

Plymouth ends up saving money on clay deal

Steve Walters: Said low in cost on bonds could be an untold benefit.

Like the Plymouth City School Board, the township is saving a lot of money on Tuesday's financing of some of its savings bonds.

First, there's the $50,000 in developed savings bonds that will be sold in the township.

The township will also be saved after all despite some criticism from Salem Township officials that the plan to proceed with the plan.

Salem Township officials voted Aug. 17 to withdraw to remove clay from a Salem Township site, as needed to cover the township's debt.

The township's expected savings of an estimated $200,000 by not paying bond issues will be offset by the township's debt and parking deck.

The township's decision to sell a bond issue for the landfill insurance project to finance Director Bill Gordon has renewed the township's existing bond issues to see if the township could take advantage of the current low interest rates.

The township's manager Steve Walters told city commissioners.

The commission voted Tuesday to authorize the administration to begin processing applications for refinancing the three outstanding bond issues and for financing the Salem landfill closing with the township's bond issues.

Also involved is the township's purchase of the Hutchinson Shakes, Inc. site.

Walters said that he and Mayor Robert Jones met with state Department of Natural Resources officials in Lansing on Tuesday. The DNR extended a deadline for completing the landfill closing to December.

The DNR had given the township $100,000 to use a $400,000 federal grant to help with landfill closing costs.

But finishing by that date would be a big job when Salem Township officials say an extensive approval would be needed than a simple permit to dig clay.

The city needs the clay to dig the former landfill site.

Margin is narrowed, but Keen-McCarthy still wins

By Kevin Brown

The recount is done and Keen-McCarthy is still the winner of the Plymouth Township Republican primary supervisors race.

A recount by hand of the Aug. 4 supervisor's race did narrow Keen-McCarthy's margin of victory over second place finisher Charles M. McElhargy to 27 votes.

The election results tabulated action might have given Keen-McCarthy a 27 vote margin.

Lower pollster Esther Hulsing says the recount performed by township election workers as candidates representative looked on resulted in four fewer votes for Stephen Book and four more for McElhargy.

That put the election totals in the township supervisor's race at 744 for Keen-McCarthy, 724 for McElhargy, 694 for John Stewart and 147 for Book.

The plan, she says, Keen-

McCarthy said.

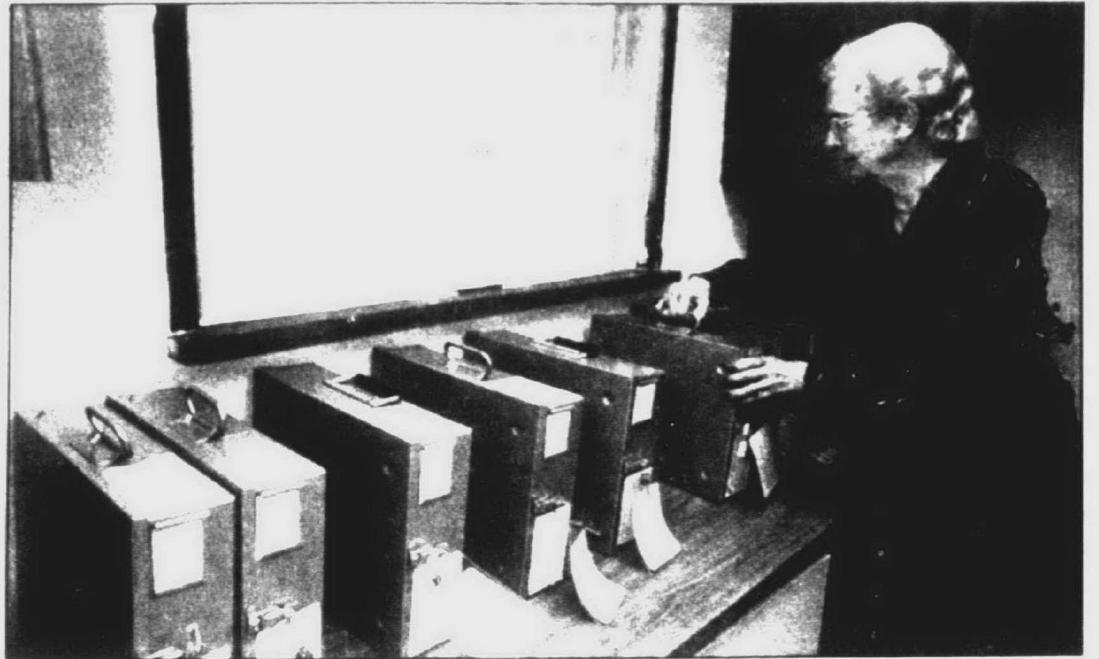

"We have good, honest elections in Plymouth Township and our clerk's office does an excellent job," she said.

"It's time to put this behind us and start working together as a community."

Keen-McCarthy has yet to face independent challenger Roy Edwards in the November election.

Observers see her as the likely winner as Plymouth Township traditionally votes heavily in favor of Republican candidates.

Keen-McCarthy and Argonne supervisor Gerald Law have met twice and plan weekly meetings to start a transition process, Keen-McCarthy said.

Ready for recount: Plymouth Township clerk Esther Hulsing lines up ballot boxes, as county officials began a recount Tuesday of the Aug. 4 Republican primary.

Barnes said a head count was taken before the three fourth grade classes left on two buses for Miller.

"I know there was a head count prior to departure. As I understand it, it might have been possible that the child left to use the restroom after the head count and before the bus left. During that interim process, if he was in the bathroom, he might have gotten separated. I'm not 100 percent sure. Even the child could be confused as to some of the details."

Authorities said the boy isn't a threat in English or in Spanish, which made matters worse for him.

Barnes was still out with a search party when the boy was reunited with his parents through the police at about 8 p.m.

This points up the fact that even with the best rules, you can still have exceptions. In those cases," said 10-year-old Egan, community leaders receive the Plymouth Township schools. "We will be re-evaluating what it takes to do a better job and every one will be more alert to the problem."

It was a pretty uneventful recount, said the county official overseeing the operation, who declined to be named.

It's not uncommon at all to get one here or lose one there. Every thing checked out," he said.

The recount was completed by 6:22 a.m. and certified to the county board of canvassers by 4:30.

"I can't see why the counter makes a mistake," Hulsing said, adding that a county election official assured her it's quite common.

The recount was performed at six rectangular tables spread about the township clerk's office.

At each table, three county election workers were joined by one representative, each from Keen-McCarthy, McElhargy and Stewart campaigns.

Sometimes the Spanish and chairmen punched all the way through the election worker said.

Not counted were 770 ballots spoiled when these voters crossed party lines against primary election rules.

McElhargy, the city funding director, sought a recount of the close election results to satisfy those who worked on his campaign, he said.

The natural way: Tom Kosh bans the use of steroids at his World Gym in Canton. Anabolic steroids, used by some athletes to build muscle, are illegal. Side effects can include mood and appetite swings as well as organ damage.

Steroid abuse

Task force, Vic Tanny take aim

By M.B. DUTTON
STAFF WRITER

Area athletes who use steroids are endangering their health, and the Plymouth Canton Substance Abuse Task Force and Bally's Vic Tanny, among others, are trying to do something about it.

Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro said the Plymouth Canton substance abuse task force, which he serves as chairman, is "undertaking a project right now primarily to educate residents in Plymouth Canton about the dangers of steroid use."

Michigan recently enacted legislation outlawing the non-prescribed use and distribution of steroids. Signs recently went up in locker rooms in Vic Tanny's in Plymouth Township, and throughout metropolitan Detroit warning that members caught selling, distributing or using the drugs will be prosecuted.

People who tend to use steroids are the overachievers, athletes and people who want to be socially more accepted. This is a totally different scenario than we've seen in the drug culture before, said Santomauro. "It's a different market, and it's alarming."

Steroid use, which can cause severe organ damage, has reached astronomical proportions, he added. "In almost any of the areas I can talk to anyone can tell you steroid use just isn't going to go away."

Northville Township Police Chief Chip Snider, who works with the Plymouth Township Vic Tanny department, agreed. "Steroid use has permeated the whole drug scene in the north area," said Snider, who works out every day beginning at 4:00 a.m.

Young users

Snider said steroid use is prevalent among young body builders who want to see rapid change. "If you are a slow grower, you are what a rapid change in basically a nine week period," he said. "You can add a lot of bulk." Other signs of steroid use are mood and appetite swings and acne on the back and shoulders, said Snider.

"I've always had a problem with young kids 18 and 19 doing drugs. But the shame of it is, some of them are taking steroids for some of the right reasons. Aesthetically, they want to enhance their appearance and endurance. Unfortunately it is still illegal," said Snider.

"And although the reasons are sound, sometimes they are dealing with lethal doses, and with medication that was never designed to be consumed by humans."

Michael Lucci, Jr., area director for Bally's Vic Tanny, said the signs regarding steroids have gone up in the 325 Bally clubs across the country.

"It's something Bally's has done just to promote good health," said Lucci, who is the son of former Detroit Lion linebacker Mike Lucci. "In clubs throughout Michigan there is a push to do it. Steroids are illegal and unhealthy, and we are not going to condone their usage."

Lucci said Vic Tanny's, which operates 15 facilities in metropolitan Detroit, hasn't experienced any specific problems involving steroids.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry, formerly worked at the Plymouth Township Vic Tanny, opening the club at 5:30 a.m. before reporting to his primary job. Berry, who still works out at the club, commented that the company doesn't tolerate steroid use on its premises.

Vic Tanny policy

Vic Tanny is very much against steroids. They're very particular about what goes on inside their buildings," said Berry, who also taught new members how to use exercise equipment. "They would revoke memberships if they caught people, and that was quite clear to all of us. They're trying to stop it before it ever gets started."

Berry recalled just one incident involving drug use at Vic Tanny. Used needles were found outside near the health club's back door. How they got there was never determined. "It could have been junkies back there in the middle of the night," he said.

Tom Kosh, owner of the World Gym in Canton, said his club hasn't experienced problems since an individual was trying to sell steroids at his club three or four years ago.

While Kosh doesn't have signs posted, "We make it pretty clear we don't advocate the use of steroids here, not in any fashion."

Kosh, whose franchise is owned by Arnold Schwarzenegger, said he was happy to see the state enact legislation banning steroids. He said he was stocked a few years ago to be told by a state police officer to contact the local high school football coach concerning a problem with young athletes taking steroids.

"That was not the type of direction I was looking for," he said. "I'm sure if I called them today, they would have specific guidelines."

Kosh says he thinks steroid use is down, primarily because government has finally gotten on the ball and made it a controlled substance.

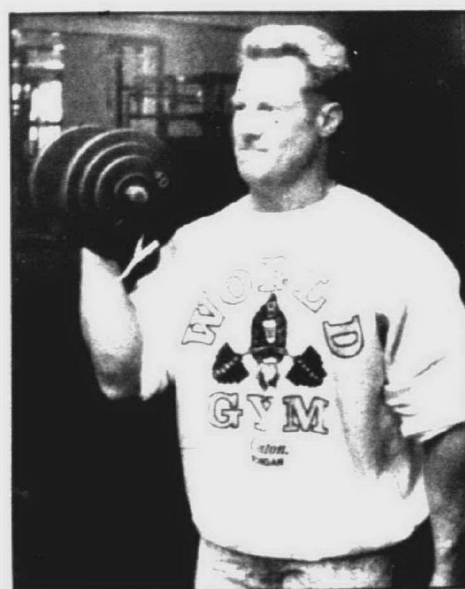

Local action

Santomauro said he brought the problem to the attention of the task force four years ago. "It was pretty easy to see that with the alarming amount of use in the high schools, it was really going to become a problem down the road." The task force is meeting at 8:30 a.m. Friday at the Canton police station to plan a strategy.

Unlike many of the other drugs that have been misused in previous years, this is a really unique problem because of the people who are using it," he said.

"We are undertaking this project to educate people in the community, particularly parents. The real danger, beyond the affects, is people's lack of knowledge and apathy toward steroid use. People feel if their son or daughter looks good and feels good, my gosh there are worse things they could be using. We're saying that whether that is true or not, no chemical substances are good to use."

Not here: Tom Kosh, owner of World Gym in Canton, says steroid use is not tolerated at his gym.

The more established Plymouth market attracts about 90 farmers each weekend. While they offer more choices as far as fruit and other garden goods, they are still bothered by the same problems with temperatures and rainfall.

Tomatoes are just now turning red because of the cooler temperatures and if temperatures drop much more the rest of the crop could be lost. Corn was late this year, but we could be enjoying the summer treat until the first real frost hits.

Cabbages, beets, carrots, onions, lettuce, spinach and other related "cold weather crops" could be the big winners of the summer harvest.

As long as the growers had good drainage in their fields, the salad and root crops turned out well," said Greg Patchan, horticulture expert for the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service.

Patchan said peppers and tomatoes are just now coming in, but it's difficult to say if they will survive much more cold weather.

"The melon crop was poor," Patchan said. "Most of the melons just weren't as sweet because they missed the really warm temperatures."

The jury is still out on the fall berry crop, but apples, pumpkins and squash should all do well, Patchan said.

"It has been such a strange summer. It was so dry last year and this year we've had so much rain and much cooler temperatures," he added.

There are very few fruit growers in this immediate area, but Patchan said their harvests have not suffered much as a result of the weather.

The Plymouth Farmers Market is held 7:30 a.m. to noon Saturdays through Oct. 15 at the Gathering.

The Canton Farmers Market is held Wednesdays from 3 to 8 p.m. and Saturdays 8 a.m. to noon.

Attorneys on the case, which still is in discovery, expect it to go to trial sometime next year.

Erol Goldman, the district's executive director of personnel and an attorney, said he hasn't followed day to day developments in the case, but that the district is requesting that we be dismissed from the case. "Nobody's Useless" hasn't been shown in Plymouth-Canton schools since Stephen's death.

Among the depositions taken so far is that of Dr. David Shaffer of Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York City.

A medical doctor who specializes in child psychiatry, Shaffer conducted a psychological autopsy on Stephen.

"I have viewed the film 'Nobody's Useless,' and it is my professional opinion that it is foreseeable that an elementary student who viewed the film would attempt to imitate suicide scenes depicted in the film," testified Shaffer, also an expert in adolescent suicide.

"It is my professional opinion that the death of Stephen resulted because he viewed the film 'Nobody's Useless' the previous day."

Shaffer also testified that there was nothing to suggest Stephen was suicidal or that his death would have occurred had he not seen the movie.

At his age, he was not able to form the intent to commit suicide," Shaffer said. "His death resulted from a foreseeable act of imitation."

Stephen's teacher, Jane Armstrong, testified that the film was part of a curriculum intended to contribute to students' understanding of the worth of handicapped individuals. The purpose of the film was to contribute to the understanding of the community and one's neighbors.

Armstrong's attorneys claim that the Nalepas are asserting "nothing more than that Stephen mimicked the actor's conduct within the film" and that the schools should have censored the movie, an action that constitutes a violation of the First Amendment.

"There is no Michigan case law in existence that holds teachers and/or educational policy makers liable for a type of duty that the plaintiffs allege in this case," added attorneys James Martin and John Crimando.

Debbie Nalepa testified that around the time of his death, Stephen was not depressed, had no anxiety, was in good spirits, and was looking forward to an upcoming screening that would have placed him in the schools' talented and gifted program.

On appeal in the case is a circuit court decision holding that Plymouth-Canton administrators and school board members are not entitled to governmental immunity.

Teenage driver is ticketed

A trip to Taco Bell just after midnight Tuesday soured for a Dearborn Heights teen and her friend when she was pulled over at Mill and Main for a traffic violation.

Not only was she ticketed for tailgating to use the left turn lane, but for enjoying cocktails en route.

The officer smelled liquor and asked the driver if the two had been drinking. The driver said her friend had a full cup of liquor. The passenger told police her Little Caesars cup, hidden under the seat, contained Squirr and Schnapps.

The driver was cited and given a court date.

The rusting, beige 1979 Buick Regal was a fire hazard because gas was leaking from a ruptured fuel line, said fire department personnel. It was impounded by the fire department. The owner's father was notified by officials.

A northbound CSX train was cited for blocking traffic for more than five minutes at the Main Street and Farmer railroad crossings.

Local safety officials are shocked by the response to the Citizen's Police Academy.

"It's the first time we've done anything like this so we didn't really have any expectations," said Tammie Colling, spokeswoman for the police division.

The department anticipated 20 people signing up for the Saturday classes so they were surprised to receive 40 calls from residents and business people expressing interest.

The classes, for individuals 21 and older, will be offered Saturday, Sept. 12, through Oct. 3. The program will be an opportunity for residents to learn all that is involved in being a Canton police officer.

cover the spectrum, Colling said. Applicants have been between the ages of 22 and 50. They are married couples, victims of crime and business owners.

"Some people are interested in police work and just want to know more about it," Colling said. Colling said calls really started coming in last week and they are uncertain if they will be able to accommodate all of those who applied. They may start a second class to meet the demand, but they will put that decision on hold for awhile, Colling said.

Topics to be addressed in the academy will include the organizational structure of the police department, an orientation to the 9-1-1 and dispatch systems, criminal and civil law, station tours, a weapons demonstration, and presentations by the Special Operations Team, Narcotics Unit and Evidence Technicians.

County officials urge at-risk residents to obtain flu shots

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is urging senior citizens and individuals with certain chronic conditions to take advantage of influenza shots that are currently available through the Wayne County Health Department.

For those able to pay, a $2 donation is requested. The fee will be waived for indigent residents.

"No one will be turned away due to inability to pay," said McNamara. "The donations permit us to purchase additional vaccine to provide protection for that many more people."

Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, medical director for the Wayne County Health Department, said "Those individuals with chronic underlying disorders of the cardiovascular, pulmonary and/or renal systems, as well as those with metabolic diseases such as diabetes mellitus, severe anemia and/or persons with impaired immune functions are at increased risk when influenza infections strike."

"We encourage individuals who are 65 and older, or have the previously mentioned chronic diseases, to consult with their physician about the need for obtaining this year's vaccine," Lawrenchuk said.

The health department will offer a trivalent (three virus) split virus vaccine for individuals with the chronic conditions and to all citizens aged 65 or older.

The typical flu season runs from November to April, but the maximum protection provided by the vaccine occurs when it is given early before the influenza season starts, Lawrenchuk said.

The 1992-1993 trivalent influenza vaccine has been developed to protect against strains of A Texas 36 91 like (H1N1), A Beijing 353 89 like (H3N2) and B Panama 45 90 like viruses.

Start up date for this year's influenza vaccination campaign will be the week of Sept. 14.

Author turns to romance for profit

By GREG KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Joan Shapiro of Bloomfield Township was like most would-be authors. She read novels and thought she could do better. But unlike most would-be writers, she was right.

Shapiro has written two romance novels and both are scheduled for publication in the spring. These are not vanity press books where the writer pays to have the books published.

"Hello, Love," will come out in March, published by Zebra Books. "Daniel's Albatross," is being published by Meteor Press, although a publication date has not been set.

"I've been a reader all my life," Shapiro said. But she never had anything published except a letter to the editor in a newspaper about the firing of Tiger announcer Ernie Harwell prior to hitting the big time.

She became a fan of the romance novels, and decided to give it a try herself. "Life is a learning experience," she noted.

So is writing. Like most new writers, she learned to live with rejection. But she also learned to hone her craft. She attended a writers' conference at Oakland University and attended romance writing workshops.

Then she spent about two years working on her first book. "The first one always takes a lot longer," she said. "I rewrote it about four times." It runs about 75,000 words, which is relatively short for a novel and will run about 220 pages.

She also learned about the process of getting a manuscript published.

"First you get a (rejection) form letter. Then you get a personal letter. Then you get one that says we reject it but we want to see more of your work. Then you get to the point where they study your manuscript for three to four months.

"Just don't get dejected," she advised new writers.

Romance novels don't have a reputation as great fiction. All feature almost identical "clinch" covers. Those carbon copy designs almost always show a woman with her blouse half-torn off while she is in the arms of a dashing sailor-soldier-nobleman-pirate-etc.

Many writers hate the covers.

■ 'The first one always takes a lot longer. I rewrote it about four times. It runs about 75,000 words, which is relatively short for a novel and will run about 220 pages.'

Joan Shapiro

said Shapiro. But the steamy images help sell the product, publisher surveys have shown.

Still, the quality of the writing is improving, so much so that one romance novel was recently favorably reviewed in a prestigious publishers magazine.

"A lot of people think they can write those books. Not true," Shapiro said.

A lot are set in different eras, which requires detailed research on the period.

Most readers usually know the books will have a happy ending, but the interest is in what happens to them along the way, Shapiro said.

She has disciplined herself to write in her basement office four to five hours a day. The office partially doubles as her husband's workshop.

Norman Shapiro, a pharmacist, designs and fashions jewelry as a hobby in the same space.

Revising the books was demanding, especially when the laundry was piling up. But it paid off. In May, Shapiro got a call from a Zebra Books editor that her manuscript had potential, but needed revision.

Shapiro revised the manuscript to meet an Aug. 1 deadline.

"She is wonderful," said her Zebra Books editor Ann LaFarge, from her New York office.

"Her book has very strong characters and a good plot," Shapiro's book is part of a new series of romance novels called "To Love Again." The books focus on persons over 45 who find a new chance at "love and life."

The books deal with real life situations, such as starting a new family or career and divorce at middle age.

"Her book is a very heart warming story," said LaFarge. "It's a reality based novel." She said it is not a "formula" novel but has a "page-turning plot" that keeps the reader involved. (Hint: It's about grand parents bickering over custody of their grandchild after his parents are killed in an accident.)

"She worked hard on her revisions. She has tremendous patience," LaFarge said of Shapiro.

Shapiro is president of the local chapter of the Romance Writers Association of America, which meets every third Wednesday at various local sites. (For information, write to the association at P.O. Box 521, Novi 48376.)

The interest in romance novels is growing, LaFarge said. In fact, Zebra is increasing its publication schedule to a new romance novel every month.

Shapiro is up to the challenge of turning out new works.

"Once you get published, the incentive gets a lot greater," she said.

Fund-raiser to benefit Senate candidate

BY WAYNE PEAL
 STAFF WRITER

Carol Moseley Braun is running for the U.S. Senate — in Illinois. She'll be the beneficiary of a Thursday, Sept. 15 fund-raiser — in Detroit.

Anything unusual about that? "Not a thing," said event co-organizer Julia Pate of Bloomfield Hills. "Men have been doing it this way for years."

Braun herself may be the most unusual candidate in any race this year.

As a black woman, her election to the U.S. Senate would be precedent-setting.

Her Democratic primary victory over two better-known, better-financed male candidates, including incumbent Al Dixon, already ranks as perhaps this year's biggest political upset.

"This is probably the most important race in the country and probably the most historic, too," said Ruth Broder of West Bloomfield.

Broder, an aide to Michigan Sen. Carl Levin, and fund raising director of Levin's three Senate campaigns, is among the political pros brought on board for the Braun fund-raiser at the newly refurbished Gem Theater.

Resentment over the appointment of U.S. Supreme Court Justice

Clarence Thomas clearly helped Braun in the March primary. But insiders say she's now building a coalition of blacks, feminists and other liberal activists.

Braun, recorder of deeds for Chicago-area Cook County, faces little-known Republican Rich Williamson in November.

"I think she has an excellent chance of winning," said Lanie Pincus of Southfield, former owner of the London Chop House, and another of the recognizable area women backing the project.

Efforts started small.

"There were six of us who started and we decided that hundreds of others would probably like to help, too," Pate said.

A series of $10 to $100 contributions — some from men — has already produced $9,000 for Braun's campaign.

But contributors aren't directly affiliated with EMILY's List, the nationwide fund-raising PAC for female, Democratic candidates.

Ironically, Braun's primary win shows money need not be the determining factor.

There she raised a mere $87,805, compared with nearly $350,000 for rival Albert Hofeld and an estimated $1.5 million for Dixon.

This time, though, her backers are taking nothing for granted.

"This is the year of the woman," Pate said. "We want to help make it so."

Attorney to address local business women

Nancy Diehl, Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney, will be the featured speaker at the Thursday, Sept. 17, meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Organization.

Diehl, an advocate for children during her seven years as director of the child abuse unit for the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, will dis-uss the community approach to child sexual abuse and empowering children in the criminal justice system.

A graduate of Wayne State University Law School, Diehl is a member of Gov. John Engler's Task Force on Children's Justice.

On the Board of Directors of the Out Wayne County Council on Child Abuse and Neglect since 1987, she received that organization's Service to Children Award in 1990.

A social hour begins at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. and program at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia (southeast corner of Schoolcraft and Levan roads off the Jeffries Freeway).

Cost is $7 per person which includes dinner and program.

The public is welcome, however, space is limited.

Reservations must be made by noon Monday, Sept. 14 to Joyce Pappas of the Garden City BPW at 422-7030.

American stress levels rise as recession goes on Stress has always been with us, but researchers say it has doubled in the past six years. Lately, already high stress levels have been intensified by the emotional and financial strains associated with the recession.

In an economic downturn, growing numbers of people become unemployed or are in danger of losing their jobs. Many suffer from low self-esteem, family stress and burnout due to financial woes.

It's no wonder that almost half of the working population feels highly stressed and it makes one in four sick, according to a study by Northwestern National Life Insurance Company.

A buildup of negative stress can cause both physical and emotional problems. Exhaustion, headaches, hypertension, depression, anxiety, substance abuse and insomnia are just some of the symptoms of stress-related illness. "Stress affects the entire family," said Susan Green, director of the adult program at The Psychiatric Center of Michigan Hospital. "If a parent loses his or her job, the change in financial circumstances and resulting family pressures can cause young children to react strongly and adolescents to act out of control."

One of the main causes of stress is a lack of control over life events. Employees facing possible layoffs are vulnerable as are those who want to find a new job but feel trapped because of the recession. People who are flexible and have a high self-esteem are better able to handle stress.

Why it happens

Stress occurs for many reasons — mounting pressures, shrinking time and worries about steering children through the minefield of crack, AIDS and crime.

"In the free-wheeling '80s, we spent without thinking," said Green. "During the economic upheaval of the '90s, we're struggling for basic survival."

Depression is one reaction to high levels of stress and is by far the most common adult mental health problem. Nine million Americans suffer from depression each year, according to the American Psychiatric Association.

A depressed person will seem sad and withdrawn and may experience fatigue, loss of appetite, an inability to concentrate and insomnia.

If someone can't seem to get out of bed each morning, is unable to work or concentrate, and generally functions under a "black cloud," he or she should be evaluated by a professional, Green said.

Anxiety, an uncomfortable feeling of dread characterized by nervousness, tension and apprehension, is one of the more commonly recognized symptoms of stress. They physical reactions to anxiety include headaches, dizziness, lack of energy, palpitations, nausea and tremors.

Somew anxiety due to financial insecurity, job worries or family discord is unavoidable. However, if someone is afraid to leave the house or panics under what might be considered normal circumstances, the problem deserves a medical evaluation, Green said.

According to the APA, alcohol and drug abuse afflict an estimated 25.5 million Americans. Problems with alcohol and drugs often worsen when someone loses a job. The economy takes them down and drugs keep them there, Green said.

Substance abuse victims can't control their use and become intoxicated on a regular basis.

When someone repeatedly tries to stop using drugs, but fails, even though drug use interferes with his or her ability to get or keep a job, it's time to seek professional help.

"You may not be able to change your life overnight, but you can change your perspective, reduce some of the stress points in your life so you can feel more relaxed and in control," Green said.

Easing stress

Green has a few tips on easing stress during pressure-filled times:

- Keep expectations reasonable; concentrate on smaller goals.
- Don't be too hard on yourself. Cut yourself some slack and learn to live with imperfection.
- Know when to say no. You'll feel stressed and resentful if you take on too much. Asking for help and admitting you have limitations free you from potential negative stress.

• Take a time-out. Create time that's all your own. Go for a long walk, lunch with a friend or whatever makes you feel relaxed.

• Give your body a break. Eat sensibly, cut back on caffeine and nicotine and get enough sleep.

• Exercise. Walking and jogging can relieve mental strain and make you feel better.

• Reduce your rush hour. Set your alarm clock 15 minutes earlier to cut down on early morning stress.

• Organize. Make realistic to-do lists and prioritize.

• Don't take your anger out on the wrong person. A lot of family stress is actually generated outside the home. Talk over the problem with the person who upset you.

• Maintain a sense of humor. Laughter is often the best medicine.

GOP task force pushes school funding changes

By TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

The idea hit state Rep. Jan Dolan about the same time her Farmington school district lost $5.75 million in state funds through "recapture."

"The suburbs are suffering from recapture," said the second-term Republican.

"Then we looked at Benton Harbor. We can't afford another Benton Harbor. It's only 4.5 square miles in area and has 12,500 people, but its zip code takes about $37 million to $40 million of the Department of Social Services budget. And that's just a holding pattern."

The conclusion: Suburban school districts from Rochester to Plymouth-Canton are being punished by withdrawal of state dollars that are re-shuffled into:

- Welfare just to keep people alive.
- Subsidies to school districts in cities that have awarded generous property tax abatements to business.

Led task force

So House Republican leader Paul Hillegonds named Dolan 14 months ago to head a GOP Task Force on Urban Strategy and Community Redevelopment.

Formerly a 14-year Farmington Hills councilwoman, Dolan led a team that studied a subject Republicans rarely talk about — crumbling cities, their heavy property taxes and redevelopment. Other members were from St. Joseph, Muskegon, Midland, and Howell.

"It is a Republican thing to get into because it's sound business," Dolan said as the task force recently unveiled a 33-point program.

Tax breaks hit

Key target is the property tax abatement — the state law under which cities give companies a 12-year 50 percent tax break in order to lure economic development. In Benton Harbor's case there is an even more generous "enterprise zone" of tax breaks.

"A lot of Detroit is tax-abated. It creates big inequities, and the people pick up the tab," Dolan said, pointing to the central city's 94-mill tax rate (versus 54 mills or less in the suburbs).

Under the task force plan, tax abatements wouldn't be outlawed, but they would be subject to performance contracts. If the company promised 500 jobs and hired only 400, it would lose one-fifth of its abatement, under the GOP plan.

"Performance contracts should establish specific goals and protect the interests of the community. If a business fails to make a good faith effort, the contract should be voided and taxes recalculated," Dolan said.

"Taxpayers of Michigan don't benefit if businesses are granted tax abatements and then move on to other communities when better tax abatements are offered. In effect, the unabated companies are subsidizing the competition."

An Ypsilanti lawmaker told Dolan tax breaks weren't bad because "the state makes it up" to schools. Her counterpunch: "Ypsilanti's money came out of Livonia, Farmington and Birmingham schools."

Expertise needed

Small cities often lack fiscal expertise. "They can't hire a Bill Costick," Dolan said referring to her city's manager.

So the task force recommended guidance and financial training by the state and a "fiscal early warning system" in the state Treasury Department. "This system could signal financial trouble and allow immediate intervention before a crisis erupts," she said.

Such cities also need workshops in how to use existing state and federal programs, the task force said. Their officials would be required to attend workshops before their cities are eligible for emergency loans.

Other key ideas:

- Community development — technical assistance by the state and volunteers in neighborhood revival.
- Human development — expand early childhood intervention; require welfare recipients to go to school or train for jobs, and find transportation and child care for them; develop incentives for obtaining prenatal care.

• Housing development — ease cities' ability to demolish abandoned buildings; give tax breaks for new housing in targeted older cities; make tax-reverted property available to qualified community groups.

"These ideas are not all funded," said Dolan. But she argues that they set up priorities for the state to help its creatures, the cities, before and when they get into trouble.

The task force is one of a dozen House Republicans have set up under the guidance of Rep. Frank Fitzgerald of Grand Ledge.

While majority Democrats rarely accept the ideas hook, line and sinker, Fitzgerald said they help the GOP craft amendments and improvements to existing bills and make caucus members experts in their areas.

Early days: The attire of Rotary Club members cooking the chickens has changed from shirts and ties in the 1950s to more casual.

Cookin' chicken then, now

It all started in 1956 when members of the Plymouth Rotary Club decided they would get together at Jaycee Park and cook about 500 chicken dinners to raise money to purchase play ground equipment.

Now, 36 years later, the club cooks about 12,000 chickens, serving them from noon through 5 p.m. Sunday at The Gathering near Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth and at a carry out site located at West Middle School at Ann Arbor Trail and Sheldon Road.

The chicken barbecue is the centerpiece of Plymouth's annual Fall Festival that gets under way on Friday in Kellogg Park and last through Sunday until 5 p.m.

Tickets are $7 the day of the event at a booth at The Gathering, or $6 prior to the barbecue. Tickets are available from Plymouth Rotary Club members.

The dinner includes a half a chicken, an ear of corn and a roll.

Chow time: Kellogg Park in Plymouth becomes a community dining room during the Fall Festival, with tables set up to handle the nearly 12,000 diners served.

Coal patrol: Members of the Plymouth Rotary Club rake the coals in the barbecue pit to make sure they're hot for the chicken.

Harvest Moon begins floating across horizon tonight

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

Full Moon is at 10:17 p.m. on Sept. 11. This full moon is a very special one; it's called the Harvest Moon.

We have full moons every month throughout the year, so what makes this one so special?

Because the moon is in orbit around the earth, it appears in different parts of the sky from night to night.

Generally the moon will rise about one hour later each night. But in autumn the full moon is located at the part of its orbit that has the least tilt with respect to Earth's horizon line. The moon seems to skim along the horizon, rising at about the same time each evening, in about the same part of the sky. In fact, for the four evenings starting with the 9th, each moon rise occurs within 23 minutes of the previous night's!

The light scattered by the full moon was a help to farmers, allowing them to continue their harvesting after sunset, hence it was called the Harvest Moon. The full moon that follows the Harvest Moon was said to be a help to hunters; you can probably figure out what that full moon is called.

People occasionally wonder if the phase of the moon has an effect on humans. It really shouldn't be expected to have any effect at all! We see different phases of the moon depending on what part is being illuminated by the sun. Because the moon is always somewhere near the earth, any effect it could have should be a constant one, and not dependant on how much of the moon is being illuminated.

Mercury is at superior conjunction on the 15th. It is located behind the sun and is not visible. It becomes an evening object in October, but will not be well placed for observing.

Spica and Venus are two degrees above the horizon on the evening of the 15th. While this is nearly twice the altitude they had at the beginning of the month (and twice nothing is still nothing), they remain difficult objects to see. Try using binoculars and look 45 minutes after sunset, midway between the west and west southwest horizon.

Jupiter is in conjunction with the sun on Sept. 17, two days after Mercury's conjunction. Like Mercury, Jupiter is located behind the sun and is not visible. Don't worry about a collision occurring between Mercury and Jupiter; they're both 'behind' the sun, but they are millions of kilometers apart.

Jupiter becomes a morning object in October.

The moon is approaching the Pleiades star cluster just before dawn on the 17th. The moon is three degrees below and to the right of that star cluster. On the next morning the moon is nine degrees to the left of the Pleiades. The red star below the moon is Aldebaran.

Last quarter moon is at 3:53 p.m. on the 19th. The moon is beginning the last quarter of its orbit around the earth.

Mars is two degrees above the moon on the morning of the 20th. The Mars-color red star 15 degrees to the right of the moon is Betelgeuse ("Beetle-juice"). This star marks the right shoulder of Orion the hunter. (The name actually means 'armpit of the mighty one'.)

Autumn officially begins for the northern hemisphere at 2:43 p.m. on Sept. 22. But what is it that determines that precise moment? It's a combination of the earth's orbit and its tilt.

Earth is divided into a northern hemisphere and a southern hemisphere by an imaginary line called the equator. If this equator is extended out into space it cuts the sky into a northern and southern hemisphere, but now the imaginary line is called the celestial equator.

Because our earth is tilted 23.5 degrees, the sun can appear to be 23.5 degrees above the celestial equator or 23.5 degrees below it. When the sun is at its highest point in the sky north of the celestial equator, in June when the days are long and warm, we have summer. When the sun is at its lowest, in December when the days are short and cold, we have winter.

Obviously there are two points where the sun must cross over the celestial equator. Once when going from above the equator to below, and another going from below to above.

The precise moment of the crossover, going from north to south, is when autumn officially begins for the northern hemisphere. A person standing on Earth's equator at local noon would see the sun directly overhead on the celestial equator.

The sun will rise due east and set due west. The length of the day and length of night are about equal, so this is called the equinox.

Although we may be facing the start of autumn, people below the equator can look forward to the start of spring.

The moon is approaching the star Regulus, in Leo, on the morning of the 23rd. On the following morning it has passed that star.

New Moon occurs at 6:40 a.m. on Sept. 26. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible. Two nights later, on the 28th, the waxing (growing) crescent moon is seven degrees to the left of Venus. Both objects will be difficult to see because they are only three degrees above the horizon.

On the evening of the 30th the moon is two degrees to the right of Antares. Recall that on the 3rd the moon was three degrees to the left of Antares, so we have gone full circle.

Local clock maker shuns digital for old workmanship

STAFF WRITER

From tiny screws to gears to the pendulum, Connie Bouchard's skeleton clocks are made from scratch.

It's a labor of love, with each creation taking more than 600 hours to complete. He's got five made already and is working on a sixth.

Skeleton clocks were a popular furnishing in England during the 1800s. The clocks are "bare," without any casing to hide the inner workings of the machinery.

Bouchard is drawn to the simplicity. "It shows the work of a clock master," he said.

The retired General Motors engineer turned his garage into a workshop more than 20 years ago. He was looking for a hobby that complemented his career as an engineer. He began his career at General Motors in the late 1930s designing aircraft as the nation talking about the impending war.

The retiree, who is in his early 80s, set up his workshop with great care, having both tools and paraphernalia that reflects both his interests and his sense of humor.

First, it served as a restoration site for old Rolls Royces. For the last eight years it has been a clock shop.

"It got hard to work on cars," Bouchard said. "So I wrote to a man in England eight years ago. He's an old clock maker. He sent me drawings of skeleton clocks from the early 1800s."

And, that sparked his passion. Bouchard is making clocks for each of his two children and four grandchildren. Wife Helen also wants one.

"He's in his workshop from about 9 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon," she said. "He doesn't let too much interfere with his clock work."

The completed clocks adorn the couple's Birmingham living room and will not be distributed until after Bouchard dies.

"I wouldn't ever think of selling these," he said. "The gears, the screws, everything — I make. I do buy springs. But this is a job of patience. It all starts with a single sheet of brass."

A brass sheet these days runs approximately $300.

Each of the four clocks Bouchard has made is of a different design.

A ball clock relies on a metal ball winding its way through a side to side path that trips timing mechanisms every 30 seconds.

A scissors clock has numerous parts that resemble shears, including the pendulum. "The two pendulums are timed to cross each other, like scissors snipping," he said.

The last one completed was a lyre clock, with the frame shaped like the Greek harp-like instrument.

The newest project is a crystal clock that will have plexiglas looking like cut crystal on the pendulums and face. "It's going to be lovely," said Bouchard, as he scanned the unassembled parts on his work bench.

Each clock piece must first be made, though producing gears isn't an easy task. Some of the larger gears have 100 teeth to them, all must be precisely even and there is no pattern or form to follow. It's basically trial and error.

From there, Bouchard must fit all the pieces together. The least bit of inaccuracy results in a clock that won't run.

Once everything fits well, the clock is taken apart and Bouchard begins the arduous task of polishing each brass piece until it shines. Each piece is sanded with five different grades of sandpaper, then brass polish is applied and the finishing touch is lacquer.

"The worst part is the finishing and the polishing," Bouchard said. "It's tedious."

The work benches cross the entire back wall of the three car garage, where three of Bouchard's eight restored Rolls Royces share the space. Five of the cars were sold.

"It's precision work and you have to be steady. I just hope I can keep this up," Bouchard said.

Anticipation: Luciano Del Signore and other Plymouth Road business owners are hoping next month's opening of the George Burns Theatre proves good for business.

Eateries plan to cash in on theater opening

STAFF WRITER

The owner of the new George Burns Theatre has dined a few times in Vito DePalma's Plymouth Road restaurant.

"He never complains about the garlic," said DePalma with a laugh.

He is hoping that theatre owner Stuart Gorelick's venture will draw large crowds because sooner or later, audiences get hungry.

"We're anxious for the place to open up. It's going to bring quite a few people into the area," DePalma said.

Down the street, the Del Signore family is revising the menu of their restaurant, Fonte D'Amore, in anticipation of the theatre's opening Oct. 2. Fonte D'Amore will offer lighter fare and a more casual atmosphere.

"I think it will be good for the whole area," said John DelSignore, who started the restaurant 25 years ago.

Both Fonte D'Amore and DePalma's are planning to offer dinner and theater packages. Both will adapt to theater hours so patrons could stop in before or after the show. DePalma may open Sundays.

Luciano DelSignore, John's son, recalled that business was good during the brief tenure of the ill-fated Omni Star Theatre. Before falling into financial disarray, the Omni Star offered big-name entertainment acts in the old Mai Kai movie house on Plymouth at Farmington, now the George Burns Theatre.

"When the Omni Star was open, all the places were packed," said Luciano DelSignore.

Ray Borden, DePalma's general manager, said the George Burns Theatre expects to draw an affluent crowd and people from surrounding suburbs who don't usually shop or eat along Plymouth Road. That too would be good for cash registers.

The Oct. 2-4 opening shows will feature George Burns and Florence Henderson. Tickets are $60-$100. The theater is also selling seats for a series of four stage productions.

The theater won approval for a temporary liquor license waiver recently from the Livonia City Council and plans to offer drinks in a lobby bar. Gorelick also hired the Detroit-area firm of PeterHansRea to oversee the theater's renovation.

Richard Cummins, owner of the New Port Richie bar and eatery, has a prime location to offer theatergoers. He's right across Farmington Road. A Bill Knapp's restaurant is directly across Plymouth Road from the theatre.

"I'm excited. I think everybody along Plymouth Road is excited. I mean, that place holds 1,400 people. That's more than enough to go around."

He said he has nearly doubled the size of his bar in anticipation of the theater's opening.

"I guarantee it can't hurt," said Cummins, who admitted New Port Richie is "just barely" making it.

Kit Tennyson, who owns a nearby Chevrolet dealership, said the theater's success probably wouldn't benefit his dealership directly.

"It sure can't hurt to have another successful business on this stretch of road," Tennyson said.

Laura Toy, council president and owner of Cardwell Florist, said the theater nearby could be good for her business.

"People tend to bring flowers to concerts," she said. "I'm not really sure what they do with them, maybe throw them at the performers' feet."

She voted with the 5-1 council majority to approve the license waiver, required because another business (New Port Richie) is licensed within 1,000 feet of the theater.

They're singin' and dancin' at OU

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Oakland University's department of music, theater and dance has added a new major program, but had to wipe out a bunch of other majors in order to afford it.

The new major is a catch-all deal that combines studies in musical theater, regular theater and dance, said David Daniels, the department's chief advisor and spokesman. Students may still specialize in favorite study areas, but the new major lets them learn stuff in all the other areas, too.

Although eight graduate and undergraduate major programs were cut to make a hole for the new program, the current recession had little to do with it, Daniels said.

Conceived in the mid 1980s, this consolidation of curriculum was carried out partly in response to changing student demands and partly because reduced state aid was expected, Daniels said.

"We were very conscious that the next few years were going to be lean ones," he said. "It just looked like we needed to find a way to get leaner and meaner, as they say."

On the other hand, declining enrollment in the cancelled major programs convinced officials that continuing to offer them was a waste of time.

Although the new major program begins with the impending fall semester, the forsaken majors were axed two years ago.

Why the delay? Oakland's bureaucracy is mostly to blame, Daniels said. "It just takes forever for (new majors) to get through the hierarchy around here. We've been trying to get this major approved for years and years and years."

Also, over the last few years the department of music, theater and dance got a new chairman, the college of arts and sciences got a new dean, and the university hired a new president. Those changes likewise had much to do with the delay, according to David Downing, assistant dean of the college of arts and sciences.

While one might get the idea from all this that the department of music, theater and dance is shrinking, Downing said that's not true. "Enrollments have been strong and in fact growing," he said.

Daniels said there are about 100 undergraduate students in the department and 50 students working on master's degrees.

The majors that were cut two years ago to make way for the new major are: bachelor's programs in major performance, orchestral instruments performance, guitar performance, theory of music, jazz and commercial music, and master's programs in instrumental performance, jazz and Orff Pedagogy.

Madonna class offers tips on solving problems

Madonna University will offer two sections of "Conflict Resolution in the Classroom, at Home and on the Job" this fall.

Each section will take place on a weekend: Friday and Saturday, Sept. 25-26, and Friday and Saturday, Nov. 13-14. The workshop will meet from 6-10 p.m. on Fridays and from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

The goal of the workshop is to provide participants with knowledge and skills in conflict resolution/management in the classroom, at home, and on the job. A theoretical framework rooted in non-violence is presented as well as a practical hands-on conflict resolution model based on the framework.

The cost per section is $145 for one hour academic credit or $90 for 1.2 continuing education units. For more information, call 313-591-5103.

Fall festival

Enduring tradition in our towns

Plymouth's annual Fall Festival that gets under way on Friday is a dividing line for summer and autumn.

It's still summer, if Michigan has such a season. There could be an argument about such a contention. But there are hints of autumn, probably our state's best season.

For summer lovers, Fall Festival can be a depressing time. It's a reminder that the November winds are around the corner. For fall lovers, it's a reminder that pheasants, apples, pumpkins and deer are ready for harvesting.

But no matter which school of seasonal thought you come from, the Fall Festival offers you a chance to celebrate either the end of your favorite season or the beginning of another.

And as with most festivals, food is the centerpiece. But the game bird here isn't pheasant, it's chicken. This white fowl takes center stage on Sunday when the Plymouth Rotary Club turns out nearly 12,000 dinners in The Gathering at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

But there are other events. Here are some of our favorites:

- The Optimist Pet Show. It happens at 9 a.m. Saturday in Kellogg Park. There are more free laughs here than on cable television. Pet owners dress up their cats and dogs and compete in various categories. And no one is left out. There are categories for the longest tail and longest ears, too.

- The Plymouth Community Arts Council show at Central Middle School. This one is $2, but well worth the ticket. More than 80 artists and craftsmen participate in this juried show.

- All the food. The YMCA sells Italian sausage; the Nativity of Virgin Mary, shish kebab; the Vietnam vets steamed corn; and the Plymouth Salem Class Council sells pizza.

Fall may mean the arrival of chilly weather, but the annual festival will be a hot time for all.

Property tax plan unequitable

 PROPERTY TAX PROPOSALS

Neighbors could be at each other's throats some day and banging Town Hall's doors, if voters approve Proposal C, the "cut & cap" property tax plan on the Nov. 3 ballot. There's a fishhook in the plan that gets bigger and sharper over the years.

Let's start with two houses that are identical — easy, in suburban subdivisions — and worth $100,000 apiece in today's market. They are assessed for half of true value, or $50,000.

Under "cut & cap," assessment increases would be limited by law to 3 percent a year. So the assessments could be $51,500 the first year, $53,045 the second, and so on until the 10th year when they are $67,196.

Meanwhile, let's be conservative and assume values rise 8 percent annually, compounded, over 10 years.

Without "cut & cap," the assessment would rise to nearly $108,000, or 61 percent more than with a 3-percent cap.

The fishhook is that if one neighbor sells, his house is immediately reassessed at half the true market value, or $108,000.

So the newcomer to the neighborhood finds his family paying 61 percent more than the family living there 10 years.

That's patently unfair. A similar proposal did pass constitutional muster in California. That case should not obscure the basic unfairness of sending wildly different tax bills to neighbors in nearly identical houses a few years down the road.

Indeed, it may not pass muster under the Michigan Constitution, whose first section says, "Government is instituted for their equal benefit, security and protection."

As social policy, a cap is inherently discriminatory against young couples buying an existing house.

A job-seeker would be less inclined to move to a new opportunity if one were punished by the property tax system.

Indeed, it's astounding that the Michigan Realtors Association would support a proposal so inimical to its own hopes for high property turnover.

You will not, of course, hear the bad effect of "cut and cap" advertised by the anti-government people like chambers of commerce. You may not hear that point mentioned by pro-government groups like the teachers unions.

But if you think you or your kids might be alive 10 years from now, you owe it to everyone to think hard before swallowing the "cut & cap" fishhook.

This is the first in a periodic series of editorials on the "cut and cap" proposal. Future editorials review the effect on schools, where the money would come from to replace that lost from property taxes and a look at Michigan's financial future.

Teed off

During my lunch hour on July 22, at approximately 11:40 a.m., I was traveling south on Beck Road going toward Ann Arbor Trail. As I was coming up to Amherst Road, an object hit the windshield of my '92 Mercury Topaz.

I had another person with me, and we were both very shaken up. Luckily, I did not lose control of the car but immediately pulled into the entrance of Amherst. We had glass in our hair, on our clothes, and in the front seat of the car.

We got out of the car, brushed the glass off and proceeded to look for the object. We were adjacent to the Hill Top Golf Course and there were several golfers in view. We could not find anything by the road side, but the crack in the windshield looked remarkably similar to the size of a golf ball.

We then went to the golf course to report the incident to the manager. As he was out golfing, we spoke to a woman who we were told was in charge.

She was very rude to us and said that happens all the time and that the person who hit the ball was responsible; it was not the responsibility of the golf course.

It is apparent that this type of thing is a hazard to all traffic on Beck Road, and I feel the golf course has a responsibility to protect passing traffic from this kind of incident.

Many of my co-workers use this this route daily now, coming and going to work or traveling it at lunch time. I would not want this to happen to them or anyone else.

Hard right rejects modernization

Anybody who didn't catch Tim Richard's piece on "Conservative groups may force a state Con-Con" in last week's paper missed a significant and original work of political analysis.

Richard, who writes on the local implications of state and regional news, covered last month's state Republican convention in Grand Rapids. There he picked up word that the same fundamentalist wing of the Michigan GOP that gave Gov. John Engler such fits at the convention is thinking of pushing for a state constitutional convention when the issue comes on the ballot in 1994.

What would they like to do?

According to Richard, they are backing something called "full choice," i.e. a state voucher that parents could take to any school — public, private, proprietary or parochial. "They praised McGuffey's Readers, Latin and parochial schools. Away from the microphones, I heard mutterings about creationism," he said.

Richard concluded that, "They are on a holy crusade to 'take back our culture.'"

This is pretty strong stuff. But don't underestimate the moral fervor or political power that's coming together here.

My Republican friends confirm Richard's guess that the hard right, including Michigan Right to Life, had something like 45 percent of the delegates at the GOP convention. This is the same group that nearly put the party into the Pat Robertson camp in 1986-88 and which put together the grass roots organization that nominated half the Republican candidates for the U.S. Congress in last month's primaries.

It's the Michigan version of the same people who took over the platform committee and rammed the most conservative manifesto in modern times through the Republican national convention in Houston.

What's really going on here?

As I read this group, they really do believe that important elements of today's world are fundamentally odious to enduring American cultural values.

The moral breakdown of America has encouraged homosexuality, provoked AIDS, tolerated abortion and destroyed the traditional family. The public schools have failed to educate, displaced religious and ethical standards, indoctrinated children with left-leaning ideas and enforced a coercive liberal intellectual orthodoxy. The media are run by cultural elitists who propagate the same orthodoxy.

The political system does nothing but pander to special interest groups and must be cleansed by people of strong convictions and true values.

Upon reflection, I am persuaded that the same dynamics that created the Islamic fundamentalist movement now shaking the Arab world are driving the hard Republican right.

Both groups reject the consequences of modernization as blaspheming traditional values. Both look with anger and sadness at the deterioration of old-fashioned virtue and social institutions such as the family. Both feel that the intellectual advances of the 20th century, far from bringing clarity and hope, have led to confusion, error and lockstep orthodoxy enforced by the repressive apparatus of the government.

It's a view of the world that says the results of the passage of modern history are not "progress" but, in fact, regression.

Many may disagree with this interpretation, but it's hard to argue with the emotional power that it expresses.

Philip Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper.

Racial overtones

Thanks to quotes attributed to Barbara Graham in Monday's Observer, "Anti-abortionists protest eatery opening," a suspicion of mine has been confirmed. There are racial overtones to the anti-abortion movement. Barbara Graham is worried that her white grandchildren will someday be in the minority.

I have long wondered if these "concerned" citizens were as concerned about every adult they came in contact with.

Until these people are ready to offer unlimited financial and emotional support to the baby they would see born and the mother they would see carry the child, they should leave the personal decisions to the people involved.

All children loved

Jesus loves the little children, all the little children of the world: red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in His sight, Jesus loves the little children of the world."

I learned the words to this song in Sunday School and they have been running through my head since I read the statements made in the Observer by Barbara Graham, who is a member of the Plymouth Canton School Board. Ms. Graham was quoted as saying that she opposes Planned Parenthood because it was founded on the premise of "zero population growth" which she said has now left "white children in the minority."

God loves all His children, and He judges us not on the color of our faces, but on the quality of our souls.

While the First Amendment gives Ms. Graham the right of freedom of speech, her elected position as school board trustee responsible for the welfare of all the children in this district requires that she act with impartiality, and without regard to color.

Sheryl Khoury, Plymouth

Flying success

I would like to submit a letter of thanks to be placed in the Observer.

The Metro Flyers would like to thank everyone who supported us with our bottle drive in June 1992. It was a huge success.

A special thank you to Mid-Joy Party Store for accepting our bottles.

Thank you very much.
The Metro Flyers

Kosteva supported

As president of the Michigan Federation of Teachers, I want to be sure that citizens in the 21st House District are aware of State Rep. Jim Kosteva's hard work towards improving both the quality of education and access to educational opportunity in Michigan.

In the area of higher education, the House Colleges and Universities Committee (which he chaired) played a major role in sending to the Senate an important bill to protect students at proprietary schools from rip-offs and scams, so that their hard-earned dollars purchase the skills and training they need for vocational success.

As vice-chair of the House Taxation Committee and a member of the House Education Committee, he has been able to help shape public finance and educational legislation before it goes to the floor of the House. We particularly applaud the attention he has given to the critical issue of equity, especially for his support for tax-base sharing. As modern citizens, we live in a society much broader than any school district's boundaries. Limiting access to quality education harms not only the children who are left out but all others who will pay the price later on for added social service costs, a weaker economy and the loss of their special talents.

We encourage the citizens of the 21st House District to support Representative Kosteva so that he can continue his record of contributions to education.

Hugh E. Jarvis, president
Michigan Federation of Teachers,
AFT, AFL-CIO

Balance needed

It troubles me when politicians try to twist a complex problem to their political advantage by pointing the finger at a single source or offering a one sentence solution as a panacea. A case in point is the recent theme of blaming trial attorneys and particularly the number of trial attorneys, for the explosion of litigation in America. With this logic you may as well blame the annual rash of Devil's night fires in Detroit on the overabundance of fire-fighters.

Is there too much litigation? Sure there is. Does litigation increase the cost of doing business, providing health care, owning a home or driving a car? Absolutely! There are also costs associated with having clean water and air, with producing safe products, creating safe workplaces, and instituting safe health care procedures. There is a fine line that must be drawn to establish a balance. Not everyone agrees where that line should be drawn.

Why is there so much litigation? There are many reasons for the dramatic increase in litigation. The rate of change in our society continues to grow at an exponential rate. For every technological advance there are corresponding questions of law that must be resolved. Businesses are facing tougher competition and consequently are operating on tighter margins and are looking for every possible advantage.

Is there a great deal of unnecessary litigation? Certainly. There are growing numbers of people, both potential plaintiffs and defendants, who refuse to take responsibility for their own actions, but are only too willing to place the blame elsewhere. The ability of people to be reasonable and to see the other side of an issue appears to be on the wane. There are plaintiff's attorneys who fail to explain to their clients the economics of a lawsuit and fail to explain that the courts are designed to resolve problems as a last resort, not a first resort. There are defendants who intentionally exploit the economics of a lawsuit by intentionally driving up the costs of pursuing legitimate claims, to a prohibitive level. Professions are failing to police their own ranks. There are businesses who by their very nature will have numerous compensation claims brought against them, so they institute policies that every claim, regardless of merit, will be contested. There are insurance companies who refuse to treat a legitimate claim seriously unless you file a lawsuit.

Can the system be improved? Yes, but suggesting that the answer is simple is a disservice to your electorate.

Michael J. Gerou,
Plymouth attorney

Make CSX pay

CSX Transportation's statement, in your Aug. 13 article, that the many tickets issued by Plymouth police thwarts Interstate Commerce is a joke. The railroad blocks streets while using our area for a switching station. We would not object to the movement of an interstate train through Plymouth whether it was fast or slow. We object to trains that stop, change directions or some trains just sit there blocking our roadways. I sat for 20 minutes at Sheldon near M-14 watching an engine and a few cars do nothing. They could have moved farther west, but they didn't care to. Their attitude begets our attitude. We don't care either. Let them pay for it.

A thrill

I would like to commend you for your coverage on Dr. Thomas Clark (performance offers thrill of a lifetime, Aug. 20).

In the article Dr. Clark stated, "I've dedicated the concert to police officers throughout the country." Having known Dr. Clark for over five years I would also like to say that he has devoted his private practice as a psychologist to police officers. I know of several police officers that Dr. Clark has helped. They have called him in the middle of the night at his home, on weekends and holidays and not once has he ever said he was too busy, or to contact him during his office hours.

Dr. Clark is a very caring person with a sincere interest in police officers and

Chiefs romp in soccer

Plymouth Canton routed visiting Farmington Hills Harrison 6-0 in boys soccer Tuesday. The Chiefs distributed the scoring and playmaking. Paul Gumber had two goals and one assist, Mike Wdowiak and James Bossieux one goal and one assist, Chad Dale and Owen Crosby one goal each. Jeff Fliss and Jeff Kynsz registered one assist apiece. Ryan Henkel and Billy Power shared the goalkeeping duties for Canton (3-1-1).

Marian overcomes Salem

Birmingham Marian outscored Plymouth Salem 19-9 in the fourth quarter Tuesday en route to a 62-51 victory over the host Rocks in girls basketball. Salem trimmed a 35-27 halftime deficit to one point entering the final quarter.

"We took a 46-45 lead in the fourth quarter but then we had a run of bad luck," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "Marian made their free throws down the stretch, and they did a nice job on the offensive boards."

The Rocks fell to 0-3 while the Mustangs improved to 3-1.

"We've lost three tough games," Thomann said, "but the team has stayed positive and has been working hard. It's just a matter of staying with it."

Judy Stewart led the Mustangs with 18 points. Stephanie Storen added 14 and Tara Walsh 12.

Senior center Cyndi Platter paced Salem with 18 points and 14 rebounds. Senior Shelly Sockow scored 11 points.

Boyz earn hoop awards

Boyz N The Hoop, a Plymouth team of 11-year-old boys, earned the runner-up trophy at the Gus Macker 3-on-3 basketball tournament in Belding. The Boyz also were honored with the Sportsmanship Award in their 20-team division. The players are Jacob Gray, Nick Szczechowski, Andrew Werner and Adam Wilson.

Salem wins soccer showdown, 2-1

Salem victory: Senior midfielder Tom Baker controls a 50-50 ball Tuesday during Salem's 2-1 win over defending state champion Stevenson.

Defending state Class A boys soccer champion Livonia Stevenson could not overcome a disputed goal as visiting Plymouth Salem came away with the victory.

Now that the National Football League has dismissed the instant replay, it may find a warm welcome at Livonia Stevenson.

The Spartans controlled most of the soccer game Tuesday against visiting Plymouth Salem before a controversial goal and an outstanding individual effort by Tom Baker conquered the Spartans, 2-1.

The Rocks (5-0-1) trailed 1-0 with 16 minutes remaining in the game. The score could have been worse had it not been for the outstanding goaltending of sophomore Paul Dood, who steered away several point-blank shots.

Salem was given a free kick from around 30 yards out. Brian Spuck lofted the ball toward the Spartan net where Joe Perron headed it towards the upper right corner of the net. Stevenson's goalkeeper, freshman Jim Grewe, batted the ball above the net.

But the ball glanced off a screen above the net and rebounded back into play, where junior Ryan Phipps easily booted the ball past Grewe for the tying goal.

The referee and linesman consulted while several Spartans argued their case to no avail — the goal was allowed.

Spartan coach Walt Barrett refused to be upset about the play. Instead he looked back at the several chances his team had to add on to their early lead.

"Considering we have a lot of new starters and a young team, come tomorrow at practice, I don't think anyone will be disappointed," he said. "Tonight our game plan was fine and our strategy was fine."

"But when you are young and playing above your head, you leave yourself open to a crucial call. I have nothing against the referee, he just didn't see it. The next approach is to get a 2-0 lead. If you do that, you don't leave the game up to one call."

The goal gave Salem new life and the Rocks kept the pressure on Stevenson. With 2:10 left, Baker got behind the Spartan defense and dribbled in on Grewe, who came out of the net. Baker then took the ball to the left of the goal.

"I had no angle so I hoped to get a shot on net or get it in front to someone," said Baker, who made the all-state team last season as a junior.

Baker made a nice one-on-one move on the defender and drilled a shot into the center of the goal.

"He's the best player in the state," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "He covers the whole field and has a great brain. I knew when he had the ball (next to the net) it was a goal."

The Spartans took the lead nine minutes into the game. Senior Jeff Thomas spun away from a Salem defender at midfield and fed senior Adam Pichler, who drove past two Salem players and fired a shot from just over 20 yards out that found an opening in the corner.

That was the only thing that got past Dood, as the sophomore made several fantastic sprawling saves.

"He's a great young keeper," Johnson said of Dood. "He has only given up two goals (in six games) and hasn't played a bad game yet."

The Stevenson coach also praised the Salem keeper.

"(Dood) came up big in some crucial situations," Barrett said. "We're play-Redford Catholic Central's defense outscored Toledo St. John's offense Saturday night at the Pontiac Silverdome.

St. John's didn't get a first down until the last minute of the third quarter and had only 109 yards total offense in a 36-0 season-opening loss to the Shamrocks.

But CC's best defensive highlight came from defensive end Joe Lopez, who intercepted a St. John's pass and returned it 75 yards for a touchdown with 9:49 remaining in the game. Lopez picked off the pass after lineman Aaron Babicz deflected the ball in the air.

"That's something you don't like to see in high school football because you don't want to put too many points on the board, but it happened and it was a great effort," CC coach Tom Mach said. "The defense really set the tone by denying a lot of opportunities and giving us good field position."

CC gained 371 total yards, including 304 on the ground against St. John's, a big-school playoff team in Ohio in '91 and a favorite to win the Toledo city championship.

"We have a lot of seniors but we're very green because we didn't play a lot of our backups last year due to our tough schedule," St. John's coach Fred Beier said. "We lack game experience but the game was won up front. When you control the trenches you're going to win the game."

CC junior tailback Freddy Taylor gained 140 yards on 16 carries and scored two TDs, including a 66-yard run on the Shamrocks' first play in the second half for a 22-0 lead.

Taylor was making his first varsity start after playing junior varsity in 1991.

"That was great downfield blocking," Taylor said of his long run. "The pressure is all on the line because without a line, what is a back?"

Senior fullback Jason Krueger was the perfect complement with 107 yards on 20 carries and two TDs.

Senior quarterback Chris Barbara suffered a charley horse late in the first half but still completed four-of-six passes for 67 yards and directed scoring drives of 38, 46, 52 and 71 yards.

"I thought we moved the ball well, our line did a good job opening holes," Mach said.

CC's first points came in the first quarter after a 13-yard punt by St. John's gave the Shamrocks the ball at the Titans' 38-yard line. Six plays later, Taylor galloped 15 yards for a 6-0 lead with 7:23 remaining.

The Shamrocks took a 12-0 lead with 1:00 left in the first quarter on a 1-yard dive by Krueger, set up by Lopez's 43-yard reception.

CC marched 52 yards on its last possession of the half and the drive ended with a 22-yard field goal by junior Adam Borchardt for a 15-0 lead.

Barbara completed three straight passes on the drive, including one to Ken Ryus for 13 yards and a pair to Brady Pankow for 11 yards.

"The drive at the end of the first half was real class, terrific for the first game," Mach said. "It was a big momentum change because it made it 15 instead of 12."

St. John's went past midfield twice in the second half but the first drive ended in Lopez's interception return and the second ended when the Titans failed to convert a fourth down at CC's 16.

Linebacker Joe Herman led CC with 10 tackles and lineman Joe Suhajda had eight. Pankow had an interception and linebacker Tate Dobbs and middle guard Paul Nemec had seven tackles each.

Running trio paces Salem team

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem is counting on the senior trio of Derek Cudini, Jamie Miller and Justin Richardson to lead the Rocks in boys cross country this year.

"That's a pretty good place to start, and we hope to get five or six others to fill in behind them," Salem coach Geoff Baker said.

Cudini should be the top runner, a position he held last season when he finished seventh in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 14th in the state.

"Derek had a good week at camp. He should be one of the top five in the league and should make it to state," Baker said.

"We expect him to be No. 1, but Justin is running real well, too. He had bad shins (last year) and couldn't run as comfortably as he wanted. We're keeping an eye on him, but he ran real well at camp."

"Derek and Justin are pretty equal. Derek just has more experience. Jamie also is working hard, and we expect good things from him because he's really focused for his senior year."

The Rocks also return sophomore Andy McDonald, who ran in several meets last year. Other runners are senior Mike Dunn, juniors Russ Polcyn, Josh Stickney and Fernando Domingo, sophomore Ian Packer and freshman Jared Biniecki.

"Any one of them could emerge, but they have to get some races under their belts," Baker said. "We'll wait and see who's going to be there."

"We don't worry about the first few races. We train for the end of the season. We're not going to burn anybody's doors off. Hopefully, we'll peak at the right time; that's our ultimate goal."

The Rocks, who start the season Saturday at the West Bloomfield Invitational, were third in the WLAA last year behind Walled Lake Western and Farmington Hills Harrison.

Salem could win the Lakes Division title, but Baker sees those teams and Plymouth Canton as contenders for the league crown again.

"We can be competitive. It just depends on how well I bring the group along and how hard they want to work," Baker said. "If the guys progress well and want it bad enough, we can make a bid for it."

Scribes' prediction contest close

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The high school football season is in full swing, and the race is heating up. For league championships? No, pigskin prediction glory.

As long as neither Observer sports editor tries to runaway with the best-picks title, the contest should go down to the wire in Week 9. And based on initial returns it will.

After two less-than-sterling debuts, Dan O'Meara holds a one-game lead over Brad Emons. Danny Boy was 10-6 and The Big E 9-7.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Clarenceville at Det. Luth. West, 7 p.m.: They don't get any easier for the Trojans, who lost the opener 27-12 to Center Line St. Clement and must play another quality parochial school. Clarenceville will have to contain Lutheran West quarterback Reggie Dalton, who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.5 seconds. The Leopards began the season whipping Lutheran East 26-0. PICK: Lutheran West is tough to stop.

Ionia vs. Bish. Borgess, 7 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High: The Spartans, trying to rebound from a loss to Class D Portland St. Patrick, face another mid-Michigan opponent. Class BB Ionia had an impressive win last week, defeating Lowell 13-7. Lowell has a solid program and usually a good team. PICK: The visiting Bulldogs go home winners.

Liv. Churchill at Wsd. Glenn: The Rockets moved into the state rankings this week after opening with a 35-7 rout of Detroit Murray-Wright. The Chargers, who lost 28-6 to Dearborn, face a big challenge in this WLAA crossover game.

GRID PICKS

PICK: The Rockets fuel up for a Lakes Division title quest.

Liv. Franklin at Liv. Stevenson: The anonymous caller to the Observer (obviously a young man of high school age) took exception to Brad Emons picking Lake Orion last week. (Franklin won 16-10.) He demanded we start picking the Patriots to win and stop "ragging on" the school. Oh, yes. He also tossed in this morsel: "We're going to show everybody we're the team and we're the best." Well, our friend might have something there. It was a good win for Franklin and the Patriots could be the team when it's all over. Stevenson had a rough first game, losing to Redford Union. PICK: Here it is — and not because of any arm-twisting, either. Franklin is the unanimous choice.

Farm. Harrison at Ply. Salem: OK, so Brad and Dan look like Doubting Thomases this week after missing on Harrison's upset of Dearborn Divine Child. Both picked against the Hawks for the first time in ages. Make that double for Dan, who also thought Trenton would beat Salem. Oh, ye, of little faith! So both teams started the season well and meet in a rematch of last year's 21-12 game won by Harrison. Neither has quite the powerhouse team it had a year ago, but this should be an interesting game based on first-week impressions. PICK: If they'll have us, we're back on the Harrison bandwagon.

Romulus at Garden City: The Cougars raised a few eyebrows with their 16-6 win over Dearborn Heights Crestwood, a Class BB playoff team last year. Romulus, meanwhile, opened with a 21-7 defeat of Taylor Truman and also appears headed in the right direction under third-year coach Dan Henry. PICK: Romulus, by a whisker.

Wat. Kettering at Redford Union: Can the Panthers defend their Northwest Suburban League title? The 17-14 win over Stevenson indicates RU still has a solid team and could do it. We'll know a little more this week when the Panthers play Waterford Kettering, a 42-36 loser to Millford Lakeland. Can RU score that many points? Will they need to? Stay tuned. PICK: RU wins a squeaker.

Wayne Memorial at Monroe: Here we have a team (Wayne) that could/should have won and a team (Monroe) that could/should have lost. The Zebras gave top-ranked Adrian a battle before succumbing, 21-13. Monroe scored on the last play of the game to beat Plymouth Canton, 14-13. The Trojans will get a real test from Wayne and running back Bruce Calhoun. PICK: The Zebras deflate the Monroe balloon.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Ply. Canton at N. Farmington: Players on both teams no doubt feel bad after losing last week, but there were encouraging signs for each team. Canton should have beaten Monroe after scoring late to take a 13-6 lead, but the Chiefs gave up a touchdown pass (ala the Detroit Lions) on the last play of the game and then a two-point conversion. Had it converted other scoring opportunities, Canton would have won. North was tied 7-7 at halftime with Pontiac Northern but gave up two, long TD runs in the second half of a 20-7 loss. Two plays were the difference. The North defense is tough and won't have to contend with the speed of a Charles Talley this week. PICKS: The Raiders get the nod.

W.L. Western at Farmington: Western is the favorite to win the WLAA Western Division but needed 14 points in the last quarter to beat Novi 29-25. Farmington will have to come around in a hurry after losing 28-0 to West Bloomfield. The Falcons won this game last year 13-3.

but the Warriors are a better, more-experienced team. PICK: Western picks up another win.

Allen Park at Red. Thurston: The Eagles started with a 6-0 win over Redford St. Agatha, but they face a much taller order this week in their Tri-River League opener. Allen Park, which thumped Grosse Ile 28-0, is the defending TRL champion, and the Jaguars no doubt think this is their year to do something in the Class BB playoffs now that Farmington Hills Harrison has moved up to Class A. PICK: Allen Park is still on top.

Harper Wds. at Luth. Westland: The Warriors go for their second win after beating Marine City Cardinal Mooney 8-0, but so does Harper Woods. The Pioneers clobbered Detroit Holy Redeemer 32-0. Harper Woods, 2-7 last year, runs the veer-option offense and always hits hard, according to Lutheran Westland coach Dennis Tuomi. PICK: O'Meara says the Warriors win; Emons says the Pioneers.

St. Agatha at Central Lake: The Eagles hope to rebound from their 6-0 loss to Thurston. The Trojans of Central Lake in the northwest corner of the lower peninsula, were dealt a 30-6 loss by Manacelon. PICK: St. Agatha makes sure the Trojans have a long bus ride home.

Redford CC vs. Windsor Brennan, 7:30 p.m. at Liv. Clarenceville: The Shamrocks have an edge on Brennan, having already played a game. CC chewed up Toledo St. John's, supposedly the Toledo City League favorite, in a 36-0 rout at the Silverdome Saturday night. Brennan, a Catholic coed high school with an enrollment of about 1,000 students, will play its season opener against CC. Brennan was 4-4 last year, losing to Windsor Kennedy 11-6 in the first round of the Ontario AAA (equivalent to AA in Michigan) playoffs. PICK: CC rolls to another win.

Raiders finish off Seaholm hoopers

After leading Birmingham Seaholm by three points after three quarters, North Farmington rallied to put away the visiting Maples 53-41 Tuesday in girls basketball.

The Raiders (2-1) outscored Seaholm (1-1) in the final eight minutes 19-10. North coach Lance Davis believed the rally was a result of good defense.

"We applied more pressure in the fourth quarter," Davis said. "We got some steals and some easy baskets. We were also able to get the ball to Carey (Perkins)."

Perkins, a junior forward, led all scorers with 23 points. Freshman forward Carrie May ripped down 13 rebounds to go along with eight points and six steals.

Danielle Laborde, who nailed a three-pointer to put the Raiders up by 14 points in the fourth quarter, finished with nine points. Kim Warren led Seaholm with 13 points.

MERCY 46, SALEM 44:The Marlins rallied from 12 points down early in the fourth quarter Saturday to win this non-league game against Plymouth Salem.

With three minutes left, Marshelle Brooks gave Mercy its first lead and put the Marlins ahead to stay with 1:50 remaining. Liz Weber made both ends of a one-and-one for a three-point lead and, after Christy Parimucha scored for Salem, Katie Heffernan accounted for the final margin when she made a free throw with 10 seconds to play.

The Rocks failed to get a last shot. "(Salem) controlled the tempo in the second and third quarters," Mercy coach Larry Baker said. "We brought up some really good pressure in the fourth quarter."

"I was really delighted with how much fight my team had left in the fourth quarter. It was a big win for my crew, because we're a relatively young and inexperienced group."

Brooks had 15 points (six in the fourth), seven rebounds and eight steals. Julie Angell added 11 points for Mercy (3-1). Weber made eight of 10 free throws, including all six in the final period.

Cyndi Platter scored a game-high 17 points for Salem (0-3), and Leslie Gotts finished with 13.

NOVI 54, HARRISON 46:The Hawks remained winless after failing to visiting Novi Tuesday.

The Hawks (0-4) lost their leading scorer, senior Heather Hopkins, with 5:00 left in the game after she collided with an opposing player.

Harrison led 21-20 entering the second half, but the Wildcats took control near the end of the third quarter and widened their lead to as many as 10 points.

"We were just turning the ball over far too much," Harrison coach Pete Mantyla said.

Freshman guard Kelly Kearney scored a game-high 16 points for Novi. Kelly Barton added 10. Hopkins and Krista Snow scored 10 each for Harrison.

W.BLOOM. 50, FARM. 34:Farmington was able to get the shots it wanted but not the right results Tuesday in a 50-34 loss at West Bloomfield.

Setbacks tarnish SC's fine start

How deceiving first games can be. Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team opened its season Saturday at the Monroe Community College Tournament in Rochester, N.Y., against Orange County CC (from Long Island, N.Y.). The final score: 7-0, SC.

So simple, right?
Not so fast.

On Sunday, the Lady Ocelots went up against what SC coach Nick O'Shea called "one of the best junior college teams I've seen" — host-team Monroe. The result: a 6-1 loss.

Combined with Tuesday's disappointing play against Calvin College, which ended up with SC absorbing a 4-1 loss at SC, the confidence gained from the opener has quickly dissipated.

Teamwork, said O'Shea, is the key to success for SC. "We don't have anybody with blazing speed. We're going to have to move the ball quickly. They're smart players with good skill, but they're not playing at a fast enough pace."

In the win over Orange County, SC got a lot of shooting practice. It was 3-0 by halftime, on goals by Kelly Greaves, Kara Kramer and Shelly Archibald. Jamie Alex, who set up the goals by Greaves and Archibald, scored two consecutive goals in the second half, on assists from Kramer and Greaves.

Archibald followed with her second goal, with Greaves getting her second assist, and Dee Lorenz closed out the scoring with a goal on an assist from keeper Kim Owczarzak. Owczarzak and Julie Brake combined in the net for the shutout.

Against Monroe, the Ocelots trailed 6-0 before finally getting a goal on a penalty kick by Lorenz. The kick was awarded after Archibald was knocked down in the penalty area.

"The positive thing was the girls worked the entire game and never gave up," said O'Shea. He heaped more praise on Monroe: "They have a lot of speed and are awesome everywhere. There are no weak spots."

The loss to Calvin was not as easy to take. "They looked really tired and played like they were really tired," was how O'Shea described his team. The match was tied 1-1 at the half, with Amy Krajewski scoring for SC on an assist from Archibald. But Calvin owned the second half.

"We've got to combine our efforts if we're going to win," said O'Shea. "We don't have any leaders in the midfield or up front yet. With no leadership, we're not going to get anything done. We need somebody to take charge out there."

Madonna wins volleyball tournament

By C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Two years ago, Madonna University's volleyball team got nothing out of its season-opening trip to Colorado except a few lessons on what it would take to reach national prominence.

Last week, it was the Lady Crusaders doing the teaching.

Madonna swept through the Colorado Classic, hosted by Mesa State College in Grand Junction, with five wins in six matches to finish first. Both Madonna and Mesa State had 5-1 records, but the Crusaders were declared the winners by virtue of total points scored in the two matches against each other.

Madonna opened the tournament Friday with straight-set victories over University of Mary Hardin-Baylor, Tex. (15-11, 15-11, 15-6) and Fort Lewis, Colo. (15-9, 15-6, 15-9).

Then came the test — Mesa State, highly regarded in the NCAA's Division II. It took four games, but Madonna persevered 17-15, 15-8, 10-15, 15-6.

On Saturday, the Crusaders opened play against Mesa State and this time lost, 15-8, 6-15, 15-11, 15-12. But they rallied to win their next two, defeating Mary Hardin (15-10, 13-15, 15-8, 15-8) and Fort Lewis (15-3, 13-15, 15-1, 15-9).

"They played super," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. "They very easily could have gone 6-0."

Which was a far cry from previous performances in Grand Junction. After going 0-for-6 in their first trip (1990), the Crusaders bounced back last year against an extremely challenging field (which included eventual NAIA champ Brigham Young-Hawaii) to go 3-5.

"It was an outstanding year for us to start the season," Abraham said of the team's '92 performance. "Our defense was very strong, our offense was consistent, and we played well together as a team. "I think we picked up where we left off last year."

That was as NAIA District 23 regular-season champion, just a few points shy of a berth in the NAIA Tournament.

Dana Finley topped the Crusaders with 86 kills (a .228 kill average), 12 solo blocks and 91 digs in the tournament. Elena Oparka added 83 kills (.258), while Tonia Smith had 52 kills (.250) and a team-high 126 digs. Setter Mazie Pilut collected 201 assists-to-kills (9.14 per game) and 25 kills (.297).

All four were named to the seven-member all-tournament team.

ing a freshman goalie (Grewe) and he held his own, too. He stopped everything. He even pushed one out-of-bounds and it came back in."

The game was very physical as 10 yellow cards were issued. Salem's Jeff Kley was forced to leave the game after he suffered a bad sprained ankle after a hard tackle.

"It's always this tough," Johnson said. "In the first half, Stevenson came out flying. Their emotion was carrying them. We couldn't beat their emotion. They play with a lot of heart."

"But we kept our composure and were able to stay in the game. They lost some of their emotion, and some of their speed, in the second half."

"I'm extremely proud of every Stevenson player," Barrett said. "We have eight or nine new starters and have been working on new game plans. We played excellent tonight."

In the past, these two teams have played some classic games, including last season's 2-1 overtime victory by Stevenson in the regionals. The teams also understand the importance of the rivalry in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"Whoever wins this game usually wins the division," Johnson said. "But we still have Farmington waiting for us."

Spartans top Huron

Greg Phill couldn't be happier with the way his Livonia Stevenson girls swim team started their season.

The Spartans dunked last year's state Class A runnerup Ann Arbor Huron in a dual meet at home, 119-67.

"We swam really well as a team, we took more seconds and thirds and that's what usually wins meets for you," Phill said.

The Spartans captured seven events, including all three relays. They also recorded three state qualifying times.

Mandi Falk figured on four first-place finishes for Stevenson.

She captured the 200-yard individual medley (2:16.68) and 100-breaststroke (1:10.47), both state cuts. The foursome of Falk, Helene Dallas, Jill Knapp and Lisa Morrison added a first in the 200 medley relay (1:59.18).

Falk, Tina Caranicolas, Morrison and Jenny Nember also captured the 400 freestyle relay (3:58.26).

Other Spartans individual firsts were recorded by Morrison in the 50 freestyle (27.41) and Caranicolas in the 500 freestyle (5:33.94).

Knapp also made a state cut with a second place finish in the 100 breaststroke (1:12.34).

EXERCISING OPTIONS

MYRNA PARTRICH

I have just started working with weights at a club. I do a lot of work on thighs, stomach and upper arm muscles. I am shy at asking for help at this club and no one seems to volunteer.

Can you give me some advice without seeing me? What other muscles should I work?

Well, this is a very general question, so I can answer without knowing you. However, I can't recommend how much weight you should use nor explain exactly how to use weights in a letter. You need an exercise trainer to help you with this.

If you restrict your workout to two of three muscles, you probably have a muscle imbalance to some degree. You say you work your thigh (quadriceps), stomach (abdominal) and upper arm muscles (probably biceps). You must balance this workout by working the opposing muscles: hamstring (behind the leg), erector spinal (back muscles), and triceps (back of the arm).

Let me explain. If a muscle in one part of your body — let's say the hamstring — is stronger than the muscles on the opposite side — the quadriceps — you may be setting yourself up for injury. Muscle imbalance often causes the weaker muscle of a pair to pull or tear. Also, the opposing muscle groups work in tandem to support a joint. We don't want to put the joint in a risky position.

For example, a runner tends to have strong calf muscles and might suffer from shin splints (tiny muscle tears in front of the lower leg).

Examples of opposing muscles:

● Calves/shins — Calves are stronger than shins. Most activities use the calf muscles. The shins usually need to be strengthened.

● Lower back/abdominal — Lower back muscles have a natural strength advantage over abdominal. Interestingly enough, a weakness of either muscle group will cause back pain.

● Inner thigh/outer thigh — Biceps are stronger than triceps (back of the arm). Women tend to lose tricep muscles with aging.

● Quadricep/hamstrings — Quads (muscle in front of leg) are naturally stronger. Runners, ice skaters and speed walkers work hamstrings more and should strengthen quads to protect their knees. Easy balance job.

● Chest/mid back and shoulders — Generally when you see a person with poor posture, their chest muscles are stronger than mid back or shoulders. Most of our activity is fronted, which naturally strengthens the chest. We should always be in touch with back muscles. Swimming is a great activity and will strengthen both chest, back and shoulders.

Balancing your muscles is an extremely important part of weight training. You must work with a trainer at your club to help you. Weight training is very rewarding, but should be done with care.

Jamboree challenges area bowhunters

The fall hunting seasons can't be far away when the Detroit Archers hold their annual Bowhunter's Jamboree. For the past 50 years or so, Detroit Archers — the oldest archery club in Michigan — has held a bow hunter extravaganza in September just prior to the October 1 opening of the Michigan archery deer season. This year will be no exception as the Bowhunter's Jamboree begins at 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday at the club's facilities in West Bloomfield.

"I think we have been holding the Jamboree pretty much since the club opened. It used to be a little bigger back in the 80's, but it's growing again now," said Detroit Archers board member Andy Munro. "We had about 500 people here last year and we're hoping for about 600 this year. We get people from all over Michigan, Ohio and southern Ontario, and we get people of all skill levels from professionals to people who have only shot a bow once or twice."

Bowhunters who have procrastinated this season are running out of time to sharpen their shooting skills. The Jamboree provides the opportunity featuring a 42 target 3D course using lifelike McKenzie deer, bear, antelope, elk, javelina, turkey and boar targets.

The course winds through a 32-acre wooded parcel of land at 5795 Drake Rd. (north of Maple). Archers follow a path to designated stations. Targets are set up in natural situations challenging archers to make a good shot. Most shots simulate hunting from the ground blind but there are also a few raised platforms that simulate shots from a tree blind.

"You get to shoot at targets in as real a condition as we can provide," Munro said. "The shots are from varied distances, up hill, down hill, through brush and from elevated platforms. It's a fairly realistic way to prepare for hunting game." For the adventurous archers, there will also be novelty shoots including a running deer and spinning clay pigeons. Hundreds of prizes, including a Bear bow, will be raffled off or given away as door prizes. Entry fees are $10 adult, $25 family and $5 for youths 17 and under.

Outdoor weekend arrives

Unlike other hunting and fishing shows which take place during the winter, the Woods-N-Water News Outdoor Weekend takes place Friday through Sunday in Imlay City (51 miles north of Detroit).

Held annually just prior to the start of the fall hunting seasons, the show started out show six years ago and has evolved into a huge weekend event.

"The feeling was that as the temperatures cool everybody gets that hunting urge," said show director Tom Campbell. "If we could provide deals on equipment and some good speakers and seminars the feeling was that people would come out."

Last year's 12,000-plus attendance is a good indication that the people are showing up.

The highlight of this year's show will be the appearance of Pat McManus. The popular humorist and best-selling author who writes "The Last Laugh" column for Outdoor Life magazine will be on hand all three days of the show. McManus will be available to speak with the public and autograph copies of his eighth book, The Good Samaritan Strikes Again, which will be released for the first time at the show.

The 120 exhibitor booths available at the Eastern Michigan Fair Grounds are sold out for the show which means there will be plenty of hunting and fishing gear for shoppers. Thirty continuous seminars will be held, featuring some of the state's top outdoor experts including Tom Huggler, Denny Geurink, Howard Shelley, Bob Garner and Eric Sharp. There will also be lumberjack shows, a chili cooking competition, deer and turkey calling contests, archery novelty shoots, camouflage bow painting, arrow speed testing and a trophy deer contest.

Admission is $5 and children under 12 will be admitted free. The Eastern Michigan Fair Grounds are located a half-mile north of I-69 on M-53 (Van Dyke).

Hunter's education class

Last but certainly not least on this list of weekend events in the free Michigan Hunter Education Clinic, the successor to the Detroit News Young Hunter Safety Clinics.

Hunters born on or after January 1, 1960 are required by law to present a Hunter Safety Certificate to purchase a hunting license and this clinic is a perfect opportunity for kids to earn that certificate. It is also a good chance for adults to freshen up on the guidelines of safe, ethical and successful hunting. Adults are encouraged to attend the clinic.

The clinic stresses firearm safety, but all aspects of hunting are touched upon from hunting heritage and history, hunter responsibility, wildlife conservation and management, wildlife identification, game care and specialty hunting (muzzle-loading, handguns and bowhunting) to survival and first aid and water safety.

Certified instructors from area outdoor clubs — including members of the Western Wayne County Conservation Association and the Multi-Lakes Conservation Association — pass participants through a series of stations throughout the two-day clinic. Registration begins Saturday at 6:45 a.m. The clinic starts promptly at 7:30 each day. Participants must attend all sessions during both days to pass the course. Call 827-3203 for more information.

Midtown Cafe offers more low fat entrees

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Trendy Midtown Cafe in Birmingham is offering more low fat, low cholesterol items on their menu, and lower priced entrees too. "We used to have a spa area on our menu that contained heart healthy items. Now it's integrated into the whole menu," said owner Bruce Cameron of Orchard Lake.

"We've also brought the menu into a realm of casualness as well as price offerings. We know the recession is affecting many people, and we don't want to discourage them from eating out."

Midtown Cafe, which opened in 1976, is an open, airy restaurant with wide open windows that face Woodward. The interior was designed by Aleksis Lahti of Ann Arbor and his contemporary paintings hang on the walls.

"It's like a European cafe," said Cameron. "The upstairs balcony overlooks the dining area downstairs. People aren't hidden in booths."

Responding to requests for more low fat, low cholesterol items, Cameron, a vegetarian, made some changes on the menu. In every category — appetizers and pizzas, soups, sandwiches, salads and fruits, pastas, seafood, meats and poultry, items are marked with an asterisk to indicate that they are heart healthy. The wine list was also changed to feature more lighter Italian wines like Soave.

Many people are cutting the fat not only in their diets, but budgets too, and Cameron responded by offering more lower priced entrees at Midtown Cafe.

"We're trying to keep the dinner entrees at around $13," he said. "They used to be $16 to $18. For lunch we're trying to keep it around $7.50, it used to be $8 to $10."

Expect the unexpected at Midtown Cafe. You never know what will be featured in the different categories because it changes daily to include as many in season fruits and vegetables as possible.

For example, the Thursday, Sept. 3 dinner menu featured many dishes with Michigan zucchini, eggplant, and tomatoes. There was a pizza with Michigan Menu: Soups, sandwiches, salads, pasta, seafood, meat.

Highlights: Low fat, low cholesterol items. Prices: Lunch entrees range from $3.95 for an omelet to $8.95 for grilled salmon. Dinner entrees range from $5.50 for a hamburger to $14.95 for New York Strip steak with oyster bourbon-brown sauce.

tomatoes, mushrooms, garlic, basil and feta cheese, and a heart healthy fresh Marinara sauce of tomatoes, basil, garlic, sweet onions, red wine simmered and topped with sauteed fresh tomatoes served over pasta.

Fish is also purchased fresh daily. On Sept. 3, the dinner offerings included pickerel, plate salmon, whitefish, Norwegian salmon, Mahi Mahi, and lake perch.

Whether you're hungry for something light like soup and salad, or heartier like chicken, you'll find it at Midtown Cafe.

"We stay open and serve food until 1:30 a.m. because sometimes an occasion arises when you want to get something to eat late at night like after the theater. You can get anything from a snack, dessert to a meal here," said Cameron.

The vegetarian grill sandwich — eggplant, zucchini, summer squash, tomatoes and mozzarella with Balsamic vinaigrette is a popular item and offered on both the lunch and dinner menu.

Salad offerings for dinner on Sept. 3 included grilled salmon served over mixed greens with fresh Michigan tomatoes, green beans, and herb vinaigrette, and Caesar salad with chicken. For lunch on Sept. 4 there was Salade Escoffier served with sauteed chicken and scallops with an herb vinaigrette and fresh seasonal fruits with cream cheese sauce.

Face the music at Comfy Concert Series

Dynamic duet: Father and daughter duet Carl and Alisa Visconti will open the first of a series of Paint Creek Folklore Society Comfy Concerts on Sunday, Sept. 20, in Rochester Hills.

Pat Donohue, the Minnesota-born 1983 National Finger Picking Champion, will perform 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20 at a Paint Creek Folklore Society Comfy Concert in the Rochester Hills home of Phil and Althea Doolittle.

Seating for the evening is limited. To attend, call 375-2513 for reservations. Tickets are $8. The Doolittles will send a map and directions to the house concert.

Opening the evening will be Carl and Alisa Visconti, a father and daughter duet that has been playing music together for many years.

Carl, a member of the Paint Creek Folklore Society since its origin, has been a member of the Olde Michigan Ruffwater Stringband for its 14 years — and has performed at festivals, concerts, fairs and other events playing guitar, mandolin, bass, banjo and fiddle.

Alisa, 14, has been exposed to music all of her life sharing Suzuki violin lessons with her dad at age six and performing at Paint Creek meetings soon after.

Donohue's dazzling guitar stylings, provocative song writing and engaging sense of humor, make him a compelling performer. A self-described "folk-jazz" guitarist, he began playing at age 10.

Self-taught, he learned to play by listening to records and asking questions of local performers at concerts and clubs in St. Paul, Minn. He was a frequent guest on Garrison Keillor's radio show, "A Prairie Home Companion."

Other concerts in the Comfy Concert Series include Cathy Winter from New York on Oct. 25; Sue Stolz from Fairbanks, Ala. on March 28, and many more.

A house concert is an event that takes place in someone's living room. Because amplification is not usually required, there are no microphones, darkened stage areas or speakers separating the performers from the audience.

"This encourages a more relaxed, informal atmosphere where the audience can hear and get to know the performing artists," said Paint Creek Folklore Society member Elizabeth Appleton. For more information, call 375-2513.

Area woman wonders why butterflies are scarce in '92

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

I recently received a letter from Joan in Livonia regarding her concern for the small number of butterflies she has seen this summer.

She had planted several species of flowers, which are nectar sources for butterflies of our area, but only a handful were spotted at them. Even when she traveled to nearby Windsor she observed just a few butterflies at a garden there.

This has been a bad summer for butterflies, animals and plants in general. It started with the cold freezing temperatures we had in early spring. Flowers from fruit trees and bushes, like apples and blueberries, were killed. This in turn lowered the yield of mature fruits in fall.

Young wildlife were in nests about the time we had some freezing nights in May. Tree swallow young were very vulnerable to the cold temperatures. For the adults, it was a real catch 22. Cold weather meant they had to brood their young and keep them warm, but when they did they were unable to catch insects in which to feed them.

When they did get out to feed, what insects were around were too cold and did not fly, thus making it very difficult for the adults to find adequate food. Ultimately many young nestlings died.

Cold temperatures also curtail the development of insects such as butterflies and moths. They may remain in the egg or pupa (chrysalis, or cocoon) stage until conditions are right for their development. In July there were a few warm days with some rain which allowed some butterflies to emerge but they were few and later than normal.

A butterfly count, conducted by the Farmington Area Naturalists at Heritage Park in Farmington Hills, yielded 100 fewer individuals than the previous count at the same time last year.

Last summer was a good time for the beautiful orange and black monarch butterfly. Cold temperatures in the mountains of Mexico, where they overwinter, killed an estimated 50 percent of them. That meant there were fewer individuals returning to the United States this summer to lay eggs and produce individuals for us to see.

ILLUSTRATION BY TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Butterflies: Unusually cold weather this year has adversely affected a lot of things, including the number of butterflies.

Plant and animal populations are adapted to normal conditions within a certain tolerable range. However, when situations become extreme, like the temperatures we experienced this year, their production and or populations will decline.

It may take a couple years of normal conditions to return to average levels. But in all likelihood that is exactly what will happen.

Saturn sales show industry failings

DAN McCOSH

With most of the auto business in the doldrums, the dull, plodding success of GM's fledgling Saturn division is both cause for hope and an embarrassment.

The former stemming from Saturn proving once again that the right product, price and marketing strategy leads to success even in a stalled economy.

The embarrassing part is that Saturn is also evidence that a lot of other car divisions are doing it all wrong. Actually, selling slightly more than 100,000 cars doesn't do much to pay off the mortgage on the $3.5 billion investment GM made in its experimental car division.

Slow Saturn production leaves many dealers in such short supply the rumor mill has a few Saturn dealers reportedly considering repainting rental cars from the airport and passing them off as '93 models.

Saturn, meanwhile, seems to have avoided any temptation to price gouge in these circumstances.

Instead, customers who wander into the spiffy Saturn showroom report they get treated in a casual, low-pressure style that hasn't been seen since the heyday of the Beetle.

Saturn supposedly is a no-deal car, sold with no haggling (I tend to doubt this, at least where pricing a trade-in comes into play).

In any case, somehow the dealerships have taken on an ambience that makes the Japanese look like horse traders.

Saturn has been launched in a cloud of cynical press coverage, starting with the original announcement of a long-range manufacturing research project, through the long-winded development stages, and concluding with lukewarm reception to the car itself.

In fact, all the points addressed by the program — a competitive small car, high-tech manufacturing, and an overhauled distribution system came in pretty much as advertised.

The strangest thing about Saturn is that nobody, even at GM, claims it is making money. This is particularly odd since all the basic plans have been fulfilled.

Are we to believe part of the original game plan was actually to lose money?

Even crude arithmetic, which puts the depreciated cost of the Saturn investment at about $1,200 per car, would indicate that in fact the Saturn plant is profitable.

Or at least it would be if it was standing on its own.

The most recent publication to raise the question of Saturn profitability is Business Week, which in a recent cover story says Saturn needs another production plant to make money.

Again an odd way of doing business, implying somebody decided to build the first one to lose money.

My suspicion is that Saturn is only losing money — or will lose money when it is at full production — only because somebody is dividing up all the money-losing centers (as opposed to profit centers) at GM and assigning the cost to all the plants still making money.

This is a way of making Saturn look a little less successful, and lessens the embarrassment of those struggling to find answers to what went wrong at the rest of GM.

The right car at the right price may be a good answer, but it's not the kind of thing a money-losing manager wants to say to a board looking for his hide.

Trade from BACK PAGE

The idea behind the trade mission is to match executives from small- and medium-sized corporations with their counterparts in the rapidly privatizing states.

Previously, the approach to getting North American businesses involved in the emerging countries of the former Soviet Union was to hold large seminars, Pyatenko said.

"Having someone talk at you is a waste of time. In order to succeed, there is a formula to follow — friendship, then trust, then the deal," he said. "You can't circumvent this."

Trade mission participants will deal directly with his or her potential partners. "We want to accelerate friendship through personal bridges."

Interpreters and essential business needs, including document preparation, consulting, and analysis by representatives from the law firm and accounting firm will be available as needed.

"As a result of the March mission, two participants are already involved in extensive negotiations," Pyatenko said. Eight participants were involved in the first trade mission; sponsors are limiting the number to 30 for the second trip.

Don Wilson of Deloitte Touche, Detroit, said opportunities exist in almost every business sector. Insurance, banking, transportation, communications, manufacturing, commercial and infrastructure.

Quite naturally, Wilson said he expects most participants from this area will be from manufacturing and auto-related fields.

Wilson said not every participant will develop a partnership on the first visit; that's not what the trade mission is about. "It's about establishing contacts."

"I don't expect some tool and die company in Warren to go over there, spend $10 million and set up a plant," he said. Starting a business in a country with different customs, people and laws is not easy.

Wilson said he envisions true partnerships between North American and the former Soviet Union. Both sides bring something to the relationship.

"They bring a skilled workforce, desire, a consumer base, and raw materials; we bring management skills, marketing know-how, technology, engineering."

"I think if we wait too long, it's going to be a missed opportunity," Wilson continued. "As a general rule, the Western investor is being short-sighted."

Pyatenko said many reasons are given for not going, not the least of which is the question over the convertibility of funds, the political instability of the region, and the inadequate infrastructure. Pyatenko contends that is exactly why now is the time to go.

To inquire about the trade mission, call Eugene W. Pyatenko at the law offices of Miller, Canfield Paddock and Stone in Detroit at 963-6420, or Don Wilson of Deloitte Touche, Detroit, at 396-3000.

Management opportunities

But while most agree the pact will lead to layoffs, those with college degrees stand to fare better than those with high school diplomas. There's no shortage of Mexican workers who would work for $5 a day, but trained management personnel are scarce. Bilingual skills will also be at a premium.

The agreement would lead to other benefits as well. Elaine Acevedo, director of government affairs for the Florist Transworld Delivery Association (FTD), which is headquartered in Southfield, said florist members would likely hold the costs on flowers rather than drop prices.

"We may see a sizable impact on the flow of imported flowers into this country, but at this point I don't know how big of an impact it will be," Acevedo said. "We would also likely expand our presence in Mexico."

Meanwhile, with an emerging middle class, many predict the call for consumer items like cosmetics and prepared food will increase as the standard of living rises.

"U.S. goods have a cachet about them in Mexico, and are viewed there as higher in quality than items from Japan or Germany," Victor said. "The middle class is also growing, which should provide plenty of opportunities for U.S. firms who do their homework."

"My advice to companies researching a move into Mexico is to hire a consulting firm with knowledge of the country. Even though Mexico is our neighbor, they have different laws and regulations, and it would be risky to venture out on your own."

Trade mission: getting to know you

■ The U.S. lags behind Europe when it comes to taking advantage of opportunities to export goods to the former Soviet Union. But some area businesses are getting their feet wet, laying the foundation for future deals.

Progressive Tool & Industries Co., Southfield-based automation, welding and assembly systems designer and manufacturer, knew it was the right time to go to the former Soviet Union.

In March, company representatives went on a trade mission to the cities of Moscow and Minsk Today, Progressive Tool and Industries Co. has several projects in the discussion stages and looks forward to a prosperous partnership.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

With a capitalist version of the Marshall Plan in mind, North American business people are descending on the countries of the former Soviet Union with privatization in their hearts, but an eye firmly planted on the bottom line.

Anthony Vulman, who heads the engineering division at Progressive Tool & Industries Co. said his company saw an opportunity after the breakup of the Soviet Union.

The question is: Will businesses from the West take advantage of the opportunity?

"American businesses are like the country itself — they're very conservative," Vulman said. While he was there, he said he noticed numerous representatives from German, Japanese and Korean businesses.

"We have to start getting our feet wet over there," he said.

Vulman said he found the people to be very accommodating to North American businesses. If given a choice, he believes they would choose North American business as partners.

"It's from history and tradition," he said. Despite the difference between the East and West, the people there have long admired our way of life, he said.

The law offices of Miller, Canfield Paddock and Stone in Detroit and the accounting firm of Deloitte & Touche, along with the travel group Travel Key/U.S. Exchanges are sponsoring a trade mission to Moscow in Russia, and Minsk in Byelorussia Oct. 10-21.

Eugene W. Pyatenko, a partner at Miller, Canfield Paddock and Stone said there are more than 300 million consumers in need of practically everything in the republics of the former Soviet Union.

Trade agreement to spur new ways of doing business

BY R.J. KING
SPECIAL WRITER

Lower food prices, a reduction of transportation costs and increased trade are the most telling benefits of the recently announced North American Free Trade Agreement between the United States, Canada and Mexico.

"Once the free-trade pact is ratified, it will eliminate most tariffs now imposed on goods and services between the three countries, leading to a net gain for the U.S.," said David Victor, president of the Human Resources Advisory Council, an international management and consulting firm in Bloomfield Hills.

Victor, who also is an associate professor of international management at the Gary Owens School of Business at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, recently spent two months in Mexico scouting business opportunities.

"As tariffs fall, Mexican companies looking to expand will be hiring U.S. service firms — in management, insurance, law, accounting and labor relations — to help them along. But there will also be a displacement of jobs, especially for lower-level manufacturing jobs like line workers."

The pact, which must be ratified by all three governments, would bring together 360 million consumers in a $6-trillion market, creating the largest and richest trading bloc in the world. The treaty, if ratified, would take effect on Jan. 1, 1994.

Important for Michigan

Since 1987, exports of Michigan-made products south of the border have increased 51 percent, positioning the state as the third-largest exporter of goods to Mexico, behind California and Texas, respectively.

Victor said Mexico is already dotted with American-owned factories that pay workers $5 a day. At that rate, Michigan manufacturers will likely open new plants in Mexico to supply emerging markets, largely filling labor ranks with local residents and management positions with U.S. personnel.

The net effect will be promotions within U.S. companies leading to more management jobs at home. Already, the U.S. automakers have sizable operations along the northern border of Mexico, as do large auto suppliers like Lear Seating Corp. in Southfield and Douglas & Lombson in Farmington Hills, both of which produce car seats for the Big Three.

"If the treaty is ratified, we'll begin to see middle- and smaller-level automotive suppliers open factories in Mexico, but it will depend on the product and whether it's feasible," said James Harbour, president of Harbour Associates, an automotive consulting firm in Troy.

"If your company makes transmissions, you're going to need a lot of capital to get something going, but for someone in the seating business, setting up a number of sewing machines isn't going to be that expensive. My best advice is to have all your bases covered before you make a move."

But area unions, especially the United Auto Workers, worry lower labor costs south of the border will be so enticing to American manufacturers that Mexican plants will soon supply U.S. markets, leading to a loss of jobs at home.

"This deal in its present form will vaporize thousands and thousands (of) more good-paying U.S. jobs," said Owen Bieber, president of the UAW, in a prepared statement released after the free trade pact agreement was announced.

CROP walkers will help feed the hungry

CROP walks are being planned this year in Livonia and in the Plymouth-Canton community. Members of a number of area churches will participate in the Sunday, Oct. 4, walks.

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Going for a walk's a great way to get some exercise and reduce stress, but CROP walk participants will have even better reasons for taking to the streets this fall.

Area CROP walks will raise money for Michigan Church World Service, some of which will be used to meet emergency drought and famine needs of people in eastern and southern Africa. Closer to home, victims of Hurricane Andrew will also receive help, as will others in need.

"This is an opportunity to reach out to other people whose living conditions are much worse than ours," said the Rev. James Spilos, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Livonia.

He and Joyce Barton of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia are coordinating this year's Livonia CROP walk, set for 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4, starting at St. Timothy Presbyterian Church, on Newburgh, between Five Mile and Six Mile in Livonia. Registration will be 1:15 p.m.

"This will be our ninth year," Spilos said. "Each year it's growing." The past eight walks in Livonia have raised about $93,000, he said.

Last year, 23 Livonia churches participated, and this year's goal is to have 25. Organizers hope to have 350 walkers and to raise about $20,000, Spilos said. Other community organizations, such as service clubs, have participated in the past and are welcome this year.

The Plymouth-Canton CROP walk will also be held 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4, starting at The Gathering, across from Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. Organizers hope to have 250 walkers and raise at least $10,000.

A total of 10 Plymouth-Canton congregations are participating. The last CROP walk in Plymouth-Canton raised about $7,000 and involved about 220 walkers.

"One of my goals is to have this become something that's shared among the churches," said the Rev. Leland Seese Jr., associate minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. He and the Rev. Kevin Miles of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth are coordinating the walk.

The last Plymouth-Canton CROP walk was in the fall of 1990. Prior to that, it had been seven or eight years since a CROP walk had been held. Seese would like to see it become an annual event.

Sharing, caring

What many people have in suburban communities "in abundance is income enough that they can share that," he said. Some have time to contribute; some, such as physicians, have specific skills to share.

Phantom: A number of Broadway musicals, including "Phantom of the Opera" featuring David Burtka, will be showcased in the student production.

Broadway's hits highlight of show

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Hanging out at the beach hasn't been the primary summertime activity of the Plymouth Park Players.

The student actors at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem High Schools have been busy preparing for their production of "Lullabies of Broadway." Curtain time will be 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 11-12, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, 46181 Joy, west of Canton Center in Canton.

"We worked over the summer, the whole summer," said David Burtka, 17, a Salem senior who's directing the production. Auditions were held just before school got out.

The show, which features a variety of Broadway show tunes, includes more than 20 student performers, along with people working behind the scenes. Proceeds will be used to finance a group trip to London, England, in the spring to see plays "and absorb some theater over there," said Burtka, who also worked on choreography for the upcoming student production.

"We hope this'll help kind of defray costs," said Gloria Logan, producer for "Lullabies of Broadway" and longtime drama teacher at Centennial Educational Park. She's impressed with the work the students have already done.

"I've been out of town the whole summer working," said Logan, who appeared on stage at a theater in Coldwater, Mich., during the summer. "They've really taken care of business."

The show features 26 numbers from such shows as "Phantom of the Opera," "Oklahoma" and many others. Modern musicals are highlighted, along with those from earlier eras, such as Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" from the 1930s. Students are using the set from an earlier CEP production, "Working."

"It's something I've always wanted to do, direct," Burtka said. "I just thought it would be fun." The production started out on a smaller scale, and grew into a bigger effort.

Song and dance: "Lullabies of Broadway" will feature numbers from many different musicals.

Summer fun: The Centennial Educational Park students spent the summer working on the production. Performances will be 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 11-12, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

Cast members and production staffers have had to work around student schedules, including family vacation plans and trips to camp. Burtka's confident all will be ready in time for curtain time.

"Kind of panicked, but it should be fine. It should be great," he said. A little performance anxiety is actually energizing, ensemble members have found.

"These guys are pretty well-versed in how to make that nervous energy work for them rather than against them," Logan said.

Ticket price is $4. Tickets will be sold at the door, and the box office will open 6:30 p.m. performance evenings. For ticket information, call 459-3518.

The performance ensemble includes: Nathan Besonen; Rob Burger; Kathleen Bortell; David Burtka; Sarah Colomina; Brigid Cronin; Jason Danely; Jennifer Danely; Wayne Faler; Jennifer Gawlik; Julie Gawlik; Loren Gross; Christian Hebel; Angie Lamerato; Ericka Mac; George McConnell; Julie Roe; Brian Sage; Sara Schmidt; Erik Schnurstein; Erin Skene; Kelly Smith; and Pat Taylor. Adults assisting are: Don Daniels and Lori Roe, music; Butch Karamon, electric; and Gloria Logan, producer.

Musical magic: Student performers at Centennial Educational Park are looking forward to the show's opening.

United Way leaders optimistic

By JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The economy isn't in great shape, but Plymouth Community United Way leaders are confident area residents and businesspeople will show their usual generosity.

"It's going to be a tough goal, no question about it," Alan Steavens, campaign chairman, said of this year's goal of $510,000. "But the people of Plymouth have been generous in past years and I think we can achieve it. I have a great team."

"The general economy's down," said Steavens, product support manager with Unisys Corp. in Plymouth Township. "All the big corporations are tightening their belts, and that's people. That just increases the need."

Last year's goal, also $510,000, was achieved, and campaign leaders are confident that success will be repeated. The kickoff for the annual campaign was held the evening of Wednesday, Sept. 2, at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth.

The evening featured an agency fair, in which services and programs of United Way agencies were highlighted. Agencies receiving United Way support include the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, Salvation Army, Plymouth Family Service, Growth Works, Michigan Cancer Foundation and others.

Agency staffers and volunteers spent the evening explaining services and programs to those attending the kickoff. The Paws With a Cause display was particularly popular; it featured two frisky dogs. The agency provides hearing/service dogs for hearing-impaired people and those with mobility problems.

During the evening, Pacesetters, who begin the campaign fund-raising, were honored. Pacesetters include: Blackwell Ford; Dr. Sidney Disbrow; Dow Corning; Dow Corning STI; Fox Hills Chrysler Plymouth; Hines Park

Lincoln Mercury; Optimum Management; Post, Smythe, Lutz & Ziel, CPAs; and Norman Weast & Associates. Old Kent Bank representatives also made a donation at the kickoff.

Individual donations are already coming in. "Those donations are pretty much the same (as last year), and that's encouraging," said Steavens, a Taylor resident.

"I believe that it is realistic," Marie Morrow, Plymouth Community United Way executive director, said of the goal. "The Pacesetters have been generous, very supportive. I think people are aware there's a great need out there."

Campaign leaders are aware of concern among some donors about reports of excessive spending and steep salaries among national United Way officials in Washington, D.C. United Way of America has a new director, Morrow said, and much has been done to stabilize the national organization.

"It's a real turnaround, I think," said Morrow, a Plymouth Township resident. "Very positive changes going on."

Closer to home, Plymouth Community United Way officials have a speaking team whose members are visiting area businesses. Those people, including board members and campaign leaders, are more than willing to answer questions about the national situation, she said. Inquiries can also be directed to the agency office in Plymouth, 453-6879.

"It is going to be a problem," Steavens said. "We can't ignore it. It happened."

The national United Way provides benefits, such as matching funds and other support, to local communities, he said.

"There's an awful lot of good being done," he said, citing Red Cross representatives who are helping Hurricane Andrew victims. "I think a lot of people lose track of that."

Local United Way officials will monitor developments at the national level, he added, and have the option of withdrawing financial support.

"We're going to continue to watch very closely what they do," Steavens said.

JULIE BROWN

Helping: Paws With a Cause, which provides hearing/service dogs for disabled people, was among agencies showcased at the Plymouth Community United Way kickoff. Dogs Louie and Zelda attended the get-together at the Mayflower Meeting House, as did agency representative Lori Paradise.

Many churches teach that a person must put their faith in Christ in order to be saved. However, the Bible teaches that faith is a fruit or result of the Spirit of God (Gal 5:22). If a man has faith in God, it is because he is ALREADY indwelt by the Spirit of God and is ALREADY a saved child of God (Rom. 8:14 & 1 Cor. 12:3). If you would like to learn more about the true purpose of faith, come worship with us on Sunday.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Organizer: The Rev. Leland Seese Jr. of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth is coordinating this year's Plymouth-Canton CROP walk. "Personally, one of the most satisfying parts of doing this is just getting people to come together and serve," said Seese, who is working with the Rev. Kevin Miles of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

Seese doesn't have a problem with people choosing to make financial contributions. "To me, that's fulfilling the gospel of having two coats and giving one to the person who has none."

The Plymouth Salvation Army will receive 13 percent of the money raised, and 12 percent will go to the Capuchin soup kitchen in Detroit, Seese said. The balance will go to Church World Service, a multi-denominational international relief organization.

CWS provides emergency services, but concentrates on helping "to really give the people in whatever area the means to be self-sufficient. I think that's an important difference," Seese said.

Livonia walk organizers have also designated two local charities to receive a portion of the proceeds: the Christian Communication Council of Detroit, which provides meals for shut-ins, primarily in the Cass Corridor, and the St. Vincent de Paul food depot in Westland.

Both Seese and Spilos will walk in the Oct. 4 events. "I like to get out right away and, if I can, sort of lead the pack," Spilos said.

They've found the walks are a great way to bring people from different denominations and congregations together. "As we do this, we recognize it's a common service we're participating in," Spilos said. "We look forward to being together to do this together."

Family time

Families with young children or teens have participated in the past, he said. "That's a great way to spend the day together. I've done that with my own family." Senior citizens are also more than welcome, Spilos said.

Participants will raise pledges of so much per mile. Donors also can give a set amount. Walks will be 10 kilometers, 6.2 miles. There's no pressure to finish in record time, and walkers will take to the streets rain or shine.

"In eight years, we've always had great days for walking," Spilos said.

"So we're pretty confident." Livonia walk participants have only had rain one year, and didn't let that stop them.

The CROP walks are a way of remembering that most of the people who will receive help have to walk literally 10 or 20 miles a day for water and things we take for granted," Seese said. Walking regardless of weather's part of the commitment.

"But we'll hope it's sunny," he added with a smile.

For more information, contact the Rev. Leland Seese Jr., 453-6464, (Plymouth-Canton walk), or the Rev. James Spilos, 464-0211 (Livonia walk). Those unable to participate have the option of sending a check, payable to Church World Service, c/o the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 701 Church, Plymouth 48170, or Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 39020 Five Mile, Livonia 48154. Contributions are tax-deductible. Pledge forms for walkers are available at participating churches.

Diversity provides energy, vitality for our society

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

It is increasingly clear that we must sustain a diversity of plants and animals upon this planet earth. Scientists cannot predict what the consequences will be if the diversity of life is lost forever. Evidence abounds that a variety of life is necessary for our planet to survive.

When it comes to the importance of a diversity of human beings, however, the same conclusion is not so clear. Yet I believe that it is necessary and it is God's purpose for a diversity of races, cultures and spiritual perceptions of life to exist. The alternative is terrible to contemplate. We know about animal and plant diversity. It is not clear yet whether we realize that the challenge of our human diversity threatens to either make or break our life on earth.

For years, people from many major racial and cultural identities have come to America. The ancestors of our Native American people came to this continent 20,000 years or more earlier. Many believe that the energy and vitality of our nation has come largely from this mix of peoples.

Diversity nourishes the greatness of this nation. Will this experiment work? Will human diversity leave a positive impact upon our common life? Will it lead instead to destruction? The answer will come when many people, and many institutions commit themselves to the highest, most sacred value of diversity.

Diversity is under attack. Economic opportunity, education and housing are so separate and so unequal in many parts of our nation. The tragedy of racial violence is fresh in our memory.

Our national leadership does not address the problems which derive from our differences. We do not hear about the positive challenge of our differences. Those who work for cooperation, who affirm the gifts and graces of diversity are seldom supported or recognized.

The very fact that we are constantly faced by so many choices works against as well as for diversity. Choice in America must not mean that we go our private way. Choice in America must not be driven more by economic facts than by truth. The tides still move against those who would work towards a better life for all.

I know of people who have given up working for diversity in community and religious organizations. They have moved away. They have chosen their own private life. They are tired of the battle.

Cultural and spiritual teaching must work for a diversity that will thrive. The spiritual basis for a vital, life-giving diversity comes from trust in God's creative and redemptive action. Religion does not begin nor does it end with the saving of one soul. God calls us to peace, to community, to the larger whole. God's creative and God's redemption is for all the universe.

We must believe in and work for the dynamics of diversity. We must believe that the variety of peoples, religions and cultures is simply the will of God. We must be very clear in our thinking that God does not intend everyone to be exactly the same. No one group shall seek to make everyone else in their own image.

Second, we must develop a practice of "mix and match." We need times and places to match ourselves to our heritage, our own race, our familiar form of worship. We need to have other times to mix.

We need places and times to celebrate our human diversity with respect and appreciation of the gifts and graces of all. For some this already takes place at the workplace. Yet, it must happen in community organizations and in religious settings.

My denomination, the United Methodist Church, has retreated from this commitment to sustain diversity in congregations. We have retreated in too many instances from the cities where this is most possible. We lack leaders who make diversity a priority. We seem to be fixated upon survival. We lack the insight into how to make a dynamic diversity a reality within our denomination. Minorities have been placed in positions of leadership, yet the local, community and church-based diversity is lacking.

We need to follow the theme of mix and match. This requires that we strengthen our grasp of the wonder and the importance of diversity in both theological and practical terms. Mix and match means a creative tension between elements within our identity. For example, when we baptize a person we tell them that they are baptized into the worldwide church. This is the family of God. In this ritual, the individual is initiated into a mix of many and diverse people as well as into this local congregation and denomination.

Protestants need to realize they are baptized into the Catholic church. Catholics need to know that their baptism initiates them into a church which includes Protestants. Whites need to learn about African-centered culture and Oriental culture. The possibilities are endless.

Our differences are most challenging. Will we rise to this challenge or will we drown in the tides of separatism, prejudice and violence which are sweeping our world and our nation? This is a critical spiritual question for our time. It well can be a question of survival in this coming time.

Monotypes created with oil-based printing ink date back to Rembrandt. Impressionists Degas and Gauguin also created them at the turn of the century.

But monotypes made from watercolor-based printing ink gained popularity only within the past 15 years. A monotype is a single print created by transferring to paper an image painted on a plate.

Says Visual Arts Association of Livonia watercolor monotype instructor Lily Dudgeon: "I'm hooked because you get such a different look — such a unique result. Once you get into it, you just love it. You're addicted."

That addiction prompted Dudgeon, who also teaches at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association and in Garden City adult education classes, to organize a very special fine art show: a watercolor monotype exhibit.

The free show will feature the monotypes of 25 of her students from Sept. 9 to Oct. 23 in the Rotunda at Henry Ford Centennial Library, 16301 Michigan Ave., between Southfield and Greenfield roads, Dearborn. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

Observerland artists taking part are Mary Mull, Marge Masek, Audrey Harkins and Marlene Kutz of Livonia and Connie Lucas of Canton. A meet-the-artists reception will be 2-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12.

What's a monotype?

To produce a monotype, an artist first creates a scene on an acrylic plate using watercolor paints, crayons or pencils, sometimes putting a sketch beneath the clear plate as a guide. Damp rag paper then is put on top of the plate. Two wool blankets are laid over the paper to act as a cushion. The plate is put on the press bed and run through the press. The pressure of the press pulls up the dry pigment from the plate and imprints it on the damp paper. The process leaves an embossed edge around the artwork.

"You get fine detail. And it's considered original art because it's only one of a kind," said Dudgeon, a spry 72-year-old artist who discovered the wacky world of monotypes in 1981 at Oxbow, an art colony near Saugatuck. She later honed her skill at Wayne State University.

A monotype is a hybrid "with one foot in the print world and one foot in the art world," said Dudgeon, a working artist for 17 years. "Many museums didn't know what to do with monotypes because of that so they didn't give them a lot of weight until the late '60s and '70s."

The painterly textures and surface effects of watercolor monotypes carry no guarantees. Colors on the paper can be lighter than those applied on the plate. Or colors can be so deep, they penetrate the paper.

Sometimes, you get edges on certain areas of the artwork but not others, depending on the painting technique used. Sometimes, artists reach for a brush, crayon or pencil, even pastel, to fine-tune monotypes.

Monotype images produced by hand press don't offer the same high fidelity and look more impressionistic than those produced by electric press. With either method, however, "you never know how it's going to turn out," Dudgeon said. "That's the mystery of monotypes."

A surprising encounter

Unpredictability is one of the art form's lures. Says Livonia artist Marge Masek, "The element of surprise is the fun part."

Since branching out to watercolor monotypes three years ago, the artist has sold more than a dozen pieces at $85 or more at shows hosted by VAAL, the Livonia Artists Club and the Farmington Artists Club.

A student of Dudgeon's since 1989, Masek said her instructor not only is a master at monotypes but also at critiquing. "She's excellent at picking out what you need to do to make your work better."

Canton artist Connie Lucas, a professional artist for 30 years, studied monotypes under Dudgeon in August and has fashioned nine autobiographical and landscape pieces.

Most of Lucas' work is in watercolor and mixed media. She's best known for her "Violence in Society" abstracted realism series and her "Woman's Work" abstract series.

Lucas calls Dudgeon "a sort of pioneer locally in watercolor monotypes. She really developed the art form around here and is quite well respected."

A Plymouth-Canton leisure adult education watercolor instructor, Lucas says monotypes are more than a passing fancy for her. "When you put a painting on a plate, you can never really be sure what'll happen when you run it through the press. The spontaneity — that's what's exciting."

Artists and Craftsmen Show this weekend, 2D

Quality and diversity are key to work showcased in the Plymouth Community Arts Council's 20th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show this weekend. The arts celebration is the primary council fund-raiser; proceeds go toward grants and scholarships for art students and teachers.

Artist Hugh Burley and his wife, Liz, have exhibited at art shows, entertaining crowds with his oil painting demonstrations for 30 of the 45 years they've been married.

The delightful duo, known for their colorful paintings of flowers and birds, will display dozens of new works at the Plymouth Community Art Council's 20th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 12-13, at Central Middle School, Church and Main, Plymouth.

"The art is something we can do together as a team," Liz said. "We get satisfaction out of the painting for each other. It's satisfying to me for him to be doing what he enjoys."

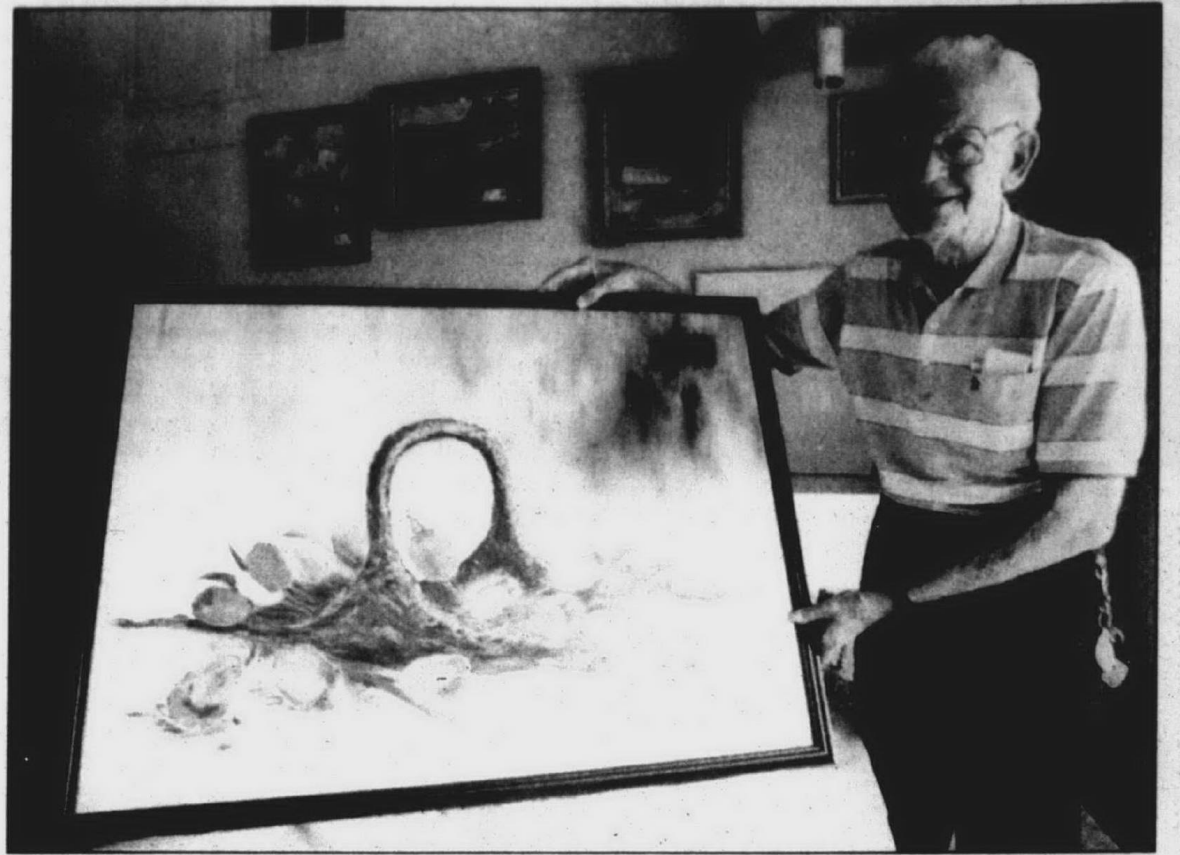

Burley does all the painting, Liz all the framing, selling and paperwork. At art shows, he paints for hours while she tends to patrons. "It takes the two of us to do it," Liz said.

The Burleys' devotion to one another and to painting is legendary in the art community of Plymouth, where Hugh exhibits oils at D & M Studios and Gallery in Old Village.

Along with the Artists and Craftsmen's Show, the Burleys are regular exhibitors at Plymouth's Art in the Park, Canton's Liberty Fest Fine Arts Show and Ann Arbor's Summer Art Fair. They also exhibit with the Dexter Historical Society.

"I only use three colors: red, yellow and blue," Burley said. "I mix it right on the board."

Burley shows a visitor to D & M an oil of two elegant peonies that bloomed in his garden this spring. "I did the imasto techniques with a brush," he said. "I built up the edges like on a rose. Michelangelo did it that way."

Born in 1914 in Peck, a small northern Michigan town, Burley has painted nearly all his life, acquiring the longing to create oils early on.

"I went up to my father's layout in 1917 after he died. I wanted to see what he was doing," Burley said. "My father was a pharmacist. He painted on glass (decorative) curlicues and borders."

Burley picked up the oils and brushes from his father's layout, never to lay them down.

"I painted pictures all through grammar school," he said. "I went to summer school because there was nothing to do in summer and started painting landscapes in oil."

Burley and his family moved to Detroit, where environmental forces sealed his destiny as a painter and humorist.

"When I used to live on Cass Avenue," he said, "I used to put my paintings up on a clothesline in Grand Circus Park."

Challenge yourself, or just relax, via art

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Observerland art classes offer a broad range of creative outlets, from traditional fine arts like painting, drawing, pottery and out-of-the-ordinary media like airbrushing, cartooning and experimental watercolor to the crafts of basketweaving and quilting.

In the last few weeks, arts organizations, studios, businesses, high school/college adult education programs, parks and recreation departments and art clubs in the area have flooded mailboxes with fliers and brochures listing visual arts classes.

Along with a smorgasbord of art media, they feature scheduling to fit any lifestyle plus options like workshops and ongoing classes.

New this fall, students taking life drawing or anatomy classes with a live model will hone three-dimensional figure drawing skills.

With the holidays around the corner, why not make a quilt or basket for someone special? Arts and craft classes serve a multitude of purposes providing growth, creative expression, a means to relax and outright fun.

"There's so much stress in our everyday lives, it's nice to lose yourself in this type of creative environment," said Sharon Dillenbeck, owner of D & M Art Studio and Gallery in Plymouth.

Plymouth and Canton recreation departments and at D & M. "When your brain flips to the right side, it's like being in another world and you can end up with a great painting or a creative expression," she said.

Decorative crafts like basketweaving, taught by Lorraine Justice through Plymouth-Canton Community Education at Plymouth-Canton High School and Wayne County Community College at the Canton Senior Center, produce accent pieces for the home while relieving stress.

"I just love beautiful baskets," Justice said. "It's very relaxing and real rewarding if you have coordination in your hands. It's not very expensive. They make great gifts."

If you're not ready to commit yourself to 10 weeks of oil painting, ongoing classes or a workshop can help determine your level of interest. Not everyone enjoys drawing the family's Irish Wolfhound.

Instead, a fun class offered by Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Services focusing on experimental watercolor using salt and sand techniques could bring out the creativity in you.

"Some people come in and it doesn't work, other people come in and it clicks. They're doing something that makes them happy," said Donna Enders, wildlife artist and oil painting instructor at The Art Store in Canton Township.

Enders, who said she leans toward teaching impressionism, considers art classes a form of therapy for people from all walks of life, including stressed-out professionals, senior citizens and the disabled.

General admission Friday and Saturday is $3 each day.

A mini deli run by Penniman Deli offers sandwiches, salads and desserts Friday and Saturday.

BALLET BOOSTERS

Bruce and Kim McElhane of McElhane Photography volunteered their photographic services on behalf of the Livonia Civic Ballet Company.

In need of publicity photos, ballet company members were photographed at McElhane Photography in the Laurel Park Place Office Building.

The McElhanes specialize in fine portraiture. The studio serves families, individuals, couples and weddings and does passport and I.D. work.

Portraits are created not only in the studio but also on location in homes, banquet halls, and park settings.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Perhaps it's time to become a photographer of the stars. Not movie stars or constellations, but stars, added to your photographs, by means of a star filter.

A star filter is an inexpensive addition to your photo equipment that can add a special burst of excitement to your shots, whether color or black or white.

A close inspection of a star filter will reveal a miniature window screen imbedded in the glass. This screen acts on any light highlight to produce a starburst effect in the finished picture.

And because you always see directly through the lens on your single-lens-reflex camera, you'll be able to preview and adjust the star effect before you snap the shutter.

Star filters come in four-, six- and eight-point designs, depending on how much of a burst you want. I prefer the simplicity of the four-point star, which easily adjusts to any angle.

Here are some subject ideas that work well with star filters.

Sparkles in the lake or ocean caused by a descending sun will produce dazzling photos with a star filter, especially if you place a silhouetted subject in the foreground such as a seagull perched on a piling or tree branches framing the seascape.

Reflections in shiny objects such as chrome will give that added flare to your pictures. Street lamps at night combined with a star filter will generate an ambiance not attainable in any other way.

And, of course, the sun itself photographed through a star filter will result in a breathtaking shot.

Remember, a star filter can be used in combination with other filters if, for example, you want to darken a blue sky with a polarizer or use any of the filters designed for black and white film. Just attach the star filter directly over the other filter being used and you'll be pleasantly surprised with the results.

Always reach for the stars in your photography. And to help along the way, use a star filter.

Short shot

Monte Nagler will conduct a photography workshop 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, at Kensington Metro Park. The important aspects of photography will be covered in a brief program at the park, followed by hands-on shooting experience by each participant. Participants should bring their own brown bag lunch and loaded 35mm cameras. For registration information, call city of Southfield Cultural Arts at 354-4717, or Nagler at 661-0826.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills.

Shining example: Monte Nagler attached a star filter to his lens and waited until the sun just peeked around this butte to produce this dramatic photograph. It was taken in Monument Valley.

Red and gold leaves turning on trees of green signal the start of Plymouth's Fall Festival, the setting for the Plymouth Community Arts Council's 20th annual Artists and Craftsman Show Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 12-13, at Central Middle School, Church and Main.

The juried show features 97 exhibitors working in a multitude of media, including oil, acrylic, watercolor, pen and ink, mixed media, photography, clay, jewelry, textiles and wood.

"The show is the major fund-raiser for the arts council," said Carolyn Simons, show co-chairwoman with Chris Szary for the sixth year. "The money goes to fund scholarships and grants for students and teachers."

"It's a very special show and it's a good family outing."

The arts council prides itself on producing a show with variety and quality of workmanship by Michigan artists. "Ninety-nine percent are Michigan artists," Simons said.

"The show is very much diversified this year. There's a lot of different types of jewelry, some using antique items. There's a lot more clothing, particularly children's. There are toys, both soft and wood, seasonal themes and woodcarvings," Simons said.

Children's activities also are planned.

Along with Hugh and Liz Burley of Plymouth, other fine artists will include Tom LeGault, who will exhibit oil paintings. The Plymouth resident will demonstrate his landscape painting wizardry for fair goers on the lawn outside the school.

"It's a nice show," Liz Burley said. "I enjoy the people, the kids who come up and point out what they like in a painting," Liz Burley said. "There's something special about the fall festival."

Founded in 1969, the Plymouth Community Arts Council has worked to promote and develop an interest in and appreciation for the arts.

It brings the Art Lady program to Plymouth-Canton Schools and melodies to Plymouth's Kellogg Park every summer with "Music in the Park."

Its annual statewide fine arts competition, traveling Ibister art collection, Damaris student fine arts awards, and children's and adult art classes all promote the visual arts.

Hours for the Artists and Craftsman Show are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $2, for seniors and students, $1. Children younger than 12 are admitted free.

"On Cass Avenue was the old museum of art. I had painted a picture that hung there. I had to go through the Egyptian room to get to the paintings to see it. As we were passing through, my mother, who'd come with me, gasped, 'Those statues have no clothes on!'"

Burley continued to paint in the Army while stationed in Europe. That continent's art and artists left a lasting impression on him.

To this day, he paints on linen mat board. "The old masters did it that way," he said. "Over in Europe, they paint on glass. They paint on wood. They paint on stone. They paint on everything."

Burley, like the masters, paints from life experiences, not photographs. He keeps the paintings' background uncluttered, forcing viewers to study and experience the primary subject.

"That type of background started about 1818 to come into existence and became increasingly popular with the invention of the stone lithograph," Liz said.

Art lovers from across the United States,

Italy and Australia collect Hugh Burley paintings to hang gallery style on their walls.

"People buy mostly flowers and birds," Liz said. "Cardinals sell really well, and hummingbirds, too."

"I don't paint landscapes," Burley added hurriedly. "Women do not buy landscapes. They want color."

Burley retired from the U.S. Postal Service in 1971 and Liz from a job as a medical assistant about the same time. Since then, they have dedicated themselves to the arts.

"He demonstrates at many schools," Liz said. "We get a stack of letters."

Thirty years ago, the Burleys helped establish the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, producers of the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair. They are members of the 3 Cities Art Club and the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

His florals paint a glorious picture of the Burleys' gardens and 2½ surrounding acres.

"We have so many flowers because we both enjoy the flowers," Liz said, "but it takes the two of us to do it."

Sometimes a wall holds art without a frame or niche.

With murals, graffiti or wallpaper, the wall itself becomes art.

Examples of the latter abound in "Beauty at Home: Wallpapers and Textiles by William Morris," an exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 500 Lone Pine in Bloomfield Hills, through Sept. 20.

Morris (1834-1896) was a craftsman, poet, social reformer, artist and leader of the English Arts and Crafts Movement.

"(I) got a friend to build me a house very medieval in spirit . . . and set myself decorating it, we found . . . that all the minor arts were in a state of complete degradation especially in England, and accordingly in 1861 with the conceited courage of a young man I set myself to reforming all that," Morris said in 1883.

Morris wanted to produce high-quality, hand-crafted furnishings, wallpapers and textiles to beautify the home. His complex patterns, hand-printed with wood blocks and natural vegetable dyes, revolutionized Victorian taste and still inspire artists and designers.

Many designs of the 19 wallpaper and 24 textile samples, manufactured by Morris and Co. around 1920, on display at Cranbrook are based on flowers and plants.

Nature often takes on a stately appearance in the patterns. "Lily and Pomegranate" brings to mind a coat of arms. "Pimpernel" shows entwined leaves and flowers arranged in a mirror image.

"Willow Boughs" presents a gently hypnotic flow of slender leaves and graceful branches. "Wild Tulip" combines bright yellow or gold and white flowers with subtle shading made up of small dots.

In other samples, "Bruges" is a more somber pattern, resembling damask fabric. "Venetian" is a lacy design. "Indian" suggests the East, with its reddish, black and gold colors.

Fiber artist among exhibitors at Art 'N Apples

BY MARY KLEMIC
STAFF WRITER

When it comes to her art, you could say Cheryl Noonan goes with the flow.

The flow and feel and other special qualities of silk fascinate and inspire Noonan, a Troy fiber artist whose work will be featured in the Art 'n Apples Festival in Rochester this year.

The festival, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12-13, in Rochester Municipal Park, north and west of the intersection of University and Main, will include 275 artists, entertainment and music, activities and refreshments.

"I love working on silk because the colors are more vibrant," said Noonan, who grew up in Southfield.

"Silk is a beautiful fabric . . . It colors well, it flows well. It comes in all different weights and types."

Most of Noonan's work is wearable art. Her smaller pieces include jewelry and pillows.

Noonan has exhibited her art in local galleries, northern Michigan and Chicago, among other places. Earlier this year she was one of the clothing and other fabric artists featured at the Oakland County Galleria in Pontiac. She is a member of the Surface Designers Association, Michigan Surface Designers and Creative Council.

Her interest in fiber art was encouraged in college courses and by friend and fellow artist Rosemary Gratch. Noonan teaches two- and three-dimensional art at Eisenhower High School in Utica.

"There are so many different things you can do to it," she said of the material.

These include stamping, waxing and shibori (a Japanese process of shaping, binding and dyeing). Noonan likes overlying, putting down layers of patterns.

Noonan's background in watercolors serves her well. Her silk fashions look as delicate as butterfly wings, with colors that gently harmonize, from bright hues to muted shades, sometimes accented with black. One tunic features shibori squares woven with the silk and lining the sleeves.

Just as part of the beauty of silk is the feel of the material and the way it moves, so are Noonan's designs meant to move with the wearer.

"Silk is real flowing . . . (you) want it to be loose and . . . to be in motion."

"That's how I feel when I have it on."

Noonan uses all natural fibers and mixes her own colors. In warm weather she works in her back yard on a brick patio. The sun serves as a natural light and also helps set the dyes.

The artist starts big, with about four yards by 36 to 46 inches of material at a time on a canvas. She won't repeat a pattern.

"All of the pieces that I do are . . . one-of-a-kind pieces."

Surface design is becoming more popular, Noonan said.

"I think people are discovering that there is so much that it has to offer just as I've discovered."

Most of Noonan's works are washable.

"It's a fiber that's been around for centuries. It's not something that people should be afraid of. It breathes a lot better than polyester."

Her art is something she'll never give up, Noonan said. She has found that the excitement it generates has spread to her teaching.

"I'd like there to be more hours in the day."

Friends to host botanical gardens sale Classes from page 1D

The Friends of the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens will kick off their fall gardeners sale 5-7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11 (members pre-sale).

The sale continues 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 12-13, in the Matthaei Botanical Gardens auditorium.

New to this year's sale is the Friends of the U. of M. Nichols Arboretum joining with the Friends of the Botanical Gardens.

The Friends of the Arboretum will offer 229 identified peony cultivars from their highly touted peony collection. About 100 unidentified cultivars will be divided and sold.

The peonies will be sold in bags of two roots with at least three "eyes" per root to make a total of about 3,000 roots. The peonies average 70 years old, making them some of the rarest in cultivation.

As a special perk to this year's sale, Matthaei Botanical Gardens will give to the first 50 patrons who attend Saturday's sale one complimentary woody shrub, Deutzia Nikko. This shrub, unlike the more common Deutzia, is a dwarf.

Fall Sale committee members have taken great care to select hardy and unusual specimens of trees, shrubs, outdoor mums and unusual flowering bulbs to add color and interest for the home landscape.

Horticulturists and experienced gardeners will be available at the sale for questions and consultation. Sale proceeds will support projects sponsored by both the Friends of the Botanical Gardens and the Nichols Arboretum.

Take U.S. 23 north to Geddes Road. Head east on Geddes to Dixboro. Turn left. Matthaei Botanical Gardens is two miles north of Dixboro on the right. Call 998-7061.

"Everyone in my classes just exhibited at the Wayne County Fair," Enders said. One of her students, Lillian Sworg, won her first ribbon at age 74.

"I have an engineer who comes to loosen up after work," Enders said, "and a head injury victim who comes in a wheelchair from a group home. She has so many frustrations. The art is helping her to overcome her handicap. It's increasing her self confidence."

Children as well as adults benefit from a boost of self-assurance.

"It's so important to catch the kids before the fifth grade so we can instill or reinforce their sense of self-esteem," Dillenbeck said. "Preschool art, we provide all the materials so the parents don't have to go into the expense until they know what they're geared for."

For parents unsure about whether their children will take to the smell of oils, David Messing's Art Store & More in Livonia offers an alternative to paying for an entire series: ongoing classes.

"We have students starting at 6 years old. The classes are open-ended. They pay each time they come," said June Cossin, manager.

Curriculum like airbrushing and cartooning ensure fun for kids and adults. "We offer the whole spectrum of cartoon drawing, from perspective to super heroes," said Gerald Masek, owner of The Art Store in Canton Township.

Marge Masek of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia suggests taking a workshop for fun, like her "Painting on Glass Ornaments," or for practicality, like "The Unfinished Painting," taught by Farmington Hills artist Edee Joppich.

"People seem to like the idea of personalizing glass ornaments whether it's for a gift or for themselves, and it's challenging. It's not the easiest thing to paint on round objects," Masek said.

Professional artists take classes for personal growth alongside students taking classes in clay modeling for relaxation, or cartooning for fun.

Ask artist Gwen Dietrich of Canton Township why she continues to take life drawing classes at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus with Farmington Hills artist Kegang Tazian after crashing deadlines all day as an art director at A.R. Brasch Advertising in Southfield.

The graduate of Parsons School of Design in New York will tell you, "to discover something new within yourself, to grow, to strive, to challenge yourself to be better than what you are."

Invitational showcases diverse state art

The Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs Gallery in Detroit is having on display through Sept. 25 the 1992-93 New Initiatives for the Arts invitational touring exhibition, which presents the artistic works and talents of minority artists from across the state.

"The artists featured in this exhibition are representative of Michigan's culturally diverse artistic talent," said MCACA chairman Judith Rapanos.

"Each artist presents a mature and unique creative vision. We are fortunate to have these exceptional artists in our midst."

In its seventh year, NIFTA provides technical assistance, both visual and performing, to participating artists and gives local communities and organizations the opportunity to present the culturally diverse talents of these artists to Michigan citizens.

In addition to the MCACA Gallery, plans call for the invitational touring exhibition to be presented at the University of Michigan, in Alpena and at the Northwood Institute in Midland. Other communities and organizations interested in participating in the NIFTA program and offering the exhibition should call project director Cedric Ward at 616-456-5118.

The MCACA Gallery, open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday, is in the MCACA office, on the 11th floor of the State of Michigan Plaza Building, 1200 Sixth in Detroit.

LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY

Continuing — The Livonia Arts Commission and Friends of the Library present an exhibit by the Michigan Friends of Photography to Sept. 26 in the art gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road at Five Mile. Livonia photographer Carlos Diaz displays a powerful montage of nine images: "Artifacts of the Working Class." Exhibit hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY

Continuing — Plymouth artist Sharon Bida will exhibit works in clay and silver through Sept. 28 in the Livonia Arts Commission's showcases on the second floor of the library, Farmington Road and Five Mile. After many years as a sculptor of welded and cast works, Bida began sculpting jewelry out of clay four years ago. Out of her most recent works evolved what Bida refers to as her "neckties." The pieces are made from a lightweight clay and can be worn as a pin or necklace. She incorporates antique stones and gems into several of the fashionable pieces. Also exhibited are large sculpture like silver rings. Bida creates the rings using the lost wax method. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

ATRIUM GALLERY

Continuing — Danguole Jurgutis of Farmington Hills presents a new mixed media series. She boasts a strong style and sense of color. Also showing: Laura Whitesides of Birmingham, contemporary watercolors; Tom Hoffman of Waterford, fine furniture and clocks; Andrea DeZell of Plymouth, contemporary oils on paper. Through September. 109 N. Center, Northville.

LIVONIA CITY HALL

Continuing — Livonia Arts Commission hosts watercolors by Shirley Bishop of Livonia through Sept. 30 in the lobby of city hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile. "Retrospective in Color," features 34 florals, still life, and architectural landscapes spanning a period of 15 years. Bishop studied with Edee Joppich, Marie Tuthill and Anne Dase Loveland. She has exhibited work with Visual Arts Association of Livonia, Farmington Artists Club, the Farmington Community Library and Joppich's Bay Street Gallery in Northport. Bishop refers to her style of painting as abstract realism. She said it's influenced by the natural beauty surrounding her p.m. Monday-Friday.

CASA DE UNIDAD

Continuing — "Through Their Eyes," the first works from Casa de Unidad's Barrio Youth Photography Workshops, continues through Oct. 9 at the Hispanic organization's Cultural Arts and Media Center, 1920 Scotten, Detroit. The 23-piece exhibition is the culmination of photographs taken in South-west Detroit by 20 multicultural students during a 10-week workshop led by Livonia photographer Carlos Diaz, an associate professor at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. In the show's program, Diaz states, "they are images no one but these children could make of this community — their home. Each photograph possesses directness with the subject and unlike images made by visitors (pedestrians or professional), these are attached to the life of the place." The project was a success, thanks to support from Arts Midwest in partnership with National Endowment for the Arts, Casa de Unidad Cultural Arts and Media Center, Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, Detroit Council of the Arts, Sister Martinez of Madonna University-Livonia, Michigan Education Opportunity Fund, Sister Elizabeth and Till O'Brien of Holy Redeemer-Detroit, Dr. Rosa Williams and Stephen Black of Earhart Middle School-Detroit, Neighborhood Opportunity Fund, Canon, Fuji, Ilford and Diaz.

MATRIX GALLERY

Friday, Sept. 11 — "Polaroid Paintings, Collages and Constructions with Special References to Columbus and Nicaragua by George Manupelli" continues through Oct. 23 at the gallery, 212 Miller, 1 1/2 blocks west of Main, Ann Arbor. A reception for the artist will be 5-9 p.m. Friday. Manupelli, founder of the Ann Arbor 16 mm Film Festival, taught film at the University of Michigan in the early 1960s. Manupelli's collages include found objects. "Once while working, I accidentally cut off my fingertip, which I included in the collage. Art was not only at my fingertip, it was my fingertip," he said. Manupelli's Polaroid paintings came about when he dropped a Polaroid camera one year ago. After taking a picture, he noticed an abstract image resulted from chemicals being spread over the film without exposure to light. After manipulating the images, Manupelli places them in rows like comics. A 40-panel work, "The Open Veins of Latin America," traces the Creation, the arrival of Columbus in Sandino, Nicaragua and the Sandinista National Liberation Front's victory over Nicaraguan dictator, Somoza. Another work is titled "The First to Sight Columbus were the Birds." Matrix Gallery specializes in new, emerging and experimental art. Call 663-7775.

BUILDING SCENE'S NAMES & PLACES

Complex dedicated

The Baylor-Woodson Elementary Complex, a $11-million, 100,000-square-foot facility, opened in Inkster. It houses up to 900 students, consolidating two elementary schools, and the offices for the school district's central administration staff.

TMP Associates of Bloomfield Hills programmed and designed the building; Barton-Malow Co. of Southfield was the construction manager, and the architect was Sims-Varner & Associates of Detroit in association with TMP Associates.

Cash flow problems

Construction Coalition of Michigan will offer a series of programs on cash flow and payment problems in the construction industry beginning with a luncheon meeting at noon Monday, Sept. 21, at the Marion Oaks Golf Club in Howell.

Speakers will be Paul Ellis, senior vice president of Comerica and Construction Association of Michigan board director; Harry Ellman, president of Fidelity Title Co.; and Marty Burnstein, attorney with Seyburn, Kahn, Ginn, Bess & Howard.

The presentations are designed to help construction professionals understand the payment process for each segment of the industry — from the owner to the smallest supplier. The program is open to all members of the construction industry. Reservations at $10 are required by Sept. 14 by calling Lynn Briggs at 517-669-5050.

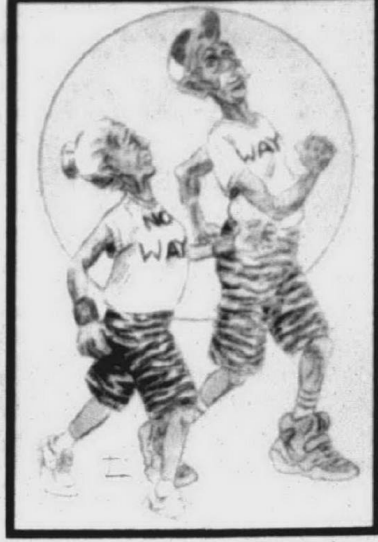

CCM is comprised of 27 construction associations from around the state. It was formed in 1991 to provide a forum in which construction groups might exchange ideas and explore ways to solve common problems.

Economic forecast

David Littman, first vice president and senior economist of Comerica will discuss his 1993 economic forecast for the Greater Detroit Chapter of the Construction Financial Management Association when it holds its dinner meeting beginning at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 23, at the Detroit Club.

For reservations, at $30, call CFMA at 262-1947, ext. 570.

The Construction Financial Management Association is made up of those having financial responsibilities in the construction industry.

1st-time buyers know what they want

The single-family housing market is divided into quadrants, with builders targeting customers as first-time buyers, move-up buyers, luxury buyers or empty nesters. In the first of a four-part series, the Observer & Eccentric profiles the first-time buyer.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

First-time, new home buyers are NOT a fickle lot.

Unlike the buyer of 20 years ago who was happy to have four walls and a roof, today's first-time buyers are more educated and know what they want.

Bernard Gleiberman, president of Crosswinds Communities, said one reason first-time, new home buyers are significantly more sophisticated is they've bought homes before — albeit previously owned.

Gleiberman, the builder/developer of Millpointe, a Westland project with houses starting at $76,900, said buyers once went straight from apartments to new homes.

Chief among today's first-time, new home buyer's needs is more space, Gleiberman said.

Often, they've moved from older homes they have outgrown, he said. Many are starting a family.

Gleiberman said the today's first-time home buyer is a little older than the buyer of several years ago. "It fits the pattern of marriage."

First-time new buyers are in their mid-20s to early 30s and, depending on their circumstances, will pay from $75,000 to $150,000 for a house — the low end generally purchasing from existing stock, the upper end buying newly built houses with the equity from a previous sale.

"What they're looking for in a house is what they don't have in an apartment (or old home) — and that's really not that hard," Gleiberman said. Features like a one- or two-car garage, a family room, and extra storage top the bill.

A new home also provides privacy and the value and pride of ownership. "People want to know they're not just paying someone rent, they want something to show for their money."

"We live in a town where a majority of people have always owned homes."

Rob Stano, a sales representative for Kime Brothers Inc. in Southfield, agrees space is the driving motivator for the first-time new home buyer.

Kime Brothers projects targeting first-time new home buyers include Millwood Village and Overbrook in Westland. "They want living rooms, family rooms, formal dining rooms,

Taking a peek at housing's future

BY R.J. KING
SPECIAL WRITER

Residential subdivisions of the future will be designed with master plans reminiscent of small towns and include such amenities as golf courses, swimming pools and fitness centers as a way to entice time-starved professionals and families who place a premium on diversity.

That's the word from local builders who echo the findings of a recent National Association of Home Builders report entitled: "The Future of HomeBuilding: 1992-1994 and Beyond."

The subdivision as playground will become more prevalent as married couples with children, the largest segment of the single-family housing market, steadily lose ground to single professionals, widowed seniors and one-parent families.

"Ten years ago, married couples with children bought over 95 percent of the new homes placed on the market, but today their share is somewhere in the 80s, and it will continue to move downward," said Robert Halso, president of Pulte

'We've saved all the wetlands and wooded areas we can in the last five years, but even working around nature doesn't open up a lot of new opportunities for us; We're running out of land.'

Sam Blumenstein
Classic Construction

Homes of Michigan, a subsidiary of PHM Corp. in Bloomfield Hills, one of the nation's largest home builders.

"Subdivisions with golf courses and other amenities is something we see more of across the country than in metro Detroit, but they're starting to become more prevalent here. It's really changing the way we market our product today; we have to appeal to many more segments than we did before."

While developments with pools and parks add more to the price of a home, Halso said people are willing to pay for such amenities as they easily translate wooded areas and wetlands to better quality of life. What's more, such master-plan projects, and other forces within the residential construction industry, will put even more pressure on medium-sized developers to raise capital to finance such projects.

The Robertson Brothers Co. in Bloomfield Hills will break ground in the fall on The Crossings, a 286-home development in Oakland Township.

"The Crossings will be a traditional family subdivision but with a swim club, community gardens, baseball and soccer fields and tennis courts," said Paul Robertson, president of The Robertson Brothers Co. "Our research shows people like things close to home, especially for the children."

Building's players

The survival of the building industry's players was also examined in the NAHB report. In the last two years, the banking industry has curtailed financing considerably, even for companies with successful track records.

"Traditionally, big developers pick up market share when money becomes tight, and then the numbers go back down again, but I don't know if we're going to see that pattern this time around," said Michael Carliner, an economist with the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB).

"The credit markets are very tight right now, and there's no indication they'll let up in the years to come. We're also seeing government play an expanding role in regulating land use, which means greater fees and other responsibilities which are costs passed on to the consumer."

The NAHB report also predicted one of the biggest headaches for developers in coming years will be

Lecture series provides forum for architects

STAFF WRITER

You don't have to be a student of architecture or a working professional to attend the ARCHITECTURE series sponsored by Lawrence Technological University in Southfield and American Institute of Architects-Detroit.

Anyone with an interest in building design and related issues can attend the lectures offered monthly on campus by nationally renowned specialists. All at no charge.

Robert Marquis, a San Francisco-based designer, will lead off the 19th ARCHITECTURE season Thursday, Sept. 17. His address is titled, "Our World and the Ideas That Have Shaped It: Architecture as a Social Art in the Service of Users."

Marquis' talk — as well as all others in the series — will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the College of Architecture and Design Auditorium. Reservations aren't necessary, but attendees are advised to arrive when the doors open at 7 p.m. to get a seat.

"The reason we produce the programs is to support excellence in the academic curriculum and provide a vehicle for architectural awareness to people in Michigan," said Gary Kecskes, director of continuing education and professional development at LTU.

"Most speakers gear to a mixed audience consisting of students, alumni, practicing professionals and the lay public interested in design," he added.

• Oct. 22 — Karen Van Lengen, owner of a small studio in New York City, who recently won a design contest for the American Memorial Library to be built in Berlin. A former disciple of I.M. Pei, Van Lengen will speak about "Connection Versus Fragmentation."

• Nov. 5 — George Papageorge, a principal in the Chicago firm of Papageorge & Haymes Ltd., who has designed contemporary houses along Lake Michigan as well as traditional renovations to commercial buildings in the Windy City.

• Dec. 3 — William Lacey, an architect and owner of a design business in New York City, he recently authored a book, "100 Contemporary Architects."

• Jan. 14 — David Childs, chief executive officer of Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, the largest architectural firm in the country. Skyscraper work is its specialty.

• Feb. 4 — Robert E. Simon, a retired developer and land planner, he was the driving force behind Reston, Va., a master-planned community started from scratch in 1964. He now consults periodically out of St. James, N.Y.

• April 15 — William Turnbull, owner of an architectural firm in San Francisco, who has co-authored a book, "The Place of Homes." Turnbull's forte is building in harmony with the environment.

"The university feels strongly about providing the program as a component of cultural outreach," Kecskes said of ARCHITECTURE. "We have people who drive in from Ohio, Indiana and across the border in Windsor. The series is taken very seriously by practitioners."

"We encourage the lay public to attend. It encourages them to build an awareness of architecture and the building arts in Michigan."

Sienna wins popular vote

The showcase of idea homes and condominiums, sponsored by the Builder's Association of Southeastern Michigan consists of 13 models.

The Sienna, built by M.J.C. Sterling of Macomb Township, has a living room, library, family room, kitchen/breakfast nook and dining room on the first floor and four bedrooms upstairs. It is priced at $229,900.

The 3,100-square foot house features a two-story entrance foyer, a bonus room beneath the elevated library, and a country kitchen between a breakfast room and first floor laundry.

The house has shake shingles, radius topped windows, a three-car garage, a covered rear porch and a basement. But it was the library and bonus room designed as a children's play area that drew accolades from showgoers.

"We wanted to build something that was saleable — appealing yet unique," said Frank Munaco, sales manager for M.J.C. "We had a raised or elevated library. It makes for a real appealing foyer."

Below the library is an optional bonus room. It can be used as a computer room, study area. Our (interior) designer (Pearlmutter and Freiwald of Franklin) made it into a playroom.

"Everyone with young kids who walked through the house looked at it and said, 'Great idea,'" Munaco said.

The view from the premium lot overlooking the lake also drew raves.

Lubin Tringali Associates of

Bloomfield Hills was architect on The Sienna. Great Oaks Landscape Associates of West Bloomfield, the landscape consultant.

"This particular plan was designed specifically for Homearama," Munaco said. "We want to make it a generic available in Rochester, Troy and Oakland Township. We're getting a lot of calls from people who saw it at Homearama who want it duplicated."

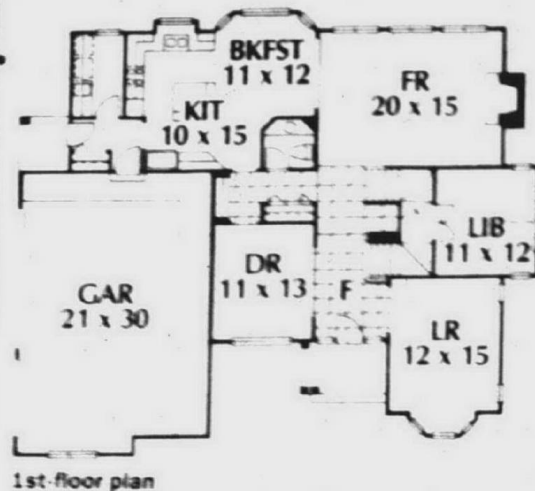

The Beverly Ann, a 2,500-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and three bathrooms by Dynacraft Custom Home Builders of Mount Clemens, placed second in voting for the People's Choice Award.

The Lakeside Lifestyle, 3,018-square-foot with four bedrooms and 2½ baths on two floors built by Sorrentino Builders of Clinton Township, was third.

Homearama continues daily through Sept. 27.

Recordkeeping lowers tax bill

You may not think of your home primarily as a financial investment, but the Internal Revenue Service does. For that reason, every dollar spent on remodeling today could save you money on taxes in the future — if you keep accurate records of your improvements.

As with any investment, explains Remodeling Ideas magazine, if you make money on your home when you sell, the gain is taxable. You can defer capital gains taxes, however, by buying a home of comparable or greater value within 24 months. In addition, homeowners over 55 qualify for a one-time, one-per-household exemption from taxes on capital gains up to $125,000. If neither of these circumstances apply, you could owe the IRS a chunk of your sales proceeds.

If you've improved your home while you've owned it, however, those upgrades will help offset your capital gains. For example: If you buy a house for $100,000 and sell it for $200,000, you might realize roughly a $100,000 capital gain. If you've made $60,000 of capital improvements along the way, however, your taxable gain would be only $40,000.

Make certain your records show the material being replaced and not just the date of purchase.

wooded lots and attached garages," Stano said. Additional bedrooms and bathrooms are also important.

When it comes to extras, first-time, new home buyers have modest expectations, but they are adamant when it comes to certain features.

"Seventy-five percent wanted fireplaces in the family rooms and walk-in closets, and linen closets were also high on their lists."

Also, buyers are cognizant about what a few modifications can accomplish. In the past, few first-time new home buyers asked for changes.

"Now they don't think about asking to move a wall or a window," he said. "I'd say 25 percent of the buyers are very involved in making decisions over how the work is done — that's a big difference."

Second among their concerns is value for the dollar, Stano said.

The first-time, new home buyer has expectations, but they are — for the most part — realistic ones. "He knows what he's getting and when he sees value, he knows it."

Most buyers temper their desires to better suit their pocketbooks, but they also want to feel they're getting something for their dollar, he said. For most first-time new home buyers, that works out to be a moderately equipped, sensible 1,400-square-foot home in the $90,000 price range.

Location remains important, but in his experience, 75 percent of buyers move from within a 10-mile radius. Location is often established before buying a new home.

Third among their concerns is investment possibilities. First-time new home buyers are not fools; they expect the house is not going to be the one they live in for the rest of their lives. They want something that will build equity and act as a tax shelter so they can move up to bigger homes as needs change.

Rex Rosenhaus, vice president of Uniland Corp. in Farmington Hills, said space is important — but it's really usable space buyers are after.

Uniland Corp. targets first-time, new home buyers with its single-family homes in developments like Coachlight Square in Woodhaven and Riverpark in Canton, and condominium units like Silver Creek in Woodhaven.

"I think people tend to look at new homes over old homes because of the changes in design."

Even those moving from larger, older homes discover square footage seems to increase in a better designed home, he said.

"They want not just larger, but more functional kitchens," he said. That applies to the rest of the home.

Home design has improved substantially from just a decade as well, Rosenhaus said. "Today's living space has better flow."

"About the only other thing different from the past," he said, "is many receive (cash) gifts from parents to help with down payments."

Next week: the move-up buyer.

"We've saved all the wetlands and wooded areas we can in the last five years, but even working around nature doesn't open up a lot of new opportunities for us. We're running out of land," said Sam Blumenstein, president of the Classic Construction Corp. in West Bloomfield.

"The banks are also making it difficult for developers to build on spec. Where before banks required 10 or 20 percent down, now they're asking for 35 percent. The big builders like us and small, niche players will do all right, but the middle players will find things more difficult."

Responding to buyers

The report predicted small-volume builders will have plenty of work as they can easily respond to individual trade-up buyer preferences. Such builders often specialize in high-quality, labor-intensive homes with features reflecting individual personalities.

For example, Woodlyne Estates in Bingham Farms, a 12-home development with residences designed by New York architect Robert Stern, includes the use of elevators, rooms designed to reflect particular passions, such as travel rooms with port windows and curved ceilings, and detached garages with recreation rooms on the second floor.

Other report highlights:

- Builders can expect some federal pressure to provide greater consumer protection against structural problems in homes.

- Plastic products as substitutes for other materials in pipes, roofs, siding, doors, built-in cabinetry, plumbing fixtures and design embellishment will become more prevalent.

Sienna wins popular vote

A colonial with an elevated library on the first floor was voted the most popular model last week-end by people who attended the fall Homearama in Sterling Heights.

The showcase of idea homes and condominiums, sponsored by the Builder's Association of Southeastern Michigan consists of 13 models.

The Sienna, built by M.J.C. Sterling of Macomb Township, has a living room, library, family room, kitchen/breakfast nook and dining room on the first floor and four bedrooms upstairs. It is priced at $229,900.

The 3,100-square-foot house features a two-story entrance foyer, a bonus room beneath the elevated library, and a country kitchen between a breakfast room and first floor laundry.

The house has shake shingles, radius topped windows, a three-car garage, a covered rear porch and a basement.

But it was the library and bonus room designed as a children's play area that drew accolades from showgoers.

"We wanted to build something that was saleable — appealing yet unique," said Frank Munaco, sales manager for M.J.C. "We had a raised or elevated library. It makes for a real appealing foyer."

"Below the library is an optional bonus room. It can be used as a computer room, study area. Our (interior) designer (Pearlmuter and Freiwald of Franklin) made it into a playroom."

"Everyone with young kids who walked through the house looked at it and said, 'Great idea,'" Munaco said.

The view from the premium lot overlooking the lake also drew raves.

Lubin Tringali Associates of

Bloomfield Hills was architect on The Sienna, Great Oaks Landscape Associates of West Bloomfield, the landscape consultant.

"This particular plan was designed specifically for Homearama," Munaco said. "We want to make it a generic available in Rochester, Troy and Oakland Township. We're getting a lot of calls from people who saw it at Homearama who want it duplicated."

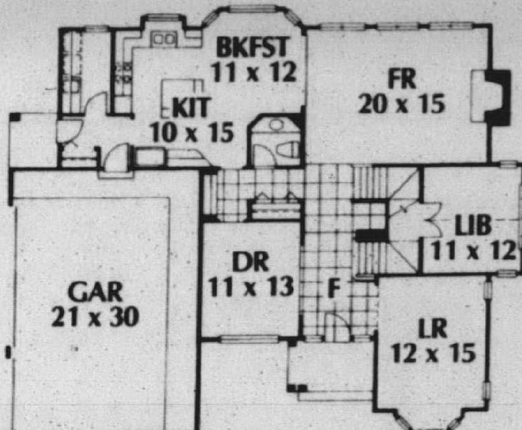

The Beverly Ann, a 2,500-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and three bathrooms by Dynacraft Custom Home Builders of Mount Clemens, placed second in voting for the People's Choice Award.

The Lakeside Lifestyle, 3,018-square-foot with four bedrooms and 2½ baths on two floors built by Sorrentino Builders of Clinton Township, was third.

Homearama continues daily through Sept. 27.

Recordkeeping lowers tax bill

You may not think of your home primarily as a financial investment, but the Internal Revenue Service does. For that reason, every dollar spent on remodeling today could save you money on taxes in the future — if you keep accurate records of your improvements.

As with any investment, explains Remodeling Ideas magazine, if you make money on your home when you sell, the gain is taxable. You can defer capital gains taxes, however, by buying a home of comparable or greater value within 24 months. In addition, homeowners over 55 qualify for a one-time, one-per-household exemption from taxes on capital gains up to $125,000. If neither of these circumstances apply, you could owe the IRS a chunk of your sales proceeds.

If you've improved your home while you've owned it, however, those upgrades will help offset your capital gains. For example: If you buy a house for $100,000 and sell it for $200,000, you might realize roughly a $100,000 capital gain. If you've made $60,000 of capital improvements along the way, however, your taxable gain would be only $40,000.

Make certain your receipt shows the material being replaced and not just the date of purchase.

wooded lots and attached garages," Stano said. Additional bedrooms and bathrooms are also important.

When it comes to extras, first-time, new home buyers have modest expectations, but they are adamant when it comes to certain features.

"Seventy-five percent wanted fireplaces in the family rooms and walk-in closets, and linen closets were also high on their lists."

Also, buyers are cognizant about what a few modifications can accomplish. In the past, few first-time new home buyers asked for changes.

"Now they don't think about asking to move a wall or a window," he said. "I'd say 25 percent of the buyers are very involved in making decisions over how the work is done — that's a big difference."

Second among their concerns is value for the dollar, Stano said.

The first-time, new home buyer has expectations, but they are — for the most part — realistic ones. "He knows what he's getting and when he sees value, he knows it."

Most buyers temper their desires to better suit their pocketbooks, but they also want to feel they're getting something for their dollar, he said.

For most first-time new home buyers, that works out to be a moderately equipped, sensible 1,400-square-foot home in the $90,000 price range.

Location remains important, but in his experience, 75 percent of buyers move from within a 10-mile radius. Location is often established before buying a new home.

Third among their concerns is investment possibilities. First-time new home buyers are not fools; they expect the house is not going to be the one they live in for the rest of their lives. They want something that will build equity and act as a tax shelter so they can move up to bigger homes as needs change.

Rex Rosenhaus, vice president of Uniland Corp. in Farmington Hills, said space is important — but it's really usable space buyers are after.

Uniland Corp. targets first-time, new home buyers with its single-family homes in developments like Coachlight Square in Woodhaven and Riverpark in Canton, and condominium units like Silver Creek in Woodhaven.

"I think people tend to look at new homes over old homes because of the changes in design."

Even those moving from larger, older homes discover square footage seems to increase in a better designed home, he said.

"They want not just larger, but more functional kitchens," he said. That applies to the rest of the home.

Home design has improved substantially from just a decade ago as well, Rosenhaus said. "Today's living space has better flow."

"About the only other thing different from the past," he said, "is many receive (cash) gifts from parents to help with down payments."

Next week: the move-up buyer.

finding reasonably affordable, open land to build their projects.

"We've saved all the wetlands and wooded areas we can in the last five years, but even working around nature doesn't open up a lot of new opportunities for us. We're running out of land," said Sam Blumenstein, president of the Classic Construction Corp. in West Bloomfield.

"The banks are also making it difficult for developers to build on spec. Where before banks required 10 or 20 percent down, now they're asking for 35 percent. The big builders like us and small, niche players will do all right, but the middle players will find things more difficult."

ences. Such builders often specialize in high-quality, labor-intensive homes with features reflecting individual personalities.

For example, Woodlyne Estates in Bingham Farms, a 12-home development with residences designed by New York architect Robert Stern, includes the use of elevators, rooms designed to reflect particular passions, such as travel rooms with port windows and curved ceilings, and detached garages with recreation rooms on the second floor.

Other report highlights:

- Builders can expect some federal pressure to provide greater consumer protection against structural problems in homes.
- Plastic products as substitutes for other materials in pipes, roofs, siding, doors, built-in cabinetry, plumbing fixtures and design embellishment will become more prevalent.

Responding to buyers

The report predicted small-volume builders will have plenty of work as they can easily respond to individual trade-up buyer prefer-
