Court to settle city-railroad tiff

Plymouth police have long been citing CSX trains for holding up traffic more than five minutes. But the railroad has struck back and now a federal court could settle the dispute. The railroad says it would have to spend more than $1 million to avoid the traffic delays.

The legal battle between the City of Plymouth and CSX Transportation, Inc. over slow trains could heat up after the holidays.

Both the city and CSX are scheduled to file court papers with U.S. District Judge George LePlata in December.

"In the next couple of months the judge is supposed to make some kind of ruling on it," Plymouth city attorney Ron Lowe said.

CSX filed suit in July, claiming it's unlawful for the city to issue traffic tickets when trains take longer than five minutes to clear crossings.

The city responded by filing a motion asking the judge to dismiss the case. The motion included case law which supports the issuing of tickets.

The railroad responded with its own motion to dismiss based on case law cited in its original complaint.

"In the past four years, Plymouth has received substantial revenues as a result of its enforcement of the Plymouth ordinance," the CSX court complaint alleges.

To comply, the railroad company "would have to spend over $1 million to improve the tracks in and around Plymouth and add or upgrade required equipment, to permit the safe, smooth, timely and efficient interstate operation of its trains," according to the CSX court complaint.

CSX said that in 1990 more than 571 citations were issued, resulting in fines of more than $127,410.

In 1991, the railroad company paid more than $59,950 in fines, according to the court complaint.

"We do generate a lot out of it because they violate it a lot," Lowe said.

But Lowe maintained that the city is not ticketing CSX to raise money.

"The citizens are already coming in to talk to commissioners about the (bumpy) grade crossings. What's going to happen if trains start block-

The pre-trial hearing for a Farrand Elementary School teacher charged by a parent with getting into an altercation with her son was adjourned at a hearing before 35th District Judge James Garber on Monday.

"I need to speak to those witnesses and secure copies of their statements and go back with appropriate motions to bring the issues into effect, if there are such witnesses," said Beemer.

Maryann Ligato-Freydl, executive director of the Michigan Education Association, said Gale denied the charge and passed a lie detector test "with flying colors. A score of six is at the bottom end of positivity, indicating the person is telling the truth. The top score is 18. Bob scored an 18. Christmas Cheer Club will help every child share in the season

■ COMMUNITY

Our readers made it a whopping success last year, so we're bringing it back.

We're talking about the Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club.

The idea behind the club is that no child should be without a gift on Christmas, and no family should go hungry.

Joining is easy. Membership is open to anyone who can take the time to stop by our office and drop off a canned good or new, unwrapped toy for a needy child.

We'll start taking donations the day after Thanksgiving.

Then, we'll continue to collect them through mid-December. That's when we'll turn them over to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy kids and families in our area.

So once Thanksgiving is out of the way, grab a canned good or gift and come on by our office at 744 Wing. Bring the kids.

And we'd like to take your name and list it in The Observer with others who give to the Christmas Cheer Club.

Last year, we counted just over 200 donors coming into our office.

Meanwhile, the Plymouth Salvation Army announces they're aggres-

O & E's mall page tracks retail trends

On the premise that a pulse of our suburbs is our malls and mainstreets, on Monday we begin a new kind of news page.

On it, we will tell what's happening in these town centers — indoor and out — where we gather to shop, meet friends, eat an ice cream cone or a whole meal, where we go as whole families, and where our young people socialize.

These centers are also where special and cultural events occur, Santa Claus hangs out, community organizations meet, people walk or jog in the off hours, or take in a movie.

Staff writer Susan DiMaggio will journey to the malls & mainstreets you frequent to keep you up to date on what's going on. She will be aided by columnist Linda Bachrack, who will track retail trends in a special way.

The weekly page will include a calendar of events.

Our purpose is to provide you with information you can use. As always, we welcome your comments.

Schools delay sale of 17-acre wooded site

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Township residents' efforts to save a climax beech and maple forest from developers' bulldozers received a shot in the arm Monday night with action taken by the Plymouth-Canton school board.

The board agreed to delay until February the disposition of the site. The district put the 17 acres, adjacent to Plymouth Township Park, on the market after it determined it wouldn't be needed for a new school. The Selective Group of Farmington Hills made a bid on the property.

In the wooded seven acres are trees up to 200 years old.

"I'm pleased the folks interested in the land are speaking with the township," said trustee David Artley. "There are a lot of issues involved — woods, open space and the developer. I'm pleased we're going to pass this and give them time to take a good hard look at this."

Agreed school board member Dean Swartzwelter: "It's important that the newly elected Plymouth Township officials review this and how the property fits in to their long term zoning. The land can only be used in a manner consistent with how the township zones it. This will give them time to hear citizens' input."

Dr. Ann LaFond is one of the homeowners concerned about preserving the woods. She pointed out that the township is, in the view of many, entitled to a discount on the land since it was Plymouth Township taxpayers' money in part that purchased the land more than 30 years ago.

Plymouth Township tax revenue accounts for 39 percent of the school district's state equalized valuation. The district includes part or all of six communities.

Bogged down: Wet weather has slowed the progress of crews laying clay over a former city dump in Salem Township, but work should be completed by Christmas.

Clay from project helping city take care of trash dump

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

■ ENVIRONMENT

Recent rains have bogged down tractors, but work to close a former city dump in Salem Township continues.

City Engineer Ken West said 75 percent of the clay required to cover the former dump has been laid.

The city had closed the dump in the 1960s using Department of Natural Resources guidelines, but the DNR ordered the city to take further measures to allay environmental concerns.

Earlier this year, the federal government came up with $600,000 to help the city finance the closure of the former city dump, located just west of Chubb Road north of Five Mile Road.

The grant helped, but the city still needed another $1 million to cover the dump with clay and soil as the DNR ordered.

In June, city commissioner and developer Jim Jabara told fellow commissioners that if the city offered to dig a 10-acre lake in Salem Township for a land developer, the city could have the clay for free.

That would save half of that $1 million by eliminating costs to truck in out-state clay.

After getting the OK from Salem Township officials, the city last month began digging the lake off of Gottfredson Road and hauling the clay to the former dump.

While wet weather has slowed the effort, West said it would be completed by Christmas to meet a DNR requirement for getting the grant.

"If we don't have too many more rainy days and get some cooperation from the weather, we'll have no problem meeting our schedule," West said.

Crews have to lay a 2-foot compacted cap of clay over the 40-acre site. On top of that 6 inches of top soil will be laid and seeded.

West said the laying of top soil should happen in the next few weeks.

Next spring, the city will still have to install gas vents and monitor wells, he said.

Extracting the clay from one site and laying it at the dump site is costing the city $37,000.

But without the effort, "It would cost us a half a million dollars more," West said.

day and said Gale is innocent of the misdemeanor. "Our belief is that Bob is telling the truth and is innocent," Portelli said.

Farrand Principal Ann Kuhn has found no evidence to indicate the third-grade teacher was involved in the altercation, as charged by Lynn Parsons 10 days after the alleged incident.

Parsons and her son, Alexander, claim Gale shoved him Oct. 1 in front of the class. Gale says he merely moved the student's desk away from his friend's desk, which upset Alexander and his friend.

"It didn't happen, he did not strike any child. If a teacher swatted a kid, it would be all over the school in 10 minutes, and it wasn't," Ligato Freydl said shortly after the accusation was made.

Gale has a clean record of service that spans more than 20 years with the district, Portelli said.

ing grade crossings for 15 or 20 minutes?" Lowe said.

"It's not just a revenue producer. We've got some serious safety concerns," he added.

For example, Lowe said some motorists will notice that a train is approaching a crossing, and will then turn and race down side streets to outrun trains and cross tracks before the train approach.

The city in its complaint also cites instances when fire and police department responses to emergency calls were delayed when slow-moving trains forced them to wait.

The city maintains that the five-minute rule challenged in the CSX suit is backed by both state law and the state police uniform traffic code.

Marching band 3rd; competition was close

■ NATIONALS

In some of the tightest competition in recent history, the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Marching Band placed third Saturday night at the National Competition at the Hoosierdome in Indianapolis.

Just one half point on a 100-point scale separated the winner, the Centerville Jazz Band from Centerville, Ohio, and third place PCEP. In second place and two-tenths of a point ahead of PCEP was Marian Catholic High School from Chicago Heights, Ill. The PCEP band also was given the award for Outstanding Music Performance.

Band director Glen Adsit said he and his staff have no regrets, adding: "The band played a tremendous show, by far the best show of the season, so we have every reason to be very proud of our kids."

Sixty-four bands from 14 states assembled at the Hoosierdome for preliminary competition that began Friday morning and continued until 4:30 p.m. Saturday. PCEP and Centerville shared the award for Outstanding Music Performance for preliminary competition from the field of 64 bands. The PCEP Color Guard was credited with being the Outstanding Auxiliary during prelims.

Then at 7:30 p.m., the 12 bands with the highest scores in preliminary competition assembled for finals. Those dozen finalist bands each took the field every 15 minutes for the next four hours. Due to the luck of the draw, PCEP, Marian Catholic and Centerville played back-to-back in the middle of finals competition.

The band will put its marching shoes away until they perform Thanksgiving Day at the Silverdome and again at the end of December when they travel to the Fiesta Bowl Parade in Phoenix, Ariz. The parade will be televised at 9 a.m. on New Year's Day.

■ CRIME

A 25-year-old Plymouth man told police he thinks a fellow tenant took two of his bicycles.

The Starkweather resident said he suspects the fellow tenant of taking his Kuhara 12-speed, valued at $150, and a Schwinn mountain bike with a value of $300.

The complaintant says the suspect gets drunk and harasses him. He said that on Nov. 3, the suspect was particularly drunk and obnoxious.

After the man complained to the landlady, the suspect became very angry and threatened retaliation. The complaintant awoke the next day to discover both his bikes gone. They'd been parked against the house. The suspect is known to tinker with bikes, according to the complainant.

The man hopes to have his bikes returned, but will sign a complaint if necessary.

Breaking and entering

Some thieves think ahead.

A 31-year-old Plymouth man told police someone entered his garage and took a Sears black and gray snowblower valued at $400. The door was closed but unlocked.

Undisturbed was a Mercedes sports car, a lawn mower and a large set of golf clubs. The complaintant said the garage door is kept closed.

Hunter cited

While on patrol at 9:44 a.m. Sunday, a Plymouth Township police officer spotted a man coming out of some woods carrying a rifle and wearing an orange vest.

The man, hunting for rabbit with a 12-gauge Winchester pump rifle, said he was on state land. But a township ordinance prohibits the discharge of a firearm in Plymouth Township.

The man, 34, of Taylor, was ticketed, according to the report filed by police. The incident occurred near Napier Road and M-14.

Grill taken

A homeowner on Plum Tree reported the theft of a Charmglow gas grill and bench from a backyard deck.

According to the report filed with Plymouth Township police, the items, valued at $750, were taken sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and 6:55 a.m. Saturday.

Police closed the case for lack of suspects or evidence.

Car break-in

A Dearborn Heights woman, 22, reported the theft of a car stereo from her car parked at AJ's Restaurant late Friday or early Saturday.

The theft occurred sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 2:30 a.m. According to the report filed with police, the car stereo was valued at $2,150. A thief caused $300 in damage to weatherstripping along a car window and also damaged a car alarm, the report continued.

Police closed the case for lack of suspects or evidence.

the selling price will be, "Plymouth Township taxpayers put money in at that time. Whatever money came back would be appreciated," said La Fond.

"The question is why should people pay again, when they paid for it before?"

Trustees Carl Battishill and Dean Swartzwelter opposed the discount.

"We are supporting residents in their effort of having the township buy the land, but I don't support a 39 percent discount on this property," said Battishill. "I'm troubled by a philosophy that says, 'This is mine, we are going to keep this for ourselves.'

"That moves us further away from bringing our communities together. We have an obligation to be the best possible steward of those resources. We need to consider what the costs are to the entire district."

Swartzwelter said, "As far as I'm concerned, when money comes into the district, it should lose its identity as to where it came from."

LaFond said none of the homeowners are trying to make a split or division in the Plymouth-Canton school community. "It's not the purpose at all," she said.

Trustee Jack Farrow disagreed with Battishill and Swartzwelter.

"The money that bought that land originally came from taxpayers of this community, and it's jointly owned by all taxpayers. In a sense, Plymouth Township taxpayers put up at least a portion, so in a sense, it's partly theirs," Farrow said. "They paid for it. When we go to sell it back to them, that should be taken into consideration."

■ 'There are a lot of issues involved — woods, open space and the developer. I'm pleased we're going to pass this and give them time to take a good hard look at this.'

Trustee David Artley

Appraisals ranging from $585,000 to $890,000 have been made, varying with the number of single family homes that would be built on the parcel between Ann Arbor Trail and North Territorial off McClumpha Road.

The district has not decided on an asking price. The township, which has the right of first refusal, hasn't yet made an offer on the property, said school board president Roland Thomas.

Trustee Barbara Graham advised finding a practical a solution. "There is a need for kids in the community to have open space to enjoy. We have a lot of school property, but official uses of it prohibit them from using it any time they want to. I would like to see the residents of the community stand to benefit from this as best we can arrange."

Thomas said, "The monies that bought that site were those of the whole district. The funds from the sale must be put back into the school coffers for school expansion of one type or another."

Kite flying family takes to open fields

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Rick and Matt Yeager couldn't ask for more than a good wind and an empty field.

"That's a rush. It's like catching the biggest fish on your line," said Rick, a Canton resident, who with his son Matt, 11½, took first places in kite flying competition at the United States Air Force Museum in Dayton, Ohio recently.

■ PEOPLE

The father and son haven't been flying kites — and not the kind you just make with two sticks, string and paper — that long. Actually it's only since 1990 that they've been out in fields and state parks letting their lightweight kites soar the skies.

That year Rick and his wife, Debbie, took Matt and his sister, Carissa, 13, to an Ohio state park on vacation. It just so happened that a kite club was at the park doing its thing with a "no rules kite fly."

"I had sunburned tonsils. I couldn't believe they could do those things with kites," said Yeager, a plant engineer for BASF. "I got home and bought a kit and took it to Mackinac City."

That was the birth of a family sport. All in all, the Yeagers now have 15 kites, including ultralight types. "If someone talks too much in the next county I can set that kite up," Yeager said.

What sets apart some kites is not only the weight, but whether they have four lines, two lines or a single line with which the flyer manipulates the kite.

Matt's first kite cost only $16. Exotic kites can run up to $400. But as Debbie Yeager puts it, "once a kite is paid for, all you need is an open field."

Matt and Rick say the best kite flyers are Nintendo players. Eye-and-hand coordination is the key to kite flying. "It's good for your self-confidence. I try to be daring and use strategy," said Matt, a sixth grader at Lowell Middle School.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Flying away: Eleven-year-old Matt Yeager and his father, Rick, took first places in recent competition at the United States Air Force Museum, Ohio. The pair got into kite flying after watching a kite club do their thing in Ohio a couple of years ago.

But safety is just as important. Some kites are so strong once in the wind that the flyers have a body harness because kites can travel at about 100 mph. There's not a whole lot of worry about flying the kite into something in the sky. Lines are generally about 150 feet long, and with competition 120 feet.

The Air Force museum competition was hardly the first for Rick and Matt Yeager. Both entered the precision competition. There's also ballet competition where flyers must sort of make their kites dance to music, much like figure skating.

The precision competition includes making your kite follow certain compulsory figures, such as an eight, circle, star or heartbeat movement. "You are judged on how precise you fly the kite in the sky to the figure on the paper," Yeager said.

The bad news on the precision competition is that once your kite touches the ground, you're disqualified from that maneuver, Matt said. "I like to compete. I like to see how I score compared to the masters (kite flyers)."

The Yeagers are no doubt into kites. They know kite language, kite manuevers, kite costs and where all the hot competitions and get-togethers are for kite flyers.

The family belongs to a local kite club, which used to fly at the GM Technical Center. On Wednesday evenings they're at Plymouth-Salem High School.

And then there's the New Year's Day Fly at Metro Beach and in early October the One Sky One World fly.

"This is a very family oriented sport. Kite flyers are generally the nicest people," said Debbie, who with daughter Carissa usually waits patiently on the sidelines or helps with scores. "Somebody's got to be there to be nervous on the sideline."

What Matt likes to see is all the kite flyers with their kites on the ground waiting for a wind. "Then all of a sudden you get a burst of wind and you see all this nylon going up in the sky."

Coping with divorce

Court aims to help parents help kids

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

Children suffer more than their parents know from the process of divorce, experts say.

Divorcing or separated parents become so focused on their own problems and disputes that they rarely recognize the impact of their actions and behavior on their children.

The Third Judicial Circuit Court of Wayne County wants to help parents understand how their children feel. By trying to give parents this understanding, the court hopes to encourage them to give better emotional support to their children.

Kids First, an educational program to assist parents, began Oct. 2 and has continued every Friday from 1-2:30 p.m. in the Jury Assembly Room at Detroit's City County Building.

"Participation is still low, about eight to 12 people a week," said Judge Kathleen Macdonald who initiated the Wayne County program with Bill Lucken, a Friend of the Court employee. "But, we eventually anticipate close to 100 people per week. So far it has gone very well, and we are pleased with the response of the parents."

Macdonald plans to schedule evening hours and suburban sessions in the near future.

About 50 percent of the court's cases are in the domestic relations category. Of these, almost 30 percent involve children who are ill-equipped to deal with such crises. The Kids First program is an expression of the strong interest of the court in helping children make a healthy adjustment to separation and divorce, Macdonald said.

Kids First was adapted from SMILE — Start Making It Liveable for Everyone — an Oakland County Circuit Court workshop for divorcing parents. Its core is a video documentary by the same name, produced by the family law section of the state bar.

The Oakland County program was started three years ago by Judge Ed Sosnick and Richard Victor, a Birmingham-based attorney, Macdonald said.

Impressed by the Oakland program, the Third Judicial Circuit formed a committee to implement

Wayne Circuit Judge Kathleen Macdonald is moved every time she sees the "SMILE" video.

The title stands for Start Making It Liveable for Everyone and deals with divorce.

In October, Macdonald began Kids First, a program offered weekly to help divorcing parents understand the impact their divorces have on their children.

Plea in fatal crash upsets father

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Kay Carlson wanted a trial and some jail time for an 18-year-old Canton man charged in connection with the deaths of Carlson's daughter and her boyfriend in a March 1991 auto accident.

"I expected him to get something," said Carlson of Canton. "Two people are gone. Two people are permanently injured and he can have his record erased."

Walter Guenther III pleaded no contest in October to two counts of negligent homicide in the deaths of Tamara Carlson and Michael Fullerton, both 18, in a one-car accident on Napier Road, March 28, 1991. Guenther's attorney could not be reached for comment.

"Friday he came in on a motion to adjourn (the trial date). Once we were there he did it," said David Lady, a Washtenaw County assistant prosecutor. "In a sense it resolves the case."

That's what bothers Carlson. "No one was expecting this. I was hoping for a trial. A lot of evidence, which would have shown how fast he was going won't be asked about now; it won't be presented."

Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Melissa Morris did not accept Guenther's plea but took it under advisement under the Holmes Youthful Offenders Act, Lady said.

Morris put Guenther on an 18-month non-reporting probation. She adjourned the case to April 22, 1994, when Guenther should be finished with probation. At that time, Morris has the option of dismissing the case or not dismissing the case and allowing Guenther to withdraw his plea. Or Morris can accept the plea and sentence Guenther to prison, Lady said.

Negligent homicide carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison. Under the youthful offenders act, criminal records can be expunged, Lady said.

Guenther was driving the 1984 Mercury Cougar that went out of control on Napier Road, just north of Warren and struck a tree, killing Carlson and Fullerton.

Passengers Raymond Carlson, now 17, and Christoper Demey, now 18, were injured in the accident that involved Guenther's 1984 Mercury Cougar. The teens were on their way to Westland by way of Napier Road north to Warren Road, Carlson said.

Raymond Carlson was in a coma for 30 days after the accident. "There is a brain injury. He still has problems," his father said. Demey suffered 18 fractures and has a rod in his leg. "He wanted to be a Navy Seal," Carlson added.

Carlson has approached Canton Township and Superior Township officials about the condition of Napier Road. The road travels through the two townships, which includes both Wayne and Washtenaw counties. He has complained about the limited sight distance and the speed limit.

"This has been disruptive. This whole thing has changed our lives permanently," Carlson said.

Board changes smoking hours at high schools

■ Students waiting for their 6:30 a.m. no-smoking clinics to start were lighting up, according to school officials.

Starting Monday, students at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools will not be allowed to smoke from 4:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The school board changed the no-smoking hours — formerly 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. — at its meeting Monday night.

The reason for the change? Students waiting for their 6:30 a.m. no-smoking clinics to start were lighting up, according to school officials. Students caught smoking are required to attend smoking cessation clinics as part of the district's newly enacted no-smoking policy.

The reason hours are specified in the first place is because adult students who attend night classes are permitted to smoke on school grounds, said Dick Egli, the district's community relations director.

Elation over defeat of A and C

Plymouth-Canton teachers got a pat on the back Monday night from school board member Jack Farrow.

Farrow commended the teachers for their campaigning, which consisted of passing out 25,000 brochures advising voters not to support Proposals A and C, both of which would have limited property tax assessments.

Assisting Advance Michigan, the Plymouth-Canton Education Association also spent $10,000 to defeat the proposals, and made phone calls to voters.

Trustee Dave Artley commended the electorate. "I had some deep concerns that at least Proposal A might pass. Sometimes, when there are two ballot issues, people tend to pick out one over the other as the lesser of two evils. As it turned out, A failed by a greater margin than B. I'm glad people saw through it."

There's still plenty of uncertainty regarding state funding for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. A special board workshop is set for Monday, Nov. 30 when the topic will be the district's two-year budget and a possible millage request this spring.

"We don't know what our revenues will be from the state," said school board member Dean Swartzwelter. "There are some alternatives that could be nearly as devastating as A or C. a similar program in Wayne County. Committee members are: Judges Kathleen Macdonald, chairman, Susan D. Borman, Pamela K. Harwood, James J. Rashid, and K. Kent Batty, court administrator and Gerhard F. Ritsema, Friend of the Court.

Divorcing parents receive an invitation by letter to attend the program from the chief judge when they apply for a divorce. "Divorce is a time when parents and children may feel overwhelmed by the losses and changes that require each family member to adjust to a new way of living," Chief Judge Richard C. Kaufman wrote in the letter. "The more knowledge parents have about divorce and its impact on children, the better they are able to cope."

The weekly format for the Kids First program includes an introduction and presentation by a circuit judge after which the participants view the SMILE video. The videotape, which Macdonald describes as touching, features a discussion with family counseling experts, but Macdonald said that the real focus of the year-old video "is the very frank statements of the children who are interviewed by these persons, how they felt during the divorce, after the divorce and also how the behavior of their parents affected them."

Macdonald, a member of the Family Counseling and Mediation staff, then conducts a short question-and-answer period. The entire program is about 90 minutes long. The video features Wayne and Oakland County adults and children, Macdonald said.

Kids First is strictly for adults but not limited to the parties in the lawsuit. "All attorneys are welcome to attend the Kids First program," Macdonald said. "It would help them help their clients."

Parents should not bring their children because child care is not available on site. There is no charge to attend.

Tips for parents

She's continually struck by a little girl in the film who reveals her feelings about her father, who doesn't pay child support.

"I feel like he is telling us to go in the corner and die," the girl said.

From a booklet called "Kids First," by Lorraine Osthaus, of Oakland County Friend of the Court, Macdonald provides tips on how parents can help their children cope:

- Children need predictability. Children who can maintain regular routines are less likely to be overwhelmed by the changes divorce brings. Parents should do their best to build and maintain healthy and smooth environments.

They need frequent and regular contacts with both parents, continued contact with friends and relatives of both parents and personal space to call their own, even if it is just a corner.

- Parents should exercise caution when introducing new boyfriends or girlfriends to children. Children often feel confused about their sense of loyalty, and parents' casual relationships may contribute to children's sense of insecurity and instability.
- Children need relationships with both parents. A parent needs to stress the good points about the other parent and avoid name-calling, saying bad things, or blaming the other parent for problems.
- A parent should keep family photos available, including photos of the other parent.
- A parent should allow children to express their love for the other parent and talk about their experiences with the other parent.
- If children complain about one parent, the other parent should encourage children to take the complaint to the person responsible rather than agree with the children. A parent has no control over the other parent.

SC director eyes touch-tone registration

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

Frank Wiltrakis has been named manager of information services and is the newest member of the Schoolcraft College Executive Administration. He will direct the use of technology and computers for both academic and administrative use at the college.

One of Wiltrakis' most important roles will be evaluating new technologies, including touch-tone registration and the new field of imaging for document management.

"First-time students will still need to see a counselor," Wiltrakis said. "It (touch-tone registration) changes a lot philosophically. A lot of old rules have to be changed."

Wiltrakis, a Wixom resident, has been employed by Schoolcraft for the past seven years. His specialty is software systems and networks.

"He was promoted from within," said Saundra "Sam" Florek, spokeswoman for the college. "This is a big-time promotion for him."

Wiltrakis admits that he was surprised and pleased by his selection.

In early 1992, he became director of technology and networking.

Wiltrakis is planning to update the manufacturing area and is researching the use of multimedia in the classroom.

'We're always moving ahead," Wiltrakis said.

Wiltrakis was hired in 1985 as a systems analyst for Schoolcraft College. Prior to that, in 1983, he was a software specialist for Prime Computer System. He worked as an independent consultant in 1982-83 and was employed as an analyst programmer for Wayne Westland Public Schools 1976-82.

Local authors headline benefit for literacy group

The Detroit Chapter of Women in Communications Inc. will present Michigan authors Elmore (Dutch) Leonard of Birmingham and Sara S.K. Wolfe of Livonia on "Who's Murdering Our Love of Literacy" at 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19, at the Peking House in Royal Oak.

The presentation is a benefit for Michigan Literacy Inc. and is co-sponsored by ANR Storage Co. Inc.

Fees are $20 for WICI and MLI members, $18 for students and seniors and $25 for nonmembers and guests. The price includes dinner and dessert.

The Peking House is at Second and Washington streets in Royal Oak. For reservations, call Susan Tauber of WICI by Nov. 17 at (313) 652-1460.

Crime novelist Leonard has written such best-sellers as "Maximum Bob," "Rum Punch," "Get Shorty," "Freaky Deaky" and "Kill Shot." He has sold options on these books to such Hollywood producers as Danny DeVito, ABC-TV and Bruce Willis.

Spy-thriller writer Wolfe wrote "MacKinnon's Machine," an international thriller and Book-of-the-Month Club alternate selection, as well as "The Harbinger Effect" and "Long Chain of Death," a mystery novel set in Michigan.

Jobless rate declines for 3rd month

Michigan's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate fell in October for the third straight month to 8.6 percent, reported F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

According to estimates prepared by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, the number of jobless Michigan workers declined by 10,000 last month to 397,000.

The September jobless rate was 8.8 percent. In October 1991, unemployment was 9.0 percent.

Industries reporting job gains were retail trade, services and government. The gains were offset, however, by short-term, production adjustment layoffs in the auto and related industries.

"Hiring in the retail industry is encouraging," Edwards said, "and is a sign that either consumers are beginning to increase their purchases or that the retailers expect increased sales activity as we approach the holiday season.

"Government employment rose among some local school districts as classes began belatedly for the fall term following contract settlements with striking teachers.

"Michigan's labor force declined slightly in October to 4,609,000, a drop of 24,000, as some seasonal workers left the job market with the conclusion of activities in the summer tourism industry.

Among the nation's 11 most populous states, Michigan had the third highest rate behind California's 9.8 percent and New York's 8.7 percent.

North Carolina and Illinois shared the lowest jobless rate at 5.5 percent.

Greenhouse biz just grew on her

■ A Plymouth woman who has devoted her life to working in the family greenhouse has no regrets. She rarely leaves it, but says she's not missing anything.

BY JAN JONES
SPECIAL WRITER

Sylvia Graye of Plymouth grew up but she never left home. She has worked since childhood in Graye's Greenhouse, on the corner of Lilley and Joy Roads.

"It's a full time job," she said. "I work sun-up to sundown, seven days a week."

The fourth of six children born to Alex and Alexandria Wnuck, Graye was just three years old in 1918 when her father built a house on 20 acres at the corner of Lilley and Joy Roads. She remembers that there was an old greenhouse on the property at that time, which her dad replaced in 1928. Wnuck was especially proud of his new greenhouse chimney. It was six-sided, built of brown brick, and still displays his initials, A.W.

"We grew vegetables," Graye said. "for our own use, and we sold them to neighbors."

Grey remembered walking to Plymouth High School (now Central Middle School). "Lilley Road was dirt. We'd pass the Postiff farm on the west side of Lilley, and cut across Fair. On the way home we'd come down Golden Road." Ann Arbor Road was known as Golden Road because it was made of yellow sand.

Gray liked to stop on occasion to chat with Fred Schrader in front of his funeral home. Her favorite place was Murray's Chocolate Shop in the middle of town.

"He (Mr. Murray) was an old man and he had a great big chunk of chocolate in the window." Graye closed her eyes and said, "Mmmm, I can smell it now."

Greenhouse: Sylvia Graye never left home in a sense. She has worked in Graye's Greenhouse in Plymouth since childhood.

After high school, Graye stayed at home and continued to work in the greenhouse. "I was needed right here at home," she said. "I liked the work and wanted to go on doing it."

Graye was 23 years old when she met her husband. She said, "Reinhold Rhuer, who owned Heidi's, said to me one day, 'Have I got a man for you.'" Rhuer was referring to Joe Graye, who was working at Tom Brown's greenhouse in Redford.

"My dad took it from there," Graye said. "He knew Joe and liked him. It was a good match."

The newlyweds lived in a small apartment in the warehouse, which is the square brown block building at the back of the greenhouse. "My daughter, Alyce, was practically raised right there on that bench," Graye said, pointing to the long, wooden potting bench.

The warehouse still contains the coal-fired boiler that was used to heat the greenhouse.

'It was a lot of work," Graye said. "First you had to shovel coal through the window. Then you shoveled it into the hopper. Then you had to take out the clinkers."

Even though the greenhouse now uses gas heat, Graye and her son, Joe, fired up the old boiler just last summer to sterilize dirt for potting. They used a dump truck that has steam tubes under the bed. By hooking the steam tubes to the boiler, five yards of dirt was sterilized at a time. They processed 13 truckloads, enough to last for the next five years.

Graye's Greenhouse was launched into a retail business in 1948, when Graye and her husband bought it from her dad.

Today Graye's Greenhouse remains a family affair. Daughter Alyce, daughter-in-law, Connie, and son, Joe work there. When talking about the current economic climate, Graye said, "We're doing better now than 10 years ago. People seem more flower-minded."

Surrounded by rows of white, pink and red cyclamen, Graye summed up her lifestyle. "I don't go anywhere but I don't miss it either."

She's too busy propagating cuttings from the huge passion flower that forms an archway over one of the greenhouse aisles. Along with exotic species such as Venus's-flytrap and bird-of-paradise flowers, Graye has grown Jerusalem cherries for 50 years.

"You get in here, and don't hear the outside world," she said. "We don't have a radio in here because we like it quiet."

It may be peaceful in the greenhouse, but Graye and her staff aren't lonely. Friends and customers are always dropping by to visit.

Retiring counselor designed programs to assist women

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

Come January, the students and faculty of Schoolcraft College will say goodby to their director of counseling, a man who's worked there almost as long as the school has been in existence.

John R. Webber, a Farmington Hills resident, began his career at the community college in 1965, building on a reputation for education he earned as a elementary and secondary school teacher in Detroit Public schools, from 1954-58, followed by counseling positions at Bentley and Franklin High schools in Livonia from 1958 to 1965.

Among Webber's many accomplishments, he's extremely proud of the strides he made to assist women ages 30-50 during the 1970s with the development of the Human Potential Seminars.

"We captured the ready audience," Webber said.

The classes focused on personal development through the group process in a class setting, self-esteem and self-motivation.

It was a time, when women were striking out on their own, Webber said.

Also during the 1970s, Webber co-authored a grant proposal which supplied funding for development of the present Learning Opportunity Center at Schoolcraft College, authored a grant proposal which supplies funding for the Career Development Project, which currently is in effect in the counseling department and authored a grant proposal which supplies funding to the Schoolcraft College Veterans Office.

Webber received the Presidential Recognition Award given from Schoolcraft College in 1984.

He organized the counselors in the Schoolcraft district into a local chapter of the Michigan Personnel and Guidance Association in 1967. In 1987-88, he received the first Michigan Association for Counseling Development (MACD) service award ever given.

Webber has been active as the MACD Convention Site coordinator since 1985.

Webber holds a bachelor of science degree in education from Wayne State University and a master of arts in guidance and counseling from the University of Michigan.

Hospice offers care, respect for terminally ill in county

Death with dignity, doctor-assisted suicide and living wills have all raised our consciousness to issues surrounding what used to be a taboo subject — death.

While many people continue to associate hospice services with death, advocates in the field like to set the record straight by confirming that hospice is about life.

Hospice is not a place. It is a set of philosophies and each hospice "group" has its own, according to Maureen Butrico, executive director of Hospice Services of Western Wayne County, which recently opened offices in Plymouth.

"Each hospice has a different way of administering to their clients," she said.

All hospices, however, provide for the care — emotionally and physically — of terminally-ill patients in their care.

"Our services are available to those who do not have a cure available to them," Butrico said. "We help them to live every day of their life."

Hospice Services provides care to about 35 clients and their families with a corps of 80 volunteers and a staff of nurses, therapists and many more.

personal home health care, medications, daily medical supplies and any equipment that might be needed, in addition to the resources of all hospice volunteers. Most private insurance companies now cover the cost of hospice and Medicare also covers the cost for senior citizens.

More importantly, however, Hospice nurses and therapists will give patients and their families a plan to best use every minute of their life.

"We might tell a patient who is very weak not to waste his energy walking to the bathroom when we can place a portable toilet next to his bed," Butrico said. "Isn't that energy better spent with your loved ones?"

Hospice workers will also counsel the family of patients and talk with them about making the most of their time and telling their parent or spouse or child that they love them and what their absence will mean to them.

Volunteers may run errands for a family unable to leave the house, or babysit a terminally-ill child so the parents can have some time on their own.

"Our volunteers will do just about anything making it that much easier for the family to spend quality time together," Butrico said.

Hospice families receive 13 months of free bereavement care following the death of their loved one allowing them to grieve openly and move forward.

Karen Dorney, a hospice nurse for nearly three years, said this type of care is something she always wanted to be involved in. Her father died after a long illness and although her mother was a nurse, he was taken to a hospital to die.

"Sometimes I think of my father as I care for these families," she said. "You build a very close relationship as you try to help in all aspects of their lives."

Other volunteers and employees of Hospice are quick to talk of the rewards they receive from their work.

Shared services

Election clears way for change

The new Plymouth Township supervisor and board of trustees have the ability to set the tone for years to come in the Plymouth community.

The issue that will determine how things will go is the staffing of a new fire house built by the township several years ago, but never staffed because of the lack of money.

The word here is consolidation with the city of Plymouth. For several years the city commission and the township have had shared services on their dance cards, but the township has been doing the fox trot while the city has been waltzing along.

The issue is simple. The Plymouth community is just too small to have separate fire and police departments, both of which make up the bulk of spending for the communities.

That was fine during the fat years, but now as we suffer from the national deficit and less money from the state for local services, it becomes a top priority for local leaders to get together and mesh the two fire departments.

The leader in this should be Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, the new township supervisor. She's fresh from the election wars, and having not been an office holder in the community, she doesn't bear the scars from past battles.

Anyway, it's going to have to come from Keen-McCarthy because the Plymouth City Commission tends to sit on its hands, pushing important issues off on study commissions.

Just take a look at the parking credit mess. There's plenty of parking in Plymouth, but the city continues to be bogged down in a byzantine system of assessing businesses thousands of dollars for mythical parking spaces.

But back to shared services.

Both the city and township have much to gain and little to lose. A shared fire department would give the city better protection at less cost.

Right now, the township is ready to spend $100,000 on hiring three new firefighters to staff the empty fire hall at North Territorial and Beck. It's money that could be saved by sharing services with the city.

The trouble here has been the city. Gerald Law, outgoing Plymouth Township supervisor, has been trying to strike up a shared services deal for nearly two years. But the city keeps dragging its feet.

It's time for both units of government to put each other on their dance cards and get moving before the voters get tired of the fiddling around.

Release state House as hostage

Barring some unforseen circumstances — like recount, or recall — it looks like the state House of Representatives is going to be split right down the middle with 55 seats for the Democrats, 55 for the Republicans.

Already the arm-twisting has begun as each party looks for a defector so it can claim itself the majority party.

Already some politicians and pundits are decrying the split as another example of that new political catch word: gridlock.

But we need to dispense with terms like defector and gridlock that predict continued inaction for our state Legislature. Compromise is the watchword that ought to be emphasized. Simple as it sounds, it reflects the difference between moaning about a problem and suggesting a solution.

Maybe compromise is just a pipe dream. If our representatives are unable to choose a speaker, compromise on legislation is unlikely.

However, the carrot stick of compromise is worth the effort. A morass of partisanship is continually dumping complex and controversial issues into voters' laps via ballot initiatives.

The old Democratic-dominated state House wasn't proficient at getting things done. And the prospect of a Republican-dominated House increases the likelihood Gov. John Engler will run roughshod over state programs.

■ We need to dispense with terms like defector and gridlock that predict continued inaction for our state Legislature. Compromise is the watchword that ought to be emphasized. Simple as it sounds, it reflects the difference between moaning about a problem and suggesting a solution.

Partisanship has held our state government hostage too long.

Committee chairmen and chairwomen, committee assignments and office space could all be assigned by compromise.

There could be a compromise on property taxes — one that reduces tax burdens without bankrupting school districts.

That should be followed by a compromise on auto insurance rates — one that reduces rates for consumers while still leaving them with reasonable coverage in case of catastrophic injuries.

The Legislature could even come up with a way to trim state programs without adversely affecting the people the programs serve.

Regardless of the power play, our representatives should consider what compromise could mean — for Michigan and all their constituents.

Working together

Congratulations to our newly elected public officials. You have been granted the privilege to represent our local communities, state and our nation.

It is time to put our differences aside and get to work. We need you to resist the temptation to put parochial interest over those of the entire community, state or nation. We are in a time where the rate of change is increasing exponentially. We need leaders who are not rigid. Open your minds to new ideas even if they come from a member of an opposing party.

We have to utilize all of our resources and find new and better ways to solve our problems. Be firm in your convictions, but compromise when it is necessary to bring us closer to our goals. Don't let credit or blame influence your decisions. We are in this together and as an elected official you have been entrusted to do what is right, whether it is popular or not.

Michael J. Gerou, Plymouth

Column was great

I was very moved by John Telford's deeply personal column "Parents, schools send strong messages on drugs" on Nov. 5. It was an honest, candid and courageous statement.

Telford reminds us of the uncomfortable reality that children often copy indiscriminately the behavior of their role models and, also, that those who function as role models have a sacred trust.

Prevention education may well be the most effective tool we have to combat drug and substance abuse. But, the maxim to children, "Do as I say and not as I do," doesn't work, if indeed it ever did.

Once again, Telford helps to penetrate the fog and say what has to be said.

House control is heavy matter

PHILIP POWER

The Emperor Nero, legend goes, fiddled while Rome burned.

Equally self-absorbed, Gov. Engler and the entire state House of Representatives, Democrats and Republicans, are sawing away while Michigan's economy is in flames.

Last week's elections left membership in the House at (you pick): 56-54 Republican, 56-54 Democratic or a 55-55 tie. So Lansing, always abhorring a power vacuum, is convulsed about which party will wind up with the House majority.

It's easy to laugh about it, but to legislators it's serious business. Whichever party runs the House gets to pick the committee chairs, control the agenda of bills up for consideration, and select the majority staff. This is the heavy stuff of politics.

For Republicans, it's a dream come true: Adding control of the House to the Senate and the governorship puts them in charge of Michigan's political process. For Democrats, it's the last gasp of a party that got bushwhacked in Michigan on the way to winning the presidency.

The weapon of preference in this battle is simple bribery. You bribe one or two members of the opposition to switch (or even abstain) on the election of the House speaker, and you win the game. Big.

The stakes are high. One story as of last Friday was that Republicans had offered to make almost anyone who would vote their way chair of the powerful Appropriations Committee.

While we mere citizens watch these insider games unfold, Michigan's economy is burning. Consider:

■ General Motors at last has figured out that the overhead required to control 50 percent of the U.S. auto market is a bit larger than its current 30 percent share warrants. Motor vehicle employment in Michigan has already declined from a peak of more than 400,000 to around 280,000. Don't hold your breath waiting for auto employment to move up.

■ So it's no surprise that nearly 900,000 people moved out of Michigan over the past 20 years. That's nearly 10 percent of the total population, probably the most mobile and the most employable.

■ Many who are left behind are concentrated in Detroit, where the schools are immobilized by the defeat of the school board reformers, and the relative percentage of people on welfare tops the nation.

Personally, I hope they get the fight over control in Lansing settled as soon as possible. We've got some heavy lifting to do about our economy, and the sooner the folks in the capital finish their power struggles, the sooner they can get at it.

■ Whichever party runs the House gets to pick the committee chairs, control the agenda of bills up for consideration, and select the majority staff. This is the heavy stuff of politics.

POINTS OF VIEW

Ban supported

After reading your article on "School Smoking Ban Wins Forever," I had a comment. I think it was a great idea to ban smoking at CEP. If legally a youth is not supposed to buy cigarettes or smoke them why does our school let people do it. I never understood why. I would just like to say I'm glad they banned smoking and also that the students at CEP are responding to the message.

Janelle Vogan, Canton

School daze

I have been reading in the newspapers and in the Schools' News Briefs about Lary Vidovic and Anna Lopez complaining that Central Middle School is not teaching Spanish this year.

Mr. Vidovic says that the schools have replaced the languages with skills for living. I say, have you had a Skills for Living teacher teaching a language or a science class? My child has, and I would rather have the Skills for Living teacher in Skills for Living and not have the language class. These are the choices the principals faced.

I would like to ask Mr. Vidovic and Mrs. Lopez if they have been to meetings concerning the cutbacks? Have they been to meetings at Central Middle School? Do they understand that every school had to make cutbacks? Do they realize that Central Middle School lost some very excellent teachers like Mr. Huhta and Mr. Sterlitz? Do they realize that we have teachers all over the district teaching subjects that they have not taught in a l-o-n-g time (i.e., reading lab teacher teaching social studies, shop teacher teaching U.S. history)?

Decisions have to be made. Principals did the best they could with the budget and personnel they were given. They have to "deal" with administration, the school board and the union, just like the rest of us.

Regarding the state-wide Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests: If you had students at CEP you would understand the mess this entire situation is in. Starting with the class of 1994, the state has mandated that a state-endorsed diploma will not be handed out unless the student passes the MEAP test according to the state's standards. This means that a student who has a GPA of 4.0, who has consistently received an A or B in math (for an example), but who "clams up" and does not do well on tests, or if the test has material in it that has not been presented to the students (as in the case of sophomores last year, when geometry questions were presented on the test), this student may fail the MEAP according to the state and will not get a state-endorsed diploma.

These students can retake the MEAP and/or will get a "regular" diploma. But don't dismiss the matter. Starting in 1997, if your son or daughter does not get a passing MEAP, there is only a state-endorsed diploma given out, so guess what? They don't get a diploma.

Therefore, our district is putting an emphasis on the MEAP tests so that children are used to taking the test, are used to the language used in the tests and hopefully we will have the books in our schools that the state has used in making the test. Talk to teachers and principals, parents are not the only ones concerned about the new emphasis on "passing a test." However, the district is trying, in this instance, to do the best they can, so that our children get a diploma.

If you have a problem with emphasis on the MEAP scores, talk to James Kosteva and/or Robert Geake. They will tell you that we need to get our children on the cutting edge with the rest of the world and that we need some teacher accountability. All this is true, but it won't be accomplished in the manner they propose with the MEAPs. They are the ones who supported the bill that caused this mess.

Vets seek support

This year has been proclaimed "The year of the Vietnam Veteran" by President George Bush, Gov. Engler, Mayor Robert Jones of Plymouth, and Supervisor Tom Yack of Canton Township. They proudly honor them for their personal and professional contributions to the history of our great nation and the Plymouth-Canton communities.

If you have attended a Fourth of July or Memorial Day Parade, you have seen our Chapter Color guard, marching at the front of the parade carrying the American and Michigan flags, stop and say hello to us next time.

The reason for this letter is to ask you a favor this year. As a merchant or business owner we would like your help. Our annual Christmas season is soon upon us, and at our Christmas party we have a raffle, which helps support the party itself and the children that do attend, all receive a gift (prize) for attending. As a non-profit organization, any and all donations that are made to us are tax deductible. Our number is, EIN 38-2948591.

If I can be of any help such as a phone call, or a personal visit to pick up any or all donated items please call me.

If you or a business would like to advertise in our Newsletter that is printed every month, please call me also. We send out over 200 newsletters a month, and many of our members do frequent our advertisers and use many of their services also.

Please note all items that have been not raffled off, will be donated to the Plymouth Salvation Army.

Bad behavior

I can't stop thinking about the football game we went to last night between Clarenceville High School and Thurston High School. In 47 years, I have only been a football fan about 10 weeks, thanks to my daughter's boyfriend who is a senior at Clarenceville and on the football team. I have really enjoyed the good sportsmanship, and especially when the players hug each other after a touchdown. Just to let you know where I'm coming from.

Well, last night a "mean thing" happened to one of the Clarenceville's smallest, but best players. Carl Holsten was tackled by a very large player on Thurston's team (won't give his number, he knows who he is). After Carl was out of bounds and down on the ground, we thought the play was over. Wrong. The "Bully" I can only call him, picked Carl up off the ground and "threw" him over on the black top at least 5 feet away.

The fans, including myself, were stunned. No less than Carl, who jumped to his feet and headed for the Bully. I uckily for Carl, two coaches stopped him, and Thurston's players pulled the bully away. This was not the end though.

The game stopped for 10 minutes with officials and coaches talking in the middle of the field. When play resumed, the bully was right back out on the field. One of Clarenceville's unhappy fathers yelled something at the bully out on the field, and the bully turned to him in the stands and did the most obscene sexual gesture I have seen anybody of normal intelligence do. Luckily for you, I can't or won't put it in words.

Now, the bully can't undo the "mean thing" he did. But he could write a formal letter of apology to Carl Holsten for his out-of-control behavior, another formal letter of apology to the Clarenceville football team for unsportsmanlike behavior and a final letter of apology to his own Thurston football team for making them look bad.

The officials and coaches still have me baffled. They were the adults who handled the situation, and it is beyond me why the bully finished the game. Does this not tell the football players that it is OK to behave inappropriately on the football field. That's what it told me.

The score at the time of the attack was Thurston 36, and Clarenceville 20.

Witnesses target flaws in new tax reform plan

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

From afar, the Group of 12's property tax reform plan looked like a shiny new car. Up close, it turned out to have some rust spots and lopsided wheels, according to witnesses at a House Taxation Committee Tuesday in Lansing.

"The present system is collapsing around us," said state Rep. Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, one of the bipartisan plan's authors.

In three steps, the plan would wipe out all $5 billion in school operating property taxes, replace them with hefty increases in the personal income and single business taxes, place the entire $8 billion burden of public education on the state, and guarantee every school district $4,700 per student in revenue.

In 1994 voters could decide whether to substitute a 2-cent hike in the sales tax for some of the other taxes. Locally, voters wanting to spend more than $4,700 per pupil could beef up school programs with a residents-only income tax.

Area supporters include Democrats William Keith of Garden City, James Kosteva of Canton, and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park, and Republicans Barbara Dobb of Union Lake and Susan Munsell of Howell.

'We need a cut'

"Politically impossible," said Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, a Taxation Committee member who opposes the plan. "This is a revenue-neutral tax shift. We need a tax cut. Government can still be downsized.

"I haven't talked to (Gov.) John Engler about it, but I know John Engler, and he won't sign it," said Bullard, whose district has seen assessment inflation.

"Clearly it's not going this year," Rick Simonson, lobbyist for Oakland Intermediate School District, said in the Capitol corridor. "The Senate has only two days of session this year."

In Oakland, with many well-off districts, Simonson said, "It will require local income taxes all over the place. It would take a 7 percent rate in Lamphere, in Madison Heights. But I'm glad they're surfacing it now."

Gerald Dunn, lobbyist for the Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation, with members in western Wayne and Oakland counties, left the hearing without comment, saying MAISL would discuss the plan today.

Two economies

While nearly everyone praised the months of quiet work done by the Group of 12, some on the outside saw two groups of flaws:

■ 'I haven't talked to (Gov.) John Engler about it, but I know John Engler, and he won't sign it.'

Rep. Willis Bullard
R-Milford

■ A flat $4,700 per student grant across the state.

"It assumes equal funding can provide equal education," said Mike Boulus of the Middle Cities Education Association. The flat grant fails to consider varying costs of living between metropolitan and rural areas. It also fails to help "disadvantaged" youth from poor backgrounds. And it doesn't consider higher transportation and heating costs in northern areas.

■ A lopsided impact on business.

Companies in heavy manufacturing, with high capital costs, would benefit from slashed property taxes. But companies with high labor costs would be socked by the increase in the single business tax, essentially a value-added tax that doesn't consider capital or profitability.

"The economic impact of a tax shift is unclear at best," said Rich Studley, vice president for governmental affairs for the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce. "The impact will vary widely, even in the same district."

Studley asked panel members to go slowly, even though many want to push the 12-bill package through in the Legislature's lame-duck session.

"Amway would be a major loser," said Larry Gilsdorf Jr., tax manager of the Ada-based supplier of cleaning materials. Gilsdorf said the net impact on Amway would be more than a 50 percent increase in taxes. "It will be an accountant's full employment act," he added.

Amway owners also are major GOP contributors.

Rep. Munsell, a Livingston County accountant and strong backer of the plan, asked business spokesmen if they would consider replacing the single business tax with a corporate profits tax.

"No," said Amway's Gilsdorf.

Studley said the chamber has no position.

Time is ripe

But others said that, even with the flaws, the Group of 12's plan is better than Michigan's existing system — heavy (70 percent) reliance on regressive property taxes, with double-digit assessment increases in many desirable residential areas.

Many long-time residents say they can't afford to stay in their homes because of property tax inflation. They retire to Florida, taking their purchasing power with them.

Bob Wilson, from a Rockford-based group called Now Is The Time, deplored "the turn-of-the-century belief that land is the best measure of ability to pay. We must stop patching the property tax."

Wilson said results of the Nov. 3 vote on Proposal C (a 30 percent property tax cut) prove "the public doesn't want to uncouple the issues of property tax relief and school finance reform."

Donna Hendershot, a Cedar Springs mother, praised the Group of 12's plan although "it will result in a slight tax increase for us. I don't care. Parents want change, and they know it's going to cost.

"I hope you don't get hung up with big business and high-paid lobbyists. I can't have sympathy for Amway."

Kicks win league title

The 1983 Plymouth Kicks under-10 select soccer team captured the Western Suburban Soccer League championship for the fall season.

The Kicks were 7-0-1, scoring 36 goals while allowing only six. The team posted five shutouts.

The players are Brian Conway, Danny Gill, Justin Griffin, Marty Kane, Phil Marrone, Chris LaMasse, Jon McGlone, Jay Smith, Shane Smith, Jay Sofen, Brian Thiess, Nick Tochman, T.J. Tomasso, Derek Vermeulen, Oliver Wolcott and Kenny Wuorenma.

The Kicks are coached by Bill Thiess and Dennis Tochman.

Steelers in Super Bowl

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers freshman football team earned a berth in the Western Suburban Football League championship game with a 14-0 victory Sunday over the Canton Lions.

The Steelers (8-0-1) will play in the Super Bowl at noon Sunday at Northville High School.

Russ Gardner ran 56 yards for a touchdown and an 8-0 halftime lead. Andy Kocoloski and Ian Winter combined on a safety earlier in the game.

The Steelers scored again in the fourth quarter when Brian Applegate passed 13 yards to Chris Sherfey.

Gardner rushed for 56 yards and Carson 41. Carson's fumble recovery led to the first TD, and he also intercepted a pass and made six tackles.

Winter had three quarterback sacks and Matt Naar one. Kocoloski also made six tackles.

For the Lions, defender Chris Trott stopped a potential Steelers TD at the 1-yard line, intercepted a pass and made 11 tackles.

Travis Robinson also had a pass interception. Archie Kinney recorded seven tackles, Jacob Lyons and Chris Horton five apiece.

The Steelers JV team lost its playoff game Sunday to the Ann Arbor West Wildcats at Pioneer High School, 7-0.

The Wildcats scored on the first possession of the game. The Steelers (5-3-1) were inside the Ann Arbor 10-yard line twice but failed to score.

Elezovic wins grid honor

Peter Elezovic of Farmington Hills was named the Kick Team Champion of the Week by the University of Michigan football coaching staff for his performance Saturday in the team's 40-7 win over Northwestern. He kicked a 23-yard field goal and five extra points.

Elezovic is third on the U-M team in scoring with 60 points. He has converted 45 of 46 PATs and five of nine field goals. His longest field goal this season was 33 yards.

As a high school player at Redford Catholic Central, Elezovic was a member of the All-Observer team and earned all-state honors. He also starred for the Shamrocks in baseball.

Chiefs down Rocks to gain final

Plymouth Canton advanced to the WLAA girls basketball tournament final for the seventh time in eight seasons. The Chiefs, runners-up to Plymouth Salem last year, will play unbeaten Livonia Stevenson (19-0).

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem played like a team determined to avoid another blowout loss in girls basketball Tuesday at Plymouth Canton.

While they fared better in the rematch, the Rocks couldn't avoid losing again to No. 5-ranked Canton 46-35 in a Western Lakes Activities Association semifinal game.

The Chiefs (17-2) will play top-seeded Livonia Stevenson for the title 7 p.m. Saturday at Northville High School. Salem (10-9) meets Walled Lake Central in the consolation game at 5 p.m.

"Salem came prepared and competed really hard. They got the ball where it needed to go and slowed the game down with the zone."

But the Chiefs were still too much with their defensive pressure and balance of individual contributions.

Senior center Stephanie Gray, who had just six points when Canton beat Salem 53-31 in late October, scored a game-high 16 and was a powerful force on the offensive glass.

Junior guard Alyson Noune scored nine points with three three-point field goals, each of which came at a key moment and extended the Canton lead to 12-6, 17-10 and 28-21.

Senior center Kelly Holmes chipped in eight points, including six in the fourth quarter when the Chiefs cemented their victory.

"We did a real good job of contesting the shooter with the exception of Noune," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "Each time she hit a triple it was a big shot.

"Gray got off pretty good, but she's a doggone good player. Holmes made a big shot, too. If she misses that one, it's probably a long rebound and we're right there in the hunt."

The Rocks were within four points early in the final period, and Cyndi Platter brought it back to six, 36-30. She was at the line waiting to attempt a three-point play when a teammate was called for a lane violation with 3:50 to play.

Holmes nailed an outside shot to start a decisive run of points by the Chiefs, who scored eight straight to lead by 14 with little more than a minute left.

Platter made six of eight free throws and led the Rocks with 13 points, but the Canton defense again made it hard for her to move and score in the low post.

Senior guard Leslie Gotts scored 12 and was an inspiration to her team with her driving layups, usually off steals. Christy Parimucha added seven points.

"(Gotts) took the ball to the basket well. Her decision-making was good, and she did a nice job of leading us," Thomann said.

Amicie Crayton entered the game early and helped the Chiefs recover from a 6-0 deficit with her defensive hustle, which forced several turnovers.

Her steal and transition layup fueled Canton's late surge and made the score 42-30. Salem committed 24 turnovers, the Chiefs 16.

"Her quickness causes a lot of trouble," Blohm said. "She and (Amy) Westerhold — that's where our defense starts. Those players can give us the defensive pressure."

Spartans pound Vikings, 3B

Canton rallied behind Gray to score the last 12 points of the first quarter and double the score (12-6) with Noune's first triple. Salem stayed close at halftime (21-16) with the help of a late three-point play by Gotts and triple from Platter.

Noune's second triple put Canton ahead by seven at the end of three periods, but the Rocks were able to stay close until the middle of the fourth.

"Our kids were patient versus the zone," Blohm said. "We were spread out better and recognized better. I thought we offensive rebounded the ball a lot better. We got some good second shots, and I was really pleased with that."

Salem, after shooting 3-of-27 in the middle quarters of the first meeting, got fewer shots than the Chiefs but was .375 (12-32) from the floor compared to .358 (19-53) for Canton.

"I thought the mental preparation for our club was much better this time," Thomann said.

"We had a few breakdowns during the course of the game, but I was pleased with our performance. It was the kind of performance we can build on going into Saturday's contest."

Shamrocks to battle Colts for regional football crown

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

Ray Dawood said he was just a "little guy" in 1985, the last time Troy and Redford Catholic Central met in a Class A football playoff game.

Come to think of it, Dawood is still a little guy — but this time he won't be watching the Troy-CC playoff matchup from the stands.

Dawood, a 5-foot-8, 175-pound tailback/defensive back, will be a key performer in Saturday's 1:30 p.m. Class AA Region 3 final against favored CC at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium.

Dawood's brother, Brian, was one of the defensive heroes in Troy's 10-0 upset win over CC in the '85 Class A playoff semifinal. So talking to his big brother last weekend was as good as any scouting report Ray will receive.

CC, which will outweigh Troy at almost every position, won the Class AA title in 1990 and last year lost in the championship game to Saginaw Arthur Hill. Both teams bring 10-0 records into the game.

"I talked to my brother after the Detroit Henry Ford (playoff) game (a 17-6 victory) and he said 'Just cause they're big doesn't mean they're unstoppable,' " said Ray, who has gained 1,189 yards rushing and scored 19 touchdowns. "For the Henry Ford game, we were just kind of going through the motions, but CC, it's exciting to be playing them. CC is supposed to be the team to beat but I think we can beat them.

"I don't know what it is. We just play with our hearts. We have no size, so we fly to the ball like piranhas. That's what coach (Gary Griffith) calls us."

CC beat Mumford 28-12 in a first-round game to reach the Region 3 final. Mumford's offensive line averaged about 300 pounds and included tackles that weighed 360 and 340 pounds, respectively.

If the Shamrocks considered them giants, then the Colts are midgets. Troy's biggest offensive lineman is senior tackle Aaron Maestri, who is 6-feet-2, 240 pounds. The rest of the Colts line includes guard Joe McKay (5-10, 170), center Clayton Swenson (5-9, 165), guard Ajay (5-7, 205) and tackle Nick Truza (6-1, 185).

Troy's defense hasn't allowed a touchdown in 10 quarters and is led by linebacker Jeff Fisher (6-0, 190). Another active defender is tackle Carl Barnes (5-7, 140), who is smaller than any of CC's defensive backs.

"I think we hit our peak (growth) in seventh grade," Dawood said.

CC averages about 240 pounds across the offensive line and is led by senior guard Joe Suhajda (6-3, 245) and two-way tackle Aaron Babicz (6-2, 240). The Shamrocks rarely throw and feature tailback Freddie Taylor and fullback Jason Krueger to go with two-year starting quarterback Chris Barbara in the backfield.

Taylor, who gained 157 yards and scored four times last week, leads the Shamrocks with 847 yards.

Troy capitalized on six CC turnovers in winning that playoff game seven years ago but CC coach Tom Mach said this year's team is "probably the best we've ever had at not giving the ball up."

The Shamrocks have 10 fumble recoveries and 13 interceptions. They have fumbled only four times, losing two, and Barbara has thrown three interceptions.

Defensive backs Brady Pankow and Jeff LaChapelle lead CC with three interceptions each.

"We haven't turned the ball over all year — knock on wood," Mach said. "Troy looks like a real good football team and it has one of the better defensive units we'll face. They're very quick and handled themselves well against Henry Ford."

Griffith said the Colts must utilize their speed and aggressiveness and the leadership of senior quarterback Bill Heist (24 of 50 completions, 322 yards).

"Their strength is in the offensive and defensive line," Griffith said. "We don't match up physically with them, they have great tradition and a coaching staff second to none. We have to make the field as long as we can for them. We have to have good special teams work and no turnovers."

Injuries check Madonna's optimism

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

There is only one thing Madonna University women's basketball coach Bill Potter wants for his team: Good health.

Potter figures the rest can take care of itself. After all, last year — the first after the program was suspended due to a rash of injuries before the 1990-91 season — wasn't all that bad, everything considered.

Two key players, Stephanie Niebauer and Marianne Ervin, were lost to injuries before last season even started. Niebauer tore an anterior cruciate ligament in her knee, and Ervin suffered stress fractures in her shins. Other injuries forced Potter to resort to patchwork lineups; he had 10 different sets of starters in the last 12 games.

And the Lady Crusaders still won five of 12 NAIA District 23 games, finishing tied for fourth but failing to make the playoffs because of the tiebreaker. They were 7-17 overall.

"We're going to have to stay healthy," said Potter before his team opened its season Wednesday at Indiana Wesleyan. "That's one thing I didn't anticipate last year, the injury factor. If we can stay healthy, there's no doubt in my mind we'll be right up there."

Already, though, injuries have taken a toll. Ervin's shin problems may end her playing career. In addition, freshman Emily Chedister sustained a torn knee ligament in drills last week and is out for the year; senior Lyndel Ingalls has shin splints and is out until January; and junior Lori Montante has an injured foot and is also out until January.

There's a possibility Ingalls and Montante could return sooner, but Potter refuses to rush them. The district portion of the schedule doesn't begin until January, so he'll make certain they've recuperated before bringing them back.

"We're at nine (players), but it's a very solid nine," said Potter.

It does appear that way. The core of last year's team returns except for Lori Creten (11.3 points, 7.1 rebounds a game), a would-be sophomore who left school. Leading scorer Jill Burt, an all-NAIA District 23 selection at guard last season as a sophomore, returns with her 14-point, seven-rebound average.

Also back is 6-foot senior center Cheri Sangregorio (10.5 points and a team best eight rebounds) and 5-7 senior guard Kim Kibbey (7.8 points). The 5-7½ Ingalls, the team's point guard and leading assist person (5.2 per game), will be missed.

But Potter believes his new recruits could lessen the impact. Three more Oakland Community College veterans join Madonna's team; Niebauer, Kibbey, Sangregorio and Montante are other OCC vets.

Dana Sevcech, a 5-7 junior point guard from Waterford (Our Lady of the Lakes), has been very impressive and will start in Ingalls' absence. "Dana's just an outstanding passer," said Potter.

Stephanie Crelley (Fenton) and Kathy Wagner (Mount Clemens L'Anse Creuse), a pair of 5-11 sophomore forwards, are the other two recruits from OCC. Both, Potter figures, will contribute. So will freshmen April Blanton, 6-foot from Walled Lake Western, and Mary Bieniewicz, a 5-9 walk-on from Farmington Hills Mercy.

Last year's experience taught Potter valuable lessons. First, he needed greater depth, and second, he needed athletic players capable of filling several positions. He thinks he's accomplished both.

"Basically, we've got better players this year, more athletic players, and we have four who can play three or four positions," he said. That should help offset injury problems. "We've made provisions for it. We have our forwards, even our centers, playing point guard. They're all playing different positions."

Additional size, Potter hopes, will improve the rebounding. The team's strength? Scoring: "As a team, we'll be well-balanced. We could have four or five average in double-figures."

The Crusaders' coach thinks better athletes will mean better defense, too. All of which should lead to a playoff berth, the team's No. 1 goal. "That's the way we're approaching it," said Potter. "We want to finish in the top four and make the playoffs."

A reprieve from the injuries that have plagued the team will make that goal reachable.

Ocelots open season with a win over Siena Heights

There were a few rough spots, but the outcome at least satisfied Schoolcraft College women's basketball coach Jack Grenan — a season-opening 69-63 triumph over visiting Siena Heights junior varsity Saturday.

The Lady Ocelots got what Grenan had hoped for: balanced scoring. Dana Hudson, a sophomore guard, performed well with team highs in points (21) and rebounds (nine). Alisa Wechter, a freshman center, added 13 points, and sophomore guard Jen Audet and freshman guard Becky Piotruckowski each scored 10. Sophomore forward Lori Murphy added eight points.

The final score bothered Grenan only because the Ocelots allowed Siena Heights to score five straight points in the final 17 seconds. "The players heard about it," he said. "It was a good win to start out with, but we're a young team, and we have to learn to concentrate better."

Siena Heights shot 28 free throws, too, something SC cannot allow if it is to succeed in the Eastern Conference. "Sixty-three points is too much to give up," said Grenan. "They shot 28 free throws (making 14). In our conference, we can't do that."

SC is now idle until Nov. 20, when it hosts Glen Oaks at 6 p.m. A Nov. 14 game against Owens Tech has been rescheduled for Dec. 7.

SC falters in losing tourney opener

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Fingers can be pointed at any number of players, laying blame for Schoolcraft College's 2-1 loss to Lewis and Clark Saturday in Grayslake, Ill., in the opening round of the NJCAA Inter-regional soccer tournament.

The Ocelots started the match a bit too casually; the offense failed to finish; the goals allowed were gifts; far too many opportunities were missed.

All are true. And what all point to is something prevalent on the SC team — a lack of NJCAA tournament experience.

Only Mike Presley, Jack Abate and Wayne Worosz played extensively for SC last year. It showed. Lewis and Clark scored just four minutes into the match when neither Andy Cosenza nor Abate moved up to challenge the man with the ball. His shot from 30 yards out found the corner of the net, and SC trailed 1-0.

"It was a goal that could have been prevented, but it wasn't," said SC coach Van Dimitriou.

The Ocelots did, however, control the action. Midway through the first half, a shot by Matt Lividini was stopped but Bill Lanspeary knocked in the rebound, knotting the game at 1-1.

The second half was dominated by SC, but the only goal went to Lewis and Clark when Ocelot keeper Matt Stabile allowed a low shot from long range to ricochet into the net off his foot. "It was the only bad goal he allowed all year," said Dimitriou. "For gosh sakes, in a season you're allowed one bad goal.

"This was a game we could have won, we should have won."

SC's best additional scoring opportunities came from Lividini, who had the Lewis and Clark keeper one-on-one and fired his first-half shot right at him, and Adam Carriere, who allowed the keeper to come out and knock the ball away in the second half.

"We had a variety of players with opportunities," said Dimitriou. "One thing we didn't get was team play between our forwards up front. They tried to do it themselves.

"It was a real heartbreaker.

Dimitriou singled out Lanspeary, Presley, Carriere, Tim Lampi, Sean Ryan, Jeff Cardinal and Dave Matovski for solid games.

The Ocelots finish with a 12-2-1 record and the knowledge that their season ended too early.

SC NOTES: The SC women's team had their season end prematurely, too, although for different reasons. The Lady Ocelots mediocre season (7-8-3) was not good enough for the school to pay for trips for a playoff game at Central College of Kansas and a trip to the NJCAA Tournament, according to the administration. So both were cancelled.

Crusaders embark on tournament road

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

The tune-ups are over. Now the fun begins.

There's no room left for error for Madonna University's volleyball team, ranked 10th in the final NAIA poll prior to the start of the national tournament. Sure, even if the Lady Crusaders lose at this weekend's NAIA District 23 Tournament, hosted by regular-season champion Northwood Institute, there's a chance they could land an at-large bid to the national tournament.

But it is just that — a chance. There are only four at-large bids, and one will go to Point Loma College in San Diego, the NAIA Tournament host, if it does not win its district. If upsets occur in district play, Madonna could be left out.

Like last year. The Crusaders won the regular-season district title, but lost to Northwood in the district tournament at Madonna and were left home.

Northwood continues to be the toughest team in the district. The Northwomen, with five senior starters, thrashed Madonna in three-straight games in their regular-season match. It was the Crusaders only district loss.

"We played our worst match of the year the first time against Northwood," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. "We played really laid back, we didn't respond to anything they were doing."

Abraham plans to change that this weekend. Madonna begins its trek in the single-elimination tournament at 1 p.m. Saturday with a match against the winner of Thursday's pairing between Tri-State College and Aquinas. Northwood meets the University of Michigan-Dearborn-Spring Arbor winner at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The championship is scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday.

Vengeance certainly must factor into Madonna's emotional equation, but looking past the first match to plan for a second is all too often deadly. "We're absolutely not doing that," assured Abraham. "They know. They have to win the first to get to the second."

The Crusaders aren't in the best shape — several players are hobbling with minor injuries — but Abraham said his team was looking good last weekend, despite a second-place finish at the Gannon University Invitational in Erie, Pa.

Madonna defeated a solid California University of Pennsylvania team in its opener Saturday, 15-12, 12-15, 15-12, 15-12, and later rocked Michigan-Dearborn 15-9, 15-6, 16-14. But in between, the Crusaders were whipped by Gannon, ranked 16th in the NCAA II, 15-4, 15-7, 15-12.

Dana Finley did her part in the tournament, collecting 40 kills (with a .454 kill average) and 41 digs to earn the most valuable player award. Elena Oparka had 24 kills (.333) and 20 digs, Tonia Smith totaled 23 kills (.419) and 68 digs, and Mazie Pilut finished with 11 kills, 31 digs and 136 assists-to-kills.

Other contributors: Maureen Paulin, 17 kills (.325) and 52 digs; Melissa Mars, 14 kills (.480) and 41 digs; and Sue Bell, 37 digs.

The 2-1 outing improved Madonna's record to 42-10 overall and earned the Crusaders their highest national ranking ever. Now the question is, how far can they carry their success?

"We're going to try to attack them," vowed Abraham of his team's pending match with Northwood. "We want to go right at them."

And how will Northwood, with a 23-9 overall record (and only one loss to an NAIA team) respond? "They'll tip, tip, tip, and try to mix up their hits," Abraham figured.

Bruising fullback: Jason Krueger of Plymouth carries a Mumford tackler before going down in a playoff game Saturday. The Shamrocks play Troy this week.

CC-Troy stirs '85 memories

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

The players' names have changed but the circumstances look awfully familiar.

Saturday's Class AA Region 3 football playoff final between Troy and Redford Catholic Central is a rematch of a 1985 Class A semifinal playoff game played at Allen Park High School.

Troy will be an underdog Saturday at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium, just as it was seven years ago when the two teams met for a berth in the Class A final at the Pontiac Silverdome.

CC had more tradition, more all-state players, more size — but when the final gun sounded, the Shamrocks also had more turnovers (six to two) and less points.

Troy, limited to negative yards rushing, won 10-0, scoring in the first quarter after a pair of early CC turnovers.

"It was a cold, windy day," said Troy's '85 quarterback Kurt Schram, reached Tuesday at his job at the Chicago Board of Trade. "CC had 25 pounds on us at every position. They were good; they hit, but we hit just as hard. Their cheering section did all its chants, clapping, turned their backs on us. But our defense stuck it to them."

CC had several all-staters, including linemen Dan Nash (Stanford) and Nick Varajon (Toledo) and wide receiver/defensive back Ken Wandzel (Michigan State).

"It was a great season, we just didn't have a great game," Varajon said Tuesday night. "As soon as I saw the scouting report, 'I said, we're going to roll.' They were so much smaller than us, I came out there to play. I wanted to abuse this team. (To lose) was the worst feeling in the world."

CC's famed "Brick Wall Defense" didn't suffer many cracks but the turnovers were too much to overcome. Troy scored on a 9-yard pass from Schram to Eric Jenkins and a 35-yard field goal by Scott Kania.

"You put on that (CC) uniform and feel you just can't be beat, and up to the last 30 seconds I thought we could win," Wandzel said Tuesday. "That's the way I felt, but they made me a believer — that they were giant killers. They beat all the top teams and had good athletes.

"When we made turnovers, they made the best of them. When they made turnovers, we couldn't capitalize."

Said Jeff Rioux, a defensive back/wide receiver and punt returner on the '85 CC team: "We thought we had the team to win it all. No one wanted to get on the bus, we all wanted to go back and play the game we should have played."

Spartans smash Vikes in hoop semi

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

■ 'We wanted to shut down (Lori) Shingledecker and we did, but then somebody else, like (Karen) Groulx, comes up with a big game and that's the mark of a good team. (Mo) Drabicki didn't score, but she did a good job. She hurt us in other ways.'

Ken Butler
Central basketball coach

Livonia Stevenson is on the threshold of its greatest regular season ever in girls basketball.

The Spartans won their 19th game in a row without a loss Tuesday, pulling away in the second half for a 61-43 triumph over visiting Walled Lake Central.

Stevenson can close out an undefeated season with a victory Saturday in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship against Plymouth Canton (17-2). The two teams will meet in the finals beginning at 7 p.m. at Northville High.

Stevenson won an earlier meeting, 48-43.

"It's a thrill to play in the championship and I known they (Canton) will be ready for us, but we'll be ready for them, too," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said.

Central (13-6) was expected to give the host Spartans a severe test in the WLAA semifinals after losing by only a point, 60-59, in an encounter on Oct. 8.

But Stevenson came away with the convincing victory despite a slow start.

Senior forward Karen Groulx paced the winners with a game-high 22 points, hitting nine of 14 shots from the floor, including a pair of three-pointers.

Patty Diamond, a 5-foot-11 senior, came off the bench to contribute 11 points, but more importantly, helped contain Central's 5-11 senior center Bridgette Norris, who finished with 20 points and 16 rebounds.

Lori Shingledecker, a senior guard, chipped in with 10 points for the Spartans.

Junior point-guard Mo Drabicki had only eight, nine below her average, but she more than made up for an off-night shooting with nine steals, nine assists and eight rebounds.

"We wanted to shut down Shingledecker and we did, but then somebody else, like Groulx, comes up with a big game and that's the mark of a good team," Central coach Ken Butler said. "Drabicki didn't score, but she did a good job. She hurt us in other ways.

"They're a nice ballclub and I believe they're better today than they were when we played them the last time. You don't go 19-0 doing it with with mirrors."

Norris and Jenny Czach each scored six points in the opening quarter as the Vikings jumped out to a 18-11 advantage, but Stevenson fought back to lead at intermission, 33-27, as Diamond came on to score nine points during a 22-9 Stevenson surge.

"We needed a game from either Diamond or Julie Martin (the starter), but tonight I guess it was Patty's turn," Henry said. "She picked a good night to put the ball in the hole.

Stevenson opened up a 41-29 advantage with 5:24 left in the third quarter on a basket by Jill Van Tiem. Central then made a run to close the deficit to six, 45-39, on a basket by Norris with 1:51 remaining.

But the Vikings went stone-cold shooting-wise in the final period, making only one of 12 shots. Stevenson, on the other hand, hit 10 of 12 free throws to put the game away.

"We were down six and had a layup and missed," Butler said. "It's the little things that hurt you. We've been shooting 48 percent (from the field) for the year, but tonight we missed a few layups."

Central made only 31.4 percent of its shots from the floor (17 for 54), but even more surprising was the uncharacteristic shooting of Kerri Kobus, a 20-point per game scorer who finished with only five. She was two of 11 from the field.

"We were not in it defensively early on, nobody wanted to take a charge," Henry said. "But the reason why we've won against the tougher teams was because we played defense, and shutting them down."

CC runners finish 2nd in state meet

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Mike Mittman went from not having a place on Redford Catholic Central's track team to first place in Saturday's Class A state cross country state meet at the Flint IMA Course.

Mittman, dismissed from CC's track program for disciplinary reasons during the 1991 season by coach Tony Magni, became the first Shamrock to win an individual state cross country championship with a personal best time of 15 minutes, 55.8 seconds. Monroe won the team standings with 57 points and CC took second place with 109 points.

Mittman never dreamt of winning the individual championship, especially after being kicked off Magni's track team as a sophomore, along with teammate Jamie Fitzgerald. Magni also coaches the CC cross country team, which has won three Class A titles.

"We were supposed to run five, six miles to school (after practice) and decided to take a short cut and walk 1½ miles back," Mittman said. "Coach Magni happened to drive by and see us. He said, 'I don't need to win, I don't want people on the team who aren't going to work.

"When I got kicked off, I realized I've got to start working if I'm going to be a good runner. Jamie and I started running every day on our own. That's when I turned from a 'who cares attitude to wanting to win.' "

Fitzgerald also has bounced back nicely since being let go from the track team in 1991. The senior came in 24th place overall (16:30.34) and was the Shamrocks' third finisher behind teammate Mark Leo, who took 16th (16:22.81).

"Jamie ran well with Mike for two miles but I knew Mike would start moving," Magni said. "Mark (Leo) ran a heck of a race, a smart race."

Mittman finished 23rd in last year's Class A race but made a strong push in the last 400 meters to pass about eight runners, including second place Matt Krupinski of Monroe (15:57.84).

"My goal was to finish in the top five but when I hit the last turn I was in eighth, ninth place and I could see the leaders 30 yards ahead of me," Mittman said. "I said, 'I don't want to break into the top five, I want to win the race.' "

Said Magni: "A runner from Flint Kearsley said he thought it was Carl Lewis making the pass."

The Shamrocks key runner, according to Magni, was senior Eric McKeon, who placed 29th (16:35.04). Teammate Joe Leo came in 39th (16:40.91).

"The IMA course is made for McKeon," Magni said. "The last 600 yards is a straight shot, he's a quarter miler and I told him before the last turn, look for the flags and just start passing. We were pleased. We knew it would be difficult to beat Monroe, so I just told the guys if we can't get first let's be second."

No other Observerland team placed in the team standings but Lee Devers of Livonia Franklin was 32nd (16:45.35), Scott Creehan of Livonia Stevenson was 42nd (16:53.46) and Brian Mockeridge of Redford Union was 46th (16:56.19).

Boys conclude prep careers at finals

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Three seniors finished their high school careers Saturday with fine performances in the boys state cross country championships.

Plymouth Salem's Derek Cudini was 18th and Plymouth Canton's Dave Yack 29th at the Class A meet in Flint, and Plymouth Christian Academy's Eric Jefferies placed 20th at the Class D finals in Bath.

Cudini, who finished the race in 16:29, was 14th last year but put all of his energy into this year's contest as well, according to coach Geoff Baker.

"Derek said he wished he had a little left for the end," Baker said. "But he spent it in the race, and that's what you want.

"I tell my guys to spend it on the course instead of running slow and having a big kick at the end. As long as they come across gased, that's all you can ask."

Yack finished in 16:41. His preseason goals were to run 17:10 at Cass Benton and qualify for state, coach Mike Spitz said. He eventually ran 17:01 on the home course and earned a berth in the state meet.

"He ran a different kind of race toward the end of the season," Spitz said. "He began to learn the importance of proper pacing.

"Three-point-one miles is not a long way for a distance runner, but not something you can treat as a sprint."

Yack ran a strong middle portion of races and was able to run down a lot of runners in the last third. At the state meet, he was 49th after one mile.

"As the people who got out quickly started slowing down, he was able to pick off some people," Spitz said.

"He's strong up top and built to be a good cross country runner. He began to see the strengths in himself and used them to his advantage later in races instead of thinking he had to start out real fast."

Jefferies had his best finish in three trips to the state meet, running 18:18. He was 23rd last year and 26th two years ago.

"It was a fairly challenging course, not a golf course," coach Steve Bauslaugh said. "He came out as a sophomore and qualified all three years for state. He was consistent and a good leader."

In the Class A girls race, Salem freshman Leah Retherford was 17th (19:60) and Canton sophomore Kathleen Landelius 34th (20:34).

"It was a nice way for Kathleen to cap off a fine season," Canton coach George Przygodski said. "She's quite a competitor and was anxious to run against the state's best."

Landelius ran 27:00 in her first race as a freshman and 22:11 at Cass Benton. Her best time this year was 20:23. The same was true of teammate and sophomore Laura McWilliams, who dropped from 22:12 to 20:43 this year at Cass.

Some companies build their cars around a price tag. Some build their cars around a gas tank. And some, well, they just build their cars around mere cosmetics.

At BMW, however, we've always believed an automobile should satisfy all the needs of its driver. Not just one or two of them.

So it's not surprising that we decided to build the 740i around you.

AN EIGHT-CYLINDER TESTAMENT TO THE DRIVER.

If BMW builds the ultimate "driver's car," then this must be the ultimate "driver's engine."

Five years in the making, our 4.0-liter, V-8 was tested to run, at redline, for over 100,000 miles straight. And showed no signs of wear.

It had sand blasted right into its intake. And didn't falter.

It had ice blasted into its radiator. And didn't miss a beat.

All so that you, the driver, would have a powerful engine capable of transporting you from 0-60 mph in a scant 7.1 seconds.

A fuel-efficient engine due to its featherweight engine block that was cast in aluminum.

And finally, a reliable engine that could survive the kinds of real-life tests other engines couldn't.

Which, in our opinion, makes those five long years more than worth the effort.

THE VELVET GLOVE APPROACH TO POWER: A 5-SPEED AUTOMATIC.

Linking the driver to this standard-setting power plant is a new 5-speed automatic transmission that is certainly no less noteworthy.

First, because it's sealed, so it requires no additional fluid — and thus, no maintenance whatsoever. And second, because this whisper-quiet, 5-speed automatic upshifts with such "unrivaled silkiness" (Road & Track), it reacts almost intuitively to your commands.

And when you combine that with a chassis, suspension and steering system an editor at Motor Trend magazine deemed "tight, responsive, and confidence-inspiring," the idea of building a car around a driver starts to sound quite compelling.

Of course, this philosophy extends to the entire driver's environment. So the 740i is endowed with everything from driver and passenger-side airbags to all the gathered Nappa leather, burnished walnut trim and various other creature comforts you would expect of a leading luxury car.

And it's covered by a customer care program that includes a 4-year/50,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty, a nationwide Roadside Assistance program†, an optional, full coverage maintenance plan and a free loaner car if you ever need one.††

For more detailed information on the $54,000‡ BMW 740i, or on the longer-wheelbased 740iL, simply call 800-334-4BMW. Or visit your authorized BMW dealer for a test drive.

And see what can be achieved when a car company views the driver as a starting point instead of an afterthought.

THE ULTIMATE DRIVING MACHINE.

*Five years in the making, our V-8 engine was tested to run — at redline — for over 100,000 miles straight. And, after being totally dismantled, showed no signs of wear.

Cast gives play their best shot

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "Annie Get Your Gun," continue through Dec. 6. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

BARBARA MICHALS

Bursting with melody, Irving Berlin's wonderful songs are enough to carry almost any version of "Annie Get Your Gun." The current production at the Birmingham Theatre really scores a bulls-eye with enormously talented leads and some innovative direction that make this 46-year-old classic musical seem remarkably fresh.

The joyously up-beat songs linger in one's head long after the final curtain. Probably the best known are "There's No Business Like Show Business," "I Got the Sun in the Morning," and "Doin' What Comes Natur'lly."

Equally hummable are "I'm a Bad, Bad Man," "The Girl That I Marry," "You Can't Get a Man with a Gun," "They Say It's Wonderful," "Moonshine Lullaby," "My Defenses Are Down," "I Got Lost in His Arms," and "Anything You Can Do."

"Annie Get Your Gun" deals with the rising show business career of sharpshooter Annie Oakley (Susan Dawn Carson) and her romance with rival marksman Frank Butler (Peter Reardon). Though Annie can easily outshoot Frank, nailing down his affections proves more difficult.

Both leads are outstanding. Carson is a very appealing and believable Annie; she's fresh-faced, spirited, and belts out the songs in a rich, full-bodied voice. Reardon has plenty of devilish charm to be credible as the womanizing, chauvinistic Frank, and his strong vocal skills are a good match for Carson.

Among the supporting players, Ken Jennings is especially good as Charlie, Buffalo Bill's promotion man; Louise Flaningam is delightfully despicable as Dolly, Frank's shrill, jealous assistant; and Hal Davis is likeable as the sagacious Chief Sitting Bull.

As Annie's little sister Jessie, Elizabeth Mary O'Neill is cute and perky, but Sam Stith seems stiff and unconvincing as Little Jake, Annie's brother.

Director Worth Gardner, who shepherded last season's very successful productions of "The Wizard of Oz" and "Man of LaMancha" at the Birmingham Theatre, again scores well with "Annie Get Your Gun."

Among his innovative touches, "I Got the Sun in the Morning" features the ensemble dancing with their hands while seated on gilt chairs at a fancy ballroom.

Gardner has also framed the opening and closing scenes with a silent confrontation between a cavalrymen and Indian, putting a whole different perspective ar the popularity of Buffalo Bill's Wld West show, though the pungent political commentary seems a little out of place.

Gardner's choreography, Scot Woolley's musical direction, Eduardo Sicangco's set esign, Austin Sanderson's costumes and Kirk Bookman's lighting all wor fine.

Virtually everything about this, "Annie Get Your Gun" is right on target, and the playgoer can count on a thoroughly satisfying experience.

Ridgedale Players shine in 'Isn't It Romantic?'

Performances of the Ridgedale Players production of "Isn't It Romantic?" continue through Nov. 22 at the playhouse in Troy. For ticket information call 644-8328.

HELEN ZUCKER

The Ridgedale Players kicked off their 61st season With a lively production of Wendy Wasserstein's "Isn't It Romantic?" Wasserstein writes about the fragility of belief systems. She writes about the same characters Neil Simon and Woody Allen write about, but she's much wore concerned about what becomes of the women who inhabit the New England/New York scene than she is with men.

What saves her work from being trendy is an undercurrent of doubt, a healthy skepticism about easy solutions, and a sense of humor about everything from women's magazines to methods of cooking a chicken. She uses answering machines as if they were live characters.

Director Don Oleszkiewick, and the seasoned Ridgedale troupe, capture the tongue in cheek quality as well as serious questions embedded in the script.

Julie Fuller is marvelous as "potent" Lillian Cornwall, the hard, successful executive who spends her nights watching The Rockford Files. Fuller is all snap and ginger; she's in charge of everything — the waiters at the Four Seasons, the receptionist she bullies, and her daughter. Viki Higle as daughter Harriet Cornwall makes Harriet's rise at Colgate-Palmolive, her affair with the bosses' boss, and her deep friendship with Janie Blumberg totally believable. Higle and Fuller hold up the WASP half of the play admirably.

Lyn Rubin who has long, dark wonderful hair, looks very at home in the role of 28 year old Janie Blumberg who's come to the Big Apple to get a writing job. Rubin as Blumberg lies under a blanket on her couch listening to phore messages, ruminates with Harriet, tries separating from her hovering parents, has an affair with a kidne doctor, types on crates, rests a lot, and surprises us by landing a job at Sesame Street. Rubin exudes sweetness, intelligence and a quiet will.

Linda Hammell is terrific as Tasha Blumberg, the mom who takes aerobic dance lessons, dresses in outrageous outfits and turns up to "order out" at 7 a.n. She's supposed to be the interferig mother, but Hammell makes her lvable. She's particularly endearing in her scene with WASP mom, Lillian

Mark Hammell is a great, clumsy, inarticulate bear of a father. As Simon Blumberg, he's very amusing, recommending "ripple soles," dragging coffee tables into Janie's apartment, tearing cards to "order out" from his pockt. He calls Chris, his daughter-in-law "Christ," and shoots sparks of good will in all directions.

Patrick Barnard as Marty Sterling, the "popover doctor" who wants to marry Janie is particularly good in his final scene when he tells Janie, No, it isn't complicated. It's simple, "You don't love me enough." Barnard needs to work a bit on Yiddish word pronunciation, but so does everyone except Linda Hamell.

Stuart Pinsky turns in a lusty performance as Paul Stewart, the boss Harriet has an affair with. Stewart calls everyone "Beauty," and Pinsky shrewdly captures a man trying to be too busy to understand his life. Pete Worden is hilarious in a cameo as Vladmir, a "filmmaker from Moscow." Vladmir drives a cab while reading maps, has been in the city six weeks, and is an expert at gracious "Hellos."

Delightful cast, in Bloomfield Players' 'Li'l Abner'

MARY JANE DOERR

Performances of the Bloomfield Players production of "Li'l Abner" continue through Nov. 15 at the Lahser High School theater, 3456 Lahser, Bloomfield Hills. For ticket information call 433-0885. Tickets will be available at the door.

What ever the situation, the Cold War in 1956 or the unemployment rate in 1992, there is nothing depressing about Johnny Mercer's 1950s musical "Li'l Abner" or the Bloomfield Players revival.

This young company, a baby among community theatrical groups in this area, attracted a cast of nearly 80 men, women, children, teenagers, pigs and ponies to star last at Bloomfield Hills' Lahser High School. A 20 piece orchestra and countless backstage hands filled out the tremendous ensemble.

For whatever reason Civil War defunct Jubilation T. Cornpone attracts people — either the Dogpatchers to Dogpatch Square U.S.A. or actors and singers to the musical.

Typical of director-choreographer Kathi Bush, there was lots stage action. Directing rush hour traffic at 12 Mile and Telegraph might be easier than figuring out the intricate movements for 80 people on the Lahser High School stage.

Somehow, Bush manages to keep all 80 actors, dancers, singers, and muscle men moving with a strong sense of direction and focus on the main characters and the plot.

Every scene was fascinating to watch with so much going on, though none of the side actions ever interfered with what was important.

Blondy Rhonda L. Furman is Daisy Mae, the center of attraction throughout the show. Her beauty transcends her awkward moments and confused facial expressions. Even through two of her three solos are really out of her singing range, she is such a strong actress, it really doesn't matter.

Also cast for his athletic physique is Kevin P. Kowalski in the starring role of Li'l Abner. Not a singer and with make-up which is a little over done, Kowalski still makes a commanding appearance as the passionless muscle man unable to marry his sweetheart.

The show is cast with strong actors in all of the many roles with Kevin Lee Branshaw as Eagle Eye Fleagle making a strong impression. The only problem with the show is the audio, which did not seem to be helped by the use microphones.

Although he is a marvelous actor and well cast into the role as Marryin' Sam, Larry Miller's lines were lost in the show's two best numbers, "Jubilation T. Cornpone" and "The Matrimonial Stomp."

Others tried to overcome the problem by shouting lines. Mark C. Holden's voice as Senator Jack S. Phogbound carried well, clear without being harsh.

If the audio was perhaps a little too harsh, this show with its timeless political satire, is delightful.

Some elements of fun, suspense in 'The Hollow'

SALLY DUBATS

Performances of the Troy Players production of "The Hollow" continue through Nov. 14 at the Troy Community Center. For ticket information call 879-1285.

Troy Players presents a routine production of Agatha Christie's "The Hollow." Typical of Christie, "The Hollow" is a collection of suspicious visitors to a large mansion miles away from civilization. Unfortunately, the "visitors" in this production do little more than say their memorized lines.

Director Stephen Kiersey leaves ends untied for suspense and intrigue. Act I is the introduction of a variety of suspicious and quirky characters, but the Troy production tones down any opportunity for mystery.

Further, the British ambiance is missing in the show as no attempt is made at a British dialect. The dialect, for Americans, is half the fun of a Christie mystery.

The set design by Joe Urkshus, set decoration by R. J. Scobie, and costumes by Tara Bare and Elizabeth Gargano are exceptional, professional, and in keeping with the high society of Christi's mystery.

The setting is the country home of the elite Angkatell family (Christie's pun and foreshadowing for "ain't gonna tell"). Sir Henry Angkatell, played by Joe Urkshus, and Lady Angkatell, portrayed by Bobby Silberberg, invite guests for the weekend.

Urkshus, while depicting the coziness of Sir Henry, neglects the "Lord of the Manor" tone of his character. Lines meant to foreshadow ("I really believe Lucy would feel she could get away with murder") are said too matter-of-factly to create suspicion.

Silberberg, whose character is the comedy relief of the play, provides a modicum of humor, but never truly lets loose to garner her laughs.

Jeanne Haglund plays Henrietta Angkatell, the moody, sullen artist whose personality is matched only by her depressing artwork — a perfect suspect. Haglund, however, misses the mark. She smiles and flirts, and seems to have not a care in the world, despite her character's relentless wish for peace and happiness.

Other guests swept up in a love muddle along with Henrietta include Edward Angkatell (Richard Hardacre), Gerda Cristow (Marissa Champine), her husband John (Thom Griffin), and Veronica Craye (Michele Millirons).

Each guest of the manor is tangled in a web of suspicion after one piteous soul is murdered. The actors, however, are tangled in a web of mediocrity as they lack energy and animation.

Shirley Biggs portrays Mrs. Gudgeon (normally a man's role), the servant who knows her place and knows all. Biggs presents a decent performance with consistency in her character.

Supporting characters do provide an element fun. A goofy maid named Doris is played with calculated humor by Julie Thomerson. Guy Snyder portrays a persistent Inspector Colquhoun bent on finding the murderer. The Inspector's skirt-chasing sidekick is Sergeant Penny, played suitably by Robert Szatkowski.

Although the Troy Players' presentation of "The Hollow" requires more depth, non-critical audiences might enjoy it for the sake of hearing a good mystery.

Sally Dubats is an actress, director and teacher. To leave a message for her, dial 953-2047 on a touchtone phone, mailbox 1857.

St. Lawrence String Quartet dazzles audience

AVIGDOR ZAROMP

The Music Study Club of Metropolitan Detroit had its 69th annual scholarship benefit concert on Nov. 8. This series provides scholarships and support for promising young artists from throughout the United States and Canada. Its members live throughout the metro Detroit area including Birmingham. This concert, took place at Berkley High School, and featured the St. Lawrence String Quartet.

This Canadian based group consists of violinists Geoff Nuttall and Barry Shiffman, violinist Lesley Robertson and cellist Marina Hoover. Formed in 1989 in Toronto, this group won distinguished prizes and is presently the Juilliard School's Graduate String Quartet-in-Residence.

The St. Lawrence Quartet seems to possess that element which distinguishes between those who are capable, and those who can be truly excellent.

Of the three works on their program — two were from the standard repertoire — Mozart's "Dissonant" quartet in C major, K. 465 and Beethoven's late quartet OP. 131.

In between was an unusual work by the contemporary Argentinian composer Osvaldo Golijov (b. 1960). It's title,"Yiddishbbuk" is based on Kafka's collection of apocryphal psalms.

The title of Mozart's quartet is based on the sequence of introductory chords with elusive tonality. The dissonantic aspect is, of course, relative to Mozart's time, and does not even come close to the generous amount of contemporary dissonances in Golijov's work.

Mozart regains his traditional harmonies after his introductory "dischords." This performance also endowed this work with remarkable maturity. At times, the effort to avoid the appearance of simplistic innocence went too far. In the final movement, for example, the thick texture tended to put Mozart in the 19th century.

There is a fine line between purity of tone and stylistic oversimplification that has yet to be found in this otherwise enjoyable performance.

Golijav's three movements are based on Jewish personalities and experiences. Reportedly, the first was inspired by a photograph of three children who died at the Terezien Concentration Camp. The second is dedicated to Isaac Bashevis Singer, and the third to Leonard Bernstein.

While the opening screeching dissonances awakened my natural defenses against some of the excesses of contemporary music, it became apparent as the work progressed that it does, indeed, possess a serious artistic statement. As with any new work, a single listening is hardly enough to absorb its content.

Beethoven's string quartets, especially the late ones, are among the ultimate challenges of quartet players. His Op. 131 in C sharp minor, with its seven movements, requires the type of artistic maturity that many lesser performers never attain in their lifetime. For many, the very attempt to scale this Parnassus of music is a daring achievement in itself.

For the St. Lawrence Quartet, this performance amounted to much more than a daring attempt. While there were some faltering steps, this effort culminated high above the ground level, even if at short from the ultimate peak.

Energetic enthusiasm and vigorous dedication compensated for some of the shortcomings in the more strenuous passages. The Presto movement could have used more oiling for its fast moving machinery, for example. But in most respects, this performance reflected the artistic sophistication needed to exhume the treasures of this masterpiece. The St. Lawrence Quartet, as its name suggests, may prove to become a major passageway in the vast realm of string quartets.

Avigdor Zaromp, born in Poland, educated in Israel and the United States, has a Ph.D. in math and has studied piano, music theory and history.

Race relations groups plan conference

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Task Force on Race Relations and Ethnic Diversity will join with Focus: HOPE and the Race Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit to offer a community conference on racism 2-8 p.m. Monday at The Community House in Birmingham.

"Getting to the Heart of It: Taking Our Pulse on Racism," will focus on how to recognize the various forms of racism that exist in our everyday lives.

The program will begin with the viewing of a "Prime Time Live" TV show segment, "True Colors," in which Diane Sawyer follows two college-educated men — one black, one white — as they move into a new community, seek housing and a job. Discussion of this segment will be led by Thomas Stallworth of the South Oakland County Chapter of the NAACP.

The afternoon session will focus on small group discussions of life situations involving racism. The discussion will be led by Gail Parrish of the Race Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit; and Lila Cahill, a private consultant. Groups will share their plans of action for specific situations following the discussion.

Keynote speaker for the conference is the Rev. William T. Cunningham, executive director of Focus: HOPE, who will speak following the dinner at 6:30 p.m. Cunningham founded Focus: HOPE in 1968 as an interracial movement of volunteers. Today the civil and human rights organization employs 450 people and involves 40,000 volunteers.

Well known Detroit singer Ortheia Barnes will perform at the conference.

Registration for the conference is $25 for adults and $15 for students, including dinner. Registration forms are available at The Community House. For more information, please call Jan Bird at The Community House, 644-5832, or Shirley Bryant, conference chairwoman, at 258-3347.

The Task Force is a group of greater Birmingham-Bloomfield residents concerned about achieving racial equality and ethnic diversity within its community. The goals of the Task Force are to improve race relations in the metropolitan Detroit area, specifically within its own community, and to develop a climate which promotes inclusion in the greater Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

Discussion of this segment will be led by Thomas Stallworth of the South Oakland County Chapter of the NAACP.

The afternoon session will focus on small group discussions of life situations involving racism. The discussion will be led by Gail Parrish of the Race Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit; and Lila Cahill, a private consultant. Groups will share their plans of action for specific situations following the discussion.

Keynote speaker for the conference is the Rev. William T. Cunningham, executive director of Focus: HOPE, who will speak following the dinner at 6:30 p.m. Cunningham founded Focus: HOPE in 1968 as an interracial movement of volunteers. Today the civil and human rights organization employs 450 people and involves 40,000 volunteers.

Well known Detroit singer Ortheia Barnes will perform at the conference.

Registration for the conference is $25 for adults and $15 for students, including dinner. Registration forms are available at The Community House. For more information, please call Jan Bird at The Community House, 644-5832, or Shirley Bryant, conference chairwoman, at 258-3347.

The Task Force is a group of greater Birmingham-Bloomfield residents concerned about achieving racial equality and ethnic diversity within its community. Race relations groups plan conference

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Task Force on Race Relations and Ethnic Diversity will join with Focus: HOPE and the Race Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit to offer a community conference on racism 2-8 p.m. Monday at The Community House in Birmingham.

"Getting to the Heart of It: Taking Our Pulse on Racism," will focus on how to recognize the various forms of racism that exist in our everyday lives.

The program will begin with the viewing of a "Prime Time Live" TV show segment, "True Colors," in which Diane Sawyer follows two college-educated men — one black, one white — as they move into a new community, seek housing and a job. Discussion of this segment will be led by Thomas Stallworth of the South Oakland County Chapter of the NAACP.

The afternoon session will focus on small group discussions of life situations involving racism. The discussion will be led by Gail Parrish of the Race Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit; and Lila Cahill, a private consultant. Naturalists put mysteries of environment in focus

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Once in a while, someone asks me, "What is a naturalist?"

According to the dictionary, a naturalist is a person who studies nature, especially by direct observation of animals and plants. And just as there are varying degrees of liberalism and conservativism, there are different gradations in the extent that one is a naturalist.

Observing plants and animals is important in learning about the natural world. In fact, studying plants and animals has been taken to the extremes by many specialist disciplines. But a botanist who only studies plants, or an ornithologist who only studies birds are not necessarily naturalists.

A naturalist is eclectic. Confining observations to just one group of living things has been the trend in the physical and natural sciences, but it is the naturalist who relishes in the many varied processes of life.

Integrating the effects of the physical factors of the environment on all life forms, and integrating the effects each life form has on each other, fascinates the naturalist. But no matter how much detailed information may be derived, a naturalist never loses his sense of awe and wonder.

The mysteries of life and the physical world are endless, and a naturalist has that sense of wonder that makes each day a marvel. There are so many things to see and experience that one lifetime is not enough. So a naturalist tries to live each day learning as much as he can about as many things as he can.

A naturalist's sense of curiosity does not stop with the natural or or physical world.

People who are naturalists are curious. They take the time to learn and experience beetles and Beethoven, polecats and politics, ravens and rap. Their curiosity and interest in various topics have given them a breadth of knowledge that allows them to make intelligent decisions in harmony with their personal philosophy.

Many naturalists realize that the important things in life are not the material things they have acquired. Most naturalists have spent time in the wilderness with everything they need on their back. Getting down to basics makes them understand how little we can get along with and codifies the relationship man has with the natural and physical world.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Applebaum directs Arbor Drugs growth

■ Arbor Drugs, headquartered in Troy, is regarded in the investment community as a growing company on the move. Its founder is still in charge nearly three decades after opening his first store.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

In 1963, a young Eugene Applebaum, just a few years graduated from Wayne State University College of Pharmacy, established his first drugstore in Dearborn.

Now as he approaches his 30th year of ownership, Applebaum has expanded operations to the point where he's president and chief executive officer of one of the largest, most successful chains in the country — Arbor Drugs.

The growth was fueled at first by individual persistence, then with a public stock offering.

"I wanted to open a successful drugstore," he said. "One thing led to another. It was a matter of staying focused."

Numbers from the 1992 annual report paint an impressive financial picture.

In its most recent budget year ending July 31, Arbor posted profits of $15.8 million on sales of $476.8 million with earnings of 98 cents per share.

All three categories jumped by at least 10 percent from 1991 levels and show a pattern of steady increases during the past decade.

The balance sheet indicated retained earnings or a reserve fund of $68.9 million and long term debt and deferred income tax of $19.4 million, excellent positions for future growth.

Applebaum, a Bloomfield Hills resident who turns 56 next week, is the largest single shareholder. He maintains that he didn't set out to build an empire.

"You could do a lot with effort and work," Applebaum said of the early days. "You work 90 hours a week like I did then and you could control payroll quite well."

While a private entity, Applebaum would start some stores from scratch, buy out some independents, then acquire pieces of larger chains like Cunningham.

But public financing provided a pool of cash for accelerated growth.

"We could grow faster, I could take care of key employees with stock options, and it was a way for the public to share in growth. A lot of customers could buy stock," he said.

Arbor purchased the Sentry Drug chain almost immediately after going public in 1986.

Future growth is expected to come in a variety of ways.

"Some older areas need service," Applebaum said. "Small independents are now retiring. That gives you the opportunity to build new stores in old areas.

"We will open new stores, buy other stores. When the real estate market gets better, retail will be built and I see a lot of opportunity," he said.

Last year for Arbor, prescription drugs accounted for 45 percent of all sales, general merchandise including convenience food, cards, toys and seasonal promotions 30 percent, health and beauty aids 20 percent and photofinishing and film, 5 percent.

"Something will grow," Applebaum said. "If they (lawmakers) give medical insurance for everybody, pharmacy will definitely grow. If not, there will be more self medication."

In charge: Eugene Applebaum is president and chief executive officer of one of the largest, most successful chains in the country — Arbor Drugs.

The company has opened seven stores since August to raise its total to 130, all in Michigan. Applebaum believes there's eventually room for as many as 200.

"We have an easy store to shop," he said. "Every Arbor store is laid out the same. Wherever you shop it's going to be the same price.

"We appeal to customers. We have easy parking, fast in and fast out. The aisles are wide. It's light, clean. We have much merchandise, well serviced.

"No stores have ever been closed in Michigan. We have never laid off an employee 30 years in business. Then, we've never had more employees than we need."

Arbor provides more than 4,500 jobs. There's no union representation.

"Management understands the needs of employees," Applebaum said. "We make the job as comfortable as possible — surroundings, working conditions. People are hired from the neighborhood."

Being active in the field as a small business owner has helped him deal with a multi-million dollar operation.

"It's much easier if you're part of a system and understand it totally," he said. "I would never leverage myself."

First of Michigan, a brokerage company, currently rates Arbor stock a buy.

"It's for growth accounts," said James Leonard, research director for First of Michigan. He recommends buying up to $22 per share and targets growth over the next 12 months to $28. It closed Tuesday at 24¼.

AUTO TALK

DAN McCOSH

The congnescenti of Woodward Avenue know that there is a magic speed, somewhere around 42 mph., at which you can make all the traffic lights. Still etched in my memory is the morning when I swung right onto Woodward from Long Lake and headed south, started making all the lights and eventually got to the foot of Woodward, adrenalin pumping, without one red, which would have put me in the commuter hall of fame except there were no witnesses.

But I figure somebody must have noticed, because now the federal government is attempting to beat my record with a $70 million program that eventually will coordinate most of the traffic signals in Oakland County with a complex, computer-controlled traffic system that takes 16 letters worth of acronyms just to describe it.

According to a description of the federally-funded project, the Oakland County FAST-TRAC IVHS system is based on a SCATS system and is a modified ATMS and ADTS utilizing Ali-Scout technology. I am not making this up. The system already is partially installed in the Troy area, and eventually will precisely monitor traffic at most intersections, and control the traffic lights for optimum traffic flow.

Oakland County thus joins about a dozen areas nationwide where they are experimenting with so-called Intelligent Vehicle Highway Systems (IVHS). The idea is that there still is some air between cars out there, and it ought to be possible with modern computer controls to make more efficient use of the excess space on today's road system. As a bonus, most IVHS systems are more or less comprehensive navigation systems that ought to let you punch up a destination and then spit out a precise route plan that even takes traffic conditions into account.

The Oakland County system is similar to one operating in Berlin, which uses infrared transmitters at intersections as video monitors to tell if there is a jam-up, and then signals the cars equipped with receivers to take an alternate route.

This is pretty high-tech stuff, mainly because most of the companies working on it are unemployed defense contractors trying to figure out how to make a buck in the automotive sector. The military overtones also are apparent in the cost — $10 million for 16 cars in the pilot program, which means it would have been cheaper to buy 16 small helicopters. The average cost goes down, of course, as the number of cars with receivers increases. Eventually, some 5,000 care will be equipped.

Still, this brave new world of traffic control is expensive (at best, about $1,000 for equipment in your car), and has some capabilities that already caused the residents of Hong Kong to reject a similar installation. The Hong Kong Chinese were uncomfortable with the idea of installing a massive computer network that could track individual cars, particularly with the pending communist takeover of the island.

Those of us still stuck with a car radio and a cup of coffee between our legs have other concerns.

The worst is that it might actually work, directing cars hither an yon, down alleys, along side streets, and filling in all the gaps. Eventually solidifying traffic, and ending all hope that somewhere up ahead, you might get a break and traffic will get moving again.

Local computer firm helps Neiman Marcus launch

The August 6 grand opening of the Neiman Marcus store in Troy marked the Michigan debut of a special point-of-sale software package developed for the Dallas-based retailer by Techpoint of Livonia.

The package took eight months to create and was field tested in Texas earlier this year.

After a successful Dallas showing, the clothing retailer decided push ahead with plans to implement the system in the remainder of its 27 locations, with a target completion date of August, 1993. Included in this was an on-line date to coincide with the grand opening of the Troy store.

The Troy opening was a tremendous success, both for the Techpoint system, and the store in general. More than 3,000 customers flocked to the exclusive Somerset Collection location and the point-of-salepackage easily handled the huge demand.

Finally - A Cure For Golf Frustration.

If there are unfrustrated, complacent golfers out there, they must not be paying attention. Questions and challenges are part of the game and come with each swing of the club. How's my approach, my stance, my grip? Am I rotating enough and what about my follow through? What are the conditions of the course and how's the wind today? Lessons can accomplish much but how do you get your body to consistently do the right thing?

Great Golf of America Indoor Training Centers, Inc., (GGA) is a new and creative approach to golf that answers all those questions and more. It helps golfers eliminate most of the frustrating aspects of the game using the concept of 'muscle memory,' usually associated with body building and rehabilitation medicine.
GGA uses a health club approach that uses training and equipment to accomplish professionally identified goals.

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

Soon there may be in place a new policy allowing terminally ill residents choosing to die at home to have the peaceful death for which they have prepared.

A task force of hospice workers, public safety officials and representatives of the Wayne County Coroner's office and the prosecutor's office have been working to establish guidelines more suited to handling the death of a hospice patient. They anticipate these guidelines will be in place soon.

Under current guidelines, when anyone dies at home the police, emergency personnel and the coroner are called to the home. They often may try to revive the individual, or they may begin an investigation of the death by gathering various bits of evidence from the deceased.

"The traditional way is not the right way," said Canton Township Public Safety Director John Santomauro who served on the task force. "What worked in the past does not necessarily work now."

Under new guidelines, an individual under hospice care can be declared dead by a hospice nurse. A phone call from the nurse to the coroner's office will result in a case file number which would allow family members to release the body to a funeral director without further investigation by the coroner.

A similar task force was formed several years ago without much progress. Santomauro said there is now a better understanding of the problem and so the parties have been able to reach agreement. Canton Township has been operating a similar policy for nearly a year.

"These guidelines are right, safe and compassionate," said Maureen Butrico, executive director of Hospice Services of Western Wayne County. "Families want the moment of death to be peaceful and private. Death, for them, is expected. They don't want the intrusion of sirens and strangers in the home."

The safety personnel are very kind when they come to the home and the families are usually willing to step aside and let them do their jobs, but the emergency stop is unnecessary as far as they are concerned and may prevent response to a real emergency, Butrico said.

While it would not be necessary to call emergency personnel at the time of death, family members may still call 9-1-1 if they are uncertain or nervous.

It would be the hospice nurse's job when she arrives at the home to pronounce death at a certain time and observe surroundings to determine if there may have been foul play involved. Butrico believes the hospice nurse would be better able to assess this situation than police because the nurse has known the family throughout the patient's sickness. If there are suspicious circumstances, the nurse can contact safety personnel.

As with most communities, one of Santomauro's chief concerns has been liability and leaving the department open to legal action when not responding to the home.

"It's taken a lot of people and a lot of unity to arrive at this conclusion," Santomauro said. "We've called in our insurance carriers as part of the task force and they find the policy to be sound."

Legislative action is not required at this point, but Butrico hopes that all hospice agencies and communities can arrive at the same conclusion and adopt these guidelines.

"We've been working very slowly and thoroughly to make sure this agreement serves all parties involved," Butrico said.

Karen Dorney, a hospice nurse for nearly three years, agrees that this new policy would be best for the hospice patient and family.

"Many of these families are fearful of this outside involvement at the end of life," Dorney said. "They consider it an invasion, almost a violation."

The task force continues to meet informally, but all of those involved, including the coroner and the prosecutor, seem to be in agreement with the proposed change in policy, Butrico said.

Isn't It A Shame?

You had no idea, did you, that a seemingly harmless piece of plastic could become an implement of death to an innocent sea creature? Yet it happens, unfortunately, on a grand scale.

Tons of plastic material are lost or dumped into the oceans each year, imperiling the lives of hundreds of thousands of aquatic animals.

Plastic bags, six-pack yokes, fishing nets and other materials can trap fish, mammals, turtles and birds, causing death by drowning or strangulation. Sometimes animals get sick or starve when they eat plastic that they mistake for food.

But plastics pollution is preventable.

Meteor showers building to spectacular display

SKY WATCH

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

There's good news and bad news about the second meteor shower of the month. The Leonid meteor shower, like the Taurids, is not one of the year's best. Its peak is from the evening of the 16th through morning of the 17th, during which time you can expect to see an average of 15 meteors.

The good news: as each year passes we could be building up toward an exceptional display. In the past the Leonids have set the sky ablaze with meteors. In the years 1833 and 1866 as many as 200,000 meteors were visible within the span of a few hours.

The bad news: bright light scattered by the moon will interfere with seeing the fainter meteors this year.

It is believed that the Leonid shower, like most meteor showers, is the remains of a comet that disintegrated. The comet had a period (completed an orbit) of 33.3 years, and although the earth passed through the Leonid stream every year, the meteor display was exceptional every 33.3 years as we orbited through the greatest concentration of debris.

The displays of 1899 and 1933 did not live up to expectations, but in 1966 observers in some southwestern states saw as many as 140 meteors per second.

The closer we get to 1999, the better the Leonids may become.

Occasionally an extremely bright meteor (called a fireball or bolide) is seen. While very rare, they are spectacular.

During this year's October Draconid shower a fireball was seen by hundreds of people along the Atlantic coast. The fireball was so large it failed to burn up completely, and it crashed into the back of a car near Peekskill, New York. What was left of the meteor weighed 13.6 kilograms (30 pounds). There are no guarantees that the Leonid shower will spawn a fireball, but then there are no guarantees that it won't!

Last quarter moon will be at 6:39 a.m. on Nov. 17.

Six degrees to the left of the moon will be Regulus (REG you lus), the 'heart' of Leo the lion. On the following morning the moon will be 12 degrees below and to the left of Regulus.

The moon moves from Leo into Virgo and, on the morning of the 20th, is six degrees below and to the right of Jupiter. On the next morning the moon is two degrees to the right of Spica.

Notice how much higher Jupiter and Spica are this morning, as compared to their location earlier this month.

Mercury is at inferior conjunction on the 21st. It is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

New Moon will occur at 4:11 a.m. on Nov. 24. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and, like Mercury, is not visible. Don't worry about a collision between Mercury and the moon. Yes, they are both between the earth and the sun, but they are separated by millions of kilometers.

The waxing (growing) crescent moon will be visible after sunset on the evening of the 26th. Notice brilliant Venus to the left of the moon. Venus will pass 1.9 degrees (less than four full moon diameters) below and to the left of Uranus tonight.

Uranus is not a naked-eye planet; if you want to look for it use binoculars or a telescope. Uranus will look like a faint greenish disk at the 'one o'clock' position with respect to Venus. (If you are using an astronomical telescope that inverts the image, look toward the 'seven o'clock' position.) Good luck, and happy hunting! (Neptune is also in this part of the sky, but it will be out of the range of binoculars and small telescopes.)

The moon will be located nearly mid-way between Venus and Saturn on the evening of the 28th. Venus will be below and to the right of the moon; Saturn will be above and to the left. On the following night the moon will be three degrees from Saturn.

Another event occurs on the 29th; Mars is stationary. It has been drifting eastward through the stars of Gemini from night to night, but after the 29th Mars begins retrograde (backward) motion. Mars will have moved 19 degrees westward by the middle of February. The planet doesn't really halt in its tracks and go backward. What we see is an optical illusion, caused by the faster moving earth overtaking slower orbiting Mars.

Career fair set for area teens

Students in grades seven through 12 are invited to "Say Yes to Your Future," a program featuring information on college enrollment, financial aid and teen health, plus a career fair.

The free event, sponsored by the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Sat. Nov. 14, at Wayne County Community College, 24000 North Line, Taylor.

BARNABY ON BOOKS

Historical pieces recount Vietnam

The Vietnam War, and its gut-wrenching complexities, continues to haunt the American psyche. And while Americans attempt to sort out the war that divided a nation, authors turn out volumes that attempt to deliver answers.

Vietnam continues to draw interest at the publishing houses of America, as can be seen by the number of titles on the fall season's list.

A noticeable trend, though, is a turnaway from fiction to more analytical historical pieces.

One of the best this season is "We Were Soldiers Once . . . And Young," published by Random House. Authored by retired Lt. General Harold Moore and journalist Joseph Galloway, it recalls one of the earliest, and bloodiest battles, of the Vietnam War: Ia Drang.

A battle in which 230 Americans and approximately 3,000 Vietnamese were killed, the 1965 battle at Ia Drang molded the attitude of American commanders toward attrition as a strategy in beating the North Vietnamese.

History, of course, demonstrated the errors of their thinking. The enemy persevered, despite horrendous casualties, and we lost.

But what Moore and Galloway do best in this volume is demonstrate, page after page, the horror and futility of war and the bravery of the American soldier who fought in this thankless conflict.

It is one of those you-can't-put-it-down reads, even for those who might otherwise be uninterested in the subject.

Beating the odds

Another in the genre is "Giap: The Victor in Vietnam," by Peter MacDonald and published by W.W. Norton. Vo Nguyen Giap, a school teacher by training, rose to become the Vietnamese general who beat off two superpowers of the 20th Century, France and the U.S.

Second in influence only to revolutionary leader Ho Chi Minh, Giap developed the military strategy that enabled a poor peasant country to hold out through decades of war until political pressures from the enemies' homefronts forced them to withdraw.

"Tragic Mountains: The Hmong, the Americans and the Wars for Laos 1942-1992," published by Indiana University Press and written by Jane Hamilton-Merritt, develops another slant on the wars of Southeast Asia.

Hamilton-Merritt examines the destruction of a people and its culture during the repeated and unrelenting seasons of war. Traditionally, the military heroes of war are most often remembered. The accounts of another kind of heroes, the victims, are rarely documented.

'The Bloodiest Year'

"After Tet: The Bloodiest Year," published by Free Press and authored by Ronald Spector, deals with a year in which Spector believes the course and the outcome of the war were determined.

Some historians may disagree, saying that America's road to defeat was determined much sooner. But 1968 was one of the most fascinating and telling years of that war, no doubt.

The My Lai massacre took place as well as the unheralded May Offensive, which, bigger than the Tet Offensive, saw the North Vietnamese go down to a terrible defeat. It also was the year when Lyndon Johnson made his dramatic announcement to quit politics and Richard Nixon developed his "secret plan" to end the war.

In a more personal look at the war, Sandie Frazier writes, "I Married Vietnam." Published by George Braziller, it is a fictional account of how the wife of a Vietnam veteran copes with a war which just won't go away.

Bridging conflicts: "Border Bridge," a construction of wood, coreboard, felt and tempera, illustrates in three dimensions a bridge where people meet to resolve their problems.

Playfulness shapes multimedia artistry

Award-winning artist Ellen Wilt displays her fondness for the human element in her work and actions. The retired Eastern Michigan University art professor has an exhibit at Madonna University in Livonia.

"Creative Spirit," paintings, drawings and constructions by award-winning artist Ellen Wilt, add color and dimension to the Exhibit Gallery at Madonna University.

"Ellen Wilt is one of the pre-eminent artists of Michigan, recognized nationwide for her ingenuity and playfulness in her art," said Ralph Glenn, who chairs the Livonia university's art department.

"She has a wonderful sense of joy that comes across in her work."

Wilt considers her work a "tentative exploring." She matches drawings and constructions in this 17-piece show, a brain rattler created by a woman who loves to play crossword puzzles.

"Instead of just staying with one dimension, I'm going from two dimensions to three dimensions, or from three dimensions to two dimensions," said Wilt in an interview at the gallery.

In the three-dimensional piece, "Border Bridge," a chair dangles from each end of a bridge while other chairs straddle it haphazardly. Wilt built the piece using balsam wood, coreboard, tempera and felt.

"It's a conflict. All of these people come with their chairs for a meeting," Wilt said. "Objects pointing left and right off the bridge give the direction in which they're leaning. Distressed figures bob in the waters below the bridge."

Wilt turns and points to a different construction.

"On the other hand, the idea behind 'Dangerous Bridge' is to feel fearsome," Wilt said. "There's something going on under the bridge with the spikes in the water. In the drawing the colors are very red and black and ominous."

Ellen Wilt: "I love to do figures and draw."

Bridges and chairs add a human dimension to Wilt's art. They run like arrows through the work, piercing the viewer with questions as to the meaning.

"I like a response," Wilt said, "whether they like it, or not.

"As far as the bridges, I think its open to what a person links to his experience with bridges. People enjoy having a narrative that they can think through and arrive at what it means to them."

In preparation for the show, Wilt created nearly all the work in the last six weeks at her Saugatuck studio.

Children's prose: The Dragon Lady, from Jeanne Poulet's "Jenika's Zoo World," struggles with other characters to solve human problems.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

■ 'This is joyful! I see magic in every smear of paint. I've spent too many years doing sad stuff. I look at this as a way to make a child's life better.'

Jeanne Poulet artist

At first glance, there's nothing so unusual about Jeanne Poulet's house, tucked in the middle of a tidy street in one of Livonia's traditional family subdivisions.

Inside, her art pervades. There's also a grand-sized English Rembrandt etching press the artist uses to print her work.

Since 1966, that work has included mostly engravings, hundreds of them, which boldly illustrate the artist's view of society's treatment of women and children.

Called sobering and bizarre even by the artist, this large body of work is the artist's way of recording what she remembers as a child in Montreal, Canada, where she was shuffled back and forth to convents or to the homes of friends and even strangers with a spare room.

"I was a gentle child, a sweet child and that, I think, saved me from abuse myself. I was curious but noncombative. I wanted to survive. When you grow up without a mother, you have to protect yourself," Poulet said. "When I saw (an act of abuse), I'd say to myself, One day I will put you in a picture.' "

Though Poulet still draws what she calls "the human condition," today she's more interested in a different sort of work.

Her children's books, with etchings, illustrations and accompanying prose, the antithesis of the earlier work, are the result of a healing Jeanne Poulet, who is diligently lumbering through her childhood tragedy.

Poulet's books, still works-in-progress, will be displayed in the second-floor showcases of the Livonia Public Library Civic Center Branch through Nov. 29.

The exhibit also includes several etchings from "Bernard with a Suesse," the artist's first illustrated book of prose describing the human condition.

"While Jeanne has diverse talents, this one (children's art) captures her interest at this stage in her career," said Lee Alanskas, Livonia arts commissioner in charge of the library showcases.

Women of Artistry plan festive exhibition, sale

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Women of Artistry, a newly formed, Observerland-based group of five women artists, will host its first fine art exhibition and sale Sunday, Nov. 15 in Romulus.

Sharon Dillenbeck of Canton Township, Julie Giordano of Northville, Carol McCreedy of Westland, Susan Argiroff of Livonia, and Norma McQueen of Garden City will host the event. Hours are 1 to 6 p.m. in the Detroit Marriott Romulus, 30559 Flynn Drive, across from Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The show will feature nearly 100 watercolor, oil and acrylic paintings, pencil drawings and marbling. It offers an innovative marketing concept: a party-like reception with jazz by the New Concept Trio, champagne and hors d'oeuvres.

"We're there for the joy of art," Dillenbeck said. "This is a wonderful stimulating experience. It's a chance to be with friends, bring the family, enjoy the artist and art.

"It's only 12 minutes from Plymouth," she added. "Anyone can attend but we'd like people to R.S.V.P. so there will be refreshments for everyone."

The idea for the exhibition surfaced more than two years ago when Dillenbeck, a professional artist who owns D & M Art Studios in Plymouth, decided she "wanted to do a classier

■ PACES COMPETITION

The free fine art show showcases Michigan talent. Artists serve up realism and abstraction in watercolors, oils, pastels, prints, collage and mixed media.

Hours are 7-9 p.m. today, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at the historic Spicer House in Farmington Hills' Heritage Park, Farmigton Road, north of 10 Mile.

■ WATERCOLOR CONTEST

The Michigan Water Color Society will accept slide entries for its 47th annual exhibition through Nov. 30.

William Frederick Weedge III, professor of art at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, will juror the show. His works have been exhibited internationally and are included in museum, corporate and private collections.

The exhibition will be at Dennos Museum Center in Traverse City March 12 to May 3. All Michigan residents and former residents are eligible to enter the competition. Paintings are limited to watercolor on paper.

Poulet's two grandchildren started using crayons and paint. After the kids painted, Poulet took the "smear" (done in acrylics) and outlined small areas of color with ink. The artist uses the paints' texture and irregular shape to invent "imagined images" of bears, elephants, dinosaurs and other creatures.

With the dramatic change in subject matter came the use of fiery colors like purple, magenta and fuchsia — a surprising contrast to the black, white and silver in the earlier engravings.

"This is joyful! I see magic in every smear of paint," the artist said. "I've spent too many years doing sad stuff. I look at this as a way to make a child's life better."

Poulet is working on four children's books that will include her own prose and smear paintings or pen and ink drawings. She's looking for a publisher but, if necessary, she'll print the books herself on her etching press, which shares garage space with engraving plates and countless other projects.

"Jenika's Zoo World," illustrated in pen and ink, features animals struggling with human problems. "Sisi's Dolls and Elephants," also pen and ink, is a story of concern for the welfare children and elephants. "Pierce Alexander's World," done in mixed media, is a story about lessons children learn in life. An untitled Christmas story is illustrated in pen and ink. The books and drawings are for people 2 to 50 years old, says Poulet.

All stories will include some religious parables or will indirectly touch on animal or children's rights. Each title is significant to the author: Jenika was a nickname given to Poulet by her mother. Sisi and Pierce Alexander are the names of the artist's grandchildren.

"Jenika's Zoo World," a favorite of the authors, includes a character with dyslexia, the learning disorder that kept Poulet from reading a book until age 17.

After starting the children's paintings, Poulet admits she was afraid she wouldn't return to more serious work. But once, in the middle of painting a herd of blue elephants, the artist cut the paper in half and started a chilling painting of another herd — floating babies and women with bulbous bellies. She symbolically calls the work "1808 Auschwitz."

For more information, call Jeanne Poulet, 464-6914.

"Yeti in Chair" suggests and provokes many strange thoughts.

"That was fun," Wilt said. "The monoprint, a water-based media, is an ink drawing of the Yeti. The little chair is from Haiti and the figure is made from roots."

Before receiving her bachelor of fine arts and master's degrees from the University of Michigan, Wilt studied at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, New School for Social Research in New York City and Wayne State University.

She has exhibited artwork in a one-woman retrospective at the Detroit Focus Gallery and in invitational shows at Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, Detroit Artists Market, Robert Kidd Gallery in Birmingham, Gallery One/Clare Spitler Works of Art in Ann Arbor and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Her work now shows at Xochipilli Art Gallery in Birmingham.

Wilt retired as an associate professor of art from Eastern Michigan University in 1985. Since then, she has instituted an art scholarship at EMU for returning women out of school for at least three years.

She won the Washtenaw Council for the Arts Annie Award for Excellence in an artistic discipline in 1987 and in two-dimensional visual arts in 1992. In 1986 and 1991, she took first place in the Michigan Water Color Society awards.

Her work is in the collections of the Midland Arts Center, Art Center of Battle Creek, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Northwood Institute, University of Michigan Dental School and Eastern Michigan University.

Wilt intends to pursue a theme in future work from one of the pieces in the current show. "Awash," a watercolor of chairs lost at sea, suggests things to do, she says. "I want to continue mixing furniture and the sea.

"All these things awash once they were part of someone's life."

The Wilt exhibit continues through Dec. 10. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The Exhibit Gallery is on the second floor of the library at Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan.

OCC art fest to benefit DIA

More than 100 artists will display and sell their work in the Physical Education Building of Oakland Community College in Auburn Hills as part of the Art One Fall Fair.

The fair will take place 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 15. Produced by N Squared Productions of Birmingham, the fair will offer metro Detroiters the perfect venue for distinctive holiday shopping while contributing to a worthy cause.

Patrons of the fair will be supporting the arts, as well as contributing to the Detroit Institute of Arts. A portion of each $3 ticket will be donated to the DIA, and all proceeds from a silent auction of art work will benefit the DIA.

The juried and invitational art fair will feature the works of both local and national artists. Artists working in ceramics, painting, paper, sculpture, glasswork, basketry, leather, photography, metalwork, drawing, printmaking and mixed media will be included. Fiber wearables and jewelry will be among the art work for sale.

Artrain's topic: toys

Artrain, the nation's only traveling museum in a train, takes its popular antique toy exhibition, "Treasures of Childhood: 150 Years of American Toys," to Ann Arbor on Thursday-Tuesday, Nov. 12-17.

The train will be at New Center, 1100 N. Main. Public hours are 2:30-5 p.m. Nov. 12-13, and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 14-15. Other times are reserved for tours by school classes and special interest groups.

Admission is free, but a small donation is requested from the general public. Tour groups are admitted free. For more information, or to schedule a tour group, call 747-8300.

In addition to the exhibition, Artrain includes an artists' studio where staff and local artists demonstrate a variety of artistic techniques.

"Treasures of Childhood" is an exhibition of about 300 antique toys borrowed primarily from the Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson Collection, one of the finest and most extensive private toy collections in the country.

Included are Teddy bears, mechanical toys and banks, toy trains, dolls and board games. Several interactive displays allow visitors to "play" with toys in the exhibit.

About a dozen ancient toys dating from the 4th century A.D. have been borrowed from the Kelsey Museum of Archaeology at the University of Michigan. These objects were included to illustrate types of toys whose popularity has endured for centuries.

Poulet's two grandchildren started using crayons and paint. After the kids painted, Poulet took the "smear" (done in acrylics) and outlined small areas of color with ink. The artist uses the paints' texture and irregular shape to invent "imagined images" of bears, elephants, dinosaurs and other creatures.

With the dramatic change in subject matter came the use of fiery colors like purple, magenta and fuchsia — a surprising contrast to the black, white and silver in the earlier engravings.

"This is joyful! I see magic in every smear of paint," the artist said. "I've spent too many years doing sad stuff. I look at this as a way to make a child's life better."

Poulet is working on four children's books that will include her own prose and smear paintings or pen and ink drawings. She's looking for a publisher but, if necessary, she'll print the books herself on her etching press, which shares garage space with engraving plates and countless other projects.

"Jenika's Zoo World," illustrated in pen and ink, features animals struggling with human problems. "Sisi's Dolls and Elephants," also pen and ink, is a story of concern for the welfare children and elephants. "Pierce Alexander's World," done in mixed media, is a story about lessons children learn in life. An untitled Christmas story is illustrated in pen and ink. The books and drawings are for people 2 to 50 years old, says Poulet.

All stories will include some religious parables or will indirectly touch on animal or children's rights. Each title is significant to the author: Jenika was a nickname given to Poulet by her mother. Sisi and Pierce Alexander are the names of the artist's grandchildren.

"Jenika's Zoo World," a favorite of the authors, includes a character with dyslexia, the learning disorder that kept Poulet from reading a book until age 17.

After starting the children's paintings, Poulet admits she was afraid she wouldn't return to more serious work. But once, in the middle of painting a herd of blue elephants, the artist cut the paper in half and started a chilling painting of another herd — floating babies and women with bulbous bellies. She symbolically calls the work "1808 Auschwitz."

"1808 is a street number, someplace I lived as a child," said Poulet, not explaining the rest.

For more information, call Jeanne Poulet, 464-6914.

They suggest things. One thing suggests another. You do one and do another," Wilt said.

"Yeti in Chair" suggests and provokes many strange thoughts.

"That was fun," Wilt said. "The monoprint, a water-based media, is an ink drawing of the Yeti. The little chair is from Haiti and the figure is made from roots."

Before receiving her bachelor of fine arts and master's degrees from the University of Michigan, Wilt studied at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, New School for Social Research in New York City and Wayne State University.

She has exhibited artwork in a one-woman retrospective at the Detroit Focus Gallery and in invitational shows at Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, Detroit Artists Market, Robert Kidd Gallery in Birmingham, Gallery One/Clare Spitler Works of Art in Ann Arbor and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Her work now shows at Xochipilli Art Gallery in Birmingham.

Wilt retired as an associate professor of art from Eastern Michigan University in 1985. Since then, she has instituted an art scholarship at EMU for returning women out of school for at least three years.

She won the Washtenaw Council for the Arts Annie Award for Excellence in an artistic discipline in 1987 and in two-dimensional visual arts in 1992. In 1986 and 1991, she took first place in the Michigan Water Color Society awards.

Her work is in the collections of the Midland Arts Center, Art Center of Battle Creek, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Northwood Institute, University of Michigan Dental School and Eastern Michigan University.

Wilt intends to pursue a theme in future work from one of the pieces in the current show. "Awash," a watercolor of chairs lost at sea, suggests things to do, she says. "I want to continue mixing furniture and the sea.

"All these things awash once they were part of someone's life."

The Wilt exhibit continues through Dec. 10. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The Exhibit Gallery is on the second floor of the library at Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan.

OCC art fest to benefit DIA

More than 100 artists will display and sell their work in the Physical Education Building of Oakland Community College in Auburn Hills as part of the Art One Fall Fair.

The fair will take place 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 15. Produced by N Squared Productions of Birmingham, the fair will offer metro Detroiters the perfect venue for distinctive holiday shopping while contributing to a worthy cause.

Patrons of the fair will be supporting the arts, as well as contributing to the Detroit Institute of Arts. A portion of each $3 ticket will be donated to the DIA, and all proceeds from a silent auction of art work will benefit the DIA.

The juried and invitational art fair will feature the works of both local and national artists. Artists working in ceramics, painting, paper, sculpture, glasswork, basketry, leather, photography, metalwork, drawing, printmaking and mixed media will be included. Fiber wearables and jewelry will be among the art work for sale.

Artrain's topic: toys

Artrain, the nation's only traveling museum in a train, takes its popular antique toy exhibition, "Treasures of Childhood: 150 Years of American Toys," to Ann Arbor on Thursday-Tuesday, Nov. 12-17.

The train will be at New Center, 1100 N. Main. Public hours are 2:30-5 p.m. Nov. 12-13, and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 14-15. Other times are reserved for tours by school classes and special interest groups.

Admission is free, but a small donation is requested from the general public. Tour groups are admitted free. For more information, or to schedule a tour group, call 747-8300.

In addition to the exhibition, Artrain includes an artists' studio where staff and local artists demonstrate a variety of artistic techniques.

"Treasures of Childhood" is an exhibition of about 300 antique toys borrowed primarily from the Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson Collection, one of the finest and most extensive private toy collections in the country.

Included are Teddy bears, mechanical toys and banks, toy trains, dolls and board games. Several interactive displays allow visitors to "play" with toys in the exhibit.

About a dozen ancient toys dating from the 4th century A.D. have been borrowed from the Kelsey Museum of Archaeology at the University of Michigan. These objects were included to illustrate types of toys whose popularity has endured for centuries.

Camera film carries a colorful explanation

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Most of us have been using color film for years and probably haven't given much thought as to how our film really works. Film is a photographic "miracle" we take for granted. Let's learn a little bit about it.

Color film contains three separate layers of light sensitive emulsion that create an image according to the intensity of the light falling upon it during the brief instance of exposure.

One layer is sensitive only to red light, one to green and one to blue. At a particular stage in the development of the film, the image is dyed to the appropriate shade in each layer to reproduce the full range of colors in the original subject.

There are two basic types of color film: transparency (slides) and negative (prints). A negative film records light areas in the original scene as dark tones and dark areas as light tones.

Also, colors are shown in reverse so that anything blue will appear as a mixture of red and green, which is yellow; anything green will record as a mixture of red and blue called magenta; and anything red as a combination of green and blue, which is cyan.

These are the complementary colors.

To make a print, the negative must then be exposed again to a similar emulsion on a paper base to convert the colors and tones back to those of the original subject.

With a color transparency, all of this process takes place when the film is developed.

Modern technology has made color films sensitive to even the slightest changes in the color quality of light. Unfortunately, we tend to notice only the drastic changes in light quality because the brain makes adjustments for what we see.

For example, grass will almost always appear to be green regardless of the color of light used to illuminate it, simply because we "know" that grass is green. We are rarely aware of color changes in daylight, yet it varies as surely as the sun rises and sets, and these variations are faithfully recorded on film.

This accounts for the many surprises, and sometimes disappointments, when you see your processed prints for the first time.

The color quality of light is measured on what is called the Kelvin scale and is recorded as a color "temperature." Most daylight balanced films are designed to give correct color values when the light source is about 5,500 degrees Kelvin or approximately a noon sun.

However, light from a rising sun can be as low as 3,000 or as high as 8,000 degrees on a hazy day. When you consider that a variation of only a few hundred degrees will be quite noticeable when recorded on film, it becomes easy to understand how a photograph can appear with tones of color different from those you thought you saw.

show than an outdoor show — an upbeat show to find a different outlet to market your work.

"It's not going to be a high-pressure setting," she said. "It's a friendly environment. It's all original artwork and artists will be available to answer questions or discuss their work."

Women of Artistry was formed in August to promote member's artwork through marketing, exhibitions, and seminars by consolidating talents and resources.

"There is no chair, no coordinator. It's a group effort. There won't be any shining stars," Dillenbeck said.

"It's a challenge for us because it's never been done, brainstorming new ideas and innovations for marketing your work," Giordano said.

"I guess we're too naive to know we can't do it," Dillenbeck added.

Answering recent criticism for forming an all-woman group, Giordano responded, "It's not a sexist thing. We are all friends. Why not have all women helping women. Men watch football with their friends and join the Elks club."

Dillenbeck, an Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate who teaches art to children and adults, displays impressionistic watercolors from her series "The Child and Her Environment" as well as paintings of toys, and teddy bears.

"They're done on the theme, 'When they were little, the problems were little,' " Dillenbeck said.

Giordano, who works on commissions out of the J. Giordano Studio in Northville, spotlights watercolors and pencil drawings from her new series, "Fire Fighting Apparatus." She has painted similar works that now hang on the walls of fire departments in Plymouth Township, Plymouth, Northville Township and Wyandotte.

"I started to do fire trucks because they're so complicated with all the switches, all the toggles. They're fascinating," Giordano said.

Influenced by her environment and heritage growing up on the Westland farm and greenhouses of Clyde Smith & Sons, McCreedy paints flowers, plants and vegetable still life in watercolor. Orange pumpkins, yellow chrysanthemums, red impatiens, geraniums, beets and cabbage come to life under her brush, drawing the viewer to them from across the room.

McCreedy earned her bachelor of fine arts degree in 1980 from Center for Creative Studies-College of Art and Design in Detroit. She teaches watercolor in Plymouth and Livonia.

Argiroff, a retired teacher who recently returned from trips to Istanbul, Turkey, and an international marbling show in San Francisco, crafts classic and contemporary marbling designs on paper and textiles. She'll display a six-foot, 10-inch high canvas wallhanging along with framed works on paper.

Marbling dates back to Eighth Century Japan. Argiroff floats colorful patterns onto a bath of Irish seaweed, then transfers the surface design onto paper, silk, canvas and cotton chintz.

McQueen's work in acrylic, oil and watercolor offers a taste of autumn and winter with paintings of fallen leaves, pheasants, and snow. "I really get inspired by the seasons," she said.

Besides her position as president of the Garden City Fine Arts Association, McQueen manages The Art Gallery in Garden City.

Artwork at the Sunday exhibition will range from $50 for a pencil drawing to $950 for a 24-by 30-inch oil painting.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Sell present house before committing to a 2nd

You've lived in the same house for 20 years — rebuilt the kitchen, added a family room and watched the kids grow up and leave. If now is the time to buy a new home, you're about to face another set of challenges.

Do you sell your current home first and then buy a new one? Or do you buy your new one first, and then sell your old one? How about buying and selling at the same time? Sound confusing?

If you sell first, you have the leisure of looking for a new home with a fixed understanding of your financial boundaries. Selling first also relieves the anxiety about carrying two mortgages at the same time and the fear of not getting a bank loan to finance your new house.

The downside to selling first is that you'll need an interim place to stay — rental and storage costs can add up. If your relationship is good with the purchaser, and there's flexibility on both sides, you may want to include a clause in your sellers contract about the right to postpone possession of the house until you close on your new one.

If you decide to buy first, you can take advantage of a buying opportunity and still protect yourself. If people are eager to sell, you have the leverage to protect yourself in the housing contract. Add a clause that states that your purchase is contingent on the sale of your old house and/or your ability to get a bank loan. This provision protects you from having to take on two mortgages or from being sued if you can't sell your house or get a loan.

If you're concerned about coming up with the down payment for your new home, apply for a loan against the equity in your old home. Again, you want to avoid paying two mortgages and struggling with a down payment. Be aware that interest rates on these loans tend to be higher.

Ask a sampling of real estate agents which route to go, and the majority seem to favor the sell-first approach.

"It depends on the financial circumstances, but most people would be better off to sell their home first," said Bob Beattie, an agent with Century 21 in Southfield.

"You won't get caught making double payments. And you won't worry about the marketability of your home.

"However, a number of people have their home paid off. If they find something they like, they can go ahead and buy it. Maybe it will take only three or four months to sell their home."

Michelle Michael, an agent with ReMax Executive, says selling the home you're living in first allows you to know the amount of money you're working with.

"It eliminates the stress of selling your home at a lower price. And it's emotionally upsetting if you lose the home you want.

"It's smarter, it saves time and money, and it puts you in a better negotiating position if you sell your house first," said Michael.

"All sellers will not consider offering a contingency clause because it ties them up. If you sell first, you can give yourself enough occupancy time in closing, 90 days for extra insurance."

Mary Nicole of Real Estate One is another believer in selling first. Ann Shahin, assistant manager of Coldwell Banker — Schweitzer, is quite emphatic about it.

"Definitely sell the existing home first," she said. "I've got some people right now who bought first and they're going nuts trying to sell their old home."

Elsie Kimmel, an agent with Red Carpet Keim in Birmingham, favors the flip side of the coin.

"We're trained to have people sell their house first," Kimmel said. "But me personally, my honest opinion, I wouldn't do it.

It puts you under a lot of stress. You might be forced to buy less than what you really want.

"And I believe if you price your house right, it should sell.

What if you buy and sell simultaneously? This may actually be your best bet, according to Doug Stranahan, regional director of Century 21 of the Great Lakes. Walking this tightrope requires the use of a good real estate agent.

Try to use the same agent for both transactions; once you build a trusting relationship, you can barter on commission fees, Stranahan said.

A good agent will walk you through each option. It is her responsibility to help you get top dollar for your existing home, while negotiating a good price for your new one.

Whether you decide to sell first, buy first, or do both at the same time, make a decision you can live with — one that will allow you to sleep at night, whatever house you're in.

Property line causes condo dispute

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

We live in a site condominium where there is a fight among two of the members of the association regarding the property line. The developer apparently made a mistake in the subdivision plan. It is difficult to get an agreement among the two owners as to where the line should be. What should the association do to help resolve this problem among the neighbors?

There should be a provision in the condominium master deed that allows the master deed to be amended to correct survey errors without the necessity of the approval of the co-owners. Of course, that would have to be undertaken by the developer who might have to engage a new surveyor to determine where the exact boundary is.

In the absence of an agreement, it is probably an issue which should be left to co-owners with respect to where the property line should be. Reference should also be made to the condominium documents to the extent that they may give the association some latitude in resolving this problem, perhaps by arbitration.

The association should get a legal opinion confirming what rights, if any, the association has to assist or to deal with this dispute among the neighbors. The neighbors should also be obtaining legal advice with respect to their particular problem, would they not be able to agree as to a resolution and the developer is not willing to step in to resolve the problem.

Engineers shine

Three area men have been given professional practice awards by the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers for construction-related activities, and a local building also has been cited by the organization.

Don C. Bramlett of Livonia won the outstanding engineering achievement, industry division, award. He is the lead engineer of the 11-member Engineering Design Group for the Fermi 2 Nuclear Power Plant in Monroe where he provides technical review of completed design to ensure correctness, adequacy and compliance with quality assurance program requirements.

Donald J. Giffels of West Bloomfield won the outstanding engineering achievement award in the private practice division. He is the president of Giffels Consultants, an engineering and architectural firm that has been ranked among the 100 fastest growing privately held companies in Michigan for the past two years.

The outstanding engineering achievement award in the government division was awarded to Joseph D. Joachim of Farmington Hils. As Oakland County's deputy county executive, he is active in construction, property development, marketing and business management.

The Detroit engineering firm, Walbridge Aldinger, has won the outstanding engineering achievement in construction award for the Nissan Research and Development Technical Center in Farmington Hills.

State board appointee

Ray Brunett of Southfield has been named to the Board of Mechanical Rules by Gov. John Engler to represent hydronic heating and cooling and process piping in the mechanical trades. He is executive vice president of John E. Green Co.

The Board of Mechanical Rules is responsible for making recommendations to the state construction code commission to update and maintain the Michigan mechanical code including evaluating construction materials, products and methods, and review and approval of industry examinations.

CFO at R.A. DeMattia

Kevin K. Gramlich has joined the R.A. DeMattia Co., Plymouth, as vice president and chief financial officer. He is the former regional controller for Trizec Properties.

DeMattia is a development, architectural engineering and design-build construction firm.

Up with the new: Last year's holiday Homearama in Novi helped establish the Riverbridge subdivision where about half of the 55 lots are occupied or under construction.

Homearamas: tip of the iceberg

■ Homearamas, the annual showcase of idea houses, create instant neighborhoods, but their overall value to builders and developers is of a longer-standing nature.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Homearamas, showcases of idea homes sponsored annually by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, have been very good to developers whose subdivisions have hosted the events since 1983.

Crowds drawn to mini landscaped neighborhoods — up to two dozen models — sparked sales of other available lots leading to a timely development of most if not all available sites, several reported.

And developers temporarily stymied by the economy said they don't regret hosting Homearamas even if building hasn't progressed as quickly as they may have hoped.

Developers subdivide the land and put in roads, water lines and sewers before builders came in with their crews to construct houses and condominiums.

"It certainly generated activity," said Herbert Lawson, president of Windham Realty Group in West Bloomfield. His company developed the Autumn Ridge Subdivision in West Bloomfield for a 1988 Homearama and Riverbridge in Novi for a Christmas holiday-themed Homearama last year.

Autumn Ridge, 103 home sites on 69 acres with lots starting in the high $60,000s and single-family houses starting in the high $200,000s, has sold out, Lawson said.

About half of the 55 lots at Riverbridge are occupied or under construction, he added, and all Homearama models have sold. Lots there range from the mid $50,000s to high $60,000s.

"We would sell (lots) to several builders with diversity of product to give people a choice of homes to choose from," Lawson said. "We should be sold out by the end of the year."

Engineer finds economy fertile ground for business

BY R.J. KING
SPECIAL WRITER

A recession isn't the greatest time to open a business, but try telling Shailesh Doshi, who along with two partners in August 1991 sank $100,000 into an architectural and engineering firm in Troy.

"The best time to open a business is when the economy is at the bottom," said Doshi, 42, president of Doshi and Associates, which designs manufacturing plants, test tracks and heating and cooling systems for large buildings.

"If you can hang on and survive in a worst-case scenario, then you're in a great position when the economy picks up. It's always much better to build something slowly, than all at once."

Doshi said the firm generated first year revenues of $1 million, with plans to double that amount over the second year. A native of India who left Bombay in 1971 for Detroit, he earned his master's degree in industrial engineering at Wayne State University. Even a 10-year slump in plant construction didn't deter him from opening the firm.

"I've always had a strong desire to run my own company because no matter how hard you work for someone else, they always control your destiny. Besides, I was never good at office politics," said Doshi, a Troy resident. "I know the industry has been hurt by the recession and other factors, but my belief is if you're creative, hard working, dedicated and quality conscious, you should succeed in any business environment."

According to Air Conditioning, Heating and Refrigeration News, a trade publication in Troy, industrial construction was down 8 percent last year in the U.S. and should fall another 3 percent in 1992.

"Just-in-time delivery, which everyone seems to be going to these days, means inventory no longer sits in a plant. The parts are delivered as needed," said Gordon Duffy, editor for the weekly trade paper. "While the extra space frees up room for more equipment, which in turn increases plant capacity, it doesn't do much for the people out there who rely on new plants for their business."

Taking advantage of the trends presented, Doshi said he took on smaller projects larger competitors wouldn't touch and opened the business knowing former clients would follow. Those clients include the Big Three auto makers, Michigan Bell, the Robert Bosch Corp. in Farmington Hills, the Monsanto Co. in Trenton and the state of Michigan.

"We have an excellent client base, no question," said Haresh Dharia, vice president of operations, who grew up with Doshi and entered the U.S. in 1968. "We know our capabilities, our strengths, and how to put together the right formula. The secret to our success is developing a detailed plan and following it through."

Most recently, Doshi and Associates designed a pilot plant to be built inside Ford's Body and Assembly facility in Dearborn. The plant will allow the automaker to solve production problems before future vehicles are cleared for showroom orders.

Doshi, who is married and has two sons, was formerly president of Benjamin, Woodhouse & Guenther, an architectural engineering firm in Dearborn owned by Ghafari Associates in Livonia. Since 1975, Doshi has helped design mechanical systems for Lakeside Mall in Sterling Heights and Fairlane Mall in Dearborn, and was a member of the design team which refurbished the Detroit-Windsor tunnel.

Ed Genheimer, president and chairman of Ellis, Naeyaert Genheimer Associates, a large architectural engineering firm in Troy, where Doshi worked for 12 years, said his former employee was well-suited for success.

"In this kind of unsettled economy, when even established companies are struggling, it's tough to run a company let alone open a new venture," said Genheimer. "But Shailesh is a bright, hard-working individual. He will do well."

Doshi traced much of his present success to his early years in India, where his father owned a small publishing company supplying books and note pads to schools.

"In Bombay, I worked for my father during the summer and on school weekends," said Doshi. "And even then, hard work never bothered me. But I remember my father told me to work so you're in a position to control your own destiny."

The greatest test of that prophesy, said Doshi, was when he struggled to make ends meet during his graduate years at Wayne State. "I was working for both the book store and the library for $1.10 an hour. Plain hard work saw me through," he said.

Homes of Birmingham, developed Chestnut Run in Bloomfield Hills for a 1985 Homearama and Pine Creek Ridge in Brighton for a 1990 show.

Chestnut Run, a three-phase development of 135 single-family homes, was started in 1983 and sold out in '86, Katzman said. Houses started at $400,000. The 1984 Homearama launched Phase 2 of the development.

Pine Creek Ridge will be a decade-long development of detached houses and condos over 700 acres.

Economic conditions were vastly different between the two developments, Katzman said.

"Chestnut Run was started just when we were coming out of a recession," he said. "The timing was perfect. Chestnut Run would have sold without Homearama, but it certainly helped. By the time Homearama happened, we were up and running. We pre-sold Phase 3 by 50 percent."

And Brighton in '90?

"We were just going into the (Persian) Gulf War and now we're going into a depression," Katzman said. "Timing couldn't have been worse."

In retrospect, Katzman would have encouraged Homearama builders in Brighton to build at a more affordable price. Models started at $500,000 and not all have been sold, he said. About 15 of 63 lots in Phase 1 remain unsold.

"People perceive it as too high end," Katzman said. "People who can afford it aren't looking."

Still, he doesn't regret hosting a Homearama.

"It drew attention to the development," Katzman said. "I always think it helps to put up a dozen houses. I always refer to a dozen houses as instant neighborhood.

"We're a little behind, but the first phase is always the hardest," he said. "People want to see who's moving in, what's being built."

Biltmore Properties of Troy hosted the first Homearama in Troy's Fox Hall Subdivision in 1983 and in Livonia's Deer Creek Subdivision in 1986.

Both sites have sold out, said Abraham Ran, a former vice president at Biltmore and currently president of Somerset Development of West Bloomfield.

Biltmore built virtually all of Fox Hall itself, while several builders helped flesh out the larger Deer Creek property, Ran said.

"Every developer would love to have a Homearama," he said. "There have been a lot of sales of houses very fast. Thousands of people come through."

Help with recession

The first Homearama was launched during a recessionary period in an effort to spark business for Biltmore in Fox Hall and builders in other subdivisions, Ran recalled. It did just that, he added.

Carl R. Sams was an owner of Stony Pointe Development in Rochester when that company developed Stony Pointe there and hosted a Homearama in 1987.

He said he wouldn't call progress disappointing — not when you're building houses starting at 3,000 square feet and $300,000.

"What does the market absorb in a year?" Sams asked. "The economy has slowed everybody down. I don't care what sub it is. The economy is the determining factor in all developments today whether you have a Homearama or not."

So far, all 80 lots in Phase 1 have been sold and most have been built. Only a handful of spec houses remain of 45 built in Phase 2. All 42 lots have been sold to builders in Phase 3 and six of nine condos at that end of the development have been sold, Sams said.

"I would always want a Homearama," Sams said. "I think they're really good so people can see what's on the market and available for sale."

Jeff Kellogg, president of Chateau Land Development, hosted a Homearama in 1984 in the Farmington Brook Subdivision.

Marketing tool

He developed the 125-lot parcel in 1979 just as a recession hit. He was able to hold on financially and aggressively sought the second Homearama ever tried in the metro area.

It turned out to be a good move — even though it cost him about $100,000 more to host by having to discount lots to participants, build parking areas and pay for security.

"Within two years, we sold out," Kellogg said. "Homearama was a great marketing tool. Forty thousand families went through the sub (previously) had no idea we were there."

Scott Jacobson, president of Jacobson Development in Birmingham, co-developed a 75-lot site, Meadows at Oakland Farms, in Oakland Township and hosted a Homearama this spring.

"Whether we had the Homearama there or not, we were interested in purchasing the property," he said. "We're north of Rochester and we felt it (Homearama) would give us exposure. We believe in Homearama — to show the public the latest and greatest in housing."

Jacobson said he doesn't know exactly how many of the 10 Homearama models have sold. He figures that some 10 deals on the other 65 lots have resulted from the show.

"We're getting some good traffic now," Jacobson said. "The problem now is the high-price market has turned soft."

He expected that things will improve even more after the election.

Flying start: Builders scurry to put the finishing touches on Homearamas (like this one at Victoria Park held in Detroit in June) to ready the welcome mat for visitors. But often the Homearama is small part of the entire development.

Economy, credit crunch skew figures

(AP) — Sales of new homes fell in September for the first time in five months, but analysts predicted sales would increase modestly the rest of the year.

Many also said the government's report of a 1-percent decline was suspect because its preliminary estimates have consistently under reported actual activity this year and subsequently were revised upward.

According to the Departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development, sales totaled 617,000 at a seasonally adjusted annual rate in September, down from a sharply revised annual rate of 623,000 in August.

The revised August data showed sales actually rose 1.6 percent, instead of falling 6.1 percent to a 570,000 annual rate.

The Commerce Department said the revisions occur because the preliminary reports often are based on just 60 percent of the data sought and then updated as the remainder of the information becomes available.

Adren Cooper, a department spokesman, added that the initial estimate is based on applications for building permits and later revised with actual sales information. Until recently, that resulted in relatively small adjustments.

But the problem has been exacerbated recently because economic weakness and tight credit conditions are causing builders to postpone filing applications until after they actually have made a sale, Cooper said.

The result, said economist Michael S. Carliner of the National Association of Home Builders, "has been a consistent bias toward under reporting."

David Berson, an economist with the Federal National Mortgage Association, concurred.

"Every month for the past year, we have seen these numbers revised upward, and we'll see it again for September," he said "And even if it weren't, the September number was strong."

It was the third straight month that the sales rate topped 600,000. Carliner said he expects activity to remain in the 600,000-625,000 range for the rest of this year. Sales totaled 509,000 last year.

Analysts said sales have been driven in recent months by the lowest mortgage rates in nearly 20 years. Rates dropped to 7.84 percent during the week ended Sept. 11, the lowest since 7.76 percent on June 29, 1973, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

Houses also became more affordable as the median price declined 1.6 percent in September to $121,000. The median means half of the homes cost more and half cost less.

Recent sales have helped push the level for the first nine months of the year 20.2 percent above those of the same period last year, when the housing industry was emerging from the recession.

But analysts contend the housing industry will be unable to show any significant strength without major improvements in jobs and incomes.

Construction gains noted

(AP) — Construction spending posted its biggest advance in five months in September, boosted by residential and government outlays. Non-residential building remained weak.

The value of residential, nonresidential and government construction totaled $428.5 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, up 1.3 percent from August, according to the Commerce Department report. It was the largest increase since spending rose 1.4 percent in April.

But the report also showed that spending dropped 1.1 percent in August, to $422.8 billion.

FOR OVER 25 YEARS, THE QUALITY AND HONESTY HAVE BEEN BUILT IN.

Lot supply concerns builders

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

The supply of developed lots ready for residential construction has dipped to low levels in many parts of the country, according to a report prepared by U.S. Housing Markets.

The report attributes the decline in great part to a reluctance of lenders to finance real estate developments and more intensive local regulation.

"Unless a livelier pace of lot and land development can be achieved, any strong resurgence of homebuying demand will soon outstrip supply," said David L. Chapman II, executive vice president for Lomas Mortgage USA.

"Should that happen, serious housing price inflation will be the inevitable and unfortunate result," Chapman added.

Lomas Mortgage, parent to U.S. Housing Markets, is a diversified financial services firm and the nation's leading servicer of home mortgages.

Kansas City, for example, has only a one-year supply of available lots given current building activity, the report indicated. A serious shortage "looms on the horizon" in Minneapolis-St. Paul, and St. Louis has less than a two-year supply.

Metro Detroit wasn't surveyed. But Robert Katzman, partner in Burton-Katzman Development of Birmington, sees similar problems here.

"If you're a builder that buys lots from developers, they're becoming in short supply," he said. "Lenders aren't financing real estate developments any more. Inventory out there is getting eaten up.

"In certain parts of town it's a supply and demand thing. There's more demand than supply," he said. "In the Rochester area and Oakland Township, there's limited homesites coming on stream. Farmington is all built or tied up. Very little is available."

Norman Cohen, president of Biltmore Properties in Troy, sees the potential for problems here.

"It's a lot more difficult today to develop subdivisions than it was five or six years ago," he said. "So much more government regulation serves to cause delays and added expense. Another problem is a reluctance of lenders.

"I don't think there really is a shortage yet," Cohen added. "Possibly one could develop in the future. There likely will be a shortage in a year or two."

A 1990 moratorium on extending water lines in several western Wayne and Oakland communities due to pressure problems also will impact development the longer it continues, Katzman and Cohen said.

And if development slows to the extent that demand exceeds supply, don't be surprised to see lot prices soar when development resumes, they added.

That situation already has happened in Kansas City, U.S. Housing Markets reported. Lot prices in more desirable locations there have risen 10 to 25 percent within the past two years.

Historical shot? Builders fear that a shortage of supply combined with costly regulations will drive the cost of lots up.

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Playtime is learning time for children

So often I hear child care providers who attend various workshops I facilitate express a great concern regarding some parents not understanding the importance of play.

One child care provider who has been in the child care field for less than one year appeared bewildered as she discussed with her peers suggestions on how she should articulate to this particular parent that her son of three years was indeed learning and building necessary skills when he plays with blocks, lace-up patterns, water play, etc.

She continued on to say that this parent felt the provider should be working on more academic activities, such as reading readiness, mathematics and science.

The attitude of this particular parent is not an uncommon one. It signals that the parent needs a clear awareness of what the indicators are of growth and development she should be looking for in her child's everyday play. Through sophisticated solitary play language as well as role playing is being developed as a 3-year-old plays with miniature wrestlers. Moreover, small motor and manipulative skills are being built. Creativity? Concentration? YES!!

Churches help create Genesis II

■ When the Detroit Rescue Mission Ministries wanted to open its Genisis House II, it had to find a way to renovate the former convent. It happened on the idea of Adopt-a-Room which attracted support from local church groups eager to help the homeless.

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

"Open it and they will come." That haunting line in the movie "Field of Dreams" is very applicable to the Genesis House projects, sponsored by the Detroit Rescue Mission Ministries (DRMM).

"Women and children have special needs," said Don DeVos, DRMM president. Of the 25,000-30,000 homeless people on the streets of metropolitan Detroit, some 7,006 are women and children and the need for special housing was obvious.

Genesis House I, a home for 15-18 children and women who are substance abusers opened in December 1988. They offered life skills classes along with counseling in substance abuse. According to DeVos, "We were always turning down four for every one (admitted to Geneis House 1). Then it got as high as 50 last December that we were turning down for every one we could take."

The former Visitation Convent on the corner of Webb and 14th in Detroit had been purchased by DRMM several years ago but had been used for storage purposes due to a lack of renovation funds.

Through the time, effort and talents of many organizations and individuals, the rundown building has been transformed into a bright and cheerful 26-bedroom structure that will be home for 60-70 women and children.

"It's so elegant, people will think we have spent a lot of money on this," noted Lois Tosh, administrative assistant. "But we haven't. So much was donated to us."

At dedication ceremonies on Oct. 17, special thanks was extended to the "Adopt-a-Roomers." The Adopt-a-Room project allowed individuals and organizations to "adopt" one or more rooms to refurnish. Carpeting and painting was done by DRMM, with everything else supplied by the adopting group. The result was 26 rooms as individual as the group themselves.

Seeing red

Color adds spice to hair

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

There's something about the color red.

Buy a red car and you're sporty. Use red in a kitchen and and here come the hunger pangs. Dye your hair red and you're fiery, mysterious.

"Redheads are very confident about themselves," said stylist Nadwa Yono Breda of Livonia. "And when you hear from men, they say they turn twice to look when a redhead walks by."

Could it be that the advertising ditty about blondes having more fun was in error? Could it be we were being cruel calling redheads names like carrot top? Possibly, considering red is very much in hair fashion, very hot this fall.

Hot, yes, but not the orange red that '50s favorite Lucille Ball sported. Today's red fall into the rage of vibrant red pepper and paprika. The lightest blonde to the darkest brunette can go red with a variety of skin tones (except the very pale white), according to Breda.

"It all starts out with the designer clothes and goes from there," Breda said. "Red has been around for a few years, but in the last year a redhead has hit the market really good.

"Usually, when people see a redhead or someone with a shade of red, they have a sense of admiration and wish they could do it. Sometimes people lack confidence and aren't sure of it, but usually they just love the red colors."

One of the top hair color artists in the metropolitan area, Breda knows her reds. As an educator for Joico's Vero Color coloring products, she travels to salons throughout the area, training stylist on how to achieve the color reds that are popular these days.

She's done several guests spots on local; TV shows to talk about hair color and styling and was one of the official hairdresses of the 1992 Miss America pageant, working with Miss Michigan.

She's been in the styling business for 11 years and worked as

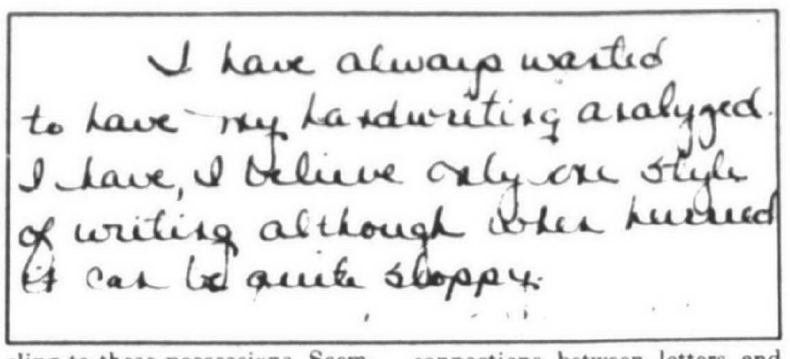
GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene:
I turned 50 this year, and am right handed. I have always wanted my handwriting analyzed and am very excited at the thought of this opportunity. Also, I love astrology and have strong intuitive abilities. I love helping people in my career, and my children and grandchild are most important in my life. I can tell you also enjoy people and try to help them have an enlightened life. Thank you for considering my letter.
E.M.
Grosse Pointe



People fill an important role in our writer's life. In her interpersonal relationships she seeks amiability and peace. Often she is inclined to take the line of least resistance, compromising to keep harmony. However, when push comes to shove she can hold her own. And in some areas she may even be assertive.

This is a rather emotional woman. At various times she experiences feelings of restlessness and highs and lows in her moods. At the time she wrote she seemed discouraged about something in her life. Money challenges may be on the horizon.

There is a measure of humor in her handwriting. She enjoys a good time and her sense of humor should prove helpful on the rough days.

Making a good impression on others is important. To accomplish this she may come on a little strong. I think she also enjoys experimenting with the way she looks and/or dresses. A seeming contradiction here is her desire for attention and approval and yet she does not always put forth a great deal of effort to receive it.

Our writer finds it difficult to conceal her feelings. If she is tired, euphoric, sad, enthused, discouraged, etc., it will show in her body language. She is mindful of correct behavior for her social set and those who mean most to her. And she may have a possessive attitude toward them.

Throughout this handwriting there is a strong need to possess many things. And she tends to cling to these possessions. Seemingly, she perceives some emotional deprivation from the past. Past experiences impact strongly on her. This need to have and own things suggests she may equate material acquisitions with love. And although at times she may feel somewhat insecure, she will make an effort to conceal this from others.

Some of her goals necessitate challenge on her part. She has been blessed with the necessary energy to carry them out. She organizes her daily routine rather well, even though she does not do too much planning prior to becoming involved in the work.

She enjoys her work and her enthusiasm for it can be contagious to those around her. The garland connections between letters and the forward slant of her handwriting provide her with a measure of empathy. She is able to relate to others and feel both for and with them. Her empathy and intuition should be definite assets in working with people.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful objective feedback is always welcome. If you have two different styles of handwriting, includes samples of both.

an educator for British stylist Trevor Sorbi. She trained under the Englishman in California and traveled throughout the country, training other stylists in new styles and haircuts.

She joined Joico a year ago and learns what's in with color, passing that information on to local salons.

"I'm in salons one-two times a week and the stylists are eager about it (red colors)," she said. "They love the red colors and to the one say they wish they had clients who wanted it, wish they had clients to apply it to."

She likes working with Vero Color because it is water soluable and has a moisture base. It has a low 1.9 percent ammonia level so it doesn't irritate the skin and has no artificial viscosity boosters which make the color work.

■ 'They love the red colors and to the one say they wish they had clients who wanted it . . .'
Nadwa Breda
stylist

"It leaves the hair extremely shiny and real shows off the red colors," she said.

Breda is doing three styles of redhead for the fall. The brightest is a vibrant hot red pepper, achieved using two shades of red and an intensifier.

Breda also has found that "sometimes you just can't achieve color with highlights (streaks of color)." She creates a aura of red by using bleach to highlight. When the red dye is applied overall, the bleached strands pick up the red and peak through the main reddish brown hair color.

The result, she said, is a more natural looking hair color.

Her last look is what she calls a paprika red. She uses a level six shade of red with a little bit of intensifier.

"Redheads are always in, but today's reds are more richer reds than the orange reds of the '50s," she said.

Red also compliments the changing hairstyles which are picking up the more defined curls of the 1930s, '40s, '50s and 18th century, according to Breda. Straight hair and the permed look are out, barrel or stand-up curls with long curled tendrils are in.

"Almost every color of hair except the white blondes have a base color of red," Breda said. "Sometimes, there's a lack of confidence and people aren't sure of it (red hair), but usually people just love the red colors."

Again it is not uncommon for a parent to feel secure about their child's learning through visual aids, such as a child's art projects, ditto sheets and similar tangible items. That's OK especially when it's accompanied with the parent's knowledge and understanding.

Play is a powerful tool necessary in the growth and development of a child. I concur that play is indeed the life line of childhood. It offers a child the opportunity to escape from the adult world and interact with his or her environment in a way that is natural and stress free.

Play enables a child to test the waters of adult life through dramatic play, imitating and conversation. It offers stimulation and provides experiences that can be built upon, upgraded to new challenges. Play not only builds the body — large and fine motor skills — it's thought provoking, leading to problem solving.

The most formative form of play is "imaginary play," needing little to no props. It represents the inner creativity and uniqueness of each child. It is an expression and intrepretation of a particular thought, mental image or information given to a child.

■ The most formative form of play is 'imaginary play,' needing little to no props. It represents the inner creativity and uniqueness of each child. It is an expression and intrepretation of a particular thought, mental image or information given to a child.

A child engaged in stimulistic play can be free from rules that limit their ability to be creative and explore.

Creativity can be enhanced with props. Props, such as farm animals, barn and fences, miniature people and houses, will give children a clue as to what to play. It creates a situation and gives a child a starting point.

Children learn that some toys are heavier than others, that different size blocks will not fit together. They learn that a rubber ball will bounce, that a boat floats, water can be poured from a cup, pitcher or even other nonconventional items.

Children also learn through play that other children have similar skills. Rodney can run fast, but Rebecca can jump real high. Four-year-old Rodney can learn cooperation and develop social and large motor skills as he creates a game involving running and jumping with Rebecca.

Play is a child's business (or adult for that matter!) It can be spontaneous, informal, relaxing and a fun process of learning. Did you know that from a simple puzzle activity a child learns eye-hand coordination, matching, sorting, sizes, colors, problem solving and space relations.

Pouring milk from a pitcher, a child learns self-confidence and pride, as well as full and empty. It is vital that a child be exposed and encouraged to play. It is through play that children come to know new things and accept these things and their concept into their scheme or realm of knowledge.

Remember, parents, child care providers and those individuals working with children, promoting play will provide paths to various levels of growth. It is a necessary means of developing the "whole child" into becoming a competent, decision-making adult.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BEING BORN AGAIN
A Bible Study of a Confused Subject
Many may respond to this topic with boredom or scorn. But wise men will remember Jesus saying, "Ye must be born again." This subject is very important, and we should know it in truth.
Though repeatedly preached and discussed, most are still ignorant of Bible truth. Four great heresies exist today that are giving false hope to many that they are born again. Many are confident they are born again but cannot prove it from a Bible. Such flimsy confidence will not do with this important issue. We should be able to prove it without doubt. This seminar will not rehash things you have heard before. The four false theories will be identified and the truth proven and explained. The conclusion will be different than you think. No matter what you believe about the new birth, you should attend this seminar. Even if you disagree with the conclusion, you will have studied a very important issue. Original material, visual aids, and handouts will be used. This absolutely free seminar is given by the Farmington Hills Church (a Baptist church) for the truth's sake and the glory of God.

Regional to be played at Hyatt

THE BRIDGE CROWD

WOODY BOYD

"There are toys for all ages and duplicate bridge is certainly one of them." — English proverb

I am reminded by those who have had the task that the planning and supervision of a successful major tournament is an extremely demanding stint. In recent years, the Vincent Remey Motor City Regional has been just such a task because the slippage in attendance has been dramatic at its past location. This prompted the MBA board, led by president Art Golumbia of Farmington, to select a new site for Michigan's traditionally most prodigious red and gold point extravaganza.

The Hyatt Regency Dearborn, one of the posh spots in the Midwest, was the overwhelming hotel choice for this year's spiffy six-day playing affair. Dates have been changed to Tuesday-Sunday, Dec. 1-6, but it's expected that by '93 the customary October time again will be reinstated if the Hyatt can make the necessary arrangements.

In spite of his strenuous agenda, the board asked Art if he would again serve as tournament chairman. He graciously accepted, even though the demands in planning and management are numerous. Recently we visited regarding the coming occasion and he and MBA's board were bubbling with enthusiasm. As Art said, 'I'll match Dearborn's Hyatt against the best. Twenty minutes from Metro Airport; a $69-per-night special bridge room rate; 90-second elevated train ride to Michigan's second-largest swish shopping center; many exceptional restaurants within minutes' walking distance; sauna, exercise center and free parking, and a bunch more fun-bustin' things to do like historical Greenfield Village, Ford World Headquarters and the famous Dearborn Inn almost within sight of the Hyatt's front door."

I would expect that this will be Michigan's most-attended major event ever. It seems from what I've been told, a bevy of experts from the four corners of North America are expecting to participate. So, set the date to play in this one if it's the type of challenge that tickles your intellectual competitive fancy.

Good bridge is on occasion a spectacular bid or play, but more often than not it's superior judgment and excellent technique. Art's lovely wife Linda gave me today's wonder, which the president recently played at Farmington's new club The Bridge Connection. Test yourself with the advantage of seeing four hands. Then decide whether you as declarer would have done as well with only the dummy and your 13 to work with.

INSERT A

Unquestionably six no trump by Linda was a wee bit risky, but she loved her middle card texture and thought her partner could put them to use to conquer what she had required of him.

W. led ?

West led the heart ace, which was favorable, but he was a devotee of playing aces against slams at his first opportunity. (Against suits it is a consideration, but not against no trump slams.) The lead did offer Arthur a modicum of hope, but not much more. Without it, even the great Zia Mahmood might not have unraveled the only out card possibility, and even that would have necessitated defensive cooperation.

When East dropped the heart queen, Art went into confinement to consider the situation. Would West lead the heart ace if he held the jack in back of it? Not likely! At trick two West continued the suit, playing the seven. After a perplexing 20 seconds, Art reached his decision. He needed two heart entries to dummy to successfully execute his plan, so he played the king and was rewarded. Again,he paused, but decided he was on the right track. West had four hearts and probably wouldn't have played the ace unless he had a potential setting trick like the diamond queen. If that premise was correct, he couldn't hold both black jacks protected and maybe neither. So be it! At trick (3) dummy's small spade and successfully finessing East's jack. Trick (4) a further protection against the other minor queen singleton, he played the diamond ace. (5) and (6), the spade ace queen. (7), his last heart to dummy's ten. (8), the spade king pitching his diamond five. (9)-(12), dummy's club queen. A small club to his ten and the ace-king of that suit. His diamond king at trick (13) totaled a dozen. Lucky? Sort of, but also exceptional technique.

Do you know how a person is born again? Most Christians think that the new birth occurs as a result of a person's will or decision. However, the Bible teaches that the new birth is not based on the will of man but on the will of God alone (John 1:13 & 5:21). Only by carefully studying the Bible can we know the truth about being born again. Our FREE seminar on this topic is on Thursday, November 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Comfort Inn.

Job well done: Phyllis Wallis and Art Pfleger are proud of the room remodeled by the Junior Youth Fellowship of Dunning Park Bible Chapel in Redford for Genisis House II (above) in Detroit.

munity Church in Redford. "I've always wanted a way to help the homeless. This was a way to begin to be involved.

The Ladies Bible Study Group at Covenant decided to take on the project and the 1991 Thanksgiving Eve offering at the church was donated. With that, Mollenkamp, Susan Lindman and Pat Seibert began to purchase the necessary items and collect donations.

The group intends to continue the ministry to their room and its occupants. And Mollenkamp hopes to be able to go down to Genesis House II and help with teaching life skill classes.

Art Pfleger, director of support services for DRMM, had first-hand knowledge of the Adopt-a-Room program that had been initiated by his colleague, Tom Layman. Pfleger brought the information back to his church, Dunning Park Bible Chapel in Redford.

The Junior Youth Fellowship, under the direction of Jim and Shari McKechnie, coordinated the project and worked on decorating their room.

"The outpouring of help from such a wide range of people at Genesis II has been incredible," Pfleger said. "It's been absolutely breathtaking now to see it come to fruition."

Pfleger hopes that the Adopt-a-Room concept will be used in future DRAM projects.

Linda Luoto is a member or Women's Fellowship in Action at Holy Trinity Lutheren Church in Livonia. She pointed out that her church has been involved with Genesis House I since its inception.

When the opportunity came up, the women's group, with Laurie Dwyer as president, decided to adopt a room at Geneis House II. They began gathering furniture from the congregation.

"The items we need to purchase will be supplied by the women's groups," said Luoto. Although their room wasn't quite finished, they hoped to have it completed by the Nov. 2 opening date.

Sue Severn, chairman of the board of outreach at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Livonia, has been active with DRMM and knew about the Adopt-a-Room program and mentioned it at the Wednesday morning Women's Bible Study program she teaches at the church.

The group decided to take on the project and the women come up with all kinds of things to donate. One group member is a professional decorator which came in handy, according to Severn.

Working with women

"We made it a comfortable and welcoming room," Severn said. "But even more exciting than doing the room is being involved with the women. We'd like to do follow-ups with the residents. We'd like to meet the women and see how we can minister to them.

"We're willing and we're able to reach out to them. It could be that this will grow beyond our small Bible Study group and that the church at large will find itself involved in ministering to the residents of Genisis II."

According to DeVos, that is exactly what's in needed at Genisis II.

"It's not just a one-shot deal," he said. "We need committed lives to stand behind us."

Janis Breuder, director of Genesis House II, pointed out that the house won't be for substance abusers. The stay will be for 120 days rather then the 30 days at Genesis I.

"The women are required to participate in the classes that we offer," she said. "They are also required to help out in taking care of the building. They will also help with the cooking of the meals. They'll be supervised in the kitchen and the women will take turns with cooking and serving the meals."

There also will be morning and evening devotions and on weekends, a church service in the chapel.

The life skills classes in parenting, budgeting, resume writing, interviewing, balancing checkbooks and setting up a checkbook. There also is a hope to work with the Detroit Public Schools' adult education program to help the women get their general equivalency diploma, if they don't have that.

According to DeVos, there are still ways for individuals and organizations to be involved. Genesis II still needs commercial washers and dryers, folding or stack chairs for the chapel, a baby grand piano, sound and security systems two 15-passenger vans, maintenance equipment, tools and kitchen utensils.

The opportunity to be involved will extend to the future as well.

"I, as president, personally have these long-term plans," said Devos. 'I'd like to see us have a couple of city blocks where we could combine everything in one given area and have a ministry to a thousand a night rather than just a few hundred.

"This is my goal before God takes me."

Parents must let go of their adult children

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

RABBI IRWIN GRONER

"What did we do wrong?" This plaintive question has been uttered by bewildered parents who are not able to comprehend or explain the irresponsible or injurious behavior of their grown children.

Many parents, when confronted by the fact that their adolescent or college-age children (or even beyond) have violated moral or legal standards, torment themselves with the feelings of guilt and personal responsibility for the transgressions of the younger generation.

In an ironic reversal of the Biblical judgment, contemporary society often visits the sins of the children upon their fathers and mothers.

As a Rabbi, I have been witness to the shame and self-punishment that parents undergo when they discover that a son or daughter is using narcotics, or has violated the law; or has engaged in some willfully perverse act that has brought havoc upon his or her life.

Since most parents try, as best they can, to provide proper training and direction for their young, it is an over simplification, when such tragic events occur, to place all blame upon the shoulders of the older generation.

What does one say to parents who have trouble with their children and cry out "What did we do that was wrong? Where did we fail?" There are, to be sure, many ways in which we do fail our children. We neglect to give them enough attention, to talk things over with them, to let them know firmly and lovingly where we stand, to express our convictions about our faith and about our values.

Yes, there are times when we do fail in giving them the proper example of conduct and practice. But, at the same time, there are numerous cases, perhaps the majority, in which parents do the right things, communicate faithfully, set fine examples, and still their children disappoint them. What about this?

The answer lies in two parts. First, young people are more influenced by their peers, by the media, by the moral confusion of our age than they are by their elders, at least so it seems to me.

There is such a thing as the "spirit of the times" which overwhelms any generation. That spirit of moral defiance, of self-indulgence and of instant gratification exercises a powerful and seductive force upon the impressionable hearts and minds of the young.

The second part of the answer lies with children themselves. Once you have done your best for your children, and they grow to maturity, you have to let them stand on their own feet.

Their mistakes are their own, and not yours. You have done what you could, you have talked your heart out, you have communicated your conscience and still they will not listen, at least not yet. It is up to them to choose what they will, but we cannot consider our children to be babies forever.

Parents who have tried their best (and most do) should not harbor guilt feelings. Our sons and daughters are people in their own right, and, if they reject what their parents have offered, this is their decision, upon which they will either rise or fall.

Always, we must give them the knowledge that we love them, that they can come to us with their problems, and we shall do what we can to help them. After this, we must hope for the best and accept what may, in some instances, be the unacceptable without tormenting ourselves on how and why we failed.

Church has new leader

The congregation of Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church welcomed its new senior pastor Nov. 8.

Replacing Dr. Bartlett Hess, who retired, is the Rev. Mark A. Brewer who was called to serve on Sept. 27. Calling Brewer concluded a selection process that began in January of 1992 when a search committee was elected at the annual meeting of the congregation.

Brewer comes to Ward Presbyterian Church from Engelwood, Colo., where he founded Cherry Creek Church and served there as senior pastor since 1980. The Cherry Creek congregation began with eight couples and increased to Sunday attendance of more than 3,000 people.

Brewer was born in Denver, Colo., and received his bachelor of arts degree in social science from Colorado State University in 1978. In 1981, he earned a master of divinity degree from Fuller Theological Seminary, and is presently completing work on his doctoral degree at Fuller Seminary.

Brewer and his wife Carolyn have been married since 1978, and have three children — Vanessa, Paul and Rachel.

Brewer's first day in the pulpit at Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church was Nov. 8.
