Inmate abuse charged

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The Scott Women's prison at Five Mile and Beck roads at the Plymouth Township border is the scene of a planned Mother's Day rally sponsored by a coalition of women's groups.

Susan Farr, executive director of the group Freedom Link headquartered in Ann Arbor, said prison conditions are of concern.

Male guards treat women however they choose. They are mandated by policy to view them taking showers, Farr said.

The rally is scheduled for 1-3 p.m. across the street from the prison.

Activists are asking the state department of corrections to hire more female guards. Male guards, she said, view women prisoners living areas, and they're mandated by policy to feel the women all over during pat-down searches. The women are dressed down to regular basis.

FURTHER, FARR charged that women prisoners aren't given equal access to education or vocational training. They don't have the same ability as men to make money in the system, she said, adding that Scott prison is typical of other state women's prisons.

Farr said the state spends $34,800 per inmate annually to house women prisoners. The state puts the figure at $23,400 — the majority of whom are non-violent offenders.

That's a lot to be spent on someone caught shoplifting a $20 blouse or writing some bad checks, Farr said, adding several are battered women who struck back. That's one of the issues.

Answering the charges, corrections department press woman Gail Light said that in prisons where guards are of the opposite sex of prisoners, guards don't do searches unless in emergencies.

Pat-down searches can be done by either sex, she said, adding: We get complaints from men prisoners about female guards observing them using showers.

Light said she has no particular knowledge of specifics about harassment problems at Scott.

As to women prisoners' abilities to Co-ed is found after taking unexpected European detour

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A Plymouth Township college student traveling in Europe had been heard from for 3½ days, and her worried parents allegedly U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell's office for help.

We sent faxes to police agencies [illegible] Austria, Innsbruck, said Pursell aide Cynthia Hudgins.

But at about 6:30 a.m. Monday, [illegible] got her, we just got the word. Thank God, said mom Cathy Spencer.

She's safe, she's fine. She didn't know there would be problems, parent said.

Heather Spencer, 20, a Plymouth high school grad, had been in Europe since March attending a Kalamazoo College program with 47 other students in Madrid, Spain.

SHE'S JUST KIND of an independent thinker, said dad Robert Spencer about his daughter, a sophomore majoring in psychology.

During Easter break last week, she was traveling with some friends by train from Vienna to Innsbruck, Austria.

Along the route in Salzburg, Germany, she was separated from some friends as some train cars were routed to Munich rather than Switzerland. Her friends had her luggage; all Heather had were the clothes she was wearing.

After 15 hours, her friends reported Heather's disappearance to her parents, Robert and Cathy Spencer, on Good Friday.

A Detroit television station aired a story on Heather's disappearance over the weekend, and the story was also shown in Kalamazoo on Sunday, Cathy Spencer said.

In Kalamazoo, a man named Mr. Seigel, who's son, Michael, also attends the Kalamazoo College overseas study program, recalled a recent phone conversation with his son.

His son told him they had hooked up with a young female who had been separated from her party, Cathy Spencer said.

JUST MOMENTS after getting the news on Monday that the young female was indeed their daughter, mom and dad hugged, and Cathy Spencer called friends and relatives.

Asked what he'll do next time he sees his daughter, Robert Spencer said: We're going to hug her and kiss her and then kick her butt.

The Spencers had a flight booked to leave Monday for Spain. Now they didn't need to go, but Cathy Spencer said she was still thinking about it.

I thought if she comes through this, my biggest thrill will be to bawl her out.

This is the happiest moment since the birth, she said.

The Spencers have another daughter, Amber, 14.

Cash-starved schools mull tax request

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

The financial jam the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools finds itself in has district officials thinking about asking voters to approve a new millage in the June 8 election.

The board of education has until May 11 to put such a proposal on the ballot. The issue is expected to be decided at the board's May 4 workshop.

If the district sought 1 mill for one year — a scenario outlined by some — it would cost the owner of a $120,000 home an added $60 in property taxes. One mill is equal to $1 per $1,000 of the SEV, or state equalized valuation, which is half of the market value.

The district currently levies 36.15 total mills.

Plymouth-Canton schools face a deficit of between $4.3 million and $7 million, due to legislative action including the property tax freeze, tax base sharing with other districts and a cap on Social Security payments to schools by the state.

The financial picture is further muddied by uncertainty surrounding "Robin Hood" proposals, which would entirely phase out state funding of retirement and Social Security. The revenue from better-off districts would be given to poorer districts.

THE LIKELIHOOD WE will go for it (a millage) is probably 90 percent, said school board member Barbara Graham.

We don't really have a whole lot of choice in order to not lay off teachers.

The board of education pink-slipped 156 teachers last week.

Trustee Les Walker said the board hasn't reached a decision regarding new millage.

Both 1 and 2 mills have been mentioned, he said. In general, it's been thought of in terms of a definite limit of a year.

Board president David Artley said he's sure the board will consider new millage as a potential option.

We have early retirement in place, and we are talking to the unions and looking at other options. But there's only so much you can cut out.

It's reasonable to assume the board will consider going for a millage, he said. It depends on what we perceive as what will actually come out of Lansing. It changes daily.

One of the most recent Senate proposals would phase out in a single year all state funding of Social Security and retirement. That would be a mess, real chaos, said Artley. If it's phased in over five years, we are not going to look at doing anything more than we have to. We know taxpayers are already overburdened. People are losing their homes.

RAY HOEDEL, associate superintendent for business, said no decisions have been made. The board of education at this time is waiting for a recommendation from administration.

The big question is, how are you going to balance the budget? My goal for this week is trying to come up with several alternatives. We know that millage or not, cuts have to be made — substantial cuts across the board.

'We have early retirement in place, and we are talking to the unions and looking at other options. But there's only so much you can cut out.

— David Artley, board president

The district could seek millage. A mill would generate $1.9 million, or a Headlee override, Hoedel said.

Plymouth-Canton and other districts are suffering at the hands of state lawmakers, Hoedel said. They don't know the severity of what they are doing. Education is going down across the state fast.

We want stability in our programs, said Hoedel. They are just causing all kinds of instability and sometimes it's very difficult to solve. They are telling us to go out and get our monies locally. That is hard to do.

How confident are school officials that even a 1 mill, one-year proposal could pass?

Trustee Carl Battishill said, the possibility of passing a millage is bleak at best. If we are forced to seek additional millage, it will be as low as possible and for as short a time as possible.

Board member Les Walker said, I think it is very difficult to call. I don't think there's a lot of question in people's minds the shortfall we are facing is a real one.

On the other hand, these are tough times for almost everyone. I think there's a lot of reluctance and even resentment on the part of people concerning a state mandate that would give local revenue to other districts.

Dick Egli, the district's community relations director, said, It depends on how well we can let the community know what the problems are. This is a very complex kind of thing. It's like looking at a juggler. You see a whole lot of balls, and each one is meaningful when you're trying to juggle.

TRUSTEE ROLAND THOMAS said these are the worst times he's experienced on the school board. This is worse than it was in the early 1980s, he said.

We have a bunch of idiots running around there in Lansing who don't have a long-term plan. It starts at the governor's office, right on down. There's no plan. You can't have the Legislature creating plans the governor and state board of education should be creating.

Thomas isn't ruling out a 1-mill or 2-mill proposal. We need to have some public dialogue, he said.

Small trains to make Plymouth whistle stop

The world's largest portable model train set is scheduled to be in Plymouth on April 24-29.

Plymouth Yard Hobbies, 904 Starkweather in Old Village, is the site of the exhibit. The Magical World of Lionel Trains exhibit is touring North America in a 46-foot trailer which has a glass display case to show off the railroad set.

The set, recognized in the Guinness Book of World Records, has 6-10 trains running through tunnels, across bridges and passing through towns, villages and countryside.

Animation is used in the display, and buttons are provided along the train path so visitors can interact and operate parts of the display. There will also be a train ride for kids, and food and refreshments.

time between 8 p.m. and midnight Monday, April 20, someone broke into a residence on Blanche Street, a Plymouth woman told police.

The woman, 20, said she and her boyfriend went to the movies about 8 p.m. When they returned, she found missing from her home $300 in cash and a jewelry box that she kept in a dresser in a rear room. In the metal box were a herringbone silver necklace and bracelet and two gold rings with Grecian designs.

They noticed upon arriving home the rear door had been forced open.

The woman suspects a casual friend from Canton who comes over frequently. He'd been over that evening about 7 p.m., she said. The suspect knows the victim's dog and the dog is afraid of him, she said.

The complainant added that the landlord saw the suspect outside the residence when the two were at the movies.

Two witnesses told police they came by between 9 and 9:30 p.m. There was no answer at the woman's residence when they knocked, but the witnesses said they could hear an unidentified voice quieting down the dog.

The victim said she will file charges.

MAIL CALL: Plymouth Township police were called to the Wedgewood Village Condos at 9:46 a.m. Saturday as residents found that mail for the complex had been strewn throughout the area; some opened and some sealed.

The damage, estimated at $1,000, happened between 7:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Saturday, according to the report filed with police. Nothing was taken from the car, said police who closed the case for lack of suspects. The car was parked on Mello-wood near Turtlehead.

SMASH AND GRAB: Items valued at $780 by their owner were missing and $600 in damage to a 1989 Honda Accord was reported to Plymouth Township police Sunday.

The car owner told police he discovered the damage and theft of items from the car at 5:30 a.m. The car was parked on Northampton near Joy. Police closed the case for lack of suspects.

make money. Light said programs are still being moved from the Huron Valley women's prison to Scott. They should be in place this summer when the move is completed, she said.

LIGHT SAID THE population of Scott prison is 557. 220 women are currently lodged at the Huron Valley facility's scheduled to close in June.

When that happens, "We're going to have to double-cell in some cases," Light said, another issue that concerns activists.

The state also houses women prisoners at the Crane women's facility in Coldwater.

Other sponsors of the rally are Safe House, the National Organization for Women, and the Ypsilanti-Willow Run chapter of the NAACP.

Nkenge Zola of WDET-FM public radio in Detroit is scheduled to read poetry at the rally, and some poetry written by prisoners will also be read, Fair said.

Life goes on for visually impaired

By Julie Brown
staff writer

LIKE MANY 12-year-olds, Theresa Weaver enjoys being involved in Girl Scouting.

Theresa, a sixth grader at Riverside Middle School in Dearborn Heights, has a lot in common with her fellow Scouts. Her visual impairment doesn't keep her from participating in a variety of activities. She uses a large print Girl Scout book, and does just fine.

Theresa and her mother, Bonnie Weaver, were born with a visual impairment. Its cause is unknown, said Weaver, a Dearborn Heights resident and case manager with Family & Neighborhood Services.

"We're different, but we've got a lot of things in common," she told students during an assembly at Isbister Elementary School in Plymouth Township. People who are blind or visually impaired need to make adjustments at home, school and work to make life easier, she said.

The Weavers and George Illingworth, 67, spoke during an educational program Thursday, April 16, at Isbister.

THE ASSEMBLY, sponsored by the Plymouth Lions Club, was one of several held last week at area schools to kick off White Cane Week. Lions Club members will conduct their annual fund-raising drive Friday and Saturday, April 24-25.

The three speakers at Isbister were accompanied by club members Ed Kerstens and Roger Vaughn. Illingworth, a Plymouth Lions Club member and Redford Township resident, was born without any vision.

He attended a regular school in Detroit and spent some time in the resource room to get the extra help he needed. Illingworth, who works in word processing, learned to type in elementary school so that his teachers could read his assignments.

During the assembly at Isbister, Illingworth demonstrated Braille writing. He also showed the young students a small device he uses to count money. It runs on a 9-volt battery and tells him the denomination of bills.

The students had many questions, wanting to know how the three are able to get dressed, read books and magazines, make phone calls, or get around without assistance from another person. Bonnie Weaver brought her guide dog, Lizzy, to the assembly.

> 'Basically, what we're trying to say is visually impaired people do the same things you do.'
> Bonnie Weaver

LIZZY, A LABRADOR, has been with Weaver for about two years and was trained through Pilot Dogs in Columbus, Ohio. Weaver explained the type of training dogs and their human leaders receive.

Basically, what we're trying to say is visually impaired people do the same things you do, she told the students. Weaver has Braille markings on her microwave at home; markings help her use the washer and stove. At her job as a social worker, she uses a special computer.

Her daughter uses a white cane to get around, and demonstrated that during the assembly. Theresa's able to see things from about 20 feet, that other students can see from 200 feet, her mother said.

Her own vision is worse, and she could eventually lose it completely. No one knows. The doctors honestly don't know. So what we have to do is adapt, find different ways of doing things.

It's important to remember that a blind or visually impaired person is first and foremost a person, Weaver said. Such people should be treated with respect, rather than pity.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS help to increase awareness and understanding, Weaver said. That's particularly important now, with the trend toward including more students with a variety of disabilities in regular classrooms whenever possible.

During the assembly, Isbister principal George Belvitch told students that he has vision in only one eye. That impairment hasn't kept him from enjoying life.

People have a very low estimation of blind people, Illingworth said. Life doesn't stop. You go on.

Lions Club members will conduct their White Cane drive at a number of supermarket locations April 24-25. Proceeds will support a number of club projects, including money to help blind and visually impaired people. Checks, payable to the Plymouth Lions Foundation, may be sent to P.O. Box 159, Plymouth 48170.

Artist sets up her easel in hospital waiting room

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

Artist Yolanda Menchaca arranges brushes and paint tubes on a portable stand, slips a tape of classical music into a cassette player and begins painting a painting that will be complete by tea-time.

Everyone and nature is the subject of this artist and volunteer at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, but it's not the patients seen in hospital beds.

Since January, Menchaca has been setting up shop — or easel — in the main corridor on the lobby of the outpatient oncology department of the hospital's Marian Professional Building.

Friends and family who bring in patients for daily or weekly treatments for cancer say watching the artist at work takes their mind off the reason they're in the hospital, if only for an hour or so.

"The purpose of the program is to provide a source of enjoyment for patients and their families," said Sherri Fletcher, director of volunteers. "If a patient begins to relax watching Yolanda paint, then we're ahead of the game."

FORT RITA (Eden of Garden City) started bringing her husband to St. Mary in January. Menchaca's visits help pass the time.

"I know it's Thursday when I see Yolanda here painting. I watched her do that painting," said Eden, pointing to a bright still life on the waiting room wall. "Of course, my husband is thinking about the treatment when he comes out, but he looks at the work. He even told me she's a good painter."

At least one other patient began painting as a hobby after admiring Menchaca's work. Because the patient's eyesight is poor, the artist suggested that he start out with an abstract picture, painting large shapes in different values.

> 'The purpose of the program is to provide a source of enjoyment for patients and their families. If a patient begins to relax watching Yolanda paint, then we're ahead of the game.'

Other patients push up wheelchairs for a closer look, and one even asks her to paint an orange, the artist arranged in a still life.

Menchaca has provided relief as well for staffers, who spend much of their time studying charts and preparing the treatment for up to 50 patients daily.

"Even before the patient's first visit, we spend a tremendous amount of time analyzing their particular needs and planning treatment. So when we walk through the lobby, it's a pleasant change to see Yolanda at work," said John Schwartz, director of the department of oncology.

In most waiting rooms, people read National Geographic, but this has a calming effect. Even the patients participate. You'd be surprised at how many people in the waiting room get up to take a look. Many people have never seen an artist at work.

THE WORK also is rewarding to the artist, who says using her art for the purpose of healing is like "icing on the cake."

"It rejuvenates my creative juices to share my work," said Menchaca. "There is so much more to art than having a painting match the sofa."

The healing benefits of art are being recognized and more utilized today.

Menchaca, who has a special interest in the water, responded to a request for a painting for a hospital chapel room. For inspiration, she looked to the ocean, a favorite subject.

"I like to paint things that are quiet and peaceful. I think these subjects are uplifting and important for patients and their family, such as in the hospital," said Menchaca, setting a brush full of blue, white and green paint on a third of the dense canvas.

Menchaca, who started painting 20 years ago, after her third son was born, tries to finish a painting in one day so that patients and others in the waiting room feel a sense of completion. She adds finishing touches at home and usually brings the painting back to hang in the waiting room.

USING ART is a healing and diagnostic tool is nothing new. Therapists began using art therapy in the 1940s as a way to evaluate a patient's condition and to understand his reaction to an experience. But the St. Mary program touches on the holistic approach to healing, in which health care workers try to treat the whole patient, not just a symptom or a disease.

This is a vital program at the hospital and we're delighted with its acceptance, said Fletcher. Since it started, we've had positive comments from patients in radiation therapy and even wishful comments from patients in other hospitals who've heard about our program and would like to see it in their own waiting rooms.

St. Mary Hospital is looking for more artists and musicians to place in volunteer positions at the hospital. For information, call Sherri Fletcher from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 464-4800, Ext. 2412.

Public hearing set for complaints about cable

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
staff writer

If you're tired of complaining about cable service to folks who can offer only sympathy in return, try yelling at someone who might do something about it.

The township board has scheduled a special meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 12, specifically to hear your cable beef.

The public hearing is part of Canton's plan to negotiate a new contract with Omnicom, Supervisor Tom Yack said. Although the current 10-year contract doesn't expire until 1995, the federal cable communications act of 1984 calls for negotiations to begin three years before the expiration date.

Omnicom General Manager Lisa Boland expects to attend the public hearing, as does the township's contract negotiator, Larry Monroe of Municom, a negotiating firm out of New Jersey and Washington D.C.

But don't expect the township to hire another cable outfit. "It's virtually impossible to move to a different cable company," Yack said.

'The relationship with the cable operator has been very popular. No one's looking for a fight.'

— Tom Yack
Canton Township supervisor

FEDERAL LAW SAYS that a municipality must routinely log complaints and notify the cable company of each of them. The municipality must also do "compliance checks" regarding the technical and service aspects of the cable company's operation. Canton didn't start doing this stuff until about a year ago, Yack said, too late to justify firing Omnicom.

"I don't think you'll see this community in that boat again," Yack said.

However, the supervisor added that the township's relationship with Omnicom is good. Yack's secretary reports getting only two cable complaints in a typical month.

The relationship with the cable operator has been very popular," Yack said. "No one's looking for a fight."

A big part of the negotiations, Yack and Boland agreed, will be the density required in a neighborhood to justify cable installation. Currently, there are 800 Canton homes that Omnicom won't run cable to because the houses are spread out so much, Boland said. It's an Omnicom policy to install cable only in places where the number of expected customers justifies the expense.

The township, Boland said, would like Omnicom to hook up some of these spread-out houses and subsidize the cable installation with money coming in from other areas.

Yack noted that $25 a month is about as high as cable companies in general can charge for basic service before subscribers start canceling like gang busters. "(Cable companies) know that after $25 they're going to lose subscribers en masse," Yack said.

The supervisor believes that, over the next few years, we'll see who gets the difference between today's cable rate ($21.50 a month) and the "psychological barrier" of $25 a month.

"Will it be the customers in terms of improved service, or higher rates for the same service?"

Omnicom, which also serves Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Northville, has 11,963 subscribers in Canton Township. An additional 7,537 Canton homeowners are "cable able," as Boland puts it, but have chosen not to subscribe.

Geake challenges incumbent for U.S. House

Bob Geake in 1992 will do something he hasn't done in nine election campaigns over 23 years: run against an incumbent.

Geake will seek the Republican nomination in the new 13th Congressional District against Democrat William D. Ford, a veteran of 13 terms in Washington.

"I'll do a lot of door knocking. It will be a grass roots campaign," Geake, 56, a state senator, said in Lansing Tuesday.

COVERING THE northwestern Wayne County communities of Northville (his home town), Plymouth, Canton, part of Livonia and other pieces south, plus eastern Washtenaw County, the 13th is generally rated as 55 percent Democratic.

It's clearly a challenge to any Republican. But I view it as Carl Pursell's seat," said Geake, referring to the Plymouth Republican who is dropping out after eight terms in Congress.

"I have no idea," said Geake concerning his campaign budget for a run against Ford, who is heavily backed by the UAW and public employees unions.

Geake was elected in 1969 to the Schoolcraft College board after it was reapportioned under court order. In 1972 the child psychologist conducted a shoe leather campaign to win a seat in the state House of Representatives from a Northville-Livonia district.

WHEN PURSELL was elected to Congress in 1976, Geake won a special election to fill Pursell's state Senate seat and was re-elected to full terms in 1978, 1982, 1986 and 1990.

He will not have to give up his legislative seat to run against Ford.

In Lansing, Geake chairs the appropriations subcommittee on mental health and social services.

He is also vice chair of the full Appropriations Committee and assistant majority floor leader — the head traffic cop on legislative voting when majority leader Phil Arthurhultz isn't around.

My experience with labor, family law and criminal issues as well as welfare reform and mental health programming give me the needed background to serve the people of the new district," he said. Geake had floated the idea of cutting general assistance to adults in summers years before Gov. John Engler got the program abolished entirely.

The economy is clearly the most serious problem facing the nation today," said Geake. "It's not my style to attack an opponent."

Among a handful of legislators with doctorates in the Legislature, Geake served on state and national mental health commissions before seeking elective office.

Sen. Robert Geake running for Congress

'It's clearly a challenge to any Republican. But I view it as Carl Pursell's seat.'

— State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville Township

Senators fight to block cuts in schools' state aid

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Suburban state senators will do battle soon to protect their school districts from an even deeper assault on their state aid.

A school aid bill reported out of a Senate subcommittee Tuesday would make larger cuts than those proposed by Gov. John Engler.

"The governor's plan would take $98 million out of Oakland County in the next two years through deductions of FICA (Social Security) and retirement," said Rick Simonson, legislative agent for Oakland schools.

"This (Senate) substitute, billed as a phase-out, will actually cost 20 out-of-formula districts $119 million. Under it, six districts lose everything over two years — Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Novi, Troy and Southfield.

"THIS IS WORSE for those school districts than the governor's proposal. Our senators can't live with it. The four senators from Oakland County, the three from Macomb County and (Republican Bob) Geake from Wayne County will have amendments on the floor."

Geake's district includes five out-of-formula districts that get no general state aid because of their strong property tax bases, but do get Social Security and some categorical aids. They are Clarenceville, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth-Canton and South Redford.

The Senate Appropriations Committee was scheduled to take up the bill Wednesday, and the full Senate could get the bills today. Party caucuses will precede any floor voting, said Simonson, a former GOP Senate aide.

IN TUESDAY'S subcommittee meeting, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was on the short end of 2-1 vote to report the Senate substitute to the Appropriations Committee.

"If the governor ever designed a plan to destroy his voter base, this is it. He's hurting mostly Republicans," Faxon said.

Faxon didn't try to fix the bill in the three-member subcommittee, where he has been outvoted consistently by Republicans Dan DeGrow of Port Huron and John Schwarz of Battle Creek. "Offering amendments is like giving a blood transfusion to a dead patient," Faxon said.

A KEY TO the Senate bill is DeGrow's effort to raise $120 million for eduction by linking the school aid bill to a sales tax on mail-order sales and interstate telephone calls.

Faxon predicted it would be unpopular.

Heart of the Senate bill is a set of items called "equity correction" — deductions totaling $107 million from aid to out-of-formula districts. Currently those districts lose $62 million under "recapture."

DeGrow's bill would increase the deductions to $204 million next year, $303 million in fiscal 1995 and $340 million in fiscal 1996.

Faxon warned DeGrow that "any district can one day be out-of-formula."

Replied DeGrow: "I hope we are." His farmland Thumb district includes some of the poorest school districts in the state.

DeGrow and Schwarz oppose sending state money to suburban districts spending $6,000 to $9,000 per pupil a year when other districts have as little as $2,500 per pupil.

The Senate bill contains $3.1 billion in school fund and general fund grants to public schools. That's about $95 million more than the current year, due mostly to the tax increases DeGrow advocates.

Student exchange seeks hosts

A student exchange group is seeking families to play host to high school foreign exchange students during the 1992-93 school year.

The students include a girl from Brazil and a boy from Germany.

Lynne Levenbach of Plymouth Township is local coordinator for the non-profit American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation. She is interviewing potential host families.

Levenbach has applications for several boys and girls who would like to live in this area next year. They are 15-18 years old and have solid academic records. They have studied English for at least three years and have the maturity and flexibility required for a year abroad.

A family can select a student from Germany, France, Brazil or one of 30 other countries. The students have their own spending money for personal expenses and full medical insurance. Host families are asked to treat the visitors like their own son or daughter.

Students arrive this August to begin the year with their new American classmates. They attend the local high school and carry a full course load. After families decide to play host and choose a student, letters are exchanged and the friendship begins.

For more information, call Levenbach at 453-8562, or Scott Willson at the AYA national offices, 1-800-322-4678.

Job fair aims for older workers

More than 40 companies plan to participate in the sixth annual "Ability is Ageless" job fair Thursday, April 30, in Southfield.

They will be recruiting workers over age 45 for positions currently open within their companies.

The fair runs from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-3 p.m. in the Sheraton Hotel, 16400 J.L. Hudson Drive.

All job seekers over 45 are welcome. The event is free. Organizers advise that job seekers dress in business attire and bring 15-20 copies of their resume.

Sponsor is the Southeast Michigan Older Worker Coordinating Committee.

Terry Barclay, president of Operation ABLE of Michigan, said, "The goal of the job fair is to show the thousands of laid-off, unemployed and discouraged job seekers over 45 that there are jobs and that we are here to help them locate these jobs."

Senators fight to block cuts in schools' state aid

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Suburban state senators will do battle soon to protect their school districts from an even deeper assault on their state aid.

A school aid bill reported out of a Senate subcommittee Tuesday would make larger cuts than those proposed by Gov. John Engler.

"The governor's plan would take $98 million out of Oakland County in the next two years through deductions of FICA (Social Security) and retirement," said Rick Simonson, legislative agent for Oakland schools.

"This (Senate) substitute, billed as a phase-out, will actually cost 20 out-of-formula districts $119 million. Under it, six districts lose everything over two years — Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Novi, Troy and Southfield.

"THIS IS WORSE for those school districts than the governor's proposal. Our senators can't live with it. The four senators from Oakland County, the three from Macomb County and (Republican Bob) Geake from Wayne County will have amendments on the floor."

Geake's district includes five out-of-formula districts that get no general state aid because of their strong property tax bases, but do get Social Security and some categorical aids. They are Clarenceville, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth-Canton and South Redford.

The Senate Appropriations Committee was scheduled to take up the bill Wednesday, and the full Senate could get the bills today. Party caucuses will precede any floor voting, said Simonson, a former GOP Senate aide.

IN TUESDAY'S subcommittee meeting, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was on the short end of 2-1 vote to report the Senate substitute to the Appropriations Committee.

"If the governor ever designed a plan to destroy his voter base, this is it. He's hurting mostly Republicans," Faxon said.

Faxon didn't try to fix the bill in the three-member subcommittee, where he has been outvoted consistently by Republicans Dan DeGrow of Port Huron and John Schwarz of Battle Creek. "Offering amendments is like giving a blood transfusion to a dead patient," Faxon said.

A KEY TO the Senate bill is DeGrow's effort to raise $120 million for eduction by linking the school aid bill to a sales tax on mail-order sales and interstate telephone calls.

Faxon predicted it would be unpopular.

Heart of the Senate bill is a set of items called "equity correction" — deductions totaling $107 million from aid to out-of-formula districts. Currently those districts lose $62 million under "recapture."

DeGrow's bill would increase the deductions to $204 million next year, $303 million in fiscal 1995 and $340 million in fiscal 1996.

Faxon warned DeGrow that "any district can one day be out-of-formula."

Replied DeGrow: "I hope we are." His farmland Thumb district includes some of the poorest school districts in the state.

DeGrow and Schwarz oppose sending state money to suburban districts spending $6,000 to $9,000 per pupil a year when other districts have as little as $2,500 per pupil.

The Senate bill contains $3.1 billion in school fund and general fund grants to public schools. That's about $95 million more than the current year, due mostly to the tax increases DeGrow advocates.

Student exchange seeks hosts

A student exchange group is seeking families to play host to high school foreign exchange students during the 1992-93 school year.

The students include a girl from Brazil and a boy from Germany.

Lynne Levenbach of Plymouth Township is local coordinator for the non-profit American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation. She is interviewing potential host families.

Levenbach has applications for several boys and girls who would like to live in this area next year. They are 15-18 years old and have solid academic records. They have studied English for at least three years and have the maturity and flexibility required for a year abroad.

A family can select a student from Germany, France, Brazil or one of 30 other countries. The students have their own spending money for personal expenses and full medical insurance. Host families are asked to treat the visitors like their own son or daughter.

Students arrive this August to begin the year with their new American classmates. They attend the local high school and carry a full course load. After families decide to play host and choose a student, letters are exchanged and the friendship begins.

For more information, call Levenbach at 453-8562, or Scott Willson at the AYA national offices, 1-800-322-4678.

Job fair aims for older workers

More than 40 companies plan to participate in the sixth annual "Ability is Ageless" job fair Thursday, April 30, in Southfield.

They will be recruiting workers over age 45 for positions currently open within their companies.

The fair runs from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-3 p.m. in the Sheraton Hotel, 16400 J.L. Hudson Drive.

All job seekers over 45 are welcome. The event is free. Organizers advise that job seekers dress in business attire and bring 15-20 copies of their resume.

Sponsor is the Southeast Michigan Older Worker Coordinating Committee.

Terry Barclay, president of Operation ABLE of Michigan, said, "The goal of the job fair is to show the thousands of laid-off, unemployed and discouraged job seekers over 45 that there are jobs and that we are here to help them locate these jobs."

Members of SMOWCC include: Operation ABLE of Michigan, Detroit Urban League, AARP-Senior Employment Program, Wayne County Office on Aging, Detroit Area Agency on Aging, Senior Alliance, Senior Aides — City of Detroit, Macomb-St. Clair Private Industry Council, Child and Family Services of Washtenaw County, Downriver Community Conference, Project Ayuda, and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Auditions planned for SC honors recital

The Schoolcraft College Honors Recital Division of the Department of Music will hold auditions for its first annual string, classical guitar and voice honors recital/competition Saturday, May 2, in the college's forum building.

Auditions are open to all junior and senior high school students (grades 7-12). More than $1,000 in cash prizes will be awarded among the top winners in each division.

The purpose of the event is to encourage excellence in solo performance and ensemble playing, as well as provide students with an opportunity to be instructed by world renowned pianist and chamber music coach Eugene Bossart, artist-in-residence at Schoolcraft College.

String and classical guitar repertoire must be from standard literature and must be performed from memory. No more than two pieces may be performed. If two pieces are programmed they must be from different historical periods. Playing time for junior high is five minutes; senior high is eight minutes.

Voice repertoire is open to senior high students only, and must be appropriate for this age group. Selections must consist of two contrasting pieces (for example — one 20th century selection by an American or British composer sung in English and one song or aria including German Lieder, French songs or Italian arts songs.) Pieces must be performed from memory. No music theater. Performance time is three minutes.

All contestants in string, guitar or voice repertoire must provide their own pianist, if needed.

Judges will select a winner from each division and cash prizes will be awarded as follows: strings, junior high, $150; senior high, $250; classical guitar, junior high, $150; senior high, $250; voice, senior high, 250.

All winners will participate in an open master class with Bossart from 2-4:30 p.m. Sunday, May 10. In addition, the winners will perform in an honor recital at 5 p.m. Sunday, May 17, in the Forum Building Recital Hall at Schoolcraft.

Entry/registration is $15 per student and is nonrefundable. To obtain an application or more information, call Donald Mlorelock, honors recital competition director at 462-4400, Ext. 5218; or 5225.

Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Silverdome to host college fair

The Metro Detroit College Fair will be held May 3-4 at the Pontiac Silverdome.

It's free, and most Michigan colleges and universities will be on hand to give high school students and their parents information about college admissions and financial aid. There will be representatives from 150 colleges, including some from out of state universities.

The fair is sponsored by the National Association of College Admission Counselors. It runs noon to 5 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. to noon May 4. For more information, call 855-0506.

Wine at Meadowbrook up to guv

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Concertgoers at the Meadowbrook Festival may be able to buy a glass of beer or wine instead of hauling in their own coolers if Gov. John Engler signs a bill passed by the state Legislature.

The House had to vote twice April 14 before giving 61-27 approval to the bill.

Sponsored by Sen. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, it affects Oakland University, which reportedly has been losing $1 million a year on its summer music festival.

"These events are entirely separate from the university and are not close to the dorms," said Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills.

"You are permitted to bring your own beverages now. All we're asking is to allow the university to sell beer and wine by the glass," said Dolan.

THE HOUSE rejected the bill 48-44 on the first try but approved it an hour later.

Voting yes: Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, John Bennett of Redford, Maxine Berman of Southfield, James Kosteva of Canton, and Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Barbara Dobb of West Bloomfield, Dolan, and Georgina Goss of Northville.

Voting no: Democrats William Keith of Garden City and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park, and Republicans Tom Middleton of Ortonville and Gordon Sparks of Troy.

Absent: John Jamian, R-Birmingham.

The Senate passed it in March.

MIDDLETON said he was "caught between a rock and a hard place" on the issue.

"Do we give the university an exemption for a liquor license? Or do we turn it down and let free enterprise do it, the way they do at Pine Knob?" the freshman lawmaker said.

To Rep. Claude Trim, R-Waterford, the issue was drinking on campus. Trim said that after passing tougher drunk driving laws, the Legislature "would be sending the wrong message to our young people."

Supporters said few students attend Meadowbrook Festival concerts.

THE DUNASKISS bill creates an exception in the Liquor Control Act.

Without approval of the Rochester Hills council, the state Liquor Control Commission would be able to issue, with approval of the OU board, a tavern (beer and wine) or class C (liquor by the glass)license "which may be used only for regularly scheduled events at a public university's established outdoor program or festival."

It's limited to "a public university having a head count enrollment of 10,000 students or more." OU has about 12,000.

The license may be issued to OU directly, to a private concessionaire or both.

The license "may not be issued at an outdoor stadium customarily used for intercollegiate athletic events." Nor may its location be transferred.

Trooper says stiffer penalties curb drug trade

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

When the Western Wayne Narcotics Enforcement Team was formed in 1986, Lt. John Shewell had a basic mission statement for officers assigned to the regional unit.

"If people were involved in the narcotics trade, my job was to infiltrate them and make a case that would lead to a successful arrest and prosecution," said Garden City police commander Michael Bertha, an original member of the unit. "If people break the law, you arrest them."

After 28 years with the Michigan State Police, much of that time assigned to narcotics units, Shewell retired last month to take a security related position with General Dynamics where he's looking for new experience in the private sector.

"I had an exciting career and there have been a lot of things I've been involved with," said Shewell, a Lansing native who joined the state police in 1964.

After spending two years assigned to road patrol at the Bay City post, Shewell worked a variety of assignments around the metro area, moving in and out of undercover narcotics assignments during the late 60s.

"It was a generation of acid tripping. Everyone was trying stuff," he said. "The drugs of choice at that time were heroin, LSD and marijuana. Hallucinogens and hashish were heavy back then."

When the Oakland County Narcotics Enforcement Team was formed in 1971, Shewell was assigned as a crew leader, an assignment he also had later with the Downriver Narcotics Unit.

"The drug dealers appear to be wiser or really, more sophisticated today," he said. "Drugs have always been a big money business. That's what makes it impossible to stop. You can make a fortune doing that. If you get caught, your chances of doing life in prison are great."

One benefit Shewell sees from stiffer penalties tied to quanities of drugs is that dealers are hesitant to sell larger amounts of controlled substances.

"I've heard others say that drug dealers are more violent now but a lot of people have been hurt because of this," he said. "A lot of officers have been hurt and maimed. I've had officers shot, thrown out a second story window and hit by cars."

Back in 1969, he said he was making undercover heroin buys at Harrison and Carlisle in Inkster.

"The vogue was to have a hired bodyguard at the drug houses with a shotgun," Shewell said. "When you went in, he would rack the shotgun to get your attention."

During an era of civil unrest and anti-war protests, Shewell's undercover work sometimes placed him on the receiving end of tear gas fired by police.

"The riots in Detroit spread to Ecorse and River Rouge. Some of the time I was working narcotics there," he said. "If you are buying dope or something and everyone is throwing rocks at the cops, you get the gas with them."

When the Western Wayne County Narcotics Enforcement Team was formed in 1986, Shewell received a promotion to lieutenant and was placed in charge of the unit.

"His experience and his vast wealth of information and contacts in that specific subject of investigation allowed him to be an extremely valuable and effective leader," said Bertha, who spent about three years with the unit.

Interviewed and selected by Shewell for the unit, Bertha credited Shewell's experience working in narcotics for the rapid success of Western Wayne narcotics unit.

"Traditionally when concept units start up there is a lag time in getting investigative information," Bertha said. "He was instrumental in putting the concept together and getting the manpower."

Over the years Shewell worked on other cases including some high profile multiple murder cases including Ann Arbor area co-ed killer John Norman Collins and Billy Hardesty, who killed his parents and several other people on a rampage in Van Buren Township.

"We had a hard time finding the (Hardesty's) father. We searched the house and we thought he was gone," said Shewell. "The neighbor said the father's truck was there so he had to be in the house."

Police were using a helicopter in their search for the man until one officer decided to check the freezer again. "We had looked in the freezer and saw baskets of food," Shewell said. "When someone finally looked again, the officer thought he saw some feathers, like from some game. He moved stuff aside and there he was."

Shewell said the hardest cases he had to deal with throughout his career involved child abuse.

"Seeing children tortured, hurt and beaten. That sticks out in my mind," said Shewell, who is married and the father of two children. Shewell and his wife, Toni, live in South Lyon.

"There was a murder case in Ypsilanti where two 10-year-olds had their throats cut by an intruder. That was hard to take."

Shewell said justice was done, however.

"The guy was caught and sentenced to life in prison."

Trailer park owner counts blessings

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Joe Ruggirello, owner of Plymouth Hills Mobile Court, is supposed to be basking under the Florida sun this week. Instead, he's assessing tornado damage as work crews remove debris from his 426-unit trailer park off Ridge near North Territorial in Plymouth Township.

Five days after a weak tornado injured three people, totaled eight mobile homes, severely damaged 14 others and ripped skirting, siding and shingles from another 85, signs of the devastation were still evident.

One home on Grant Drive was reduced to rubble. The home next door was damaged, but still standing. The third stood at an angle. The fourth appeared to be OK. The next home was upside down. So was the next. Visible through the window was a baby crib mattress. Sitting on an outside windowsill was a soggy, bedraggled-looking teddy bear.

FOR-SALE SIGNS hung in many windows. Debris clung to tree branches, and fencing and metal sheds were crunched. Steps sat yards away from the homes they belonged to.

Elsewhere in the park, residents went about their daily routine.

As bad as it was, Ruggirello was counting his blessings on an overcast, drizzly Tuesday morning.

The last local tornado took two lives when it hit a trailer park in Novi five years ago.

"We're lucky we avoided the first disaster," he said. "That was controlled by the man upstairs. We didn't lose any lives.

"The second disaster was avoided by township police and fire. We had gas just spewing out of lines on Grant everywhere. We had gawkers and jackasses with cigarettes walking around and everything else. Had they not taken charge in the manner in which they did, there would have been a real disaster."

In all, 80 residents were evacuated, said Plymouth Township emergency manager Charles VanVleck. They were put up at Plymouth Hills' expense at the Mayflower Hotel and the Red Roof Inn.

With the exception of seven families whose homes were badly damaged, all had been allowed to return home by Tuesday.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

A mobile home came to rest on a van at the trailer park.

"THEY CAN'T GO back in until their homes have been reset and had a building inspection," said Ruggirello. "They can stay at hotels until they've settled with their insurance companies."

All but one family was insured, he said.

Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry estimated damage at a little less than $1 million. An official total wasn't

Officials: Twister came without warning

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

In the confusion following the tornado that hit Plymouth Hills Mobile Court about 4 p.m. Thursday, many residents wondered why the siren didn't sound until 4:30.

Tornado spotters and officials from Plymouth Township and the National Weather Service say one reason is because the twister came with no warning. In fact, the only storm warning in effect was a severe thunderstorm watch issued at 1:57 p.m by the weather service.

Plymouth spotter and ham radio operator Dick Hill was monitoring activities on his radio Thursday afternoon. Under normal circumstances, he would have heard a township spotter notifying the National Weather Service at Metro Airport of conditions right for a tornado.

"Thursday, there wasn't anything going on," he said. "We didn't get any reports west of us or anything. They didn't even have any warning. No one, as far as I know, had any knowledge of anything until it hit."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Police Chief Carl Berry confirmed that. "In all of the confusion of the time, right after our touch down, about 20 minutes later, the weather service put out a tornado warning for Oakland County. We thought that being so close, we should kick off the siren."

The weather service received no available at press time.

Help came from everywhere in the tornado's aftermath, Ruggirello said.

Hotels offered reduced rates for victims. The Red Cross and the Salvation Army set up a command center at the park, locating shelter for the homeless and giving them vouchers for baby formula and food. Area businesses donating goods and services included Meijer, the Clothes Closet, BFI, and City Disposal. The Michigan Manufactured Housing and Campground Association donated $2,000.

The injured included residents Jerry Wilson, who sustained a gash to his leg, and Bill McPherson, whose arm was cut. Ruggirello said Wilson's dog, a rust-colored mutt, was also cut.

"The Red Cross bandaged that dog and took him away in the emergency vehicle," Ruggirello said.

Ruggirello complimented township officials, especially Mary Brooks, Esther Hulsing and Jim Anulewicz. "They were here and offered any services they could possibly offer. They were right here.

"Sometimes you are not so happy with the community and the things they do, but they really came through and did a good job. They should be commended."

Tornado gave no warning indication from its radar system either, said Ed Burney, National Weather Service official-in-charge.

Plymouth Township is included in a radar black-out area, a problem created by the ground clutter of buildings and trees. The tornado was classified as an F1, or Force 1, meaning the smallest type of tornado with winds of 73-120 mph. Tornadoes of that size are difficult to detect by radar.

The process is also complicated by the fact that tornadoes form and change direction so rapidly, Burney said.

Mobile home park owner Joe Ruggirello said there wasn't an official evacuation plan in place at the park. Now that a fire station has been built at North Territorial and Beck, he's advising residents to seek shelter there.

Charles VanVleck, Plymouth Township emergency manager, said the building can't really be classified as a tornado shelter.

HE ADVISED residents to make arrangements ahead of time to go elsewhere, preferably to the home of good friends who have a basement, or to another substantial building.

"When that siren goes off, they've lost all chances to go anywhere else. Their options are gone now; the best thing to do is take cover in the best place they have."

Burney says tornado season in Michigan will last through September. They can occur during any warm month, he said.

Canton man sentenced for tax fraud

Subhash Marwaha, 48, of Canton Township was sentenced this month to one year in prison and three years probation and ordered to pay a $40,000 fine in U.S. District Court for violating federal tax laws.

Marwaha pleaded guilty on Feb. 24 to one count of making false statements and one count of preparing false tax returns, according to assistant U.S. attorney Bill Soisson.

Marwaha was a tax return preparer who prepared and filed false tax returns for clients claiming excess deductions, Soisson said, adding that when the Internal Revenue Service audited some of the clients, Marwaha submitted false documents to support the deductions.

Marwaha lived in a subdivision on the west side of Lilley Road between Cherry Hill and Palmer. He conducted his tax preparing business, SCM Investments, out of his house, Soisson said.

Marwaha's other business interests included rental units, accounting work and financial advising, Soisson said. The IRS found about 20 falsified tax returns prepared by Marwaha in a 2½-year period.

Marwaha has lived in this country for about 20 years, Soisson said.

Franklin High band performs at Capitol

The Franklin High School marching band recently performed on the lawn of the U.S. Capitol Building.

A good impression was made on the people who viewed the 50-minute performance of the marching band complemented by the color guard, said band director Joan Seay. The school serves the northeast section of Westland.

Persons who happened to take the moonlight Dinner Dance Cruise on the Potomac made a point to comment to several Franklin band members and chaperoning booster parents on how professionally the band performed at the Capitol, said Seay.

Several said they especially enjoyed watching the column of band members march to drum cadence on and off the site with such disciplined, military class and style.

Police probe rash of weekend robberies

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A Westland man, abducted in his car early Saturday by a man he believed was carrying a gun, escaped unharmed and without being robbed when he pushed his assailant out of the car during a scuffle, police reports said.

In other weekend crimes, a masked gunman robbed the Amoco gas station at Middlebelt and Ann Arbor Trail of at least $70, and another gunman escaped with $140 during a robbery at the Total gas station at Cherry Hill and Venoy roads, Westland police reported.

In the abduction, a 35-year-old Westland man told police he was leaving the 7-Eleven store on Merriman and Palmer when a male, holding his right hand in a jacket pocket as if armed, got into his late-model Chevrolet and ordered him to drive. The intruder had been using a telephone outside the 7-11.

The victim told police he was forced to drive along several roads until he was ordered to stop the car on Wayland Court, where he said he was told to hand over his wallet. He refused, prompting a scuffle between him and the man, described as black, about 30 years old, 5 feet, 8 inches, 150 pounds and wearing a hooded jacket.

The victim told police he managed to open the passenger door as the two fought, and that they fell from the car onto the ground. The victim then broke free, jumped inside his car and sped away, escaping unharmed, he reported.

Westland police continued to investigate the case this week.

IN THE Amoco robbery, a masked gunman walked inside the Middlebelt-Ann Arbor Trail station about 9:45 p.m. Sunday and ordered a cashier into a bathroom. The cashier, a 24-year-old Taylor man, remained in hiding about two minutes and then came outside, as the gunman fled the store.

The gunman, described as a 6-foot white male, escaped with at least $70 in cash, police reports said. Westland police are continuing their investigation.

In a robbery at the Total station at Cherry Hill and Venoy, a 21-year-old female attendant told police that a male walked inside about 7 a.m. Saturday and demanded money at gunpoint.

The man, described as male, 6 feet, 3 inches, in his 20s and weighing 220 to 250 pounds, escaped with $140, police reports said. Police were continuing their investigation this week.

Marrou: He's running, too

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Andre Marrou sympathizes with those disgusted by this year's major party presidential candidates.

Some 20 years ago, he felt the same way. That's why he joined the Libertarian Party.

Now his party's presidential nominee, Marrou calls himself the antidote.

"It's easy to see why people are fed up," he said. "Republican or Democrat, the candidates are still talking about the same old things — more government and more taxes."

In town for a recent state party convention, Marrou is criss-crossing the country in his bid to call attention to Libertarian candidates and issues.

Thus far, it hasn't been easy. Ironies aren't easily lost on the former Alaska state legislator, either.

"LOOK AT David Duke. Here's a guy who was elected to the same job I held," Marrou said. "Here's a guy who is a former Nazi, a former Ku Klux Klansman, and he gets page after page of coverage. Now, look at me, I'm a nice guy and I can hardly get any."

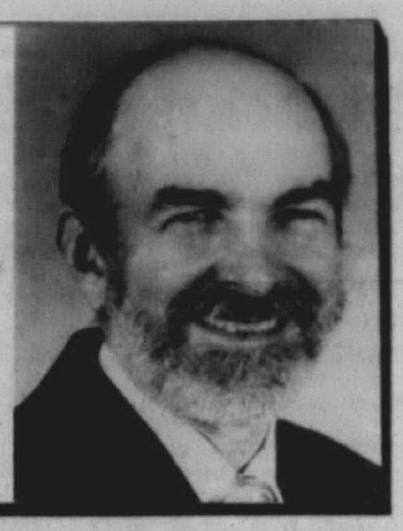
Marrou, 53, is given to dry — and sometimes not-so-dry — humor. As a state legislator, he reportedly displayed two pins, an American flag and the Hell's Angels logo, on his lapel — making a point about individual freedom to regulation-happy colleagues.

These days he sports a conservatively cut dark blue suit, without any pins. But Marrou is keeping his wit and wits about him during the campaign.

His assessment of the major party hopefuls:

- On George Bush — "We call him King George. The man is an aristocrat. I mean, here's a guy that was confounded by a bar code."
- On Jerry Brown — "He's no alternative. When he was governor (of California) he increased taxes and state spending. What kind of alternative is that?" Brown's controversial 13 percent flat tax is "more of the same" to Marrou, who would abolish the federal income tax altogether. (For more on the Libertarian party platform, see related story.)
- On Bill Clinton — "He's smart. After all the man's a Rhodes Scholar. But he's probably too slick for his own good."
- On Patrick Buchanan — "He's xenophobic, homophobic and anti-Semitic. He's not welcome by us."

Also unwelcome is rumored third-party challenger H. Ross Perot. "Too far right," says Marrou, who nonetheless fears Perot's entry would cost him votes.



'It's easy to see why people are fed up. Republican or Democrat, the candidates are still talking about the same old things — more government and more taxes.'

— Andre Marrou
Libertarian for president

Marrou's Alaska license plate and no-tax, low-government platform might give rise to images of a "Northern Exposure" backwoodsman, but his background gives lie to any such notions.

A Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate and commercial real estate broker, Marrou earned respect as one of his state's most eloquent legislators during his 1985-87 stint in the Alaska House.

IF NO backwoodsman, Marrou nonetheless sees himself as a trailblazer.

Aiming for 1-5 percent of the popular vote this time around, Marrou envisions himself blazing the trail toward eventual Libertarian victory sometime in the next century.

But whether that trail passes through Michigan, at least this year, is unlikely.

Libertarians stand squarely for free trade — "We're the original free traders." — at a time then U.S. automakers and suppliers are closing Michigan plants.

Despite being on the ballot since 1972, Libertarans have yet to muster 1 percent of the national vote. Four years ago, when Marrou was the vice presidential nominee, Libertarian ticket drew 432,111 votes, less than one-half of 1 percent of all ballots cast.

This year, however, the Libertarian campaign began with a victory. With 11 of 31 ballots cast, Marrou was the leading vote-getter in Dixville Notch, N.H., traditionally the first community in the nation to report its presidential primary votes.

However small, Marrou marks that Feb. 18 vote as the beginning of a new day in American politics.

Here's Libertarian platform on economic, social issues:

Ask most candidates where they stand on the issues and they'll give you the runaround. Ask Libertarian Party presidential nominee Andre Marrou and he'll give you a business card.

Here, in a nutshell, are the 10 commandments of Libertarianism.

- Abolish the federal income tax and disband the Internal Revenue Service.
- Expand free enterprise and end business regulation.
- Protect gun ownership rights.
- Limit Congressional terms.
- Put an end to foreign aid.
- Withdraw U.S. troops from foreign soil.
- End tax-financed subsidies.
- Let the federal bureaucracy shrink through attrition.
- Privatize education and welfare.
- Enact the "fully informed jury amendment," let jurors use their conscience, their opinion of the law in question and their view of the defendant's motives in deciding the case.

At the same time, Libertarians are also pro-choice and would legalize RU-486, the so-called "morning after" birth control pill.

NOT the Problem

Here's how to cure slow drains forever. Professional plumbers know the real problem is not in the U-shaped trap. It is in the pipes behind the wall and underground-- the other 99% of your plumbing system.

It starts with a deposit of grease or soap film. The same film that leaves a ring around your tub or sink. In time daily deposits form a black, smelly layer of gook. As the gook gets thicker your drains run slower and slower.

Now, without calling a costly rooter service, you can remove this gook with Plumb Clean.

Amazing Plumb Clean contains safe, natural bacteria. As they multiply they move from the trap to the sewer or septic. Since they use the gook for food they literally eat your pipes clean.

Revolutionary Plumb Clean is so simple and safe even a child can use it!

Only original Plumb Clean has this unique formula. Only original Plumb Clean makes you this promise: Use Plumb Clean as directed for 30 days and we guarantee your drains will run like new or your money back!

Cable time

Schools, city dragging feet

THANKS TO TWO political candidates, Plymouth Township will be airing its meetings on cable television.

But now it's up to the Plymouth Canton schools and the city of Plymouth to air their meetings. Officials from the commission and the school board say it's a nice idea, but now is the time to exchange platitudes for action.

Canton Township has long broadcast its meetings on Omnicom Cablevision. All area governmental bodies should follow suit. The lives of Canton and Plymouth are becoming increasingly complicated. Televised meetings are one way for residents to keep up with local political life.

But back to Plymouth Township. The taping and airing of the township's twice monthly board meetings was prompted not by sitting public officials, but by candidates for office.

K.C. Mueller, a candidate for township trustee, asked township board members on April 14 if they would accept the televising of the meeting. They agreed. But it was up to Kathleen Keen-McCarthy to arrange the details. She met with Omnicom and the upshot is that her husband, David, will handle the camera.

It's interesting to note that while the elected officials didn't oppose the move, they really didn't do anything to help it along. It was up to two candidates. It's too bad there isn't an election every year.

Now it's up to the schools and the city of Plymouth to get with the program. We doubt any of the elected officials will get involved in efforts to air their meetings.

But there are candidates for school board in the June election. Maybe they could learn something from the Plymouth Township candidates.

Top response to the tornado

MOTHER NATURE played one of her tricks in Plymouth Township last Thursday, sending a tornado spinning through a trailer park.

And when it did, township police and other emergency workers were quickly on the scene, handling the needs of residents.

Safety was the number one priority for Police Chief Carl Berry and others at the scene.

Police set up a command center and walked the streets of Plymouth Hills Mobile Court, handling the concerns of residents on a personal basis. It wasn't just cops driving through the park with bullhorns blasting.

The residents were quickly evacuated and kept away from the dangers that abound when a neighborhood is hit by a tornado. Such destruction ruptures gas lines, sending natural gas into the air where sparks can cause an explosion or fire.

But while local authorities acted quickly, there was some concern about the lack of a warning for residents. The sirens didn't sound until after the tornado struck.

But that's a problem for the National Weather Service, which is using computers that are more than 30 years old to track such storms. According to press accounts, the weather service is updating its system and will eventually be able to do a better job of predicting storms.

However, for now it's up to local authorities to do the best job possible. And they did that when the tornado hit.

Privacy

'Thought police' defy rights

English common law's strong stand on the sanctity of privacy was summed up by the phrase "the rain may enter, the wind may enter, but the king may not enter" a person's house. While other centers of privacy — one's imagination and thought process — always fell into that category, now is the time to spell that out for our legislators.

Legislators are bordering on the "thought police" job classification lately, proposing bills and resolutions that on the surface seem harmless but in reality lead all to the slippery slope of losing very basic rights. The right to read and watch all non-obscene material again is threatened.

Government's invasion into the thought process is something anyone who reveres civil liberties will find distasteful. Content regulation — making laws against what is said or printed — is something that is particularly odious in First Amendment law. Content regulation would allow government to pick and choose which messages the people get, and that power is dangerous.

A government that says Jews are evil can — and did — wipe a number of them off the face of the earth. A government that says "Satanic Verses" is evil can force a prominent author into hiding, fearing for his life.

THOSE WHO say it can't happen here aren't paying attention. In addition to the self-righteous groups trying to ban books from libraries and schools, there are also the self-righteous legislators who somehow know which messages in literature and art we are to receive and which we aren't. Where that divine authority comes from, one only wonders.

The latest assaults include:

- State Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, introduced a resolution to ban the sale of trading cards featuring the pictures of mass murderers.
- The U.S. Congress is working on a bill that would penalize authors and publishers if plots of books, movies, etc. are used in violent crimes against individuals.
- Statewide, there are school districts that work toward restricting what high school newspapers can cover, giving students a skewed view of the rule of government versus free press.

The trading cards are a fad, to be sure. But a ban is an overreaction at best and sets a very bad precedent. The self-annointed thought police won't stop at trading cards, if they can get away with that.

Holding authors criminally responsible if crazies copy their plots is one way to stop the flow of contemporary literature. Authors, rather than second-guessing legislators, might decide against introducing new plot twists or story lines.

WOULD MARGARET Mitchell include the burning of Atlanta in "Gone With The Wind," if she had to worry that some future firebug would set a town ablaze? The Bible has Cain killing his brother Abel — how many families could sue the authors on that one? It's ludicrous.

The thinking that one person is responsible for another person's action goes against current Constitutional decisions. The use of "fighting words" isn't admissible in an assault case because, the courts have ruled, a person is responsible for his or her own actions. An individual can choose to walk away.

An individual can choose not only to walk away from a fight, but always away from print or video messages that either don't present a belief system they embrace or use an entertainment vehicle that the individual doesn't think is amusing or interesting.

There are sufficient legal safeguards in place that protect people from untruths and obscene materials. Legislators need not be concerned with their constituents getting lies in the guise of truth because of existing defamation laws. And obscene materials — though they must meet a rigid Constitutional test that proves they have no literary merit — are not protected at all by the First Amendment.

If materials contribute to the marketplace of ideas, concern self-government and contribute to individual self-fulfillment and self-realization, the U.S. Supreme Court has said the materials receive the full protection of the Constitution. The guidelines are broad, giving people a wealth of fiction and non-fiction from which to choose. As it should be.

A NATURAL curiosity should make a person ask what message is so dangerous that legislators want to keep it from the common person. Keeping an idea from a reader or movie-goer will not make that idea suddenly disappear, though perhaps that is the intent of the well-intentioned legislators.

It is every reader's and movie watcher's responsibility to let legislators know that we don't need any help in selecting material. Legislators should keep their sights on providing a free environment that recognizes the right of its citizens to gather information in whatever form and make its own opinions. Government acting as censors is a role no one needs.

Eliminate state Senate to improve government

Philip Power

WE ARE very badly governed.

Most folks I talk with agree with this simple proposition, for the evidence is overwhelming. Three examples:

- Nationally, we cannot get our fiscal affairs in order. Despite annual ritualistic claims of good intentions from both president and Congress, this year's deficit will be near $400 billion — a record. In Michigan, neither governor nor Legislature has had the guts to tackle the structural annual deficit of nearly $500 million.
- We spend twice as much of the national income on health care as the next nearest nation, yet nearly 35 million Americans are without health insurance while the president and Congress continue to argue about how to reform the system.
- Michigan's schools are plainly failing to educate the workers of tomorrow, yet the governor and Legislature cannot agree on how best to tax to support schools, let alone define and measure what children should learn.

WHY IS this so?

There are lots of reasons, but one reason is so basic and so simple that it often escapes notice: divided government.

When the president is a Republican and the Congress is Democratic — as has been the case in 16 out of the past 20 years — there is no device in the American political system to make them agree on coherent policy.

In Michigan, when the governor is of one party and at least one chamber of the Legislature is controlled by another — as has been the case in 19 of the past 20 years — there is no way to get them to come together and get something done.

Divided government, most often, is the basis for gridlocked government: The president wants X; Congress wants Y; they lock horns and nothing gets done.

To put it less delicately, divided government often produces constipated government.

Remarkably, voters appear to prefer a government politically divided against itself rather than a government united to take action.

HOW IS this possible?

Uniquely among the world's democracies, the U.S. Constitution requires separation of powers, dividing our government between executive, legislative and judicial branches. We elect a president to head the executive branch and, separately, the Congress. The Constitution says nothing about how they are to work together.

But as to the form government should take among the states, the Constitution says only, "The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican form of government." (Art. IV., Sec. 4)

So Michigan, for example, could adopt any form of government it wants so long as it is "republican" — i.e., democratically elected.

THEREFORE, MY simple proposal:

Amend the Michigan Constitution to eliminate the state Senate and to require that the governor be the majority leader of the party that controls the state House of Representatives.

Result: a governor with, by definition, the votes in the Legislature to enact his or her program for Michigan.

No more gridlock. No more shirking responsibility for bad government by pointing the finger at the other party. No more evasion of political responsibility.

Would this be easy? No. Nothing serious ever is.

Is it possible? Yes. All that needs to be done is to amend the Michigan Constitution.

Think about it. Then think about just how badly we are governed. Then think again.

Schools spend too much on students

To the editor:

As a pastor of a Catholic School in Redford, I must commend you for your article in the Monday, April 13, edition of the Observer & Eccentric. I was a former superintendent of the Catholic Schools of Detroit. We enrolled 180,000 students in those days, and I had a staff of eight profesionals.

The key people in education are the building principals, and the teachers and parents. You are correct in your statements of per-pupil spending and size of class. No study has shown any correlation in this regard to achievement.

Our per pupil cost next year for our grade school will be $1,982 per child. We have good food service, the cleanest school I have ever seen, modern equipment, computers, gym, art, music, athletics, and most of the staff with master's degrees, and all with Michigan Teaching Certificates. We also take all types of students.

The teacher union movement has caused a lot of difficulty and overrated salaries in the past 10 years. Regardless of what teacher unions say, the work year is still less than 200 days.

Choice in education and some competition is necessary to change the system.

You seem to be on the right track.

State tax bill opposed by chamber

To the editor:

On Dec. 9 Speaker Dodak and other Democratic politicians submitted what they hope will be enough petitions to the state Board of Canvassers for a tax shift.

The plan is a statutory initiative that would raise taxes on Michigan's job providers by three quarters of a billion dollars ($500 million Single Business Tax increase, plus $250 property tax increase) to provide homeowners with some property tax relief. The Dodak plan also totally excludes industrial and commercial property owners from any property tax relief.

At this point, it is unclear whether there is enough signatures to submit their proposal to the legislature for a vote. If the legislature approves the proposal it would become law. If it does not approve the proposal it will go on the ballot in November 1992.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is strongly opposed to the Dodak tax shift because it is a jobs killer. The chamber supports the Michigan Chamber of Commerce stand against the issue. Even without their jobs tax, Michigan taxes are among the highest in the nation. If the initiative succeeds, business start-ups and expansions in the state will be drastically reduced, forcing employers to do business elsewhere. Canton has 25 industrial and commercial firms that stand to lose their Capital Acquisition Deduction and their industrial tax abatement.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce has taken an official position to oppose this petition drive and its anti-business attitude.

Survival is worker's bottom line

Tim Smith

THEY'RE AT IT again, those companies that used to compete just fine in the marketplace while at the same time enabling good people to make a decent living and raise their families.

Of course, in today's world, companies say both things can no longer happen at the same time. That includes companies like Kroger.

Undoubtedly, that food chain's various headhunters and bean-counters are justifying what is a hideous contract offer to its clerks and cashiers by saying it's all within the rules as to how the 1990s business game is played.

It's called watching the bottom line. Staying lean and mean. Maintaining that razor-sharp competitive edge.

Hogwash. It's also called, "thanks for your many years of hard work and loyalty, but we can get somebody to do this a heckuva lot cheaper for us . . . So long, and don't let the shopping cart hit you in the rear end on the way out."

I HAVE some personal insight into this, having worked for Kroger until the 1984 shutdown of the area's stores.

If not for the fact that I had earned a degree in journalism during my years there, and was patiently waiting to break into the field anyway, I might also be standing today in front of a Kroger somewhere.

In fact, it seems Kroger employees weren't treated all that well in July 1984, either, when the chain's metropolitan stores were padlocked.

I vividly recall the day the Farmington-Plymouth Kroger store in Livonia closed its doors for good. (That is, until it reopened as non-union Foodland a few months later.)

People with 10, 20 or 30 years of service left the same way as those hired a month before — each employee got a gallon jug of milk. Some might also have received other perishables before those set-to-expire items raised a stink.

For those who decided enough was enough, a small financial buyout was offered. I took the check and ran. Others decided to stick it out because they thought working for Kroger was still a pretty good thing.

YOU CAN count one fellow who I worked with at the Livonia store, and still play recreational hockey with today, among the latter.

He still believed in Kroger as a place to make a living, even at the hockey rink on the recent Sunday night before the strike began.

Although cognizant of the fact he was still making the $10.37 hourly wage he was back when I worked with him in 1984, this single man didn't really want to strike.

But he accepted the tougher stance of his colleagues, many with spouses and families, and is walking the picket line right along with them.

So, too, must be many others he and I worked with a decade ago who, thanks to Kroger, were able to buy a car, send their children to college, enjoy a vacation every now and then . . . enjoy life. People like Larry, Maureen, Doris, Rudy.

None of these people planned on writing for a newspaper someday. For them, Kroger was their career. They intended on stocking shelves, counting change and sweeping floors until they reached retirement age.

AND WHAT'S wrong with that? My father was a truck driver who was able to do pretty well for himself without a college degree.

I know many others who — blue collars and all — managed to make a living despite having little more going for them than the inclination to get their hands dirty.

They're all good people, who, in the days when employers took care of their own, didn't have to resort to working two minimum-wage jobs merely to pay for groceries and utility bills.

That's the real bottom line.

Studies should aid community

Judith Doner Berne

OUR SON CHOSE to pick up aluminum cans, mostly from construction sites, and take them to a Pontiac recycling center in the days before glass and aluminum beverage containers were redeemable.

Our oldest daughter chose to be a late afternoon aide for kindergartners at our neighborhood elementary school.

Our youngest was the manager of the girl's high school tennis team, which basically meant she lugged the balls and picked up the trash left around the courts by the players.

All three projects met the community service requirement which was part of the curriculum in their required ninth grade health class. And all three projects, the first two more so and the last somewhat, were among the more constructive things our children accomplished during that fragile freshman year in high school.

So I was very glad to hear that a federal district court in Pennsylvania had dictated I wouldn't be eligible to sue the West Bloomfield School District for "involuntary servitude."

INCREDIBLY, SEVERAL PARENTS in the Bethlehem Area School District in eastern Pennsylvania claimed that district's community service requirement violated students' rights under the 13th Amendment of the Constitution, which prohibits slavery and involuntary servitude.

But the judge in his wisdom dismissed the suit, explaining the obvious — community service is an educational activity.

Probably the West Bloomfield School District wasn't in any real danger. The health class requirement of community service was only part of the health curriculum. Conceivably you could flunk community service, but if you did well in the rest of the course you might pass it.

Not so in Bethlehem and not so in the more tangible Bloomfield Hills Schools and many area private schools where community service is a graduation requirement.

Deputy superintendent Gary Doyle, who helped launch the Bloomfield Hills program, was involved in the case as one of a group of educators who submitted affidavits in support of students performing community service.

EACH SEMESTER between 75 and 150 Bloomfield Hills students are involved in community projects from helping in nursing homes to working at the district's summer camp for impaired youngsters to taking part in home building projects for the needy.

The teenage years are a naturally selfish age, a time when young people are caught up almost totally in themselves. An opportunity for them to give of themselves may turn out to offer them another perspective, at the least, and may build self-confidence and lead to changes in philosophy or even career choices, at the most.

Rather than a court suit against such experiences, parents should urge their school districts to adopt such a requirement. Here's hoping the federal court's all-clear sign will act as a catalyst for school systems to mandate community service as a nearly cost-free addition to a well-rounded education.

Weird rulings hike cost of insurance

Tim Richard

THE PURPLE prose flowed, mostly from Democrats, when Gov. John Engler vetoed the bill to roll back auto insurance rates 15 percent.

Rep. Nelson Saunders of Detroit said Engler "is far more interested in protecting the insurance industry's profits."

State AFL-CIO president Frank Garrison thundered: "Auto insurance rate increases are the cruelest tax hike of all."

"An outrageous insult to all the consumers in the state," said Sen. George Z. Hart of Dearborn. Hart thinks a California-style elected insurance commissioner would dictate lower executive salaries and lobbying expenses.

THE FACTS are on the library reference shelves in A.M. Best's Insurance Reports, a volume Hart et al have never been known to quote. It lists and rates every company and comments on the operations of each.

Auto Club Group Insurance Co. of Michigan, based in Dearborn, gets an A-minus (excellent) rating from Best, which comments:

"The consolidated operating results of the pool, while still profitable, have deteriorated in recent years due to increased underwriting costs. The $110 million underwriting loss experience in 1990 was attributable not only to unfavorable results in the current year but adverse development on automobile liability loss reserves for previous accident years as well . . .

"Loss ratios of the pool have consistently exceeded those of the industry; however, a relatively low level of expenses has enabled the overall combined ratio to generally remain favorable to the industry."

Golly, Hart, "the singing senator," must have been looking at a songbook instead of a financial report because he sure was wrong about AAA's expense ratio.

CITIZEN'S Insurance Co. of Howell gets an A-plus (superior) rating from Best, which comments:

"(O)perating results . . . compare very favorably to industry standards. The rewarding operating performance is primarily due to the especially good underwriting results in each of the past five years accompanied by an ever-increasing net investment income."

No indication of execs and lawyers milking it.

Farm Bureau General Insurance Co. of Lansing gets only a B (good) rating. Best comments: "Net investment income continued to offset underwriting losses."

In other words, drivers' premiums don't cover payouts. The insurer uses investment income from bonds and stocks to cover the loss.

Best says that's true of many insurers. And as interest rates decline (good for borrowers), insurers will need to charge higher premiums (bad for auto owners). We can't have it both ways.

BEST REPORTED two years ago that 50 insurers quit writing policies in Michigan from 1982 to 1988.

Strange. If insurers are gouging us so successfully, insurance vultures should be flocking into Michigan, not departing. Maybe the Saunders, the Harts and the Garrisons are misleading us.

Hart tells us AAA is "notorious for forcing victims into court to collect benefits that they are owed," proving Hart didn't read my column on bizarre Court of Appeals rulings.

In January I reported how driver Michael Marzonie chased Vernon Oaks home while Marzonie's passenger threw beer bottles at Oaks' car. Oaks emerged from his house with a shotgun, aimed at Marzonie's car and hit Marzonie. Whom did Marzonie sue? Auto Club, his insurer. Somehow an appellate court panel saw this as an auto case and told Auto Club to pay.

That's why Auto Club's legal expenses are high — fighting weird court rulings. The singing senator is dead wrong again.

School officials blister Lansing's attack on state aid

By Tim Richard
staff writer

School officials from Livonia, Rochester and Grosse Pointe blistered Sen. Dan DeGrow's plan to cut almost all their state aid next fall.

"Your proposal would bring us to our knees," Livonia Superintendent Joseph Marinell told DeGrow at a Senate hearing last week in Lansing.

Marinelli saw "a well-orchestrated effort by state government" to "attack the out-of-formula school districts' local tax dollars in every way possible" in the name of equity with in-formula districts.

ROCHESTER board of education member Darlene Janulis added, "We all seem to be in the same boat — a leaky one at that."

She added, "We can't do with simplistic solutions like schools of choice" — a pet project of DeGrow's.

"Our taxpayers are drawing a line in the sand," said a Grosse Pointe school trustee, noting the district has mandated state and federal costs for asbestos removal, handicapped facilities and school quality at the same time its categorical aid is being whacked.

DeGROW, R-Port Huron, was unmoved, sitting stoically through the barrage as chair of the subcommittee on K-12 school aid.

"Before I'll comment," he said after the hearing, "I'd ask how big were their teacher raises, and how much do they spend per-pupil? If it's more than $5,000 . . ."

He trailed off, indicating he has zero to negative sympathy for any school district with resources of more than $5,000 per pupil.

Livonia has $6,000, Rochester more than $5,800 and Grosse Pointe $8,000, according to Senate Fiscal Agency calculations — challenged by Marinelli.

DeGrow's two fellow subcommittee members — John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, and Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills — didn't attend the hearing.

Having given up hope for raising state taxes for schools, DeGrow frankly wants to narrow the gap between districts through business tax base sharing and cutting categorical aid to better-off districts — programs he calls "equity correction."

Only three of the 31 school districts in DeGrow's Thumb area Senate district are out-of-formula, and nearly half spend less than $4,000 per pupil.

THE SCHOOL AID bill for fiscal 1992-3 is scheduled for Senate action next week.

DeGrow's version (SB 226) would:

- Deduct $107 million from the categorical aid going to out-of-formula schools, up from the current $60 million.
- Take away Social Security payments over a period of four years, to a total of $340 million.
- Pay only categorical aid for special education, bilingual instruction and new mandated programs.
- Retain tax base sharing, under which out-of-formula districts lose half the growth in their commercial and industrial tax bases. Most districts in the Observer & Eccentric area are out-of-formula.

MARINELLI said Livonia, with a current annual budget of $104 million, would lose $46 million in state categorical aid over four years.

"This proposal would necessitate deep and perhaps irreversible cuts in programs and curriculum. In addition to the forced cuts of $3.7 million this school yera, we are going to have to cut at least $7 million in 1992-93. Now your Senate proposal may require an additional $1.5 million cut as well," he said.

Disparities between school districts are unacceptable, said Marinelli, "but your solutions are also unacceptable."

In reply to DeGrow's question about teacher pay, Marinelli said Livonia settled for 6.4 percent a year for two years but coupled it with early retirement for 65 senior teachers. "We actually reducted our total payroll line item," he said.

He said Livonia must pay competitive wages with neighboring districts. And if it took a strike, "the arbitrator will give it (pay raises) anyway, there will be (community) ill will, and teacher morale will fall."

MARINELLI said several Senate staff calculations of Livonia's resources were wrong:

"They estimated our tax base will grow 2.5 percent. Our estimate is less than 1 percent.

"They don't reflect our increased enrollment. We project a 1992-3 enrollment of 17,155, an increase of 3.3 percent.

"Our per-pupil amount will be reduced next year," he said.

MADD tree planting to mark crime victims' week

Mothers Against Drunk Driving is planning a memorial tree planting at 10 a.m. Wednesday, April 29, at the Southfield Historical Village, 26082 Berg Road.

The tree, a sugar maple donated by Rollin Landscaping in Farmington Hills, is in memory of drunk driving crash victims.

The planting will take place during National Crime Victims' Rights Week. Two victims of drunk drivers, Kathy Valone of MADD Oakland County and Chuck Cole, a Northville police officer, will speak as part of the program.

In 1990, an estimated 22,083 people died in alcohol-related crashes. That was nearly 50 percent of all traffic fatalities.

Canton runner-up in Dearborn event

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton gave one of its finest performances in boys track and field Saturday to earn second place in the annual Dearborn Elks Relays.

The Chiefs might even have surprised themselves by scoring in 12 of the 14 events and finishing just seven points behind champion Redford Catholic Central at Dearborn High School, 52-45.

Other teams scoring in double figures were the host Pioneers (29), Westland John Glenn (26), Temperance Bedford and Highland Park (18), the University of Detroit-Jesuit (17), Novi (15), Plymouth Salem (14) and Detroit Osborn (10). Wyandotte, Hazel Park and Livonia Franklin scored five points or less.

"It seems every kid ran some of his best times, and it just became a fever," Canton coach Bob Richardson said. "Someone would see a teammate scoring points and when his relay was up said 'I'm going to score, too.'

"We scored in every event we entered, and it's the first time since I've been associated with Plymouth Canton track that we've done that. We never had a more balanced relay. Everybody I put in ended up scoring."

WHAT IS EVEN more surprising is the Chiefs, who did not enter the pole vault or high jump, were not at full strength because some athletes were away on spring vacation.

"It gave us a chance to run some other people and experiment, and some of those experiments turned out pretty well," Richardson said. "Knowing we were not going to be at full strength gave us a chance to try some kids we might not otherwise have used.

"We didn't go in thinking we were going to score 45 points and go home with a second-place trophy. We were real pleased to be within striking distance of first place, and we were just a little short."

Canton had only one first-place finish, and that was in the distance medley in which the first relay member runs 800 meters, the second 400, third 1,200 and fourth 1,600. Brett Kearney, Craig Miller, Chris Burns and Jeff Keith combined for an 11:11.3 time.

The Chiefs had five second-place relays, with Marques Nelson, Miller and Neil Haremski being part of two each.

Eric Tomei, Nelson, John Martin and Haremski ran the 110-meter shuttle hurdles in 1:09.9 and the intermediate shuttle hurdles in 1:25.4. In the latter event, each hurdler ran 150 meters on a straightaway with the hurdles spaced the same distance as they normally are.

Kearney, Mike Erickson, Dave Washenko and Miller finished second in the 1,600 relay at 3:33.2, and Canton was runner-up in the 400 relay as Paul Chudyk, Andy Ingersoll, Rob Moffat and Miller had a 45.6 time.

NELSON WAS involved in three relays, including the third-place 3,200 unit. Washenko, Matt Demey, Kevin Gudeth and Nelson put together an 8:26.9 time. The Chiefs also were third in the 800 relay (1:36.7) with Damon Collier, Chudyk, Moffat and Mike Gurchak.

The shot put team of Tom Raven, Jon Gallinger, Justin Semion and Collier placed fourth with a total distance of 144-½ feet and qualified for the thrower's 400-meter relay in which Canton was second in 50 seconds.

Raven, Gallinger and Semion also were fourth in the discus relay (299-1), and the long jump team of Collier, Neil Hunter and Leon Black placed fourth at 55-11¾.

The Chiefs were fifth in the 6,400 relay as Dave Yack, Dave Stroscheim, Todd Smith and Shawn McNamara combined efforts for a 20:16 clocking.

Salem had three third-place relays and was fourth in another.

Rockland Johnson, Jeff and Steve Schumacher and Dan Kaczmarek combined for a 146-7 total in the shot put and ran the shot putter's 400 relay in 51.1.

Steve Boudreau, Jayson McDonald, Mike Wooters and Derek Cudini were third in the 6,400 relay (19:26.7), and Marcus Zevalkink, Jay Casey, Andy Coburn and Justin Fisher were fourth in the 400 relay (46.6).

Canton and Salem compete in the Tiger Relays at Belleville High School on Saturday. The field events begin at 10 a.m., the 6,400 relay and semifinals in the 100 dash and 110 hurdles at 11 a.m. and the remainder of the events at noon.

The Chiefs also have a make-up dual meet Tuesday against Glenn at Centennial Educational Park.

Egloff roast will benefit former prep teammate

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Maybe it's appropriate that the owner of a popular Denver Sports Bar and Grill is finally going to be roasted.

Former Plymouth Salem High athlete Ron Egloff, an All-State tight end who later played at the University of Wisconsin and in the National Football League for nearly 10 years, returns home Saturday, May 2, to be charbroiled before friends, fans and former teammates.

"I need to go to a bookstore and figure out something witty to say," said Egloff, who is a partner in a chain of popular Denver restaurants called Jackson's Holes Sports Bar and Grill. "I haven't been home much, but now I have an excuse to go back. I'm sure there will be a lot of people who I haven't seen in a long time."

The event is all for a good cause, serving as a fund-raiser for Egloff's ex-Salem teammate Scott Bacon, who is recovering from liver transplant surgery. (He now resides in New Orleans.)

"I'm sorry that Scott can't make it in because he's the one I'd really like to see, but I've talked to him a couple of times since November and he seems to be doing well," Egloff added.

Ron Egloff returns for roast

THE EVENT (see details below), put on by Rock Athletic Club, will be from 6-10 p.m. at Plymouth VFW Hall, 1426 Mill Street.

Special guests include include Salem football coach Tom Moshimer; ex-Plymouth High, ex-University of Michigan and former NFL player Bob Thornbladh; Rob Lytle (Egloff's former teammate with the Denver Broncos); ex-Rock teammate and Milan High football coach Steve Robb; and Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger.

After retiring from pro football, Egloff remained in Denver to raise a family, which includes wife Julee and three sons — Dayton, 9, Adam, 7, and Elliott, 4.

"I'm very active in the community and our restaurants have become high profile as far as hosting charity events," Egloff said. "This week I'm participating in a celebrity luncheon for the Arthritis Foundation. It keeps me busy, not to mention my three boys, who are all involved in sports."

Egloff has restricted his sports activities these days to golf.

"My knees are shot from football, so I don't play tennis, racquetball or basketball anymore," he said. "I'm only an 18-handicapper, but I have a lot of fun playing at charity golf tourneys."

Egloff, who signed as a free agent with Denver, played eight seasons with the Broncos. He also had a brief stint with the San Diego Chargers.

The cost of the Ron Egloff Roast is $40 per person (includes buffet dinner and drinks). Ticket requests should be sent to: Rock Athletic Club, c/o Sue Lobsiger, 4404 Racewood, Commerce Township, 48482. For more information, call Vivian Williams Houchins at 474-1479 (days) or Jim Szilagyi at 644-1838 (evenings).

Wildcats best team in state

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The Western Wayne Wildcats are on the prowl again.

The 18-and-under AAU girls basketball team, coached by Gary Schwan and Fred Thomann, captured the state championship April 10-12 at Plymouth Salem High School with a 73-69 triumph over the Top Guns, a team from the western side of the state. (Northville also hosted first-round games.)

Sparked by tournament MVP Dawn Warner of Livonia Franklin, the Wildcats will be headed for the National AAU tourney, beginning June 26 in Clovis, N.M.

The same nucleus of players competed in last year's 16-and-under AAU nationals, finishing 3-3 in Johnson City, Tenn.

basketball

"There are a lot of good players, but the neat thing is how they share the ball and play together," Schwan said. "There's no doubt we have a lot of talent, but they sacrificed their individual talents to succeed."

Led by the Western Kentucky-bound Warner, a 5-foot-7 point-guard, the Wildcats reached the finals by disposing of Kalamazoo in the semifinals (107-56); the Brick City Bombers in the quarterfinals (102-67); and Lansing in the sweet 16 (101-54).

SALEM'S Darcie Miller, a 6-1 center headed for Valparaiso University (Ind.), made the All-AAU tourney team along with Wildcat teammates Tanisha Stevens of Mount Clemens (signed with Michigan), Lisa Negri of Flint Powers (Ohio State) and Sarah Willyerd of Powers (Old Dominion).

Also selected to the All-AAU squad was Benton Harbor's Laticia Morris (Eastern Michigan) of the Top Guns.

Rounding out the Wildcats' squad is Plymouth Canton's Julie Nicastri (Saginaw Valley), Farmington Hills Mercy's Laure DeMattia, Powers'

Boxers compete for Gloves glory

By Steve Kowalski

The Livonia Boxing Club will be well represented at Saturday's Metro Detroit Golden Gloves Championship held at Cobo Center's Riverfront Ballroom.

Five LBC fighters have qualified for the card, which will feature 16 bouts, starting with the first at 7:30 p.m.

General admission tickets are $6 while ringside table seats will go for $10.

Each Golden Gloves champion this Saturday will qualify for the National Golden Gloves Championships held May 4 through 11 in Chicago.

Livonia Churchill 1988 graduate Kevin Tripodi is the veteran of the LBC qualifiers, winning 18 of his 28 amateur bouts as a 156-pounder. Tripodi, who has attended Wayne County Community College and has trained as an assistant pizza manager, seems to be totally committed right now to boxing.

"HE'S A VERY, very good fighter," said trainer Bill Clements, a former accomplished welterweight fighter from the 1930s. "He's a lazy person but he's down to business now, I like everything he's done. He's one of the best fighters in the gym. If he keeps going like this he'll be very hard to beat."

Tripodi's first opponent will be Pharoah Turner of River Rouge, a Silver Gloves and National Police Athletic League champion with a record of 41 wins and nine losses.

The super-heavyweight division will feature Detroiter John Bahoura, a familiar face for LBC followers.

Bahoura, who first starting training with LBC manager Paul Soucy four years ago, came back after a 1½-year absence with an impressive win earlier this month over Detroiter Kevin Banks. Bahoura's challenger Saturday will be Mark Rayner, of West Bloomfield, who is fighting out of the Kronk Gym.

The 24-year-old Bahoura has a 3-5 career record but has improved since his return from a double hernia operation, foot injury and a bad case of hemorrhoids.

"JOHN PUT up the fight of his life (against Banks)," Clements said. "He didn't knock him out but he beat him good. When you've beaten Kevin you've beaten a good boy."

Watching Bahoura jump rope and do sit-ups in the ring during a training session Monday at the LBC it was obvious Bahoura has fully recovered.

"I couldn't walk, couldn't sleep, I felt like crap," said Bahoura, recalling his 1⅛ year bout with injuries. "But after a year-and-a-half I'm back, recovered. I'm the 'Great White Hope.' "

Plymouth's Andrew McDermott also will fight for LBC in the 178-pound Novice A Division. The 27-year-old McDermott, who grew up in Ireland, is 4-1 as an amateur. He will be opposed by Trenton's Shane Hanke.

McDermott spends most of his time as an engineer for Ford Motor Co. and this boxing stuff is purely a hobby.

"I came here (to the states) for fame and fortune," McDermott said. "Well, working here won't get me a fortune but it'll keep me secure."

Making his first-ever appearance in the ring in the Novice division will be Ypsilanti's Kelvin Jones, a 24-year-old training out of the LBC.

Another LBC fighter, heavyweight Juan Powers, was scheduled to fight Saturday but isn't expected to fight, according to Clements.

'Cats state champs

Noelle Beaudry (Toledo), New Boston Huron's Janet Hughes (expected to sign with Michigan or University of Detroit-Mercy), Tecumseh's Julie Oxley (EMU) and Jackson County Western's Allegra Stoetzel (Alaska-Anchorage).

Lori Young of Rochester Adams, headed for Ferris State, will also join the Wildcats in Clovis.

Thirty-five teams began AAU elimination play at two regional sites (Grand Rapids and Salem/Northville) on March 27-29.

After receiving a first-round bye, the Wildcats romped to 88-34 and 85-64 regional wins, respectively. They opened their season by winning the Waterford St. Patrick's Day Tournament.

"This is a chance to work with some of the finest players in the state," Schwan said. "We asked them to play at a fast pace and they responded well."

Marlins win quad meet

Freshman Eileen O'Connell was an impressive triple winner in the sprints Tuesday when Farmington Hills Mercy won a quadrangular girls track and field meet.

The host Marlins scored 75½ points, Riverview Gabriel Richard 44, Detroit Dominican 22½ and Highland Park 17.

O'Connell won the 100-meter dash with a 13.4 time, the 200 dash in 28.3 and the 400 dash in 1:05.3.

Mercy coach Gary Servais took the unusual step of putting the same girls in all four relays. The result was the same each time as the Marlins swept first place in the relays.

Dawn DiPonio, Kristin Lewis, Kathy Cook and Nicole Pryor won the 3,200 relay in 10:39, the 400 in 55.6, the 800 in 1:53.2 and the 1,600 in 4:29.2.

Mercy's Renee Arceno was a double winner in the field events, throwing the shot put 32 feet and the discus 90-4. Dana Wade was runner-up in the high jump (4-8) and the long jump (13-10¾).

Jennifer Worth was first in the intermediate hurdles (56.3) and second in the high hurdles (20.1). She also was runner-up to O'Connell in the 200 dash with a 29.3 finish.

The Marlins had one other winner, Heather Noll in the 3,200 run (13:20). Teammate Stephanie Johnson was second in the 800 run (2:51.7).

Mercy competes in the Jackson Invitational on Friday and will have an important Catholic League dual meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday against Dearborn Divine Child at Mercy.

Step up to a type of low-impact class

Dear Myrna: I've been told to try step aerobics. Am I going to get the same workout as low-impact aerobics? Is it at all a harmful aerobics activity? Do you have step aerobics in your studio?

Lots of good questions.

I'll start by describing step aerobics. Yes, it does have a format similar to low-impact aerobics.

It begins with a warm-up, including a stretch (approximately 10 minutes), continues with step aerobics using hand weights at times (depending on the type of class) then a cool-down step section including low-impacts, and ends with stretch training and stretching (again depending on the type of class).

The participant steps on and off a small platform rhythmically in a variation of moves.

People like step class because it's an intense workout — very controlled and safe. The basic leg movements are similar to a plain climbing machine.

Lower-body muscles, quadriceps, hamstrings, gluteals and abdominals are used to elevate your heart rate to the target range you need.

Studies show stepping can be the same as running seven miles per hour without the jarring on your skeletal system. The impact of each step is very soft, probably as low as walking. Stepping is a very safe aerobic activity.

I recommend it highly. In fact, I love teaching it.

We have many step classes in our studio. We offer a variety, Step Fat Burner, Step with Muscle, Step & Stretch and Step-N-Low.

Many other clubs around town offer step aerobics. Check it out.

Shamrocks adjust lineup to win Elks Relays crown

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

boys track

The chances of Redford Catholic Central winning the Dearborn Elks Relays didn't look good Saturday when star athlete Eric McKeon got hurt early in the track/field meet.

McKeon pulled a muscle competing in the long jump, forcing coach Tony Magni to remove him from the running relays and restructure his lineup to compensate for his loss.

Ironically but fortunately for the Shamrocks, Magni managed to construct another winning combination in those frenzied moments. CC won five events and edged Plymouth Canton for first place at Dearborn High School.

It marked the first championship for CC after more than 20 years of competing in the annual event. The Shamrocks scored 52 points, Canton 45 and the host Pioneers 29.

Other teams in order of finish were Westland John Glenn (26), Temperance Bedford (18) and Highland Park (18), the University of Detroit-Jesuit (17), Novi (15), Plymouth Salem (14), Detroit Osborn (10), Wyandotte (5), Hazel Park (3) and Livonia Franklin (0).

"IT WAS ONE of those things where you have to make some changes real quick, and I switched everybody around," Magni said. "But the guys I moved here and there did a real nice job and responded very well.

"The kids knew, without McKeon, it would be tough to do well. But, as the meet progressed, things started to snowball. Of the last six running events, we won four, so we knew we were going after it."

CC's tradition for outstanding cross country teams and fine distance runners was evident in the longer relays.

Brandon Dalziel, Damon Harris and Steve Witek were on the 3,200- and 6,400-meter relay teams that posted winning times of 8:20.4 and 19:14.4, respectively. Chris O'Keefe was the CC leadoff runner in the 3,200 race and Chris Kuzia in the 6,400.

Witek also helped the Shamrocks win the 1,600 relay. Aaron Sheposh, T.J. Kitchen, who substituted for McKeon, and Marc Eden combined with Witek for a 3:33 finish.

CC was tied with Canton going into the last event — the 1,600 relay. But Magni knew the Shamrocks were guaranteed first or second in the discus (those results had not been posted yet) and thus had clinched the victory. However, he didn't tell his relay runners that.

"I told the kids 'If you beat Canton, we can't lose' and we just nudged them," he said. "I wanted them to run a good race and do well in the mile relay."

CC ALSO WON the intermediate hurdles relay as each of four team members ran 150 meters on a straightaway. Eden, Ron DeMarco, Pat Paison and Ron Castro finished first with a 1:25 time.

The Shamrocks were first in the discus in which Joe Suhajda, Kevin Jakubowski and Doug Brzezinski combined best throws for a total distance of 354-6.

Magni inserted Sheposh into the distance medley relay to run the 1,200-meter portion in place of McKeon, and the team of Brian O'Reilly (800), Eden (400), Sheposh and John Wiktor (1,600) produced a second-place time of 11:16.4.

"Everything worked out well for us," Magni said. "All the moves I made paid off."

Suhajda, Mike Grzywacz, Nick Kallas and Brzezinski comprised the runner-up team in the shot put. CC's Kevin Roslinski, Scott Gutt and Steve Horvath got second in the high jump.

The Shamrocks had no third or fourth places but captured a pair of fifths. Without McKeon and Kitchen, the 400 and 800 relays were the only events in which CC didn't score.

The same foursome that won the intermediate hurdles also scored in the high hurdles relay (1:11.7), and Rob Clark combined with freshmen Mark Barbarich and John Scherkenbach to place in the pole vault (25-0).

Madonna tops Spring Arbor in District 23 softball games

The trip Madonna University's softball team took to Spring Arbor Tuesday proved fruitful indeed.

First, had the games been scheduled to be played in Livonia, they would have been washed out — and that would have caused more trouble for the Lady Crusaders than anything. They had only played four NAIA District 23 games prior to Tuesday's doubleheader, and all district games (12 total) are supposed to be completed by Sunday.

Fortunately, the weather in Spring Arbor cooperated — and Madonna took advantage by burying the Cougars under a two-game, 30-hit attack, sweeping to 8-4 and 9-8 wins.

"It was unbelievable the way they were hitting the ball tonight," said Madonna coach Dave Racer. It was particularly hard to figure because the Crusaders had hardly played in the previous week. A scheduled doubleheader at Northwood April 16 was rained out, and they got in just two of five games in a tournament at Indiana-Purdue at Indianapolis Friday and Saturday.

THOSE TWO games played Friday in Indianapolis ended in defeat — 5-1 to National Lewis University and 8-0 to St. Xavier, two teams from Chicago. "We hadn't played since Monday, and we were rusty," said Racer, noting three errors that led to four of National's runs.

There was no sign of rustiness against Spring Arbor. The two wins kept Madonna in second place in the district at 5-1 (18-13 overall), behind Siena Heights (7-1). Aquinas has three losses and is in third; Northwood is fourth at 4-5.

Spring Arbor fell to 4-6 with the double-defeat. Should Madonna play all six of its remaining district games, it would need to win just one to secure a playoff berth.

"This (sweep) pretty much locked up a playoff spot for us," said Racer. "Two wins against Grand Rapids Baptist would clinch it."

The Crusaders host Baptist in a 4 p.m. doubleheader at Ford Field today. They play defending district champ Siena Heights in a re-scheduled doubleheader at 11 a.m. Sunday at Plymouth's Massey Field.

MADONNA POUNDED out 16 hits in the opening victory over the Cougars, but the game was not decided until the sixth inning. The score was tied at 4-4 entering the inning, but the Crusaders pushed across four runs to take command.

Emily Skura (from Livonia Franklin) started it with a walk. Mandy Armstrong (Waterford Kettering) doubled and Jennifer Marquette singled in one run. Kim Supron (Livonia Ladywood) followed with a two-run double, and Kay Lee Davis (Waterford Mott) doubled to score Supron.

Marquette, Supron and Davis each had three hits in the game, with Supron driving in two runs and scoring two. Both Marquette and Davis had a run batted in and scored once. Holly Jondro added two hits and an RBI, and Skura had two hits and scored twice.

Freshman Tracy Vachon (Kettering) was the winning pitcher in both games, improving her record to 9-6. In the opener, she surrendered four runs on six hits and three walks. She wasn't as effective in the second game, allowing eight runs on eight hits and four walks, striking out two.

BUT THE Crusaders won, thanks to a seventh-inning rally. Armstrong started it with a single; she was sacrificed to second by Marquette and raced home with the game-winner on Supron's base hit.

It was a case of catch-up throughout for Madonna. After Jill Burt singled in a pair of runs in the first, the Cougars came back with six runs over the next three innings.

The Crusaders narrowed the gap to 6-4 with two runs in the fourth, then tied it with two in the fifth, the first on a Megan Armstrong base hit and the second on a fielder's choice from Skura.

Burt doubled in one run and Davis singled in another in the sixth to give Madonna an 8-6 lead, but the Cougars rallied to tie it in the top of the seventh.

Burt led the attack in game No. 2 with three hits, three RBI and two runs scored. Mandy Armstrong and Marquette had three hits and two runs scored apiece, and Davis contributed two hits.

Cast charms audience in 'The Voice of the Prairie'

Performances of the Theatre Guild production of "Voice of the Praire" a nostalgic comedy by John Olive, continue through May 9 at the Theatre Guild playhouse,15138 Beech Daly, one block south of Five Mile in Redford. Tickets, $7, for information call the box office at 538-5678.

Bob Weibel

Director Gail Susan Mack does a fine job of staging a piece that is perhaps as much cinematic as it is theatrical; not an easy task.

THE THEATRE Guild's "The Voice of the Prairie" is part sentimental journey, history lesson, comic farce, and poignant story of innocence lost. And it's completely charming from beginning to end.

Playwright John Olive uses flashbacks, timeshifts and a variety of locales to intertwine a tale of early radio with the personal lives of those who made it popular.

Director, Gail Susan Mack, does a fine job of staging a piece that is perhaps as much cinematic as it is theatrical; not an easy task.

The play spans an era from 1890 to the 1920s. Two sets of actors play the principal performers at different ages, as the play shifts back and forth in time.

ONE CONSTANT throughout is an opportunistic entrepreneur, played by John Eastman. His comedy is a bit broad at times, but Eastman is consistently funny as a sometimes wimpy, always flim-flammy, one-man traveling broadcaster.

He goes from town to town (about one step ahead of the law) setting up his transformer and putting local talent on the air. He sells radios to farmers with the slogan, "The magic of the ether is the wave of the future."

One day he coerces a local farm hand (Henry Bennett) in front of the microphone. Bennett could be a bit more folksy, but is he convincing as a farmer with a natural talent for telling stories from the heart, mostly about his boyhood adventures with a blind girl.

Well, our "voice" of the prairie is soon a hit. Our con man, of course, underpays him, "Prairie's big, farms few, fifty cents the best I can do."

Time shifts to an earlier time. We meet our yarn-spinner as a boy (Chris Berzac), and the blind girl (Alicia Bewernitz) who inspired the stories.

ALICIA AND Chris are Creative and Performing Arts students at Churchill High School in Livonia.

She is superb as a spunky, adventurous, young girl who isn't about to let blindness be a handicap. He creates a sympathetic character who bounced about with his hobo Irish father, and picked up his gift for telling stories.

Jackie Marns plays the father, a jailer, watermelon man, minister, newspaper vendor, farmer, and perhaps a backstage voice or two. He's terrific, talented, versatile, and fills the stage with energy and enthusiasm.

Time shifts forward, and the blind girl (now played by Mary Vinette) is a successful teacher. Vinette captures the essence of an adult coping without vision in the sighted world. She and the "voice" meet again, and in the Paul Harvey traditon of "Now You Know the Rest Of The Story," we learn that David Sarnoff, from NBC in New York, wants to make him a nationwide star.

Also appearing from CAPA are Jessica Pritchard, Sheila Yert and Patrick O'Reilly.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

David Quinn (Henry Bennett) (left), an admiring fan, Susie (Jessica Pritchard), and Leon Schwab (John Eastman) in a scene from the Theatre Guild's "The Voice of the Prairie."

Local actor appears in Hilberry production

Dan Welcher of Westland is one of eight Wayne State University undergraduate actors appearing with the Hilberry Thetare acting company in its upcoming production of Frank Galati's "The Grapes of Wrath."

This adaptation of John Steinbeck's classic novel of the Great Depression plays April 24 through May 16.

Welcher, a sophomore majoring in theater at Wayne State University, is a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School.

Among the plays in which Welcher has appeared are "Trouble in Mind," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Peter Pan" at the Bonstelle Theatre.

For tickets, call 577-2972. The Hilberry Theatre is at 4743 Cass on the campus of Wayne State University in Detroit.

Musical revue

Show understudies 'Ain't Misbehavin' '

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Ain't Misbehavin' " continue through May 17 on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

UNDERSTUDIES DONNA Lewis and Ange Smith "Ain't Misbehavin.' " If the time comes they'll be ready to step into their roles in Meadow Brook Theatre's presentation of the Tony Award-winning musical revue of over 30 songs written or made famous by "Fats" Waller, the legendary jazz musician of the 1920s and 1930s.

"I'm mesmerized. I catch myself watching them and I say 'no Donna you're supposed to be taking notes, you're supposed to be learning," said Lewis of Farmington Hills, an understudy for Julia Lema.

Other familiar musical numbers in the show include "Honeysuckle Rose," "The Joint is Jumpin'," and "Your Feet's Too Big."

The production is being staged by Broadway director/choreographer Arthur Faria. Meadow Brook's cast includes a number of performers who have been involved with the production on national, international and regional levels. Ensemble members are Eugene Barry-Hill, Clent Bowers, Julia Lema, Cynthia Thomas and Terry White.

"It's a challenge, we have to wait and watch," said Smith of Southfield, an understudy for Terry White. Both women say their roles fit their personalities. "It's like holding up a mirror, you see your double," said Lewis.

"MISS Julia is very a flighty, flirty bubbly person. She's very energetic," said Lewis, who describes herself as someone who loves people, and likes people to get to know her.

"I play a very outfront, earthy person," said Smith. "If she wants a man she's shows him what she's got. She's a tough lady, not shy. I'm a very direct person. It's one of the characteristics things he (Faria) saw. He said, 'you wouldn't be here if I didn't see something.' It's really an honor to work with someone of this caliber."

Being an understudy presents a challenge for each of these talented women. They've never done it before.

Lewis, a graduate of Albion College, recently performed at Detroit's Attic Theatre in "Cruisin' Detroit the Hard Way," and appeared in "Showboat" with the Michigan Opera Theatre Co. Look for her on Channel 7 in June, she's hosting "Fast Forward" a children's show.

SMITH SINGS in a wide variety of styles from jazz to classical and gospel. She has performed at jazz festivals in Italy, New York and Detroit, in television commercials, at the Attic Theatre and Michigan Opera Theatre.

The mother of three grown children, Smith also paints and teaches art at Emerson Middle School in Detroit.

"I came up with music," said Smith. "My mother was a music teacher. I used to sing duets with my sister. I was four, she was five. My mother made us study the piano. When I was five or six, I discovered I could draw, I never thought I'd have a career in music. I went to Cass Tech and wanted to be a fashion designer. Then I got married."

She stayed home to raise her two sons, and daughter, but never gave up her dreams. "We used to have family art exhibits," she said. "When I went to college I discovered I could sing. It sort of snowballed. I remember saying I would go back to the theater, but I put off a lot of things. I wanted to be a good mom. They wanted me home, and I needed to be home."

With her children grown, Smith dreams of going to Broadway, and would like to have her own jazz group. Art, visual and performing, is her passion. She's taught for 15 years and fondly recalls the time the school wheeled a piano into her classroom after she mentioned it would be nice to have a glee club.

New leases fill shopping malls full-scale return to the good times, but all the signs are encouraging.

"The difference between now and a couple years ago is we're seeing mainly the bigger retailers with 2,500 square feet (or more) looking for space," he said. "That's mostly the national and regional chains."

"When you're looking at it from a size category, there aren't as many operating out of the 1,200-square-foot spaces."

As for the smaller mom and pop stores and franchises, Sullivan said he isn't seeing much movement in that category.

Sullivan said he doesn't really expect the smaller retailers and entrepreneurs to start opening shops and expanding until the economy shows more concrete signs of improvement.

"You're seeing a few in the smaller operations, mostly restaurants, and food carryouts — those are beginning to move, but the mom and pops are going to be a little more conservative."

The larger national and regional chains are going to be better capitalized and better able to take the risks than the smaller retailers — that's why the large regional malls with national and large regional retailers are better able to withstand up and down swings in the economy.

Shopping centers adjacent to the major malls are likely to be the first to show signs of pulling out of the recession, followed closely by the power centers anchored by major retailers, he said. The neighborhood centers will recover more slowly.

Sullivan also said that despite the difference between the customer bases and the retail mix at its two major clients — Oak Pointe with its heavier emphasis on value-oriented shopping and Novi Towne Center with its heavier emphasis on upscale shopping — both seem to be experiencing a similar increase in interest and leasing.

'That's not to say there hasn't been fallout, there is fallout, but there is net absorption.'

Annual reports: both form and substance

Kmart produces the financial statements and text for its annual report in-house.

"AN ANNUAL report is used for many things," Lorencz said. "They communicate with shareholders and the investment community. They're used in working with the media. We get many requests from educators and students studying retailing.

"They're used sort of as a marketing tool for vendors, people we want to sell in our stores," she added.

Most annual reports leave a lot to be desired, Ghelardi said.

"Typically, reports are written for management like a narcisstic exercise," he said. "It turns out to be a public relations blurb at the front and financial statements in back don't mean much. The front typically doesn't have much to do with the back.

"Companies that really know their mission — the basic report is done before they start," Ghelardi said. "If they haven't worked that out in advance, the message is obscure. The difficulty is getting everybody in the company on the same page."

'It can take anywhere from six months to nine months putting all the financials and all other information together.'

Producing annual reports is a $4-billion business.

Corporate annual reports: Part form, part substance

By Doug Funke
staff writer

'Tis the season for corporate annual reports.

Publicly owned companies, by law, must check in with shareholders prior to annual meetings. Basic requirements include financial statements, management discussion and analysis of operations, and a list of directors and officers.

Legal requirements could be met in a fairly straightforward manner with text and numbers. But the production of annual reports has gone beyond the simple. Some exceed 50 pages with color pictures, glitzy layout, snappy graphics and glossy paper.

"I understand it's a $5 billion business worldwide," said Robert Ghelardi, editor of Corporate Annual Report, a newsletter based in Chicago. Production costs a couple years ago averaged $3.25 per copy, he added.

Kmart, the retailing giant headquartered in Troy, printed about 200,000 reports this year, said Mary L. Lorencz, public communications manager who's responsible for its production.

She declined to divulge specific cost figures.

"It can take anywhere from six months to nine months putting all the financials and all other information together," Lorencz said. "There's no special committee. I'm in communications. We get a feeling for what the CEO and investor relations feel our shareholders should know."

MANY CORPORATIONS like Kmart and Core Industries, a manufacturer of electronics, farm equipment and fluid controls headquartered in Bloomfield Hills, hire outside designers to help pull the report together.

This year, Core used Pangeorn Design from Detroit. Kmart contracted with Pentgram Design from New York City.

"I like to deal with local people," said Neil C. Wester, chief financial officer for Core who is responsible for its annual report. "When the design production process begins, you need people close by who can respond quickly."

Photographers are contracted as needed, but Core and Kmart try to use pictures already taken for promotional advertising efforts in the annual reports.

Handleman, a Troy-based distributor of music tapes and discs, videos and computer software, subcontracted virtually its entire 1991 report.

Creative Design Board did the design work, Financial Relations Board wrote most of the copy. Both are in Chicago.

"WE GIVE them ideas. They do the detail — designing and writing," said Tom Braum, corporate controller for Handleman. "They'll bring a half dozen cover designs, ideas on themes."

Braum served on the annual report committee with a representative of the company's merchandising, advertising and finance departments.

"The goal of the report — that's a difficult question," Braum said. "Each member of the committee would probably say something different.

"There's legal requirements. We want to make sure current and potential shareholders know what our goal is, know what the company is about, what it's trying to achieve and be advised about its financial strengths and opportunities."

External costs of producing and mailing the report are in a range of $2.50-$3 per copy, Braum said. More than 20,000 were printed last year.

Core, on the other hand, does much of its report internally, Wester said. He starts working on the project in June and July and mails after Thanksgiving.

"AFTER WE resolve the basis of design, we start collecting photo subjects," Wester said. "Simultaneouosly, I interview operating divisions and obtain highlights of the past year. I'm functioning as a news reporter. We sort through that, organize an outline and build text around the outline."

Thomas Hooper, treasurer and controller, prepares management's discussion and analysis when the financial numbers come together in the middle of September, Wester said. The budget year ends Aug. 31.

"I'll review what Hooper has drafted," Wester said. "I'm looking for clarity, simplicity and consistency of style from front to back. One individual, I feel, has to be overseeing the whole product. We don't do that by committee here."

The chairman gets a final look-see and approval before printing.

Wester pegged production cost at $2.50 per copy and 20,000 were printed last year.

What to look for when skimming financial reports

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Accountants agree that an independent auditor's unqualified opinion about the reliability of information is one of the most important parts of an annual financial report.

But the numbers themselves, management's discussion of performance, and the footnotes to the statements taken together provide insight into the health of a corporation. That is, if you know what to look for and how to interpret the information.

First things first.

The income statement indicates whether a business sustained a profit or a loss during a 12-month period.

The balance sheet lists assets, liabilties, and equity — shareholders' ownership.

The cash flow statement indicates sources and uses of corporate cash and money equivalents throughout the year.

Don't try to read an annual report like a book from cover to cover, beginning to end, accountants advise. You'll probably get bogged down.

"I READ footnote by footnote and relate back to each financial statement it refers to," said Mark D. Rottermond, a partner in the accounting firm of Mathews, Reich, Perna and Rottermond in Bingham Farms. "One cannot be considered without the other."

After coming to your own conclusions about the financial health of the company, and perhaps formulating questions, study management's analysis, Rottermond suggested. "If you don't like what you read, why would you want to invest with them?"

Chuck Dunleavy, managing partner of BDO Seidman's Troy office, offered other pointers.

"I'd look for continuity of management. Clearly, if people are jumping around, it would lead one to believe there's some instability there."

He also gives much weight to management's discussion.

"I would look at their plan for next year. Does it make sense in the existing business climate? If they lost $5 million last year and say they'll make $5 million this year, is that realistic?

"HAVE FINANCIAL trends been consistent from year to year? You can't ignore one year's performance, but you have to look at the big picture," he said.

Dunleavy also investigates a less obvious but major issue that every report should address — is major litigation in process or pending?

Rick Valade, a partner with Arthur Andersen, finds that a few simple numbers can provide a quick overview.

"The first thing I look at on the income statement is the net earnings line. I look at sales trends, also. On the balance sheet, I quickly check current assets to current liabilities. That tells me how much working capital is there.

"For cash flow, the first subtotal line is cash provided by operating activities. You want that to be a positive number and a growing number. A company not generating cash from operations, long term — that will kill you.

"I think the big thing (readers) should look at is something carved in the middle of the report — management's discussion and analysis. It's dry reading and it's going to run a couple of pages. It not only tells you what happens but why," Valade said.

Percentages rather than raw numbers are more meaningful when comparing long-term results, Rottermond said. That's because the value of the dollar decreases over time.

If you have questions about a report or need help interpreting some of the figures, feel free to contact the company's investor relations representative or treasurer for clarification.

They're also listed in the report.

National firms, franchises lead uptick in retail leasing activity

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Cross your fingers, throw some salt over your shoulder, rub a horseshoe, squeeze a rabbit's foot — just don't jinx what may be the beginning of signs of an upswing in retail space leasing.

If leasing is up, the economy can't be too far behind.

After months of recession, retail spacing in the major power centers and strip centers seems to be picking up.

Michael Lippett, retail specialist of Landmark Commercial Real Estate Services Inc. in Birmingham, said leasing activity and inquiries have increased sharply in recent months.

"That's not to say there hasn't been fallout, there is fallout, but there is net absorption," he said. Companies continue to close, he said, but enough space is being leased to offset the failure rate.

Lippett said he's encouraged by the amount of inquiries and leasing activity. "I would have to say the strip centers are a better indicator (of whether the economy is improving)," he said.

"Malls are a world unto their own," he said. Much of the space in the enclosed malls, even if it looks vacant to most shoppers, is already having plans made for it.

STRIP CENTERS are more susceptible to swings in the economy, he said. "Every center has a built-in vacancy rate," he said. The typical strip center is between 5 and 10 percent. Lippett said his firm hasn't done its annual market survey yet, but he would guess that vacancies in the shopping centers and power strip centers near the malls and along the major retail corridors like Woodward Avenue and Orchard Lake in Oakland County and Ford Road in Wayne County is hovering just below 10 percent.

The neighborhood strip centers are seeing higher rates, he said. "They will fill up, but at a slower rate."

Several things are contributing to the leasing resurgence, but perhaps the most interesting is the increase in business startups — mainly mom and pop stores or franchises.

Because of the recession, people have left jobs or lost jobs or they have money from employee buyouts or severance pay — they're rolling that money over into new businesses, he said. "People do have money to spend."

It's also worth noticing, he said, that there continues to be an influx of national companies into the metropolitan Detroit market.

"Things were beginning to pick up last January until the war came — that kind of put things on hold," he said. After the war, Lippett said leasing increased but at a very slow rate.

Lippett said the retail mix has also been changing in recent months. Three or more years ago, there were many more general merchandise shops opening; today, much of the retail leasing is being done by category killers — stores that specialize in one specific area like Office Max — or franchises.

Following closely are the entrepreneurs who focus on specialty niches — much of it service oriented. "Believe it or not, there are still a lot of pizza shops opening up," he said.

JIM STOKAS, vice president of commercial properties at CB Commercial in Southfield, said his firm has also seen an increase in retail leasing in the shopping centers throughout the area.

Part of that increase, he said, is attributed to current leases expiring and existing retailers repositioning themselves, Stokas said, but there are new businesses starting up and national retailers entering the market.

One reason national companies have begun locating in metropolitan Detroit, he said, is because the market is viewed by many of these companies to be underserved.

Also, because of the advertising mechanisms present in this state, locating in metropolitan Detroit is not that much different from positioning oneself for the whole state, Stokas said.

With statewide circulation in major newspapers and the ability to reach the state through cable television and to a lesser extent broadcast television, it is fairly simple to branch out and reach other areas of the state, he said.

Another reason for the increase in leasing activity, he said, is the slump in construction activity.

Over the natural course of the economy, businesses will start up, exist and fail. Existing businesses will expand. Well-capitalized retailers will take advantage of down times by expanding.

That means there has been a corresponding increase in demand, he said. "With a lack of new construction, some space is going to be leased up by new business even in the worst of times."

Many of the major tenants who might have previously built space or leased space in new construction are taking a second look at existing space, he said.

GREG SULLIVAN, property manager with the Linder Co. which manages the Oak Pointe Center in Pontiac and the Novi Towne Center in Novi, said retail leasing seems to be in an upswing.

"Retailers seem to be moving again."

Sullivan said he wouldn't call it a

Fashions are short, sassy, much more

BOB DYLAN WASN'T known for his warbling, but one of his musical hits lamented about "The times they are a-changin'."

It may have been meant for the social changes of the '60s, but it's applicable today. Just like "This is not your father's Oldsmobile," so it is in the 1990s that "This is not your mother's prom dress."

Where hooped-skirted formals with elbow-length gloves and bunny furs were once standard dress for proms, today's young woman can be found wearing a prom dress that goes from a party-length above the knees to the floor.

Her date may wear a white dinner jacket with black lapels with outrageously bright colored or patterned accessories. The parental car has been replaced with a rented limousine.

About the only thing that has stayed the same is the corsage and boutonniere.

"When I was in high school, you went to a bridal shop for a prom dress. Stores just didn't carry those things," said M.J. Burns, fashion director for the 20 J.L. Hudson stores.

Now they do, and in stores like Hudson's and Jacobson's, there are four fashion trends showing up.

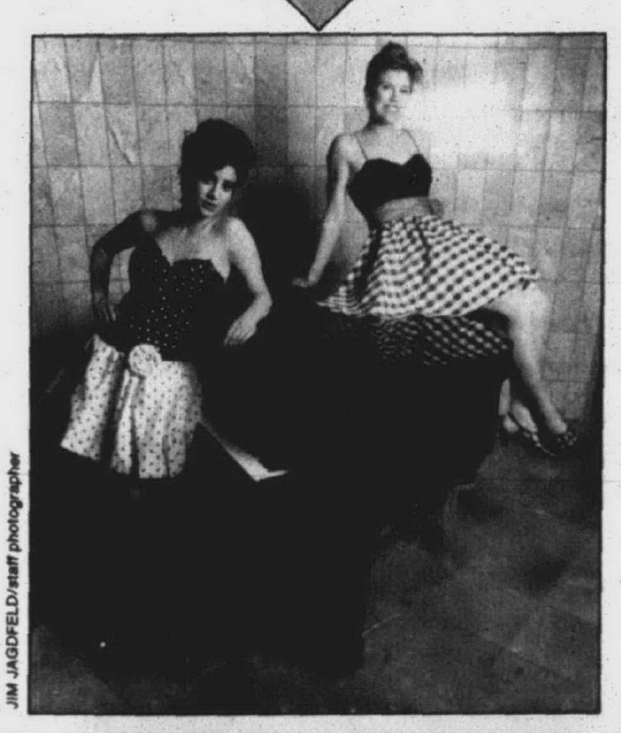
"SKIRTS ARE interesting this year because there's so much to choose from," said Linda Gunderson of Jacobson's. "They can choose a party length of just above the knee, a bubble skirt or high/low, and they're not just wearing them to the prom."

Shearing, puckering and embellishments of lace, sequins, pearls and beading can be found on today's prom dresses. Taffeta is popular among fabrics this year in both solids and patterns such as polka dots, florals and tablecloth checks.

And although black is still basic color for party attire, there are also bright colors in navy blue, fuschia, purple, emerald green, red and royal blue. There are, according to Gunderson, a few in white and pastel colors of pink and coral.

The daring young lady may dance the evening away in a short-'n'-sassy strapless bustier style dress with an eggplant-colored skirt and gold bodice or in a bright fuschia-colored satin or go with a figure-hugging style reminiscent of Oscar night.

For the shorter styles, detailing include the bubble and off-the-shoulder looks in taffeta, satin and lace. Detailing can include tiers of lace, ruffles and bows.



JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Bari Jay has come up with a party-length dress, featuring a black sequin bustier with black and white gingham check taffeta skirt, red sash and rosette, priced at $169 at Jacobson's.

THE COLUMN look features a very narrow sexy fit with a side or back slit to allow for movement. Done in satins, the style has a lot of detail, such as sequins, at the shoulder, Burns said.

An example would be the black-and-white satin gown with tulip hem and portrait collar, by Zum Zum, available at Hudson's at $138.

If those styles aren't her cup of tea, there's the fit-'n'-flare attitude — fitted at the waist and flaring out with a tooling or a chiffon skate skirt.

"You've never seen tooling on the outside of a dress until this year," Burns said. "Usually, it's used underneath as a stiffener."

The fitted silhoutte also turns up in halter styles in brocades, satin, lame and tulle, and detailing includes belted waists, beaded collars and lace accents.

Two good examples are Bari Jay's fuschia halter dress with a fitted waist and pearl and bead collar, priced at $179 at Jacobson's, or Scarlett Nite's blue halter dress, embellished with gold beads and jewel stones, priced at $128 at Hudson's.

THE LAST trend is the high/low or asymmetrical look. The style can have short-to-long hemlines from front to back or side to side. They're turning up in taffeta, satin and lame with lace overlays, with bows at the shoulder,.

Zum Zum has come up with a white lace asymmetrical with flared skirt, available at $164 at Hudson's.

Mom's prom accessories meant dyed shoes, and today's high schooler can choose dyables, but there's also fabric pumps in jewel-tones of red, blue and emerald or kid leather to match her dress. If those colors don't delight her, there are brushed, toned silver and gold styles.

Handbags can be beaded or lace overlay with shoulder straps and satin or patent leather with or without straps.

Where yesteryear's formals called for shawls and fur wraps, today's styles lend themselves to cloth coats. Burns sees a larger use of snazzy raincoats with prom dresses for the cool evenings.

"There are cute little gold and silver trenches that would be a perfect coverup," she said. "It can be worn over a pair of leggings with a white T-shirt during the day and over a nice dress in the evening. It moves fabulously through a wardrobe from day to evening."

Toss in some rhinestone, crystal or pearl cluster of drop earrings, maybe a matching choker and, voila! all that's left is the date and the flowers.

Unfortunately, today's prom fashions don't come with the date.

Writer is at best in structured life

Lorene Green

Hi,

I am right handed, 20 years old and recently married. My husband and I are currently in the process of buying a home.

I think as the years go by my handwriting and the legibility of it decreases, but people still tell me that it's very neat. It does vary drastically depending on how quickly I'm writing, so I hope this is somewhere in between.

R.A.

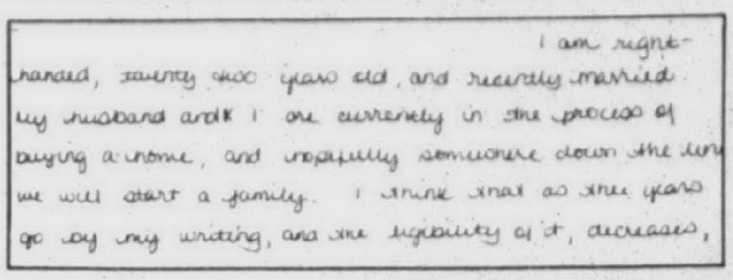
Yes, indeed, this handwriting is very neat! One's handwriting can vary somewhat depending on time, mood, to whom it is written, etc. However, since I have no other sample for comparison my comments will be directed to the handwriting of this letter.

The handwriting today was written by a sensitive young woman who exercises a great deal of self-control. Her outward demeanor is poised and controlled by judgment rather than feelings.

Caution is a trait with which she is familiar. Actions and decisions are rarely impulsive. She needs to get the facts before involving herself emotionally.

This is a rather rigid woman who is at her best in a structured life. When things do not go as planned she can become unraveled.

Our writer is a bright young woman. However, she seems to have only a limited interest in abstract theories.



The handwriting suggests that her main area of interest centers in the here and now. The mundane seems to be a high priority area. Each and every detail of daily living is important!

Disciplined, conscientious and well organized are outstanding qualities here. Her work reflects the perfection for which she strives. Ostensibly, she has not learned that in this imperfect world perfection is the impossible dream. She might feel more at peace with herself if she could just work toward her best effort and forget perfection.

Fulfillment is lacking in this handwriting sample. She may want to analyze this situation.

She values peace, harmony and beauty in her surroundings. Her home, work and appearance would be clean, neat and orderly. No dirty dishes would be found in her sink. And she has a place for everything and things must be in their proper place for her to relax.

In her interpersonal relationships, she is slow to anger. She wants to sail along smoothly and not rock the proverbial boat. And while she is often self-involved, she can also feel empathy for those in her world. A little intuition weaves through this handwriting.

From the formative years, she learned to control her feelings and be obedient to parental expectations. Wanting to love and acceptance, as we all do to some degree, she became the dutiful daughter. However, she appears to have a yearning to be independent and free of parental restraints. This may present a conflict as she often finds herself needing the mother figure for emotional support. Ambivalent feelings probably result and need attention.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And object feedback is welcome. Time does not allow Lorene Green to mail personal replies.

Health fair to look at the alternatives

The Ford Motor Women's Club will again take a look at all types of health alternatives when it sponsors its annual wholistic health fair Sunday, May 3.

The fair will be at the Grand Manor at Fairlane 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. that day and will allow visitors to look at their physical, mental, emotional and spiritual being through displays, lectures and screenings.

According to Donna Williams, the club's education chairperson, people at the fair can do things for their physical health, such as body work to relieve stress and increase circulation, use exercise equipment to tone and build muscles, use air filters to improve the quality of the air they breathe, use water filters to remove harmful chemicals from the water they drink and eat healthier foods in general.

Additional help is available at the fair from herbs, supplements and other remedies and free health checks for blood pressure, eyesight and hearing.

"Mentally, people can increase their knowledge through health books, cassette tapes, health videos and free lectures," Williams said. "Some videos and tapes can also teach people how to relax and how to use affirmations to create new behavior or break bad habits."

The free lectures will be presented on the hour starting at 10:15 a.m with Mark Roby who will discuss "How to Heal Yorself — Dr. Jampolsky's Attitudinal Healing Principles to Empower Your Life" and Ken Levy on the Kaerobics Workout, combining effective self-defense with a safe, easy workout for the mind and body.

OTHER TOPICS include:

Things used to be a lot less complicated.

True. Things were much more simple back about 70 years ago, but today is a lot easier with microwave ovens and automatic transmissions.

And there's one thing hasn't changed much at all. People still buy and sell household goods and automobiles in our classified columns. We've been around for more than a century and we know that classifieds work as well today as they did back then. Probably better.

Memory lane is now a super highway and life has changed a lot, but a classified ad in your hometown newspaper will still do a bang-up job for you!

Art and religion: Mutual distrust

(AP) — The works of art have sent imaginations soaring to the heavens for centuries — Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel, Botticelli's "Spring," Leonardo da Vinci's "Virgin and Child with St. Anne."

Twentieth-century artists such as Wassily Kandinsky and Mark Rothko continued to produce works with profound spiritual content, but what once was a symbiotic relationship between art and religion has deteriorated into one of mutual distrust in many quarters.

On the extremes, many religious leaders cannot look beyond an Andres Serrano exhibit of a crucifix soaked in urine in forming their opinion of modern art, while those in the artistic community see religion as part of the crusade to eliminate federal funding for works some consider pornographic or blasphemous.

Into this tense atmosphere, one of history's great art patrons — the Vatican — has stepped in to try and begin to bridge the gulf.

"It may sound banal, but if there is ignorance and mutual suspicion, it is best to meet and to share ideals," said Cardinal Paul Poupard, president of the Pontifical Council for Dialogue with Non-Believers. "We meet around a certain idea of humanity.

"The church is in charge of good and the artist is in charge of beauty. The good needs the beautiful to express itself."

A RECENT conference on "Religion and the Arts" at Fordham University in New York was the council's first formal dialogue with artists, but the recent effort to develop a new understanding of the relation between religion and art goes back to Pope Paul VI, who established a museum of modern art in the Vatican in the 1960s.

When Pope John Paul II visited the United States in 1987, he quoted Pope Paul VI in telling the entertainment community in Hollywood that the church is not asking artists to play the role of moralists, "but we are expressing confidence in your mysterious power of opening up the glorious regions of light that lie behind the mystery of human life."

But problems remain in relations between the church and the artistic community.

"I think they're miles apart, to be honest with you," said painter Adam Cvijanovic. "While there's obviously some common ground, the differences are really huge."

Poupard and others in the dialogue said many within the church have difficulty understanding the freedom to create demanded by the vocation, or with others lack the sophistication to appreciate abstract art.

But there is a similar dogmatic resistance to the church in the art world, dialogue participants said.

FOR EXAMPLE, Cvijanovic said, while Serrano's "tedious" work is acceptable within the art community, "what would not be acceptable is a piece glorifying Jesse Helms."

By holding prejudices against the church that are canonical in their own way, the artistic community is tending to ignore its own history, Cvijanovic said.

"That's too bad because art is always a spiritual inquiry," he said.

That many of the great spiritual works of the 20th century have been abstract is but one of the ironies that abound in the current dialogue. Both sides agree there is substantial common ground.

The style has changed, but many works of modern art still "will actually be extremely serious inquiries into the relation of form and spirit," Cvijanovic said.

And while some within the modern art world hold a "belief in unbelief even to the point of martyrdom," both artists and the church share a common enemy of a culture that dehumanizes individuals, said Joseph Mascheck, an art critic and associate professor of art history at Hofstra University.

But the problem lies in where one draws standards for evaluating art.

Particularly in the selection of religious art to be used for worship, the church has a criticial role, Poupard said.

"THE CHURCH is a guardian of the message received from Christ, the Gospel, and this message has content," he said.

Poupard would measure art by whether it enhances or detracts from human dignity.

"A false culture is one that embitters or degrades the human," he said.

But artists who are supicious of any definitions of terms such as faith, truth or beauty may have more modest ambitions.

Mascheck sees the potential for dialogue in starting out by recognizing concerns over the art of someone like Serrano.

"What is revolting to me is his tasteful blasphemy. Baudelaire himself would retch," Mascheck said.

But he would also ask the cardinal or other church leaders to recognize in the performance art of Karen Finley, which sometimes includes smearing her nude body with chocolate, an important message about the exploitation of women.

"We know about art; they know about faith. And we'll just have to work out the overlap," Mascheck said.

In the end, dealing with subjects such as faith and religion may best be a mystery left to the "sensum fidelium" — sense of the faithful, the cardinal said.

"You can help toward the discernment of art, but you cannot impose your taste on people," Poupard said. "It's a mysterious give-and-take."

WHEN Dr. Miroslaw and Anna Hnatiuk left Zalistchyky in the western part of the Ukraine in 1949, they knew their homeland would remain always in their hearts as long as Pysanky (decorated Easter eggs) filled their home.

From a handful of Ukrainian eggs obtained after their departure, the Hnatiuks' Pysanky collection grew to include more than 1,000 of the beautifully hand-decorated Ukrainian Easter eggs, 300 of which are on display through April 29 in the Livonia Arts Commission's showcases on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road at Five Mile.

"For over 3,000 years, this is Ukrainian tradition," said Dr. Hnatiuk said. "This tradition is carried in all Ukrainian homes throughout the world. In Detroit, there are several masters of this art who are entitled to be called an artist of this type of art."

Sparkling in a kaleidoscope of colors, ranging from deep red to yellow and black, the eggs on display are deftly decorated with intricately rendered deer, horses, birds and flowers, all of them symbols emblazoned on eggs for hundreds of years.

"The one case all the eggs came from Ukraine," Anna Hnatiuk said. "Ukrainian are nature lovers."

From the collection of Dr. Miroslaw and Anna Hnatiuk, Ukrainian-decorated Easter eggs range in size from the smallest chicken egg to ostrich eggs, which cost more than $300.

DR. HNATIUK stresses to the novice viewer that Ukrainian Easter eggs are colored with written, not painted, decorations. The root word for Pysanky, "pysaty," means to write. The eggs are written on with melted beeswax dispensed through a tool named "kistka."

Pysanky traditionally are decorated during the 40-day season of Lent, the most important holiday on the church calendar in Ukraine.

Exchanged between family members on Easter day, Pysanky celebrate the joyful holiday when life overcame death and spring rises from the earth after a long, hard winter. At the beginning of dinner on Easter day, a Pysanka is divided among the assembled members with each sharing the egg.

"This is Ukrainian tradition. Tradition is in every Ukrainian home," Anna Hnatiuk said. "In Lent time, even the grandchildren do. It's a lesson to do Pysanky."

Livonia show a kaleidoscope of art

By Linda Ann Chomin

From floral watercolors to abstract clay wallhangings and horse sculpture, the 82-piece Artifacts Art Club exhibition in Livonia promises a visual experience for lovers of a variety of art media.

The spring show runs through April 30 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road at Five Mile.

Hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission and the city of Livonia, the show features 28 club members working in oil, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, colored pencil, pen and ink, clay, photography, sculpture and mixed media.

"We have a lot of exciting work in the show," said Kathleen Erngren, exhibit coordinator.

"Art can bring so much not only to the artist but to the person viewing the art. When they look at a piece, it brings back something they haven't thought about in a long time. It evokes a feeling,they haven't felt for awhile. What someone hates, someone else loves."

THE CLUB prides itself on being comprised of beginner as well as experienced artists.

Its latest exhibit was juried for content and framing only by club founder David Messing and club member Susan VanDeVenter Warner.

Forget the train; book offers vicarious tour of Vietnam

Steve Barnaby

JUST FOR A second, imagine yourself stepping back in time by taking a 1,250-mile trip in a train powered by a 1930s-style locomotive through one of the most beautiful and exotic tropical regions of the world.

Consider also that it will take you anywhere from 48 to 58 hours to complete the trip in passenger cars overloaded with people, pigs, produce and chickens.

Well, maybe not such a good idea.

But that's all right. The fun in reading one of the newer releases from Insight Guides is the vicarious adventure it offers to those who may be reluctant to make the journey on the Reunification Train which travels from Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) to Hanoi, the capital of Vietnam.

A cult of admirers has grown up around the Insight publications, which are attuned for both the serious traveler and those interested in actually learning more about a region in which they have an interest.

Best known for their beautiful photography, the Insight Guides are also one of the best written guides in existence, verging nearly on the literary.

The Vietnam edition was crafted by a team of editors, photographers, scholars and writers who share a love for this beautiful land and its equally fascinating peoples.

As the publishers explain, this reference guide reveals the "mystery of the unknown, the many gaps in our knowledge of the country . . . its captivating literature . . . ancient past, the traditional hospitality of its people and the wonders of its varied landscape."

THOSE OF US who have traveled to Vietnam since the war's end can attest to the guide's importance to those who intend on making the trek. I only wish I had had this guide available when last traveling to Vietnam in 1989.

In those days, few westerners thought of making the trip and even fewer were welcome. Our entourage was "invited guests." But much has changed in those short years. Our government is gradually lifting its restrictions on relations with Vietnam, although we still withhold official diplomatic relations. The Vietnamese government, for its part, is trying hard to foster deeper links with the west and is building a tourist industry around its exciting cities and beautiful beaches.

It is very obvious that the editors went out of their way to portray Vietnam in its entirety, that is, with as little emphasis as possible on America's military involvement. A sound decision, considering our brief tenure in that country's internal affairs.

As one who fought in the war and has since become deeply enmeshed in studying the culture and history of Vietnam, I can assure you that Vietnam stands very well on its own.

A short chapter is included on American involvement in Vietnam written by photographer Tim Page which is a bit gratuitous toward Vietnam vets. But perhaps that is to be expected. Few signs of our involvement remain and returning veterans will most often only find empty fields and bare mountainsides over which to reflect.

THE INSIGHT GUIDE will provide you with a well-written history of this country which struggled for 1,000 years before garnering its independence, as well as a brief bibliography of further readings to enhance your knowledge. Although not comprehensive, the non-fiction list is well-rounded.

The authors take you from region to region, elaborating on the diversity of cultures and peoples in each. To understand Vietnam is to understand that it is the melting pot of Asia, with indigenous tribes mixing with Khmer, Chinese and those from the Pacific Isles.

And the country reflects that diversity in many ways today, from its food to its politics. Despite unification southerners and northerners still don't trust each other very much.

Important to the book are many maps, quite good, and its array of spectacular color photos. A more personal look at Saigon would have been appreciated by those of us who are held by that city's special fascination. But that is slight criticism considering the enormous task faced in publishing such a volume.

"The beginners revive the newness of the experienced artists," Erngren said. "I'm enthusiastic about Artifacts. I got into the club in 1986. Art was all very new to me. The members were real supportive. It was a positive experience."

"We wanted everyone to have a piece in this show," said Sherry Eid, club president. "The club has been extemely helpful. We had eight members here to help hang the show."

Eid has two pieces in the show, one of which is "Cuna Indian," a delicately rendered colored pencil drawing. Colored pencil is notoriously time consuming. The viewer is drawn as if by a magnet to the multiple strands of pink beads the Indian wears.

ERNGREN HAS four pieces in the show, a collage, two watercolors and a mixed media consisting of watercolor and colored pencil. From the beginning, Erngren's work was rendered in colored pencil before a move to pastel.

"Pastels were so much freer. Then I discovered the freedom of watercolor. I'm drawn to watercolor. I like it because it has a softness to it. I prefer something that's a little magical," Erngren said.

Her instructors have included watercolor and collage artist Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills.

"Probably without the support and encouragement from Edee Joppich, I might have all but given up. She's really inspired me," Erngren said.

Rhonda Hargraves' colored pencil portrait of a squirrel eating bird seed scattered inside a red "Flyer" wagon is a showstopper. Rendered on a black background, "The Bird Feeder" brings delight to the coldest of hearts.

The People's Choice Award and the Artifacts Members' Award will be announced at the club meeting on April 28.

NEARLY ALL Artifacts members share the common denominator of studying art at one time or another at David Messing's Art Store & More in Livonia.

"Before starting the club, we sent out flyers and polled the artists in the area, asking what attributes they'd like in a club, to see as far as an art club if there was something different we could do," Messing said.

"People wanted time to talk to other artists, so we scheduled 45 minutes. They wanted a vehicle for art shows, an instruction time. In May, we're going to be in my animation studio. Artists wanted a brotherhood type of club and a very positive critiquing session."

Over time, the club grew to 90 members who meet at 7 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of the month in the Livonia Civic Center Library. April's guest lecturer is sculptor/clay artist Mark Chatterley.

Messing, a columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers from 1983 to 1991, graduated from Wayne State University, where he studied sculpture and commercial art. He has three pieces in the show, a pastel portrait on velvet, cast handmade paper, and a wood sculpture.

"I was really pleased with the show. I was impressed with the variety of media. The club has been around such a short time," said arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw, who directs the monthly art shows at city hall.

Prices in the show range from $45 to $1,000 for a diptych.

Show hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday.

decoration illustrate the many stages that eggs go through before they become Pysanky. Other shelves spotlight an entire church written upon a single goose egg.

FROM THE smallest lilliput chicken eggs to large ostrich eggs that cost over $300 each, detailed designs and colors reveal differences, dependent upon the Ukrainian region in which the artist lives.

A map of Ukraine rests on an easel alongside the showcase. Eggs as varied as the Ukrainian artists who created them dot over regions on the map.

"Different techniques, different designs throughout Ukraine," said Dr. Hnatiuk as he extends his arm proudly toward the showcase.

"There are 52 million in Ukraine, over 10 million living outside Ukraine in Australia, Canada, in every country. How popular the Easter eggs are in Canada, the largest of Ukrainian settlement."

In Alberta, an aluminum Pysanka towers 3½ stories into the sky, a tribute to the Ukrainians who settled in Vegreville 100 years ago, and to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who helped them.

Tradition and legend surround the Pysanky.

"A tradition comes from the villages, an expression of love. The day after Easter, the boys in the villages would sprinkle water on the girls' backs. The girls would turn around and give them an Easter egg," Dr. Hnatiuk said.

THE UKRAINIAN art of Pysanky needs to be kept alive and appreciated by more people. 'Our plans are to open a museum, Livonia Museum of Ukrainian Art," Dr. Hnatiuk said.

"The museum would display not only Easter eggs, bur Ukrainian embroidery, ceramics, woodcrafts and costumes, providing that we will find an interested philanthropist in Livonia who could help to carry out the idea."

The Hnatiuks said some of the other activities of the museum would be to hold classes of how to make the Easter eggs, embroidery, ceramics and other art topics'

"We just have to find time now to do this display," Dr. Hnatiuk said.

Wynne Reeves paints large works featuring elephantine or eel-like creatures.

Area artist chooses work in grand scale

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Wynne Reeves does things in a big way.

It isn't just that Reeves, who grew up in Birmingham and graduated from Seaholm High School in 1981, is an artist who paints large works (one, for example, measuring 4 feet 10 inches by 13 feet 4½ inches), many of them of elephantine figures.

But her art is a big part of her life, as well. Reeves opened her first exhibit Friday in Chicago's Crux Gallery. The one-person show will continue to May 13.

REEVES IS an example of how important it can be to trust your feelings. When she started making the images about five years ago, she concluded that she had to start anew.

"I felt like I was getting too intellectual in my approach and . . . too involved and not giving enough," said Reeves, who was born in Royal Oak. "I also just felt in the bottom of my heart it wasn't quite right, it wasn't vital enough.

"If you're going to try to be a good painter it has to be practically a religion to you."

IN HIGH school, Reeves was known for her activities in theater and music. Her art interests were secret.

"I needed privacy, I guess. I guess it was something developing."

She wasn't sure what to do in college, and again was involved with music and drama. A music teacher encouraged her to continue singing. But Reeves went with her own feelings.

"I wanted to be creating. (With singing) you are singing other people's music and (composing music) didn't feel right. When I created it came out in an artistic way through paintings."

Reeves graduated from Principia College in Illinois and took graduate level courses in 1984 and 1985 at the Vermont Studio School. She was accepted at the Columbia University graduate program for painting in New York City.

She lived and worked in New York City for six years, and recently moved to Howell, Mich. She renovated part of an old barn for studio space.

REEVES CHARACTERIZES her work as "discerning and hopeful" rather than pessimistic or optimistic.

MAKING A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE

THE
NEWSPAPERS

To the average American, the job of beginning a home recycling program may loom as large as the very landfills we're trying to reduce. What to sort, how to sort and the problem of where to go with all the recyclables have become deterrents to the process. Research shows that despite good intentions, if it's inconvenient we really won't do it.

Here are a few tips:

- Contact your local recycling center, under "recycling" or "waste management" in your telephone book, or call your local city hall to find out the rules for recycling glass, plastic, paper, metal and yard waste.
- Make recycling a family affair. Consult with family members on the importance of the environment and on the new family recycling "rules."
- Make it fun! Offer rewards for either keeping things sorted, removing labels if necessary or for making a trip the recycling center.
- Make a list of how recyclables should be sorted and post it in an easy-to-access place—like a bulletin board or refrigerator door.
- Begin sorting recyclables in handy places—under the kitchen sink, in the garage or next to the house. If the containers are readily available, family members will be more likely to use them.

Recycling helps create jobs, stretches precious natural resources and helps protect the environment. It's a habit that's helpful!

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Warm weather ushers in sprouting of 'for sale' signs

By Doug Funke
staff writer

March through June are the prime residential buying and selling months, Realtors say.

"People are wanting to make their move as soon as school is out," said Ruth Clevers, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors. "Then, summer is better to move, too. It's less cumbersome than when it's snowing."

Nice weather by itself inspires some people to think about changing addresses, said Maurice Richards, executive vice president of the South Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"Studies show that cold weather versus sunny, balmy conditions makes a difference," he said. "In our climate here, the world sort of comes alive in spring. That's a great motivator."

Typically, buyers influenced to time a move by weather would include empty-nesters, young people looking for a starter home and families with elementary school-aged children, Richards said.

Families with children in high school or middle school involved in more activities or more socially attuned may wait until June before starting the moving process so as not to disrupt school, he added.

"A LOT of people don't want to purchase a home when there's snow on the ground because they can't see what's under it," said Mary Moore, president of the Rochester Board of Realtors. "And some sellers don't want to sell then because they don't want that stuff transported in.

"Winter is a sleepy time," Moore said. "People are busy with the holidays. With thoughts of spring coming in, you're looking at the end of the school year. In summer, you're involved with vacation."

But don't get the idea that business is down the tubes the balance of the year.

"July, August, September and October are all relatively good months as long as the economy and interest rates are attractive," said Robert D. Gleason, president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors.

There's plenty of inventory now for prospective buyers to sample.

The South Oakland board had 897 listings at the end of March compared with 790 at this time last year, Richards said. The median (half higher, half lower) selling price through the first three months of 1992 was $79,900, up 5 percent.

South Oakland's service area includes Southfield, Troy, Franklin and Lathrup Village.

INVENTORY ALSO increased in territory serviced by the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors. Some 1,475 listings were reported as of March 31 compared to 1,300 on that date in 1991. The median selling price this year was $162,360.

The Rochester Board had 819 listings at the end of March compared to 679 at the same time last year. The average selling price for a house was $153,000, for a condominium $88,000.

The Western Wayne Oakland board, whose service area includes Livonia, Farmington Hills, Canton, Plymouth, Redford, Garden City and Westland, had some 4,860 listings as of March 31 compared to 4,000 the previous year.

The median selling price through March this year was $95,000.

The seed for moving often is planted during the winter holiday season, Clevers said. "That's when people find out the house they're in is too small and they start looking."

By the time they get their house in order to sell, search the market for a buy and make the offer, they're within the prime buying and selling season.

"People who are buying up are looking for more space, more land, newer amenities or amenities they never had," Richards said.

Mortgage interest rates — available at 8¾ for 15 years fixed, 8¾ for 30 years fixed and 5½ on adjustables — continue to remain highly favorable, he said.

Practice likely violates anti-trust laws

We have a hotel condominium overlooking a lake, which is managed by the developer's management company. He collects a 50-percent fee for any monies collected by way of rentals and has tried to restrict any other management company from coming in to help lease the units. Can he do that?

To the extent that a developer's management firm usurps powers that are improper and no one contests it, he will continue to be able to get away with it. But chances are, from what you describe, he is basically operating a monopolistic type of situation which, even if it were permitted under the condominium documents, may be a violation of anti-trust laws. Obviously, to the extent that he is prohibiting other competition from coming into lease the units, he may well be acting improperly. I would suggest the association organize itself in such a way as to be able to seek redress against the developer's management firm, should you not be able to negotiate a reasonable resolution of the matter.

I have heard the term dockominiums referred to in Michigan. Can you explain how they work?

Dockominiums in this state are governed by the Condominium Act as it relates to marina condominiums. The Michigan Condominium Act was designed for real estate condominiums and does not provide for a description of boat slips. But the act is broad enough and has been used to marina condominium conversions. Typically, an owner of a dockominium is provided fee simple interest in a piece of bottom land or another piece of property that would entitle an owner to use a specific part of a limited common area (including the slip). The developer must own the bottom land to convey it. Generally a developer will be required to obtain a permit to be issued by the state and the Army Corps of Engineers. You are advised to consult with your condominium specialist before considering the creation of any dockominium or purchasing one.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit topics you would like to see discussed in this column by writing Robert M. Meisner at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms 48025. Rates help timely payments

(AP) — The percentage of Americans behind on their mortgages dropped in the October-December quarter as lower interest rates reduced many homeowners' monthly payments.

The proportion of homeowners at least 30 days late on their payments fell to a seasonally adjusted 4.78 percent, the lowest in a year, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America said.

That was down from 5.07 percent at the end of the third quarter and a five-year high of 5.28 percent in June. The fourth quarter rate was still slightly higher than the rate a year earlier, 4.71 percent.

Angelo Mozilo, president of the association, said the recent improvement is at least partly the result of lower interest rates. Adjustable-rate mortgage payments have fallen and many fixed-rate borrowers have been able to cut their payments by refinancing.

But the percentage of homes in foreclosure edged up to 1.04 percent from 0.98 percent three months earlier and the highest since 1987. That resulted from the bulge in delinquencies in mid-1990.

"Unfortunately, people get too far behind and it's very difficult if not impossible for them to recover," Mozilo said.

ESD applauds construction, design-winners

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Skylights and open spaces.

Those were key elements in many of the seven projects selected as construction and design award winners in an annual competition sponsored by the Engineering Society of Detroit.

Six of the winners have a connection with the Observer & Eccentric coverage area either through the architect, contractor or where the project was built.

"The reason this (contest) is unique is it's the only one in the area that honors everyone — architects, contractors and engineers in the same competition," said Phil Komar, spokesman for ESD.

The winners:

- Chrysler Technology Center, Auburn Hills, designed by Harley Ellington Pierce Yee Associates of Southfield.
- Apartments of Stroh River Place, Detroit, designed by Redstone Architects of Southfield.
- Gershenson Radiation Oncology Center, Detroit, built by Barton Malow of Southfield.
- Nissan Research and Development Facility, Farmington Hills.
- Solid waste industrial landfill, Allen Park, designed by NTH Consultants of Farmington Hills.
- Livingston County Road Commission Central Maintenance Facili-

Firms adopt mentoring roles

By R.J. King
special writer

One way a small minority-owned firm can land a new account or large contract is to strike a partnership with a client or competitor who wouldn't normally provide an outsider with access to internal reports, valued contacts and marketing strategies.

It's commonly referred to as mentoring, and New Detroit began just such a partnership plan last year by pairing minority-owned firms with long-established players in such industries as accounting, construction and services as a way to increase sales and solidify markets.

"Mentoring is really a means of insuring the competition, whether minority owned or not, can compete successfully and fairly. It makes for a healthier industry," said Tom Landry, president of the A.J. Etkin Construction Co. in Farmington Hills.

"It also gives us an opportunity to learn something from a smaller firm. They might do something different on the accounting end that could save us time or money. I think both parties benefit, and there's always joint ventures that might open up."

ANDREW McLEMORE, president of A-MAC Sales & Builders Co., a general contractor in Detroit that was matched with Etkin in January, said his firm has already benefited from several meetings with its larger competitor.

"Our goal going into the partnership was to develop more private sector business, but these things take time," said McLemore.

"But we have been introduced to their management and administrative network. That should help in the future. They also gave us several of their forms for contracts and purchase orders. That's an advantage to us because now I don't have to hire an attorney to do that work."

Both companies said they hoped to strike a construction contract in the near future, but given the depressed state of the commercial real estate market, a joint venture is a few months off.

The goal of New Detroit's mentoring program is to increase business opportunities and help minority-owned firms expand their marketing reach. Instead of building or servicing immediate neighborhoods, New Detroit wants minority firms to tackle entire markets.

'Mentoring is really a means of insuring the competition, whether minority owned or not, can compete successfully and fairly.'

— Tom Landry

'It's a win-win situation for both parties involved, if only that barriers get knocked down and relationships open up.'

— Ron Hall

"It's a win-win situation for both parties involved, if only that barriers get knocked down and relationships open up," said Ron Hall, director of the mentoring program as well as the minority economic development division of New Detroit, which works to encourage urban and suburban relationships.

"We would like to see the partnerships last between three and five years, or however long the parties wish to continue. We hope greater profits and job growth will result, and we will be monitoring the relationships to track what benefits transpire."

GLENN WASH, president of Glenn E. Wash & Associates, Inc., a general contractor in Detroit, said his firm has had one meeting with its mentor, the Walbridge Aldinger Co., a large construction concern formerly located in Livonia before moving to Detroit two years ago, since the pair were matched in January.

"Not too much has happened yet, but we're looking strongly at the possibility of striking a joint venture with Walbridge," said Wash. We also feel we can learn a great deal about their operations which will help in expanding our own marketing reach."

John Rakolta Jr., president of Walbridge, said the company entered the program with the hope of providing smaller firms with advice on management and business skills as opposed to becoming a marketing arm for future projects.

"Large corporations have a lot to offer smaller firms such as how we set up accounts, buying insurance and setting up new business proposals," he said. "We don't want to award a contract and go away. We want to teach firms about our business and listen to what they have to say. We both learn in that kind of environment."

IN OTHER mentoring partnerships recently announced, Bartech Personnel Services, a supplier of contract engineers, technicians and clerical personnel in Detroit, was matched with the Chrysler Corp. in Highland Park. Fuller & Co., a management consulting firm in Detroit, was paired with Coopers & Lybrand, one of the Big Six accounting firms with offices in Detroit's Renaissance Center.

"Bartech wants to be acknowledged first as a quality supplier than one that happens to be minority owned," said Jon Barfield, president of Bartech. "I believe the mentorship program will enable us to overcome some barriers traditionally faced by minority-owned firms and develop to the point where we will be able to compete effectively with the industry leaders."

ty, Genoa Township, designed by Ellis/Naeyaert/Genheimer Associates of Troy.

• One Detroit Center, Detroit, no local connection.

Nominated projects must have been completed since January of 1988. A panel of out-of-state engineers judged. At least 40 nominations were received, Komar said, declining to be more specific.

SOME 2.5 MILLION square feet of the Chrysler Tech Center, a research and design facility, has been completed — all under one roof. Architects devised a plan with a central gathering space dubbed Technology Plaza and four office/laboratory wings.

Skylit concourses and glass-walled offices are everywhere.

"One of the goals of the project was to break down traditional barriers in the process of styling a vehicle, then doing product engineering, manufacturing, purchasing components in separate stages," said Ronald C. Morketter, project architect for Harley Ellison Pierce Yee.

"This building will allow all actions to be done in platform teams," he added.

Stroh River Place Historic Apartments, a remodeling of a former pharmaceutical laboratory and warehouse, was designed by Redstone Architects.

Some 250 one- and two-bedroom units ranging from 600 to 1,700 square feet were designed into existing three-and four-story structures. The units contain 14-foot high ceilings and extensive use of oak trim and railings.

Attention was paid to historical detail.

"WE REALLY took a lot of effort to restore windows and all the brickwork that made up the perimeter of the building," said Michael D. Shea, marketing director for Redstone. "It's reminiscent of a European town or old Boston."

Redstone also designed Roof Top Garden Townhomes, 54 two- and three-bedroom units with a more contemporary look on a six-level parking deck at the site.

A new central maintenance building for the Livingston County Road Commission was designed to consolidate all operations — engineering, storage, vehicle maintenance and administration.

'One of the goals of the project was to break down traditional barriers in the process of styling a vehicle, then doing product engineering, manufacturing, purchasing components in separate stages.'

— Ronald C. Morketter

A partial circular office module is unique. The warehouse section of the structure was attached to hide outdoor storage and fueling areas.

Skylights were included in the maintenance section.

"The aim was to use funds wisely and achieve functionalism at a reasonable cost," said Nicholas F. Raab, project manager for Ellis/Naeyaert/Genheimer. "Our objective was to help the road commission stretch their dollars.

"THE FACILITY'S design also reflects the owner's concern for energy conservation and safety," Raab added.

It took just 10 months from the time NTH Consultants first investigated a large open clay pit filled with water in Allen Park to the time the site was transformed into a solid waste landfill ready for use.

The pit, 35 feet deep, covers 21 acres and will be used for industrial waste, not hazardous materials, said Jerome C. Neyer, chief executive officer for NTH.

Computer models determined that placing a berm on the pit's floor would better stabilize the sloping sides. More than 400,000 cubic yards of earth were moved during the renovation.

"The thing that sticks out most was the ability to take a piece of property that wasn't very attractive and make it a resource for Ford Motor Co. and southeastern Michigan . . . to make it a state of the art landfill," Neyer said.

The Nissan Research and Design Facility consists of a three-story administration section of some 167,000 square feet and a 173,000-square-foot single-story prototype/testing segment connected by an atrium.

THE ARCHITECTURAL challenge was to encourage communication among different team members, stimulate creativity, make vendors and other visitors welcome while segregating them from confidential areas and blend Japanese and American cultures.

A large piece of glass in the form of a Japanese fan at the entrance sets the tone.

"Something not as readily visible is organizational content of the building," said Rowland J. Mitchell, project manager. "We took two diverse architectural elements and blended them into one. The atrium is the interfacing area for staff."

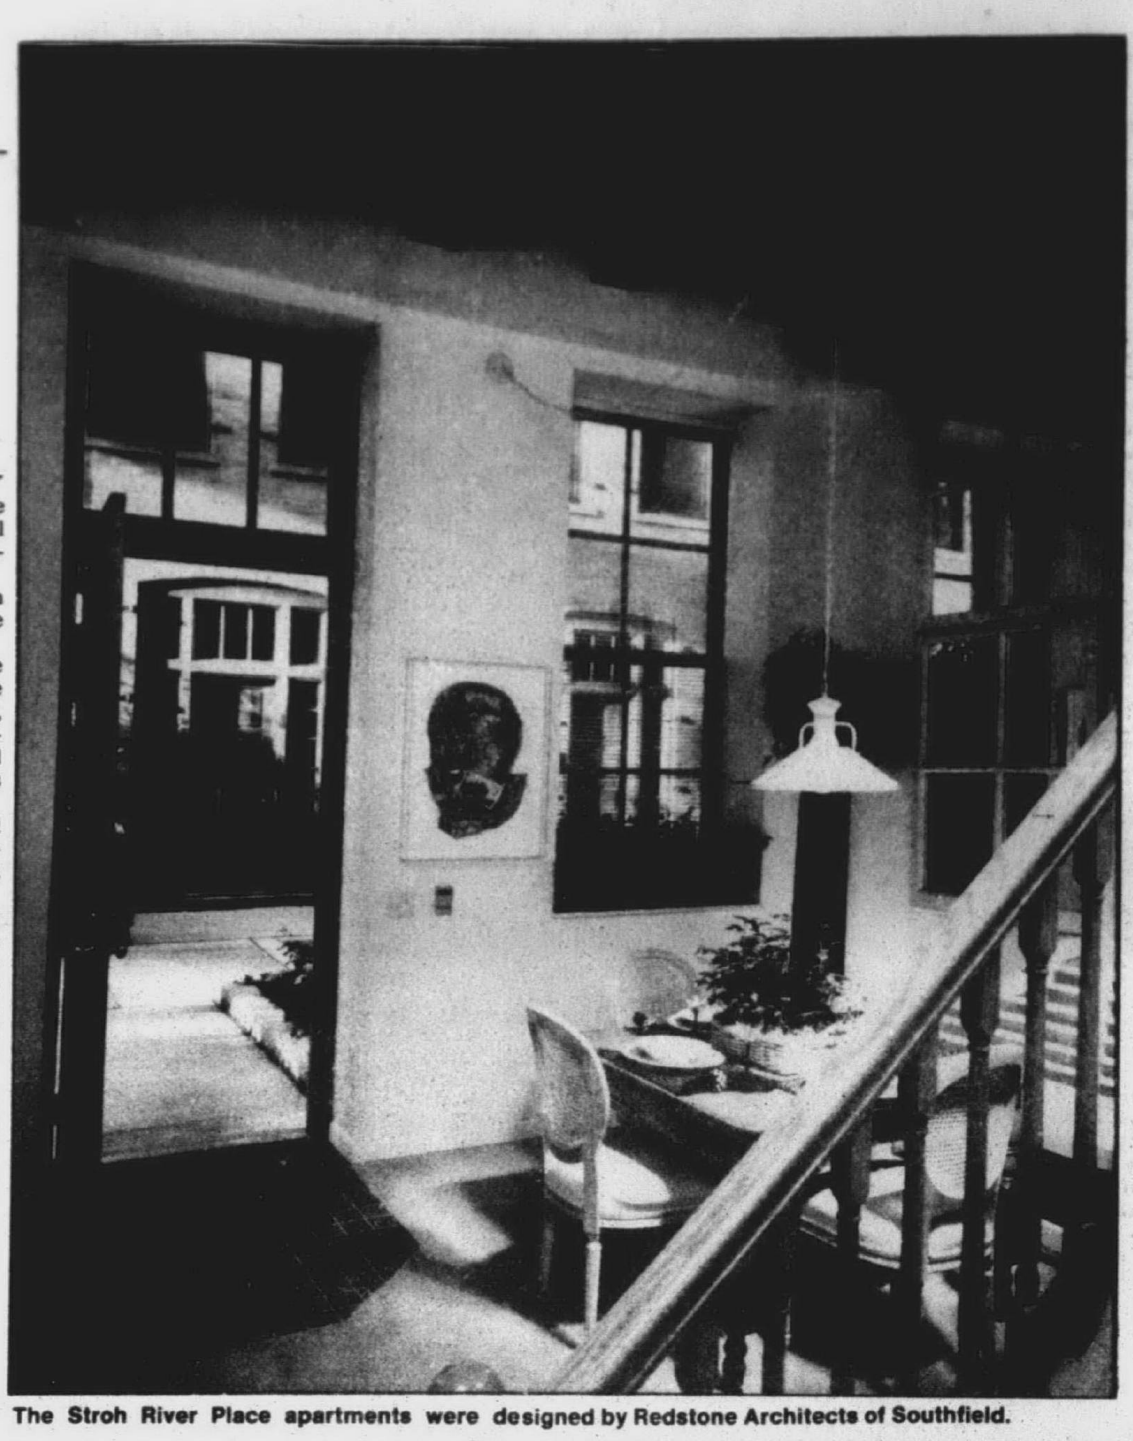
Barton Malow was the general contractor for the expansion and renovation of the oncology center at Harper Hospital.

A new entrance provides easier access to treatment areas for patients. The Gershenson Center, located in the basement, incorporates skylights plus carpeting, soft colors and diverse lighting with the aim of making the environment less stressful.

Perhaps Barton Malow's biggest task was moving a 25-ton cyclotron used in treatment into place. One of the largest cranes in the Midwest, some 350 tons, was used. Clearance in some places was only four inches.

One Detroit Center, located behind the City-County Building downtown, contains a million square feet of office space and a parking garage that can hold 2,000 cars.

Judging criteria included land use, materials, overall design, engineering systems, energy consciousness and social/economic impact.



The Stroh River Place apartments were designed by Redstone Architects of Southfield.

Changing times: corn replaced by housing

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Oakland Township's high taxes forced Henry Axford Jr. to sell his family's centennial dairy farm almost 20 years ago and take up farming near Gaylord instead.

The Homearama Spring 1992 site, Meadows at Oakland Farms subdivision on Gunn Road, just west of Rochester Road, in northeast Oakland County, was once part of the more than 600 acres owned by the Oakland Township pioneering Axford family.

"We couldn't make enough from the land to pay for the taxes," said Beatrice Axford, Henry Jr.'s wife.

The Axfords now raise beef and hogs on a farm, called the Panorama ranch, 12 miles northeast of Gaylord, on the Pigeon River. Sons Jeffrey and William are also involved with farming, Beatrice said.

"We were sad not to be farming there (Oakland Township)," Beatrice said. "People (new residents) didn't appreciate the smells."

In 1832, William M. Axford, the family patriarch, came from New Jersey and settled in Oakland Township.

"He was a man of great influence among his neighbors and was Oakland's first supervisor," according to the Oakland County Book of History, by Arthur A. Hagman. The book was written for the county's sesquicentennial celebration in 1970.

HENRY AXFORD SR., a general probate attorney, who was schooled at the University of Michigan, lived in Rochester but hired a farm manager to care for the land.

"When Henry Sr. was going to college at the University of Michigan, he put together a family history back to the Mayflower," Beatrice said. "He (Henry Sr.) helped organize the Rochester National Bank and started the Rochester Library.

"I came along rather late in his life when he was 55," said Henry Jr. "My sister (Helen Oswalt, now a Vicksbury resident) was born two years later. At 55, he was just getting going. He was quite energetic."

Henry Jr. said he "was always interested in farming and grew up working on the farm and living in town (Rochester)."

Henry Sr., who died at age 92, continued to walk daily from his home on University Drive in Rochester out to the farm — four miles one way, Beatrice said.

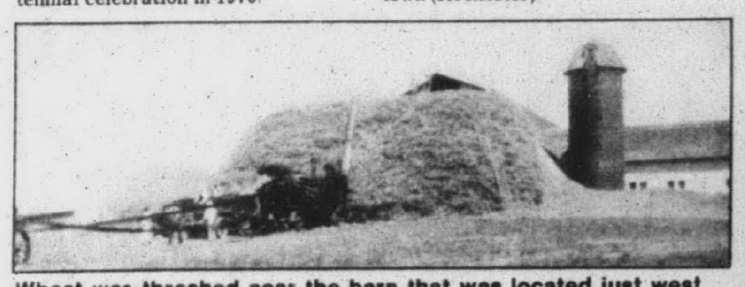
HENRY JR. went to work on the farm full-time after he graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in agricultural economics.

He and wife, Beatrice, met in high school. They were married in 1957. In addition to their two sons, the Axfords also have two daughters, Jennifer Otmanowski, a registered nurse, and Amy Kelso, a teacher.

Today, Henry Jr. is a 12-year member of the Johannesburg intermediate school board.

He continues his simple, uncluttered lifestyle and returns home for lunch between noon and 1 p.m. daily, except on Mondays and Wednesdays, when he's at livestock sales.

Henry W. Axford holds son Henry Jr. at the Gunn Road farm in 1935.



Wheat was threshed near the barn that was located just west of what is now Dennis Fogler's house on West Gunn Road.

Progressive retirement living aims to reduce stress

As the graying of America continues, we see around us more youthful senior citizens: people who remain active and involved in their work and community as they reach their 70s and beyond.

According to figures released by the American Associaton of Retired Persons, 12.6 percent of the population was 65 or older in 1990. By the year 2020, this figure will increase to 17 percent.

The proliferation of aging yuppies is putting out to pasture outdated and stereotypical ideas about the elderly. It is also resulting in major design changes in retirement communities, as evidenced by the 43 facilities that recently received awards in 1991-1992 Design for Aging Facilities sponsored by the American Institute of Architects in Washington, D.C.

Selected from more than 500 entries, these projects share certain key characteristics. Perhaps most importantly, all display a sensitivity and understanding of the needs of their elderly residents by applying current information on the aging process. Many relied on gerontologists and environmental psychologists as conslultants for the design process.

Litha Nerger, a gerontologist at the Stein Gerontological Insititute in Miami, says that the institute works closely with architects and developers on retirement facilities. She says within the past five years, architects have begun to recognize how different the physical environment should be for seniors, compared to any other age group.

"Safety issues are a major concern," Berger said. "If you create a barrier-free environment from the start that is secure and fosters independence, it will aid in the type of lifestlye an older person has."

Berger believes living in a retirement facility that emphasizes security and independence can increase a person's lifespan, although no scientific evidence currently exists to support the claim.

"Living in a progressive retirement community eliminates most of the stress involved in worrying about being taken care of when one is unable to cope," Berger said.

The concept of allowing people to "age in place," or live independently for as long as possible is part of a growing trend that recognizes that aging is not an illness and the elderly are not sick.

"Everyone ages differently — in different ways and at different paces. Just because they reach an age where they can't get around their house is no reason to put them in a nursing home," Burger said. "Living independently in an environment that encourages support and social interaction allows our senior citizens to live full and rich lives."

As people learn about retirement communities, the stigmas attached to nursing homes should fade.

Senior housing rethought

Today's healthier lifestyles and advances in medical care allow Americans to live longer than ever, which has spawned rethinking about housing for seniors.

Retirement facilities are beginning to erase many of the stigmas that have long been associated with nursing homes. Gone are the sterile and drab one-story buildings with long institutional corridors and small, dimly lit rooms.

In their places are retirement communities ranging from resorts with high-rise buildings to urban villages and community campuses that provide all necessary shopping and services on site.

These types of facilities for seniors share certain key characteristics. Regardless of size or location, they use building forms and materials that give the living units a residential scale and character and incorporate the design vernacular of the region to integrate themselves into the community. They are self-contained with some kind of central area or town center to provide a hub of activity. For urban villages, this may be a central town square surrounded by a mall with retail shops. An urban tower may have a community center located on its ground floor or perhaps on the penthouse floor to offer a view of the surrounding land.

Other characteristics of successful facilities include secure outdoor courtyards and adaptable, barrier-free living units.

WEDDING POTPOURRI

COUPLES STILL want the old-fashioned romance of love letters and flowers, according to a Korbel champagne survey. Most mates meet at parties, school or work. A scant one percent meet at the gym.

Within that backdrop, provided by Copley News Service, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers today serves up a wedding planner potpourri.

We've chosen to spotlight these special wedding treats: flowers, negligees, pampering, diamonds, and accessories for the groom.

As for diamonds, do you know what your shape selection means?

Take it from gemologist Saul Spero, author of "Diamonds, Love and Compatibility:"

- round or brilliant — easily satisfied and contented; frugal.
- pear — eager to try new experiences; considerate.
- marquise — aggressive, temperamental, innovative.
- emerald — disciplined and organized; leadership potential.
- oval — individualistic, orderly, seldom extravagant.
- heart — creative, sensitive, temperamental.

On the cover: Today's bride gives tradition a nudge by replacing the familiar mini bride and groom on the wedding cake with a fresh floral arrangement. After cutting the cake, the flowers make a perfect table arrangement. Bright, raspberry and white stargazer lilies, pink and white sweetheart roses and baby's breath are accented with three fern, Italian ruscus and sprays of miniature faux pearls. Arrangement by Carolynn Russo, Flowers From Joe's, Livonia. Cake, with delicate scroll design, by G.M. Paris Bakery, Livonia.

Spice up groom's wear

By Mike Dale
special writer

GROOMS CHOOSING an ensemble for their wedding day don't have to be overwhelmed by choices. The decision generally falls into place after deciding when (what season, what time of day) and where (formal or informal) the wedding will take place.

Bow ties, ascots and other neckwear purvey certain looks. Cuff links, studs, pocket squares, cummerbunds and suspenders add spice and personality to your ensemble. Why? Because they reflect the current clothing trends and fads. Embroidery and tapestry, for example, add contrast and punch to basic black tuxedos and white formal shirts.

Floral ties and cummerbunds in bright blue and fuschia, light beige and purple or iridescent starbursts are popular looks this season with solid formal wear, says Donna Dunphy, office manager at Randazzo Tuxedo, Livonia.

"The florals are a formal look that men can match to the dresses in the wedding party," Dunphy said. "Some grooms add a solid pocket square for even more color."

Besides florals, grooms at Randazzo's and at Steve Petix Clothiers in Birmingham, Livonia and Plymouth like the new houndstooth vest to wear with a traditional black tuxedo. In fact, vests in various patterns are making a big comeback.

Diamonds, danties, delights

By Denise Lucas
special writer

OH THE detailed arrangements the '90s bridal couple will be handling when planning their V.I.A. (Very Important Affair).

Finding a church or synagogue, reception hall, caterer, florist, photographer, cake specialist, musicians, singer, invitations, bridal gown, bridesmaid dresses, tuxedo and honeymoon arrangements are just a few of the endless accommodations that will often find the bridal couple in compromising positions.

But the most fun-damental elements of every bridal dream and fantasy can be viewed in Three-D . . . Dainties, Diamonds and Other Delights.

Left: A personal gift she'll remember always. The magic begins with the Miss Dior Trousseau Collection. The polysatin gown, with flowing sheer robe, is trimmed in embroidered lace, radiating feminine romance. At Roslyn's Intimate Apparel, Applegate Square, Southfield.

● DAINTIES

From feminine negligee sets to sexy bustiers and garter belts, lingerie for the bride will fit every attitude, budget and chassis.

Underpinnings are not only a frivolous, romantic luxury item that brings smiles to those who don and dare, but are also a functional part of every woman's wardrobe.

With proper foundations, a woman can eliminate unsightly panty lines, increase bustlines, slim thighs and provide the needed support and foundation for those sexy, strapless, low back and off-the-shoulder looks that will be worn at intimate honeymoon dinners and special summer occasions.

Shirley Zirkin of LuLu's Lingerie in Bloomfield Hills gave us a detailed list of essential bridal trousseau items: 12 pair bikini panties, 12 matching bras, two half slips (black and beige), a white negligee set, a pretty nightshirt, a white terry robe and a minimum six pairs of pantyhose . . . along with, of course, the traditional lacy garter to throw at the reception.

Keeping flowers simple a growing arrangement

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

WHEN IT comes to selecting wedding flowers, this year's bride likes simplicity and classic elegance. Brides are finding that bigger bouquets and arrangements aren't always better — less can be more.

For some brides, that even means replacing the plastic bride and groom on the wedding cake with fresh flowers.

"Today, brides like things natural and fresh," says Harold Bell, owner of Affordable Flowers, Birmingham. He adds that 98 percent of the brides he sees choose flowers to top off their wedding cake.

For receptions, brides opt for historic sites like the Allen House in Birmingham or Cranbrook House in Bloomfield Hills over social halls. And the best way to adorn these historic places is by adding a Victorian look to colorful flower arrangements, says Bell.

"The just-picked look with a long flower stem is popular," he said. "We wrap them in netting to give an illusion of veiling. Later, the bouquets can be put in a vase to use at the reception."

BELL ALSO says more mothers of the bride prefer bouquets over a prom-like corsage that usually leaves a hole in the dress.

Affordable Flowers also will recycle the bride's bouquet, turning it into fragrant potpourri after the wedding. They'll even make potpourri out of other flowers the bride receives from her husband throughout the marriage. Bell recommends mixing the whole bunch together for a keepsake.

Since more and more bridesmaids are wearing jewel tones, Bell has a chance to use some richly colored lilies like stargazer (deep ruby to pink) and alstroemeria in bouquets.

"Since nature has enough color to offer, we only use naturally colored flowers," said Bell, adding that 40 percent of the brides in his shop use a color theme for the wedding.

At Bloomin' Things in Troy, brides like fragrant, colorful bouquets that stay fresh all day and enhance the wedding photos.

"White is still a traditional and popular color, but there are many new ways to use white flowers," says Margaret Matoin, owner.

MATOIN ESPECIALLY likes the Kissing Ball, a tight arrangement of roses tied with a Victorian ribbon that cascades over the bride's hands. The round bouquet, with only the heads of Today's bride likes the natural graden look for personal flowers and table arrangements. Here, tulips, snap dragons, alstroemeria, daisies, monte casino, bridal rose and ivy make up those loose, airy arrangements by Dorcey Florist, Southfield and Birmingham.

Viewing the bride of the '90s in 3-D

Centuries ago, the ancient Egyptians believed that the vein of love ran from the fourth finger of the left hand directly to the heart. Today, diamonds are gracing the the fingers of both the bride and groom. Don't forget when selecting your diamond, know the 4C's: cut, clarity, color and carat. These four variables determine the quality of the diamond.

underwear, however, seems to be the return of padding to the brassiere, though much more subtly than yesterday's stand-alone bras. For all-out sex appeal, pair a dressy bra with a garter belt and stockings. These little nothings are anything but practical.

However, your lingerie investment will also get additional mileage this season. "Lingerie has come out of the boudoir," says Harriet Dunsky, owner of the Bobette Shop in Waterford.

Barely there, meant-to-be-seen lingerie looks for spring '92 include fluffy tulle slips, lacy little slip dresses, lace-encased bustiers, silky camisoles, satin bras and sheer body suits will dual for day and evening affairs.

● DIAMONDS

The magic and romance of bridal bliss begins with the engagement.

Choosing the diamond is one of the most important investments a bride and groom make. Statistics show that approximately 81 percent of all first-time brides received a "diamond" engagement ring and 75 percent of all couples choose the ring together.

Whether dropped into a glass of vintage champagne, hidden in the petals of a single red rose or nestled in a box of Cracker Jacks, it is important to become an informed consumer, before purchasing your precious gemstone.

Four variables define the quality of a diamond and are the important guidelines to romancing the stone:

— Cut . . . which determines the sparkling fire of a diamond.

— Color. . . . effects the diamond's brilliance, the best color is no color.

— Clarity . . . refers to the degree of freedom from natural internal inclusions.

— Carat Weight . . . the larger the stone, the rarer and more valuable it is.

"We are selling less wedding sets and more individual rings," reports Steve Tapper of Tapper Jewelers in Southfield. "Couples are choosing either contemporary bezel rings, where the diamond is set in the ring without prongs. Also classic platinium solitare or Tiffany settings with baggits or trillions are the two significant trends in wedding rings."

It has been noted that the choice of diamond "shape" can determine your personality. The six traditional shapes to choose from include round (or brilliant), oval, marquise, pear, emerald and heart. New to the marketplace are the princess and trillion cuts.

"This is the bride's day, so we try not to tell them what's in or out," Matoin said. "Most brides don't know a lot about flowers, but they do know what they like."

Marge Dorcey, owner of Dorcey Florist in Birmingham and Southfield, says the garden look is popular with summer brides, who choose bouquets of astroemeria, iris, snap dragons and monte casino (a miniature daisy).

"Carnations and roses used to be the wedding flowers, but now there are all sorts of wonderful flowers being cross-bred and developed."

SPRING AND summer brides who come to Flowers From Joe's in Livonia also like the garden look. To achieve the loose, handpicked look, owner Carolynn Russo uses large open roses, tulips, wildflowers and alstroemeria (pink to rich yellows).

"Two years ago, brides liked more contemporary arrangements with exotic flowers, but now brides are choosing a more traditional look," Russo said.

An assessment of the ceremony and reception sites will determine the number of flowers you'll need. For example, efforts for a garden wedding will differ greatly from a hotel reception room.

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

For the bride, a larger bouquet with a just-picked look is arranged in a holder that slips into a vase at the reception. The loose and airy bouquet includes pink and raspberry rubrium lilies, lavender and white dendrobium and fire and ice roses. Bear's grass and bridal netting are used to accent. (Arrangement by Affordable Flowers, Birmingham).

You'll need to settle on pew and altar arrangements, or the huppah if the ceremony is Jewish, centerpieces for the reception, the bridal and attendant's bouquets, boutonnieres for the groom, groomsmen and father of the bride, plus smaller bouquets or corsages for the mothers and grandmothers.

On average, brides spend about $600 for personal flowers and table arrangements for a wedding with 100 guests, according to Teleflora, a wire service for florists.

Most full-service florists also will supply place cards for the reception, coordinate the photographer and caterer and even pace the rehearsal, all for a fee, of course.

Copley News Service contributed to this report.

A 3-D look at the bride

sauna, hydrotub or jacuzzi sound . . . like a luxury . . . a luxury no bride should live without.

"It should be written in the prenuptial agreement," laughed Mira Linder, owner of Mira Linder's Spa in the City, "that the bride have 'a day of beauty' for her wedding day."

One of the most important bridal preparations to arrange, (that will ease the jitters and assure the bride of being the most beautiful bride ever), is to have her hair professionally styled, make up beautifully applied, and have a relaxing manicure and pedicure complete with a full body massage to melt away all the stress and tensions a bride experiences.

According to Tamara of Tamara's Institute of Beaute, "We offer the bride and her bridal party a day at the spa they'll never forget — beginning with a jacuzzi for four, followed by a one-hour therapeutic body massage, relaxing manicure and pedicure, expert makeup application and a champagne lunch."

"Many of our brides come in the day before with her bridal party," Linder said. "They laugh and have fun together. This relaxes the bride."

The bride also has her hair styled and makeup applied (sort of a dress rehearsal for her important wedding day).

"The day of the wedding," Linder said, "she comes in for her hair, makeup and manicure so all she has to do is go home and put on her dress. This takes away the pressure and keeps her looking wonderful and confident."

this season, says Bert Kideckel, manager of Steve Petix's formal department.

"Everything goes in cycles," Kideckel said. "Right now, vests are popular for rentals, but not as popular with a tuxedo purchase."

LOOKING YOUR best in a tuxedo means adhering to formal wear "rules." Cummerbunds should be worn with pleats face up. The wing collar is worn behind the bow tie rather than in front. You'll even find cummerbunds with vertical or diagonal pleats this season.

"Cummerbunds and ties are getting wild, but not gaudy," said Vincent Provenzano, manager of President Tuxedo, Rochester and Troy. "The new designs and colors are tasteful."

Pleated white shirts are the classic choice; ruffled or pastel shirts look dated. Black patent pumps or oxfords are the only shoes appropriate for a formal affair. Black silk hosiery should be worn, except with a white tuxedo.
