Vorva takes place in Lansing

The road to Lansing started years ago for newly elected State Rep. Jerry Vorva. As a youth he picked cotton in the fields of Alabama and later became a city of Plymouth police officer, but was fired when he questioned department policies.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

There were a few obstacles in Jerry Vorva's road to the state Legislature. The former Plymouth police officer remembers hard times in Alabama, as the only child of an unwed 16-year-old mother.

In 1984, a problem with his heart caused it to stop, and upon recovery he was fitted with a pacemaker.

Five years later, he was fired from the city police department for questioning the city administration publicly at city commission meetings over spending.

But Vorva won a $150,000 settlement related to that firing. He was elected to the city commission.

And on his second try, he was elected to the state House to represent Plymouth in Lansing.

Moments after his swearing-in on the state House floor Wednesday, Vorva was asked how it felt to be a state legislator.

"It feels great. I'm ecstatic," he said.

Just minutes before, his mom, Pauline, was smiling, sitting with husband Robert.

"I'm proud, very proud," she said.

Friends and several colleagues view the new state legislator as a hard worker; someone with strong beliefs, a clear sense of right and wrong and a sharp sense of humor. Many supporters say Vorva will do well in Lansing.

Then again, some opponents maintain the new state legislator is a blowhard, too crude to succeed in the state House where many savvy, experienced politicians rule.

While several city commission watchers give Vorva high marks for helping to cut wasteful spending, some city employees shake their heads when his name is mentioned, recalling his suggestion that the city could save money by having various departments answer calls, rather than paying for a receptionist.

Early life

The new state legislator can remember picking cotton as a young boy in Alabama, where he was being raised by his mom and grandmother.

When Vorva was age 6, his mom married Robert Vorva, a career Marine.

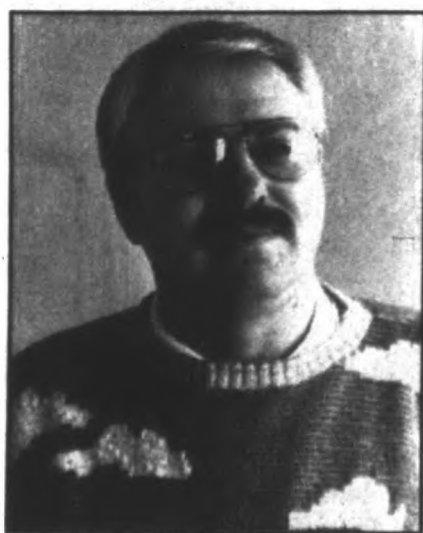

"I got to live in a housing project supplied by the military," he said. It had running water and other indoor plumbing, unlike the farmhouse he'd been living in.

"I thought I'd gone to the Taj Mahal."

His new dad's family was from the Flat Rock area, Vorva said. The family moved to Michigan, where he started kindergarten.

The family eventually moved around the country, not unusual with military families, and Vorva said he attended "a dozen different public

Moving on: City recreation department director Chuck Skene is up for approval as Westland's recreation department director.

Residency rule sends city's recreation head to Westland

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth's longtime department of recreation director is getting ready to leave his job.

Chuck Skene, head of the department for 18 years, is awaiting word from the Westland City Council. On Tuesday, they're expected to approve his hiring as recreation department director there.

"It's a chance to go to a larger community; I'm looking forward to that. We couldn't come to a conclusion on the residency issue," Skene said.

His departure is sparked by city voters' rejection in November of an amendment to the city charter. The amendment would have allowed non-residents to serve as city department heads.

A longtime Plymouth resident, Skene in recent years divorced and eventually began living in Westland, upon remarrying.

A charter revision committee appointed by the city commission last year recommended that Plymouth — like many cities — dump its residency requirement, saying this was outdated.

Opponents of the the residency requirement said it limited the pool of talent from which the city could draw.

As the committee studied the issue, both Skene and Police Chief Robert Scoggins lived outside of town, Scoggins in Canton.

But voters rejected the amendment, leaving city commissioners and the city administration to decide what to do.

Most city commissioners and City Manager Steve Walters said they didn't agree with what voters did, but they had to uphold it.

While some officials tried to find a way to define residency so as to allow Skene to continue living in Westland, Walters said what had to happen was clear.

"He has to move back into Plymouth," Walters said.

To allow Scoggins to move to Plymouth, the city administration is working out a plan to raise his compensation.

Not bad

Oza Heath of Plymouth Township, 79, recently bowled a 573 series at the Plymouth Bowl — her best score ever in nearly 30 years of bowling.

"I just wanted my friends to know about it," she explained.

Heath's high game of the series was 220. Her technique? "I have just a slight hook," she said.

Heath bowls every Thursday afternoon with the Good Time Bowlers seniors group at the Plymouth Bowl.

Photo contest

The Plymouth International Ice Spectacular attracts thousands of viewers and among those folks are plenty of amateur photographers who snap away at the glittering ice creations.

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

For those photo buffs, the Plymouth Observer is holding a contest that will pay the winner $100. We're looking for the best color photo of the ice festival.

The prize winner's photo will be use on the cover of a special ice festival guide we publish prior to the event.

To enter the contest, contact Jeff Counts, editor of the Plymouth Observer at 459-2700 or mail your entry to 744 Wing St., Plymouth, Mich., 48170.

New Realtor

Vera Scott of Plymouth has joined Remerica Hometown Realtors of Plymouth. She is a 1992 graduate of Oakland Community College, where she served as editor of The Highland Voice and has worked in human resources for Precision Coatings of Walled Lake.

Inaugural party

For those unable to attend the inaugural festivities in Washington D.C., a local inauguration party is scheduled for 7-10 p.m. Wednesday at Ernesto's, 41661 Plymouth Road.

Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, beer, wine and soda will be served, and television screens will be tuned to the festivities in Washington.

Cost is $20 per person, with the refreshments included. For reservations, call 453-0465. Proceeds will be used to develop a network of friends and supporters of soon-to-be-President Bill Clinton in Northville and Plymouth.

The event will be hosted by Dennis Shrewsbury, a Plymouth city commissioner.

Officials push for spruced-up Ann Arbor Road

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

They've started to spruce up the Ann Arbor Road business corridor, and officials have scheduled a competition to spark ideas for design improvements.

It was in October when the Plymouth city and township planning commissions, in a joint meeting, talked about a need to improve the corridor, from Sheldon to Lilley.

Some ideas for improvements along the city-township border included following a theme, greenbelt screening and possible creation of a boulevard.

And late last month, with help from state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, 20 to 25 poles were removed along Ann Arbor Road, a state road.

The action followed a review of

'We met with professors from four universities; they're all excited; they want to make it a happening. We're looking for creativity.'

James Anulewicz
Township Director of Public Services

the corridor "to see if there were any immediate actions that could be taken for removal of wires, poles, etc. to reduce the visual clutter," said James Anulewicz, township director of public services.

A field survey was conducted last month by city engineer Ken West, township planning commissioner Donald Skinner and Michigan Bell engineer Rudy Rutenbar.

"Mr. Rutenbar confirmed that Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will remove all Michigan Bell aerial cables crossing the corridor as well as the supporting poles," West said.

Skinner said the poles would likely be removed "in conjunction with other things that are involved."

Meanwhile, a competition has been scheduled for Saturday, March 20, involving design students from four universities: the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, the University of Detroit and Lawrence Technological University.

"We met with professors from four universities; they're all excited; they want to make it a happening," Anulewicz said. "We're looking for creativity."

The students will be in town all day producing drawings, and their concepts will be judged by a team of design professionals.

The students, Anulewicz said, will look at what's positive and what's negative about the corridor's design.

"We're trying to encourage citizens to come in and take a look at the presentation," Anulewicz said.

Cash awards — $1,000 for first place, $500 for second and $250 for third — will also be offered, with the help of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, the event sponsor.

Expensive tools reported stolen from van in township

Tools valued at $1,860 were stolen late Tuesday or early Wednesday from a van parked on Russet Lane, the owner reported to Plymouth Township police.

Thieves broke out a vent window to get inside the van sometime between 11:40 p.m. and 8 a.m., according to the report. Taken was a miter saw, air compressor, circular saw, jigsaw and two drills.

COP CALLS

Damage to the van in the break-in was estimated at $100, according to the report filed with police.

Car break-in

A Grandville, Mich., man reported $148 in damage to his 1992

Buick after someone smashed out the window late Wednesday or early Thursday.

The car was parked at the Signature Inn when the incident occurred sometime between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m., according to the report filed with police.

The thief went through a briefcase and samples left in the car, but nothing was taken. The case was closed for lack of leads or suspects.

Ross gives speech Wednesday

Doug Ross, the former director of the Michigan Commerce Department in Gov. James Blanchard's administration, will speak to the Canton Economic Club at noon Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Ross, the president of Michigan Future, a think tank headquartered in Southfield, will discuss how Michigan can reposition itself as a major player on the national economic scene.

The luncheon at the Geneva Presbyterian Church, 5835 Sheldon Road, Canton, is open to the public. The cost is $12, and reservations can be made by calling 454-5427.

Man who followed woman looks like rape suspect

A 40-year-old Canton woman, who was followed by an unidentified man Jan. 9, told Canton police that his description matched that of a man who raped a Plymouth Township teenager in December.

When the woman made the report to police, she brought a composite drawing of the rape suspect that ran in local newspapers, said community relations officer Tammie Colling.

"She said she believed he was the same man. But she couldn't recall that he had a mustache (as did the man in the composite drawing)," Colling said. "Police aren't confirming that (he is the same man) until we complete the investigation."

The woman told police she was leaving the Meijer parking lot about 5:30 p.m. when she noticed she was being followed by a man in a dark-colored car. The man was described as wearing a brown stocking cap and had brown curly hair. Though described as a white man, the woman said he had a dark complexion.

After several turns, the woman could not lose the man, and

'It's best that you travel with someone. If you're feeling uneasy, pull into a 24-hour gas station or area where there's people.'

Tammie Colling
Canton Police

he continued to follow her throughout the township for 15-20 minutes.

Finally, the woman stopped at the Glengarry subdivision on Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill, where there were people and cars. The woman saw the man drive north on Canton Center.

The woman described the car the man was driving as a dirty, older model with single round headlights.

Colling suggests that women in the area should be conscious of their surroundings. "It's best that you travel with someone. If you're feeling uneasy, pull into a 24-hour gas station or area where there's people," she said.

Colling suggests that women who feel they are being followed should not go to their homes and attempt to leave their cars and get into the house quickly. The woman may put herself in danger and the person following her will then know where she lives.

By all means if you believe someone is following you, Colling suggests that you call the police.

Canton police also are continuing their investigation into the attempted abduction of a 17-year-old girl as she walked on Saltz Road, west of Canton Center Road, Jan. 6.

The teenager told police that while walking, a man driving a small, white pickup stopped, asked her if she wanted a ride, which she declined, and then grabbed her arm. She broke away and ran. When last seen the man was driving west on Saltz Road.

Finishing to competition

Fest attracts nearly 500,000

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

It didn't faze organizers of the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular that their special event was going head-to-head with the auto show at Cobo Hall.

It was understandable, given the success of Plymouth's 11th annual ice carving carnival, which featured live entertainment, cooking demonstrations, gingerbread house competition, light shows, plenty of food and drink, sales in local stores, and of course, ice sculpting competition.

"I haven't seen all of the events because I've been so busy, but a lot of people are telling me it's one of the nicest ever," said Mike Watts, festival director, keeping warm in a snowsuit. "People seem to be having a nice time, and that's nice to see. What I really love is the expressions on the kids' faces. That's my personal joy."

The auto show is old news, Watts said. "The best feature of our event is that it's free. And it's an opportunity for people to get outside. We tell anyone who doesn't like the ice festival we'll return their price of admission."

Past festivals have drawn roughly 400,000 people. "We think we'll reach half a million by Monday," said Kelle Morse, marketing director for the Spectacular.

"It's been incredible; the turnout and the weather have been fantastic."

A highlight was First of America's "Fantasyland." A series of sculptures called "Voyage Under the Sea; an Aquatic Ice Adventure" filled the Gathering in Kellogg Park. "There's been a line all the way down to Union Street to get in," said Sandra Watts, checking in the professional carvers during Saturday afternoon's competition in the central parking deck.

A number of international artisans entered the professional competition. From Ottawa, Canada came French carvers Roger Forget, Chantal DesRochers and Joseph Haag and Takaski Ito.

Two carvers represented Switzerland. Gabriela Schild contended with an eye-catching abstract entitled "Emotion." Her countryman Friedli Bruno sculpted an abstract called "Hot Springs."

The Chicago Institute of Arts also was represented. James Dravenack carved "Lady Godiva," a multi-dimensional piece reminiscent of African art.

Hiroshi Noguchi and Vitaliano

Medina won of Friday night's team competition in Kellogg Park with their spectacular "Lady in Fire." Both entered individual competition Saturday, Noguchi with "Firebird" and Medina with "Pegasus of Atlantis."

If there was a down side, it was fighting the crowds and finding a place to park. Parking places were so rare even a police car parked illegally.

Delmar and Doralea Skomp, 77 and 72, traveled to Plymouth from Ann Arbor for a doctor's appointment. They didn't seem to mind having to make their way through a throng to the Arbor Health Building, where folk musicians Betsy Beckerman and Tom Wall were entertaining.

"We thought we'd walk around a little after our appointments," said Doralea Skomp.

Brisk temperatures and the bone-numbing wind chill were good for local businesses.

"We were here 'til 11:30 last night," said Julie Slahan, owner of Aunt Clara's Cookies, where four gallons of tomato soup had been sold as of 2 p.m. Saturday. "We should make today what we'd make in a week." What was selling? "Anything hot; coffee, soup, hot chocolate, pasties and cookies, lots of cookies."

schools." He graduated from Comstock High School near Kalamazoo; his family still lives there.

Of the frequent moves, Vorva said, "It was really strange, especially when I got to the high school level. I always felt a little bit on the outside."

"It taught me to be outgoing, to be assertive, to meet people. I meet people easily; I make friends easily," Vorva said.

"After high school I made several attempts at starting college, but there was always something happening — changing jobs, getting married, having a child, getting divorced."

He remarried in 1991; wife Joan is a financial systems analyst with Ford Motor Co.

It was in 1984, while he was a police officer, that his heart "just stopped beating," Vorva recalled.

After he recovered, his heart problem was diagnosed as electrical. He was fitted with a pacemaker that is activated if his heart rate falls below a certain point.

"I run marathons and was a police officer afterwards," he said. The incident "made me appreciate more a life I already appreciated."

Joins police

His decision to be a police officer was sparked in the late '60s "during all the civil unrest I'd seen."

"I saw a need for bringing intelligent, well-educated police officers to enter the field. You look at all the Supreme Court decisions that have happened . . . because of bad police work."

"I thought a person should live in the community he policed. They should interact with the people. I wanted to be a public servant on that level. It was the idea of changing something, not just that I wanted to do police work."

Vorva said his job as the community service officer "taught me a lot about people."

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

New legislator: Jerry Vorva stopped to open an umbrella before making his way from his Lansing office to the state Capitol for his swearing in.

His questioning of the city administration at public meetings led to his firing in January 1989.

"I was disturbed as a public servant and citizen of what I thought were abuses by administrators. A lot of money was being wasted," he said.

Commissioner Vorva

While he said the firing hurt, he felt vindicated when residents elected him to the city commission that November.

Among positives that happened during his commission tenure,

Vorva cites changes in city purchasing and bidding policies and a reduction in the number of city department heads.

"We're saving hundreds of thousands for taxpayers and still maintaining the level of service," he said.

It was the questioning of what Vorva called "the good ol' boy system" over the Western Townships Utilities Authority project that helped result in his Republican primary victory over Georgina Goss last August.

"It's a real watershed time for new aggressive people to come in there," Vorva said.

"I'm just excited about the opportunity to be a good legislator."

While starting his new job, Vorva is attending the University of Detroit Law School at night. "My No. 1 priority is doing a good job in the Legislature," he said, adding he'll drop law school if it threatens to cut into time devoted to his job in Lansing.

Vorva also plans to open a Plymouth office "to encourage people to interact with their government."

Canton to force park purchase

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Charlton Heaton and "The Ten Commandments," move over. Canton Township has an epic of its own.

It's the continuing saga of what has come to be known as Barchester, 9.6 acres long ago designated as a school site in the Carriage Hills and Willow Creek subdivisions, south of Lilley and Handford roads.

A school was never built on the property on Barchester, and residents in the area have used the land as a park for more than 15 years. Residents also maintained the area until about two years ago, when they found out that a developer had bought the land.

"It has always been used as an open space park," said Catherine Johnson, former Willow Creek Homeowners Association president.

With that, township officials plan to write their own ending to the epic with the condemnation — based on serving the public good — and purchase of the land, owned by a developer who would prefer to build about 55 houses on the residentially zoned acreage. Development agreement plans show the land as a school site.

Neighborhood kids have long used the land to play football, soccer and baseball. When the land belonged to the Plymouth-Canton school district, neighbors paid $1 annually for use of the land. In 1992, township officials budgeted money to improve Barchester as a park.

Condemnation was the step officials chose after two years of unsuccessful attempts to negotiate a deal with the developer.

"Our goal has always been to buy it as parkland. The developer does not want to sell it," Yack said. Once the property is condemned, the land will be appraised. "This is not going to be a shock to him," Yack said of the developer. If the developer doesn't challenge the condemnation, the township would receive the deed and pay the developer, based on the appraisal.

"The value of the property is based solely as it is today," Yack said.

If the developer hangs tough, township officials are willing to battle him in court, Yack said. Willow Creek and Carriage Hills residents say they are opposed to residential development on the land because it's a floodplain. They also are concerned about exit and entrances to the area. Residents said the area is already plagued with traffic accidents, and more houses will cause a bigger problem.

"If we have extensive development what will be the impact on existing homes?" asked a Carriage Hills resident. "I don't think this property will develop well unless the developer takes extensive measures."

The saga actually began in 1986, when the Plymouth-Canton school district was approached by the developer to buy the land. When that became public, township officials formed a subcommittee to consider buying that and property on Proctor Road. The group recommended buying the Barchester land.

Then confusion set in from 1988 to 1990. No one was quite sure whether the school could sell the property. By 1990, the school district tried through the courts to force the developer to either buy or relinquish his interests in the land. Unknown to many, the developer had a purchase agreement on the property all along.

Finally, the township tried to buy the property directly from the developer. Now, after two years, township officials, with the support of residents, are taking things into their own hands.

Trustee hopefuls stress commitment to serve

BY SUSAN ROSIEK
STAFF WRITER

Their expertise ranges from law to engineering to money management but candidates vying for an appointment to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees said their interest in education and a desire to "give something back to the community" is the prime motivator in applying for the board post.

Sixteen people have applied for two vacant seats on the board. Trustees Mary Breen, Steve Ragan, Michael Burl, Harry Greenleaf and Patricia Watson will appoint two new board members on Wednesday.

Process continues

On Jan. 6, the board interviewed five applicants. Last week seven were questioned. Four candidates - James McCann, Winifred Fraser, Christopher Vary and Richard J. DeVries - will be interviewed at a special meeting Wednesday, Jan. 20 after which the board will vote on two appointments.

Those appointed must run in a special election in June. The appointments are to fill the vacancies of former trustees Jeanne Stempien, who was elected to the Wayne County Circuit Court, and Thaddeus McCotter, elected to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Candidates interviewed last week were Kathleen E. Payne, law school professor from Plymouth Township; David M. Ozog, health care marketing consultant from Livonia; Malcolm Campbell, a dentist from Plymouth; Catherine Broadbent, human resource director for Plymouth Township and a Westland resident; Robert L. Place, an engineer recently retired from General Motors who lives in Plymouth Township; John J. Walsh, an attorney from Livonia and Lawrence J. Regan, a recently retired financial consultant from Merrill Lynch who lives in Livonia.

Funding, college improvements and the role of a trustee were among the questions most asked by board members.

Payne, a law professor at Detroit College of Law and former educator in Garden City Public Schools, told trustees she was seeking the appointment because of her life long interest in education and her commitment to help the college "continue to make its invaluable contribution to the community."

Payne has taken continuing education classes and swims at Schoolcraft. She has served on curriculum, faculty development, finance and academic standards committees at the law school.

"I am familiar with the issues facing an education institution and capable of addressing them," wrote Payne in her application to the board.

"While the college employs its own counsel to do legal work, it would be helpful to the board to have a lawyer as a member," said Payne, adding that although she doesn't have "any political connections or party affiliations" she would seek the office in June if appointed Wednesday.

Grad seeks seat

Ozog, who will graduate from Schoolcraft this semester, told trustees he "has a personal desire to see Schoolcraft continue to serve the community."

He said his experience in marketing, commercial real estate, finance and experience as a student at Schoolcraft would be an asset to the board.

He views the role of trustee as a guardian and believes that the college should strive to improve classes offered outside the main Livonia campus.

Ozog is a graduate of Stevenson High School in Livonia and attends the University of Michigan-Dearborn where he is a student in psychology and business.

If appointed he plans to seek election in June.

Campbell, a dentist practicing in Dearborn, works with students at the University of Michigan and University of Detroit schools of dentistry in a mentor program that he initiated.

Campbell views the role of trustee a policy maker - "not one involved in day-to-day operations."

Don't raise tuition

He believes land development - such as the Seven Mile Crossing - has been a wise move to bring in additional funds for the college. Schoolcraft has a long-term lease arrangement with Duke & Associates, developers of the office complex.

When asked to rank funding sources, Campbell said after land development, the college should look to the government.

"The last place I would look to is an increase in tuition," said Campbell, who said he has the time and interest to serve on the board.

"I am impressed with what I've seen at the college. The administration is doing a fine job. The board works well together," said the Plymouth resident adding serving as a trustee would be "challenging, stimulating and constructive."

Broadbent, who earned an associates degree at Schoolcraft College, says the college can improve by soliciting ideas from alumni. She also holds a bachelor's degree in business management from Madonna College.

On generating income for the college, Broadbent says land development is a viable option followed by millage.

"Last would be a tuition increase," said Broadbent.

She said complying with the American Disabilities Act, employment issues and prayerless graduation ceremonies are some of the more immediate concerns facing trustees.

No stepping stone

"I want this position to serve the community - not as a stepping stone to higher office," said Broadbent, who lives in the Westland portion of the Livonia School District.

Place, who recently retired from a middle-management post at GM, said his broad manufacturing business background, engineering approach to problem solving, and vital interest in education for future leaders are just a few reasons he would be a valuable trustee.

Place, who holds a bachelor's of science degree from General Motors Institute, said the college must look for innovative ways to raise money - not property taxes. "Tuition increases he said should be 'in step with inflation.'"

Place said the college serves many different facets of the community from the typical 18-year-old high school graduate to the mature adult student to those seeking further training or retraining.

"We must tailor to the needs of our customers," said Place, whose son attended Schoolcraft College after serving a tour of duty in the military.

Walsh, an attorney with Lewis, White & Clay in Detroit, is active on the political action and government relations committees of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce. He also serves as a director of the Livonia Jaycees.

Walsh called Schoolcraft "a tremendous asset to the community and its students."

"Preservation and enhancement of the college's reputation and program is increasingly important as four year colleges become more and more out of reach for students seeking higher education.

"Community colleges in general have become and will continue to be a reason alternative for many students," wrote Walsh in his application to the board.

Skills match needs

Walsh told trustees that his experience in municipal finance, fund-raising and the governmental process; his internships during college at the executive and legislative levels along with his knowledge of the political environment at the local, state and federal level, will help him make decisions as a board member.

"There's a strong match between my skills and what the board needs," said Walsh, who received his law degree at Wayne State University. Walsh said he plans to seek election to the board in June.

Regan, retired from Merrill Lynch, told trustees that board membership would be both intellectually stimulating and useful.

Regan told trustees that although he's unfamiliar with how the college is funded, he would bring 25 years of expertise in money management to the board. He said the board must look at cutting expenses not just increasing revenues.

"Education must be available at a relatively low price," said Regan, who has a son attending Schoolcraft.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING
Charter Township of Plymouth
Wayne County, Michigan

TO: THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Bruce, Southworth, Marilyn, and Marlin Avenues and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefited therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

The project consists of approximately 3,200 feet of existing gravel road along Bruce, Southworth, Marilyn and Marlin Avenues south of Ann Arbor Road to be paved with bituminous concrete. The project commences at the intersection of Ann Arbor Road and Southworth Avenue rights of way and proceeds south along Southworth Avenue to the southerly right of way line of Bruce Avenue, approximately 870 feet. Also Marilyn Avenue from the intersection of the rights of way of Ann Arbor Road and Marlin Avenue to the southerly right of way line of Bruce Avenue, approximately 870 feet. Also Marlin Avenue from the intersection of the rights of way of Southworth Avenue and Marlin Avenue proceeding east approximately 650 feet to the easterly property line of lots 19 and 20. Also Bruce Avenue from the intersection of the rights of way of Southworth Avenue and Bruce Avenue proceeding east approximately 550 feet to the easterly right of way line of Marlin Avenue.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area encompasses Lots 1 through 49, inclusive, of Arbor Village Subdivision as recorded in Liber 80, Page 96 of Plats, Wayne County Records.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on January 26, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170 for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the Assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment. Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing for purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the plans, specifications, estimates of cost and recommendations of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The estimate of costs of such construction is in the approximate amount of $97,000.00.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of costs for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in the property.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING
Charter Township of Plymouth
Wayne County, Michigan

TO: THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND ANY OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on John Alden, Governor Bradford, Turkey Run and Priscilla Lane and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefited therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

The project consists of paving of approximately 3,400 feet of existing gravel road on John Alden, Governor Bradford, Turkey Run and Priscilla Lane. The project commences at the intersection of the west right of way lines of Sheldon Road and John Alden Road and proceeds west along John Alden Road to the westerly property line of lots 9 and 10, approximately 850 feet. Also, Governor Bradford from the west right of way lines of Sheldon Road to the western property line of lots 16 and 17, approximately 850 feet. Also Turkey Run from the intersection of the rights of way of John Alden Road and Turkey Run proceeding south along Turkey Run approximately 730 feet to the northern right of way lines of Governor Bradford Road. Also Priscilla Lane from the intersection of the rights of way of John Alden Road and Priscilla Lane proceeding south along Priscilla Lane approximately 730 feet to the northern right of way line of Governor Bradford Road.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvement and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

The project area encompasses Lots 1 through 53 of Plymouth Colony Subdivision, excluding Lots 27 and 31 as recorded in Liber 73, Page 84 of Plats, Wayne County Records.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on January 26, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170 for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the Assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment. Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing for purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that alternative plans, specifications, and estimates of cost of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The alternative cost estimates of such construction is in the approximate amount of $187,000.00 for Modified Alternative IV and $434,000.00 for Alternative IIA. The Township Board of Trustees will consider both alternative cost estimates at the Public Hearing to be held on January 26, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall in the Township of Plymouth, located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170. If the Township Board desires to proceed with the project, the Township Board shall approve one of the alternative cost estimates or a revision, correction, amendment or change thereto.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of costs for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in the property.

Opaque keeps strings attached to music

■ The Opaque honed its live skills at many low-profile Detroit-area shows. Six months later, it played the first of four Club X shows, cementing its future in the local music scene.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Leather-jacket clad musician Jim Flynn no longer has to worry about being called names like "pansy violinist."

As a part of The Opaque, the much sought-after musician and his cohorts are quickly being recognized as Detroit's top up and coming band. That is, at least to some.

"There's the occasional naysayers who we quickly eliminate," said Flynn with a laugh.

"Sometimes we rub people the wrong way for what we're doing . . . I've been called every name (in) the book playing my instrument. Now I can get in their face and give it to them," he added.

Lead singer Dirk Schwarzhoff jokingly explained Flynn's frustrations further.

"Jim no longer feels the need to take steroids."

Flynn's playing

It's Flynn's violin playing that raised The Opaque's status within the local music scene. Throughout 1991 and 1992, the Dearborn resident spent time doing guest stints with bands like Rhythm Corps, Red C and The Hope Orchestra — all with the intention of aiding The Opaque.

"I wanted us to be able to get into the market not from the outside because that would have been too difficult," Flynn explained.

This year, he plans on committing himself to The Opaque.

"I've had the pleasure of playing with other local and national acts. I've stopped doing that. There were reasons for that when I did it."

In the beginning, Schwarzhoff was gigging through Europe with the band Shock Therapy on its tour with Primus. Bassist/lyricist Mark Jordan Ristich and future drummer Scott Spellman were pursuing other projects. Upon Schwarzhoff's arrival home, Flynn, Ristich and Schwarzhoff — all University of Michigan-Dearborn students — and Spellman, of Orchard Lake, hooked up.

Integrated talents

Schwarzhoff and Flynn first worked together in 1988 in the band 2nd Order Thinking. The band saw the emergence of Schwarzhoff's guitar and vocal ability, and then-lead singer Flynn's electric violin, a custom pickup mounted on his great-grandfather's 150-year-old violin. They integrated those talents, along with Spellman on drums, into The Opaque.

In early 1992, the group decided to hone its live skills by playing many low-profile Detroit-area shows. Six months later, The Opaque played its first of four Club X shows at the State Theatre. From an outsider's point of view, it seems as if The Opaque debuted at Club X. Schwarzhoff said that was the plan.

"It took a year of scheming to do that," the Dearborn resident said with a grin. "It wasn't that easy. We packed a lot of shows into the first few months."

The group now is planning to release its first tape "Wishlist" in about a month. The three-song release captures The Opaque's alternative rock sound elegantly laced with Flynn's aggressive violin playing, and Ristich's intelligent lyrics.

"I try to work in something of a narrative so that you can get characters that will say things sometimes you're afraid to say," said Ristich about his lyrics.

That, the Royal Oak resident said, lends honesty in The Opaque's work.

"I think when you do that for one thing you get honesty for the way you look at life. It can provide the person listening to it with something they can grab onto except for someone mulling about how terrible their life is."

The version of "Wishlist" available to the public may include a bonus track. The group's work is also included on the "Dream Catchers" and "Tremor" compilation CDs.

On the band's immediate "wishlist" is a record deal. Judging from the band's 1992 successes it shouldn't be out of reach. The Opaque, who has opened for established alternative acts like Echo and the Bunnymen, won the Detroit Music Awards' "Best Video" prize for the video to the song "Kiss Goes Corrupt." The quartet has also applied to play at the prestigious South by Southwest music conference in Texas in March. The band, who recently played Chicago and Indianapolis, is also planning an East Coast tour for spring.

Flynn realizes that fans remember the band mostly because of him. He admittedly loves the attention, but loathes bands who use him as a "Band-Aid."

"It's been tried with other rock'n' roll formats. It's simply a Band-Aid. (In) this I'm doing my thing and everybody else is doing their part as opposed to a Band-Aid application which I really resent being used as."

It's that equality that makes this band in his career the most worthy of attention, Flynn said.

"We've completely turned it upside and try to make sure we sounded like no one in Detroit or anyone else in the U.S.A." he added.

Daddy Stitch pins its future to 'Fly South'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Sex Pistols may endorse "Anarchy in the U.K.," but Daddy Stitch members find democracy works fine for them.

"It's (run) this country for a couple hundred years, I guess it'll work for us," said Jarrod Wolny, guitarist.

Apparently it has. Utilizing these democratic means, Daddy Stitch has just released their first tape, "Fly South." Instead of one or two members-footing the bill for it, the group chose an even-keeled method. Daddy Stitch funded the tape entirely with money earned from 20-30 shows. The hard alternative rock band will celebrate the release with a performance on Friday, Jan. 22, in the Burns Room in St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit. The show will bring Daddy Stitch a room closer to accomplishing its immediate goal.

"We're shootin' to play right here on this stage," said Wolny dragging on a cigarette under the dim light of the chilly, closed St. Andrew's Hall.

The business-minded group doesn't expect to earn its money back. Daddy Stitch intends on selling only a limited number of the tapes. The rest will be sent to record companies with the hopes of landing a record deal.

"The purpose of the tape is a tool to garner recognition, not to make money," explained the group's burly lead singer Mike Apostolou.

So far, Daddy Stitch has received wide Detroit-area exposure by supporting national acts like Jesus Lizard. Apostolou hopes the band can expand on its opening act experience.

"We just want to play a good show with a compatible national band," said Apostolou citing The Pixies, Mudhoney and Dinosaur Jr. as examples. "We're confident of our music and I think we're ready to play on that level."

So confident that Apostolou is hoping to make Daddy Stitch his career.

"I can't speak for the whole band but I eat, sleep, live and breathe this. This is what I want to do. I don't want to go to school. I don't want to do nothing. I don't even want to work. I want to make it with this band," explained Apostolou who cites his mother as his "biggest influence."

"We're not asking much," said Wolny with a laugh.

The majority of the group — which also consists of bassist David Bingham, drummer Shawn Grzyb, and guitarist Nick Fiori — are former members of Anti-Social Degenerates. After "five years of getting nowhere," according to Bingham, the group broke up. Shortly afterward, they formed Daddy Stitch, a "hardcore" yet melodic band, Grzyb said.

"They got a lot of hooks, they're rough enough yet catchy enough," said Apostolou.

Through their songs and their lyrics — which concentrate on "dames and situations," Apostolou said — they hope to move audiences.

"What other medium is there that can move you like music? Books are the only thing that can compare to music," says Bingham. "You can buy a feeling on a tape."

Daddy Stitch holds a record release party Friday, Jan. 22, in the Burns Room at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Call 961-MELT for more information. Upcoming shows include Friday, Jan. 29, at The Ritz, 10½ and Gratiot, in Roseville, with Loudhouse (778-6404) and Saturday, Feb. 6, at Paycheck's Lounge, 2932 Caniff, in Hamtramck, with Loose Stools (874-0909).

Response recognized who he is and what he has to do

BARBARA SCHIFF

To The Editor:
I am appalled at the response of Barbara Schiff in her "advice" column of Nov. 9, titled "No good solution for his situation." It serves as a classic example of the dangers of media psycholo-gies and pain.

Ms. Schiff tells him that as an apparent "rugged individualist," he has the last say. The alternative — staying alive — she describes as "sacrificing himself" for the sake of those who love him. In other words, she gives this individual permission to kill himself.

Surely, a trained therapist should recognize depression when she reads it. How could she not suggest counseling? Just because she has "no good solution" for him, does not mean that others in her field would be as helpless and hopeless. I hope he — and other readers who may have empathized — is still with us and that he reads this and seeks help to restore value to his life. He has contributions to make and he is a valuable human being.

A Very Concerned Reader
Dear Reader,

I received this letter some weeks ago after having already addressed these concerns in a previous column. The issue is very important and so I welcome the opportunity to discuss it further. Concurrent with this letter there was a message on my voice mail from a man who said, "You need to have more discretion in answering these letters, but I enjoy them." I assume that this man was also referring to the column criticized by this writer.

There are times when a patient is dying and a doctor with all good intentions offers hope. But a few patients do not want false hope; they want the bleak cold facts. In the letter that the voice mail and the letter to the editor refer to, it was understood that the writer had been on medication and had been in therapy.

My answer was written with that understanding. It was also written with the knowledge that there are untreatable cases of depression. I respect the writer's intelligence to deeply try to fluff that fact even though it is fluff that some people need and want in order to get by.

If a person needs to base his or her sense of security on a delusion and not take it away. If a person bases his or her life on the truth, wants to know the worst scenario and is capable of handling it with grace, then it is his or her right not to have those beliefs taken away. Many don't want the bitter facts, but some do.

Without an argument, pharmacology has changed the treatment of mental illness. Patients who only 10-20 years ago would not have been able to live productive lives now often do. But it is not a cure-all, and sometimes there is resistance to complying with a doctor's recommendation to take pills even though they are helping.

Psychotherapy, also, can save lives — sometimes. Neither is it a cure-all. Recommending it to someone for whom it has not been helpful seems a cruel joke, lacking in empathic understanding.

There are those of us who take a spiritual path to peace and those of us who face a bleaker honesty and in so doing find the ability to problem solve. People are capable of a great deal, if not deluded by what some have called "fairy tales." Those who respect their ability to develop grace under pressure need to be recognized, too. This is who they are and this is what they have to do.

It is true that great people have helped others through the spiritual route; it is also true that millions of others have been aided in their development through the cerebral, intellectual, cognitive functioning of the "miracles" of the brain.

'Crying Game' twists, turns through a fascinating story

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

"The Crying Game" opens at a carnival, appropriate enough since it has more twists and turns than a Tilt-a-Whirl. The latest from Irish writer/director Neil Jordan doesn't always make the best narrative sense (it's almost three movies in one), but it has supremely clever moments of emotion and free-wheeling style.

The acclaimed new picture, which plays for a second weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre, opens with a black English soldier (Forest Whitaker) taken hostage by a group of IRA types who hole up in a rundown country house. Unless one of their people is released, the soldier will die.

Fergus (Stephen Rea) befriends the soldier, Jody, during his assigned watch. As the hours drag by, the men share cigarettes, past experiences and dreams until it becomes painfully obvious that the hitman will have an unusually hard time shooting the doomed soldier when the time comes.

Giving away much more would be unfair to the movie, which has a much-publicized twist. Even if someone does have loose lips and gives it away, there's enough here to hold your attention.

One of these things is Rea's performance as the shaggy

Fergus, who walks through the film in a perpetual daze, battered about by circumstance and other people's desires and deception. Sensitive, tough and thoroughly unpredictable, he's easily taken in by the rough charm of the soldier, well-played by the beefy American actor Whitaker ("Bird").

Miranda Richardson ("Enchanted April") and Adrian Dunbar ("Hear My Song") play fellow IRA freedom fighters. She's the epitome of femme fatale, part chameleon, part black widow, who shows her attraction to each of the film's male characters at one time or another. He's a textbook IRA man — ruthless and unwavering in his duty.

Written by English group Pet

Shop Boys, the spooky title song is performed in one of its incantations by Boy George. On another level, "The Crying Game" means emotional manipulation, something that writer/director Neil Jordan has become a master of after seven films.

In his most popular works, "Mona Lisa" and "The Miracle," he created characters who were almost clichés from the outset. Yet, he has an amazing way of making you emotionally involved even when bizarre coincidence and predictability shake your willing suspension of disbelief.

His movies are often so loose that you might get the idea that Jordan is making them up as he goes along. Look closer and you will find a director who probably works much closer to Hitchcock's style of meticulously plotting each angle out before the cameras roll.

Unlike Hitchcock, whom Jordan certainly compares to in terms of red herrings tossed about, the director allows his performers considerable freedom. The improvisational tone of the conversations (especially between Fergus and the soldier Jody) work amazingly well here.

The movie's a dazzler visually, both polished and realistically low budget at the same time. The opening shots at the carnival, with the familiar ferris wheel and games of skill, are seedily rendered. He used similar seaside trappings to lend an almost surreal edge to "The Miracle."

The second half of this movie is played amidst the claustrophobic flats, dance clubs and construction sites of contemporary London.

While "The Crying Game" might fall short of its overblown reputation as a masterpiece, it does offer a dose of freshness and ingenuity rarely seen in commercial releases. And from a quick glance at the movies opening in the next couple of months, this is the best new release we're going to have for a long, long time.

Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave. Call 833-2323 for information. ($5)

"The Crying Game" (Ireland — 1992), Jan. 22-24 (call for show times). Irish writer/director Neil Jordan's ("Mona Lisa," "The Miracle") stylish new thriller opens at a carnival, appropriate since it has more twists and turns than a roller coaster. It begins with an IRA kidnapping of an English soldier (Forest Whitaker) and then careens off into intrigue and dark comedy.

MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students and senior citizens)

"Smiles of a Summer Night" (Sweden — 1955), 4:15 p.m. Jan. 18. Ingmar Bergman's lightest film is this witty version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" set on a weekend in the late 19th century. Continuing a weekly Bergman series in cooperation with Ann Arbor film classes.

"Swoon" (USA — 1992), Jan. 21-Jan. 24 (call for show times.) Tom Kalin's highly stylized take on the Leopold-Loeb murder case, in which a pair of 18-year-old male lovers kidnapped and murdered a 13-year-old boy in 1920s Chicago. Shot in black-and-white, it focuses on beautifully shot vignettes that paint a loose but riveting picture of the pair.

"Reservoir Dogs" (USA — 1992), Jan. 22-28. First-time director Quentin Tarantino's high-powered crime film, about a group of tough guys whose heist goes haywire. Harvey Keitel supposedly worked for peanuts to be in on this project, which also stars character types Steve Buscemi, Tim Roth and Lawrence Tierney.

REDFORD THEATRE
17360 Lahser, Detroit. Call 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)

"The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" (USA — 1939), 8 p.m. Jan. 22-23 (organ overture begins at 7:30 p.m.). Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers portray the real-life Paris ballroom dancers who reach the heights of fame and fortune in the early part of this century. Walter Brennan co-stars, but probably doesn't dance.

STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call 961-5450 for information. ($1.89)

"Eating Raoul" (USA — 1982), 9 p.m. Jan. 18. Paul Bartel directed this dryly funny cannibal comedy about couple (Bartel with Mary Woronov) who invite swingers to their apartment only to kill and then devour them. The cult hit even spawned a Broadway musical.

Public has misconceptions about education system

QUESTION: I heard the massive $10 million Sandia Laboratories study of public education, funded by the U.S. government, was such political dynamite that Washington buried the results. Is that true?

ANSWER: The renowned and prestigious New Mexico Sandia National Laboratories, in 1989, was commissioned to complete a government-funded $10 million study of public education that was so explosive, Bush and then Clinton totally ignored the results during their campaign.

It started when Rear Admiral James Watkins was sworn in as President Bush's Energy Secretary in 1989. The admiral was directed to order researchers at the Sandia Labs to provide ammo for his charge about the sad decline of public education. It was hoped the study would support their movement for the privatization of education, which Bush advocates.

When the White House saw the Sandia results, it went ballistic, ordering it squelched.

However, the Oklahoma Observer got its hands on a copy Jan. 25, 1992, and I got a copy from a "friend." The final draft of the study carried a phone number at the bottom, but callers are told: "no more copies" . . . "it's outdated." (A 1991 study outdated? Come on now!)

Under pressure, Watkins did appear at a news conference in Oklahoma City to answer questions. When asked why copies were not available, he replied: "The results are not what he anticipated and did not jibe with the opinions of '50 state governors.'"

The findings basically did not support Bush's strong advocacy for funding private Schools of Choice with public dollars and for the privatization of education using public funds. Look at the Sandia study findings below, a study whose intent was to support the opinions of some politicians and some journalists as to how bad public education is.

■ Fiction: Our children, because of frill subjects and non-academic school activities are "dumber" today.

Sandia: Today's students IQ(s) are seven points higher than their parents and 14 IQ points higher than their grandparents on the Wechsler and Stanford Binet Intelligence Tests, according to the Sandia study. The typical cut off point for giftedness is now about seven times greater than the IQs of the present political leadership which is doing all the complaining about public schools.

■ Fiction: The falling Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores are a clear indication of a failing public school system.

Sandia: The SAT scores, since 1975, have increased for Caucasian, black, Asian, American Indian and Mexican American students as individual groups. Original scores in the mid-60s didn't include diverse populations, and tests were given primarily to middle and upper class Caucasians. Now, however, current scores appear to be lower since the scope of the student population and the type of institution of higher learning they attend have broadened.

Educational Testing Service, the developer of the SAT test items, has admitted that the SAT today is much more difficult than it was in 1975. Indeed, item difficulty checks are run each year, and if a test quest is found too easy, it is dropped for a tougher test question.

■ Fiction: The United States already spends more money on public education than most other countries.

Sandia: Japan, Austria, Denmark, West Germany, Canada, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland (many non-industrialized countries) spend more money on public education than the U.S. Belgium, Italy, Australia and the United Kingdom spend less. We rank ninth among the industrialized nations in per-pupil expenditures, spending 14 percent less than Germany and 30 percent less than Japan per student.

■ Fiction: The drop-out rate in the United States is a disgrace.

Sandia: The U.S. drop-out rate is declining and never been lower. When the drop-outs who return to school and graduate late are counted, the graduation rate is 85 percent, which is the best in the world.

■ Fiction: Washington's expenditures for teachers each child has increased dramatically over the years.

Sandia: The Sandia study says Washington, in 1975, promised to bear up to 40 percent of special education costs. In reality it never bore more than 12 percent. And the cost of a full time equivalent special education student is $17,600 (according to Phi Delta Kappan editor Pauline B. Gough). Government has treated general education the same.

■ Fiction: The number of college graduates is declining, especially women.

Sandia: We have the highest rate of earned bachelor degrees in the world, and female enrollment surpassed males in the late '70s.

Many other findings negate that mental set some people have when they read about a bad situation in one school and then generalize to all public schools in the country.

As a former teacher, administrator, college instructor and parent of four children, I have many criticisms of our public school system. But politicians, the media and investigative reporters should study more of the facts and realize America's public education system is not perfect but still one of the best in the world.

The more things change, the more they stay the same

The closer it comes to Bill Clinton taking over the presidency, the more I feel uneasy.

It's not that Clinton can't do the job, chances are he can. And it's not that I didn't vote for him. I did.

It's the baby boomer thing. I just find it hard to have confidence in somebody of my own generation. We're the folks who didn't want to go to Vietnam, cut our hair or go to church.

From there we went on to reinvent just about everything. Bars sported ferns and we doused offices with gray and mauve paint. We talked about being liberal, but voted for Reagan because we were making money.

We came up with "diversity," baby carriages that cost $600 and started talking about letting women and homosexuals fight our next war.

Hopefully there won't be one. But if there is, I'm 100 percent behind having women in combat and homosexuals in the services. It's the level playing field idea that ultra liberals are always talking about. We need to create one.

Since we've kept women and homosexuals out of combat during previous wars, it's now their turn. If we do that, it levels out the playing field for the heterosexual males who have fought our previous wars.

But baby boomers have reinvented more than the armed services.

Back in the '50s you were embarrassed if your parents sat around in their underwear at night eating popcorn and watching "The Honeymooners." We now call that cooing.

Jeff Counts

■ It's the baby boomer thing. I just find it hard to have confidence in somebody of my own generation. We're the folks who didn't want to go to Vietnam, cut our hair or go to church.

And if your dad could find his pants, put them on and head to the corner bar to watch the Friday Night Fights on a 27 inch TV, he had an evening out. We now call that male bonding.

If your mom managed to get out of her house dress and into a blue suit for an evening of cards with old college friends, she had a night out. It's now called networking.

We baby boomers find everything traditional abhorrent. But we need those activities, so we call them something else to make them new and trendy.

We've even forgotten how to take a walk. We can't do it without buying a special pair of $100 shoes or reading a magazine that tells us how to put one foot in front of another.

Women buy expensive cookbooks to basically learn what they should have from their mothers, and men watch tool and garden shows for the same reason.

American Indians believe people have a sickness, if they're out of touch with the land or their traditions. If they're right, we've got a plague on our hands.

As Jimmy Buffett said in one of his songs: "We are the people our parents warned us about."

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and has been on the cutting edge of the cooing movement for about 10 years. He can be reached at 459-2700 or faxed at 459-4224.

We're celebrating life

Babies are a special gift of life, and the birth of your baby is a time for celebrating. At St. Mary Hospital, you can hold your celebration in our home-like birthing room, or choose to room-in with your new baby. Our highly skilled nurses and obstetricians are available 24 hours, whether your event is planned or unplanned.

We help you celebrate with extra touches, like a candlelight dinner and special visiting hours for family gatherings.

To prepare for your big day, we provide a range of classes, including prenatal, lamaze and adoptive parenting. And, after the big event, we even provide you with monthly newsletters to follow your growing baby's progress.

You're welcome to tour our special accommodations, or call for a free brochure.

Area Dems head to Clinton inaugural festivities

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

If anyone is plotting a coup in Wayne County, this week would be a great time to spring it because Democrats are off to Washington D.C. for the inauguration of Bill Clinton.

Not only will Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and at least 20 executive department officials be on the beltway schmooze circuit come Wednesday, but half the county commissioners, the chief circuit court judge, the county clerk, the undersheriff and the sheriff's head spokeswoman will join the hundreds of thousands of people (plus the members of Fleetwood Mac) to witness the first Democratic inauguration since 1977.

County commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who confesses to voting for Gerald Ford the last time a Democratic presidential candidate was successful, will tote his wife and two young daughters to the extravaganza just as soon as his Mercury Sable is out of the shop.

"My 7-year-old Lindsay is just so interested in this stuff," Amann said. "She figures I'm just very close to Clinton."

At first, Lindsay Amann figured her pop was tight enough to rate an overnight stay at the White House, but daddy convinced her that couldn't happen "because Bush is moving out."

Amann's commission district includes Canton Township.

Also piloting an automobile to Washington will be Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kaufman, accompanied by his wife and two youngsters.

Kaufman, a Plymouth Township resident, said the excitement of this venture is "tempered by the thought that I'll be one of 200,000 people running around to places . . . with two semi-behaved children. My 11-year-old wants to know why I can't guarantee that she can meet Bill Clinton."

The judge also remarked that he had to pay $70 for a new dress his wife will wear in Washington. "Everybody says I'm lucky it wasn't more," he said. "I'm just a public servant on a fixed income."

The Kaufmans and the Amanns are also staying at the same hotel, the Hyatt of Arlington, Va., for $160 per night per room. That might sound like an incredible sum to you, but it's a chump change by inauguration standards.

Candace Avery, the main spokeswoman for Wayne County Sheriff Robert Picano, said she's paying more than $300 a night for three nights in D.C. land.

Perhaps to save money for the hotel bill, Avery will ride the rails to Washington on Amtrak, the federal government's passenger train company. "It's a 12-hour trip," she said. "But I don't mind. I've got two good books."

CHEF LARRY JANES

Cooking with soul on the newest holiday

Stuck with the midwinter blahs? Maybe it's time you ventured into the kitchen for some creative cooking.

Why not do some cooking with soul in honor of one of our lesser known national holidays, Martin Luther King Day on Jan. 18?

Soulful cookbook

I can't think of a better reason to try out some recipes from "Sylvia's Soul Food" by Sylvia Woods and Christopher Styler, (Hearst Books, 1992, New York, $17). Ample warning: This is no diet food cookbook.

If you've ever been to New York or possibly read Gael Greene in the New York Times, you've probably heard of Sylvia Woods, also known as the "Queen of Soul Food."

Woods has been barbecuing, smothering, baking and frying New York City's legendary soul food for 30 years in her world famous Harlem restaurant.

You have to understand that I'm a big fan of the locally produced Steve's Soul Food restaurant on Grand River in Detroit, but being a Yankee from Wyandotte, I've tried to prepare lip-tingling ribs, sweet potato pie and greens with minimal success.

That is, until I got a copy of "Sylvia's Soul Food" within finger-lickin' reach of my kitchen stove. Before now, I had to rely on a takeout from Steve's.

Comfort food

The simple term "soul food" conjures up stick-to-your-ribs delicacies like fried chicken, corn bread, black-eyed peas and cobbler.

Even though we never called it as such, momma could whip up a batch of fried chicken, giblet gravy and biscuits as light as a cloud faster than you could clean a chitlin.

We called it "comfort food," but little did I know that it was nothing short of good old down home cooking. This down-to-earth cookbook featuring recipes that lack the necessities of a Cuisineart is sure to inspire and give new meaning to your basic corn bread, fried chicken and steamed lima beans.

You don't have to be a fan of "soul food" to enjoy this book; simply reading the recipes for secret ingredients like cane syrup instead of pancake syrup will certainly add new dimensions to what you and I love to eat — just good old basic food, simply prepared and served with love.

Preparation tips

And if the so-called secret ingredients won't tempt you, you'll certainly enjoy the preparation tips like rubbing down your ribs and roasts with salt, pepper and crushed red pepper and then allowing them to sit overnight in the refrigerator to develop a flavor all their own.

There's even a recipe for barbecue sauce that uses a 16-ounce bottle of Red Devil Hot Sauce (I tried the recipe and my lips tingled for a week!) that recommends never boiling or the sauce will turn dark and thin out.

If you're thinking of expanding your kitchen repertoire to include some great soul food the book is a must-have, but there are local soul food aficionados that do a pretty remarkable job.

Sweet potato

In addition to Steve's restaurant in Detroit, you can check out a company called Sweet Potato Sensations in Detroit, 532-7996.

I met the owner at a recent cooking demonstration in Rosedale Park. She sells her family secret sweet potato pie, cookies and sweet potato cheesecake at the Western Market, the Char-Broiler and the Majestic Market in Southfield, and Savon Super Foods in Detroit.

Cassandra Taylor, who dubs herself the Detroit area's sweet potato sensation, wouldn't share her secret recipe, but rumor has it that it's relatively close to the one in Sylvia Woods' cookbook.

Good soul food restaurants are virtually nonexistent in the suburbs, and if you haven't yet tried Steve's in Detroit, you might also want to check out the New Detroiter on Jefferson between downtown and Belle Isle.

Good ribs are available at the Bone Yard locally, but if you're looking for something to really tickle your lips and reek of soul, it's worth the drive to Steve's or the New Detroiter.

Kitchen folk who are looking for soul-food-like alternatives for Martin Luther King Day can easily whip up a batch of corn bread, macaroni and cheese, and steamed greens. All of which are great accompaniments to traditional soul food dishes.

CELEBRATE THE YEAR OF THE ROOSTER

Join the party; celebrate Chinese New Year. Cook Chinese food at home, or eat out at area restaurants which are planning special dinners.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Most of us are taking down holiday decorations, but area Chinese-Americans are unpacking theirs to celebrate the new year. Join the party; celebrate the Year of the Rooster at area restaurants which are planning special dinners and events Jan. 22 to Jan. 30.

Unlike our New Year's Eve which is always Dec. 31, the Chinese New Year, based on the lunar calendar, is celebrated on the first day of the first moon, which is different every year.

"According to the Chinese zodiac, the current lunar year is the Year of the Rooster," said Yin-Fen Pao of Farmington Hills. "Before the Western calendar was transmitted into China, the lunar calendar predominated Chinese people's life. For Chinese farmers, the lunar calendar was used as a guide for sowing and harvesting."

Each of the 12 years of the Chinese Zodiac falls under a different animal sign.

"Each animal in the Chinese zodiac has its own character and personality. A certain year of birth picks up the certain animal in the zodiac, and thus assumes the distinctive traits of that particular animal," said Pao.

People born under the sign of the Rooster — 1945, 1957, 1969, 1981 and 1993 — seek wisdom and truth. They have a pioneering spirit.

"The person born in the Year of the Rooster should be a person of steadiness," said Pao. "The rooster is regarded as a symbol of luck and auspice."

Marco Chin of Mon Jin Lau Restaurant in Troy said that people born during the Year of the Rooster are hard workers, shrewd, and definite in decision making, often speaking their mind.

If you guessed this is a good year to set new routines, and resolve to be on time, you're right.

"In China, the new year celebration is just like Christmas is here," said Shen Yu of New Peking Restaurant in Garden City. "People are off work for two weeks. Family and friends get together and visit. The children receive money in red envelopes. Red means good luck."

Before the feasting and celebrating, there is much work to be done. "We pay our bills, and take care of problems so everyone can relax, and get off to a good start in a brand new year," said Linda Parker of Hunan Palace in Farmington Hills.

All sweeping and cleaning must be done before the holiday. "To sweep after the new year begins is to risk sweeping away good fortune," said Chin.

"My mother and grandmother would cook for three days to get ready," said Parker. "The family gathered for dinner around a round table. There would always be special foods like whole fish that you don't cook everyday. You must have whole fish at a traditional Chinese New Year dinner. It means good wishes for the new year, and good things to last forever."

The crispy whole fish prepared for Chinese New Year dinners by Chef Jack Dai at Hunan Palace is a feast for the eyes and palate, and a lot of work to make.

Dai, who has more than 20 years of experience, debones a whole grouper, reassembles it to look like a whole fish, and cooks it. Served with a sauce, the fish is crunchy on the outside and moist inside. You don't have to worry about biting into a bone because there aren't any.

If you want to learn more about Chinese New Year celebrations, here are two options to consider.

The Chinese American Educational and Cultural Center of Michigan is hosting a Chinese New Year Festival, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23 at Oceania Inn Restaurant, 68 N. Adams, Rochester Hills.

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

This may be the most important bottle information attached to the label or the neckband.

Over the years, we've come to respect the knowledge of Robert Haas and his son Dan at Vineyard Brands in Chester, Vt. Bob Haas made his first trip to France to select wine in 1954.

"When I visit in spring, the smell of the smoke coming from the burning vine prunings in the vineyards of Burgundy remind me of how some things have not changed," he said.

"Many things have changed, however," said Dan Haas, who now selects the Burgundies imported by Vineyard Brands. "The economics of grape-farming in Burgundy have improved dramatically in the last decade, and the purchase price of a grand cru vineyard has escalated to a million dollars for a 2.50-acre parcel. There was something slightly off about each of the better vintages in the decade of the 1980s, but 1990 may be described as a perfect vintage. Buy 1990 or don't buy red Burgundy."

With the high cost of land in Burgundy, many producers are overcropping and we believe there's a

How much attention do you offer a wine label when you buy wine in a shop or restaurant? Do you care who imported the wine or who selected it for import? You should.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Available in this area about Feb. 1 are the latest introductions from Vineyard Brands. Marquis de Chasse (red and white) are the new wines from the Bordeaux proprietors Chateau Chasse-Spleen. The red is a blend of 65% cabernet sauvignon, 30% merlot and 5% other varietals. The white is 60% semillon and 40% sauvignon blanc. Both tasty pours retail around $7 to $8.

VINEYARD BRANDS

Wine importer: Robert Haas of Vineyard Brands inspects wine in the cellars at Domaine Trapet in the heart of Burgundy, France.

lot of high-priced junk on the market masquerading as top-quality 1990 Burgundy. Recently, we tasted 11 estate-bottled red Burgundies imported by Vineyard Brands. All the wines were superior to exceptional and worth your consideration.

Look for the following Domaines: Mongeard-Mugneret, Trapet Pere et Fils, Rossignol-Trapet, Henri Gouges, Joseph Matrot, Jean-Marc Boillot, Pierre Bitouzet and Enenne Sauzet. Expect the starting price of the best estate-bottled Burgundies to be around $25. They quickly escalate to between $50 and $100.

How can you tell the Burgundy is estate-bottled and not a negociant wine? In addition to the French phrase "mis en bouteille au (or par) domaine," the words proprietaire or proprietaire-recoltant must be on the label. The translation is "bottled at (or by) the property" with the additional words roughly meaning "by the owner" or "by the winegrower."

"In a great vintage such as 1990, the terroir (a French word denoting the sum total of site, soil and microclimatic influence) is showcased and more pronounced differences are evident among the specific sites," said Haas. "The wines have deep color and supple fruit; they are drinking well now, but will also age well for 10 to 20 years."

Cloverleaf Market in Southfield sells more estate-bottled Burgundies than any other retailer in the nation. Jim Lutfy of the Cloverleaf agrees with Haas' assessments.

"Negociant Burgundies carry the stamp of the producer," he said. "Among negociant bottlings, there's very little taste difference between a Pom-

PAN-FRIED CHICKEN WITH LEMON SAUCE

Sauce
 1/4 cup chicken stock
 6 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
 3 tablespoons sugar
 2 teaspoons grated lemon zest
 2 teaspoons plum sauce
 Chicken
 1/4 cup all-purpose flour

2 eggs, beaten
 1/2 cup white sesame seeds
 2 teaspoons salt
 1 teaspoon ground white pepper
 4 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
 6 tablespoons peanut oil
 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
 1 teaspoon minced garlic
 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 1 1/2 tablespoons water
 Sliced scallion greens for garnish (optional)

Combine the sauce ingredients in a bowl and reserve.
 To prepare the breading, place 1/4 cup of the flour in a large shallow bowl or plate. In another bowl, beat the eggs, and in a third, combine the remaining 1/2 cup of flour with sesame seeds and salt and pepper. Arrange these next to each other on a counter.
 Wash the chicken breasts and trim any excess fat. Pound with a mallet or rolling pin to 1/4-inch thickness. Then dip, one at a time, first in the flour. Pat off any excess and dip in the egg. Lift the meat, allowing excess egg to drain back into bowl, and then dip and coat with the flour and sesame seed batter. Reserve on a platter.

 Heat 4 tablespoons of peanut oil in a 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Fry the chicken breasts, two at a time, until golden, 3 to 4 minutes per side. (Reduce the heat to medium if the chicken is browning too quickly.) Reserve on a platter.

breast into 1/4-inch strips along the width and place on dinner plates. Spoon on the sauce and garnish with scallions, if desired. Serves 4.
 From "Chinese Cooking For Beginners," by Helene Siegel, (Harper-Collins Publishers, $12.50).

Place ginger in a small bowl and add brandy. Mix together and put mixture through a fine sieve. Press grated ginger against the wall of the sieve to extract as much juice as possible.
 Add sugar to mixture. Mix well. (Sugar helps keep broccoli bright green.)
 Set a wok over high heat. When very hot, add the oil. When the oil is hot, sprinkle in salt. Immediately add broccoli stirring and turning until each piece is well coated with oil, about 1 minute.
 Sizzle in brandy mixture along edge of the wok, stirring until evaporated. Sprinkle water onto broccoli, then cover wok. Turn off heat and wait 1 minute. Remove broccoli, and serve.

and a Nuits St.-Georges. This is because the negociant treats all the wines similarly in the cellar, regardless of their origin.
 "Estate producers take pride in individuality. These wines have soul. Négociants manipulate wines. I buy as many estate-bottled Burgundies as I can and I still don't get enough. If consumers don't buy the outstanding 1990 red estate-bottled Burgundies now, within two months they'll be shut out."
 The 1990 wines have been compared to the exceptional 1947 vintage, except the 1990s should prove to be more cellar-worthy, considering improved winemaking technology employed in Burgundy today.

 In addition to Burgundies, other Vineyard Brand wines to consider are the Rhone wines of the Perrin family. Chateau de Beaucastel is always a superior Chateauf-neuf-du-Pape. At half the price is Coudoulet de Beaucastel. This vineyard borders the Perrin's Beaucastel, but is just outside the appellation. It is labeled a Cotes du Rhone, but is made from the same grape varieties as its Chateauf-neuf-du-Pape relative and receives identical cellar treatment.
 The best bargains and the number-one selling Rhone wines in the U.S. are bottled under the La Vieille Ferme brand also produced by the Perrins.

 From Chile, Vineyard Brands imports Vina Santa Rita. Chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, cabernet sauvignon and merlot are available. In 1992, sales of these wines in the U.S. were at 160,000 cases. Vineyard Brands also imports the number-one selling Rioja wines from Marques de Caceres. A red, white and rose are available as well as a red Rioja Reserva and Gran Reserva.

SYLVIA'S WORLD FAMOUS TALKED-ABOUT SPARERIBS

- 2 slabs pork ribs (about 3½ pounds total)
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes

2 to 3 cups white wine vinegar
Barbecue sauce (see recipe)

To make the ribs easier to handle, cut each slab between the middle bones into 2 equal pieces. Rub the salt, black pepper and red pepper into both sides of the ribs. Place ribs in a deep baking dish, cover them, and refrigerate overnight.

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees F. Pour the vinegar over the ribs and bake 1½ hours. Rotate the ribs two or three times during baking and spoon some of the pan juices over them.

Remove the ribs from the baking dish and place in a single layer on baking sheets. (Line the baking sheets with aluminum foil for easy cleanup.) Bake at 450 degrees for 1 hour. The ribs should be tender and well-browned. This can be done up to a day in advance. Cool the ribs, cover tightly, and refrigerate. Bring to room temperature for about 1 hour before continuing.

To finish the ribs, preheat the oven to 400 degrees F. Cut the slabs between the bones into individual ribs. Place the ribs in a baking dish large enough to hold them comfortably. Spoon enough of the barbecue sauce over them to coat lightly. Cover the pan with aluminum foil and bake until heated through, about 20 minutes. Serve with additional barbecue sauce on the side. Makes 8 servings.

BARBECUE SAUCE

- 16 ounces Red Devil Hot Sauce
 - 2½ teaspoons crushed red pepper flakes
 - 1 small onion, sliced
 - 1 small stalk celery, sliced
 - 3 cups tomato puree
 - 1½ cups water
 - 1½ cups sugar
 - 1 lemon sliced
- Combine all the ingredients in a heavy pot and heat just until hot. Don't bring to a boil or the sauce will turn dark, and become thin. Cool the sauce to room temperature, strain it, and store it in a tightly covered jar in the refrigerator.

Makes about 5 cups. It keeps for at least a month.

Accidental discovery may end obesity

WASHINGTON — Researchers may have discovered a way to end obesity... by accident.

In a study with a potential cholesterol lowering agent, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Instead of lower cholesterol levels, patients receiving a natural plant colloid lost weight while body weight in a control group remained constant.

The scientists say the mechanism behind the weight loss is not clear, but suggest it is partially due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories. Scientists in another study published in The British Journal of Nutrition, found that patients consuming the same colloid lost weight in spite of being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns. Despite this evidence, other scientists may not agree on the weight loss benefits of colloids. Someday, pending further study, there could be universal agreement that colloids are helpful in confronting the problem of obesity.

National Dietary Research, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, has successfully incorporated a series of colloids into a chewable food tablet called FS-1. When used as directed, FS-1 replaces high calorie fats with lower calorie nutrients, thus providing optimum nutrition with a minimum number of fat calories. According to an article published in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, consciously limiting the amount of food one consumes is not necessary to lose weight, provided you limit the fat.

A Florida company has obtained exclusive distribution rights to FS-1, which is available through pharmacies and other health professionals.

Tasty sandwich packed with fiber

Are you dreading waking up to another bowl of oat bran cereal? Are you tired of eating the same bran muffin each day to ensure you get enough fiber in your diet? There's an alternative. According to the Canned Food Information Council, some of the highest fiber foods available are packaged in cans.

Yet, most people are confused about how much fiber to consume, the different kinds of fiber and the best way to regulate their fiber intake. Fiber is divided into two categories: soluble and insoluble, both of which you need in order to maintain a healthy diet.

Insoluble fiber, or roughage, is found in canned vegetables, such as green beans, potatoes and corn, and serves to speed the passage of food through the digestive system.

Soluble fiber, found in canned beans, lentils, peas, mandarin oranges and apples, among others, also helps move food through the digestive system and may play a role in lowering blood cholesterol levels.

While Americans currently consume an average of 11 grams of dietary fiber daily, the National Cancer Institute recommends an increase to 25-35 grams a day.

An easy way to increase the amount of fiber you eat, while adding variety to your diet, is to include many green vegetables. But it's tough to beat beans when it comes to fiber. Beans are among the few foods that contain significant amounts of both soluble and insoluble dietary fiber.

Low in fat and price, beans are the ideal choice for people seeking additional fiber. Canned limas, navy, kidney and garbanzo beans are good sources of iron and B vitamins, and like all vegetables and fruits, contain no cholesterol.

Many new varieties of beans, such as black beans with cumin and spices, picante beans with tomatoes, peppers and spices, and pintos in chiles are now available on grocery shelves. Canned beans are the convenient alternative. The canning process takes care of the soaking and cooking, so the beans are ready to serve with little effort.

More than 40 different kinds of beans are available in cans, as well as dozens of other fruits and vegetables. Here's a recipe to try.

FALAFEL

- Vegetable cooking spray
- ¼ cup sliced green onions and tops
- ½ cup sliced celery
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 can (15 ounces) garbanzo beans, drained
- 1 can (15 ounces) pinto beans, drained, rinsed
- 1 egg
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon ground cumin
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- 2 cans (15 ounces each) whole tomatoes, drained, coarsely chopped
- ½ cup chopped cucumber
- 2 teaspoons sliced black olives
- 1 cup no-fat plain yogurt
- ½ teaspoon dried mint leaves
- 4 pita breads, cut into halves

Spray small skillet with cooking spray and heat until hot; saute onions, celery and garlic until tender. Process beans in blender or food processor until smooth. Mix pureed beans, egg, lemon juice, flour, cumin, salt and pepper; mix in sauteed vegetables. Form mixture into 8 patties. Spray large skillet with cooking spray and heat until hot; cook patties over medium-low heat until lightly browned, about 5 minutes on each side.

Mix tomatoes, cucumber and olives; mix yogurt and mint. Serve falafel in or with pita bread; serve with tomato and yogurt mixtures. Makes 8 servings.

Nips of nature cure winter's discontent

The winter landscape offers a peaceful stillness. There's a certain magic in the beauty of a snowfall and the glimmer of ice crystals on tree branches. Though there are pleasures to be enjoyed outside in the cold, crisp air, the warmth of the indoors invites contemplation and perhaps a twinge of longing for springtime.

To cheer a gray day, bring a little nature inside with a lifelike bird that sings a lilting song. Touch and motion activated, this bluebird ($10) can be placed on a window sill or tied to a plant branch where he will delight with his chirping. Your cat will be fascinated! "I picked it up and just smiled," said Erica Densel of Birmingham. Her friend, Stephanie Ignash, agreed. "You can have the sounds of spring in your house every day."

The Breezy Singers, which include a hummingbird and a goldfinch, are available at Natural Wonders in Twelve Oaks Mall, Novi. If you prefer the actual presence of your feathered friends, consider the MagicWindow bird feeder that suction to your window pane. You can see them, but they can't see you.

Another interesting way to bring the outdoors in is with the award-winning video, Earth Dance ($19.95). Stunning footage of the sea, the sky and the forests fills the screen as contemporary music provides the dramatic background.

Botanical prints

A reader called to share her discovery of a new gallery in Birmingham called Barclay's, 280 Merrill. She raved about the helpful staff and the "gorgeous botanical prints" that her husband bought her for Christmas. I was equally intrigued with this purveyor of antique art.

The Paxton botanicals of which the caller spoke are wonderful early 19th century English prints, hand-painted to depict various exotic species ($170-$220).

While you're browsing, don't miss the Audubon "Birds of America" prints and the delicate butterfly studies ($125).

Let thoughts of spring burgeon at the DIA Museum Shop in the Somerset Collection. Among its wealth of treasures is this charming tale of a little girl's visit to Claude Monet's gardens at Giverny. Sink into a chair with your little one and delight in "Linnea in Monet's Garden." The book includes photographs of the famous Impressionist's paintings and Monet family snapshots ($11.95). Your child's first art book is made even more enchanting with the addition of the Linnea rag doll ($13.95), charmingly dressed in her gardening outfit.

For your winter's discontent — a cheerful burst of color. The Blossom Well is a carved marble bud vase with a silver enameled steel stem support ($25). A single bloom in an elegant vase brings just a touch of spring to your bedside table. "This is the perfect gift, especially for a winter birthday," said Abbie Dawson. "The design is so unusual, and who can resist fresh flowers in January?"

Van Gogh's 'Sunflowers'

The window of the DIA shop features mosaics adapted from Vincent Van Gogh's "Sunflowers." These colorful designs include a box ($245), a round mirror ($895) and a classic urn ($595).

Not to be missed and furthering our spring theme are Tiffany lamp replicas. My favorites are the Peony floor lamp ($1,648) and the Wisteria table lamp ($698).

Another wonderful art book that pairs photographs and recipes in a celebration of the seasons is our own Cranbrook Reflections ($19.95). This culinary collection created by Cranbrook House and Gardens Auxiliary features beautiful scenes of Cranbrook's environs.

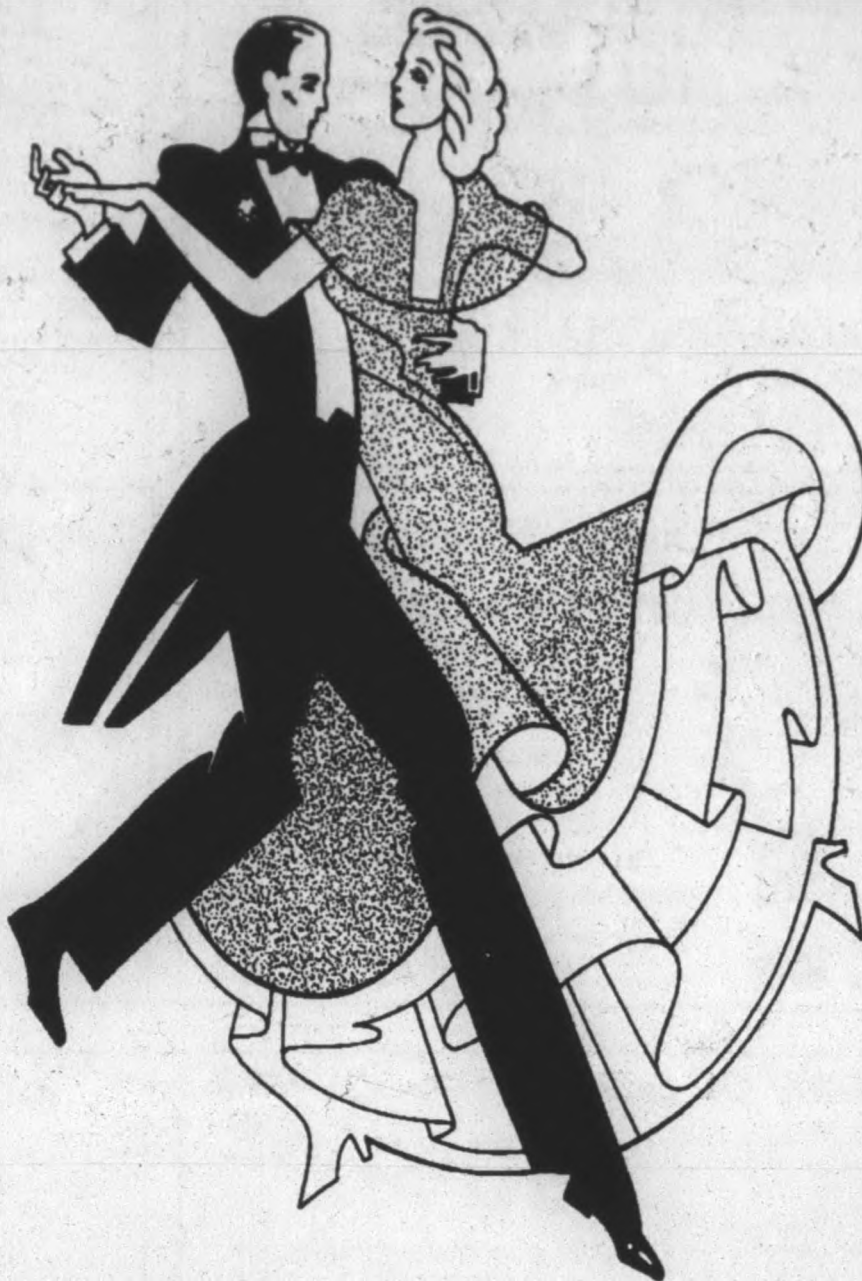

Jacobson's Home stores presents Garden Pleasures from now until March. Paint a winter garden with ideas that bring life into your home. See hand-painted botanicals and fruits and vegetables on pillows and table linens. Dodge the winter doldrums with light, airy garden furniture.

Next week — the ritual of tea.

Mall uses promotions to beat the band

It's hard to come up with sales gimmicks year-in, year-out. But Livonia Mall marketing director Bill Checks manages to do so. His themes have included the Wild West; the Red, White and Blue; and next week, The Fabulous '40s.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

"When you're working promotions year after year, you keep your eyes open for trends, crazes, fads," said Bill Checks, marketing director at the Livonia Mall.

"I've noticed young people discovering big band music, movie buffs celebrating the 50th anniversary of Casablanca and the popularity of the old shows on cable TV. I knew I had a theme here for my winter sidewalk sales."

The Fabulous '40s will return to the Livonia Mall Jan. 28-31 via a special series of events and programs. Highlights include The Over 40 Dance in the Club Community Room, and a free concert by the Jimmy Dorsey Band under the direction of Jim Miller.

"We have 300 $6 tickets to sell to the dance, which will be Thursday, Jan. 28, from 7-9 p.m.," Checks said. "The Community Room will be decorated to resemble a '40s nightclub complete with tables and palms. Entertainment will be provided by one-man band Rennie Kaufmann performing music from the '40s like 'Tangerine' and 'All of Me.'"

"If the city grants me a one-day liquor license I plan to serve wine, cheese and fruit. If not, we'll have non-alcoholic champagne. There'll be plenty of room to dance besides," he said.

On Friday, Jan. 29, beginning at 5:30 p.m. the mall will be filled with music made popular by the Dorsey Band, credited with putting the jukebox industry in business.

"This concert will be free and again we'll have room for dancing," Checks said.

There will be 40 prizes awarded throughout the '40s event, including a CD player and '40s CD collection, and tickets to Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show debuting Feb. 5 at the Palace in Auburn Hills.

"I expect this event to draw as many as 10,000 people to the mall in four days," Checks said. "Hopefully, they'll do some shopping at our winter sidewalk sales while they're here." Both Record Town and Musicland in the Livonia Mall admit that sales of '40s music is on the rise.

"Give Harry Connick Jr. all the credit for turning on consumers in their 20s and 30s to music from the 1940s," said one employee. "Additionally, we sell a lot of Glenn Miller, Frank Sinatra and Harry James recordings to the senior citizens who shop in the early part of the day. CKLW plays a lot of '40s music and listeners stop in looking for these hard to find recordings."

"Also, popular vocalists like Sinead O'Connor, Michael Bolton and Robert Palmer are doing '40s classics. Believe it or not, Tony Bennett is the best-selling vocalist these days."

What's Livonia Mall's theme for the Summer Sales? Checks would only say, "Stay tuned."

Retailers hear wedding bells

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

When Alvin's women's ready-to-wear stores closed around town two months ago, two stores survived demise.

Alvin's of Rochester remains on Main Street in downtown Rochester. And on Pierce Street in downtown Birmingham, Alvin's Bride, is doing a brisk business.

"When customers see we're here to stay and view the huge selection of gowns we stock, we get their business," said Alvin Steinman, owner. "They want to make sure we're not associated with the Boulevard Group, though."

With the Boulevard Group of Bridal Salons in court on fraud charges, brides-to-be can no longer shop at Today's Bride, Sue Gordon, Boulevard Bridal in Birmingham, or Kitty Kelly's in Troy and Dearborn. Since their closing last summer, brides have had to order their gowns elsewhere.

Steinman said his Birmingham store, which formerly sold women's apparel, did a fair amount of business in bridal gowns from a corner on the lower level since 1985. He made the decision to convert the store to a bridal salon two months ago and the phones are ringing.

At 'Jakes,' Hudsons

Jacobson's and Hudson's spokeswomen also report a burst in bridal gown business since last summer. "Our salespeople were on the phone with gown manufacturers and United Parcel Service throughout the crisis trying to help distraught brides get their gowns in time for their weddings," said Linda Morrisroe of Hudson's.

"There's no doubt that we have picked up a lot of new customers through word-of-mouth praise for our service."

Hudson's Bridal Salon is at the Northland store in Southfield.

The Birmingham Jacobson's store, as well as the larger bridal salon in the Dearborn store, have been very busy helping brides with gowns, said Janice Hayes.

"During the months surrounding the closing of several popular bridal salons, our staff used all our resources to help brides get their gowns," she said.

PLYMOUTH SPORTS SCENE

Spartans pin Rocks

Livonia Stevenson earned its second dual-meet wrestling victory in the past 10 years over visiting Plymouth Salem Thursday. The unbeaten Spartans won six of the last seven weight classes to rally from a 22-4 deficit and defeat the Rocks 35-28. Stevenson took the lead (29-28) when Salem voided the 189-pound bout and won it when heavyweight David Ross pinned Ryan Giuliani late in the first period. The last time the Spartans had beaten Salem was 1988. Stevenson is 2-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and 3-0 overall. The Rocks are 1-1 in the Lakes. Salem dominated the first half of the meet, with five of a possible six wins. Romeo Ciaro (103) and Scott Hughes (112) won by decision, 6-2 and 12-4, respectively. Brian Harreld (119) pinned his opponent at 1:32, giving the Rocks a 13-0 lead. Phil Mitchell (130) scored a pin (3:18) and Dave Craig won a decision (10-7) to make the score 22-4. The Spartans rallied with wins by Scott Goldman (140), 13-2; Chris Mullett (145), 5:17; Mike Hernandez (152), 8-5; Ben Lewis (171), 5:47; Craig Martin, injury default; and Ross. Plymouth Canton had three individual winners Thursday during a 49-18 loss to Livonia Franklin. Canton's Dan Gruenwald (103) pinned Troy Bracey (2:50), Dave Smith (140) pinned Josh Spilos (3:55) and Bill Buslepp (152) pinned Adam Thomas (3:02). Nick Spano didn't wrestle for the Chiefs, who are 0-2 in the Western Division of the WLAA and 1-3 overall.

North wins 4rd in row

Don't be surprised if Livonia Churchill basketball coach Tom Lang posts the following advertisement in the school's hallways next week: "Wanted: Top gun. Player(s) capable of contributing 15 to 17 points on a consistent basis." "The kids play hard all the time," said Lang after his Chargers succumbed to North Farmington 48-39 Friday. "I just can't get anybody to step forward and be a scorer for us — and I play everybody." Mark Rutherford's 12 points kept Churchill close for 3 1/2 quarters. In fact, Churchill got within five points midway through the final quarter before North iced the victory with free throws. North hit 16 of its 31 free throws, including six of seven in the final minutes by John Pennala. Churchill hit just five of 12 from the stripe. Doug Dolak had 13 points and Evan Ellis 10 for the Raiders, 2-0 in the WLAA, 4-3 overall. Churchill falls to 0-2 and 1-5.

Madonna women tumble

Reality set in for Madonna University's women's basketball team Thursday. The Lady Crusaders visited Spring Arbor College for a game against the pre-season pick to win the NAIA District 23. They took with them a perfect record (2-0) in district play. That record did not remain that way for long. The Cougars rolled to a 49-25 lead by halftime and coasted to a 90-60 triumph, a win that raised their district record to 2-1 and made them 7-10 overall. Madonna slipped to 2-1 in the district, 8-10 overall. Mary Bieniewicz (Farmington Hills Mercy) and Cheri Sangregorio each scored 12 points for Madonna. Stephanie Niebauer added 10, while April Blanton grabbed seven rebounds. Turnovers spelled the difference. The Crusaders had 34 in the game, many forced by Spring Arbor's pressure defense.

Gymnasts have fine start

It's not unusual for North Farmington, a school rich in gymnastics tradition, to be undefeated in dual meets. But the Raiders are 6-0 so far this season without their top gymnast, sophomore Annie Jud, who is sidelined with a chronic back ailment. She qualified for state finals last year but didn't compete because of the injury. "She's doing a lot of rehabilitation, and we're playing it by ear now," said North coach Jeff Dwyer, adding Jud might return. "(Her loss) hurts but we're doing pretty well. "We should be averaging in the mid 120s by the end of the season, which is a decent team. We don't have a fantastic team, but we're solid." The Raiders are led by juniors Michelle Tsai and Elyse Turner. Tsai has been the team's top gymnast this year, winning every event in three meets. "She worked hard in the off season, and it's paying off," Dwyer said. "I have high expectations for her. "(Turner) is a good athlete and is just coming around right now" after competing in diving last fall. "She's consistent and a tough competitor." North was helped by the addition of sophomore Jenny Japenga from Harrison. She was a club gymnast until last year. "She didn't work out in the summer, so she lost some strength," Dwyer said, "but she definitely has some talent. It's all up to her — how hard she wants to work for it. But she's good." The Raiders will count on senior Stephanie Wagner, a self-made gymnast who never had any formal club training. "She didn't have any experience when she started as a freshman and now competes all-around," Dwyer said. "Some of the girls look at her as a role model, because she's done it all herself."

Hockey scouts like Observerland

The area of southeastern Michigan that is part of the Observer & Eccentric coverage has become a gold mine for professional scouts searching for prospective National Hockey League players.

When you think of hotbeds of hockey talent, you think Canada. You think Windsor, Toronto and those obscure-sounding places like Medicine Hat and Moose Jaw. If you think United States, you might think Minnesota or Massachusetts or upstate New York. It would probably be a while before you got around to thinking about the Observer & Eccentric area. Well, think again. "When you look at the quality of the players produced in this area, it's really unbelievable," said Craig Button, the director of amateur scouting for the Minnesota North Stars. "This area produces more quality players than any other area in the U.S. I'm from Montreal, but the North Stars asked me to move here (Ypsilanti) three years ago because the depth and breadth of hockey talent is so good." The area Button is talking about is southeastern Michigan. And when he lists the great players from this area he includes the likes of Pat Lafontaine (Waterford), John Vanbiesbrouck (Detroit), Craig Wolanin (Grosse Pointe), Kevin and Kelly Miller (Lansing) and Kevin and Derian Hatcher (Sterling Heights) and Jimmy Carson (Grosse Pointe). Still, the largest concentration of talent in southeastern Michigan comes from the 12-community O&E area. There are now 23 players from the O&E area playing professional hockey, nine in the NHL. The nine are: Adam Burt from area produces such a high quality and quantity of hockey talent. The steps up the ladder of success are all securely in place. They need only to be climbed. "There is a good system in place here and excellent facilities for development," Coury said. "It all starts with the local associations and the communities really do a good job of getting them started and getting them exposed to the game." The Livonia Hockey Association, the largest in the area with 725 members, introduced the game to Tancill, Modano and Donnelly. Iafate couldn't get into the overcrowded LHA and wound up cutting his hockey teeth at the Winter Wonderland facility in Detroit. Burt got his start with the Redford Hockey Association. Hartman played first in the Oak Park house leagues before joining a Southfield travel team. Krygier, Donnelly, Hartman and Kromm honed their

Canton winner: Bill Buslepp was one of only three Plymouth Canton winners Thursday in wrestling. He pinned his 152-pound opponent, but the Chiefs lost the dual to Livonia Franklin. See story on this page.

Salem, Canton prevail

The Centennial Educational Park boys swim teams improved their dual-meet records to 2-1 Thursday with a pair of one-sided victories. Plymouth Salem coasted to a 120-66 win over visiting Novi in a non-league contest, and Plymouth Canton dunked host Walled Lake 119-64 in a Western Lakes Activities Association meet. Salem's Chris Lynn and Aaron Berlin had one individual win apiece and were on one relay. The Rocks swept first place in the relays. Scott Helmstadter, Marc Levitt, Fred Locke and Matt Erickson were part of two-relays each. Helmstadter, Andy Dettling, Lynn and Levitt got Salem started with a win in the medley relay (1:47.57). Locke, Levitt, David Bracht and Erickson composed the 200 freestyle relay team (1:36.65). The 400 freestyle relay team consisted of Locke, Helmstadter, Berlin and Erickson and posted a winning time of 3:30.70. Berlin's victory came in the 500 freestyle (5:05.27) and Lynn's in the backstroke (1:01.0). Justin Richardson had the best diving score with 209.9 points, and Phillip Hoffmeyer was first in the breaststroke (1:06.63). Canton was led by Jeff Clark, who won two individual events and was on one of three winning relays, and Mike Orris, who was part of two relays and won one event. Clark was first in the 50 freestyle (22.84) and butterfly (59.03). Clark, Craig Steshetz, Jason Stirling and Orris won the 400 freestyle relay in 3:34.66. Orris won the backstroke (57.06) and combined with Ryan Henkel, Joe Foster and Steshetz to win the medley relay (1:47.12). The Chiefs also received first-place swims from Stirling in the 200 freestyle (2:05.24), Brian Tertel, 500 freestyle (5:46.42); and Bill Gildhaus, breaststroke (1:08.49). Canton will be host to Salem for a dual meet at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Rocks fight off Patriots for 8th in row

Plymouth Salem overcame another stubborn opponent Friday night to remain unbeaten in boys basketball. The state-ranked Rocks were seven points better than host Livonia Franklin in each half and recorded a 77-63 victory. The Rocks led 34-27 at halftime and outscored the Patriots 43-36 in the second half. Salem was in front by 17 points at one time, but Franklin cut the lead to eight. "We were never out of the woods," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. Salem improved to 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 8-0 overall. The Patriots are 0-2 and 3-4. "We got the ball inside and we handled their press pretty well," Brodie said. "Also, our bench helped. The starters' legs were still fresh for that run in the fourth quarter." James Head had 17 points, 14 rebounds and seven assists to lead the Rocks, who also received 13 and 12 points from Mike and Brandon Slone, respectively. Paul Kruschka scored 18 points, Greg Maple 14 and Clemente Herrera 13 for the Patriots.

two free throws with 30 seconds left Friday to clinch Plymouth Christian Academy's victory over Fairlane Christian. The Eagles trailed 28-23 at halftime and 44-40 after three periods but rallied behind the play of Bigelow and senior Dan House for an 18-11 margin in the finale. Senior center Jason Neil scored 16 points to lead PCA (2-7). Bigelow had 14 and House eight. Tim Stewart netted a game-high 20 points for Fairlane (5-2). ■ REDFORD CC 60, RICE 55: Redford Catholic Central rallied in the fourth quarter to defeat arch-rival Birmingham Brother Rice in a Catholic League basketball game Friday night. The Shamrocks are 1-2 in the Central Division and 3-5 overall, the Warriors 2-1 and 5-3. CC trailed 42-38 entering the fourth quarter in which it outscored Rice 22-13. The Shamrocks sank 10 of 13 free throws in the last period, and senior forward Jeff Gutt scored nine of his game-high 17 points in that quarter. "We went to the basket a lot better than we did earlier in the game, and they were fouling," CC assistant coach Joe Chops said.

"We rebounded the ball better late, and we drew a lot of fouls on rebounds. We hit our free throws, which we haven't been doing." The Shamrocks also got 16 points from senior forward Brian Paluk. Gutt scored 15 of his points in the second half. Rice's D.J. MacAloon scored all of his 15 points in the second half on five three-point field goals. Brian Kalczynski chipped in 12. CC led 12-2 early in the game; however, the Warriors rallied with a 19-6 run. The Shamrocks reclaimed the lead at halftime (25-23) only to be outscored by Rice again in the third period 19-13. ■ WIXOM 65, AGAPE 58: The upset victory escaped Plymouth Agape Christian Friday as it lost to host Wixom Christian, the first-place team in the Metro Christian Conference. Agape trailed 61-58 with only 23 seconds left, but Scott Gillies made four free throws to ice the Wixom win. Junior forward Brandon McKelvey scored 27 points and pulled down 35 rebounds to lead Agape. Junior guard Peter Muench finished with 19 points. Tony Sales scored 22 and Gillies 16 points for Wixom (9-0). Agape is 3-5 in the league and overall.

skills during the summer in A.J. Baker's Midwest Summer Hockey League in Plymouth.

Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Birmingham, Southfield and Wayne also house strong amateur hockey programs.

"Because of the strong local programs, we are able to target the good players at an early age and get them into the more elite programs," Coury said. "The better the program, the better the player."

There is certainly no shortage of elite programs in the metro Detroit area. Coury's Little Caesars program features 250 teams, including seven elite (AAA) teams between the ages of 11 and 17. Computware sponsors the Tier II Junior A Ambassadors in the North American Junior Hockey League and the Detroit Junior Red Wings in the Ontario Hockey League. The United States Hockey League (Junior A) also recruits heavily in the metro Detroit area.

"The big advantage of playing in the Detroit area is its proximity to Canada," said Button. "These kids in the elite programs are always competing in the big tournaments in Canada. You just can't beat that quality of competition."

"I just got back from a tournament where the Little Caesars' team played against teams from Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal and they lost in the finals. I mean these kids are competing against the very best 15- and 16-year-old players in North America."

Talent boom or bust?

Yet, there are those who believe the area's talent pool is drying up. "The players you are talking about — the Modanos and Iafrates and Hartmans — were a product of the late 1960s and early 1970s, a great growth period in U.S. hockey," said Jack Vivian, an Ann Arbor-based scout for the New York Islanders. "Right now, this area is very thin as far as talent. Things are healthy in this area through the midget level. But after that, it's real bad. The level of play in the NAJHL is really on the decline. I don't see any Mike Modanos coming through. I don't think we will see anybody in the next four or five years that would be comparable to those guys."

Coury agrees. "In actual fact, there is less talent today even though there are more opportunities for players," he said. "It will be interesting to see what happens in the next few years."

Apparently, interest in hockey lagged in the late 1970s. Equipment and ice time expenses, lower birth rates, the closing of rinks and the popularity growth of soccer were cited as possible reasons.

"But that has turned around," Coury said. "There are a lot of kids who were born in the 1980s coming up right now, and we are real excited about them. We could be entering another boom period."

According to John Beadle, managing director of the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association, there are 3,000 amateur hockey teams in Michigan, 2,000 in the metro Detroit area.

"Our biggest problem right now is that we need more arenas," he said. "There is more demand for our product than we have the space for."

So, kids are playing hockey again. The steps that Modano, Hartman and the others climbed are still in place. Are there more future NHL stars on the O&E horizon?

"Let me put it this way," said Button. "The chief scout in our (North Stars) organization, Dennis Patterson, lives in Canton and I live in Ypsilanti. Obviously, we feel that this area is one of the best producers of NHL talent in the United States. I don't expect that to change any time soon."

Penalties hinder CC

Redford Catholic Central hockey coach Jack Gumbleton has implored his players to stay on the ice and out of the penalty box.

His words apparently fell on deaf ears. Perhaps actions will speak louder than his words.

Wednesday night, the Shamrocks were slapped with 28 minutes of penalties which Allen Park Cabrini converted into three power-play goals and a 4-3 victory over No. 2-ranked CC at the Allen Park Ice Arena.

Cabrini, ranked No. 4 in Class

B, got power-play goals from Derek Frosinos, Andre Cooper and Steve Karagatsoulis, and a short-handed goal from Pete Niphoratos in the first two periods.

Catholic Central (7-1-2) countered with three power-play markers of its own, as Cabrini earned 20 minutes worth of penalties.

Jon Heady, Justin Ronayne and Frank Novock each scored a goal and an assist for the Shamrocks. Ronayne just missed nothing the tying goal when his hard shot clanged off the goal post in the final period.

SPORTS SHORTS

Items for the Sports Roundup should be submitted by 5 p.m. Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and 5 p.m. Friday (for Monday edition).

SOCCER SIGN-UP

Registrations for the Canton Soccer Club spring season will be accepted through Friday, Feb. 4, at the Canton Parks and Recreation Office.

Boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 18 are eligible. All new participants must bring a birth certificate and social security number when they register.

For information call Watson Zdrodowski at 459-0927.

HAWKS TRIUMPH

The Livonia YMCA 1976 Michigan Hawks, coached by Paul Scicluna and Ken Hamann, captured the Cocoa Beach, Fla., Expo Cup '92 with a 5-0 victory against the Brevard (Fla.) Blaze last month.

The '76 Hawks defeated teams from Florida, New York and Pennsylvania en route to the title.

Members of the unbeaten Hawks are Aimee Cousino, Michelle Fatute, Laura Fedrigo, Angie Siggia and Elizabeth Szkrzybalo, all of Livonia; Kelly Lukasik, Plymouth; Jessica Jones and Katie Kohl, Northville; Gina Dawson and Kathryn Sobrero, Bloomfield Hills; Ann Marie Cieszkowski, Beverly Hills; Amber Berendowsky, Brighton; Kelly Hamann, Milford; and Muthoni Muiruri, East Lansing.

CANTON TOUGHMAN

Dukin' Darryl Grace, a 33-year-old Canton resident, is entered in the Professional American Karate Association-sanctioned Toughman Contest, which begins at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

Tickets are $25 (cabaret seating), $13 (floor) and $10 (general admission).

KOUFAX TRYOUTS

The Plymouth-Canton Sandy Koufax League (ages 13-14) baseball team is looking for above-average players to play in summer travel team competition.

Players can sign up for tryouts at Canton Sports in Canton. For information call Dave at 453-0033.

CHAMPION GYMNAST

Shay Murphy of Canton won the balance beam competition in the Level 10 Senior Division (age 15 and older) at the MAG Christmas Classic Dec. 12-13.

Murphy scored 9.45 on beam and also placed second on vault (9.45) and third on floor exercise (9.2). He finished third in all-around scoring with a 36.35 total.

Murphy competes for the Blakes School of Gymnastics. Teams from Ohio, Indiana and Michigan participated in the event.

PLAYERS WANTED

Girls premier soccer players who have no team to play for in the spring season should call Tom Coyne (427-3336). Linda Hamilton of the U.S. women's national team, and Coyne will provide an opportunity for girls to train and compete.

FLOOR HOCKEY

Boys and girls in grades one through six can register for a youth floor hockey program, which includes clinics and Saturday games.

Canton Parks and Recreation Services and the Wayne-Westland YMCA are co-sponsoring the program, which begins the week of Jan. 25. The cost is $26 per child.

The clinics will take place at Hulsing (Monday), Eriksson (Tuesday) and Miller (Wednesday) elementary schools. The times are 3:45-4:45 p.m. and 4:50-5:50 p.m. The Saturday games will be played at Miller. There will be six skill clinics and five games.

There are no residency requirements. Register at the Canton Parks and Recreation Office. Call 397-5110 for information.

LEARN TO SKI

Two remaining sessions of the learn-to-ski program will be offered by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department the weeks of Jan. 18-25 and Feb. 1-8 at Riverview Highlands Ski Area.

Age groups and times will be juniors (8-15) at 5 p.m., adults (16 and older) at 7 p.m. The fee is $45 per person, which includes two lessons per week, four lift tickets and four equipment rentals. The fee is $35 if you have your own equipment.

Register at the parks and recreation office. There is no residency requirement. For information call 397-5110.

East vs. West in senior citizen bowling match

10-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

It will be East versus West as the senior leagues square off against each other at 9:30 a.m., Jan. 25 at Mayflower Lanes in Redford Township.

The match-up is a result of John Gavie's efforts to put together, for the first-time ever, an East-West challenge in which the best senior citizen bowlers from each side of metro-Detroit will get a chance to compete and perhaps begin a cross-town rivalry.

Gavie has been involved in organizing and running senior leagues for many years. Gavie is also known for his senior league reports which appear in each edition of the Bowler's Digest.

Plan to arrive early if you wish to watch the action.

If you think a family which owns a bowling center would have an offspring that would become a great bowler — you're right.

The Capaldi's of Canton Township own and operate Westland Bowl. Son David is a member of the University of Michigan bowling team and competes on his own in Michigan Junior Masters Association tournaments.

In recent competition at Candlelite Bowl in Bridgeport, David rolled a 300 game during qualifying rounds. That was his second career perfect game, both of them occurring at Candlelite Bowl.

David is the anchor on the UM team which is now involved in Big Ten play. We will follow David's career.

The Wayne-Westland Bowling Association held its annual 700 tournament last weekend at Westland Bowl.

The event, which is open to bowlers who have at least one 700 series to their credit, had a starting field of 90 competitors. The competition was narrowed to the final five for locally televised step ladder finals.

The finalists were Westland's John Hurley, Jr., Livonia's Bob Brown, Inkster's Richard Farr, Livonia's Jeff Hanson and Inkster's Tuck Miller.

Every match was close and exciting, including the final event, which Hurley decided in the last frame. Hurley will receive the $1,000 prize along with the first-place trophy.

Continental Cable in Westland will air the replay of the tournament on Jan. 16 at 6:30 p.m.

Funny thing about the weather: The ice storm last week closed up virtually all schools, but just about every bowling center remained open.

Seems like people are more concerned about their bowling than education.

There are good days and there are bad days. But for the Livonia Trophy team in the Sunday Sleepers league at Westland Bowl, Sunday was a very, very good day.

In the team's second game, Ken Fistler led the way with a 300, and his teammates supported him with a 289 by Mark Konopatzki and a 279 from Charlie Riffle. Frank Briscoe contributed with a 268 and Marcellus Scott chipped in with a 160.

The team combined for a whopping score of 1,296 and a series total of 3,427. It was a very good day, especially for Fistler, as he followed his perfect game with a 299 and wound up with a 830 series. He earned three ABC rings (300, 299 and 800), plus a 300 jacket from Westland Bowl and a watch from ABC for 101 pins over average.

Tina Barber's 717 series last Friday was the first ever 700 series in the long history of the Greenfield Mixed league by a woman bowler.

Goins leads Rockets past Chiefs

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

When someone asks Tony Goins about the Band-Aid on his finger, he can smile and say proudly, "I cut it on the rim."

Goins, Westland John Glenn's 6-foot-4 junior forward, had a lot to be proud of Friday night at Plymouth Canton. Besides throwing down two impressive dunks, and almost a third, he scored a career-high 21 points in Glenn's 76-66 Western Lakes Activities Association boys basketball victory.

Goins also held Canton's star forward Bryan Whittle to two points and four rebounds. As for the bloody finger, it came after his steal and dunk that gave the Rockets a 65-50 lead with 3:19 remaining.

"When I pulled the rim down, it snapped up and hit my hand," said Goins, who now has seven dunks in six games. "I haven't gotten the chance to do my favorite one yet. Maybe when the time is right."

Glenn's first-year coach Mike

Schuette (who needs a step ladder to touch the rim) seemed as impressed with Goins' defense as he was with his nine-of-14 shooting. Senior center Ken Taylor also was tough on the Chiefs, making 11-15 shots for a game-high 22 points and nine rebounds.

Both teams are headed in opposite directions. Glenn has won five of six games, while Canton is zero for the New Year and 1-7 overall.

"Goins took up the challenge, he played Whittle face-to-face," Schuette said. "We played pretty well, inside, I thought, and it was nice having (sophomores) Guy Rucker and Brent Washington off the bench."

Whittle made only one of four shots, had four rebounds and came out of the game after injuring his leg with 2:05 left when trying to prevent another dunk by Goins.

"Whittle didn't seem like he had his legs tonight," said Canton assistant Charlie Paye, still subbing for ailing coach Dave Van Wagoner. "The trainer said he had a possible broken fibula. When Whittle came out of the game he said he dislocated something in the past."

Glenn led 33-30 at halftime and made 17-22 shots in the second half to pull away. The Rockets, who enjoyed a 19-5 rebounding advantage in the second half, scored 11 straight points in the third quarter to go from a 37-32 lead to 48-32.

Goins started the spurt with consecutive baskets, John Miller drilled a three-point shot from the top of the key and added a baseline drive, and Taylor ended the run with a layup.

Senior point-guard Aaron Scheffer didn't score during the third quarter but he might have played his finest game with 16 points, six rebounds and several impressive assists for easy Glenn baskets.

"When we play well, it's because we play with five on the floor," Schuette said. "Scheffer played a good game in South Lyon (on Tuesday) and a good game tonight, too. He made some sweet passes underneath, didn't he?"

Canton looked like the team with a winning record early, leading 18-14 after one quarter and 30-29 late in the first half. Junior guard Matt Paupore and senior center Owen Crosby triggered Canton's early start, combining for 18 first-half points.

But Crosby scored only two of his 10 points after halftime and Paupore was the only consistent scorer, finishing with a game-high 30 points on 12-24 shooting (including three shots from three-point range). Canton committed only eight first-half turnovers before turning the ball over 13 times in the second half.

"The first half was probably our best half of the year," Paye said. "We had good movement in our offense and got the ball to the person who was hot (Crosby). The kids gave a good effort and if we keep it up we'll win down the road."

U-D captures cage victory in showdown with Borgess

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Maybe they've been reading too many of their press clippings...

Without doubt, Redford Bishop Borgess went into Friday's home basketball game against University of Detroit Jesuit thinking it would win the Central Division clash. But as any coach will insist, confidence is worthless unless you can back it up.

Against U-D, Borgess couldn't. The Cubs (ranked seventh in Class B) jumped on top quickly, taking command with a strong first half, then held on in the second to jolt the Spartans 82-70. The win left U-D atop the Central Division at 3-0 (7-1 overall); Borgess (ranked fourth in Class C) slipped to 6-2 overall, 2-1 in the Central.

"We just didn't play well at the start of the game," said Spartan coach Glen Donahue. "We didn't answer the bell. They out-rebounded us and we gave them a lot of easy shots in the first half. And we didn't defend very well; we didn't press effectively in the first half."

"We do not know how to win yet."

However, the Spartans do know how to mount a comeback. They did in their only other defeat, in the season opener against top-ranked (in Class B) Saginaw Buena Vista, and they did against U-D.

But there was just too much ground to make up.

The Cubs shot extremely well in the first half, making 20-of-35 from the floor (57 percent) — including five three-pointers. That, combined with strong rebounding for a small team (one starter taller than 6-2) and their ability to handle Borgess' press (only six first-half turnovers), carried them to a 48-34 halftime advantage.

The Spartans can boast a wealth of talent, but U-D ain't too shabby, either. Senior Daemon Love, a 6-7 forward, befuddled Borgess' defensive efforts with his outside-inside game. Love had 18 first-half points, with three triples; he finished with a game-high 26 points.

Borgess wasn't undone by Love alone, though. Julian Bonner, rated one of the top sophomores in the nation, nicked Borgess for 10 points in the opening quarter and 16 in the first half. The 6-1 guard totaled 24.

"We're playing four guards out there," said U-D coach Scott Hammond. "We didn't really change anything (defensively); we just sagged on (Randy) Whitfield. We tried to get physical and put a body on them (on the boards)."

Hammond acknowledged that his team had handled the Spartans' pressure well in the first half, then added, "But I knew in the second half they'd increase it."

They did. With Whitfield, Charles Smith and Perry Robinson swatting away any shot put up near the basket (seven blocks in the period), the Spartans closed to within 59-57 with 56 seconds left in the third quarter. U-D had eight turnovers in the period.

Whitfield had supplied Borgess' offense in the first half, scoring 19 of his team's 34 points. Smith took command in the third quarter; after scoring just five in the first half, he riddled the Cubs for 15 in the third.

The Spartans trailed 55-39 with six minutes left in the quarter, but Smith scored eight straight points to pull his team to within range, 55-47. A three-point play by Rahzar Riley closed the gap to 59-54, and when Smith was fouled by Love on a three-point shot, he converted all three free throws to make it 59-57.

The Cubs scored the final three points of the quarter to take a 62-57 advantage into the fourth quarter, and a Darnell Kaigier basket expanded it to seven (Kaigier finished with 10 points).

ARTHRITIS & PAIN

The therapies physicians use to treat arthritis do not always suffice. Despite medicine, rest, heat and joint injection, you may remain in pain. In fact, the worse feature of your arthritis can be the pain. It can bring on tension, steal your sleep, sabotage your work, and make enjoyment impossible. When you face such pressures and lack adequate pain relief, you may feel that the medical community is unaware of or indifferent to the suffering caused by your arthritis. Such is not the case. The problem doctors face in treatment stems from their knowledge that the pain can come daily and do so for years. Given this condition, use of strong pain killers such as narcotics is precluded. If you are young, use of narcotics brings possible addiction. If you are elderly you have no such concern. However, taking even low dose codeine brings on the possibility of drug related loss of coordination and equilibrium; you are at substantial risk for a fall. In turn, injury can bring on a broken hip, leg or skull. Any of these complications cause expense and distress far beyond the joint pain you presently feel. In treating arthritis, physicians must rely on mild pain relievers in addition to heat, rest, medication and time. These measures, while not always adequate, are safe both for you and society.
