposal Canton, Inc. has announced it will close Lilley to the Conrail tracks during the month of September.

The long anticipated road change will allow the opening of Sauk Trail Hills landfill. Closure of the road will include the construction of turn arounds in front of the north and south gates of the landfill.

WDC plans to construct the turnaround at the closure area before installing the gates and signage. The turnarounds will be constructed initially with crushed rock and will be paved when the project begins, which has not been disclosed.

Township man charged in hit-run

Ex-neighbor arraigned in youth's 1990 death

By Diane Gale
staff writer

An ex-neighbor has been charged in the hit and run death last year of Melissa Chisholm. Her mother, Debbie Chisholm, was in tears trying to understand how someone who had continued a friendly relationship could have done such a thing.

"It's really a weird twist dealing with someone we actually know and who watched us go through this and who could still sit there," Chisholm said outside 35th District Court on Friday.

JOSEPH DONALD Ryan, a Plymouth Township resident who recently moved from his Canton house behind where the Chisholms live in Nottingham Forest subdivision, was charged with failing to stop at a personal injury accident. He stood mute to the charge at his arraignment.

Police were led to Ryan after an anonymous caller linked him to the May 14, 1990 accident that killed Melissa, 14, as she crossed Ford and Lilley roads May 14, 1990, with her younger sister, Amy, 13, to get a school binder from Richardson's, a prescription and convenience store.

The sisters had just finished eating dinner with their parents at Johnson's Restaurant.

Since the accident, a walk sign has been installed at the intersection, where friends and family have erected crosses and flowers as a memorial to Melissa.

FRIDAY, RYAN was released on $20,000 personal bond set by Judge John MacDonald. A preliminary examination to determine if there is enough evidence to hold a trial is 9 a.m. Friday, Sept. 20, in 35th District Court. The charge carries five years in prison and or a $500 fine.

Ryan's attorney, Howard Wallach, said:

"This has been very upsetting to him and his family. This entire case is a tragedy to everyone involved."

"I'd love to see him go to jail for the rest of his life, but that's not up to me," Chisholm said. "There's no justice for him. People don't leave animals the way he left my daughter. I'll never be satisfied with what he gets. There's no amount of satisfaction that will bring my daughter back."

Chisholm described how Amy has spent nights at Ryan's home and how his children visited at the Chisholms' house.

During the 15 months since the accident, Chisholm said, the family spent their time putting up posters and working to identify the driver, because they needed to know who the person was before they could begin grieving Melissa's death.

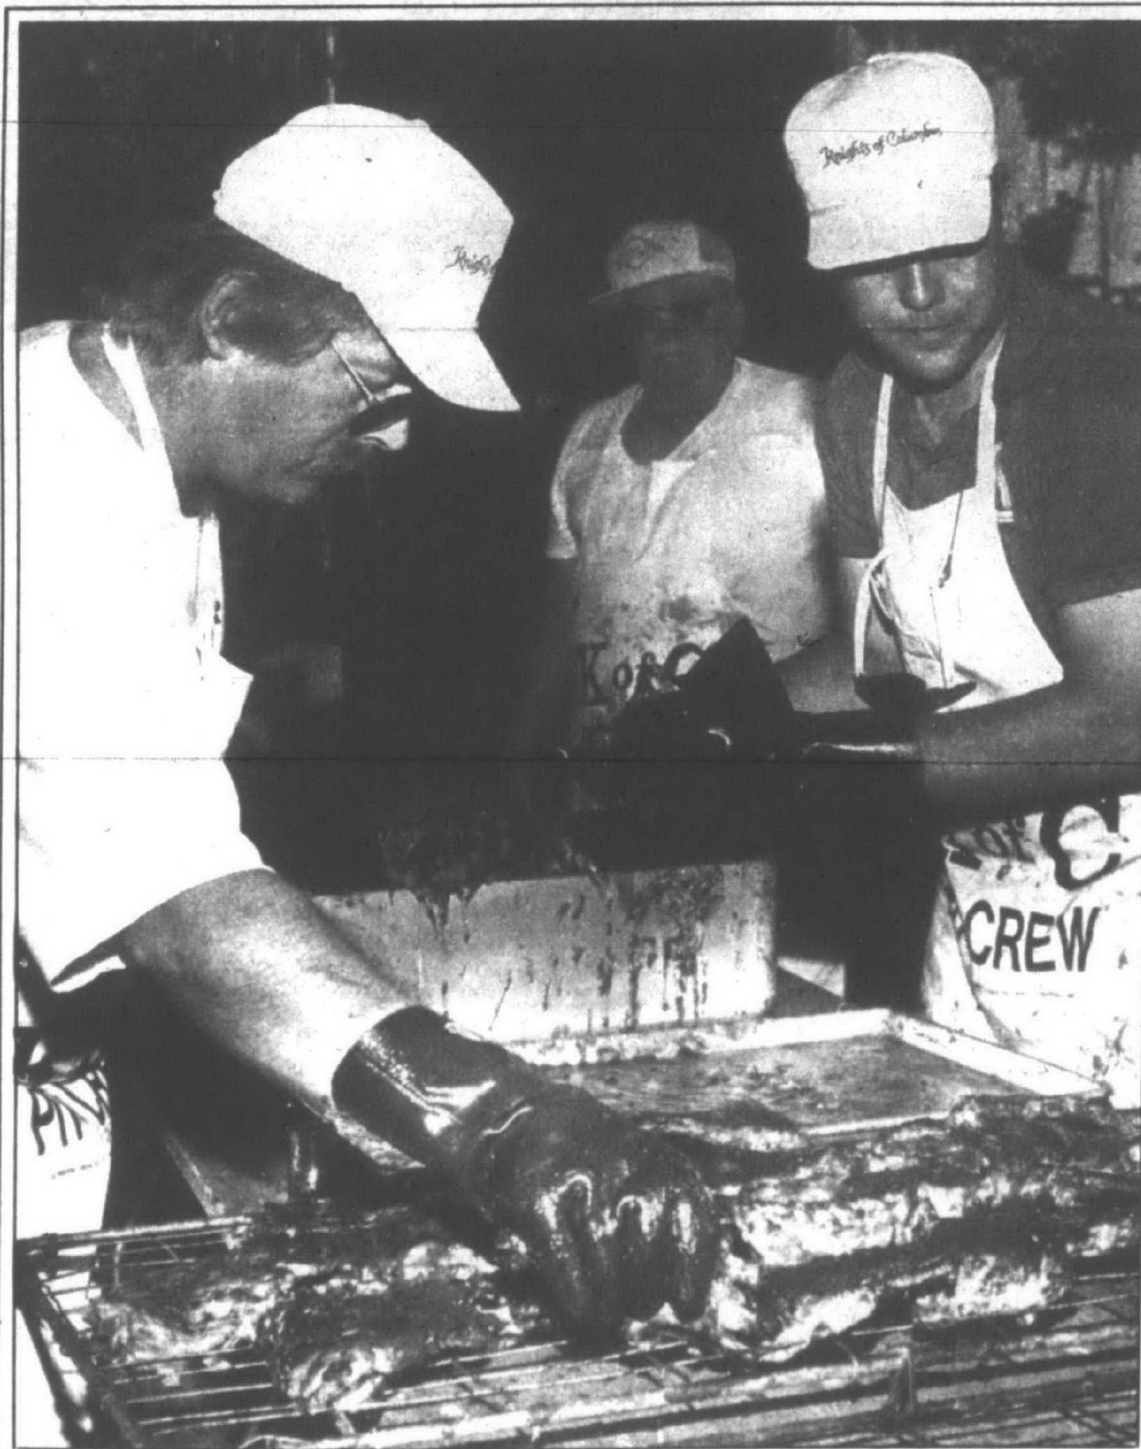

All along the family thought the driver was a stranger, Chisholm said, and it was a

Skies shine on Fall Festival

Plymouth's Fall Festival drew big crowds Saturday to food booths, activities and shows stretching from Kellogg Park to the cultural center.

"WHO COULD USE an extra 100 bucks?" Sheer the magician asked more than 100 festival-goers seated outside the festival stage.

Nearly half raised their hands. "Raise your hand really high, and with the other hand grab your neighbor's wallet," he quipped.

Facing the stage and behind a sound board, sound engineer Roger Ygeal of Performance Sound twisted knobs. Nearby, cable TV crews manned cameras and a set on the Kellogg Park grass.

On wooden tables set on the park grass, some folks finished pancake breakfasts. "They're very good," explained Julie Hoglen of Plymouth Township, as her daughter Jill, stood nearby.

Shorts and T-shirts were the attire of choice for folks attending the festival on Saturday and Sunday, as temperatures soared into the 80's under sunny skies.

Ruth and Mark Vernacchia of Northville, and son Alex, 2, worked on cobs of corn at park tables near Main Street.

"The corn is wonderful," Ruth commented. "We just stopped for lunch first — full kids are happy kids," she said, smiling.

Near paintings displayed on the west end of the park, potter Shirley Curran of Plymouth, seated in the shade, was about half finished with a

City ends airport pact, eyes fees

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

For now, the city of Plymouth is out of the Mettetal Airport operation business.

The joint operating agreement between Plymouth and Plymouth Township to run the Canton airport was dissolved by city commissioners on Tuesday. The action clears the way for a new JOA between Plymouth Township and Canton to own and run the airport, which its current owners say they plan to sell.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP trustees voted Aug. 28 to end the city-township JOA formed in January.

While Plymouth city commissioners also voted to end the city-township JOA, some said they were concerned that legal fees pertaining to the airport, estimated at $3,000-$5,000, would be paid out of future airport proceeds if and when Plymouth Township and Canton Township begin operating the airport.

"I would like some way to remind the township (Plymouth) of that understanding," said Mayor Ralph (Jack) Kenyon.

"It's not chiseled in stone that this (Plymouth Township paying the city's legal fees) is going to happen," said commissioner Jerry Vorva.

Vorva and some other commissioners said the city had been treated poorly by Plymouth Township, which did not respond promptly to a city request that trustees state in writing that the city could be let out of the JOA if a citywide airport-re-

DDA to discuss sale offer for post office

The fate of the longtime post office on Penniman could be decided on Thursday.

That's when city Downtown Development Authority members are scheduled to discuss the sale offer presented to the city by the U.S. Postal Service.

IN A LETTER to Mayor Jack Kenyon last month, "The U.S. Postal Service plans to dispose of postal-owned property located at 860 Penniman," wrote Donald Fennelly, a real estate division manager with the postal service.

Fennelly asked the city for a written offer for the property, "at the fair market value of $390,000."

Some city officials and DDA members have said they'd favor the city buying the building, valued for its historical significance, architecture

"shock" to learn a family friend was charged. She added, however: "Now, we can get on with our grieving, which is what we should have been doing all along."

The Chisholms thanked the anonymous female caller who led police to Ryan.

Chisholm said she understood the caller had seen a recent newspaper story about the incident, was surprised that the driver hadn't been identified, and called police with the information.

Melissa's grandmother, Lillian Johnson, said, "I'm very upset, because he to this day never turned himself in."

Melissa's family thanked the police, the media and others who helped try to find the driver.

and prime location. "There's no inclination for the city to become a landlord," said city manager Steve Walters.

But by buying the building, the city would have a say in the type of business that buys it, from the city, and locates there.

Walters said the city wants to maintain car traffic once the post office closes — probably sometime this fall — and retain the building facade.

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell stressed last week that postal officials "have promised to maintain a retail center in downtown Plymouth."

"Although the post office has moved the majority of its operations to the new location in Plymouth Township, the fact is the new facility is not equipped for retail service," Pursell said.

"I have undertaken numerous conversations with postal officials, and each time they have assured me a retail center will be maintained in downtown Plymouth," he said.

"HOPEFULLY WE can put this issue to rest," Pursell continued. "The postal service has agreed to keep a downtown service center, and until there is evidence to the contrary, I have no reason to believe they have other intentions."

City officials say the postal service has been seeking service center sites downtown.

Plymouth Township chief building official Charles McIlhargey denied an occupancy permit for the new post office on Beck Road in August, as postal officials had failed to seek permits for fire safety-related and other building items.

On Friday, McIlhargey said post office officials have told him they will comply with building department concerns. "They've been given 30 days to do that," he said, adding the building can't open to the public until permits are issued.

Mettetal agreement restrictions sought

By Diane Gale staff writer

The proposed joint operating agreement between Canton and Plymouth townships to run Mettetal Airport is still in a holding pattern after a meeting Wednesday with local officials and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law, Canton Clerk Loren Bennett and Canton administrative assistant Daniel Calabrese met Wednesday with FAA officials to determine if the FAA would agree to the agreement conditions.

THE AGREEMENT between Canton and Plymouth townships called for a 10-point memorandum of understanding including how the land near the airport would be used, and a requirement of approval from both township boards before any property could be bought for expansion.

Also, after 10 years, Canton would have an exclusive option to terminate the agreement, terminate operations at Mettetal and sell the airport.

The FAA wants the townships to put in writing the reasons the townships would terminate the agreement.

"For instance, questions like health, safety and welfare reasons and what would happen if there were development pressures and how Canton would respond," Bennett said.

"We are moving as expeditiously as we can to see if the FAA believes Mettetal is important enough to save on Canton and Plymouth townships' terms versus their terms, and we're seeing if we can come to an agreement."

"The FAA wanted to get a better understanding about what we meant in the agreement," Bennett said.

Canton agreed to have a rough draft completed by the first of October.

THE FAA reportedly said the agreement conditions were unprecedented, Calabrese said.

The FAA plays a role in the public purchase of Mettetal, because it can approve or deny a grant that would pay for the purchase. If they don't agree to the conditions the grant will be denied.

Canton and Plymouth townships are expected to apply for the grant by the end of this month, Calabrese said.

lated vote in November showed citizens were against airport participation.

"It would show some good faith if they (Plymouth Township trustees) accomplished this as a resolution," said commissioner Robert Jones.

City attorney Ron Lowe told commissioners, "You're actually in a situation where you can negotiate the terms of the termination of the JOA," adding that city approval was required to end it.

FROM THE AUDIENCE, commission candidate Bill McAninch said that if the city was talking about $5,000 to $6,000 in legal fees and had "a desire to minimize short and long term legal expenses," ending the JOA Tuesday could be preferable to putting demands before the township.

"The fallout could be a lot worse," he suggested.

"I think this is one of the few times I can agree with Mr. McAninch," responded commissioner John Vos, adding Plymouth Township supervisor Gerald Law has said the city would be reimbursed for legal expenses pertaining to the airport.

The commission then voted to end the city-township JOA, with some adding the city can join later if citizens vote in favor of city participation in running the airport.

Festival fun

Dogs, cats strut their stuff

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The Optimists Club Pet Show was about to start Saturday morning, and 195-pound "Mr. B" was straining at his leash near the Plymouth Fall Festival stage.

"You could put a saddle on him," said the dog's owner Keith Jones of Garden City, a Plymouth Canton High graduate.

"ANY DOG BITES or dog fights, please let us know right away," Chuck Childs told dozens of dog owners from the stage, just off Kellogg Park.

"I've managed this 20 years," Childs said later, after scooping up a bit of dog dung off of Penniman, with half of a plastic milk jug.

"We haven't ever had a dog bite, or anybody being bitten," he said.

And while there was an occasional growl after a too-friendly sniff and prod of a wet nose, peace reigned among the pooches for the dog-judging portion of the show.

The announcement of judging for the "Best-Dressed Dog" category sent a flurry of kids to the front of the stage. Nearly 100 kids, moms and dads looked on.

Dog attire ranged from jean jackets with rolled-up sleeves to bonnets, capes and clown outfits.

On stage, dressed in a suit, tie and white shirt, MC Felix Rotter was talking to Sarah, one of the young dog owners on stage.

"Do you know why the turtle crossed the road?" Rotter asked.

"So he could get to the shell station," he continued. Amidst groans from the crowd, he asked "What do you think of that joke?"

"That was kind of dumb," Sarah said.

Among his memorable experiences in his three years of MCing the pet show, Rotter talked of the time "I turned around and saw a snake 20 feet long."

ANNOUNCEMENT of this year's "Most Unusual Pet" category drew kids to the stage carrying tanks with tadpoles, crabs, rabbits, gerbils, chameleons and turtles.

Earlier, "Cubby" — who had won the "Best Dressed" category for the orange and green ribbons tied in his short black fur — also took the first place ribbon in the dog tricks category.

He performed several tricks and topped them off by jumping on his owner's back.

Two dogs won applause from the crowd for balancing a dog biscuit on their noses, before shaking them off and scooping them up in their mouths.

"Chubby" the basset hound was escorted down the stage steps by Elizabeth Galbreath of Plymouth Township and her grandson Ryan, after winning the "Longest Ears" category.

As "Chubby" looked on with bloodshot eyes, Galbreath commented, "He's overweight. What can I say — He likes gravy."

"Roof," a shepherd dressed in a pink ballerina outfit, won the "Longest Tail" competition with a 19-inch long tail. His owner, Nancy Darragh of Plymouth, said she decided to enter this year after seeing last year's show.

"I dress up my dogs for Halloween," she said. Her husband Mike laughed.

Between events, MC Rotter made a few appropriate comments over the microphone.

Of the pets, he said, "I don't have to tell you how precious they are."

"They are one of your family."

Eating was one of the major tasks of those attending the festival. Above, Mike, Kim and Nicole Hacker, of Westland, enjoyed a picnic in the park.

fancy clay pot. "It's high-fire clay work," she explained, adding she often donates them. "I do it for art's sake."

ON A PARK WALKWAY, Plymouth Police Officer Richard Webster surveyed the scene through sunglasses. Is there ever trouble at the Fall Festival? "Very seldom," he said. "We don't have any problems."

At a face-painting booth on Penniman, a half-dozen kids crowded around as Kristin Rowe, Plymouth Jaycees membership vice president, painted a balloon on a young wrist.

"Our biggest things have been the house mouse, ninja turtles," she explained. "We've been very busy."

At a nearby booth, Plymouth Township community service officer Carl Grabbard — in a trenchcoat and McGruff the crime-fighting dog mask — were passing out junior police stickers.

At the nearby Plymouth Salem

Rocketts dunk tank, Plymouth Salem senior Theresa Sunderman was sent splashing into the tank. Several Rocketts sat nearby, including Plymouth Salem junior Sarah Schmidt. She took her turn in the tank Friday.

Is it a shock to plunge into the water? "Oh yea," she said. "You don't know if they'll hit it (the target) or not. It's fun."

Outside the Plymouth Historical Museum, Al Attee of Plymouth told stories about his 1935 Ford Indy car, among several antique cars displayed outside the museum. Gesturing toward the silver-grey roofless car with a red 24 in red edged in white, he said "I almost lost my hat and glasses driving over here today."

AT THE INDIANAPOLIS 500 in 1935, the car finished 22nd. "It broke a connecting rod," Attee explained.

"There's been big crowds," said wildlife artist Greg Ledermann of West Bloomfield, as he applied some wire to the back of a framed photo near his exhibit outside Central Middle School. Several paused to check out his display, and other photography and craft displays along the school walkway.

Inside the school, about a half-dozen women crowded around Barbara Dolan of Canton's Shelves of Dolls. "It's my fourth year," she said, adding business was "very good."

At the cultural center Antique Show, Mary Martin of Saline was lunching on some pasta as onlookers passed her display. "It's been a very good show," said Martin, who specializes in antique children's things, miniatures and crib quilts. Nearby booths displayed antique engraved spoons, dressers, pitchers, lamps, jewelry, picture frames and more.

"There's been a steady flow," explained Donna Renehan of Plymouth, at an admission table. "They seem to enjoy it," added Sandy Kim, also of Plymouth.

State order won't hike city trash bills

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Rates city residents pay to get rid of trash — affected by the cost charged to the city to dump trash at a Washtenaw County landfill — won't be affected by a recent state order, a landfill spokesman said.

Plymouth dumps its trash at the Arbor Hills Landfill in Salem Township. The huge landfill has been told by county officials that it can agree to take more Washtenaw County trash or turn back 80 percent of its business.

Most of that business is from Wayne and other counties. But Arbor Hills spokesman Bob Line said, "We have a considerable amount of capacity here."

Line said he sees no problem in Arbor Hills continuing to accept Plymouth trash. Asked if increased dumping from Washtenaw County at Arbor Hills might mean a rate hike for Plymouth, Line said, "I don't anticipate that at this time."

He said "a good percentage" of Washtenaw County communities dump trash at Arbor Hills, adding there's plenty of capacity to accept trash from more Washtenaw County communities.

His comments follow a Michigan Department of Natural Resources order that Washtenaw County has until June to find 20 years' worth of guaranteed landfill capacity.

"WITH MORE and more communities becoming involved in recycling projects, and more landfills or additions being cited, we've got a little breathing room as far as landfill space goes," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

"But that doesn't diminish the absolute need to continue recycling efforts," he said.

The city has no immediate plans to accept more types of plastics. "There's not a market for it here in the Midwestern states," Sincock said. "Some other places are taking it or incurring unreasonable costs for transporting and processing it."

The $1 per bag cost for residents to dump garbage "should stay at that rate at least six months," he said. "Beyond that it's hard to guess, it all depends on the landfill rates."

The city has not raised the charge per bag or tag since implementing the program in December, while the cost for the city to dump trash has risen from $9.90 to $11.86 per compacted cubic yard since then.

In July, the city dumped 475 compacted cubic yards of trash, sold 292.4 yards of recyclables and composted 396 yards of yard waste.

Some of Canton's cemeteries look more like a place where a wrecking crew has been at work rather than a sacred burial ground.

Headstones, in some cases more than 150 years old, have been knocked off their bases and lie on the ground. Teen vandals are blamed for the problem. And Halloween is the most popular time of year for teens to meet and party there.

Some headstones in Canton's oldest cemeteries are from the early 1800s and many are lying on the ground.

JAKE DINGELDEY, Department of Public Works director, said, "A lot of kids get in there. They take beer, get rowdy and tip over headstones. Some of those stones are made of sandstone and the oldest date back to the early 1800s."

Many of the burial grounds are full of history about Canton's founding families. Some of their descendants still live in the township.

Also, Civil War veterans were laid to rest in the older grave yards and in some cases the headstone thefts wiped away records of those burials.

"In the most tragic cases, the stones were picked up and taken away," said Ruth Wiles, a Canton historical society board member.

A few years ago after a rash of cemetery headstone thefts, residents woke up to find the monuments on their front yards. Again, teens were blamed for the problem.

In an effort to improve records, Wiles and Joan Palmer compiled a cemetery reading by "going out on our hands and knees reading the stones." They published their findings two years ago.

There aren't exact figures dating Canton's cemeteries, however, Melissa McLaughlin estimated that Sheldon Cemetery, at Sheldon north of Michigan Avenue, was built in the mid-1930s and Donner, on Michigan Avenue west of I-275, was built "about the same time." She was unsure when Kenyon, at Gyde and Ridge roads, was established.

the disarrayed grave yards are being sought, Dingeldey said.

The vandalism problem doesn't stop there. It's widespread at all cemeteries.

PAT NEMECEK, Canton police information officer, said, "It's hard to catch anyone, because normally it's done by juveniles who have nothing better to do and are passing through the area and they see the opportunity," Nemecek said.

"It's a random thing. I don't think they sit home at night thinking they are going to do it."

If the damage caused by the vandalism is more than $100 the crime is a felony, which is the case in most cases, Nemecek said, because headstones are valued much higher.

Roe Street drug program under fire from neighbors

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The program for former drug or alcohol abusers which places them in a Plymouth neighborhood is under fire again.

Neighborhood residents asked city commissioners Tuesday to respond to their complaints, detailed in a letter from neighborhood residents Ernie Archer and Jim and Karol Hardy, of Roe Street.

"We extended our hands in friendship, invited recipients of the program into our homes for meals, provided food for consumption in their apartments, provided transportation to medical centers, provided the use of laundry facilities, loaned money for medicine and food," the letter said.

"In return, we have been rewarded with speeding, loud vehicle noises at all hours, scattered refuse on neighboring property, obscene gestures to children playing on the street, squads of police cars as recently as last Friday night (Aug. 30) apprehending violators, handcuffing them and taking them away for incarceration.

"We have no animosity towards the average program participant in the rehabilitation program. Our fault is with its management."

The three wrote that their lawyer Carol Levitte has compiled information on violations, but the city hasn't acted.

"THIS PROGRAM is getting uglier down here," Jim Hardy said Tuesday. Of the program participants, he said, "Ninety percent are fine but 10 percent are reeking havoc with our block."

City attorney Ron Lowe said he planned to review information provided to him by Levitte.

John Mason, who bought the apartment complex in April where the Personalized Lighthouse Nursing program lodges program participants, said Thursday he has talked to neighborhood residents about their complaints.

"Their (Lighthouse) lease is up at the end of September," Mason said. Asked if he would extend the lease, Mason declined to say.

"Within the next couple of weeks there's going to be some dramatic changes out there," he said. "I am going to take some definite action." Program participants live in the apartment complex and get training to start their own businesses at offices on Main Street.

One long-time Roe Street resident said he has given $150 to program participants who ask for it, adding he was afraid to turn them down.

Marcia Andersen, who heads the Lighthouse program, has stressed that the program seeks to be a good neighbor for Plymouth residents, and has sought local participation on an advisory board. She was unavailable for comment Friday on the Roe Street residents' complaints.

S'craft grows in prestige, will it grow in size?

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

They used to call it Haggerty High. But that was long before Schoolcraft College added high tech classes in robotics, lasers and health care. That was before it developed one of the nation's most respected culinary arts programs. And that was before it added a passel of programs to assist area businesses.

With its 30th anniversary approaching, Livonia-based Schoolcraft enjoys high standing, both academically and in its home community.

"REALLY, IT'S above and beyond anything you'd expect from a community college," said former trustee Jack Kirksey of Livonia.

But the old, somewhat derogatory nickname had another point — that Schoolcraft is largely a Livonia institution.

While that perception is changing, broadening Schoolcraft's presence in other communities is a major challenge for its next 30 years.

Even though it includes Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville, Northville Township and — through Livonia and Clarenceville schools — portions of Westland and Redford, too, Schoolcraft has been most commonly identified with Livonia.

"I think Livonia still considers Schoolcraft their community college," said Michael Burley, a Schoolcraft trustee from Canton. "When I first campaigned for the board (12 years ago) most Canton people didn't even know they were in the Schoolcraft district."

Schoolcraft's main campus is in Livonia, on rolling property along

College plans 30th anniversary fun fest

Schoolcraft College will celebrate its 30th anniversary with a family fun festival noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 15.

The free event will be on the community college's main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

"We've tried to plan events for all members of the family — youngsters, seniors, adults and students," event organizer Carolyn Brown said.

Youngsters can win prizes by competing in numerous games of skill, including a gunny sack race, ring toss, three-legged race, relay races and bowling, kickball and gum blowing contests, or by picking a plastic duck out of the water.

HIGHLIGHTS FOR adults and older children will include a tennis clinic and social and a display of classic Jaguar automobiles.

Tennis enthusiasts will be able to play or attend clinics on Schoolcraft courts, Brown said.

A special program, "Say Yes to Tennis, No to Drugs," will be directed at young players. The program runs noon to 1:15 p.m.

Prizes will be offered in the fast serve contest, noon to 3 p.m. The walk-in tennis tournament will be noon to 4 p.m.

A FAMILY Fun Run and Walk will begin at noon. Participants in the 3.1-mile run or 1-mile walk will receive a commemorative T-shirt and are eligible for prizes.

Tennis and fun run/walk prizes will be provided by Racquets Unlimited, Livonia. All fun run/walk participants will receive a $10 gift certificate from the store.

Also, a drawing will take place for running shoes, sports bags and other prizes.

Registration is $10. Racquets Unlimited will pay the entry fee of anyone buying new running shoes before the day of the event.

Participants can register by calling 462-4448.

Up to 15 of the classic British automobiles will be on display at the People's Choice Jaguar Show, show organizer Gary Hershoren said.

A Health Fair, sponsored by the Metro Medical Group, will be conducted throughout the festival.

Free blood pressure readings, diabetes tests and vision and glaucoma screening will be offered, as will body fat and cholesterol tests.

KEEPING WITH the 1960s spirit, refreshments at the Schoolcraft celebration will be at 1961 prices. Hot dogs will be 50 cents. Drinks will be a quarter; popcorn will sell for a dime.

Entertainment will include magician Bill Heiney, a Schoolcraft graduate who has appeared with master magician Harry Blackstone Jr.

Schoolcraft alumni also make up the Blind Dog Blues Band, one of several musical acts scheduled to perform throughout the festival.

Haggerty Road, just south of Seven Mile, and its ties to its host city are understandable.

At the time of Schoolcraft's early 1960s founding, Livonia was the only big city in its district. Population booms in Westland, Northville, Plymouth and Canton were still more than a decade away.

If anything, Schoolcraft's ties to Livonia have only strengthened over time.

Livonia Chamber of Commerce director John White lists Schoolcraft as one of the community's jewels.

"The relationship between the college and surrounding businesses is excellent," White said. "The relationship is really very strong. They help businesses in obtaining contracts and we've run joint seminars from time to time."

Livonia Business Expo, a major chamber function, began in Livonia. College president Richard McDowell even served a term as chamber president.

The college business procurement program, began in 1985, had helped local businesses secure 60 contracts with a combined $45 million within five years of its opening.

The college has also tailored programs to individual employers.

"WE'VE WORKED with the Holiday Inn, Chi Chis (Mexican restaurant) and the Ford Sheldon road plant, among other companies," McDowell said. "What is kind of unique about our programs is we go into the community to find what people want."

Schoolcraft has been just as successful in other areas.

At Wayne State and Eastern Michigan universities, transfer Schoolcraft students have traditionally posted higher grade point averages than students from other community colleges and universities.

The culinary arts program — a Schoolcraft "flagship" according to McDowell — has produced gold medal winners in international competition in Singapore and Luxembourg.

"Our programs are challenging," McDowell said. "They're as challenging as what you would find in a four-year institution."

At the same time, Schoolcraft has begun reaching out to students in other communities.

In the late 1980s, the college added a Garden City campus, responding to that community's long standing wishes. Garden City-Radcliff, a former junior high school remodeled into a college campus, now handles an estimated 3,100 students a year. Smaller outreach programs are run in the Plymouth-Canton, Livonia and Clarenceville schools.

A full-time Plymouth/Canton campus a longterm college goal. But concerns linger that Schoolcraft is not reaching all the students it should.

"It's changing," Burley said. "But I'd say even now Canton students are more likely to go to Eastern Michigan or even the (Wayne Community College) Belleville campus and in Northville, where I teach, students also receive a lot of information from Oakland Community College."

College figures show a sizeable contingent of Livonia students attend Schoolcraft programs.

Livonia Stevenson was Schoolcraft's biggest "feeder school," sending 145 students, nearly one-third of its graduating class, directly to Schoolcraft, according to a 1990 college survey.

The same survey also showed Livonia Franklin sent the second largest percentage of graduates to Schoolcraft.

But the survey also showed Plymouth-Canton High School sent the second-largest contingent overall roughly 100 students. And Northville High School, though much smaller than Franklin in terms of student population sent nearly the same percentage of students to Schoolcraft.

Recent high school graduates, however, are only a part of Schoolcraft's 9,400 full-time student base.

The Petite Flower and purveyor of Judy-ism, Judy Tenuta, is returning to the metropolitan area for performances Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13-14, at Chaplin's East in Fraser.

Tenuta homes in on her Judy-ism

Grab the kids, shut the door and act like you're not home. The Petite Flower and purveyor of Judy-ism, Judy Tenuta, is on the evangelical prowl.

You know the story: Men are her "love hogs" and "stud puppets" who worship at her feet in her daisy-strewn altar while she spits her gum at them. Who said religion's not mutually fulfilling?

Tenuta was selected Best Female Comedian at the American Comedy Awards in 1988 and has performed at comedy clubs across the country and on television specials such as the recent "Judy Tenuta: Worship Me, Pigs!" on Showtime.

The Italian born and Chicago raised comedian has now turned author. Her book, "The Power of Judy-ism," features a ton of photos of the Petite Flower and original drawings she has done. The book, due out in October, also features such informative chapters as "Love Slave Diets and Recipes," "Purgatory Dating" and "Where Not to Mate." ("Did you know one of the worst places to mate is in Yoko Ono's hair?")

The accordion-playing wacko comedian will perform Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13-14, at Chaplin's East in Fraser. She took a few minutes to espouse her beliefs as the Giver-Goddess and tells us she is running the country because "George Bush is too damn busy fishing."

Hey, it could happen.

What she looks for in a man:

"I like them to be 3-foot-1, 630 pounds wearing butt floss bathing trunks. He should own a movie studio... That's nice don't you think?"

The pressures involved with being the self-proclaimed "Princess of Panty Shields":

"So many people are envious of me because I am the Princess of Panty Shields. For example, Miss Universe got so mad at me. She was just so jealous. You know, like her body wasn't donated by DuPont, right. We're doing this talk show and she sitting there like a big bucket of Tupperware with a bikini on. She's from Chile, so I kept calling her 'Chili pepper.' She kept saying, (Tenuta mimicking a Spanish accent) 'I'm Miss Universe. I'm Miss Universe.' I said, 'Well, I'm Miss Feminine Protection.'"

Some of the men who want to possess her:

"You know this guy, Lee Iacocca, who owns Chrysler, he's hot for me. Oh, act like you don't know. He comes to pick me up at the Detroit airport in a K-Car. Yeah, like I'm going lay down for that! It wasn't even a stretch."

A date with the Love Goddess:

"You must have roller skates and carry me around on your back and feed me grapes. You must allow me to shave your back while you feed me grapes. In return, you chant my name and give me all your worldly possessions until you become a human speed bump."

Rumors she's given Frankie Yankovic accordion lessons:

"I'm afraid it's not true. My accordion is much different than you think. It is an instrument of love and submission. It is used, actually, almost like the Great Ark of the Covenant. Many of my love slaves during the performance don't think of it as an instrument as much as a holy relic so they ask to touch it. I have waitresses who tell me after shows there are people who want to come backstage and who want to touch my accordion. So I have to pass out plastic gloves. Yeah, I got to keep my squeeze box fresh."

'So many people are envious of me because I am the Princess of Panty Shields. For example, Miss Universe got so mad at me. She was just so jealous.'

— Larry O'Connor

'Gun Crazy' is a film noir classic

A rainy night. A boy stands before a gun shop window, admiring the gleaming weapons just beyond reach. Heaving a rock through the glass, he snatches four or five pistols and runs down the street. He trips and a gun goes sliding across the wet pavement in front of a policeman.

The opening shots of "Gun Crazy," playing Tuesday at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe in Ferndale, only hint at the trouble young Bart will get into as an adult. When he meets up with a female counterpart, the lovers take to the road "Bonnie and Clyde" style in search of big money.

"Gun Crazy," made on a shoestring budget by Joseph H. Lewis in 1949, is a rarely screened classic of the "film noir" cycle. The series of stylized postwar crime and mystery films reached its zenith with B-movies like "Gun Crazy."

When Bart (John Dall) meets Laurie (Peggy Cummins) at a carnival sideshow, it's love at first sight. She's an English-born sharpshooter, whose barker boyfriend invites anyone in the audience to test her marksmanship. Bart, fresh from four years of reform school and a stint in the Army, takes the challenge.

BART WOULD settle for a job demonstrating guns for Winchester, but Laurie laughs at the $40 a week he'll make. She wants big money, lots of it, and talks Bart into a crime spree that takes them across several states.

Two things make their story so fascinating. First, the love angle. From that first meeting at the carnival, you know they're mad about each other.

"I see the way you look at him," says the jilted boyfriend. "It scares me. It's like you're a couple of wild animals or something."

As lovers on the run, they can never look to others for help. All they have is each other, and throughout the twists and turns — and even murder — they stay together, "like guns and ammunition," according to Bart.

Add to that the amazing visual style. Lewis packs the film with unusual shots, such as a bank robbery filmed in one continuous take with the camera mounted in the backseat of a getaway car. In an inspired bit of improvisation, the director insisted that the actors simply drive toward the bank, not even knowing if a parking spot would be open.

We watch Bart, dressed in cowboy outfit, leave the car while she waits behind the wheel. A policeman rounds the corner and pauses in front of the bank. What will Laurie do or say? She's as surprised by the outcome as we are.

IT'S THIS type of identification

with the characters that makes "Gun Crazy" more powerful than most crime films. The binding of two misfits, perhaps the two straightest shooters in the country, offers considerably more than "Bonnie and Clyde," who are joined solely by their boredom with life.

Bart abhors killing. He likes being the best at something and that happens to be shooting guns.

You can even understand Laurie, a manipulative femme fatale, who brings poignancy to her lines about being kicked around so much that now she wants to kick back.

In recent months, the film has played to packed houses in major cities, spurred by the discovery of an original release print and by director Martin Scorsese, whose glowing appreciation piece in the New York Times aptly hails "Gun Crazy" as "a masterpiece."

State seeks car phone caller help

Drivers on I-96 and outstate freeways will see new signs advising motorists with cellular car phones to dial 9-1-1 when they spot a highway emergency.

State Police and the Michigan Department of Transportation (M-DOT) are cooperating to enlist car-phone owners as spotters for accidents, stranded motorists and other emergencies.

The new system will replace the 18-year-old "Project BEAR," which is outmoded and a system of emergency phones along I-94 in Detroit.

MOTORISTS making the toll-free call are automatically connected with a local 911 emergency dispatcher in the area roughly south of a line extending from Muskegon to Bay City where cellular facilities now operate.

The first signs to be installed in outstate Michigan are going up along I-96 between Detroit and Grand Rapids.

William Lebel, M-DOT's traffic operations engineer, said the department plans to erect 110 signs at 20-mile intervals along about 1,100 miles of rural freeways in southern Michigan.

State Police have responded to thousands of calls in the Detroit metropolitan area since early 1990 when M-DOT began installing signs saying "Emergency - Car Phone Call 911." "It's working extremely well," said Lt. Steve Brown, who is in charge of the State Police Operations Section. "Very often we get scores of calls from motorists reporting the same incident - a disabled vehicle or whatever."

ALONG I-96, the cellular phone system will replace Project BEAR (Broad Emergency Assistance Radio), which allowed drivers of vehicles equipped with CB radios to communicate directly with a State Police or volunteer dispatcher at State

Police headquarters in East Lansing. "Project BEAR served the citizens well, but the state's radio transceivers and supporting telephone lines are outdated and limited by their 5-watt design," said Brown. "Certain meteorological factors also caused complications for the system."

Bob Maki, head of M-DOT's freeway operations group, said the effectiveness of cellular phones also will allow M-DOT to terminate the motorist-aid phone system along 13.5 miles of I-94 (Edsel Ford) Freeway in Detroit.

The department began operating the system on an experimental basis late in 1980, installing phones for reporting emergencies every one-third mile along the shoulders of both the eastbound and westbound freeway. The phones put callers in immediate touch with a State Police dispatcher in downtown Detroit.

"The system is outmoded and not as reliable as it should be," said Maki. "Repair parts are no longer available and damage from vandalism, errant vehicles, the environment and other factors requires too much maintenance and repair." Motorists usually had to leave their cars and walk along the freeway shoulder to summon help, posing a safety hazard.

BROWN PRAISED the nearly 300 citizen volunteers who staffed the Project BEAR dispatch center in East Lansing over the years. "They worked night and day, seven days a week," he said. "They deserve the thanks of thousands of motorists who encountered trouble on the freeway."

Requests for assistance included 278 abandoned vehicles, 8,160 motorist assists, 4,472 accidents, 609 fires, 2,727 road hazards, 352 medical emergencies, 135 arrests and 3,057 traffic violations.

UM-D coffeehouse to offer top talent

The Chenille Sisters, a national recording act from the Detroit area, head the list of entertainers who will appear at "The Fun Factory," a new, light-hearted series of coffeehouse-style entertainment to be presented weekday evenings this fall at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The trio's far-ranging music, incorporating jazz, swing, folk and blues, has drawn raves from reviewers and listeners alike.

The Chenille Sisters will perform Tuesday, Oct. 22. General admission is $6. Tickets are available at all area Ticketmaster outlets. There is no charge for UM-D students, staff and faculty.

Other events, all free, include:

- Tuesday, Sept. 10 - Carl Rosen, musician and comedian. Winner of the 1991 Campus Entertainment Award for coffeehouse performers, Rosen has been compared to Elton John and Billy Joel.
- Tuesday, Sept. 17 - Jaz Kaner, comedian. Kaner is known for arriving on stage, soaking wet, carrying a surfboard. He has appeared on Fox Television's "Comic Strip Live" and Showtime's "Comedy Club Network." He also appeared in the film, "Ford Fairlane."
- Tuesday, Sept. 24 - Mark Nizer, juggler. First-place finisher in the 1990 International Juggling Championships, Nizer has appeared on "The Arsenio Hall Show," "MTV Comedy Show" and "Comic Strip Live."
- Wednesday, Oct. 9 - Lynn Trefzger, comic and ventriloquist. A 1990 Campus Entertainment Award winner in the comedy category, Trefzger not only uses puppets and dummies but also "human dummies" selected from the audience.
- Tuesday, Nov. 5 - Elon Gold, comedian. Best known as "the comic who does the comics" for his impressions of Howie Mandel, Richard Lewis and Martin Short, Gold is a featured performer on the "MTV Half Hour Comedy Hour."

Trustee says expansion is key to SC's future

The average student age is 27 - another sign the Haggerty High days are long gone - with 63 percent of all students older than 21.

More surprising figures are posted by college continuing education service programs, short classes and seminars generally aimed at adult students.

College reports show more than half the 12,000 people attending 1990-91 continuing education programs came from outside the college service district.

"Some of it is the type of programs we run," Florek said. "For instance the business program we run (at the Michigan Design Center) in Troy are going to draw people from all over."

With state aid cuts looming, and with the region's industrial base shrinking, financing is a long-term concern for all area community colleges.

In a pioneering move, the college allowed a private developer to build two office buildings on unused college land. The net result, $216,000 in revenue for this year, more than $300,000 a year in coming years.

Expanding Schoolcraft's service district, Burley said, is the key to its future.

"I'd like to see Schoolcraft expand not just in Plymouth/Canton but beyond that," he said. "It's becoming clear that, to continue to thrive, we're going to have to expand our base."

The Michigan Department of Education is already examining areas unserved by community colleges, McDowell said. "There are things that could be done in conjunction with other community colleges."

But Burley, looking to the next 30 years, envisions a Livingston County campus, tapping into that growing area.

"We need to look ahead," he said.

Hate laws stretch limits of our psyches

STICKS AND STONES may break my bones, but words can never hurt me.

How many of you grew up on that little ditty?

It isn't quite true, of course. Words can hurt. They can hurt your feelings, bruise your psyche, damage your ego. But, as that children's jingle tries to point out, they cannot injure you in a physical sense. So if somebody calls you a name, that's no reason to punch him out.

I remember once listening to a policeman giving instructions to a group of civilian volunteers who were going to ride along in patrol cars manned by only one officer. The policeman pointed to one of the volunteers and said, "I think you're a stupid-looking SOB."

The man looked shocked. The policeman waved his arm in a sweeping gesture at the whole group. "You're all stupid-looking SOBs," he said. They all looked shocked.

"Now," he said. "You've all been called SOBs and it didn't hurt a bit. So when some drunk calls you that tonight, just be cool. Don't try to smash his face in. Remember, they're just words."

BUT THAT WAS years ago, some time in the early '60s. This is the '90s, and we're much more sensitive today.

That's the only reason I can think of to explain the "cracker incident" down in Punta Gorda, Fla. You may have read about it.

A white police officer broke up an argument between a young woman and a young black man back in June.

After the incident, according to the officer, the black man told him,

Jack Gladden

"I'll shoot you, you white cracker." The policeman then arrested him and charged him with assault. But he also brought charges against him under the Florida Hate Crimes Act because the man called him a "cracker."

The case received national attention since it is believed to be the first time a black person was charged with a racially motivated crime against a white person under the Florida law. Had the charges held up, the assault charge, a first-degree misdemeanor, would have been raised to a felony by calling it a "hate crime."

LAST WEEK prosecutors dropped both charges against the man because of insufficient evidence that an assault occurred. An assistant state attorney said an investigation showed that the man was walking away from the officer when he made the comment, that he was not armed and that he made no threatening move. He added:

"The hate crimes law is an enhancement statute. After looking at it real long and hard, I decided there wasn't an assault. There wasn't a crime to enhance."

On the surface it would seem that common sense prevailed in this case.

But suppose there had been an assault. Suppose the cop had been punched out. Would the damage have been any worse because the assailant called him a "cracker" in the process? Suppose he had called him a "white SOB" instead of a "cracker"? Would that have been a racial slur?

Much of the discussion of this case centered around the term "cracker." Does it have racial overtones? Is it derogatory or just a variation of "good ole boy"?

The black man's court-appointed defense attorney said he didn't think the term qualified as a racial epithet that could kick in the hate crimes law.

"From what I've heard and read," he said, "cracker is not really a racial slur. I think the law is over-broad."

I THINK that's an understatement. What difference do the words make?

Florida is not the only state to have enacted such a law in recent years. In Michigan and several other states they are usually known as Ethnic Intimidation Laws. But those crackers . . . oops, make that good ole boys . . . down in Florida right through the highfalutin' language and call it what it is: a Hate Crimes Act.

The intent is to punish someone more severely if he hates the person he beats up than if he just beats him up without hating him. I think that's absurd and I think the "cracker incident" shows the length to which such laws can be stretched.

We should wipe the books clean of all such laws and replace them with "Sticks and stones . . ."

Educational experiments lead to learning

CHANCES ARE WE'LL never know if the all male academies in the Detroit school system will work.

It's too bad. Maybe they would have worked, and maybe not. But thanks to the meddling of the rights nannies from the suburbs, we probably won't get a chance to find out.

We all know the statistics. A black male from Detroit has more of a chance of ending up in jail than in college.

In a sense there's an epidemic of violence. And when there's such an outbreak, officials need to trample on a few perceived rights to stop it. It's a practical thing.

THE ACADEMIES are an educational experiment, not a system of institutionalized sexism as the rights nannies would have us believe. And if we can't experiment on occasion, we'll never learn anything.

The suburbs have special schools for gifted and talented students, which exclude students. That's discrimination. Those special programs should be extended to all students, not just to an elite few.

I've always been suspicious of such programs, wondering if school officials make sure that the sons and daughters of movers and shakers in a given community aren't included in the programs to help ensure support for millage issues.

But that's another issue. And it's an issue that hasn't attracted the attention of the National Organization for Women or the American Civil Liberties Union. I suspect the reason is that it's easier to tell somebody who lives in the next community how to do things than it is to meddle in your own back yard.

THE CLASSIC example of that is when northerners were sent South in the 1960s to force integration. It's not that there wasn't a need for progress in the South, it's just that chances were the cities from which the carpetbaggers came were just as segregated, if not more than Selma, Ala.

It's happening again in Detroit. Well intentioned liberals are charging in again. Instead of letting people in a community decide what's best for themselves, they're imposing their own values and at the same time they're stopping an educational experiment that could reduce crime.

But that's nothing new for the rights nannies. They've got a track record of increasing crime whenever they make a move.

A recent Time magazine cover story about crybabies and busybodies hit the mark when it pointed out that everybody cries about rights, but nobody mentions anything about responsibility.

By letting women in the what-were-to-be all male academies, we've given women their rights, but we've failed in our responsibility to give black males a better chance at obtaining an education.

THE ONLY BENEFIT of the debacle is that maybe the public will see NOW and the ACLU for what they are: a bunch of well-intentioned, but arrogant liberals who run around telling other people what to do because they think they're smarter.

They're like the religious folks in the middle ages who argued how many angels fit on the head of a pin, the only difference now is that it's rights.

It's an absurd situation. If things go on like this, we'll have every right possible down pat, but nobody will get a chance to use them because nobody will be able to read.

But maybe that's what NOW and the ACLU are angling for. They're the liberals who know what's good for the rest of us.

If they keep everybody ignorant then they gain power.

God save us from the reformers.

Help available in this group

To the editor:

The story of Beth Feller's struggle against trichotillomania (Aug. 19) served its purpose as a human interest piece, but missed its opportunity to impart some much-needed information on the nature and scope of this disorder. Although it is little known, compulsive hair pulling is not rare. Over 3 million women suffer from TTM, most in silence and shame because they don't know that their affliction has a name and a treatment. Ms. Feller's triumph over the disorder in the relatively short span of four years is, in fact, atypical of the average TTM experience.

For this reason, I think it is vitally important that the reality of the condition be made known along with Ms. Feller's success.

TTM afflicts women almost exclusively, and the average age of onset is around 13 to 15. The effect at that age is devastating and many sufferers retreat to a self-imposed isolation during this most important time in their social development. They are told that their hair-pulling is just a bad habit and they could stop if they wanted. When they cannot stop, they blame themselves and become overwhelmed by feelings of inadequacy and self-loathing. The impulse to pull simply cannot be controlled, and it is not unusual to find TTM victims who have suffered for more than 20 years.

THE FACT IS that TTM is caused by a chemical imbalance in the brain similar to Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder, and so it is no more possible for a TTM sufferer to stop pulling through will power alone than it is for an alcoholic to just stop drinking. That she was able to reach such a successful outcome on her own makes Ms. Feller's recovery all the more remarkable. Most others need a network of help, understanding and support to achieve the same success.

Therefore, even though Ms. Feller's experience with the medical community was less than satisfactory, you should have mentioned that excellent sources of diagnosis and treatment can be found, for example, through the Anxiety Disorders Program at the University of Michigan. Additional information on TTM is available through the OC Foundation, P.O. Box 9573, New Haven, Conn. 06535.

I am trying to establish a TTM support group and information exchange network and would like to hear from other TTM sufferers. They must know that they are not alone and that help is available. I welcome their calls at 522-8907.

Brother reports Ruby memorabilia missing

By Ralph Echlinaw
staff writer

West Bloomfield resident Earl Ruby was more chagrined than most people would be to discover that a suitcase containing telegrams signed by his brother had been stolen.

But then most people's brother didn't shoot Lee Harvey Oswald, the assassin of President John Kennedy, as Earl's brother Jack did in 1963.

Earl is offering a $1,000 reward, no questions asked, for the return of the suitcase. Its contents include the telegrams of congratulations Jack received after shooting Oswald, his dog tags, personal checks and contracts for entertainers who worked at Earl's nightclub in Dallas, Texas.

Earl said signature dealers all over the country have been notified of the theft, making it almost impossible for the thief to sell the memorabilia.

The conspiracy theory about the Kennedy assassination, at least where Jack is concerned, is rubbish as far as Earl is concerned. He said Jack crossed paths with Oswald purely by chance and shot him on impulse. "(Jack) loved Kennedy," Earl said.

Help us make steps in the fight against SIDS

If you knew a healthy, happy baby had died suddenly without reason, you'd want to help. There are over 7,000 babies who die from a cruel, mysterious killer. It's called SIDS: Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Perhaps you've heard SIDS referred to as "Crib Death." But maybe you didn't hear that SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year.

babies of all races and religions. And it's not hereditary.

Donations of your time and dollars will make a difference. And we can make bigger steps to fighting SIDS.

4-H program offers leadership training

Michigan State 4-H Youth Program is looking for volunteers to participate in its Challenge Leader East Region training program which begins Friday, Sept. 13.

The training program is available for those age 16 and older who would like to work with youth.

The training is designed for Scout and Campfire leaders who are seeking supplemental training, junior high and high school teachers for alternative education classes and those aged 16 and older who have a desire to help youth learn by doing through outdoor activities such as canoeing, backpacking, winter camping, cross country skiing and other activities.

The first week orientation begins at 7 p.m. Friday and continues through 3 p.m. Sunday. The weekend will be followed with backpacking and canoeing in October, first aid in November and winter camping in February.

Cost for the five weekend is $50. Trainees are responsible for their own meal costs and cross country ski rental.

The east region includes 17 counties in eastern lower Michigan. The training cycle for basic certification is five weekends which includes orientation, backpacking, canoeing, winter activities and first aid.

The training consists of four components: weekends (practical tests), written tests, a written trip plan and activities with youth. The written tests are multiple choice formats in eight subject areas (leadership campcraft, food and nutrition, map and compass, canoeing, wilderness transportation, edible plants, clothing/miscellaneous).

Most instructors are experienced Challenge leaders who volunteer their time. For more information, call Jo Chadburn at (313) 675-0419, Deby Libby (313) 531-0819 after 6 p.m., Pat Michrina (313) 652-9139.

Local book group selects authors for new season

The adult Great Books group of western Wayne County has scheduled 16 sessions for the 1991-2 season.

The reading for Sept. 19 is Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" and for Oct. 3, C.S. Lewis' "The Screwtape Letters."

The group meets at 7:30 p.m. for two hours two Thursdays a month in Livonia's Civic Center Library, Five Mile east of Farmington roads.

A reading list and background information on the Great Books program are available from Zo Chisnell in Northville at 349-3121.

4 planets visible in September sky

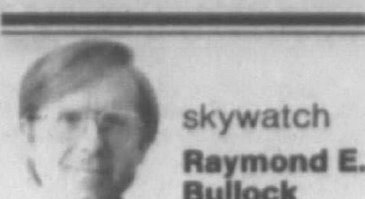

September is the month of such familiar events as the Harvest Moon and the start of autumn. This year in September, Venus is at its brightest and there will be a rare, spectacular conjunction (grouping) between Jupiter, Mercury and the star Regulus.

Four of the five naked-eye planets will be visible in September. Mercury, Venus and Jupiter can be seen in the morning sky, and Saturn can be seen after sunset. Mars is too close to the sun to be seen this month.

The amount of sunlight we receive decreases by one hour and 21 minutes in September.

Look for the waxing crescent moon, 30 minutes after sunset on the evening of the 10th. It will be just a few degrees above the west southwest horizon. The star above the moon is Spica (SPY ka) in Virgo. On the following evening, also just 30 minutes after sunset, the moon will be 10 degrees to the left of Spica.

NOTICE MERCURY on the morning of the 12th. It is already three degrees to the left of Jupiter! Mercury is the fastest moving planet and its position changes very quickly from day to day. Jupiter, on the other hand, moves much more slowly; it is still right along side of Regulus.

Venus has been moving retrograde (backward) through the sky during the past few months. The planets generally drift west to east through the stars. Venus has been going from east to west. When the month began, Venus was 10 degrees from Jupiter; by the 12th they are 12 degrees apart. On this day Venus appears to be stationary and tomorrow will resume prograde (forward) motion. Venus will pass Jupiter next month.

Planets don't actually change the direction they are orbiting. Retrograde motion is an optical illusion. Venus is closer to the sun than the earth and, as it passed between the two, it appeared to be moving backward through the stars.

The amount of sunlight we receive decreases by one hour and 21 minutes in September.

The moon is in Scorpius on the evening of the 13th. On the 14th it is located just to the left of Antares (an TAR ees), the 'heart' of the scorpion.

The moon is at first quarter phase at 6:01 P.M. on Sept. 15. The moon has completed the first quarter of its orbit around the earth. It is located in Sagittarius and spends the next few nights moving through this constellation.

On the evening of the 16th, look for a star immediately to the left of the moon. This star is named Lambda Sagittarii (LAM da SAG i tar ri). It is the 11th brightest star in Sagittarius, and it was given the name of the 11th letter in the Greek alphabet. It also has a proper name: Kaus Borealis, which means 'the Northern Part of the Bow.' Sagittarius is an archer, but the constellation looks much more like a teapot, with Kaus Borealis marking the top of the lid. The spout is down to the right, and the handle is down to the left.

There is a bright globular star cluster less than one degree above Kaus Borealis. It was first discovered in 1764 by Charles Messier (MESS e yay), who did not know its true nature.

It became item number 28 on a list he was compiling and is known today as M28. It looks like a fuzzy patch of light through binoculars, but it's actually composed of dozens of stars. You won't see it on the evening of the 16th; the moon is right in front of it! But remember this location. Give the moon a few days to get out of the way, and then turn your binoculars toward this part of the sky. Globular star clusters are densely packed, as opposed to an open star cluster like the Pleiades (number 45 on Messier's list) which is spread out.

WHEN ARTHRITIS WON'T RESPOND

There may come a time when your arthritis can't be controlled. No matter how much heat, rest, medication or injections you take, you feel no better the next day.

What then?

The experience of physicians is, that however bleak your position seems, in time you will improve. Attacks of arthritis can be prolonged, but are not unremitting. Often the key is to continue the medical regimen that helped in the past. Increasing medication that previously has not caused side effects seems to work better than starting a new medicine while in the midst of a flare.

At all times joint injection and aspiration need to be undertaken with care to not overuse this therapy. However, when your arthritis reaches an intolerable level of pain and impairment, temporary increase in joint injection therapy often can substantially slow a flare.

The continuation of pain causes your physician to look into the status of your joints. It could be that your problem is the result of irreversible change in one or more joints. If such is the case then surgery, not more or new medicine, is the alternative of choice.

No matter how prolonged your pain and impairment remember that flares end. The body never abandons its responsibility to keep you going in the best way possible.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on September 18, 1991, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. DST at the Board Room the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft College will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1991 of an estimated additional proposed millage rate of 0.0984 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Trustees has the complete authority to establish that 2.27 mills be levied in 1991 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1991 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by an estimated five and eight-tenths percent (5.8%).

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the final state equalized valuation of property located within the College District.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy on an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Trustees may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by the Board of Trustees.

Jan Sproul of Redford, mother of Jacob, 5, finds a lot of good recipes in Parents magazine. A recipe for chunky cheese-and-fruit comes from last year's September issue.

LEMONY BREAKFAST CHEESE SPREAD

1 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup lemon lowfat yogurt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Beat ricotta cheese and sugar in small mixer bowl until smooth, about 5 minutes. Stir in yogurt and vanilla. Refrigerate, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to blend.
Spread 1 to 2 tablespoons of cheese spread on warm assorted toasted breads or rice cakes. Top with fresh or dried diced fruit, cooked bacon or sausage, or sliced hard-cooked egg.
Yield 1 1/2 cups. Keeps well in covered container in refrigerator up to 5 days.

1 tablespoon yields 21 calories, 1 gram protein, 1 gram fat, 2 grams carbohydrate, 36 grams calcium. (Recipe from United Dairy Industry Association.)

MIXED BERRY POWERHOUSE

2 8-oz. containers mixed berry yogurt
1/4 cup cold skim milk
1/4 cup honey crunch wheat germ
3 tablespoons cran-raspberry juice concentrate
2 tablespoons honey
2 ice cubes

Place all ingredients in blender container. Cover. Blend until smooth and frothy. Serve in tall chilled glasses. Yields 1 cup.
To prepare night before, combine all ingredients except wheat germ and ice cubes in blender container. Cover and refrigerate. Add wheat germ and ice just before blending the next morning.
Yields 3 cups. 1 cup serving yields 275 calories, 10 grams protein, 3 grams fat, 55 grams carbohydrate, 288 grams calcium. (Recipe from United Dairy Industry Association.)

CHUNKY CHEESE-AND-FRUIT SALAD

1/4 cup vanilla lowfat yogurt
1/4 cup sour cream
1/2 cup 1/2-inch cubes cheddar cheese (3 oz.)
1 large Red Delicious apple, cored and diced
1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
1 8 oz. can pineapple chunks, well drained
Lettuce leaves (optional)
1/4 cup roasted peanuts

In medium bowl stir together yogurt and sour cream until blended. Stir in cheese, apple, celery and pineapple until well coated. Cover and chill.

Serve on lettuce leaves, if desired. Sprinkle with peanuts just before serving. Note: For younger children, serve without peanuts.
Yield 4 cups, or six servings. Yield per serving, 161 calories, 6 grams protein, 10 grams fat, 14 grams carbohydrate, 109 mg. sodium, 20 mg. cholesterol. (Parents magazine, September 1990 issue.)

Brown Bag Bologna and Salami Sandwich is a flavorful choice for the back-to-school crowd.

Sandwich has pack up and go

Now that school is back in session, millions of children will be toting their lunch to school every day. Sandwiches are the hands down favorite for the "brown bag" bunch. Knowing safe sandwich preparation is assurance that the pick-and-carry lunch will be eaten and enjoyed.

A safe, fresh lunch begins with the packing. Always prepare sandwiches with clean hands using a clean work surface and utensils. Since children can seldom refrigerate their lunch at school, include something cold in the lunch box such as a cold drink or freezer-pack insert. When possible, pack their lunch the night before and store it in the refrigerator overnight. Thoroughly chilled foods travel better and stay fresh longer. When planning what to pack, talk to your children to determine their likes and dislikes in bag lunches. Bologna is a favorite with the back-to-school crowd. This cooked, smoked sausage is made of finely ground beef and pork and seasoned similar to hot dogs.

All beef bologna, veal bologna and lower fat bolognas are also available. Since bologna is fully cooked, it's convenient to use and has excellent keeping qualities for a take-along lunch.

To add interest to brown bag lunches, introduce different breads and rolls as well as new sandwich fillings. For example, from Brown Bag Bologna and Salami Sandwich.

This Italian inspired sandwich used shredded mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced lettuce, shredded carrot, and Italian dressing with slices of bologna and salami in a Kaiser roll. This hero-type sandwich offers a good flavor combination for back-to-school toting.

BROWN BAG BOLOGNA AND SALAMI SANDWICH

2 ounces sliced bologna
1 ounce sliced salami
1 tablespoon shredded mozzarella cheese
1 Kaiser roll, split
1/4 cup thinly sliced lettuce
1 tablespoon shredded carrot
1 teaspoon bottled Italian salad dressing
2 ripe olives, sliced, if desired
Sprinkle cheese over bottom half of roll. Combine lettuce, carrot and salad dressing; place on cheese. Top with bologna and salami slices and ripe olives, if desired. Close sandwich with roll top. Yield: 1 sandwich.

Nutritious snacks are munch better

Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, offers several suggestions for healthy snacks.

- Keep low-fat crackers, boxed juices, microwave natural popcorn, fresh and dried fruits and nuts and seeds on hand at work for healthy snacking.

- Use microwaves and slow cookers to make easy one-dish meals instead of buying fast food from restaurants.

- Keep plastic bags of cut vegetables in your refrigerator for easy snacks.
- Stay away from vending machines unless they offer fresh fruit or yogurt.

The Food and Nutrition Hotline sponsored by the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service can answer many food and nutrition questions. Call 858-0904 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

Beringer Vineyards and Contadina harmonize

Elegant wine-dining at home prepared in 15 minutes. Sound too good to be true? A current product promotion at local grocery markets and wine outlets links the wines of Beringer Vineyards and Contadina Fresh pastas and sauces to make it all possible.

Generally, we don't bite when we see these marketing gimmicks. Beringer wines — OK, they're consistent top quality. Packaged pasta and sauces? Not for these two purists who make them at home from scratch using authentic Italian recipes.

SINCE THEY were introduced, we've pushed the shopping basket right past the Contadina Fresh pastas and sauces. We've resisted the convenience because we "knew" they wouldn't be at all similar to homemade.

A wise man once said, "don't knock it till you try it." The current promotion caused us to do just that. We were more than pleasantly surprised.

The store displays of Beringer wines attract attention with eye-catching neckhangers. Some stores couple this with cross-merchandising displays in the refrigerated section near the Contadina Fresh pastas and sauces. Whichever you find, do capitalize on the mail-in, $2 off coupons good on the Contadina products and the wines.

Featured wines include Beringer Chenin Blanc, White Zinfandel and Gamay Beaujolais. Since sweet-edged wines (chenin blanc and white zinfandel) don't pair well with red sauce, you need to consider your purchasing choice in advance for a proper food and wine harmony.

A WHITE sauce such as the Contadina Fresh Alfredo Sauce will work with the off-dry chenin and the slightly sweet white zinfandel, if you want to keep it light and white.

We concentrated on the red sauces with various pastas since this is our preference. Following the package directions, we prepared the Angel's focus on wine

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Hair pasta and sampled it with each of four sauces (Plum Tomato with Basil, Fresh Garden Vegetable, Bolognese and Marinara), heated according to the microwave directions, and a slightly chilled bottle of Beringer Gamay Beaujolais.

The best wine and food harmony was achieved with the Fresh Garden Vegetable and the Bolognese sauces. The first sauce should please any vegetarian. The vegetables are crunchy and the sauce is piquant, enhancing a slightly spicy element in the wine.

The Bolognese meat sauce is richly flavored and sticks to the pasta — a sign of quality. The balance between the wine's fruitiness and the richness of the sauce is a tempting taste treat.

Part two of the taste test consisted of preparing both the Contadina beef and chicken ravioli and sampling each with the same four red sauces evaluated previously with the Angel's Hair pasta. To introduce a note of creativity, we added a bottle of zinfandel to the taste arena.

THE GAMAY Beaujolais stood up to the challenge, but the zinfandel was a clear winner. Again, our preference was the Fresh Garden Vegetable sauce with the chicken ravioli and the Bolognese sauce with the beef ravioli.

Zinfandel served with the Bolognese and beef ravioli enriched the taste experience. The sauce's richness was complexed and the beefy flavor of the ravioli came forward.

What's been discussed so far is an under 15-minute dinner preparation. Buy the pasta and sauce of your choice, prepare according to package directions, open a bottle of wine and you're done.

Grate some Parmesan cheese and assemble a fresh green leaf basil garnish while the pasta is cooking. No more prep time is added, but a note of elegance is.

Elegance is easy with packaged pasta, sauce

To add greater notes of elegance to quick and easy meal ideas, the following recipes have been suggested by Contadina.

TORTELLINI BROCHETTES IN PESTO SAUCE

Makes 12 servings as an appetizer
¾ cup (7-oz. container) Contadina Fresh Pesto Sauce
3 tablespoons olive oil, divided
1 pkg. (9-oz.) Contadina Fresh Cheese Tortellini (Egg or Spinach) cooked and drained
1 ¼ cups green pepper, cut into ¼-inch pieces
12-15 button mushrooms
20-24 small cherry or yellow plum tomatoes
12 wooden skewers

In small bowl, combine pesto sauce and 2 tablespoons olive oil. Set aside.

Alternate tortellini, pepper, mushrooms and tomatoes on skewers using 7 to 8 tortellini per brochette. In shallow glass dish, marinate brochettes at room temperature in pesto and olive oil mixture for one hour, turning occasionally.

In large skillet, saute brochettes, a few at a time, in 1 tablespoon olive oil until golden brown; about 30 seconds each side.

Arrange on platter, spoon remaining sauce over brochettes. Serve immediately.

SPINACH FETTUCCINE WITH SMOKED SALMON IN FOUR CHEESE SAUCE

(A tasty first or main course serving eight)

½ cup whipping cream
2 ½ cups (two 12-oz. containers) Contadina Fresh Four Cheese Sauce
3 pkg. (9-oz. each) Contadina Fresh Spinach Fettuccine
2 cups (10-oz.) thinly sliced smoked salmon, cut into ¼-by-4-inch strips

JIM RIDER/staff photographer

Pair Beringer wines with Contadina Fresh pastas and sauces for an elegant meal that's ready in 15 minutes.

2 tablespoons fresh chopped chives
In medium saucepan, heat cream and four cheese sauce over low heat for 2 minutes or until heated through, stirring constantly. Keep warm. Cook fettuccine according to package directions. Drain. Divide sauce, pasta and salmon evenly between two large bowls. Toss gently. Arrange contents of bowls onto a large serving platter. Garnish with chives. Serve immediately.

Grocery shopping tips cut food costs

AP — A penny saved in the supermarket adds up to more than a penny earned, considering the amount of grocery shopping you do in a month or year. Try these tips to polish your money-saving skills every time you shop:

When buying canned goods, think about how you're going to serve them. If you're adding them to a mixture where shape, uniformity in size, and color do not matter, then use the thriftest form. For example, for tuna sandwiches, you could easily buy the least-expensive tuna and save the more costly chunk white tuna for a showy salad.

LEARN TO compare prices. A store will often take a loss on certain items, such as canned soup, hoping you'll pick up other items that are not on sale.

Buy non-fat dry milk for cooking and baking. Or, for drinking, mix equal parts of regular fluid milk and prepared non-fat dry milk. Remember, non-fat dry milk keeps for months in a cool, dry place. Evaporated milk is another economical choice. Substitute evaporated milk for regular milk in cooking by combining equal amounts of evaporated milk and water.

Compare domestic and imported cheeses for the best value. Wedges or blocks will usually be less expensive than packaged cheeses that are sliced or shredded.

Remember that margarine in a tub costs more than stick margarine; but both will generally cost less than butter. When nothing but butter will do, buy it in pound blocks and quarter it yourself.

CLIP AND save coupons, then remember to take them with you to the grocery store. It helps to have them organized by category in an easy-to-tote container.

Compare the cost of foods by their unit price, such as per ounce or pound. Particularly check foods you use regularly to see if the "large economy size" is the best buy. Sometimes the unit price is posted on the shelves by the product. If not, you can figure the unit price by dividing the price by the number of units (ounces, pounds, or the like) to find the cost per unit.

For example, if milk is $2.19 a gallon, you'd divide that number by four to find the cost per quart. If a quart of milk costs more than 55 cents and you drink a lot of milk, then the gallon size would be the better buy.

Look for specials on meat and poultry. Remember to consider how much waste (bone or fat) is present, when you're looking at the cost per pound. A trimmed piece of meat may cost a few cents more per pound than a bone-in cut, but you'll be buying more meat too.

'90s revive coffeehouse beat of '60s

By John Monghan
special writer

THURSDAY EVENING AT the Java Coffeehouse in Royal Oak. A bearded poet has just finished an earnest reading. He descends from a makeshift window sill stage at the storefront coffeehouse on the outskirts of downtown Royal Oak.

The denizens, evenly distributed between teenagers and "twentysomethings," resume the hum of conversation. Some read the latest issue of Vanity Fair or Interview while taking long drags on cigarettes and sipping cappuccino topped with foamy milk.

That Thursday could be a quaint remembrance of the 1950s, when bleary-eyed beatniks congregated to discuss politics and Sartre well into the night. Or it could be just last week, a sure sign that the beat of the coffeehouse has caught speed with the 1990s.

For Ken Knoppow, originator of the Folktown Coffeehouse Concert Series in Southfield, that spirit never died. In the 1960s, he was a regular at Detroit's Chessmate Coffeehouse and Raven Gallery.

"The old coffeehouses were basically folk clubs, though some had poetry readings and chess, too," he remembers.

A YEAR after the Raven closed in 1980, Knoppow, a lawyer living in Farmington Hills, seeing a gap in the availability of folk music in a coffeehouse setting, started the Folktown series. It begins its 12th season this month at the Southfield Civic Center on Evergreen.

Art lines the walls of the well-equipped Marcotte Room, where pastries, New York Seltzer bottles, and the ubiquitous cups of coffee are sold. Only the clouds of smoke are missing. The state won't allow it.

"Some people come early to socialize," Knoppow pointed out. "But this is mostly a concert hall. They pretty much come and go after the show."

One family, looking for good seats, arrives early with a board game in tow. The shows typically draw around 100 people, though some big names can attract 300, meaning a switch to a larger room in the adjoining parks and recreation building.

The weekly series, which runs through Dec. 7. Some of the performers include Catherine Hall and Mary Devorak on Sept. 21 and Tony Bird on Oct. 12. Knoppow hopes to widen his audience with Voices of Sepherad, music and dance of the Jews of Spain, on Oct. 26.

Knoppow feels his coffeehouse is more popular than ever.

"IT'S THE atmosphere of keeping acoustic music alive," he said. "In the '60s, during the coffeehouse era, folk music became an alternative to the mainstream.

"It got kind of mainstream for a while, but now it's back to its origins."

Until recently, it was impossible to find a real coffee shop this side of Ann Arbor. The two Espresso Royale locations, which offer art shows and free entertainment along with reasonably priced coffee and cappuccino, have paved the way for a number of similar Ann Arbor establishments. Zingerman's, for instance, will soon open a Kerrytown coffeehouse next to their famous deli.

The Java Coffeehouse in Royal Oak spread the concept to Oakland County when it opened this past May. East Side entrepreneurs Jim Mazzola and Michael Abdallah, both 26, thought Royal Oak needed an alternative to the downtown bars, a relaxed atmosphere where conversation isn't interrupted by the blare of loud music.

And most seem to like the arrangement.

According to Maureen Romanchik of Royal Oak, "It's nice to come to a place where you don't have to drink alcohol."

OTHER PLACES serve coffee downtown. Gayle's Chocolates and The Sweet Shoppe both keep evening hours (Gayle's even has live music some nights), but Java is the only one that's devoted to coffee. And it stays open late, on Fridays and Saturdays until 2 a.m.

Michele McNelis of Farmington Hills, at Java for the first time, admits that the experience didn't quite meet her expectations.

"I was hoping for more of the authentic coffeehouse thing," she said. "You know, beatniks wearing black berets. I like the place but I'm hoping it doesn't turn into an under-21 club."

Indeed, the owners spend much of their evenings urging skateboarders to stop loitering in front of the building. For the majority of teens who do come in, drink coffee, and hang out, the only thing they're disturbing is their sleep. Some say they down between four to seven caffeinated cups a night.

Coffee here costs 75 cents a cup. Cappuccino is $1.50 a cup or $2.50 for a hefty glass. Java also serves fancy Italian sodas and pastries.

Java attracts people from all over. Tracie Stephens, 19, of West Bloomfield stops there at least twice a week, "mostly to meet friends, but I come here alone, too. I read and drink coffee. And the owners aren't always pressuring you to get out."

Unfortunately, this staple of the coffeehouse may soon change.

"With such a low-ticket item as coffee, you have to be busy all the time," said Abdallah. "You need to really keep people moving in and out day and night."

Young people fill the tables of the Java Coffeehouse in Royal Oak, sampling cold drinks and a variety of coffees.

Smell the Coffee

If you want to capture the coffee house flavor, the Folktown Concert Series begins its 12th season Saturday, Sept. 14, at the Southfield Civic Center on Evergreen. The weekly series opens with Claudia Schmidt and Sally Rogers.

Ticket prices for all shows range from $8-12. For more information, call Ken Knoppow evenings at 855-9848.

And you'll find the Java Coffeehouse at 806 N. Main, Royal Oak. Call 547-9530 for more information.

Sea the sights at Bar Harbor

Maine shore has charm

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

The Atlantic coast of Maine begins at Lubek, across the bridge from Campobello Island, New Brunswick, the Canadian island where President Franklin Delano Roosevelt spent his childhood summers. It ends at Kittery, a few miles south of Kennebecport, where President George Bush and his family spend their vacation days.

By road, it is 228 miles from Lubek to Kittery, but if you stay on Highway 1, you miss the tiny seacoast villages found in every cove and at the end of every rocky peninsula.

Follow the shoreline and you will travel 3,478 miles to go that same distance from Lubek to Kittery, which tells you everything you need to know about the perils and pleasures of coastal Maine.

THAT SHORELINE is a meander of rocky peninsulas and river estuaries cluttered with lighthouses, boat harbors, funky seaports, fishing fleets and sailing vessels of every kind.

There are sailboats, fishing boats, motor boats and high masted schooners from Bar Harbor to Rockland and Boothbay Harbor.

You could spend lifetimes exploring all the charms of that wrinkled coast. Here is one of the hundreds of interesting spots accessible from Highway 1 between Eastport and Brunswick, where Highway 1 is swallowed up by Interstate 95.

Bar Harbor is a cheerful, busy tourist town full of tour buses and tour boats.

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

Bar Harbor, Maine: Or "bah hab-bur" as they call it here in Maine. Early settlers called the nearby island Eden; today it is Mount Desert Island, home of the popular Acadia National Park.

It was off-season when I turned off Route 1, looking for just the right accommodation. I didn't want luxury or sophistication, just a place where I could have my morning coffee on a deck overlooking the sea.

I began to get the picture as I approached town. Emery's Cottages on the Shore: No Vacancy. Edgewater Motel and Cottages: No Vacancy.

Down Cottage Street, down Main Street, through the polished signs of tourist shops. Past signs that read No Vacancy, No Vacancy. The price went up as I approached the Golden Anchor. "Sorry, Ma'am, we're full."

It went up again when I walked my sweatshirt and Easy Spirits down the driveway to the casual elegance of the Bar Harbor Inn. "Sorry ma'am, we're completely full."

I LOOKED enviously at a deck on an old Tudor house nearby as I walked back to my car and drove to the Chamber of Commerce. "I didn't expect you to be so busy," I said. "My dream was to have my morning coffee on a porch overlooking the sea."

And that's how I got to a bed-and-breakfast called Ullikana in the Field, that same Tudor house with the very deck that I had seen while walking down the driveway of the Bar Harbor Inn half an hour before.

The room cost $80. Not much sea, but I could see a little patch of water, especially when the wind blew the trees hard enough. I could smell the sea, hear the boat motors, watch the Whale Watching boats come in. And I was just around the corner from the main street of town.

Bar Harbor is a great cheerful clutter of shops, restaurants, sea captain's houses, bed-and-breakfasts, tour boats, fishing boats, people and traffic. If you love to shop, tour and join the lineups for a variety of New England restaurants, you will love Bar Harbor.

OTHERWISE, HAVE lobster chowder and fried clams at a greasy spoon on Main Street called the Acadian, where the local fishermen eat, order the cheapest and best lobster in town, and go on to Mount Desert Island and the national park.

Bar Harbor is a great cheerful clutter of shops, restaurants, sea captain's houses, bed-and-breakfasts, tour boats, fishing boats, people and traffic.

There was an artists' colony and a cottage colony on the island in the 19th century; by the turn of the 20th century the "cottages" were owned by people like J. P. Morgan, Joseph Pulitzer and John D. Rockefeller.

Rockefeller built 57 miles of carriage roads on his 15,000 acres before donating his land to the government as Acadia National Park. The Mount Desert Mountains slope down to the rockbound coast for which Maine is famous.

I spent several hours in the park, exploring the old villages, the inns and the 500 varieties of wildflowers. Then I went "home" to my little porch at Ullikana in the Field.

The next morning, I had my coffee in the breakfast room. I had a wonderful deck that almost overlooked the sea, but it was raining.

SOAP TALK

Wimpy women need to get tough on TV soaps

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I'm so tired of the soaps ruining really great relationships. In real life, people always have problems, but they work through those problems most of the time.

It also seems like the woman is always at fault, even if it was the guy who actually slept with someone else. It's like the soap writers still believe in that prehistoric double standard that a woman should stick with a man no matter what he does. But if a woman messes up, then she's outta there.

Several of the soaps I watch seem to have this kind of theme running through them. I want to see relationships that can go through hard times and still work. I want to see women portrayed as stronger personalities.

We've come a long way, and it's time the soaps realized it. It's one thing to put a female character at the head of a major corporation and quite another to send her home where she becomes a lesser person for some man.

I know I'm on a "soapbox" here, but you say that is what your column is all about. Thanks for listening. —S.W. DeRidder, Louisiana.

Dear Reader: I couldn't agree with you more. It's time those hotshots in the boardroom stop being wimps in the bedroom. Some soaps are better than others in regard to portraying women. If you want to really get results, however, write to the producers of the shows you watch and let them know how you feel. There's absolutely nothing wrong with getting on a "soapbox."

Dear Candace: I think Cecily and Nico should come back on All My Children. I also miss Katherine Delafield and her maid on General Hospital. They were both very good actresses. —Emily Caseboldt, Tulsa, Okla.

Dear Emily: It would be great to have a really hot couple like Nico and Cecily back on the show. All My Children could certainly use a little heat.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

FAMILY FAIRIE

Walter Cronkite tells big 'Dinosaur!' tale

Sherry Jones

It seems no one, whatever their age or ancestry, is immune to the lure of the dinosaur. The current giant-critter craze has left the big beasts adorning everything from museums to film sets to kitchen cupboards all over the world.

Even former CBS anchor Walter Cronkite gets into the action this week when he serves as the host and narrator of one of the biggest stories ever told — the anxiously awaited, four-part series Dinosaur!

The first of the installments, "The Tale of a Tooth," premiering Sunday, Sept. 8, shows how the discovery of a giant tooth in 1824 changed scientific and religious thought.

On Monday, Sept. 9, "The Tales of a Bone" takes viewers to the "bone rush" of the 1870s, where digs around the world had collectors blowing apart mountains, stopping at nothing to find these priceless relics.

As the dinosaur mystery deepened, at least one question still remained: Which came first — the dinosaur or the egg? "The Tale of an Egg," airing Tuesday, Sept. 10, chronicles a 1922 American expedition that uncovered a strange new fossil, the dinosaur egg.

The series' final episode airs Wednesday, Sept. 11, "The Tale of a Feather" ponders the possibility that birds are the true descendants of the dinosaur.

Networks roll out new-season shows

by Suzanne Gill

At broadcast networks ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox, the 1991 fall season marks the beginning of a battle for survival. With more and more viewers turning to cable, home video and other entertainment outlets, the networks see their audiences dwindling as never before. Only weeks ago, the "Big Three" set an ominous Nielsen precedent: They finished a ratings period in a dead heat. Almost simultaneously, network executives were facing hard questions about survival into the next decade: No more are the possibilities mere whispers; the possibility of one or more of the broadcast networks folding or merging with another is getting attention in the boardroom and on the business page.

So what's to set the winners apart from the losers? Network entertainment chiefs are betting their jobs that the fall slate of shows — which began appearing in previews as early as Aug. 25 and will continue to debut through Nov. 1 — will make the difference.

Fox was first out of the starting gate with "Roc," a promising comedy that was previewed on Emmy night. The series is a departure for the fledgling network, a mainstream marvel featuring a cast of Broadway veterans. Tony-nominee Charles Dutton stars as Roc Emerson, a Baltimore sanitation worker who dreams of a better life — in the heaven of a semi-detached home — with his wife Eleanor (Ella Joyce). They're saving their pennies and furnishing their row house with secondhand treasures Roc finds on his garbage route. Sharing their home are Roc's father (Carl Gordon) and ne'er-dowell brother (Rocky Carroll). From the producer of "Taxi" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Roc" is Fox's most solid contender in the new season.

Another newcomer to series television is stand-up comedian Tim Allen, whose "Men Are Pigs" routine is the crazy-glue version of male bonding a la Robert Bly. Allen's ABC series, "Home Improvement," which debuts Tuesday, Sept. 17, finds him the happily married father of three sons. He supports the family with his weekly TV series, "Tool Time," a send-up of "This Old House" and "New Yankee Workshop" in which he demonstrates simple household repairs and ruminates on man's universal struggle to understand himself, a battle that's best waged with a toolbelt on his hip. Patricia Richardson ("FM," "In Country") co-stars as Allen's wife Jill, who must defend her hearth and home from his sometimes ill-conceived repairs. Slated in a family slot between "Full House" and "Roseanne," the series will appeal to both men and their children.

CBS goes nostalgic this season in the comedy "Brooklyn Bridge," starring Marion Ross ("Happy Days") as Jewish grandma who's the center of the universe for two brothers in late 1950s Brooklyn. Producer Gary David Goldberg ("Family Ties," "American Dreamer") mines his past for this warm and witty look at an extended family in a close-knit neighborhood "at a time when everyone believed the world was getting better." If you never got over the Dodgers leaving Brooklyn, here's your "Bridge" to a kinder, gentler past. The series debuts with a special one-hour episode on Friday, Sept. 20, and moves into its regular timeslot following "Princesses" another newcomer, the following week.

The fall's strongest slate of new series comes from NBC, which looks like a winner with Sam Waterston in "I'll Fly Away," a drama from the creators of "Northern Exposure," "Eerie, Indiana," a wickedly funny show about a too-normal town, and "Man of the People," starring James Garner, one of prime time's most bankable stars. In "Man of the People," which debuts Sunday, Sept. 15, Garner stars as Jim Doyle, a charming, smooth-talking huckster who leaves his spot on the rail at the racetrack to answer his mayor's call for a city-council appointee. As it turns out, he's perfectly suited to a career in politics — as corruption and double-dealing might be his middle name, and smoke-filled backrooms are certainly his milieu. Vintage Garner, "Man of the People" will be a Sunday-night mandate for millions. Kate Mulgrew ("Heartbeat"), George Wyner ("Hill Street Blues") and Corinne Bohrer ("Free Spirit") co-star.

LET'S TALK

Roberts-Sutherland romance falls flat

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Could you tell me a little bit about the breakup of Julia Roberts and Kiefer Sutherland? I hear that Julia went away with another man. On the other hand, I hear it was Kiefer's fault. Could you also add Kiefer's address? —Christy Fleding, Prescott, Ariz.

A: Few are privy to the exact reasons. Supposedly, Roberts called off the wedding after getting tired of Sutherland's wild ways. Then, she was seen in Ireland with Jason Patric, who co-starred with Sutherland in The Lost Boys, and Sutherland was seen out and about with other women. Roberts met Patric during the filming of Flatliners, which co-starred Sutherland. You can write Sutherland c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: We enjoy Hunter so much. What happened to him? It's one of the best shows on television. Please return it. —The Harold Todd Family and friends of Altona, Ill.

A: Well, first of all, I can't bring it back; that's up to the network, and they have decided to cancel it. There are many rumors circulating about the reasons — low ratings, creative differences and financial haggling. Stepfanie Kramer left the show, reportedly to pursue a singing career and concentrate on films. Many people thought she had been run off by Fred Dryer's attitude, but she denied that was the reason. The next season, Hunter had a new partner (Darlanne Fluegel), but the spark was gone. She was killed off, and Hunter went partnerless until the next season, when he got yet another female cohort, played by Lauren Lane. At the end of last season, Dryer wanted a large amount of money per episode and was turned down. The show was subsequently canceled, but is now in syndication around the country.

Q: Please bring back shows like Cagney & Lacey to afternoon cable. Also, why do the networks put two good shows on at the same time? —Mrs. R. Sommerville, Mount Pleasant, Mich.

A: As I've said before, I can't bring back any show. The networks and cable stations decide what to air. The reason networks put two good shows on at the same time is simple: ratings. They want the viewers to watch their network. So, if a high-rated show is on one of the networks, the other networks are going to air their best programs, hoping to compete for more viewers.

Q: How can I get in touch with Larry Hagman? —Amos Barstead, Woonsocket, S.D.

A: You can write to Hagman c/o Majlar Productions, Inc., 23730 Malibu Colony Drive, Malibu, Calif., 90265.

Q: I have been watching M*A*S*H for years. Can you tell me what happened to the characters on the show? —Mrs. William Abraham, Fort Madison, Iowa.

A: There are many characters, but I'll give you what I can. During the series' run, Trapper John, Radar and Henry Blake were all discharged, and, except for Blake, all got home safely. Blake's plane was shot down over the Sea of Japan. Frank Burns went AWOL after Hot Lips was married and then was permanently transferred. A lot of things happened in the final episode: Hawkeye suffered a nervous breakdown, but recovered. Klinger met and married a Korean woman and stayed in Korea. Father Mulcahy lost his hearing when a shell exploded near him. Col. Potter rode out of camp on his horse. Winchester taught a group of Koreans to play classical music on their various instruments; when they were abruptly and senselessly killed, he smashed all his records and vowed never to listen to classical music again. The rest of the camp presumably made it home safely.
