Schools cleared in child's death

A suit by a couple whose 8-year-old son hung himself a day after seeing a movie in school has been dismissed. The suit charged the Plymouth Canton school district was negligent by allowing the youth to see the movie, in which a boy tries to kill himself.

A suit charging the Plymouth Canton schools with negligence in the hanging death of a second grader has been dismissed. Wayne County Circuit Judge Samuel Turner on Monday granted the schools' motion for summary disposition in the Stephen Nalepa lawsuit, agreeing with the district that the schools were not guilty of gross negligence in the March 24, 1990 death.

Stephen Nalepa, 8, was found hanging by a belt from his loft in his Canton Township home. The previous day, Stephen and his classmates viewed "Nobody's Useless," a film about a handicapped boy who eventually decides life is worth living after trying to take his own life. The movie character first attempts to kill himself by jumping off a bridge, then by hanging himself with a belt. Mary Katherine Norton, attorney for Stephen and Deborah Nalepa, said she and co-counsel Barry Waldman will appeal.

"We believe the opinion is wrong, and we will be filing an appeal," Norton said. Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben said he received word of the ruling, but declined to comment until he reviews the case. Plaintiffs in the suit include Hoben, the school board, and Gallimore Elementary Principal Joyce Reefer Deren, and school staffers Jacqueline Hisey, William O'Connor, Ann Wood-Alatolo, Jane Armstrong, Newspaper debate headed to court?

News on the corner: Denise LaMotte of Plymouth Township buys a newspaper from one of several boxes at Main and Penniman. Some downtown development authority members want to move the boxes, claiming they're ugly.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A controversy sparked by some merchants' intent to remove newspaper boxes from Main Street got an airing at city hall on Thursday.

Representatives of the Detroit Newspaper Agency and The Community Crier told DDA members that should the DDA put serious restrictions on the placement of boxes, a court fight would result.

John Taylor, an attorney representing the corporation which runs the Detroit Free Press and Detroit News, suggested an approach that could avoid litigation.

He passed out a copy of a memorandum of understanding used in other cities where the issue of regulating the appearance or placement of the boxes has been an issue.

While the DDA has yet to review the memorandum — and DDA members said decisions on possible regulation of the boxes would happen during the upcoming streetscape renovation — some DDA members said a court fight should be avoided.

"If we can't get letters of understanding, I don't want to pursue litigation," DDA member Larry Franka said.

"I agree," DDA member David Pugh said.

'Discover' campaign flak flies

BY KEVIN BROWN

A new ad campaign to promote downtown Plymouth is ready to go, but some downtown advocates could be happier.

■ DOWNTOWN

The promotion features radio spots and newspaper inserts, using the theme, "Discover the Exciting Worlds of Plymouth."

Put together by Doyle Marketing, the ad campaign seeks to promote shopping downtown to allow merchants to better compete with area malls.

While downtown development authority members say they're glad to get the campaign going, some said the marketing firm hired to run it could be doing a better job.

Downtown merchant Fred Hill said the firm should be more aggressive in promoting special events in Plymouth in late fall and winter, starting Proud to be a pigeon: A plethora of pesky pigeons is perplexing downtown planners, who will spend $7,500 to prevent them from roosting in the downtown parking deck.

Plymouth initiates pigeon blockade

Oh, those pesky pigeons.

Because there have been complaints over pigeon droppings making a mess of things on the lower level of the downtown parking deck, the downtown development authority is spending $7,500 on prevention.

"We're not going to poison pigeons or kill them," said Steve Guile, DDA director.

Instead, the DDA has hired a firm to provide metal shields for lights, panels in spaces between ceiling beams, and "pigeon spikes" on exit signs.

These materials should keep pigeons from roosting in the deck, Guile said.

Pigeons, he said, "are leaving deposits on the cars, deposits around the poles, people are getting out and stepping on that type of thing."

There's also some concern that pigeon droppings can cause long term deterioration of the deck, and that they pose a health hazard.

The pigeon-proofing materials are on order and could be installed in two weeks, Guile said.

In 1986, the city commission tried to eliminate a pigeon problem downtown by poisoning pigeons, and that sparked complaints from some residents who said that was needlessly cruel.

The pigeon poisoning practice was abandoned, in favor of pigeon trapping.

Join the army

The Plymouth Salvation Army announces it's aggressively seeking businesses, organizations, churches and schools to collect food for the needy.

Each year, the army gives out thousands of food bags to needy families in Canton, Plymouth and Northville. If your group is willing to display a "Baskets Full of Love" poster and food drop box or sponsor a food drive, call the Salvation Army at 453-5487.

The posters and boxes will be available for pickup soon.

So long leaves.

The city of Plymouth begins its final collection of leaves this week, and city residents are encouraged to rake all leaves to the curb by Thursday, the department of public works reports. Leaf collection will be followed by the street sweeper. Questions can be directed to 455-1392.

Be warned

Sharon Thomas, a Plymouth volunteer with the Michigan Make A Wish Foundation, warns the public that callers who solicit residents and identify themselves as representing the organization really do not.

"We do not solicit funds, period," said Thomas, adding there have been reports of such phone solicitations.

She urges residents with questions to call Michigan Make A Wish at 1-800-622-WISH.

Dentists meet

The Plymouth Research Institute is a study club of area dentists founded by dentist Laurence Seluk two years ago.

The group seeks to upgrade the quality of dental care in the community by bringing in speakers to address subjects including preventive dentistry, new antibiotics and cosmetic dentistry.

The group is scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. today at the Northville Crossing Restaurant, 18900 Northville Road. For more information, call 453-0580.

Railroad cited for blocking traffic

CSX Transportation was cited eight times in four days by Plymouth police for obstructing railroad crossings for time periods exceeding five minutes.

CSX trains delayed traffic on three occasions Nov. 13 at the Sheldon and Mill St. and at the Ann Arbor Trail crossings.

On Nov. 12, CSX trains obstructed traffic three times. CSX trains also caused delays Nov. 11 and Nov. 10.

CSX was ordered to appear in 35th District Court within 20 days.

Larceny

A doctor's office employee from the McAuley Health Center on Ann Arbor Trail reported $140 in petty cash missing. The theft occurred between 5:30 p.m. Nov. 11 and 10:30 a.m. Nov. 12.

There were no signs of forced entry.

Cash was kept in two small boxes in a locked desk.

The 36-year-old complainant said that when she left the office, the shades were open. When she arrived at work, the shades were closed. That happened two days in a row, she told officers.

O&E salesman had passion for music, politics

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER

If Rex E. Hatt took a quiet, professional approach to his job in advertising sales, it was probably because he was so passionate about outside interests ranging from politics to classical music, clients and co-workers said Saturday.

Mr. Hatt, a Farmington Hills resident and longtime sales representative for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, died Friday in Ann Arbor after a long illness. He was 67.

Visitation is 6-7 p.m. Tuesday with a memorial service to follow at the Schrader Funeral Home, 280 S. Main, Plymouth.

"He seemed like a quiet man on the outside, but it didn't take a lot to provoke him into a good political discussion," said Peg Knoespel, who worked with Hatt at the O&E in Livonia.

"People knew they could get him talking if they just took the opposite viewpoint."

Jack Padley, classified advertising manager, said Mr. Hatt had a natural gift for sales work and was "a very enjoyable man to work with."

In nearly 20 years with the newspapers, Mr. Hatt sold retail advertising in Redford, Livonia and Plymouth.

He retired last August.

Clients found him easy to work with and a consummate professional.

"As a businessman, people like Rex Hatt are few and far between," said Tom Leckie, vice president of Bergstrom's Plumbing and Heating.

"He would make suggestions, and he knew what we needed without being pushy."

Leckie said he grew so fond of the business relationship that he requested Mr. Hatt remain as Bergstrom's representative even after the company moved out of his territory several years ago.

A Detroit-area native, Mr. Hatt came to the O&E in the early 1970s after a stint at a Houston newspaper. He also worked in the circulation department of the Detroit Times, which folded in 1960 after merging with the Detroit News.

He attended the University of Southern California and served in the Army during World War II.

A lifelong lover of classical music and the fine arts, Mr. Hatt served as general manager of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and continued to write program notes for the orchestra after leaving that job several years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Jane; and a daughter, Cheryl (Mark) Halpin of Detroit.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Downtown youth gatherings draw fire

Cruising season is over, but some youths who continue to gather in the parking lot at Dairy Mart at 885 Penniman have drawn the attention of some downtown merchants and police.

Youths who hang out there sometimes shout obscenities at passers-by, and some are suspected in incidents of vandalism downtown, say police and some downtown development authority members.

"They were there last night, they were passing money, there is something going on. This is not simply loitering," said DDA member David Pugh.

While some DDA members urged Police Chief Robert Scoggins to get the youths to move on, Scoggins said he's learned through the city's battle with downtown cruisers in recent years that kids can loiter — unless the business owner wants them gone.

"Sometimes they look at people standing out there as potential customers," Scoggins said, adding he's talked with the business owner and a district manager to encourage them to work with police.

The store will close earlier, at 2 a.m., and the pay phone in the lot is to be removed in hopes of discouraging loitering, DDA members said.

Norma Foster, and Alice Brown.

In the opinion issued last week, Turner held that the schools were not negligent.

The judge said the Nalepas allege that the schools breached a duty to exercise due care in failing to screen the film "Nobody's Useless," an action which led to imitative conduct resulting in the minor's death.

"The defendants submit that they are not beholden to any duties such as those alleged by the plaintiff," wrote Turner, "and the free speech clause of the U.S. Constitution enjoins the type of action sought to be maintained. Although the defendant owed the decedent the duty of reasonable care, as a matter of law, that duty did not include an obligation to view and thereafter decline to exhibit the subject film based on the contingency that a student might resultingly commit suicide.

"The court finds that the result that in fact occurred (i.e. the suicide), was not as a matter of law, foreseeable."

The school district and court are characterizing Stephen's death as a suicide. Canton police and the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office, however, said the cause of death was undetermined, and that it wasn't possible to say whether it was suicide or an accident.

A New York medical doctor called as an expert witness said that Stephen "at his age, was not able to form the intent to commit suicide. His death resulted from a foreseeable act of imitation."

Stephen Nalepa's death isn't the first incident involving "Nobody's Useless" at Gallimore Elementary School.

A Canton woman recently testified that her son, who attended Gallimore from 1983-88, tried to kill himself after watching "Nobody's Useless" while a student at the elementary school.

Shortly after he saw the movie, "my daughter telephoned me at work and said that my son had just tried to kill himself by climbing on top of a freezer in the basement, tying a noose around his neck and pretending to jump," she testified.

"When I came home and asked why he had done this, he said because the boy did it in the movie he'd seen at school."

The woman said she went to Gallimore and told Principal Joyce Deren what had happened.

"Mrs. Deren said that my son's actions could not possibly be connected to the movie, and she said I was making far too much of the situation," she testified.

"Mrs. Deren further said that the school board believed "Nobody's Useless" was an excellent film."

Another issue involving the Nalepa case already has made its way to the Michigan Court of Appeals, where it is pending.

Turner agreed with the Nalepas' attorneys, ruling that Plymouth-Canton school administrators and school board members are not entitled to governmental immunity in the suit. The district's attorneys have appealed the ruling.

Becoming a banker: With assistance from Diane Rayha of the downtown Plymouth branch of NBD, right, fourth-grader Joe White helps open bank accounts. Below, Kasey Kohn interviewed and got the job as branch manager of the new Bird Elementary School branch of the National Bank of Detroit.

Students show interest in banking

When fourth-grader Kasey Kohn heard a branch of the National Bank of Detroit was opening at her school and that management positions were available, she got serious.

The Bird Elementary School student wore a navy blue business suit to her "job" interview and gave impressive answers to her prospective boss. "She got her hair done, and she looked beautiful in her nylons and flats," said teacher Jane Nichols.

Kasey was "hired," as were several of her classmates for other positions.

Tuesday marked the opening of the Bird Branch of NBD Bank. Kasey ably handled questions from and gave referrals to her "customers," concerning interest rates and even home equity loans.

Students opened actual accounts, and will be able to make deposits regularly.

Nichols said the Partnership in Education project so far is an undeniable success.

Fifth-graders were first to open bank accounts. "Fifth-graders, weren't as into it until they saw it," said Nichols, adding that things went smoothly once the students began opening accounts and making deposits. "Next week, 60-70 accounts will be opened by fourth-graders. We will probably have more activity each succeeding Tuesday. Each grade will have the opportunity to open accounts." Fourth grade classes will take turns running the bank.

"It's been a wonderful learning experience," said Nichols. "Students have spent hours balancing their checkbooks."

Gaining practical skills is the whole idea, said Bird Principal Claudia Kulnis and Minnie Johnson of NBD's Metro West Region.

"This partnership offers students an educational opportunity in banking skills; learning how a bank operates; understanding a savings account; encouraging saving; and helping them feel comfortable with personal banking," they said.

"There is a great deal of experience to be gained in this joint venture. We are very excited about all this partnership holds."

Wrestling bear returns to Canton for round II

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Ceasar is returning. That's Ceasar the wrestling bear, whose presence in the Urban Cowboy Saloon in Canton last year got the dander up on animal rights activists. As with last year, however, activists will be invited to watch WXYZ-TV 7 sportscaster Don Shane — "Dare Don" — wrestle the 1,200 pound black bear for charity.

Ceasar will make his debut at 8 p.m., Thursday, at the saloon, 39940 Ford Road, one-quarter mile east of I-275. The national television show, "A Current Affair" also will be taping the event live.

"I assume there will be some controversy but not like there was last time," said bar manager Roy Jean. "People who were involved with animal activist groups were invited and they said they found no cruelty. It was done tastefully."

Sherry Silk, director of operations for the Michigan Humane Society, attended last year's bear wrestling. "There was no cruelty. The bear is in excellent shape. We don't like any animal used for entertainment purposes. We don't like it just like we don't like rodeos." But there are no laws on the books now to prevent this type of event, Silk added.

Ceasar is the descendant of a line of wrestling bears. His cub, in fact, travels with him around the country, accompanied by trainer Sam Mazola of Ohio, who has a bear handling license, Jean said.

"He is a totally tame bear," Jean said. "This gives people a chance to come out. When people think of a bear, they go, 'wow.'"

But the last time the bear came he took a peppermint out of my daughter's mouth."

Ceasar, who stands at 7-feet, 6-inches tall, has not been defanged or declawed. Training is what allows Ceasar to do the things he does — gently. Jean will award a cash prize to anyone who can pin Ceasar. Patrons, both men and women, are welcome to try their luck with the bear. The wrestling matches will be held inside the bar. Wrestling mats will be rolled out for the event. And the bear's trainer will be on hand, Jean said.

Jean also has contacted the Detroit Drive to attend the event and take their chances with Ceasar. Some Detroit Lions players also might be on hand.

"This bear is treated like a human being," Jean said. He travels in an air-conditioned trailer. And a muzzle is not used.

United Way official to address outlook for community giving Myron Liner, the vice president of United Way of Southeast Michigan, will discuss the health of community giving at the Canton Economic Club's monthly luncheon at noon Thursday.

"He determines who gets money," said Bill Joyner, executive director of the Canton Community Foundation, which sponsors the economic club. Liner is vice president of United Way's agency relations.

The public is invited to the luncheon, which costs $12 a person, and is at the Geneva Presbyterian Church, 5835 Sheldon, Canton.

Looking ahead, the economic club is trying to set up future speaking engagements with 1996 presidential contenders, including Jack Kemp, Pat Buchanan, Dan Quayle and Phil Gramm.

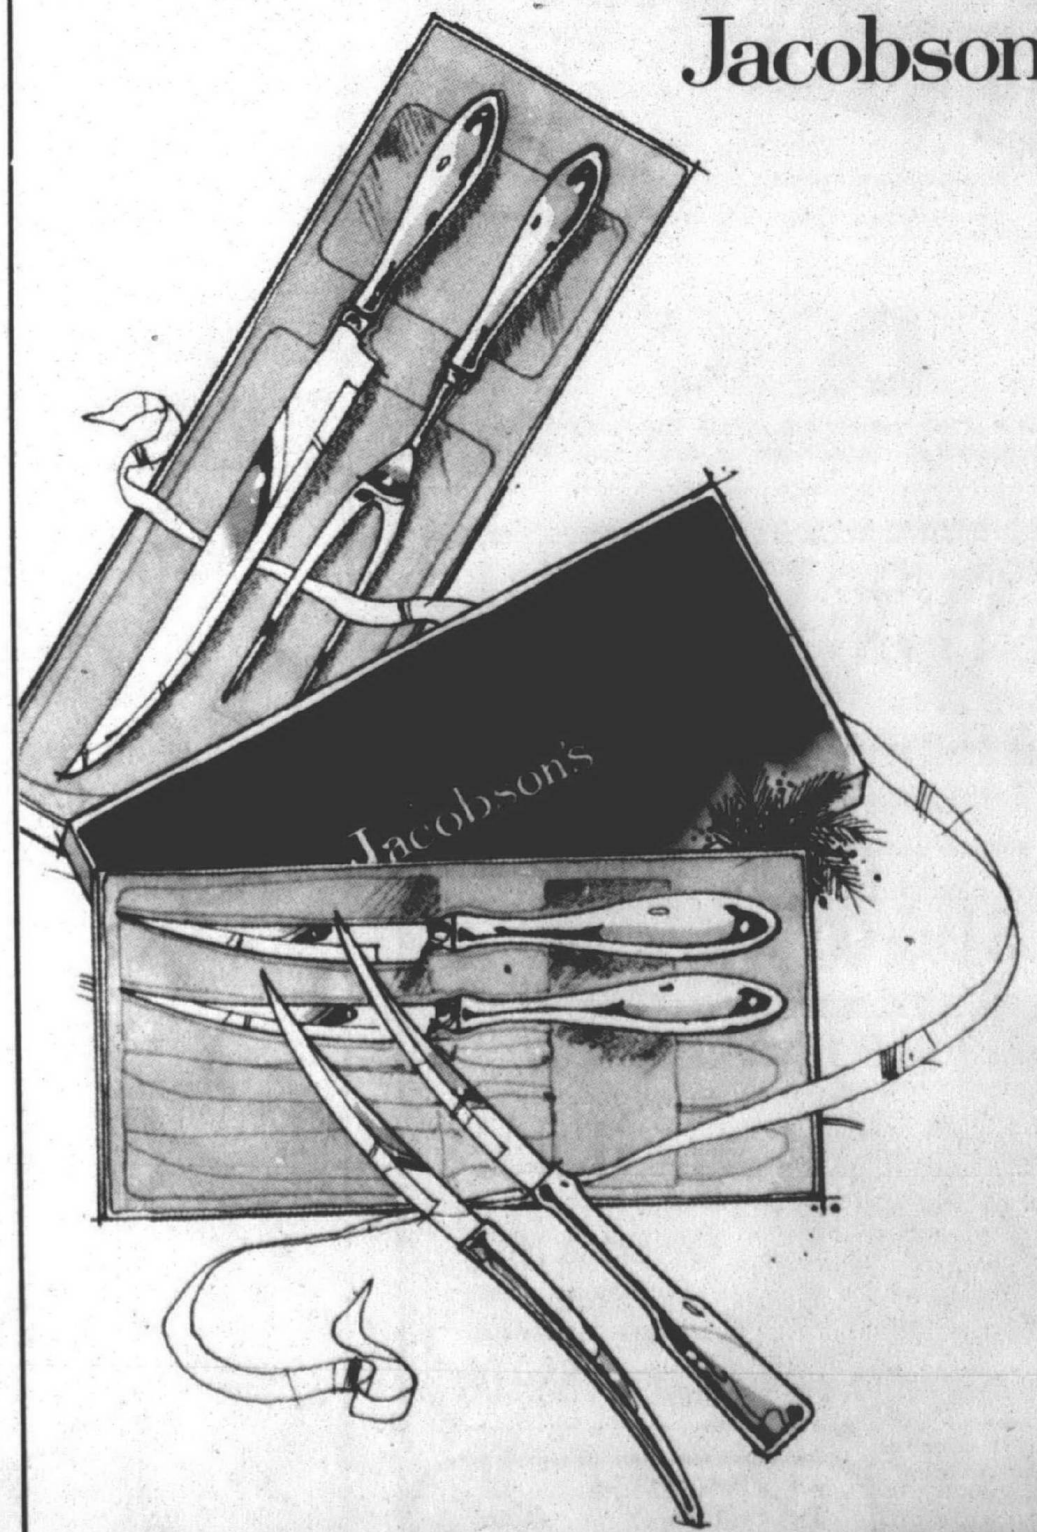

"The Canton Economic Club is in a position of expanding its base of speakers. We're looking for people of a national scope. We want to look at the issues that affect us," Joyner said.

An invitation has already gone out to president-elect Bill Clinton to have his first town meeting at the economic club. A letter also went out to outgoing President George Bush. "We'd like him to give a post-presidential presentation," Joyner added.

"I don't think the intent of this group was ever to banish anything," DDA chairman Lee Harrison said. "Are there ways to make them more uniform, more attractive?"

In complaining about the newspaper boxes, some merchants and DDA members cite debris that collects, rusty boxes and safety concerns as people double-park to get a newspaper.

Some DDA members preferred a uniform modular-type rack stuck around the corner on Penniman.

But Taylor said, "USA Today would be very reluctant to go toward a traditional type box." That newspaper is owned by Gannett Corp., which owns the News.

Taylor said that various colors for the boxes — like yellow for the Free Press and white and blue for USA Today — help readers identify the newspaper.

"I've heard people talk about rusted out boxes, debris collecting under boxes — We're very concerned about that," he said.

"But undue restriction would certainly cause us some concern," he said.

Taylor said that Gannett "has dealt with this problem in a number of different communities."

By the memorandum presented to the DDA, Taylor said a committee of newspaper companies that put out boxes in downtown Plymouth would police their own racks.

Mike Carne, general manager of The Community Crier, told DDA members that an attempt to regulate the placement of newspaper boxes by ordinance "is a clear violation of the constitution."

"We'd fight it as far as the Supreme Court if necessary," he said.

City attorney Ron Lowe said that his review of pertinent case law suggested "there is something we can do about location of the newspaper boxes."

Lowe said that if the DDA wanted to pursue further regulation of newspaper boxes, "You can take a look at some of the problems, and document the problems," as evidence to be presented in court.

Then again, should a publisher challenge efforts to regulate the boxes, "Any one newspaper can make this a very expensive process," Lowe said.

Plymouth musician contributes to celebrity anti-hunger project

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A Plymouth musician has contributed a song to an album featuring celebrity singers.

Brice Cranston, a 1986 Plymouth Salem High graduate, wrote the music for the song "Can't You See My Love," sung by Stephanie Mills.

He also produced "After the Quake" sung by M.C. Hammer. Both songs are on the album called "LIFE (Love Is Feeding Everyone)," a project to fight hunger.

Cranston, 24, now living in Burbank, Calif., got his musical training as a guitarist with a group at Our Lady of Good Counsel parish, and as a drummer and cellist with the CEP marching band and symphony.

Also in high school, he and some friends formed a group called The New Trend. "We played anywhere we could, a couple of times at the Silverdome," said Cranston, who played keyboards.

"That's the whole reason I'm even here. We all decided to try and make it out here," he said.

Cranston and another band member got an apartment, and waited in California for other band members to graduate from the CEP.

On record: Brice Cranston of Plymouth wrote one song and produced another on a new album featuring major recording artists.

became involved in the hunger project which included efforts of several well-known performers. Also included on the album are Bette Midler and Jose Feliciano. "Can't You See My Love," Cranston's song, is a ballad.

"It's cool to have an artist sing your song," he said, adding it's his first song done by a major performer.

On the M.C. Hammer song, Cranston put the music together after hearing a demo. "I'm almost like the director," he explained.

The anti-hunger project was founded by actors Dennis Wheeler and Valerie Harper. They started out by seeking still good food and produce discarded by supermarkets for distribution to the hungry in Los Angeles. Through album proceeds, they hope to expand the project.

Talking on the phone from Hollywood on a recent weekday, Cranston said the temperature in Burbank "is kind of cold, it's 72."

"I don't really miss the cold, I do miss the snow and I definitely miss the people."

Cranston said his goal in the music business is "to survive."

"I'd love to make it but I'm not going to bank everything on it," he said, adding he's also interested in computers.

"You can feel the tension in the air here in Los Angeles, it's so much more laid back there (Plymouth). If there was a way Motown could get back together, I'd be there in a second," he said.

The album "LIFE" should soon be available at Repeat The Beat record store in Plymouth, said Brice's mother Pat Cranston.

with "A Plymouth Thanksgiving." Hill suggested the firm could try approaches like delivering a pumpkin pie to media outlets to promote "A Plymouth Thanksgiving." He said the DDA has stressed special event promotions as a way to draw business.

"We've said this to them over and over and they're missing it," Hill said at a DDA meeting Thursday.

"That's what we should be expanding upon, that's who we are. Somewhere in the translation that got lost," Hill said.

DDA chairman Lee Harrison agreed. "They say it's always going to be done, and I don't see it."

"What we've got is a basis, we've got to move forward," DDA director Steve Guile said.

Guile stressed the initial thrust of the marketing campaign is more to tout the variety of shops downtown, rather than special events.

"We're going to be looking at the results of the promotion," he said, adding the DDA will encourage more focus on special events in the next phase.

The DDA has spent $40,200 from its budget for the ad campaign and costs to create materials. Sixty-seven local businesses and property owners are matching that cost for the ongoing campaign, and the DDA is seeking to draw more participation from downtown businesses and property owners.

The radio spots in the current campaign are scheduled to run Dec. 2-12. They feature a catchy melody set to the words "Discover the exciting worlds of Plymouth," sung by a chorus.

The campaign also includes some live remote radio broadcasts from Plymouth.

"I think this is going to be a program that generates traffic. Whether it generates the most traffic, we'll have to look at that," Harrison said.

New OU president started as high school art teacher

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
STAFF WRITER

She began her career as a high school art teacher. Now she's out to paint a bright portrait of Oakland University — one that will attract more local attention.

Sandra Packard, 50, was inaugurated as the fourth president of the Rochester Hills-based university last Friday, has been surprised to find that the school's national reputation seems to have bypassed the local area. "In the region, we're not as well known."

In recent talks to Oakland County officials and corporate executives, she told them about "what I regard as their university. I don't think we have done a very good job telling our story. I want to open us up and have them know they can access what we have."

Her journey from art teacher to president of a public university of about 12,500 students seems unlikely, if judged by traditional academic progressions. But in her mind it's not startling because "Things I had been doing were actually administration. And I liked doing those things."

Some of those include perpetuation of art therapy programs, chairing faculty research committees and beginning a national women in art organization.

"Even as a 10-year-old, I met a little boy with cancer who died. I organized a neighborhood carnival and we raised $124 for cancer research."

Although she was picked as a prestigious ACE (American College of Education) Fellow — considered a training ground for college presidents — she said she had no long-range goal to be one.

That became her goal — "the day I learned I was getting this position."

Packard has put in six days a week, 16 hours a day in her first months on the job. That, she acknowledges, has been hard on her husband, Martin, who is in the midst of setting up his clinical psychology practice in downtown Rochester.

"He misses my company. If he's got a cold and needs TLC, I'm not there."

The up side is that he has had time to take advantage of Oakland University's health institute. "He's lost at least 18 pounds," she said.

Her first priority

Packard's first priority has been to meet people. "I've been spending my energies getting to know people in the region and the university as a whole."

Her office door is open to the public on Friday afternoons and as she walks the campus, it's obvious that both faculty and students know who she is. And they aren't shy about telling her their concerns, ranging from a tight campus parking situation to dormitory food.

In this regard, she counts being a woman, indeed OU's first woman president, as an asset. "People might be a little less scared of a woman president. The title can be a barrier to getting the job done and having people be honest with you."

She turns the traditional roles of women as nurturers and homemakers into positives.

"I have a certain nurturing part of me. A university has to care about the people who teach and learn here. They have to make sure it is a humane and a safe place. I've been a mother."

Of her daughters, Dawn, 23, is a seasonal park ranger in Boulder, Colo., where she graduated from college, while Shana, 21, is a senior psychology major at the University of Kentucky.

A "purebred mutt," Leo, rounds out the family, and is "the son my husband never had." However, Leo must reside in the unheated dog room attached to Sunset Terrace — the president's official residence — because "I'm allergic."

She says she's also very sensitive to the way the campus looks. "We just painted our weight room. I told the maintenance crew. You have to remember I've been a homemaker. I'm going to be a nitpicker."

In fact, the campus at the University of Tennessee/Chattanooga, where she was provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, looks somewhat neater, she says. "Our students in Tennessee come to school a little dressier... there's a little more formality in going to school."

But, in OU's favor, "We don't have the same kind of problems with alcohol (as U-T)." She is pleased with OU's "wellness dorm" which offers students smoke, alcohol and drug-free rooming — and where there is more demand than space.

"College is a place where students need to learn their limits."

Organization seeks cowboys

Heifer Project International, a non-profit international development organization, is trying to locate thousands of "cowboys."

The organization wants to find 7,000 men (and a few dozen women) who accompanied livestock on ocean freighters destined for war-ravaged developing countries in the 1940s and 1950s.

Heifer Project International was founded in 1944 by a church relief worker named Dan West. As he doled out cups of powdered milk to hungry refugees from the Spanish Civil War, he realized that a more sustainable solution — the gift of a food source rather than food stuff — would preserve the dignity and work ethic of the recipients. That idea was the birth of a process and a philosophy of development: "Not a cup but a cow."

West also decided that each family receiving an animal would be asked to "pass on the gift" by giving the first offspring to another needy family, thus continuing a chain of giving.

Over the years, both the name of the game and the game plan have remained steadfast while heifers have been joined by livestock such as goats, yaks, pigs, rabbits and sheep.

Former "cowboys," or anyone having knowledge of their whereabouts are asked to write to: Cowboy Roundup, Heifer Project International P.O. Box 808, Little Rock, Ark. 72203.

Alcohol is one of those issues," she says.

Diversity important

Another is diversity. "This area is more segregated than the south," Packard says. "A college campus is a place to learn to understand each other. You need diversity to do that."

"We're not a social agency," she acknowledges. "But we need to educate students to go out and solve social problems. I think universities must engage in solving the problems in this country."

On the strictly academic side, "College should be tough. Students need to be able to test themselves against a standard of excellence."

"We have a faculty really committed to our students."

Under Packard, look for OU to branch out — not only in taking its story to more people but perhaps even taking its classes on the road.

McNamara vetoes county budget

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Commission is expected to decide Wednesday if it will override all or any of Executive Edward McNamara's vetoes in the 1993 budget or simply live with them.

Using his line-item-veto power, McNamara crossed out several things the commission wants to spend money on. (The commission could vote to override any or all of the vetoes.)

As submitted to McNamara by the commission, the 1993 general fund budget (about $315 million) was $1.8 million in the red.

The new fiscal year begins Dec. 1. McNamara's main complaint is that the commission wants to increase its personal budget by more than $700,000 to $6.9 million.

In a written veto statement dated Nov. 6, McNamara said, "Given the nearly $3 million increases the commission has voted into its own budget in the last five years, nearly doubling (its) budget, and knowing the fiscal problems the county faces with the property tax freeze issue this year, this is an impossible appropriation."

McNamara also has a problem with the commission's desire to add about $300,000 to the auditor general's budget. "While we have little quarrel with the auditor general's function, it seems (that) each year funds for staff in (that) division go unspent and the commission relocates those funds to cover overruns in other commission activities," he wrote.

The commission also wants to add about $1 million to the budget in other areas. McNamara crossed out these items, too.

If the commission still wants to spend that extra money, he said in the veto statement, it should do so by eliminating the proposed increase to the commission's personal budget.

Bets are off

Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Canton, who opposed the commission's budget adjustments, said he's glad McNamara vetoed the budget. Amann doesn't believe commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell can get the 10 votes he needs to override the vetoes, but "as unpredictable as the commission has been, it's not safe to bet on any outcome."

Deputy executive Michael Duggan said he doesn't believe there are enough votes on the commission to override any of McNamara's vetoes.

Commissioners Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, Edward Boike and Amann were alone in their opposition to the out-of-balance budget when it was passed in late October.

Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, voted for the budget along with the seven commissioners from Detroit and Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn.

Beard, Hubbard and Blackwell did not return the Observer's phone calls by press time.

Not so fast

McNamara also opposes the commission's desire to take $1.4 million from the $11 million foster care fund. The commission wants to use that money to increase spending in other areas.

The money currently in the foster care fund is supposed to be saved in case the state court of appeals reverses an Oct. 23 ruling by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kaufman. Kaufman said that the state should pay for foster care in Wayne County, but the state appealed. Duggan called Kaufman's decision "the first ruling in a case that's likely to go on for years."

Regarding the commission's desire to spend some of that foster care money, Duggan said, "It's not responsible to be spending that money until (the legal decision) is final."

Home-schoolers urge court to void certified teacher law

AP — Attorneys for parents who teach their children at home urged the Michigan Supreme Court Tuesday to strike down a law requiring certified teachers that they said is the most extreme in the nation.

Michael Farris said Michigan has continued to require certified teachers even though other states don't and without any evidence that children do poorly without certified teachers.

"Michigan's law is the most extreme in the country," said Farris, president of the Home School Legal Defense Association in Paeonian Springs, Va.

Farris represented two sets of parents prosecuted for teaching their children at home without using certified teachers.

Mark and Chris DeJonge were convicted in Ottawa County of violating the state's compulsory school attendance law. John and Sandra Bennett, of Canton Township, were convicted in Wayne County.

The DeJonges, of Allendale, claim, using certified teachers would violate their religious beliefs. Five of their eight children are school-aged and have been taught at home since 1984.

The Bennetts believe the public schools were doing a poor job educating their children and claimed they had the right as parents to direct their children's instruction. They took their five school-age children out of public schools seven years ago.

The Michigan Court of Appeals upheld both convictions.

The cases were part of two long-running battles over the state's power to set education standards for use outside public schools that were argued Tuesday.

The other was a challenge to Michigan Department of Education procedures requiring a minimum school year and certain courses, as well as certified teachers, for home schools.

In the DeJonge and Bennett cases, Farris said the basic issue boiled down to whether children will fail to learn unless they are taught by certified teachers.

"The DeJonge and Bennett children are doing just fine" based on test scores, he said.

The state made no effort to show that certification was essential to learning or that requiring certified teachers was the only way to make sure children learn, he said.

Without such a compelling state interest, he said, the state cannot justify interfering with the DeJonges' freedom of religion.

"Religious freedom in this nation is a priceless treasure," he said. Although the Bennetts didn't claim the requirement violated their religious beliefs, Farris said parental rights should be considered as sacred as First Amendment rights to freedom of religion.

"We do not believe only Christian parents, or only religious parents, have rights in this country. All parents have the right to direct the education of their children," he said.

A 1990 state Supreme Court ruling that state requirements don't apply to religious preschools should be used by the high court to strike down the certification requirement, he said.

Gregory Babbitt, assistant prosecuting attorney in Ottawa County, said the state didn't present evidence about the effectiveness of certified teachers at the DeJonges' trial because the law had already been upheld by the court in previous cases.

"I don't think it's our role as a prosecutor to uphold a law when it's already been upheld," he said.

Olga Agnello, representing the Wayne County Prosecutors' Office, said the Bennetts' can't claim that their desire to teach their children at home merits the same deference as a religious freedom dispute.

STOP SMOKING WITH ACUPUNCTURE
 You've probably tried to stop smoking with all the usual ways. Acupuncture is an ancient Oriental way of therapy. It has proven very helpful in treating many of modern day problems and diseases. ARTHRITIS DRUGS FOR TENDON PROBLEMS
 Over 25 different arthritis medications require prescriptions. Federal law and the scrutiny of the medical community require these drugs to pass rigorous requirements before release for public use.
 Why is it, then, that these remedies often prove inadequate to help you?
 One reason could be that the new medication is inappropriate for your pain. These drugs are tested against arthritis: their effect to stop inflammation in the joints of the hands, elbows, shoulders, hips, knees, ankles, and feet.
 If your discomfort has its origin from an irritated tendon, ligament, or muscle, then arthritis drugs cannot be expected to provide relief. At times such medications help. In part, this result reflects the general analgesic properties of arthritis drugs, and to an extent represents a fortuitous reaction of the drug with your body chemistry. At present, no arthritis prescription demonstrates consistent results in tendon strain, fibromyalgia, leg cramps, or after sports injuries.
 An anti-arthritis drug that did relieve tendon and tissue inflammation was butazolidine; however the manufacturer recently ended its production. When supplies of this medicine are exhausted, the best remedies for muscle aches and tendon strains will be heat and rest, followed by exercise with stretching first and sweating thereafter.

Pay of State Officers

The State Officers Compensation Commission, a seven member panel of citizens, currently is reviewing pay and expenses to be paid in 1993 and 1994 to the Governor, Lt. Governor, Justices of the Supreme Court, and State Legislators.

SOCN NEEDS YOUR OPINION!
 Organizations and citizens are encouraged to express their views on this important matter.

On November 17, 1992 a PUBLIC HEARING will be held in the Detroit area at 6:30 p.m., Wayne State University, Kresge Library Auditorium.

The Commission is interested in views on:

- Should compensation be increased in view of the fact that pay has remained the same for 3 years?
- What are appropriate levels of pay to attract the highest caliber of citizens to these positions?

LOVE STORY

Read between the lines and you'll find warmth, tenderness, compassion. Today, dying at home after a long illness frequently means that a hospice team provided a person the opportunity and the care to spend those last days peacefully - with family and friends. Last year, hospice provided care and comfort to more than 190,000 terminally ill people and their families in the United States.

The Women's Committee for Hospice Care salutes the Tri-County Area Hospices:

- Angela Hospice Home Care
- Cottage Hospice
- Henry Ford Hospice
- Cranbrook Hospice Care
- Lapeer Area Hospice
- The Hospice of Michigan Cancer Foundation
- Hospice of Southeastern Michigan
- Hospice Services of Western Wayne County
- St. Joseph Hospice

A special kind of caring, a loving way of dying.

County had no right to test man for drugs, court says

The state Court of Appeals ruled Nov. 9 that Wayne County violated job seeker Segrett Middlebrooks' civil rights by requiring him to take a urine test for drugs.

Middlebrooks sued for damages after cocaine and opiates were found in his system and the county refused to hire him as a laborer. The court voted 2-1 to send the case back to Wayne circuit court, which had summarily dismissed Middlebrooks' suit.

In October 1984 Middlebrooks applied to the road agency for full-time laborer work, involving operating saws, wood chippers and a front-end loader, riding a lawn mower on highway medians and embankments and occasionally driving trucks. He had done the work as a temporary for six months.

The Appeals Court agreed that the Fourth Amendment protected Middlebrooks' right to be free from unreasonable searches.

"Wayne County failed to establish that its interest was sufficient to overcome plaintiff's privacy expectations. The search was, therefore, unreasonable as a matter of law," said Judges Donald Holbrook Jr. and Joseph B. Sullivan.

"There has been no showing here that the job of general laborer involved any unusual degree of danger. Plaintiff would not have carried passengers or security-sensitive materials. He would operate tools but not heavy equipment involving a great risk of harm to others."

Judge Clifford Taylor dissented, saying government had a special need, "preventing the loss of human life."

"The public should not bear the risk created by such employees, who may suffer from impaired perception and judgment," Taylor said. "An employee who wishes to be engaged in such work has a diminished expectation of privacy with regard to the intrusion occasioned by a urine test."

Middlebrooks' attorney, James Schuster, said, "Just because you work for the government doesn't mean they can do what they want to you." The prosecuting attorney, Ellen Mason, could not be reached for comment.

On several other points, the Court of Appeals ruled in favor of the county. It said Middlebrooks:

- Had no constitutionally protected right to a public job.
- Had no claim to invasion of privacy.
- Had no claim under the state Handicappers' Civil Rights Act because drug addiction is not a handicap.
- Had no case against the laboratories analyzing the tests.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Kathleen MacDonald is expected to hear Middlebrooks' case. Schuster said it's just a matter now of determining what kind of compensation Middlebrooks will get.

POINTS OF VIEW

Trust becomes buzzword for pop-psych industry

Deep in everyone's heart lies at least one secret ambition so personal and deep-rooted that it is revealed only to our closest and most trusted companions. It is the kind of private fantasy which must be kept concealed from all of those people in our lives who would mock us openly if they knew the sordid details.

Truly, the ultimate sign of trust in someone is to share these clandestine longings with them, knowing they will either bond souls with you or laugh you into terminal embarrassment.

It used to be thought that these fantasies were the sign of a warped personality, but that notion was laid to rest during the pop-psych heyday of the '70s. The cultural gurus said it was normal to have these hidden thoughts. It became fashionable to not only acknowledge them, but to celebrate them with reckless abandon. We were supposed to live free of behavioral restrictions and barriers and bare our souls for all to see in an unbridled orgy of truthfulness. Emotional liberation would be ours if we dropped the facade of control and trusted our brethren with our fragile daydreams.

Intimate disclosures

Of course, like most of that decade's psychobabble, you knew this was garbage the minute you exposed your essence to some under-enlightened jerk who ground it under the heel of his or her shoe. We all had to learn to pick our spots to get the full desired effect of our intimate disclosures.

Still, once it became common knowledge that we all had fantasies, it also became big business to pander to these prurient wishes. Millions of romance novels and "adult" magazines began to be sold each year. Hugh Hefner built an empire around the carnal dreams of the subscribers of Playboy, and it's not because they read the articles.

I don't mean to imply that all fantasies are lewd or unsavory. Many people fantasize about wholesome, respectable things like being an athlete or famous musician. Some people dream about fancy cars or big houses. We've all got our own special thing.

My hidden passion is power tools.

GARY BELLANGER

I only own a few of the basics, and I've never been able to make anything other than sawdust, but I am absolutely fascinated by the vast array of tools and gadgets available for the serious woodworker. When I see the assortment of saws, shapers, sanders, clamps and so on, I take off on a flight of fancy to a spectacular workshop where I work with other artisans to craft exquisite wooden furniture. Only after I put blade to wood, my colleagues promptly throw me out of the workshop, putting an unceremonious end to my imaginary visit.

Despite my ineptness at the use of these devices, I still long for the day when my garage is stocked with lumber and alive with the rattle and hum of furniture making. I still grow warm at the sight of a snug-fitting mortise and tenon joint, and I love to feel the heft and smoothness of a fine quality power tool. Yes, this sounds kind of weird to me, too.

I suppose this one is fairly harmless, as addictions go. I don't spend any money on it, and I can indulge in it in public without fear of ridicule or incarceration. The biggest drawback is the time I spend wandering through the tool departments at the mall. My wife always waits patiently as I check out the specs on those babies, but she will never let me buy any of them for fear I will have little-bitty hand pieces flying all over the place.

OK fantasies

The psychology folks say the fantasies are OK as long as they don't interfere with our daily lives. At one point, I thought I needed to join a support group (I joined the PTA because I thought it meant Power Tools Anonymous), but I'm happy to report I've got it under control now. In fact, I could quit anytime I want. I'm just not ready yet, OK?

It's one thing for an adult to engage in this kind of activity, but you've got to watch out for the signs of it happening to your kids. It may start out small at first, maybe a couple of router bits in a shirt pocket, or a Black and Decker catalogue under their mattresses. Then before you know it, you start smelling sawdust on their clothes and you find a thickness planer under their beds.

The important thing is to get out into the open and share it with others who have similar fantasies. There is nothing to be ashamed of. We all need to be more open and understanding about these things.

Now, if you'll please excuse me, I have to strap on my tool belt and don my safety glasses. It's almost time for the New Yankee Workshop to come on. I heard that the host will be trying a new radial arm with a stacked dado-head cutter.

I'm so excited.

Gary Bellanger, a Redford Township resident, is a member of the Redford Union Board of Education and a real estate salesman. His column will appear periodically.

Media will bite into culture shock in Arkansas

With Bill Clinton about to be president, I'm just waiting for the national media to discover Hot Springs. For the last 12 years, these guys have had it easy on the weekends, spending their time in southern California with Reagan or in Maine with George Bush.

Those are pretty sexy places compared to Hot Springs, Ark., where once you get past a couple of hotels there isn't even a decent bar.

But there's an upside, the media will be forced to discover America. Neither California nor the east coast qualify.

There has been some speculation about what kind of house Clinton will use as a hometown White House. And that speculation is well founded. Chances are that a mention of Rancho Mirage in Hot Springs would conjure up visions of a barbecue restaurant instead of an estate.

But Hot Springs isn't without its charm. There are mountains, lakes and some of the best barbecue around. In fact, one restaurant, McLards, is a landmark of sorts. The producers of the television show Evening Shade use an old photo of it in the beginning of the show.

And of course the barbecue is pork. If you took an animal's carcass and split it with a knife along the Mason-Dixon Line, the pig would fall on the southern side.

But there's a down side to the national media discovering all this. Chances are we'll soon see lifestyle stories on pig eating, bourbon drinking, pickup truck driving Southerners. Remember Billy Carter? Whiskey drinking white males again.

JEFF COUNTS

A southern Democrat isn't the same species as a northern fish-eating, white wine-drinking Democrat.

And then as with Jimmy Carter, the ultra liberal folks will discover that a southern Democrat isn't the same species as a northern fish-eating, white wine-drinking Democrat.

Having barbecue sauce on your tie just isn't politically correct around dreaded ultra liberals who were the first to turn on Carter, opening up a flesh wound for the also dreaded conservatives.

The irony here is that southern white males seem to be the only Democrats able to capture the White House. And these are the guys whose ancestors killed the Indians, stole their land and then enslaved blacks to do the work.

Just listening to Clinton, you can tell he's afraid to be branded as Bubba Billy by the media. His Arkansas accent has been tamed. When he says oil, it doesn't sound like "awl," when he presses on something, he doesn't "mash on it," and it's a photo opportunity, not "let's go out and make a picture," as they say in Arkansas.

Perhaps Clinton's verbal gymnastics will work for a while, but chances are the ultra liberals will get a taste of pork barbecue in Hot Springs and start going after him.

We can only hope they choke.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and is a stark raving madman when it comes to barbecue.

Local woman shared high school with Hillary Clinton

BY TIM SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Sandy Alsasser opened her 1963-64 Maine Township High School East yearbook to yet another page pasted over with yellow Post-It notes that mark where a now-famous classmate appeared.

Then the West Bloomfield School District employee pointed to a black-and-white picture of classmates at the suburban Chicago high school and couldn't help but smile.

Standing tall in the photo of junior class officers was someone named Hillary Rodham. Now, more than 28 years later, that class vice president is married to someone named Clinton and is all set to become America's First Lady.

"Whether it's on purpose or by accident, she's the one standing above everybody else, including everybody else — including the class president who happened to be a man," said Alsasser, who in high school was known as Sandy Welter.

Alsasser emphasized she didn't really know the teenaged Hillary, even though for three years they attended the same high school in affluent Park Ridge, Ill. and were part of the same 1,300-student graduating class.

Another face

They had different interests, for one thing.

"At that time she would have just been another face."

According to Alsasser's husband John, who graduated from the same high school in 1962, Rodham's parents were "big-time Republicans." But he didn't have much recollection about Hillary, either.

"She was several years younger than me," John Alsasser said. "It was not really high school etiquette for older people to talk to younger people."

Meanwhile, both of the classmates were in the National Honor Society, but Sandy Alsasser didn't make it until her senior year, one year after Rodham was one of only 38 juniors to make it into the select group.

By that time, the two were physically separated, with Rodham being transferred to Maine High School South, which opened for the 1964-65 school year. (Even though the students attended two different buildings, they were considered part of the same graduating class, Alsasser said.)

Hillary had a high grade-point average (approaching 5.0, the top mark at Maine High School), served on committees and the student council. Meanwhile, Sandy said her interests were more sports oriented, having been active as a "Pep Club" member for the Blue Demons.

Hillary was prep standout

"She was definitely a standout but we had a lot of high achievers," Alsasser said.

The fact that young Hillary and Sandy didn't have much in common doesn't detract from Alsasser's current feeling of pride about her successful fellow alumnus.

"It's exciting to see one of my classmates go as far as she has," Alsasser said, glancing down at a People magazine with Hillary and Tipper Gore on the cover. "... It'll be more interesting to watch because she's closer to me than anybody else that's been in the White House. This is a person who was in the same place at the same time that you were."

Probably the only thing disappointing to Alsasser about President-elect Clinton's "better half" is that the Yale Law School graduate now has dropped her maiden name.

"She went by Hillary Rodham in her law practice and changed it" to help Clinton's career,

Alsasser said. "At some point she felt political pressure (to change her name)."

The point she was referring to was when her husband was vying for re-election as Arkansas governor.

Clearly, the Michigan Eyecare Institute can make a difference

As founders of the Michigan Eyecare Institute, Dr. William Myers and Dr. Mark Rubinstein have been at the forefront of ophthalmologic breakthroughs. Dr. Myers was the second ophthalmologist in the U.S. to perform radial keratotomy — the breakthrough procedure to correct nearsightedness. Leonid meteor shower won't be easy to view

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

There's good news and bad news about the second meteor shower of the month. The Leonid meteor shower, like the Taurids, is not one of the year's best. Its peak is from the evening of the 16th through morning of the 17th, during which time you can expect to see an average of 15 meteors. The good news: as each year passes we could be building up toward an exceptional display. In the past the Leonids have set the sky ablaze with meteors. In the years 1833 and 1866 as many as 200,000 meteors were visible within the span of a few hours! The bad news: bright light scattered by the moon will interfere with seeing the fainter meteors this year.

It is believed that the Leonid shower, like most meteor showers, is the remains of a comet that disintegrated. The comet had a period (completed an orbit) of 33.3 years, and although the earth passed through the Leonid stream every year, the meteor display was exceptional every 33.3 years as we orbited through the greatest concentration of debris. The displays of 1899 and 1933 did not live up to expectations, but in 1966 observers in some southwestern states saw as many as 140 meteors per second.

The closer we get to 1999, the better the Leonids may become! Occasionally an extremely bright meteor (called a fireball or bolide) is seen. While very rare, they are spectacular.

During this year's October Draconid shower a fireball was seen by hundreds of people along the Atlantic coast. The fireball was so large it failed to burn up completely, and it crashed into the back of a car near Peekskill, New York. What was left of the meteor weighed 13.6 kilograms (30 pounds)! There are no guarantees that the Leonid shower will spawn a fireball, but then there are no guarantees that it won't!

Last quarter moon will be at 6:39 a.m. on Nov. 17. Six degrees to the left of the moon will be Regulus (REG you lus), the "heart" of Leo the lion. On the following morning the moon will be 12 degrees below and to the left of Regulus.

The moon moves from Leo into Virgo and, on the morning of the 20th, is six degrees below and to the right of Jupiter. On the next morning the moon is two degrees to the right of Spica.

Notice how much higher Jupiter and Spica are this morning, as compared to their location earlier this month.

Mercury is at inferior conjunction on the 21st. It is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

New Moon will occur at 4:11 a.m. on Nov. 24. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and, like Mercury, is not visible. Don't worry about a collision between Mercury and the moon. Yes, they are both between the earth and the sun, but they are separated by millions of kilometers!

The waxing (growing) crescent moon will be visible after sunset on the evening of the 26th. Notice brilliant Venus to the left of the moon. Venus will pass 1.9 degrees

Uranus is NOT a naked-eye planet; if you want to look for it use binoculars or a telescope. Uranus will look like a faint greenish disk at the "one o'clock" position with respect to Venus. (If you are using an astronomical telescope that inverts the image, look toward the "seven o'clock" position.) Good luck, and happy hunting! (Neptune is also in this part of the sky, but it will be out of the range of binoculars and small telescopes.)

The moon will be located nearly mid-way between Venus and Saturn on the evening of the 28th. Venus will be below and to the right of the moon; Saturn will be above and to the left. On the following night the moon will be three degrees from Saturn.

Another event occurs on the 29th; Mars is stationary. It has been drifting eastward through the stars of Gemini from night to night, but after the 29th Mars begins retrograde (backward) motion. Mars will have moved 19 degrees westward by the middle of February. The planet doesn't really halt in its tracks and go backward. What we see is an optical illusion, caused by the faster moving earth overtaking slower orbiting Mars.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Smorgasbord features delectable, hearty fare

My cookbook library is stacked with volumes of cookbooks and articles on just about everything. At my fingertips are recipes for classic French Onion Soup, German bratwurst, Greek Moussaka, Chinese egg rolls, Canadian beer cheese soup and Russian Borsht; as I research this story however, I find my library somewhat lackluster when it comes to Scandinavian cooking, especially Swedish fare.

My experiences with foods from the northern Baltic regions are about as sparse as the clothing touted by the Swedish Bikini team, whom by the way, I am still waiting to be visited by.

Culinary traditions

Yes, I have enjoyed a true Swedish Sörgasbord and have developed a taste for delectable Baltic herring. I have sampled enough aquavit to make even the largest room spin, but when it comes to true Swedish fare, my tastes are about as basic as the mock Swedish meatballs momma can toss together with some ground beef, ground pork and a couple of cans of Campbell's soup. Little did I realize that the Swedes are also known for the rich culinary traditions of well seasoned pates, luscious salads including rich potato salads, an abundance of cheeses, breads and exotic berries with enticing names like bliss and clouds.

Snuggled between Norway and Finland, Sweden's coast offers bountiful riches from the Baltic sea. The notable Baltic herring is a Swedish staple that is nothing short of delectable when marinated, smoked, creamed and even sweet and soured. Planked on some crispbreads their flavor has been known to rival expensive caviars. The more adventurous will also delight in the Swedish eel so often served in aspic or a savory jelly.

But the true stars from the region are by far the trout and salmon. These fish rival the famed Norwegian versions and are nothing short of spectacular when smoked, baked or in the true Swedish tradition, pan fried.

Meat scarce

When it comes to beef, the Swedes know their meat. Meat is scarcer than fish throughout most of Scandinavia, especially in the northern regions where there is no land suitable for grazing.

Beef is considered a luxury with reindeer meat being more readily available than any other. Meatballs are considered a national favorite and are more delicate, soft, tender and well seasoned than any other. Cream sauces abound and no Swedish smorgasbord is complete without a pot of browned meatballs accompanied by crisp cabbages.

When it comes to desserts, Scandinavians certainly know how to put on a spread. As mentioned earlier, berries play an important role in Swedish cuisine. In addition to canning, the long hard winters necessitate the drying of fruits like apples, plums and pears.

Delectable desserts

Dessert pancakes, similar in composition to thick crepes are brimming with the likenesses of fruits and berries, but not to be outdone are the famed Swedish custards. Sinfully rich caramel custards are also enjoyed as are basic creams stuffed with fresh berries and loaded with calories. Pastries are not as prominent as cookies and are best left to the Danish but when prepared are usually well seasoned with almonds, cinnamon, cardamom and molasses.

Winter warm-ups

Ranking up there in popularity with herring, the Swedes are well known for their Gloggs and mummies. Not to be confused with mommas, mummies are blends of gin while Gloggs are laden with wine, aquavit, sugar, spices and almonds. True Swedish gloggs are heated gently to incorporate the flavors of fruit and spices that are always well received on those long dark winter days and nights. The mummies are usually enjoyed during the short summer repast.

As grand as the smorgasbords, seafood and drinks are of Swedish heritage, nothing is more heralded than the coming of Christmas. Christmas is the feast of light and warmth, culminating after weeks of dark skies, gray clouds and snow.

Baking usually begins weeks in advance and when the great season arrives on Christmas Eve, the table is prepared for 12 days of feasting. Gingerbread houses are as common as wreaths beaconing the symbol of domestic happiness.

Sweden is the land of the Midnight Sun and deserves to be remembered as a nation rich in culinary heritage.

SWEDISH CHRISTMAS

Cooks preserve homeland traditions

■ Celebrate the holidays Swedish style beginning with St. Lucia Day on Dec. 13 with gingerbread cookies and a glass of Julglogg.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

On the darkest, longest day of the year — Dec. 13, Swedes celebrate St. Lucia Day. Usually one of the younger girls in the household is chosen to be "the Lucia." Dressed in white, with a crown of candles on her head, she serves coffee and buns, preferably early in the morning.

"It's a way to brighten the day. After Dec. 13 the days will start to get longer. The Lucia wakes people by singing special songs," say the women who belong to the gourmet cooking club of SWEA — Swedish Women's Educational Association International Inc. "It's a national holiday celebrated all over Sweden."

Holiday traditions

Boys aren't excluded from Swedish Christmas traditions. Dressed in long white shirts with high, cone-shaped paper hats, the star boys sing Christmas songs. According to custom, they carry a star and are followed by the figure of Judas whose job it is to be funny and beg for money.

Originally, the star boys belonged to the celebration of Twelfth Night, and the legends around the birth of Jesus and the coming of the Wise Men. The star was the Star of Bethlehem — young people in different areas of Sweden dressed up and went round begging food and aquavit for a Twelfth Night Party.

Swedish national holidays, and traditions like St. Lucia Day are celebrated in the United States by members of SWEA. Unlike immigrants before them, members of SWEA who live in the metro Detroit area including Bloomfield Hills, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Rochester, Troy, Westland and Redford, have one foot in the United States, and one in Sweden.

"The members in our group didn't leave Sweden because they had to. Some came here because of job transfers, and will go back to Sweden. With airplanes, fax machines and telephones we can have contact with the old country, said Tottie Samuels of West Bloomfield, president of the SWEA Michigan chapter, and a member of the gourmet cooking club.

To be a member of SWEA, you have to speak Swedish. Some of the women in the group have been in the U.S. for less than a year. They came here because of job transfers, and will return to Sweden one day.

Others like Samuels and Inger Graf, who owns Graf's Pastry Kitchen in Farmington Hills with her husband, Peter, have lived here for over 20 years.

Although they're here for different reasons, and maybe for a short time, the women share SWEA's objectives which include preservation of Swedish language, culture and traditions.

Founded in Los Angeles in 1979, SWEA has chapters throughout the U.S., Europe and Asia. A portion of membership fees are allocated to a scholarship fund. Locally, SWEA helps various groups including Lekotek in Redford which helps children with special needs who need special kinds of toys. A portion of the proceeds from SWEA's Christmas Bazaar noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, at Savior Lutheran Church, 5631 N. Adams in Bloomfield Hills, will benefit the scholarship fund, and Lekotek. For information, call 626-7822.

Admission is $1, and there will be lots of Swedish goodies both imported and homemade for sale. They'll have several kinds of imported mustard and Pommac, a non-alcoholic sparkling fruit flavored beverage.

In preparation for the event, the women have been busy baking dream cookies, ginger snaps, almond tarts, Lucia buns.

Cooking club

The cooking club is just one of the special interest groups within SWEA. There is also a children's group. There are only eight people in the cooking club, more would like to belong, and are on a waiting list.

Every six to eight weeks, the women get together and plan a gourmet dinner. "If you like the eat, you like to cook," the women said, adding that planning and cooking is half the fun. Tasks are delegated — two people make appetizers, two work on the main course, someone brings wine, another sets the table. The cost per person works out to $10 to $16, and the women say they don't scrimp.

"We start eating at 5 p.m. and it's midnight before we finish," said Kristina Larsson. Other club members include Ebba Cedergren, Gunilla Skogfeldt, Inger Lindqvist, Barbro Lundberg, and Lena Dahlgren.

We met recently at Samuels house to take the photo for this story, and talk about Swedish food, and Christmas traditions. Greta Mader, Henrik's grandma was there too.

These women take cooking seriously. Some even bring their appliances with them. This summer they had fun making ice cream with the machine Larsson brought from Sweden. In Sweden they made their own bread, and hardly ever went out to eat. "It's just too expensive."

Christmas celebrations begin with the lighting of the first Advent candle the fourth Sunday before Christmas. St. Lucia Day is celebrated on Dec. 13, and Christmas presents are opened on Dec. 24.

On Christmas Eve, families enjoy an array of food — hot and cold dishes, laid out on the Christmas table. It lasts for days, and in Sweden, families go from house to house visiting, and enjoying foods from the Christmas table.

"At Christmastime we do a lot with gingerbread," said Samuels. "The heart is the most common shape. People use them as decorations in their homes."

Spices which distinguish Swedish baked goods from others include, cardamom, saffron which is used in yeast breads, allspice, ginger and cloves.

Fish is plentiful in Sweden. Baltic herring is one they can't get here and miss. You'll see a lot of sausages on the Christmas table and lutefish in a mustard sauce.

In Sweden, the women used to pick cloudberries for desserts, now they have to rely on friends to get them from import shops in Chicago and Toronto. "You find out where you can get things," said Samuels.

Savor sumptuous fruit flavors all winter

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Although the fruit industry has developed cold-storage preserving techniques, there's nothing like the taste of tree-ripened fruit. It's a taste associated with summer and Kirsh or Kirschwasser (cherry brandy) is produced from a wild black cherry indigenous to the Rhine Valley. Due to the meanderings of this great river, Kirsch is produced in three countries — Switzerland, the headwaters of the Rhine; France in the Alsace region, along the Rhine's western banks; and the Black Forest region of Germany to the east.

Important elements of production are strictly followed in the creation of the world's finest eau de vie. Fruit, picked at the peak of ripeness is carefully prepared for the month to 10-weeks-long fermentation, and only free-run juice is distilled. The Williams pear is slightly crushed to open the fruit. Stone fruits and berries are fermented whole.

After fermentation completes, the fruit wine is doubly distilled as soon as possible. To preserve the fruit aromas and flavors, it is most important that the distillate be chilled quickly.

To our taste, some of the most interesting eaux de vie come from the Swiss producer Etter and make a stunning after-dinner companion strikingly enhancing any meal.

Etter's eaux de vie are exclusively imported to the United States by Birmingham's Robert Denton & Co. Ltd. and sold through the Elite Spirits division. Denton also distributes the internationally recognized artisan bottlings from Clear Creek Distillery in Portland, Ore. In addition to standard eau de vie, Clear Creek produces an Apple brandy that is smoother, more complex and flavorful than most Calvados.

Etter's artistic packaging is unrivaled. Hand-blown bottles with suspended handblown fruit in the middle are produced by renowned Swiss glass artist Peter Schreiber. They are collector's items, and if you're looking for an unusual gift presentation, search no further. They are available in all fine wine and spirits shops in the area. Approximate cost is $191.33.

GINGER SNAPS

¼ cup butter
¼ cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
3 tablespoons boiling, cooled water
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 ½ teaspoons ginger
1 scant teaspoon cloves
2 ¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon pulverized or ground cardamom seeds

Cream together butter, sugar until very smooth. Dissolve molasses in boiling water. Let cool. Add syrup water and lemon rind to butter and sugar mixture. Sift flour with baking soda, cinnamon, ginger and cloves. Fold in flour. Blend well, and place in refrigerator to chill.

Turn dough onto floured surface. Roll out very thin and cut in desired shapes with floured cookie cutter.

Bake on buttered cookie sheet in 350 F. oven for 8-10 minutes. Cool on sheet. Garnish with icing if desired.

ALMOND TARTS

¾ cup sweet butter
¾ cup sugar
1 cup blanched almonds
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 egg
2 ½ cups all purpose flour

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Grind almonds and add them, almond extract and egg. Mix until well blended. Stir in 2 ¼ cups flour.

Knead dough slightly on floured surface until smooth. Add more flour if necessary. Chill well. Butter or spray insides of fluted tart molds. Using your thumbs, coat the insides evenly with a thin layer of dough. Bake in 375 F. oven 12-15 minutes or until light golden.

Turn molds upside down and tap gently with spoon to loosen the tart. Lift molds from tarts. Cool. Serve plain or fill with jam and whipped cream. Makes 45 tarts.

JULGLOGG

1 bottle Burgundy
10 cardamom seeds
10 cloves
¾ cup sugar
2 cinnamon sticks
1 piece whole ginger
¾ cup Absolut vodka or brandy
½ cup raisins
½ cup slivered almonds

Mix all ingredients except vodka, raisins and almonds in saucepan, heat, but do not boil, until sugar melts. Remove from heat and let stand. Steep the spices for about 3-4 hours or overnight.

Strain the spices and add vodka and pour in a bottle. Before serving, heat desired amount in a saucepan and serve in small glasses, garnish with almonds and raisins.

REAL SWEDISH MEATBALLS

Meat mixture:
1 pound ground beef
¼ pound ground pork
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 egg
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion gravy:

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup beef stock or Half and Half
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water

Combine meat mixture ingredients. Lightly blend with a fork. Shape mixture into meatballs.

Heat margarine in a large skillet over moderate heat. Brown meatballs on one side; turn and brown other side.

Reduce heat to low and cover the pan; simmer for 10 minutes. Remove meatballs, pour off fat. Add Half and Half or beef stock. Blend cornstarch with water and add to the pan. Stir over moderate heat until the mixture comes to a boil. Taste and add salt and pepper if necessary. Serve gravy with the meatballs.

SWEDISH CARAMEL MOLD

1 cup sugar
6 eggs
2 cups light cream
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup whipped cream
2 tablespoons brandy

In a heavy pan, melt ½ cup of the sugar over very low heat just until golden brown. Pour into the bottom of a nine-inch ring mold; spread to cover the entire bottom.

Beat eggs; add ¼ cup sugar, cream and vanilla. Pour into the mold. Set mold into a pan of hot (not boiling) water and bake at 325 degrees for one hour.

Cool. Dip mold quickly in a pan of hot water and unmold. Whip cream and brandy together until soft peaks form. Serve over custard.

Chef Larry will demonstrate how to make holiday appetizers in five minutes or less with five ingredients at the Maplewood Community Center, 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 19. The cost for dinner and program is $8 Garden City BPW members, $10 non-members and guests. For reservations, call 525-8381 by Nov. 17.

The finest eaux de vie, even those in standard bottles, are expensive. The following details offer understanding. About 13 pounds of black mountain cherries are required for one 750-ml bottle of Etter Kirsch. About 50 pounds of specially tree-ripened pears go into each 750-ml bottle of Etter Poiré Williams. Serving suggestions

For maximum enjoyment as an after-dinner drink or dessert accompaniment, serve eau de vie in a freezer-chilled glass. Heighten flavors of a fresh fruit cup with the addition of a small amount of your favorite eau de vie.

Prepare Crepes au Kirsh or flavor homemade ice cream with Framboise or Kirsh as a simple, yet elegant dessert.

If flaming desserts are your specialty, use an eau de vie next time for a delightful concentration of fruit flavors once the alcohol has burned off.

Relish adds pleasant tang to turkey

AP — Low-fat entrees turn surprisingly heavy when served with high-fat sauces or condiments. During this cool season when hearty foods appeal the most, steer yourself away from high-fat gravies and cream sauces, and toward rich-tasting condiments based on fruits and vegetables. For example, this vivid red relish lends a pleasant tang to chicken, turkey or pork without adding a speck of fat. What's more, you can cook the relish up to a week ahead and store it in your refrigerator. CRANBERRY-PEAR RELISH

1 ½ cups sugar
½ cup water
12-ounce package (3 cups) cranberries
2 medium pears, cored and cubed (2 cups)
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground allspice
4 inches stick cinnamon

In a 2-quart saucepan bring sugar and water to boiling, stirring to dissolve sugar. Boil rapidly, uncovered, for 5 minutes.

Add cranberries, pears, nutmeg, allspice and cinnamon. Return to boiling. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes or until cranberry skins pop, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Cover and chill. Remove cinnamon before serving. Makes about 3 ¼ cups.

Maple syrup gives pecan pie a new twist

AP — In the following recipe, maple syrup is used instead of molasses or corn syrup to flavor classic pecan pie. You can also use pancake and waffle syrup. PECAN PIE WITH MAPLE WHIPPED CREAM
1 ½ cups maple syrup
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine or butter
¼ cup sugar
1 ½ cups pecan halves or chopped pecans

1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash salt
Whipped cream topping (optional)

Heat oven to 375 degrees F. Heat syrup, margarine and sugar in a 2-quart saucepan to boiling. Boil gently, uncovered, 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool slightly.

Place pecans in pie shell. Mix eggs, vanilla and salt in large bowl.

Gradually stir in cooled syrup mixture. Pour over pecans in pie shell. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack. Serve with whipped cream topping, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Whipped Cream Topping: Beat 1 cup heavy cream and ¼ cup maple syrup until soft peaks form. Makes 2 cups.

Emphasize family traditions at Thanksgiving dinner

LITE SUCCESS
FLORINE MARK
Want to stay in control of your eating this Thanksgiving? Expand your focus to include all the rituals that make up the holiday for your family.

That good advice comes from Florine Mark, president and CEO of the WW Group, Inc. the largest franchise of Weight Watchers International.

"The Thanksgiving meal is the centerpiece of the holiday, but you can help put it into perspective by emphasizing other traditions, as well," said Mark. Here are some examples to try:

Decorate your home with appropriate harvest symbols. Make an event of watching the annual parade or football game on TV. Make exercise a tradition by taking a walk each year, either before the meal, to work up an appetite, or after the meal to work it off!

Have family and friends help in meal preparation so the kitchen becomes a social center for the festivities.

Encourage dinner guests to tell stories from their childhood Thanksgivings.

To help you even more, Weight Watchers has developed these recipes for a traditional Thanksgiving that are a pleasure to prepare and eat. Happy Thanksgiving!

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP

4 cups cooked sliced carrots

1 cup evaporated skimmed milk

¼ cup chopped fresh Italian (flat-leaf) parsley

½ teaspoon curry powder

Dash each salt and pepper

2 cups mixed vegetable juice

½ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice

In food processor, combine carrots, milk, parsley, curry powder salt and pepper and process (using on-off motion) until pureed. Transfer mixture into large saucepan.

Add mixed vegetable juice, 1 cup water, and the lemon juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until soup is thoroughly heated, about 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving provides: ½ milk; 2½ vegetables.

SQUASH PUREE

4 cups cubed, pared butternut squash

¼ cup reduced-calorie pancake syrup, (60 calories per fluid ounce)

2 teaspoons reduced-calorie margarine (tub)

½ teaspoon ground cinnamon

½ teaspoon salt

In 4-quart saucepan combine squash with enough water to cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low and simmer until squash is tender, 8 to 10 minutes.

Drain squash, discarding liquid, and place in food processor. Add syrup, margarine, cinnamon, and salt; process (using on-off motion) until smooth. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving provides: ¼ fat; 1 bread; 30 optional calories.

LEMON CHEESECAKE TARTS

1 cup plain low-fat yogurt

3 tablespoons light cream cheese

1 envelope (four ¼-cup servings) reduced-calorie instant vanilla pudding mix (25 calories per serving as packaged)

1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

4 graham cracker tart shells (¾ ounce each)

In blender combine yogurt and cream cheese and process until smooth, about 30 seconds, scraping down sides of container as necessary. Add pudding mix and lemon peel and process until smooth, about 2 minutes. Scrape down sides of container and stir mixture to combine.

Into each tart shell spoon ¼ of the pudding mixture. Cover and refrigerate until set, about 1 hour.

Each serving provides: ¼ milk, ¼ bread; 110 optional calories.

Get the most from seasonings

AP — A dash of cinnamon, a sprinkling of nutmeg, a pinch of basil. Without spices and herbs, our cooking would surely be dull. Yet sometimes, even with spices, the flavor may not be quite what you expect. Why? You may not be getting the most from your seasonings. For the best flavor and quality, follow the American Spice Trade Association's recommendations for storing and using spices properly. How Spices Should Be Stored Tightly close containers of spices and herbs soon after each use. Leaving them exposed to air lets their aroma and flavor escape.

Store spices away from heat, direct sunlight, or sharp lighting. Heat and light reduce the life span of spices.

Store capsicums (such as red peppers, chili powder and paprika) and oily seeds (such as poppy and sesame) in your refrigerator to preserve their flavor, freshness and color.

Check spices every six months to make sure they are absolutely fresh. Having to take a second sniff to capture the aroma indicates the spice probably lacks full flavor and needs to be replaced.

Using spices

Be certain that measuring spoons are completely dry before measuring spices and herbs. Even a small amount of moisture in a storage container can cause spices to clump.

Whole spices (such as peppercorns and bay leaves) release their flavor slowly. Add them toward the beginning of the cooking period to let the heat gradually bring out their flavor.

Prepare oil-and-vinegar salad dressings by first adding herbs and spices to the oil. Let the mixture stand for several hours to blend the flavors, then add the vinegar.

Before baking, lightly brush tops of rolls and breads with egg white to help sesame seeds and poppy seeds adhere.

Spicy ideas

Use spice blends (such as Italian seasoning, poultry seasoning, pickling spice and apple pie spice) to quickly and easily achieve intriguing flavor combinations.

Keep dried onion and garlic, minced or powder forms, on hand in case you run out of fresh.

Remember to remove whole spices (such as peppercorns, bay leaves and cloves) before serving. Place them in a cheesecloth bag before adding them to liquid so they're easier to remove.

Keep a cookbook, chart, or list of suggested uses of different spices in a convenient place in your kitchen for easy reference during cooking.

Veggie lasagna tasty, nutritious

Canned foods are a healthy solution for busy lifestyles.

"You get the best possible products in cans because, typically, processing plants are located near growing fields," said Norm Correia, president of S&W Fine Foods and chairman of the Canned Food Marketing Program.

"This enables most fruits and vegetables to be canned within hours of harvest — at the peak of freshness."

So to make your favorite meal even more tasty and nutritious, be sure to pick up your favorite canned foods and add them to any dish.

VEGGIE LASAGNE

- 1 package (15 ounces) no fat or reduced fat ricotta cheese
- 2 cups shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 teaspoons dried basil leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 can (15 ounces) spinach, drained

- 1 can (8 ounces) no salt added sliced carrots, drained
- 1 can (7 ounces) 50 percent less salt whole kernel corn, drained
- 1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- Herbed Tomato Sauce (recipe follows)
- 2 packages (9 ounces each) refrigerated lasagne noodles

Mix cheeses, basil and pepper; combine vegetables. Spread 1 cup Herbed Tomato Sauce in bottom of 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan; top with 1/4 of the uncooked noodles. Spoon 1/4 of the cheese mixture over noodles and spread lightly with spatula; spoon 1/4 of the vegetable mixture over cheese. Repeat layers 2 times, ending with noodles and 1 cup sauce on top. Bake, covered, in preheated 350 degree oven 1 hour. Cut into squares. Makes 12 servings.

HERBED TOMATO SAUCE

- 1 cup chopped onions
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced

Veggie lasagna: Save time, use refrigerated lasagne noodles to make this hearty vegetable dish.

- 1 tablespoon olive oil or vegetable oil
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons Italian herb seasoning
 - 2 cans (16 ounces) no salt added whole tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped
 - 1 can (8 ounces) no salt added tomato sauce
 - 1 to 2 teaspoons red wine vinegar
 - 1 to 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- Saute onions and garlic in oil in large saucepan until tender; stir in herb seasoning and cook 1 minute. Add tomatoes and tomato sauce; heat to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, until sauce is reduced to 4 cups, about 15 minutes. Stir in vinegar and lemon juice to taste; stir in salt and pepper.

Tex-Mex peppers filled with good-for-you stuff

AP — Stuffed peppers, one of my all-time favorite comfort foods, stir up sweet memories of family dinners when I was a child. Now, they're not only comforting, but they're also wonderfully quick, thanks to the microwave oven.

The Tex-Mex filling in these sweet peppers emblazons all the familiar Mexican ingredients — Monterey Jack cheese, lean beef, salsa and spices — that your family loves. The unexpected twist comes from fiber-rich barley, a grain you most often see in soup. Like other grains, barley needs a certain length of time to rehydrate, whether cooked on the range top or in the microwave oven. For the best use of your time, cook the barley ahead, according to package directions, so you can stuff and cook the peppers quickly.

- 1 cup chunky salsa
- 1/5 cup shredded carrot
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 3/4 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese (3 ounces)

Cut peppers in half lengthwise. Discard seeds and membranes. On a 12-inch microwave-safe plate arrange peppers, cut side down. Cover with microwave-safe plastic wrap; turn back one corner to vent steam. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 6 to 8 minutes or until crisp-tender. Drain; invert pepper halves over paper towels.

For filling, in a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole, combine beef and green onion. Cook, covered, on high for 4 to 6 minutes or until beef is brown, stirring once. Drain fat. Stir in cooked barley, salsa, carrot and cumin; mix well. Add 1/4 cup of the cheese; toss to mix.

Spoon beef mixture into pepper halves. Arrange pepper halves on a 12-inch microwave-safe plate. Cover with microwave-safe plastic wrap; turn back one corner. Cook on high for 5 to 6 minutes or until heated through, rotating the dish once. Top with remaining cheese; let stand for 1 to 2 minutes or until melted. Makes 6 servings.

BEEF-AND-BARLEY STUFFED PEPPERS

- 3 large yellow or green sweet peppers
- 1 pound lean ground beef
- 1/2 cup sliced green onion
- 1 cup cooked barley (either pearl or quick-cooking)

Spectacle: Soul-searching soundscapes

Inspired by the likes of British soundscape bands My Bloody Valentine, Ride and Curve, local outfit Spectacle is a band whose heart-felt introspection belies their youth expressed through a billowing tonal twin-guitar attack.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

Shoegazers? Spectacle vocalist and guitarist Travis Hawthorne looks sheepish at the mere inquiry.

"Yeah, we've been called that," said the vocalist and guitarist letting out a sigh.

Shoegazers is the term applied to the lot of English bands proficient in carving out surreal soundscapes but having a penchant to only make eye contact with their Doc Martens on stage.

Spectacle may be guilty on implication, perhaps, but glaring at their faces is an innocuous fault when compared with the array of honest emotion they pour out through their beguiling sound.

The oldest member of the band is Hawthorne, who is 19. Drummer Eric Campbell, 18, guitarist Loren Jackson, 17, and bassist Nick Sheren, 17, make up the rest of Spectacle.

Though mere fawns on the music scene, Spectacle has already released a 7-inch single on Vulva Records in Royal Oak — the same label as local visceral kingpins Majesty Crush.

On the two-song glimpse, sinuous guitars expel a billowing cloud of pent-up angst. Suffocating, yet exhilarating, the twin guitar foray gorges into the caverns of the soul.

The music reveals a band mature beyond their years. Hawthorne grapples with fleeting mortality in "Monody," a song he wrote in tribute to a friend who died 1½ years ago in an auto accident.

In "She Doesn't Believe," the introspective songwriter portrays the feelings of a 6-year-old English girl during a conversation he had with her on a train ride. She was expressing some doubts to Hawthorne about the existence of God.

Hawthorne believes, though. He went to Fairlane Christian School and later attended Jerry Falwell's Liberty University for a year before coming home.

"All I could think about is music, really," Hawthorne said. "Academically, I wasn't up to par and I figured why waste my money."

He made contact with Jackson, whom he knew from art class at the Bible-based school in Dearborn. The two began jamming informally before mutual friends put them through to Campbell and Sheren.

Making a Spectacle: Travis Hawthorne, vocals and guitar; Nick Sheren, bass; Loren Jackson, guitar; and Eric Campbell, drums; provide the "four-legged table" for Spectacle's musical expression.

"Our music is like falling asleep in a bed of roses only to wake up to find you've been sleeping in a bed of nails."

Travis Hawthorne

Together, they've forged a creative bond.

"It's a four-legged table," said Jackson, who is a student at Livonia Churchill. "A person can come in with the chords, but it's not necessarily their song by the time we're finished."

Spectacle's ethereal guitar buzz shouldn't come as surprise as the band cites My Bloody Valentine, Spiritualized, Curve and Ride as influences. But their music is their own.

"Our music is like falling asleep in a bed of roses only to wake up to find you've been sleeping in a bed of nails," Hawthorne said.

("Monody" is available on Vulva Records, 503 S. Main St., Royal Oak 48067).

Band seeks to express itself universally

In Universal Xpression's new world order, every type of music has clout.

On the Caribbean band's grand menu of engaging sounds are reggae, soca, salsa, merenque, zouk, rhythm and blues and a pop topping. There's a conscious attempt by the band to ingratiate itself with the masses on its new release, "World Groove," but neither band members nor their music suffer for it.

"What we try to do is appeal more to the younger people and more to the American audience," said keyboardist and songwriter Richard Parris, who is originally from Nevis in the Eastern Caribbean. "You can't put out music all the time in your basement. You have to go where the market is."

Universal Xpression's market has been primarily rooted in the Detroit area, which has been a daunting task to say the least.

Very few clubs exclusively offer world music here. In spite of that, Universal Xpression has succeeded by hard work.

Already, the band has sold 500 copies of "World Groove," which is receiving airplay on "Caribbean Vibrations," heard 9 p.m. to midnight Fridays on WDET-FM, and is No. 10 on the playlist at WSGR-FM in Port Huron.

Formed among friends and Detroit residents Winfred Julien, guitarist; Lonnie McKenzie, bassist; Lenie McKenzie, drummer; and Mark Butler, percussionist; Universal Xpression has acquired a following by playing on the college circuit.

The band has performed at Blind Pig, Rick's Cafe and City Grill in Ann Arbor as well as Club Soda in Kalamazoo. They've also performed breathtaking shows as an opener for such international acts as Burning Spear, Arrow, Shabba Ranks, Yellow Man, Third World, Black Uhuru and Zaiko Langa Langa.

One spell during the summer, Universal Xpression went 15-straight days on stage.

"The music is getting more popular," Parris said.

Popular as well as diversified. Each member brings musical per-

Xpressed purpose: Universal Xpression members Richard Parris, Winfred St. Julien, Lenox McKenzie, Lenox McKenzie and Mark Butler seek to blend many elements into their world music sound to appeal to a widespread audience.

"One good thing about this music is there's no fuss, no fight. It's like everyone is having a good time."

Richard Parris

Parris has been influenced by soca, whereas Winfred Julien, who is from Dominica, is enamored with French zouk music.

Both McKenzies are from Jamaica, making reggae their source of inspiration.

But it's Parris who melds emotional lyrics to the upbeat melodies. One of the numbers he's particularly proud of is the hook-ridden "Can't Stand It," which includes a quaint rap.

"One good thing about this music is there's no fuss, no fight," Parris said. "It's like everyone is having a good time."

And the world could certainly use a little of that.

Even plane: Wayward carpenters? Not at all. The Levellers, named after a political party during of English Civil War, blend Celtic wistfulness and punk spike into their sound. The band plays Wednesday, Nov. 18, at The Shelter at St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit. For information, call 961-MELT.

Coppola sinks his teeth into 'Dracula'

JOHN MONAGHAN

The horror. The horror. Francis Ford Coppola pours on crimson bucketfuls in "Bram Stoker's Dracula," the first epic treatment of the vampire legend. As fascinating as it is flawed, the director's latest experiment will thrill those who thirst for visual style over substance.

In many ways, this is a companion piece to Coppola's "Apocalypse Now," with the ultimate goal here to terminate the command of the Transylvanian bad-die. You almost expect Marlon Brando to pop out of the orange-tinted shadows of the Michael Ballhaus' cinematography.

In a pretentious prepared statement read before preview screenings, Coppola insists that this is the only true screen treatment of the original "Dracula" novel. It does try to capture that book's unique narrative style, which relies on telegrams, newspaper accounts and diary entries to tell the spooky story.

The movie opens with Vlad the Impaler, the common historical source for the Dracula legend, who returns from the bloody crusades to find his young bride has committed suicide. Four centuries after a bloody pact with the devil, Vlad (now Count Dracula) recognizes the soul of his old love in Mina, the fiancée of young real estate clerk Jonathan Harker.

There's plenty of voice-over narration, often read with an antique page filling half the screen. The other side might find a full moon, a howling wolf, or the vamppire's piercing eyes.

For someone who has been making movies for three decades, Coppola still has a lot of fun behind the camera. For this, his first pure horror film since his directorial debut of "Dementia 13" in 1963, he throws in every visual trick possible to keep us interested and off kilter.

When the vampire stalks across a yard in search of its next victim, the camera will skip frames, creating a jerky stop motion effect. In homage to the origins of movies, which began roughly at the time the story is set in 1897, Coppola sets a pivotal meeting between Dracula and Mina in an arcade exhibiting the first cinematographs. The image even speeds up slightly at one point to give the effect of those first movies.

While Keanu Reeves' phony English accent makes him completely unconvincing as Jonathan Harker, Winona Ryder shines as a virginal young Mina. She shows genuine passion for the count, who woos her with diamond teardrops and exotic sweet talk. She even holds her accent together.

Gary Oldman ("Sid and Nancy", "JFK") has the greatest challenge as Dracula, sometimes sporting an obscene hairdo that looks like a cross between a beehive and someone's posterior. He transforms into a wolf, a man-bat who hangs from the rafters, a green mist and an ape-like creature who ravages Mina's young friend Lucy in the stately English gardens.

Oldman has a queer quality that allows him to look alluring in his fashionable tinted sunglasses and stovepipe hat. Then, when he's flopping on the castle floor with a stake in his heart, his

STREET SENSE

At times, it's better to leave than lecture insensitive clod

Dear Barbara,

BARBARA SCHIFF

I would like to know how to deal with a person who makes jokes at the expense of people's feelings. Beneath the surface this behavior seems mean and embarrassing.

Why would someone behave

this way?
Puzzled

Dear Barbara:

When I spend time with my mother, her husband and his family at family gatherings, usually at their club, they often engage in ethnic and racial joke-telling. I have not known how to deal with this and was advised by a woman I respect to go up to the individual alone afterward and tell them of my discomfort.

Recently, I heard a commencement speaker exhort us to not remain silent, but when we hear offensive comments to respond there and then, to take a stand and let all know what is and is not acceptable.

I would appreciate any comments.
Thanks,
Wondering in Birmingham

Dear Puzzled and Wondering,

When I read your letters my first impulse was to identify with the underdogs, those poor victims who are maligned by "insensitive clods." Therapists often consider this the most helpful response. It is also rightfully made fun of by those tough enough to handle the often hard realities of everyday living. The stereotype of a whining patient and a never-critical therapist who will accept any inadequacy is at common subject in mass media.

The readers of this column must realize by now that my replies to letters focus on the writer continuing to grow and develop in order to cope and to adapt to non-changeable realities. In any given situation maturation is not served by blaming others for one's own discomfort.

It is true that there are many bullies in this world, but each of us is responsible to handle them adequately. It is difficult to impossible for reality to be changed. If you are able to change the reality, more power to you.

It is still important to know when it is not possible and when you are better off not hitting your head against a brick wall.

Further, not all of this kind of banter is bad; it is normal. Among male athletes a lot of kidding and joking goes on; from the time they are little boys, men often show their affection with teasing. A 10-year-old girl told me she knows the boy behind her really likes her because he is always pulling her ponytail.

All of us need to develop calluses and be able to take it and to dish it out. When we emphasize being hurt (which neither of you have done) then we are not adequate to the situation.

We have all heard ethnic and racial jokes. Some of us may even have told one or two ourselves. Comedians have built their entire careers making fun of others. Whether it is right or not, that is the way the world is.

It is possible that this is a more benign way of venting hostilities and so protects us from more dangerous ways of acting out. If you don't like it, then leave, don't give a lecture.

We live in a democracy, which means that whether or not we agree with what others say we must fight for each person's right to say it. For yourselves, you can decide never to make fun of another person and that is a noble choice. But to be adequate, you must be able to handle all kinds of people without malice in you.

Barbara

chubbycheeks and sideburns make him look a bit like Stephen Stills.

Anthony Hopkins provides some chuckles as the vampire hunter Van Helsing, a character just begging for parody. Singer Tom Waits also adds a humorously sinister touch as bug-eating Renfield as he growls through barred windows that the master will soon arrive.

As far as the claim that this is a "true" Dracula, I don't remember a cowboys-and-Indians-style chase at the end or the gloppy love story straight out of "Beauty and the Beast." Visually, it's a dazzler, but emotionally this "Dracula" is hard to swallow.

More Detroit suburban travelers

When you want to reach Detroit's affluent suburban travelers, you want to advertise in SPRING.

Because SPRING's audited circulation of 728,609 more than doubles the suburban daily circulation of either The Detroit News (288,960) or Free Press (358,553).

And that's not all.

According to the 1991 Belden study, SPRING reaches more of the affluent suburban shoppers who have more—and spend more.

- ▶ 146,100 more suburban vacationers than the daily News (55,400 more than the Free Press).
- ▶ 91,800 more suburban purchasers of airline tickets than The News (9,700 more than the Free Press).
- ▶ 80,700 (and 7,900) more suburban business travelers.

More suburban boat owners, travel agent customers...

Simply put, one order in SPRING delivers more. Shouldn't you be advertising in SPRING more? To get all the facts, call your SPRING representative.

Talking turkey about Thanksgiving table

I think most of you will agree that Thanksgiving is a special and personal holiday. Although it arrives at a hectic time of year, it is one day we can gather our loved ones around us, relax and reflect on the meaning of home and family.

Never is the dining room table so much the focus of our lives as it is on Thanksgiving Day. The entire celebration revolves around the bounty that overflows the table and the people who are seated around it.

I know you're all busy and may not have thought past the turkey and stuffing yet, but I have a few unusual ideas for your tabletop. These are tidbits shared by shoppers who were browsing the stores last week before the mad rush hits. Talking with them reminded me that a shopping trip can be an opportunity to meet the most delightful people.

I encountered Tina Farrish in Rochester, happily scanning the brimming shelves at the Plain & Fancy Gift Shop. She enthusiastically related her vision of the ideal Thanksgiving centerpiece. "I like a traditional look," she said. "My table is strewn with autumn leaves, corn and gourds. And the addition of artificial bittersweet lends the perfect finishing touch."

Farrish pointed to the arrangement pictured below ($38) to exemplify her ideas. She especially liked this combination of lacy branches, harvest-hued oak leaves and acorns, and paper ribbons because she could build around it on the table and use it as a permanent wall decoration throughout the season. Plain & Fancy also has long ropes of bittersweet for $26.50.

Farrish, a downtown Rochester resident, will be working in the emergency room at Crittenton Hospital on Thanksgiving day but she still looks forward to a post-shift dinner.

A more contemporary table may require the visual excitement of hand-crafted, functional serving pieces. If you are a pottery enthusiast or a collector of sugar and creamers, you'll want to visit Chameleon Galleries in Plymouth. An apple-shaped sugar and creamer are worked in clay by Sarah Fredericks ($150) and given an unusual, life-like matte finish. Her dramatic collection includes teapots and perfume bottles.

Also admiring these works-of-art was Shirley Smith from Bingham Farms. "They are so unusual," she said, referring to the sugar and creamer set. "Wouldn't they be absolutely striking on a table or a dessert tray?" A practical indulgence or a stunning gift, the fruit shapes and harvest colors are perfect for a seasonal table, but not limited to autumn.

Now that the table decor is decided, maybe this year I can find that little something extra to add some zing to the old-favorite family recipes. I wandered into Williams-Sonoma at the Somerset Collection, and joined the small crowd gathered around the sample tray. There, spread on a simple piece of cracker, I tasted the most delicious pecan pumpkin butter by Muirhead out of New Jersey ($6.50).

Annamae Kelly joined me at the tasting table and was equally captivated. We grabbed jars of the spicy-sweet condiment, and as we paid for our finds, she told me of her eight children and 22 grandchildren who inspired her to be the award-winning cook that she is. A Royal Oak fiber artist, Kelly plans to use the pecan pumpkin butter in her pumpkin pie recipe. "But I might just eat it by the spoonful," she quipped.

Whether your Thanksgiving table is laden with turkey or ham, cornbread or sweet potatoes, whether simple or ornate, spare or bountiful, I hope it is surrounded by those who mean the most to you.

Join me next week when I comb the malls & mainstreets for unusual tree toppers to adorn your own evergreen or to give to a favorite newlywed couple celebrating their first Christmas together.

Please call or write to share your favorite shopping stories or tips, time-saving hints, gift ideas, unusual shops or trendy new products.

Comedian's reading to preface Santa's arrival at Fairlane

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

To welcome Santa to Fairlane Town Center this season, the marketing folks persuaded comedian Dave Coulier to stop by Sunday afternoon and introduce the Main Holiday Man.

Coulier is popular with the kids for his work on ABC-TV's "Full House" and "America's Funniest People." An Emmy-winner, he has also hosted the Nickelodeon series "Out of Control."

Coulier's cartoon voices and stand-up comedy routines combine his interests developed while he was growing up in St. Clair Shores.

The comedian will read "Winston Woodchuck's Jewel of a Holiday" with his own touches. Santa will appear on stage in the Hudson's Court as Coulier finishes the story.

The book tells how Winston, with the help of a genie named Bill, discovers the true meaning of friendship. The book was written for Fairlane Town Center by World Kids Press. It cannot be bought, but shoppers whose holiday receipts exceed $150 at Fairlane will receive the book as a gift.

A jazz quartet will entertain shoppers while everyone waits for the man in the red flannel suit to appear.

Fairlane joins malls throughout the area, each planning unusual entrances for Santa.

Coulier's reading is part of Fairlane's weekly story hour begun in August. The program features WNIC radio personalities reading award-winning children's books. Response to the reading program has been "unbelievable" according to Fairlane staff. The series will resume after the holidays on Jan. 8.

Fairlane Town Center is west of the Southfield Freeway and north of Michigan Avenue in Dearborn. For more information call 593-3546.

Pushcart Market: Shoppers stroll through Southland Mall's new Assembly Line Pushcart Market ready for the center's grand reopening Thursday. The pushcarts help smaller retailers participate in the mall scene.

Southland's big facelift gives small retailers a chance

A pyramid, new retail space, a food court, a palm forest and several new retailers are part of the facelift for the 22-year-old Southland shopping mall. The grand reopening for the downriver mall is Thursday.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

When the Rouse Company of Maryland bought Southland Mall in 1989, the first order of business was to arrange a facelift for the 22-year-old downriver shopping mall.

Thursday the bandages come off to reveal an 85-foot high glass pyramid towering over the Eureka Road entrance; 52,000-square feet of new retail space; a food court surrounded by a 40-foot high palm tree forest; fountains; footbridges; family-size restrooms equipped with toddler-accessible sinks, coat hooks and changing tables; a market on pushcarts; kiosk shopping; and boutiques enclosed in glass.

The grand reopening also marks the debut of the Southland Critters. These winged animals were designed to resemble hood ornaments and appear on designs throughout the mall.

"It's exciting with a capital 'E' to be a part of this reopening," said Charleen Lamphear, manager of sales and marketing. "A team of shoppers and merchants met three years ago to suggest improvements and new ideas for the mall, and this week it's finally going to happen. We're all very excited about the finished product."

Responding to the recommendations of the improvement committee, several new retailers were sought for the mall to close merchandise gaps. These include a sports equipment store, more restaurants, more gift shops, and more women's ready-to-wear stores.

Southland Mall has a tradition of steady sales — even through the early 1980s when a recession put unemployment in the 17 downriver communities at 30 percent, Lamphear said.

"This area is big on family," she said. "Most families have one child more than the national average. They tend to grow up, marry, and remain in the area. It's not unusual to see three generations shopping together on a Saturday afternoon — mom, grandma and the kids."

A large population of Canadian shoppers also frequents the mall traveling south off the Ambassador Bridge. Lamphear said the mall advertises regularly in Canada.

Southland Mall offers a marketing program for fledgling retailers. New merchants can rent space in the Motor City Market. Here merchandise is displayed on kiosks, self-contained glass shelf units which fold up when the mall closes. As their business grows, they can progress to renting pushcarts parked along a row known as The Assembly Line Pushcart Market.

"We provide these retailers with support through sales tips, merchandise suggestions and affordable rents," Lamphear said. "When they reach a point when they need even more space they can move into one of six glass-walled boutiques known as our Central Shops."

The multi-million dollar expansion demonstrates the commitment of the Rouse Company and its partner CIGNA Investments Inc. to the downriver community, according to Jill Creps, vice president and general manager of Southland.

"Both owners of the center have enabled us to offer an enhanced retail offering to our shoppers in a beautiful and intimate environment," she said.

Taylor Mayor Cameron Priebe will preside over the 11:30 a.m. ribbon-cutting ceremony in the new Picnic in the Park food court. The Taylor High School Band will play, and the elementary school choir will sing.

The Rouse Company is responsible for such shopping areas as Harbor Place in Baltimore, Faneuil Hall Marketplace in Boston, Underground Atlanta in Atlanta, and Union Station in St. Louis.

How Good Is CARE CHOICES HMO?

"Since I Switched, It's Like Life Got Easier."

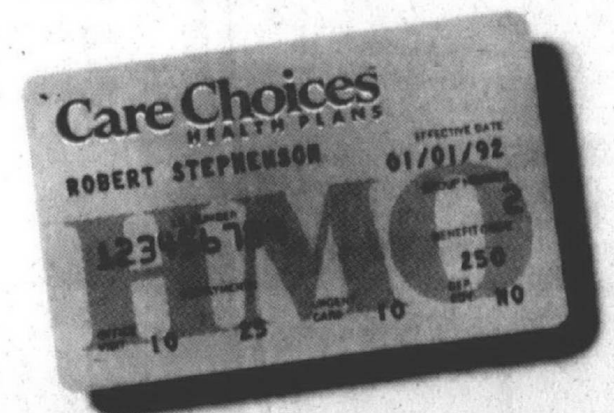

- Kathleen Kline, Farm Lake

"Care Choices has always been really good for me. Whenever I've had any questions about anything, all I've had to do is contact our local Care Choices office. They take care of everything right then and there. From emergency calls to routine doctor visits, it's all handled. It's like I give them the problem and I never have to worry about it again. And that's been great."

How good is Care Choices HMO? Just ask anybody from this side of the state to the other. For an introduction to the plan here in Southeast Michigan, call Member Services at 1-800-852-9780.

Girls hoop teams sing country tune

Garth Brooks, king of country music? Give me a break, I'll take Wynonna Judd any day. And give me girls basketball, too. Let's face it, boys, the girls have it all over you. They're pure country and they can sing up a storm.

When you have girls like Brenda Mayworm (Huron Valley Lutheran), Tammy Allen (Farmington), Tanya Cichosz (Redford Union) and Patty Diamond (Livonia Stevenson) you can't lose.

Whether it's playing a guitar or playing basketball, the country and western charts don't lie.

So it's time to start pickin' to see who's in and who will be out (fast) in the state girls basketball tournament. (Check the labels for the songs which fit your team.) Records are only through Friday.

We can hold our own

Plymouth Canton (17-2): The Chiefs play in one of the toughest districts in the state, but they're playing at home and coach Bob Blohm always has his team ready come tourney time. If this team gets through against rival Salem (tonight) and either Livonia Ladywood or Livonia Stevenson (Wednesday), watch out.

Life's a dance

Redford Bishop Borgess (17-2): Coach Dave Mann has put together a young squad which could do some damage in Class C state tourney, but tough Birmingham-Detroit Country Day could be a stumbling block in the Detroit Benedictine district finals.

She's got rhythm (and I got the blues)

Livonia Stevenson (19-0): The surprising Spartans ended the regular season with a toughie (Canton) and start the state tourney (Ladywood) with a toughie. A victory over Ladywood would give them confidence, but another meeting with Canton looms large in the district final at Northville.

Livonia Ladywood (12-5): Maybe the layoff since the Catholic League semifinals will provide therapy to a team which started the season on fire and then got doused at the end. A victory over Stevenson would ignite the Blazers again.

Backroads

Redford Union (15-5): First-year coach Marty Lowney has quietly put together a good team. The Panthers won the Northwest Suburban League, can win the district and could reach the regional final at Garden City. Stay tuned Ricky Van Shelton.

Crash course in the blues

Plymouth Salem (10-9): Coach Fred Thomann's team has played a brutal schedule, one state-ranked team after another. And it doesn't get any easier tonight with Canton. The Rocks' record is very deceiving, however.

Wrong side of Memphis

Redford Thurston (15-5): The good news is that the Tri-River League champions are hosting their own (Class B) district. The bad news is that the Eagles drew Detroit Public School League runnerup Detroit Renaissance in the opener tonight.

I cross my heart

Farmington Hills Mercy (9-11): It wasn't a great regular season for the Marlins, who got chewed up in the Catholic League's Central Division by state-ranked teams such as Birmingham Marian, Harper Woods Regina and Ladywood. But coach Larry Baker went out and scheduled some victories after missing out on the league playoffs. But the Novi district, which features formidable teams such as Walled Lake Central and Farmington Harrison, is tough.

Suspicious minds

Farmington Harrison (11-8): The Hawks are competitive because of center Heather Hopkins. The draw looks good, too, in the Class A district at Novi, but can this team finally get over the hump?

Not too much to ask

Garden City (10-10): The host Cougars are in a district that any one of four teams could win it. The revenge factor could work in their favor in tonight's opener against Livonia Churchill.

Wayne Memorial (9-11): Lateefa Moore is a fine player who could push the Zebras over the top in the GC district. But they're hoping the post-season doesn't end like it did for the Wayne football team.

Livonia Franklin (7-12): The Patriots came on late in the season, but a lopsided loss to Churchill in the season finale must be puzzling to first-year coach Mary Jarvis. Franklin, however, has a shot in the Garden City district.

Lost and found

Livonia Churchill (7-13): The Chargers started the year with three wins, then dropping 13 straight before finishing with four wins in a row including triumphs GC and Livonia Franklin.

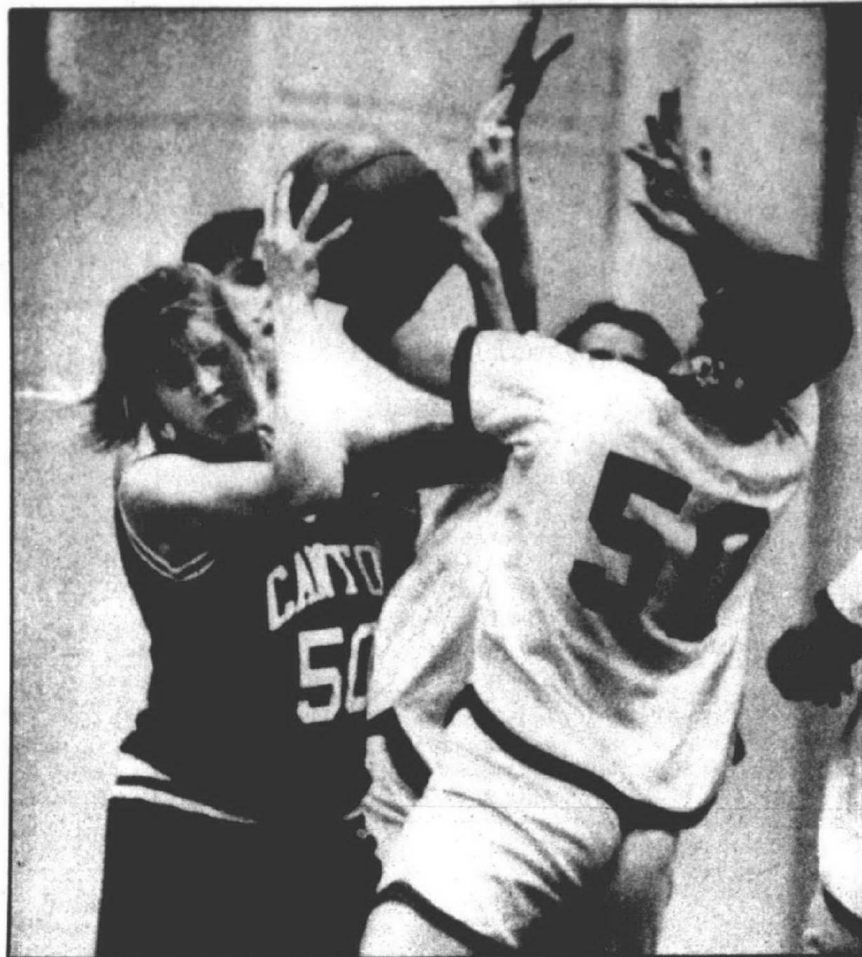

Two sparrows in a hurricane

Lutheran High Westland (10-10): The Warriors may be gaining confidence after an upset victory Thursday over 17-3 Dearborn Heights Annapolis. But the only problem is that a second-round matchup looms against Bishop Borgess.

Redford St. Agatha (12-7): The Aggies made the Catholic League playoffs and could win tonight's encounter with Lutheran Westland (at-Detroit Benedictine), but that's as far as it goes.

Chiefs wear Western Lakes crown

Plymouth Canton beat Livonia Stevenson, 57-42, in a battle of state-ranked teams Saturday in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game at Northville High.

The state girls basketball tournament starts tonight, but Plymouth Canton tied up some unfinished business Saturday night.

The Chiefs capped the regular season by capturing the Western Lakes Activities Association title, breaking Livonia Stevenson's 19-game winning streak with a 57-42 triumph in the playoff final at Northville High.

Canton, now 18-2 overall, avenged one of its two losses this year by using a balanced scoring attack.

Senior center Stephanie Gray, despite picking up her fourth foul early in the second half, led the victorious Chiefs with 14 points.

Junior forward Erica Anderson chipped in with 12, while junior point guard Alyson Nouné contributed 10.

Senior guard Amy Westerhold had eight, including a key basket off a drive with only 3:32 remaining in the game. The basket came with the Chiefs clinging to 45-42 advantage.

The 6-foot Gray then scored on put-back after a missed Westerhold free throw and added another basket with only 2:07 remaining to give Canton a nine-point bulge.

Stevenson wasn't able to close that gap as Canton went on to secure its first playoff championship since 1989.

"It was a great team effort defensively," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "We held Stevenson to 10 field goals, and when you do that defensively, you're playing well."

The Chiefs also put the clamps on Stevenson's outstanding junior point guard, Mo Drabicki.

In the last meeting, a 48-43 Stevenson win, Drabicki had a game-high 24 points, and hit eight of nine free throws.

But on this night, Drabicki was limited to seven points on one field goal (in just five attempts) to go along with five-of-eight shooting from the line.

"We wanted to keep Mo in front of us because when she penetrates to the basket, she can create easy scores for her teammates," Blohm said. "I thought overall we did a pretty good job on her."

Drabicki's running mate at guard, senior Lori Shingledecker, finished with a game-high 21 points, including a pair of three-pointers.

She connected from beyond the three-point stripe with 4:31 to go, pulling the Spartans, who trailed most of the way, to just three back, 43-40. But the Spartans, who were behind 10-6 after one quarter, 23-19 at intermission and 41-33 after three quarters — just couldn't get over the hump.

"When we didn't get a basket off our fast break, we were not patient enough to set up our half-court game," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said. "We were very reluctant to run our half-court offense. We wanted to make something happen spontaneously instead of running our offense. And that was very uncharacteristic of us."

"It's hard to tell what caused them to do it. Either it was Canton's defense that forced us, or the emotion of the night got to us."

Stevenson couldn't take advantage of Gray's absence as Kelly Holmes (five points) and Jori Welchans (five free throws) picked up the slack coming off the bench.

"We had a lot of balance, we got something from just about everybody," Blohm said. "When Stephanie got her fourth, I said, 'Come on Kelly.' Amicie (Crayton) also came on and helped us out, and Erica (Anderson) played a solid game."

The loss prevented Stevenson from completing a 20-0 season, but Henry said his Spartans will not hang their heads.

"This team has come behind to win games and they've come back from some adversity earlier in the season," he said. "There's no reason why we can't come back in the districts."

Meanwhile, there are no breathers in the Class A districts for Canton or Stevenson.

The Chiefs face neighbor Plymouth Salem (11-9) tonight (see pairings), while the Spartans take on Livonia Ladywood (12-5) on Wednesday.

Rocks capture league consolation title

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

A Plymouth Salem-Walled Lake Central girls basketball game usually goes the distance, and the latest meeting Saturday was no different.

Like new heavyweight boxing champ Riddick Bowe, the Rocks prevailed in the end and won the Western Lakes Activities Association consolation title 60-56 at Northville High School.

"Wide open — that's the way it is when you play Central," Salem coach Fred Thomann said, regarding the up-tempo, high-intensity contest.

"We've played that way with them now for three, four years. It's always been high-scoring and close. We've just had a great basketball games with them."

The telling moment, as would be expected, came late in the fourth quarter after Central's Bridget Norris and Jenny Czach had fouled out at 5:14 and 4:01, respectively.

The score was tied at 49 when Czach left. The teams traded baskets until Amanda Tubaugh put Salem ahead to stay, 54-53. Shelly Sockow made it 56-53 and fed Christy Parimucha for a fast-break layup following a Central turnover with 1:10 remaining.

"At that point, the lead was there to be seized," Thomann said. "We took advantage of the situation and got ourselves in position to score."

Keri Kobus sank a triple to keep the Vikings in it, 58-56. The Rocks almost committed a turnover but kept possession when a Central player kicked the ball during the scramble.

That call disturbed Central coach Ken Butler, since the ball didn't go out of the bounds. Cyndi Platter's free throws with 14 seconds left iced the win for Salem (11-9).

"We had a nice little lead (47-43) when (Norris and Czach) started going out," Butler said. "But we played a good game. Salem is a better team than it was at the beginning of the year."

Platter scored a game-high 22 points, including 18 in the middle quarters. After the Vikings (13-7) took the early lead, the Salem center scored 10 in the second period to keep the Rocks within two (27-25) at halftime.

"That was part of the reason Norris got in foul trouble, because she was active at the rim," Thomann said.

Sockow finished with 12 points, and the Rocks got an unexpected lift from Tubaugh, who came off the bench to score a career-high 10 points, including eight in the last quarter, when Salem outscored the Vikings 21-16.

"We felt she couldn't hurt us but she did," Butler said. "We were sagging in to help out and left her alone (on the perimeter) and she just banged us."

Kobus, who averages 19½ points, was on target with 20 for Central. Cindy Muha made her presence felt from the second quarter on and finished with 12, Toni Flood nine, Czach eight and Norris seven.

Would shot clock help girls hoop game?

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY

Plymouth Salem girls basketball coach Fred Thomann is a meticulous scout. Normally he won't leave a game until he has a thorough report on the team he came to see.

So it was quite conspicuous on Nov. 4 when Thomann walked out during the second quarter of the Catholic League semifinal game between Redford Bishop Borgess and Harper Woods Regina.

"I'm not going to sit in there and watch somebody stand around and hold the ball for eight minutes," he said. "Come on."

With the game tied after one quarter, Borgess coach Dave Mann instructed his team to hold the ball, hoping to draw Regina out of its zone defense. Regina was content to sit back and watch Borgess. Thus, a close, fast-paced game came to a screeching halt. Only one basket was scored in the quarter. Borgess went on to defeat Regina, 39-37.

"I understand the strategy of it," Thomann said.

"But in high school athletics at this point and time, the kids need to play. As coaches, we need to develop players, all of the players, and a shot clock makes you do that."

The shot clock. It might be the loudest non-issue facing high school girls basketball today. The players and coaches who have been exposed to it, mainly through AAU and summer camp competition, see the shot clock as a necessary step in the continuing evolution of their sport.

"It makes for a wonderful game," Thomann said. "A beautiful game. And we really need it to prepare the players for the next level. As it is now, these kids are having a heck of time adjusting to the 30-second clock at the college level."

Said Troy Athens coach Joe Clinton: "I sure would like to see a shot clock, because, first of all, the kids love it. It would produce a fast, up-tempo game and it not only forces coaches to coach, it would also encourage coaches to use more players. It goes back to what high school sports are supposed to be about: kids having fun."

But even the most ardent campaigners for the shot clock realize the odds are long against them.

"It'll never pass," Thomann said. "There has been some talk about it, but a lot of guys (coaches) don't want to have to work too hard. They say, 'Oh no, now we have a shot clock. Now we've got to teach these kids how to play. Now we can't just sit back in our zone and let the best two players handle the ball all of the time.'"

To the legislators and administrators of high school sports, both locally and nationally, the shot clock is and has always been a non-issue.

"There just hasn't been any great clamoring for it," said Dick Schindler, editor of basketball rules for the National Federation of State High School

CC survives with late field goal, 9-6 Tunes from page 1C

It may have been only one win of the four needed to win a state championship, but Saturday's regional win by Redford Catholic Central will be treasured for some time to come.

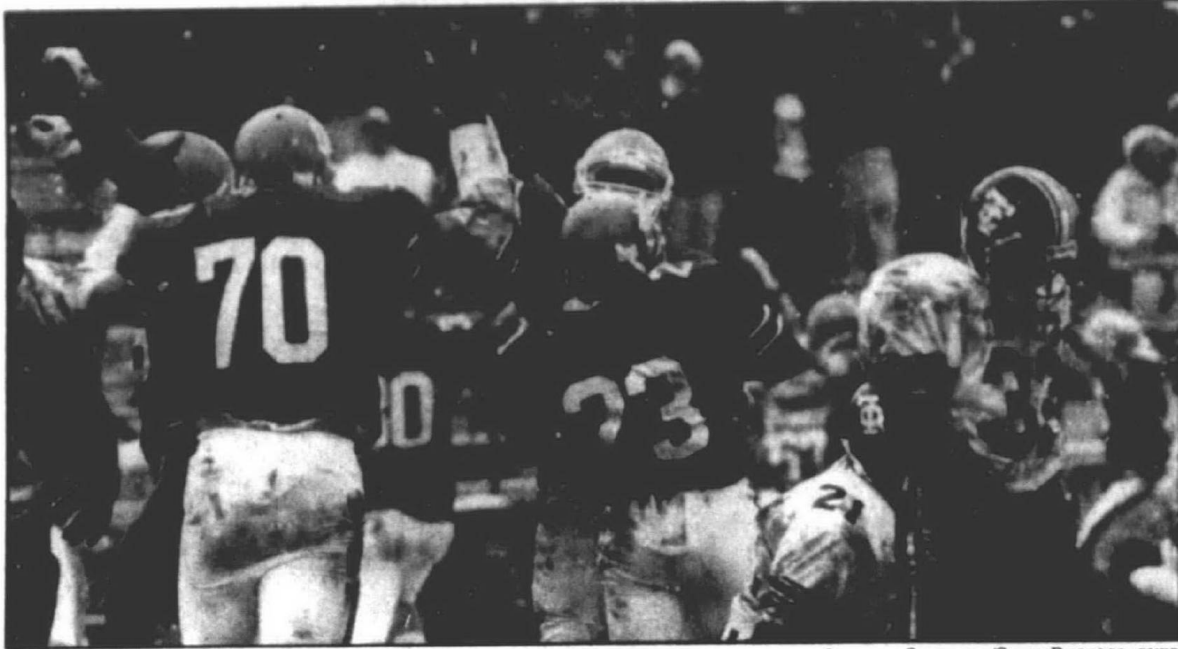

Facing an unbeaten Troy Colts squad, that could match CC in victories (10) but not size, coach Tom Mach's No. 1-ranked Shamrocks needed a 34-yard field goal from junior Adam Borchert with 47 seconds remaining to squeeze out a 9-6 victory on a slick surface at Wisner Stadium in Pontiac.

With the win, the Region III-champion Shamrocks move into the Class AA semifinal round Saturday (3:30 p.m.) against Utica Eisenhower at Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium. Eisenhower (11-0) stayed alive Saturday with a 16-6 victory over Detroit Martin Luther King in Region IV final play.

"We're happy to get out of here with a win," said Mach, whose squad fell one win short of the coveted Class AA crown last season with a 13-12 loss to Saginaw-Arthur Hill. "This was high school football at its best with two great teams battling each other."

"That's a very good Troy football team over there," Mach went on. "They are as good a team defensively as we have played all year. I've said all along, we're not fancy, but we're effective."

The Shamrocks held a decisive edge in total yards, outgaining the Colts 247-47, but on a snowy and blustery day that featured dozens of bone-crushing hits, managed to find the end zone on only one occasion.

That trip to paydirt was vital because it followed Troy's lone touchdown, a 10-yard jaunt by senior running back Ray Dawood in the third quarter that was set up by a key interception from defensive back Craig Fritts.

Beginning at their 33 with 6:25 remaining in the period, CC quarterback Chris Barbara directed his teammates 67 yards in 10 plays. The final play covered 21 yards when junior running back Fred Taylor broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage and raced around left end for the touch-down. Just like Troy kicker Paul Boehms, Borchert sent the extra point wide of the uprights, leaving the score tied at 6-6.

Field position became the key in the fourth quarter as all but one minute of playing time was spent on the Colts side of the 50. Borchert missed on a 47-yard goal midway through the period, but thanks to a Shamrock defense that allowed the Colts only nine yards in the quarter, got a chance to redeem himself.

"We knew he had the leg, we were just hoping he could put it through," Mach said of Borchert's winning boot.

"I'm proud of our effort," said Troy coach Gary Griffith, whose squad managed only one first down on the day. "I said earlier in the week that if we were going to win, we would win ugly. We just couldn't get anything going offensively and that was the difference."

Athletic Associations. "We have had discussions on it the past eight or ten years. We've sent out questionnaires and we've had it on our agenda. But it has never come to an official vote. There is just not overwhelming support for it at this time."

Like the three-point arc and the coaches' box, a shot-clock rule would have to be approved at the national level first.

"There are 11 people on the basketball rules committee and an item needs seven votes to pass," Schindler said. "My guess is that if we put this to a vote, four would be for it and seven would be opposed."

States can enact a shot-clock rule on an experimental basis. New York and California have experimental shot-clock rules. But don't look for one in Michigan any time soon.

"We haven't had any substantial requests for it," said Jack Roberts, executive director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association. "Not from the coaches and least of all from the administrators who would be responsible for paying for the equipment and for the person to run it."

Cost and logistics lead the list of arguments against the shot clock.

Shot clocks cost between $1,500 and $3,000, and schools would need to purchase two of them.

"Some of the schools in the Detroit Public School League have just this year got game clocks. Now we are going to ask them to buy a shot clock?" said John Johnson, communications director for the MHSAA. "Not only that, but where do you put it? On the backboard? On the wall? On the floor? Will there be a uniform standard? Then you have to find a quality person to run and believe me, it isn't a no-brainer to operate. So now we will be asking athletic directors to hire a shot-clock operator on top of a scoreboard operator and a public address person — I just think we would be taxing the high schools too much."

There is also strong sentiment that the sport simply doesn't need a shot clock.

"If the game ever reached the point where it needed a shot in the arm; if the players no longer wanted to play, and the coaches no longer wanted to coach and the people stopped coming to the games, then we would look into it," Schindler said.

Some coaches agreed that the shot clock wouldn't impact the game that much.

"You don't really see a lot of time between shots," said Garden City coach Marshall Henry. "If a team takes more than 25 seconds between shots, that is unusual. Plus, it takes great discipline and great ballhandling to be able to hold the ball. Not too many can do it and be successful."

Schindler shot down Thomann's argument that it would help players make the transition from high school to college.

"It is not the purpose of high school sports to be a farm club for colleges," he said.

As for speeding up the pace of the game, Schindler said there was nothing in the current rules that prohibit or inhibit a faster game. He also said that the shot clock would further debilitate weaker teams.

Proponents of the clock scoff at those claims. "We are so archaic with our thought process," Thomann said. "There is absolutely no flow to the high school game. You have four quarter breaks. You have automatic timeouts. You have teams holding the ball so you have to foul to get it back and that breaks up the game even more." Thomann thinks the quarter system should be dropped in favor of two 18-minute halves. "Why not two 20-minute halves," Clinton said. "Make it just like the college game."

As for hurting the weaker teams, Farmington Hills Mercy coach Larry Baker said: "I don't buy that. The kids get so much more exhilarated about playing at a faster pace. It's more player-oriented. It would put the ball in the hands of the players and force them to learn and to use their skills."

But, as Baker, Clinton, Thomann and other proponents know, the shot clock is a concept whose time hasn't come. But it will. Even Schindler will admit that.

Achy breaky heart
North Farmington (10-9): Carey Perkins (no relation to Carl) is the Raiders' catalyst, but tonight's assignment against Mercy is a tall order.

Lonesome standard time
Farmington (5-15): This team didn't make the Western Lakes playoffs, finishing only ahead of Livonia Church Hill. Detroit Henry Ford (6-6) is the first opponent at the Southfield district. Flip a coin in that one.

Just call me lonesome
Huron Valley (11-9): Just how good is this team, which travels to the wide-open Allen Park Inter-City Baptist Class D district. Star player Brenda Mayworm scored 45 last week against Detroit Trinity, but this same Huron Valley team scored only 15 points in a 36-point loss to Bloomfield Hills

Roeper.
Going out of my mind
Westland John Glenn (3-16): The Rockets haven't had any fuel all season long, but beating Wayne for the second time this season is not out of the realm of possibilities at the up-for-grabs Garden City district.

Nowhere bound
Livonia Clarenceville (7-13): The young Trojans are a year or two away, but Tuesday's matchup with Country Day is no way to start the new season.

Even the man in the moon is cryin'
Plymouth Christian (13-7): The Eagles get to go all the way to Class D district at Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes to get dunked by state-ranked Auburn Hills Oakland Christian.

Opening day best for deer hunters

BILL PARKER

GREAT OUTDOORS
Opening day of the firearms deer season is traditionally the best day of the firearms deer hunting season. More big bucks are killed on opening day than any other day of Michigan's 16-day firearms season.

You want proof? Check out the opening day success of local hunters over the last five years.

■ Plymouth's Harry McMullen shot two bucks, a 4-point and an 8-point while hunting near Baldwin on opening day of the 1987 hunt.

■ In 1988, Livonia's Mike Foley took a 180-pound, 8-point one in Jackson County.

■ Art Kannisto of Farmington Hills dropped a 170-pound, 8-point in Alger County on opening day of the 1989 firearms season.

■ Livonia resident Pat Flanagan shot a Boone & Crockett 24-point, non-typical buck on opening day of the 1990 season in Huron County.

■ Last year, Livonia's John Haas dropped a 170-pound, 10-point from his blind in Livingston County.

So why is opening day so much better than others?

There are several reasons. To start with, the rut is in full bloom and mature bucks are very active. They're on the move throughout the day in search of a receptive doe.

Despite the increased archery hunting activity in recent years, deer in general are still pretty calm on opening day. They won't become spooked until the shots start to ring out.

Hunter activity is at a premium on opening day. Ardent hunters will be in the woods throughout the season, but even the "Week-end Warriors" will be out in force on opening day. All this hunter activity in the woods will keep the deer moving around throughout the day.

Hunters who experience opening day success on a regular basis do a few things to increase their odds. Here are some of their tips:

■ Pack a lunch and stay in the woods all day. Forget about the afternoon trip to the buck pole unless you have one to hang. Many hunters leave the woods between 10 and 11 a.m. and don't return until 2 or 3 p.m. Everyone knows deer are active at daylight and dusk, but they're also on the move when everything quiets down after the hunters leave the woods for lunch. Take advantage of this activity period by staying put all day.

When the lead starts to fly, big bucks will head for cover. Try to set up a blind in an area which you can cover two or three deer runs heading into thick cover.

Arrive at your blind well ahead of the early morning rush. Many trophy deer are shot each year by hunters who are already sitting quietly as the rest of the pack heads into the woods. Last, but certainly not least, remain quiet and still at all times.

If you or a friend are successful this year give me a call and we'll print your success in our own buck pole. I'll be manning the phones on Monday evening, 6-10 p.m. (not this Monday) at 644-1101 or send a letter to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mich., 48009. Please include the successful hunter's name and city of residence, the weight of the deer (if known) and number of points on the rack, the date, time and place of the kill, and any other interesting information.

Everyone knows someone with diabetes.

Fourteen million Americans are living with diabetes. Unfortunately, more than half do not know they have it because diabetes can strike silently. Many will first learn about "diabetes when they are treated for one of its complications - kidney disease, blindness, amputation, heart disease or stroke. Know the early warning signs of frequent urination, unusual thirst, extreme hunger, frequent infections or blurred vision. While there is no cure for diabetes, every day research brings hope. The American Diabetes Association is the nation's leader in the fight against diabetes - funding research, education and patient services.

14 million reasons to find a cure.

Until there's a cure, there's the American Diabetes Association.

'Tis the season . . .

Sharing time:
A bulldog getting a gift from a cat? That's what's on the cover of card from the Michigan Humane Society. Price is $10 for a set of 20 cards and envelopes.

Down the lane: You can almost hear the sleigh bells with this card, one of four available from Dawn Farm, a residential treatment center for young adults. Price is $10 for 25 cards plus $2 shipping and handling.

In the manger: A pen-and-ink sketch of the Christ Child in the manger graces the cover of cards from Right to Life — Lifespan. Price is $5 for a package of 12 cards.

If you're interested in these and other cards offered by non-profit groups in the Detroit metropolitan area, The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers has compiled books of cards, available for perusal during business hours at our five Observer & Eccentric offices.

Our Livonia office is at 36251 Schoolcraft; in Birmingham at 805 E. Maple; in Plymouth at 744 Wing St.; in Farmington at 21898 Farmington Road, and in Rochester at 1814 Rochester Road.

Many of the organizations offering imprinting, but require early ordering, so don't delay. After all, the holidays will be here sooner than you think.

Pa-rum-pum-pum: The Little Drummer Boy plays his tune on the cover of a card from the Michigan Head Injury Alliance. Cost is $8 for a box of 20 cards

Buying a Used Car Can Be Risky.

Blackwell Ford can help minimize the risk you take when purchasing a used vehicle. Every used vehicle sold by Blackwell Ford undergoes extensive reconditioning and safety inspection before it is offered for sale. If the vehicle does not meet our high standards, it will never be displayed on our lot. Regal attitude: This Victorian inspired design by Michele Piccione for Alfred Angelo DreamMaker features a princess bodice of satin, accented by embroidered medallions and dramatic puff sleeves. A full satin skirt and semi-cathedral train are trimmed with beaded Schiffler embroidery.

Totally enchanting: Elegant brocade, accented with hand-beaded Schiffler embroidered medallions is selected by Michele Piccione, designer for Alfred Angelo DreamMaker.

She deftly shapes the ball gown bodice and wing sleeves creating an aura that is pure romance. The full skirt, ending in a semi-cathedral train, is a soft drift of tulle.

Elegant fluidity: The long lithe look in crepe lends a special note of grace to the bridal party. Designed for Alfred Angelo DreamMaker, the gown is balanced with rhinestone trimmed bow on one shoulder, dropped asymmetrical waistline and slim tulip skirt with high/low hemline.

Designer gives bridal tips

Michele Piccione, designer for Alfred Angelo DreamMaker, offers the following reminders for consideration by brides:

- Experiment with how you want your hair to look on the day you are married. Try on each headpiece and veil so that your final selection will complement your hairstyle, your facial features and the design of the dress you have chosen.
- If your gown is off the shoulder and bares the back, choose a veil in a length that acts as a cover-up, if desired.

- If your gown has a cathedral length train, you may want to enhance the image with a full length veil.
- If you plan to wear eyeglasses on your wedding day, be sure to wear them when you are selecting your bridal headpiece. Your glasses can help determine the height and width of your headpiece and perhaps the use of a facial veil.

Reception convenience: Another example of a headpiece with a veil that can be easily unattached for ease of movement after the ceremony. By Alfred Angelo DreamMaker.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

There is an indication of great happiness and joy in your future. There are things happening under the surface of which you are not aware.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
You may experience a sense of loss or separation. It is time to take stock of things before making another major decision. The damage has been done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
It is time to analyze your goals. You may be involved in a difficult situation, and it is important that you do not make any rash decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
You may receive wise counsel from a sympathetic person. If you really believe you are right, be firm but don't cause distress to others.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Don't waste time and energy on useless arguments. Jealousy is an ugly emotion; try not to let it get the better of you.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Don't feel sorry for yourself; new opportunities are on the way. You must be strong in your convictions concerning a specific situation.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

There is no better time to organize your life and get your affairs in order. Things are going to get crazy, so take care of everything you can now.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
You may be in an unsatisfactory situation regarding money and business. It could be that you are going about things the wrong way.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
You need to look at your life realistically and see what needs changing. A disagreement could disrupt a long-time friendship.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
This could be the end of an important relationship and the beginning of something new and exciting. You could receive an important letter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Know that everything is possible, but you must be willing to work for it. Proceed carefully in relationships, or face the consequences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
This is no time to be afraid of hard work. To reach your goals you must decide to do what is right. An unexpected event is headed your way.

STAR NOTES

Statlers' longevity perpetuated on TV

By Dan Rice

Legend has it they took their name from a brand of facial tissue, but The Statler Brothers (Harold and Don Reid, Phil Balsley and Jimmy Fortune) have built a career in country music that is as solid as it comes. The Statler Bros. Show, which became the highest-rated prime-time series on basic cable in its premiere season, launches its second season on The Nashville Network on Saturday, Nov. 21.

Lead singer Don Reid, who with his baritone brother, Harold, writes the shows, says their format owes a lot to programs like The Ed Sullivan Show. "We loved that era in the '50s and the '60s when there were variety shows. There just seemed to be a lighter-hearted television then."

The Statlers' show is very much reminiscent of those times with its mix of song, comedy and specialty acts including ventriloquists, magicians and jugglers. There are even two lovely ladies in skimpy costumes who change the title cards.

Dean Jones goes Hawaiian with 'Saved by the Bell'

Saturday morning hit gets prime-time shot

The cast of NBC's Saved by the Bell, the top-rated Saturday-morning series for teens, has been rewarded by the network with a working vacation in the tropics. The prime-time movie Saved by the Bell Hawaiian Style, airing Friday, Nov. 27, also treated the young cast to the influential presence of former Disney leading man Dean Jones.

Jones plays the grandfather of high school student Kelly (Tiffani-Amber Thiessen) and invites her and her friends to his quaint Hawaiian Hideaway resort. There the gang helps Jones save his business from a ruthless real estate developer.

Without mention of how public school students can afford the exorbitant airfare, the movie jets the teens into a story that, while reminiscent of madcap Disney movies of the '60s, still maintains the successful format of the Saved by the Bell series. That translates to well-meaning, vivacious teens stumbling on their own ineptitude while pursuing higher goals, yet ultimately proving that good will out.

For some characters, island romances provide valuable life lessons. Zack (Mark-Paul Gosselaar) learns sacrifice and commitment from an unwed mother (Rena Sofer). Kelly falls for a young lawyer with ulterior motives. Slater (Mario Lopez) and Jesse (Elizabeth Berkley) discover even a lovers' paradise can be ruined by petty bickering. Meanwhile, Lisa (Lark Voorhies) finds some new malls to shop at and Screech (Dustin Diamond)...well, Screech has his ideo camera.

The first prime-time outing for Saved by the Bell is not going to win any new viewers outside its original demographic group—adults, for example—but it won't disappoint any fans in its stretch from a half-hour to two hours. Never mind that a subplot in which Screech's resemblance to a carved statue causing natives to believe he is the descendant of their tribal god is all too similar to an episode of Gulligan's Island.

Jones, known for his roles in Bee- thoven and Disney films including That Darn Cat, The Shaggy D.A. and The Love Bug, took the part as a favor to his friend, executive producer Peter Engel, who, Jones says, backs up the positive teenage image on Saved by the Bell with the claim that "not every teenage girl is pregnant, and not every teenage boy is a drug addict."

Extensively involved with child-care organizations, Jones enjoyed the time spent on the Saved by the Bell project.

"When I can go to work as an actor, it's a vacation for me. I concentrate on one thing, which is my job, and in between shots I relax and enjoy my fellow actors and craftsmen. It truly is a vacation for me. I have a perfect excuse to cancel all appointments and show up on the set."

Jones' lively co-stars made the experience all the more memorable for him.

"It's challenging when you've got all of that teenage exuberance around you to maintain your concentration on what you're supposed to be doing. If you do with it, it takes on a life of its own and becomes a lot of fun."

Leave a clean trail.

BIJITS ANDI PIJEICIS

Duvall's Stalin a chilling presence; E! Entertainment goes shopping

"I will never forget the moment," says director Ivan Passer. "The first day of shooting in Russia, when Mr. Duvall came out of the makeup trailer made up as Stalin." Duvall, who has the title role in HBO's three-hour film Stalin, also recalls that day, when he emerged after four hours of wig fitting, nose plastering and eyebrow painting. But Passer, who grew up in Czechoslovakia during the Stalinist era, says the effect was worth it.

"We had about 80 soldiers — extras, Russians dressed up as soldiers — and about 100 people in the crew, and they just froze. And he walked through them and they couldn't look at him; they looked down and they parted so that he could go through, and they stopped talking. I got the chills."

Pa ser also notes that Duvall stayed in character between takes, which must have been a fine way to maintain discipline on the set.

One good turn deserves another. Fashion critic Mr. Blackwell will play himself in a talk-show sequence on an upcoming episode of ABC's Civil Wars titled "The Triumph of DeVille." Blackwell recently granted series star Mariel Hemingway a place on his annual Best Dressed list and has apparently earned a reward.

Robert Duvall in makeup for Stalin

Cable's E! Entertainment Television appears to be shifting its focus away from its 24-hour Entertainment Tonight-type programming with the acquisition of two outside programs. Beginning Friday, Nov. 27, The Howard Stern Interview has the shock rock entertaining/offending in a late-night talk-show format. Then E! will tap into controversy past on Jan. 4 when it begins its exclusive run of 71 original episodes of The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour. The episodes have not been aired since CBS fired the satirist folk singers in 1969.

Barbara Hale and Raymond Burr star in Perry Mason: The Case of the Ruthless Reporter, Friday on NBC.

Country star Randy Travis performs on The Statler Bros. Show, Saturday on The Nashville Network.

FAMILY FAIR

'Planeteers' defeat unfounded fears

By Chris Carpenter

Clearing the globe of environmental evil might be their full-time job, but the eco-warriors of Captain Planet and the Planeteers work overtime in a new episode airing in syndication on Saturday, Nov. 21, and the following day on the Planeteers' base station, TBS.

"A Formula for Hate," wherein the Planeteers purge polluted minds in lieu of the usual lakes and streams, is the first cartoon to deal squarely with the issue of AIDS.

The show features the voice work of Elizabeth Taylor as Donna, a mother who learns her popular, athletic child is HIV-positive and the object of a citywide hate campaign.

Taylor's own family has been directly touched by the disease, and even through a Southern drawl obviously thickened for effect, heartfelt pain and indignation are effectively emoted. Other guest voices include Neil Patrick Harris (Doogie Howser, M.D.), as Donna's afflicted high-school son Todd, and Dancer McKellar (Winnie, The Wonder Year!), as his unwavering girlfriend.

Surprisingly few stones remain unturned in this episode's path to better understanding, especially considering its animation. But as loyal Planeteers and their parents can attest, this is what Captain Planet creator Ted Turner envisioned, a cartoon with a conscience.

Holly Robinson and Jason Weaver star in The Jacksons: An American Dream, ending Wednesday on ABC.

CIABILLIE NIEWSIS

TDC visits Ireland; A&E recalls Cagney

By Dan Rice

Spend some time on the Emerald Isle this week as The Learning Channel celebrates "The Colors of Ireland" with daily documentary offerings focusing on the island's history, literature and culture. The selections include In All Her Sons and Daughters, J.P. Donleavy's Ireland, making its television debut Wednesday, Nov. 18. In the one-hour program, the Irish-American novelist tells the story around his mother, as he remembers about the writing of his first book, The Ginger Man, and the long flight to the nature of the Irish people.

The son of an Irish bartender, James Cagney's life is chronicled Tuesday, Nov.

17, on A&E's Biography. The former vaudevillian made his mark in the American cinema as a tough guy, dancer and consummate professional and was in 1941 the second-highest paid man in America.

Has the nation forgotten its roots? The quest in of whether the family farm still has a place in America is addressed in There, But For the Grace of God, airing Saturday, Nov. 21, on The Discovery Channel. The program examines the economic struggles that threaten the survival of small farms.

Debuting Saturday on HBO, Stalin stars Robert DeNiro as the Russian leader who's immortalized in a life-size portrait against a crowd of people. The three-hour film also stars Maximilian Schell and Julia Ormond.

On Tuesday, A&E's Biography series examines the life and career of Oscar-winning actor James Cagney

LET'S TALK

Three Gabors, dah-ling; Swayze not a dad

By Taylor Michaels

Q: We are really curious about the Gabor sisters. How many of them are there, and what are their ages and names? Also, is Eva the youngest and does she pronounce her name "A"sa? —Phil Richards, Portland, Ore.

A: There are three Gabor sisters: Zsa Zsa (born Sari), Eva (indeed pronounced with the long "a" sound) and Magda. Zsa Zsa, the eldest of the three Budapest, Hungary, natives, was born on Feb. 6, 1921 and married eight times. The star of films including Moulin Rouge and Queen of Outer Space she was once convicted of slapping a policeman. Eva, the youngest sister, chirped "Ah-lee-yah!" on TV's Green Acres, was born on Feb. 11, 1924, and has had five husbands. Magda's birthday is not widely known, since she has not pursued a screen career.

Q: Will you please tell me what you know about an actress from the '30s and '40s named Beulah Bondi?

A: She was cast as the mother of the hero in many classic films. Two of my favorites were Bondi as Gary Cooper's mother in Sergeant York and as James Stewart's mother in It's a Wonderful Life. —Barbara Sudheimer, Kihel, Hawaii.

A: Beulah Bondi (originally Bondy) was born on May 3, 1892, in Chicago. She had appeared in small stage productions even before the turn of the century, and her acting talent would be relegated to stock theater for 25 more years before she won a major Broadway role in One of the Family. Five years later, she appeared in her first film Street Scene at age 39. The remainder of her career was spent in mature characterizations.

Topping the list of her long and illustrious film roles are her two Oscar-nominated performances, for 1936's The Gorgeous Hussy and 1938's Of Human Hearts.

Bondi also won an Emmy in 1977 for Outstanding Lead Actress for a Single Appearance in a Drama or Comedy Series for "The Pony Cart" episode of The Waltons, portraying a dying, reclusive Walton who touches the lives of the mountain family before she passes away. Bondi never married, she died in 1981.

Q: Can you tell me if Patrick Swayze and his wife have any children? I say "yes" and my friend says "no." Who is right? —Sharon Gallagher, Portland, Ore.

A: Just saying "no" seems to pay off in many ways, and this is one of them. Sorry, Swayze and his wife, Lisa Niemi (see 'em both in Steel Dawn) have no children.

Q: Several years ago we saw a great movie on television and have never seen it again. The wife is an absent-minded person who can't get through a normal day without reminders and written notes from her husband. They relocate, and she must travel alone to the new city where they will be living in the family station wagon. She forgets to fill the tank, and she witnesses a robbery and murder when she finally stops for gas, and afterwards she is chased cross-country. What is the name of this movie, and is it available on video? —Carol Gerue, Stephenson, Mich.

A: The delightfully forgetful character was played by Valerie Harper, and the movie of which you write is Night Terror, a 1976 made-for-television effort co-starring Richard Romanus, Michael Tolan, Quinn Cummings and Nicholas Pryor. VideoHound's reference book says it's available on both VHS and Beta tapes.

TIME OUT

Baseball's expansion teams go to market

By Michael Scoggin

Dennis Burlingame and Jim Poole aren't household names, but to the Florida Marlins and the Colorado Rockies, they may spell future success. Burlingame and Poole are among the big league prospects expected to be selected during ESPN's exclusive six-and-a-half hour coverage of Major League Baseball's expansion draft, airing live Tuesday, Nov. 17, from New York.

"Nothing like this has ever been shown before on television," says Keith Olberman, who will anchor ESPN's coverage with assistance from Peter Giammons, Ray Knight and a host of floor and field reporters.

During the draft, owners of the two expansion teams will put their scouting ability to the test when they select 36 players each from the unprotected lists of the 26 existing major league teams, who are allowed to protect just 15 of their major and minor league players.

Simple? Hardly. Some of the players behind the draft read like superpower arms treaty. Existing teams have been preparing for this day since the rules were spelled out over a year ago, and the draft-day wheeling and dealing as teams scramble to protect their young prospects and established stars should be interesting, to say the least.

There will be an element of the three-ring circus here, but I really think that will make for some great television," says Olberman.

Bruce Willis and Bonnie Bedelia star in the action-drama Die Hard, Monday's Fox Night at the Movies.
