Board to vote on teacher pact

Plymouth Canton teachers have approved a one-year contract that calls for a 3-percent pay hike. The school board is set to vote on the accord tonight. It will cost $1.1 million. The tentative pact resulted from three sessions of intensive negotiations.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton teachers' 3-percent raise is expected to be ratified by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education at a special meeting tonight.

Agreement on the one-year pact was reached after three expedited bargaining sessions.

Three percent for Plymouth-Canton's 756 teachers will cost the district $1.1 million. No changes were made in teachers' fringe benefits. Employees' health care costs are expected to go up 20 percent next year.

More than 90 percent of teachers approved the contract in a ratification vote last week.

Tom Cotner, chief negotiator for the teachers, said the overwhelming margin by which the contract passed speaks to "trust in the negotiating team. Not just that, but also it has to do with settling things way in advance. We've done that for 10 years and people appreciate it."

Also, Cotner said, teachers "are cognizant of the precarious financial situation in the district and in the state."

School officials are happy with the agreement.

Reaching a settlement means "the calendar for next year is settled, and we know the teachers will be in their classrooms when school starts," said district spokesman Richard Egli.

"It also means morale will be high and teachers can concentrate on teaching. They won't have to worry about going on strike or being on strike. And perhaps most important, it means voters will know there is a labor agreement in place when they vote (for new millage) on June 14. This is positive for the quality of our schools and the quality of our community."

Jill Young wouldn't think you were nuts.

"They are so grateful to find someone who thinks like them and doesn't think they are out of their mind," said Young, a Plymouth photographer who specializes in pet portraits.

Believe it or not, Young photographs more than 500 pets a year. By far, dogs dominate. But Young is no stranger to photographing cats, horses, guinea pigs, exotic birds, even a snake and an alligator.

"The alligator was fun. He was a bit agitated that day, though," said Young, who opened her Plymouth studio in 1989.

No pet is too strange for Young. She doesn't think they — or their owners — are weird. "For some, it's very natural to have their pet photographed. They (pets) are a part of their lives."

And these just aren't snapshots of the dear, old family pet. It's important to Young to capture a pet's personality and how the owner feels about the pet. She has some clients who return every couple of years to have their pet photographed as it ages.

"If a pet passes away, a photo becomes very important," said Dan Hershberger, advertising and marketing director for Jill Andra Young Photography. "It's important to our

Police get tips on suspicious situations

The telephone at the Canton Police Department is ringing off the hook.

"The number of calls we are getting is unbelievable. We now have to weed through everything," said Capt. Laura Golles. "We've been getting tips from everywhere."

The tips are about three reported suspicious incidents involving children at the Westpoint Manor Mobile Home Park on Michigan Avenue near Haggerty.

Police have issued a composite drawing of the man who reportedly grabbed an 8-year-old girl's shoulders as she and other children waited at a bus stop Wednesday morning.

The other two reported incidents did not involve grabbing or touching. "At this point, we are treating all of the incidents as legitimate," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

Police are continuing their investigations into the incidents. Anyone with information is asked to call the department at 397-5316, Golles said.

The suspect in the Wednesday morning incident is described as a dark-skinned man with black hair, and 25-30 years old. When last seen he was wearing a blue work outfit with black shoes. He is described as 5 feet, 10 inches tall, and 180 pounds.

In another incident, which reportedly occurred at 8:30 a.m. March 19 at the mobile home park entrance, an 11-year-old boy encountered a man as he walked to the bus stop. The man, described as an older black man, drove up to the boy in a blue pickup truck, opened the door, and said, "Kid, get in the car."

The boy ran away and said he saw the truck leave the park. The man was described as wearing a blue T-shirt, and the truck had rust and a blue strip on the side.

In a third incident, four elementary school girls were walking home from the same bus stop at 4 p.m. March 23 — the same day a man reportedly

Plymouth teen dies after setting himself on fire

Despondent over a breakup with his girlfriend, a 19-year-old Plymouth man drove his car to her Southfield home on Saturday, slammed it into her father's pickup truck at 30 mph and then set himself on fire.

Southfield Police spokesman Lowell Moore said Donald R. Green, 19, of Plymouth Township died shortly after setting himself on fire, at about 1:32 a.m.

Moore said police speculate that Green, a Plymouth Canton High graduate, doused himself with a gasoline-oil mixture used in snowmobiles sometime between driving from his Plymouth Township home and arriving in Southfield.

Moore said that while a medical examiner is investigating the death, "There were no signs of foul play," and that police have ruled it a suicide.

Green, a lifelong Plymouth Township resident, was born May 31, 1973 in Dearborn. He was a student at Eastern Michigan University and a member of St. Kenneth Catholic Church.

He earned four letters at Plymouth Canton

High School, three in track and one in football.

Funeral services are at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. Kenneth Catholic Church with the Rev. Father William Pettit officiating.

Survivors include parents Carol and Donald R. Jr. of Plymouth; a brother, Randall J. of Plymouth; grandparents Clarence and Marion Hanlon of Florida and Donald R. Green of Westland; and several aunts and uncles.

Burial is scheduled for Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield. Memorials can be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Vorva seeks money

BY KEVIN BROWN

State Rep. Jerry Vorva says he doesn't want to take contributions from lobbyists, so he's asking citizens to send him money.

Vorva, R-Plymouth, elected in November, said he has a $20,000 campaign debt and needs to begin raising money for the 1994 election.

Jerry Vorva

"You can tell it's spring in Lansing," he said in a press conference Friday at his Main Street office. "Everything's turning green." The legislators are standing in line, waiting their turn to have campaign fundraisers, he said.

Vorva said he's been asked to have his own fund-raiser scheduled, events typically attended by lobbyists "with their checkbooks out."

The former Plymouth city commissioner defeated former Rep. Georgina Goss, backed by the local Republican establishment, in the August primary. He has stressed cost cutting and openness in government.

A Realtor, Vorva said he did accept $3,000 from the Realtors' political action committee in the last election but wants to remain free of lobbyists' influence.

"I understand how campaigns are run; you need a lot of money," he said. "I would like to ask my fellow citizens to help me change the system."

Of lobbyists, Vorva said, "I don't owe them anything; I'm in the catbird seat right now."

Vorva said he'd also like citizens to give him ideas on changes in Lansing. "I want to show other politicians that you don't have to be at the feeding trough of lobbyists," Vorva said.

Man reports violent attack in township

A South Lyon man, 19, told Plymouth Township police he was attacked by two men Wednesday as he approached his girlfriend's Plymouth Township residence.

The man said he was walking at 8:50 p.m. on Baywood near Krik Pass when one of the two struck him on the side of the face with an unknown object.

After he fell, the two assailants kicked him in the stomach and chest several times before fleeing north on foot.

The victim said he couldn't describe the attackers.

Girl approached

A man reported to police that on March 22 his daughter was offered chocolate candy by a man in a pickup truck on her way home from Allen School.

The girl said she fled back to the school after the 3:15 p.m. incident.

She described the man as an older man, white, with short hair. With him in the red and black pickup parked on Orangelawn near Haggerty were two men, white, with long hair.

Police are investigating.

Window broken

Damage was estimated at $600 after the window to Hallmark at 44191 Plymouth Oaks Boulevard was found broken.

The incident happened between 9:50 a.m. Tuesday and 7:20 a.m. Wednesday, when it was discovered, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

Police have no suspects.

Charge authorized

A charge of disturbing the peace has been filed against a Plymouth Township trustee, stemming from a March 16 incident.

Trustee Charles Curmi, 37, said the incident was a misunderstanding. "I was just trying to help somebody who didn't understand the language or culture," he said.

According to the police report, a clerk, 27, at the Shell station at Ann Arbor Road and Tavistock, said in a report filed with Plymouth Township police that Curmi argued with her over the way she was helping someone who needed towing services.

She maintained Curmi began shouting at her and knocked over a newspaper stand and some displays upon leaving the station. According to the report, she identified Curmi from his license plate number.

The maximum penalty on the charge is 90 days in jail and or a $100 fine.

Suspect sought

Police drawing: This is a composite drawing of a suspect in an attempted kidnapping of a 9-month-old girl at the Meijer shopping center at Ford and Canton Center roads March 15. Canton police have received 30 tips on the incident. Police believe there may be similarities between this incident and others in Taylor and Ann Arbor. The man, aged 55-60, is described as having a tan or light olive complexion and gray hair. He has a heavy accent and large front teeth. When last seen he wore a tweed blazer and gold watch and ring. If you have any information contact police at 397-5316.

Board raises golfing fees at Hilltop course

Greens fees are going up again at Plymouth Township's Hilltop Golf Course.

The township board of trustees on Tuesday approved new non-resident and resident fees, as proposed by course manager John Jawor.

For residents, nine-hole weekday rates are up from $10 to $11, and 18-hole weekday rates are up from $15 to $17.

Weekend and holiday rates are up from $11 for nine holes and $18 for 18 holes to $12 for nine holes and $20 for 18.

Senior and junior resident rates are also up for both nine and 18 holes, from $9 to $11.

For non-residents, nine-hole weekday rates are up from $11 to $12; and 18 holes from $17 to $19.

Weekend and holiday rates are up from $12 for nine holes and $20 for 18 holes to $13 for nine and $22 for 18.

Non-resident senior and junior rates are up from $10 for nine holes and $11 for 18 to $11 for both.

Senior and junior rates don't apply on weekends and holidays; they apply only on weekdays until noon.

Residents are considered those who live in Plymouth Township or the City of Plymouth. Seniors are 60 or over and juniors are 17 and under.

The new rates compare favorably with other area courses, according to a chart compiled by township building director Charles McIlhargey.

Vote from page 1A

Critics have questioned how school officials can afford a 3-percent increase and at the same time, push for a two-year, 4-mill tax increase.

Bottom of the teachers' pay scale will now be $29,793. Top of the scale — for teachers with 11 years seniority, master's degrees plus 30 hours of additional credit — is $59,101. The average Plymouth-Canton teacher earns about $51,335.

"Part of the need (for the millage) is to be able to pay teachers, because when you have 85 percent of your budget in personnel and a large portion of those personnel are teachers, you have to be able to pay them," Egli said.

Chuck Portelli, president of the teachers' union, said aside from concerns some teachers had about a few non-economic issues, the membership was pleased with the contract.

"The comments we received were quite positive," said Portelli. "People looked at it as being a fair, reasonable settlement." The fact that so many teachers are near the top of the scale is an indications teachers "are happy to work in Plymouth-Canton, because we stay here. A lot of the membership has been here a long time."

Maryann Ligato-Freydl, Michigan Education Association executive director, said the contract contains "some changes that are beneficial for both sides." Teachers will have more input into school improvement plans. Change in the evaluation procedure "eases things from an administrative point of view," she added. "They'll have more flexibility without jeopardizing the rights of teachers."

Also, a change in the grievance procedure will see disputes settled by a panel of arbitrators rather than by a single arbitrator from the American Arbitration Association. "We expect this will shorten up the time period so we get a quicker decision," said Ligato-Freydl.

"I thought it was a fair contract that met their needs, as well as including more time for in-service and assessments."

Arguments over airport hashed out again

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

This story is about the controversy over Mettetal Airport.

This story is about the controversy, drawn out now for three years, over Mettetal Airport.

This story is about the controversy, drawn out now for three years, over Mettetal Airport — and it's going to be drawn out some more.

The issue was debated yet again Thursday at the Canton Township hall.

There, Plymouth Township and Canton trustees, two state representatives, two county commissioners, and state and federal officials explored the question that won't be resolved:

Should the state buy and own the tiny airport on the Plymouth-Canton border — and, if so, would it be a blessing or curse?

The 3 1/2 hour meeting featured, yet again, the usual pro and con arguments over the proposed government purchase of the airport.

But while state officials said last month that the purchase was about six weeks away, Michigan Department of Transportation director Pat Nowak said at the close of the Thursday meeting that he was willing to hold off — to hear from a citizens committee that would study the issue.

Nowak said he'd like to resolve the issue in 45-60 days.

But while state officials said they were willing to meet with the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens — the anti-government-airport-purchase group — they also commented on why they're pursuing a Mettetal purchase.

"We believe this airport is valuable to general aviation, and provides opportunities for business use," said Bill Gehman, director of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

Early on, Gehman was asked the No. 1 question posed by local officials and the public: Will the airport be expanded?

"I can definitely say we will not expand the airport," he said, "or lengthen the runway."

"We do not and have not ever recommended that this runway length be extended," said Dean Nitz, a Federal Aviation Administration official.

Under the plan proposed by the state, the FAA would pay 90 percent of the purchase cost and the state the rest. The state would then seek a local government to run it, or a private contractor if local governments reject this.

Officials in both Canton and Plymouth Township say they're not interested in running the airport.

Andrea Fischer, an attorney representing Canton on the airport issue, said local governments could seek a provision in the federal-to-state-grant paying for the airport to prohibit expansion. She said this has been done before.

Fischer said that even if the two townships played no role in running the airport, fire and police called there for emergencies could face potential liability claims.

While state and federal officials said they wouldn't expand the airport, anti-airport people rejected that assertion.

Bob Zaetta, of the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens, said state plans call for expanding the airport from 60 to 85 acres.

"I don't know what you call that, but I call it expansion," Zaetta said.

He also raised the loss of revenue to schools and local government if the airport goes in — an estimated $230,000 in taxes could be generated by a light industrial development.

"We hear about how good this is going to be for the community," Zaetta continued. Yet, only 19 Plymouth-Canton residents have airplanes there, he said.

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, asked Gehman that with City of Plymouth voters changing their charter to prohibit airport involvement and with strong anti-airport sentiment in greater Plymouth, "Why then, if that's the case, are you proceeding?"

"We believe the airport plays an important role in the region," Gehman said.

Also getting their licks in were airport supporters. Barbara Wilcox of Plymouth Township noted that three years ago, a Canton task force recommended that the township buy the airport.

"Most of your small towns do have airports," she said. "I am not a golfer; I don't ice skate; but I do feel they're (facilities) assets to our community. I feel Mettetal Airport is an asset."

Canton businessman Bill Brown, a pilot, said he likes the short runway at Mettetal, adding most airports have similar runways.

Parents, police cooperate to protect local children

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Parents at the Westpoint Manor Mobile Home Park say they just want to protect their children in the aftermath of a reported attempted abduction at the park.

"The kids were scared. They were crying," said park resident Therese Pitts.

Pitts' daughter, Cali, 8, was one of a couple of girls who ran screaming from their bus stop at the entrance of the mobile home park at Michigan Ave. and Haggerty Road, after an unidentified man grabbed one of the girls from behind several trees Wednesday morning.

Parents say their anger is directed more toward the park's managers than police. At issue is the bus stop location at the park's entrance, not far from Michigan Ave. and the I-275 on-ramp.

But to the surprise of parents Friday afternoon, attorneys for the park's owners said the bus stop will be moved to the clubhouse at the center of the park.

Parents got the news when they called attorneys regarding a resident's unrelated eviction notice. Apparently attorneys and the owners, particularly one in Florida, were unaware of what has transpired at the park lately.

"The minute they found out, they didn't hesitate," Pitts said.

A meeting is scheduled for today, when parents will be informed of just what is happening with the bus stop.

Parents have unsuccessfully tried to convince park managers J.P. and Martha Giles to protect children by moving the bus stop to the clubhouse.

Meanwhile, police planned to work on the bus stop problem. "We're going to try to meet with the school and park management today (Friday) to mediate the situation," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

Park managers moved the bus stop from the clubhouse three years ago because children reportedly damaged the clubhouse, as well as nearby trees and mobile homes.

"No. They can't," Martha Giles said, when asked Thursday if children could catch the bus at the clubhouse. "We can't let them tear up the building."

Parents were disappointed with the initial lack of interest in their problems.

"At first we didn't think the police were doing enough. We brought the media in. I know they (police) are doing everything they can," Pitts said, referring to the reported suspicious incidents with children at the park.

Canton police met with parents Thursday night in the park clubhouse. "We wanted to relay information about the incidents and suspects directly," said Canton Police Capt. Laura Golles.

But Pitts was disappointed. "They talked with the adults. I didn't have a problem with that. But I thought they were going to talk with the kids and maybe show them how to protect themselves. I thought they would address the bus stop."

grabbed the girls in the morning — when a man, described as having a dark tan, drove up to them in a light blue van. He reportedly leaned out the window and said, "I'll be back later." The girls said he also stuck out his tongue and laughed.

Police say they get a number of suspicious situation reports. Recently, a couple of girls reported to police that they were picked up by a man in a car and driven around for an hour. The girls later admitted they made up the report because they had been skipping school.

"On March 24 (Wednesday) with the two incidents, we went into a proactive model and contacted the school, parents and mobile home park (managers)," Santomauro said.

Mobile home park parents said they are concerned that their children were not being taken seriously, particularly by park managers Martha and J.P. Giles.

Martha Giles said only the girls saw the man Wednesday morning. Giles called police when the girls ran to her mobile home for help after the man tried to grab them.

"They say the kids are making up stories and we (parents) want to be on TV," said Therese Pitts, mother of one of the girls grabbed by a man Wednesday morning. "My daughter couldn't eat dinner. She had nightmares."

Crowd vents frustrations to school board

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

One of the biggest crowds ever to attend a Plymouth-Canton school board meeting packed the Little Theater at Plymouth Canton High School last week, venting their feelings on issues ranging from busing to budgeting. Many in the audience, which numbered more than 350, were there to protest the elimination of bus transportation. Busing was included on a proposed list of cuts — a move projected to save the district $1.4 million.

It became apparent to many parents early in the meeting that busing had been dropped from the list. Nonetheless, citizens took advantage of the opportunity to express their opinions on transportation and a host of other issues. More than two dozen parents spoke, and the board didn't address its first agenda item until 11 p.m.

Connie Tary of Plymouth Township demanded an independent audit of the school district.

"We pay 72 percent of our property taxes directly to the schools. You should be able to educate our children for that," she said. "I strongly believe funds have been mismanaged in this community."

James Swisher of Canton said school administrators and employees should take pay cuts.

Pay cuts

"Everyone else has received a pay cut. People are tired of paying taxes. I'm not getting nothing out of it. It has to come to a stop."

Jim Clement of Plymouth Township said there's been "far too little discussion of the millage. It seems to me the last millage proposal was for two years. What assurance do I have you won't come back to us and plead poverty again?"

Calvin Haddad of Canton and Charles Ofori-Mensa of Plymouth Township emphasized the importance of the Talented and Gifted Program and urged the board not to cut its funding.

Richard Pilkievicz of Canton objected to the district spending money on signs describing the capital improvements made at various schools. "We could be using that in much better ways. I would suggest the board get its priorities in order."

Jim Hudgins of Canton said the note sent home by bus drivers about eliminating transportation "didn't surprise us, because we've seen the school board use scare tactics numerous times. Let's look at what is really driving up educational costs."

Hudgins listed physical education classes including power volleyball; advanced power volleyball; touch football; modern football theory; strength and conditioning; aerobics; basketball; advanced basketball; badminton; jogging; and weight training. "My aim isn't to reduce teachers. But behind every class is a teacher, salary and benefits, plus facilities."

Physical education

"We offer 20 physical education programs and 16 math classes. Does the Plymouth-Canton board really think physical education is more important than math?" Hudgins called for a tax rollback, saying school taxes have "almost doubled in 12 years."

Phil Zabawa of Canton also addressed economics. "The superintendent did take a freeze (at $109,000), but I'm talking about reductions. I didn't see any administrators taking cuts."

Steve Kovach of Canton said the district has included some red herrings in its proposed budget. "I fully support the cuts you are trying to make, but the first priority should be to maintain programs. Basically, I don't agree that every time you have a budget problem you should be coming back to the public. Throwing money at issues doesn't solve problems. I believe some of the contracts shouldn't have been signed. If you don't have the money, don't sign the contract."

Kevin Lambert of Plymouth Township said the average teacher in the district makes more than a Ford engineer with a master's degree. The average pay of a Plymouth-Canton teacher — $51,335 — compares to $16,000 paid to teachers at Our Lady of Good Counsel School, he said.

"I think it's wrong there are hidden elections," added Lambert. "I never know when these elections are, and it really bothers me. They should be once a year so we have an honest chance," he said.

Millage opposed

Martin McClellan of Plymouth Township told the board, "I won't support the millage, because I don't like how you spend my money. I support the idea of an audit."

Milt Bolton, a parent from Canton and an hourly worker at Ford, said he's forced to supplement his income with a part-time job. "If I have to cut, I figure other places have to be cut also," he said.

Julianne Zenner of Plymouth Township said if administrators and teachers were "living in the real world, they would take pay cuts. This is life. You take the good times and the bad times. Your whole school system is out of whack."

Superintendent John Hoben's Cadillac "costs more than my home," she said. "I think you all live beyond your level, and the schools live beyond their level."

The high schools offer too many college-level classes, she added. "What are they going to do in college? Give us our basics first. And don't tell me I can't have bus transportation if I don't pass the millage. You've blackmailed us all into being here, and we have a right to say no to this pay increase. If you don't like it, get another job."

Maryann Keil of Canton, a school volunteer who's lived in other states, said, "I've never seen a school district with this many vacations and breaks for fun things for kids." In other districts, kids learn a lot more because they have the basics, she said.

Bad communication

Sandra Kosky of Plymouth chided district officials for their poor communication skills and asked, "Do you really need someone with a master's degree to teach fourth grade?"

"There's a terrible lack of communication with parents," added Kosky. "Your priorities need to be rearranged. You need to concern yourself more with people in the community than with what you're going to get from the state. If you get this money, are there going to be some permanent changes, or is it going to be back to business as usual?"

Canton farmers protest skyrocketing assessments

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton Township assessor John McLenaghan says it's a question of fairness.

"Farming is not the issue. This is a question of the market value of the land. It's not what they do with the land," said McLenaghan, of Wayne County Appraising Co.

Farmers who live west of Canton Center Road aren't too certain their triple-digit property assessment increases this year are fair.

More than 10 farmers told township trustees a week ago just what they thought of the increases and how they are affecting their lives — namely, in their pocket-books.

"Somehow you know this guy didn't do it right. And we trust you will correct this," Dick Kirchgatter, a veterinarian and farmer, told trustees.

Farmers complained that with such high assessment increases they may be forced off their land. Farmers also accused township officials of trying to force them out of the township in place of high-priced subdivisions.

Agricultural land, from Joy to Geddes to the township line, was reclassified — not rezoned — as residential for tax purposes. McLenaghan said the assessments were increased — for some, the first time in more than a decade — for two main reasons.

First, development has now reached west of Canton Center Road. Second, development is now expected in those agricultural areas. Several years ago the township's master land use plan was updated, allowing more opportunity for development in that western area.

"The master plan now reasonably reflects what is expected to happen there, and it's residential," McLenaghan said.

Whether farmers have supplemental incomes is irrelevant to property assessments, as is a government contract (Public Act 116) under which some farmers work, McLenaghan said.

Farmers last week complained that their assessments increased while they still do not have sewer and water, and likely don't receive the same degree of services from local government.

"Can you assure me that someone who owns a parcel directly west of water and sewer wouldn't sell that parcel for development?" township supervisor Tom Yack asked farmers.

Mary Hauck-Churilla responded: "Why would you want to tax an owner for what might happen?" Her assessment increased 300 percent and is nowhere near current sewer and water lines.

In McLenaghan's opinion, water and sewer west of Canton Center

Road makes the farmers' land more valuable. "As property gets more valuable, the assessments will go up."

Yack commented last week about property owners east of Canton Center Road paying more in taxes than land owners west of Canton Center Road.

Why would the eastern part of the township "want to carry an additional burden for property west of some imaginary line?" he asked.

clientele that the photo memorializes the pet in some way."

Sometimes the pet is photographed by itself. Other owners request the pet to be photographed with the family children, or the family as a whole.

So you might wonder how one gets a pet to sit still long enough to be photographed. Patience is the answer.

"I have a tendency to think that a lot of what I do is instinct. I can't explain it," said Young, who has a bachelor of fine arts in photography from the Center for Creative Studies/College of Art and Design, Detroit.

As an animal owner herself, Young has developed a few tricks, some of which she learned when she took her own dog, Maxwell, a besenji, to obedience school.

Biscuits, a whistle and some toys can often capture a pet's attention. "Sometimes we just need to sit down and talk," Young said.

As with people photography, the pet owner will get a set of proofs from which to choose that special photograph. Young also mats and frames her work when requested.

When pets come for their photographs, the animals aren't requested to be human-like. "We just do what they are capable of doing. I won't do anything that is unnatural for a dog."

PATTERNS OF JOINT INVOLVEMENT
Why arthritis strikes one joint and spares another is the result of chance and chance. Choice refers to the influence acting on the involved joint. Thus, previous injury to a right knee makes it more likely that at a later date you may have osteoarthritis in the right knee rather than the left.
Gout strikes the toes because the distal foot is the coolest part of the body and is where the crystals of uric acid that set off an attack have the greatest possibility to precipitate.
However, there are instances when right handed individuals have a tendinitis or shoulder arthritis on the left side. Or, you have no known knee injury, but one side is completely worn down while the other knee is just as completely normal.
Such otherwise unexplained occurrences represent chance — an error happening during fetal life. One area of cartilage did not complete development correctly; the result is a defective site. Over time the resulting strain comes out as an arthritic joint.
As a result, one of the goals of genetic research is to prevent such fetal flaws. The other approach is to find ways to identify these defects early in childhood when medical intervention has the best opportunity to succeed.

Tax plan's impact on local schools unclear

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Legislative leaders were negotiating furiously over the weekend on a $1.8 billion school tax shift plan.

"I see some egos melting," Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, said late last week. "There's big movement at this point."

"All four caucuses will be at work," said Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, a leader in the House GOP resistance to Gov. John Engler's plan for a straight 20 percent property tax cut with no replacement money.

Everyone was buzzing but few lawmakers were clear how the latest plan would impact their local school districts. It calls for cutting school operating property taxes, now 34.6 mills average statewide, to a flat 20 mills; voter approval June 1 of increasing the sales tax limit from 4 cents to 6; and a cap on property assessment increases of 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less.

As planned, the entire package is "tiebarred" — no element becomes law unless everything is enacted.

Nor are lawmakers clear on the overall impact. One said it would be a property tax cut of $1.8 billion and a sales tax hike of $1.8 billion, but with non-resident tourists picking up 10 percent of the sales tax tab. Another thought there would be a $220 million net tax cut.

25 mills allowed

Sample reactions from lawmakers:

Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland: "There's no money for continuing ed or adult ed. We (Wayne-Westland) will never catch up. Neither will Livonia."

Wayne-Westland levies 47 mills. In an exception under the proposal, it would be allowed to levy 25 mills instead of 20. "With 25 mills and a loss of 22 mills, we'll never catch up. And the 2 cents (sales tax) is too iffy."

Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills: "I'm concerned about damage control. If it's all tied together — the freeze, rollback and sales tax — then it's probably one of the best plans as far as Farmington (school district) is concerned. Other (plans) are damaging."

Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth: "It's a much fairer attempt to deal with financing of schools while lowering property taxes. In previous bills, there was no reimbursement through the sales tax."

Noting the plan calls for putting $5,000 per child in every district, Vorva said: "Plymouth-Canton is below $5,000. There'll be a net increase (for the school district)." Vorva added he had concerns about people who get the circuit breaker income tax rebate (for having high property taxes) would see that evaporate as property taxes drop.

"The question is: Overall is it a tax reduction or an increase? I'm much happier if it's a reduction, even if it's only a few million."

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia: "It looks like a 3 percent (revenue) increase for Redford Union schools. But (Livonia Supt. Joseph) Marinelli is concerned that it (revenue projections) is based on last year's student count." Livonia is projecting an enrollment increase.

"My real concern," Bankes added, "is that it doesn't allow local units to vote and levy additional funds should they need it. They'd have to live with 25 mills." Livonia revenues would drop to $5,500 per student, but the district now has $5,965.

Rep. Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak: "Royal Oak is pretty supportive. I've had no reaction from Troy." A complication, she said, is that retirement money, instead of being appropriated separately by the Legislature, would be lumped in with state aid.

Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake: "We've got to see the numbers. We've got to see how it works. This should be an all-or-nothing deal."

One argument, she said, is over allowing school districts to hold special millage elections. Some favor allowing only one election per year. Others want to allow millage votes only at regular general elections when voter turnout is high and school constituencies have less power.

'Parties out of it'

The plan was hatched suddenly between House Republicans on the 14-member BLT (Bipartisan Legislative Team) and Gov. Engler, whose rigid position for more than two years had been in favor of a tax cut, period.

"There's been big movement on his part," said Democrat Keith.

Exec says tax cut would ruin county

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara says the county government will go bankrupt if the latest tax plan from Lansing is approved.

In a letter to Gov. John Engler, McNamara said the idea to reduce property assessments to 1992 levels and cap future increases at 5 percent a year is bad news for local governments. Engler is responsible for those parts of the plan, which also includes a 50-percent sales tax increase and a school millage levy rollback.

Wayne County lost $8 million in the 1991 property tax freeze, McNamara said, and would lose $8 million more if this new deal goes through, causing a "devastating financial effect."

Although the county budget is $1.5 billion a year (or $8 million times 187), McNamara said most of that money goes for services the county is required by state or federal government to provide. So, there's little left to cut.

"We could shut down the entire park system ($2.5 million) and not put a dent in the problem," he wrote to Engler. "We are talking about a devastating financial crisis."

Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson doesn't see it quite that way. "With all due respect, I disagree with my counterpart in Wayne County," he said. "Taxpayers have a right to have property taxes reduced. Sure, we're going to lose revenues, but it's something I'll make adjustments for."

Meanwhile, back in Lansing, legislators hope to pass everything they're supposed to this week, then put the plan on a statewide ballot in June for voters to pass judgment on.

Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett has already passed judgment, and he agrees with McNamara. To Engler he wrote, "The state, in the name of reform, must not and cannot continue to whack away at local government revenue foundations. To impose freezes and caps without regard to the fiscal integrity and the fiscal demands on local government is cruel and unusual punishment."

Bennett says the new plan would cost Livonia $1.5 million a year. The freeze and cap, he added, will be an "administrative nightmare" and lead to more lost revenue.

On the phone, Bennett said, "What's going on in Lansing is absolutely ridiculous. People up there, the governor in particular, just don't understand the property tax system."

Not everyone though thinks the plan will be the ruination of local government. Plymouth City Manager Steve Walters said, "It's not going to bankrupt anybody by having this limit (on assessment increases)." Walters noted that the Headlee Amendment to the state constitution already prevents cities and townships from collecting additional money just because assessments go up.

That's not to say Walters likes the new plan, however. He noted that, since the cap on assessment increases could easily keep a homeowner's taxes artificially low for as long as he owned the house, the homeowner would have a strong disincentive to buy a new house, and the city or township officials would have a good reason to encourage the homeowner to sell his house. "Let Russia play around with a free market system," Walters said sarcastically. "We know better."

Spring scents are in the air

As Sandi Greenberg of Southfield so aptly articulated for all of us, "it's time to open the windows and let winter out and let the fresh spring air in." Slowly the days are warming and a pale green is emerging from the white landscape. But even though it may not completely feel like spring yet, the scents of the season help to make it a reality.

Favorite spring scents are as individual as personalities. Sandi associates spring with the sweet smells of lilacs and honeysuckle and the heady fragrance of magnolias. Of course all seasonal aromas don't come from the garden. "I love the smell of freshly cut grass and the barbecue grill and the first jar of sun tea that you can put on your porch," she says.

Manicurist Sue Waryasz of Dearborn Heights also associates springtime with lilacs, and she longs for that first warm spring rain that permeates the air with its fresh, clean scent.

Floral gardens

To speed the season, select potpourris and fragrances for your home, oils for your bath and perfumes for your body that capture nature's blossoms in a bottle. Lori Karbal, 554 N. Woodward in Birmingham, is a European-style cosmetic and skin care boutique that offers specialty fragrances, aromatherapy, vintage jewelry and gifts. Once inside, winter is forgotten as your senses are awakened by delicate garden essences and herbal bouquets, contained in curvaceous flacons and apothecary bottles. All of the necessities of the vanity table are beautifully displayed here.

Karbal's newest line of fragrance is Farmacia Del Cinghiale from Italy. We picture the eau de toilette in a spicy, refreshing vetiver scent ($36) and the larger bottle of bubble bath available in almond, violetta, mimosa, tuberosa and other tantalizing fragrances ($35). These are the newest and hottest Italian scents.

Karbal's most popular fragrances are the vanillas from Parisian boutiques, L'Artisan Parfumeur and Comptoir Sud Pacifique. The sweet scent of vanilla is noted for its soothing and nurturing effects. Comptoir's Vanille Abricot is a favorite of Alexandra Awada, a Detroit school teacher. She found the combination of warm Tahitian vanilla with the essence of apricot "really pretty, not heavy."

The gardenia, my personal choice to herald spring, is deliciously blended with coconut, ylang-ylang and vanilla in the captivating fragrance, Tiare by Comptoir.

To guarantee peaceful dreams of springtime, sleep on a pillow filled with an herbal potpourri.

The Dream Company makes elegant damask neckrolls that contain lavender, cedar, hops, mugwort, wild vanilla and oak moss ($56). Hops is the most soporific of all the sleep herbs, while lavender is believed to banish sadness. Mugwort is reputed to induce pleasant dreams and vanilla and oak moss are mood enhancers. Lori Karbal also has white linen and lace sachets to hang on your bedpost that impart aromatherapy benefits ($23).

Fruit punch

Perhaps your favorite spring scent is that of fresh fruits — grapefruit and mandarin oranges, papaya and mango. These are the fragrances that instantly transport you to warm, tropical climes. If so, you'll love the botanical essence of Mariel by H2O Plus in Fairlane Town Center. Inspired by sea breezes and floral gardens, Mariel is an exhilarating, crisp scent with citrus overtones ($46).

H2O Plus is a skin fitness center offering botanically based products for bath, shower, skin and hair-care, designed for the entire family. The various fragrances are formulated to relax or invigorate. My favorite is Golddust, an exotic blend of aloe vera and goldst leaves with the rich scent of oriental flowers. The creamy, foaming gel is the ultimate shower indulgence.

Sometimes a product needs only a romantic name to entice us to try it. Veranda is Crabtree & Evelyn's newest introduction to its fragrance line. As its name implies, Veranda beckons its wearer to the spring garden of the deep south where magnolias, roses and jasmine bloom in wild abandon. Here's to the long, balmy days of springtime!

Put your money where your heart is

Shopping can be fun, but even more fun when the purchase goes to help someone in need. Cause Marketing is the buzzword for products whose proceeds support shoppers' sympathies.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO

It's hip to care. And so "cause marketing" was born. The purchase with a philanthropic kick.

Retailers traditionally support the community that supports them. The latest way is through specially designed products whose price tags are shared with programs near and dear to customers' hearts.

Tiffany's has a scarf/perfume set with a portion of the sale going to benefit the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Neiman Marcus has its 50 Against One fashion accessories line with a portion of each sale going to the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

Jacobson's is selling Emil Weddige lithographs with a portion of each sale going to the United Negro College Fund.

Valvoline Oil Centers periodically donate portions of the price of an oil change to the Say No To Drugs program.

The Nature Center Stores sell calendars, posters and bells with proceeds to The Nature Conservancy. Since 1988 the company has raised more than $250,000 for conservation projects.

"Cause marketing is a wonderful way for retailers to show their support for issues that are important to the people who are important to them," said Colleen Creagh, retail account executive with the Marx Layne public relations firm.

"On the other hand, customers are delighted to make purchases that could be of value to society. Cause marketing is a double-edged sword."

Cause marketing may have got its start in the 1980s music industry where LIVE-AID and FARM-AID concerts gave customers the chance to rock while making a contribution to the homeless and hungry.

The theme plays on in the '90s. Currently, each purchase of Dolly Parton's single Romeo goes to benefit the American Red Cross.

Scarf for the cure: Tiffany's has designed this silk, pink and grey scarf to honor the Susan Komen Breast Cancer Foundation and its Race For The Cure. The 36-inch-square scarf and a 3.7-ounce bottle of TIFFANY sells for $100 with 10 percent going to fight breast cancer. A great Mother's Day gift. ## Managing a mall's like governing a small city

Editor's Note: This is the final story in a series looking at retail employment opportunities within shopping malls. The mall manager has the top job at a retail center, running the mall like the mayor of a small city.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

"The Mayor of Novi introduces me as the Mayor of Twelve Oaks," said Philip Morosco, general manager of the Novi shopping center, with a laugh. "And in a way, he's right."

"A mall is like a small city," Morosco said. "Malls have a public works department, a public relations department and a security force. Malls have roads to patrol in their parking lots complete with stop signs and pedestrian crossings. Malls work closely with the chamber of commerce and other community groups. Malls see thousands of citizens through their doors each week."

Morosco managed Briarwood in Ann Arbor and worked at Fairlane Town Center and Sears before coming to head the Twelve Oaks Mall where many stores lead their companies in annual sales. In addition to coordinating the mall's operations with his marketing, security and operations directors, Morosco sits on several community advisory boards dedicating his energies to furthering trade in Novi.

Jean Hildebrant
Livonia Mall manager

Jean Hildebrant has managed the Livonia Mall for 29 years. Before being named manager of the center, she served as comptroller. Her dedication to her community through numerous civic and social committees resulted in her being named Livonia's "Citizen of the Year" in 1992.

"The most satisfying part of my job is making a nice lease that upgrades the center," she said. "The worst part is probably hearing about a water or sewer line breaking in the middle of the night."

Hildebrant does it all at the Livonia Mall with the help of an assistant and a marketing director.

Kathy O'Malley runs the Northland Mall with similar dedication to the city of Southfield. O'Malley sits on dozens of civic committees and likens Northland to "a small metropolis."

"People consider the entire area around the mall part of the Northland Center," she said, referring to the numerous offices and business plazas adjacent to the mall. "We've had babies born at the mall. We have our own police force. We have a huge population of early morning walkers at the center. We share our community room with various local agencies. We keep busy."

Don Pyden is retiring in May after 20 years as manager of the Oakland Mall in Troy. He also served as mall comptroller before he stepping into the manager's shoes.

"I also agree with the mall-as-city analogy," he said. "We award snow removal contracts. Our tenants are neighbors in a retail neighborhood. We hold special events and serve as a gathering space for the community."

Serving on civic committees, working with people and managing the mall, are Pyden's favorite parts of the job. Not-so-fun is mopping the floors alongside the janitors when the sprinkling system goes kablooey in the early hours of the morning.

Looking back, Pyden had words of caution for area mall managers.

"The competition for shoppers is very, very tight these days," he said. "Malls will have to do something different to attract shoppers. Modern expressways have made it easy for shoppers to jump in their cars and take their retail dollars away from their local mall. Within the vicinity of Oakland Mall, for instance, there are dozens of strip centers to tempt shoppers away from the mall."

"Shoppers will benefit," he said. "As malls add more and more customer services to keep their businesses thriving."

Architect brings life to mall designs

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO

Describing shopping centers as the "last example of communal life in the world," international mall architect Jon Jerde, sees it as his duty "to make life happen" in the environments he creates.

With a slow smile he summed up his formula for dozens of successful shopping projects (including Mall of America), "If you build it, they will come."

But he quickly added, "I try to make life happen in a space, decoding, developing and building a user's fantasy for the place they visit."

Jerde, speaking to design students at Lawrence Technological University in Southfield last week, treated the audience to a slide show of his projects. His portfolio includes shopping districts in California, Kuwait, Taiwan, Argentina, New Zealand and Holland.

"No longer are malls the place to simply go and buy things," he said. "They are the last public spaces in the world where people go to be seen, hang out or window shop. Shopping districts of the future will become more important in stature. Survival will probably become the buzzword for shopping center design during the 1990s as the age of conspicuous consumption ends."

Jerde's projects often marry office space, retail room and entertainment areas together in forgotten areas of a city. The people traffic crosses over each section to keep the district vital, prosperous and populated.

"So much of suburbia is single-purposed and self-serving," he said. "Many areas keep out vitality and need to be converted to mixed uses so life can happen."

The playground atmosphere at Mall of America draws a million peo-

Furniture sought for needy families

Don't throw away the couch that doesn't match the new decor. Donate it and get a 15 percent discount for a new couch.

Workbench Furniture and the Salvation Army are accepting furniture donations for needy families during the fourth annual "Furniture For Families" drive. Anyone making a donation this year will earn a 15 percent discount off any item at Workbench Furniture stores in Southfield, Birmingham, Ann Arbor and Grand Rapids.

More than 1,200 pieces of furniture were collected in last year's drive, but the goal this year is 1,400. The drive will run from April 1 to April 19.

"There is a tremendous need for furniture for the families that we help place in permanent housing, as well as those affected by disasters such as fire," said Salvation Army Capt. Graham Allan. The drive, created in 1989 by Workbench Furniture, covers southeastern Michigan and metropolitan Detroit. It also serves southwestern Michigan, including cities like Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Muskegon, Holland and Kalamazoo.

Because the Salvation Army lacks resources to repair furniture, donated items should be in useable and safe condition. Any furniture donation is appreciated, but mattresses and bed frames are always in high demand. To kick off the drive, Workbench will donate 10 new mattresses and bed frames.

Donations are tax deductible and will be picked up from either home or office.

Anyone interested in making a donation should call the Salvation Army at (313) 965-7760.

ple a week to four miles of shopping. Its astounding success is both "inspiring and frightening," according to Jerde.

"There is so much energy at this mall. It proves that people enjoy participatory entertainment," Jerde said. "The so-called black box entertainment, like movie theaters, is waning. People want to be personally involved in having fun. In Japan, all retail projects include cultural or performance areas. Again, bringing life to the armatures of designs." Jerde's trademark seems to be sky-lighted arches with winding accessways moving visitors from one end of a project to the other. He pointed out, however, that shopping district architectural projects have become team efforts with as many as six different firms contributing to a building project.

The city of Los Angeles has asked Jerde to join the team charged with rebuilding sections of the city scorched by rioting. Locally, the Wonderland Mall in Livonia recognized the need to bring family entertainment to the shopping mall. In February the mall tried to get city fathers to change zoning regulations to permit an arcade wing featuring amusement rides and game booths. Opposition by neighbors canned the project. But mall manager Joe Thomas said it may be an idea that comes back to the drawing board because other malls have expressed interest in entertainment wings.

At Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi, manager Philip Morosco is making a spot "for life to happen," outside the Cinnabon store.

"We've added some chairs and tables to the mall in front of a big window and plan to add some benches and greenery so shoppers can grab a cup of espresso or cappuccino, take a break, people watch. The signage will read 'The Gathering Space.' We noticed a need for such a spot. It's quite busy on weekends."

Governor plans cut in college aid

By TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Community colleges aren't looking for more money. They just want to keep the $240 million they got this year.

But Gov. John Engler recommends $233 million for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Reason: Now that Wayne County Community College has its own local property tax after 20 years, the state won't ship $7 million in extra aid there any more.

"Our lobbying will be to keep the $7 million," said Schoolcraft College President Richard McDowell, after meeting last week with a House appropriations subcommittee.

McDowell and the presidents of 28 other two-year colleges say the $7 million should be spread to them rather than used elsewhere in Engler's nearly $8-billion general-fund budget.

Veteran gloomy

McDowell & Co. have a new friend on the House panel: Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, who after four terms landed on the Appropriations Committee.

"I wish I could say things were going to get better," said veteran Rep. James O'Neill Jr., D-Saginaw. "But if you look at the last five or six recessions, we've come back (after each recession), but never to where we were."

'The at-risk money is for students who are not ready for college-level work. Seventy-nine percent of the new students coming to us need developmental work.'

Richard McDowell
Schoolcraft president million for "at-risk" students and $3.12 million for job training.

"The at-risk money is for students who are not ready for college-level work," he said. "Seventy-nine percent of the new students coming to us need developmental work."

"The success rate of these students is phenomenal. The normal retention rate (for students to re-enroll) is 63 percent. For these (at-risk) students, it's over 90 percent."

Not only do at-risk students get developmental academic work in math and reading, he said, but they also get special counseling and help setting career goals.

Schoolcraft gets $159,700 and OCC $123,000 for at-risk programs currently.

As for job training, McDowell said, "Community colleges have been identified by all governors as job training providers."

Key job for Bankes

Appropriations committee members do most of their work through subcommittees. Bankes, the only Observer & Eccentric area lawmaker on the community colleges subcommittee, also serves on subcommittees budgeting universities, K-12 schools, social services and public health.

But she ranks the community colleges subcommittee as most important.

"In every budget, we have identified a population in crisis that needs help," she said. "Most can be best served in a community college setting."

"For instance, where's the most convenient place to get re-training? Where's the most convenient place for teen mothers to learn parenting skills and to become a provider? Where's the most convenient place for displaced homemakers to learn job skills?"

"The community college is a friendly place to go. Parking is no cost. The campuses are warm and friendly, without the frustrations of a big (university) campus," Bankes said.

Please read the handwritten note on this page. It's from a homeless woman. It was left at our door in the middle of the night along with two dogs, Two Face and Magic, pets this woman loved but could not care for. And could not keep. Fortunately, we could care for Two Face and Magic. We took them in, gave them food and a warm place to sleep, and found them homes with the two families you see pictured above. This story had a happy ending. But we get more and more cases like this each year. It's sad. And it gets worse. Some people don't care about animals as much as the woman who left this note. # SC board changes policy on taping

STAFF WRITER

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees voted unanimously last week to adopt a new rule on taping board meetings.

Trustees were poised to pass a rule requiring that the board's permission be obtained in order to tape record a meeting, but they changed their minds after The Observer pointed out that the Michigan Open Meetings Act forbids what they wanted to do.

The law says that a person's right to attend meetings includes the right to tape them. It also forbids boards from requiring that their approval be given before anyone tapes a meeting.

It was unfortunate, said board vice chair Steve Ragan, that "we had to be reminded by (The Observer)" that the proposed rule was illegal.

The new rule, which has been sent to college attorneys to review, states: "Any person wishing to record any meetings of the Board of Trustees may do so providing the recording activity is not disruptive to the proceedings of the Board."

The board changed the rule because the Schoolcraft Connection, the student newspaper, complained about being denied permission to tape a meeting last January, said Connection news editor James Lee.

A reporter attending the meeting tried to put her tape recorder on the board table, and was told her she wasn't allowed to tape the meeting.

SC ponders tuition hike

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Schoolcraft College trustees are reviewing an administrative recommendation to raise tuition from $40 to $43 per credit hour for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Should the board go along, the 1993-94 budget of about $33 million, up about $1 million from the current fiscal year, would be comprised of about $13 million in tax revenue, $8 million in state aid and $11 million in tuition.

Although trustees spoke at last week's meeting about how they don't like to raise tuition, they've done it in each of the last five years.

Tuition for in-district students was $32 per credit hour in 1989, $32.50 in 1990, $35 in 1991, $36.50 in 1992 and $40 currently.

"If we're going to increase tuition it's got to be justified," board vice chair Steve Ragan said. "We have a responsibility to keep our budget as low as we possibly can and still provide quality service."

Trustee Harry Greenleaf said he won't support a $3 tuition increase "unless there's a corresponding net increase in service to the students."

College President Richard McDowell said his priority is to maintain a healthy college. "We are in good shape," he said. "We want to make sure we stay in good shape."

McDowell cited rising costs, contractually-guaranteed pay raises and stagnant state aid as the reason for needing to boost tuition.

Trustee Patricia Watson said one of the two most frequent comments she hears is, "Please don't raise tuition."

Watson's up for re-election June 14 along with trustees Winifred Fraser and John Walsh.

Like the other trustees, Watson is withholding an opinion on the need for a tuition increase this year until the detailed budget information is shown to the board. But she said, "I really hate to go to the students every time."

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 26, so that residents can comment on the budget (and the proposed tuition increase).

Madonna program features surgeon

Ian Jackson, the craniofacial surgeon recently featured on "60 Minutes," will be the guest on "Madonna Magazine" at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday, March 31.

Jackson, a pioneer of reconstructive surgery for major congenital deformities of the skull and face, will discuss his work.

Jackson has also authored some 150 articles, 50 book chapters and 10 books on techniques and progress in the plastic surgery field.

The Michigan surgeon is also known for his work on his adopted son, David, a Campa Indian from Peru who required extensive surgery for a facial deformity.

Jackson also serves as the medical director of the Institute for Craniofacial and Reconstructive Surgery, which is affiliated with Providence Hospital in Southfield.

Madonna Magazine is taped at Madonna University. To reserve tickets, call the Media Services Department at (313) 591-5119.

Car insurance

Rates expected to fall, but not until next year

The result was a foregone conclusion, but the Michigan Senate spent a full day reaching it.

The Senate Wednesday approved 20 to 17 the auto insurance reform bill aimed at cutting costs and paring premiums an average of 16 percent statewide.

Rejected were 23 amendments. If House Bill 4156 had been amended at all, it would have had to go back to the House for concurrence — and the four-year debate may have been reopened.

"The trial lawyers almost got away with another one," said Sen. Don Koivisto, D-Ironwood, floor manager of the bill. "For decades they've bottled up auto insurance, and they almost succeeded again."

The law curbs lawsuits and jury awards. It was bitterly resisted by many attorneys, organized labor, and most Democrats. It was supported by most Republicans and moderate Democrats.

A complication arose when the Senate failed to muster a two-thirds majority (26) to give the bill immediate effect. Instead it takes effect the first of April in 1994. Some lawmakers feared it would give insurers time to raise premiums before being forced to lower them.

The bill, which Gov. John Engler is expected to sign promptly, was supported by 19 Republicans and one Democrat; opposed were 14 Democrats and three Republicans.

Here is how Observer & Eccentric area lawmakers voted:

YES — Republicans Michael Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, Robert Geake of Northville.

NO — Democrats William Faust of Westland, Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, George Z. Hart of Dearborn and Republican David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

Faust broke ranks with Democrats on the vote to give the law immediate effect.

An attorney, Honigman broke ranks with the GOP, as did Doug Carl of Utica and Fred Dillingham of Fowlerville.

Faxon made a formal objection to the majority's rejection of all amendments: "How shocking! How outrageous! How disgraceful!" he said. "There was not one worthy thought to be found among the entire lot of all of you — 38 members barren."

Hart, whose district contains the offices of AAA Michigan, author of the 1992 insurance ballot proposal, said, "I voted no because it has only been a short three or four months ago that the voters, by a two to one margin, voted against Proposal D. There is not much different here today."

Both D and HB 4156 aimed at cutting costs. But D contained a $250,000 floor on catastrophic claims while HB 4156 placed the floor at $1 million. HB 4156 also contains rules to stimulate competition and more insurance sales in Detroit.

The new Bonus Lotto!

It's an all new game with bigger jackpots and a bonus ball that gives you more chances to win than ever before!

Match 5 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $50,000!

More money than ever before!

Bonus Lotto starts with a guaranteed $4 million jackpot — and rolls over by $4 million every time!

Match 4 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $1,000!

More chances to win!

Players win the Grand Prize by matching the 6 numbers drawn from 47. BUT, if you don't match all six, there are still more chances to win. Because a 7th ball is then drawn — called the Bonus Ball. The Bonus Ball gives players even more chances to win more cash prizes.

Match 3 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $100!

Here's how:

Match all 6 numbers drawn and you win the Jackpot!

Match 2 of the 6 numbers drawn plus the bonus ball and you win $4.

$2 is all it takes!

Each Bonus Lotto wager costs $2.00 and is valid for the next Lotto drawing unless multiple drawings are selected. If multiple draws are played, a player can play up to 20 consecutive draws.

One drawing, once a week!

Bonus Lotto drawings are now held just once a week — every Saturday at 7:30 p.m. on the Megabucks television show. Check your local television listings for the television station in your area.

See your Lottery retailer for details today!

Odds of winning: 6 of 6: 1 in 10,737,573; 5 of 6 + Bonus Ball: 1 in 1,789,595; 4 of 6 + Bonus Ball: 1 in 17,896; 3 of 6 + Bonus Ball: 1 in 688; 2 of 6 + Bonus Ball: 1 in 72. Overall odds: 1 in 65. Bonus Lotto is from the Michigan Lottery.

POINTS OF VIEW

Educational philosophers forget to speak English

It's no wonder people talk about a crisis in the schools. Spend some time listening to folks who call themselves educators and the reason for the crisis becomes clear. It's not the kids, it's the educational establishment.

That was driven home ad nauseam last week at the Canton Economic Club meeting, but it could have been anywhere in the suburbs.

Three educators were asked to speak about the future of education to business people, many of whom are parents. About 45 minutes later, the numbed crowd staggered to the door with escape on its mind.

We won't use the names of the educators in an attempt to protect the guilty, but these guys offered up the biggest pile of intellectual mush heard in recent years by the club.

If these guys had been alive and operating in the 19th century, they would have been snake oil salesmen or selling shares of stock in non-existent gold mines.

But they've cashed in on the 20th century scam, educational philosophy.

The message is really simple: We have to educate kids differently today because the jobs that were there are no longer there. Kids have to learn how to think and solve problems.

But to drag big bucks out of the suckers — taxpayers — they have to put it into that incomprehensible foreign language, educationese. These guys have been at it so long they should enroll in classes that teach English to the foreign born.

Here's a sampling.

- Community-based education. It's a fancy way of saying local schools.
- Outcome-based education. It's a way for educators to say to themselves: "You know, when these kids get out of school they're going to have to live in the real world and work at real jobs, and we better do something about teaching them things they'll need."

- New learning. If there's new learning, then there's old learning. But then again math, English and science don't really change. Chances are the educators are trying to say that kids should learn how to use computers.
- Core curriculum. It's a round-about way of saying that kids should learn math, reading and science instead of taking underwater basket weaving.

Here's a sampling of the crowd reaction to the speeches.

A lawyer: "It's no wonder kids aren't learning anything, they probably can't understand what these guys are trying to say." And just think about it, this comes from a man who works in a profession that isn't exactly known for getting to the point.

A homemaker and mother: "I just couldn't relate what they were saying to my two children."

A photographer and father: "Just some Bozos trying to snow us with more jargon."

And who can blame them. These are the folks who are paying the bills and are relying on educators to do something for their children. At what it's costing us in school taxes, the least we can expect is that these guys speak English.

COOKING NOTES: A recent column suggested that Gov. John Engler is selling out our state's natural resources and compared him to a bottom feeder, trash sucker fish. A recipe for smoked sucker was sought and Craig Schmidt of Livonia came up with a winner. It's for carp, but they're bottom feeders, too. Here's the recipe: Build a fire outside with apple and oak, then find a pine board. Filet the carp, lay it on the pine and grill it over the fire. When done, throw away the fish and eat the board. It's an old recipe, but it'll work with Engler. Maybe we should try it on some educators.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers who is planning a fish fry to which all educators who use jargon will be invited. He can be reached at 459-2700.

Disabilities are more a state of mind than being

She was all dolled up in red stirrup pants with a long, red sweater and red shoes. He was wearing glasses — the kind with a strap wrapping around the back of his head — and white socks. They were dining at an Elias Brothers in Farmington Hills and getting along famously.

They caught my attention because I couldn't help overhearing their speech impediments and the clank of his walker as he returned from the restroom. I was embarrassed again, as I had been the night before, when the Singing Hands Choir from the School for the Deaf in Flint performed at a benefit for the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center in Livonia.

It wasn't their performance that embarrassed me; I think perhaps it was the fact that I could hear and didn't have to compensate for that deficit that left me guilty. How terrible it would be, a colleague and I agreed the next day, not to be able to hear music.

But in the next breath we both recounted how terrifying it had been the same night, robbed of our sight by the fog and guessing our way home, she to rural areas in the west and me north to the lakes area.

We both made it home, using other skills to compensate for our loss, and the singers were at once graceful and charming, unapologetic for any deficit.

Soon the diners were replaced by another couple, she overweight like me.

I remembered the developmentally disabled people who worked at Olga's in Birmingham, smiling and offering each other encouragement as they cleared tables, and I recalled that recently two developmentally disabled people had purchased a home in Canton.

Outside the restaurant, drivers were turning on their headlights to compensate for the night that seemed to come early with the onset again of fog. I realized that all of us have disabilities, some hidden, like mental illness or difficulties at home.

But like the diners, the singers and the waitress at Olga's, the recipe for success — and probably for happiness — is in doing the best you can with what you have.

And while we may counter a disability, such as with sign language, never do we need to apologize for having one.

Romney urges students: Be informed

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Although the media in the U.S. is mostly liberal, not always trustworthy, slanted and biased, it plays a pivotal role in protecting our way of life.

That's what WXYT-AM talk-show host Ronna Romney told a group of about 150 students, faculty and staff at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills last week.

Romney, 49, of Bloomfield Township, was invited to OCC by marketing teacher Harvey Bronstein to speak on the topic, "Can We Believe the Media?"

With one notable exception, the students in attendance all seemed to think they can believe Romney, if not the media. The exceptional student was visibly angry over Romney's view of political correctness ("it's dumb"), but other students quickly became fans.

"I think she's an inspiration to women," student Theresa Bunker said, noting that she sees in Romney much of what she'd like to become. "I want to sit in on one of her talk shows now," she said.

Student Elizabeth Kapp, a Farmington Hills resident, said she didn't know who Romney was before hearing her, but now she wants to visit Romney at her radio show, too (9-11 p.m. week-nights).

In keeping with the format of her show, the Seaholm High School graduate (class of 1961) talked for a half hour at OCC, then took questions.

As someone who has worked in the Republican party for many years and spent most of her life in a political family before turning to talk radio last August, the former Ronna Stern said she sees the media from the unique perspective of someone who's been on both sides.

"I think you bring a lot of substance to what you do (in the media) when you've been on the other side," she said. "I know where a lot of bodies are buried."

Romney also emphasized that newspapers are a lot better than television news.

TV news people, she said, work so much that "they don't get out in the community any more. They don't see life the way life actually is. The one (big) dimension I bring to the media is that I have a life."

Television news, Romney said, "thinks for you," while newspapers present all sides of an issue. "The most important form of power is knowledge. And knowledge has to come primarily from print (media). The (television) media has done a lot to hurt real journalism." (However, Romney later noted that her TV set is tuned to the Cable News Network "all day.")

Although she admitted to being mostly uninformed when she was of college age in the 1960s, Romney suggested that the mostly-student audience "establish a daily regimen of reading (to) get a sense of the way the country is shifting." As students plan their professional lives, Romney said, they ought to know what the national trends are in order to plan more effectively.

She recommended The New York Times ("That's where you get the best solid information."), The Wall Street Journal and The Washington Post.

As for the Observer & Eccentric, Romney said she doesn't read it. "I got divorced and my husband got The Eccentric."

County marshmallow drop set for Good Friday

There's another blizzard in the forecast for Wayne County.

But unlike the others, this one will be fun for the whole family.

"I have advised our road crews of the situation, but have instructed them to let the children of Wayne County handle this one," said Edward McNamara, Wayne County executive.

This blizzard, scheduled to hit on Good Friday, April 9, will be made up of 20,000 marshmallows being dropped from a helicopter during the park system's annual Great Marshmallow Drop.

Kids are invited to weather the storm and come out and collect as many of the earth-bound marshmallows as they can and turn them in for a prize-filled Easter egg. The kids will be divided up into age groups to give the littlest ones a better chance to collect their share.

The event will be held twice on Good Friday, at 9 a.m. at Elizabeth Park in Trenton and at 11 a.m. at Nankin Mills in Westland.

If the event has to be canceled due to bad weather, it will be held April 10 instead.

COMMUNITY EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICE

Nothing is more urgent than saving a life.

When every second counts, you need complete care that begins before you reach the hospital. Community Emergency Medical Service provides an immediate response, from basic care to advanced life support.

With 17 sub-stations in southeast Michigan, we'll take you to the hospital of your choice when your condition safely warrants. And Community EMS bills participating insurance companies directly, so you can rest easy.

Community EMS is a not-for-profit EMS system that also provides complete training programs and continuing education classes through Life Support Training Institute for all levels of EMS providers, Basic EMT's through Paramedics. Life Support Training Institute also offers classes to businesses, community groups, nursing homes and municipal agencies in CPR, first aid and American Red Cross certification.

In addition, Community EMS provides non-emergency services such as transportation for wheel chair restricted patients.

'Do lunch' in style without busting budget

How many times have you heard the old expression — "Let's do lunch" — only to have the commitment fade away because burgers in a box was too cheap and too fast, and a table for two at a swanky suburban restaurant costs the same as last month's phone bill?

Never fear, because if you're looking for food — great food, well prepared food, food with style, and consistent quality, at below-market prices, check out the local school scene and find out what student chefs are cooking up.

Delicious lunches

North, east, south or west, culinary arts programs featured at our learning institutions are by far the best. Lunch specialties include homemade soups, the kind momma used to make, mostly made from scratch, and entrees that have the students learning as much about ethnic cuisine as Vice President Al Gore on a Middle Eastern fact finding trip.

Desserts brim with the likes of fresh cream and shaved chocolate with crusts so light and flaky they must have been made by little old ladies who still wear curlers and babushkas. Hardly.

Today's culinary arts student is being introduced to the high-tech art of culinary trends and happenings. They're also learning about kitchen management, personnel, public relations, purchasing, and everything else that has to do with running a restaurant in today's "let's dine out" society.

Learning by doing

Now this isn't to say that all good chefs graduate from classy colleges. Anticipating the trend toward vocational education, and allowing high school students a chance to see what the real working world is all about, most local school districts are offering a commercial foods course that gives teenagers an in-depth look at running a restaurant from the front of the house (dining room) all the way down to the basement where supplies are stored.

Add to this a professional cast of some of the best known culinary artists to supervise the kitchen, and you have a lucrative alternative to what used to be a "sit-at-your-desk-and-do-this" learning program.

High school students today are getting hands-on experience in their commercial foods classes. They're learning how to cut a side of beef, and turn blocks of ice into sculpture with a high powered chain saw. Spun sugar desserts and quantity baking, along with all the aspects of running a restaurant as a business, are now taught in high school.

Some school districts are even climbing on the bandwagon by offering their commercial foods program to night school students, not as a continuing education program, but as a credited program.

Gourmet entrees

Enough of the background; let's get down to what these programs do best — food. Recent visits to student-run restaurants had me sampling the wares of junior chefs with such exemplary fare like Poached Eggs Blackstone, a minestrone soup that would have brought Pavarotti to his knees, even a table-side preparation of flaming Steak Diane.

If you are worried that your taste buds would never appreciate the likes of Shrimps Provencal, all of the programs offer outrageous sandwiches like hot ham and cheese on grilled sourdough, homemade fries, and a not-so-basic plate called "Beth's Tuna Supreme" — pita bread stuffed with the freshest tuna salad, lettuce and tomatoes. At a buck fifty yet. Can you believe it?

Add to those goodies the fact that all of these culinary institutions do catering in one form or another, and put out some of the best buffets money can buy. Many schools offer a small bakery where students can bake you anywhere from one to 200 dozen cookies, special cakes, tortes and whatever.

Before you go to lunch at a student-run restaurant, it's best to call ahead, not necessarily to make reservations, but just to make sure of the hours. Prices vary and alcohol is a no-no, except for the chef adding a pinch to the stroganoff or whatever.

These restaurants are the best kept secrets of the staff that work in the buildings. You will not be disappointed, and furthermore, you will be helping the student chefs by supporting their programs.

One word to the wise: Remember that these are "learning programs" and if you're looking for a place to have a "power lunch" or are in a hurry, come back when you can sit down, relax and enjoy.

Oakland Community College nursing students Dawn Ehrmantraut, Stacy Banaszak and Lauri Stinchcomb were looking for a place to unwind, relax and have lunch. Their nutrition teacher suggested a place, right on campus — the Ridgewood Cafe.

They couldn't believe the prices — $1 for chicken gumbo soup, $2.45 for a hamburger deluxe. "It's excellent," they said in agreement, nodding their heads between bites.

pretty enough to be a picture were Horace and Carol Abbott of Farmington Hills.

"We come here about three times a month," said Horace. "We just discovered it last year. The food is great, the service is very nice, and people are friendly. There's an interesting menu, and reasonable prices. The idea is they're learning, and you like to think you're a small part of it."

Tucked in J-306 of Tirrell Hall, also called the "J" building, Ridgewood Cafe isn't easy to find if you've never visited Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills. Ask a student to point you in the right direction.

Like programs at other community colleges, the Ridgewood Cafe menu is planned around a lesson. "Everything is prepared fresh daily," said dining room instructor Darlene Levinson.

Getting ready for lunch is a team effort that involves students in many classes. They deserve extra credit for overcoming an awkward set-up — 90 percent of the cooking is done in the kitchen located in the basement, and food is brought up to the restaurant in an elevator for final prepping.

Be sure to visit the bake shop after lunch. You'll find a variety of fresh baked products for sale at reasonable prices.

Schoolcraft College

The American Harvest Restaurant at Schoolcraft College in Livonia won't open for two hours, but the clock is ticking fast. Jackie Jett is making small balls out of beets with a melon baller. She's got half an hour to finish the bunch and blanch them in water too.

"The menu dictates what students will learn," said Jeffrey Gabriel, certified master chef and department manager. "Attendance is crucial. Every class is involved. We give them a broad overall knowledge of cooking."

Sous chef Brian Henson, who graduated from the culinary arts program last semester, helps Jeremy Hebda make the dressing — whipped cream and watercress.

Chef Kevin Gawronski looks over Hebda's shoulder, picks up the whisk and gives him a couple of pointers. "Add some cayenne pepper," suggests Henson. "It hits you in the back of the neck and makes you want to take another bite."

The heat is on, but everyone is having fun, and learning at the same time. Their tasks must be completed by 11 a.m. when the next class takes over to serve the lunch crowd. Duties are divided, student chefs are assigned stations to prepare entrees that will be served in the restaurant. Wait staff become familiar with the menu to answer customer questions.

"Customers test me," said second-year culinary arts student Margaret Healy. "They want me to tell them about the menu. They ask how things are prepared."

Chef Leopold Schaeli, one of five certified master chefs who teaches at the school, greets customers at the door with a big welcoming smile.

"Everytime I've been here it's excellent, unusual, a little different," said Pat Smith of Livonia who was having lunch with her friends.

Richard Mack, executive chef at the Palace, is enjoying his lunch too. "I've come here a couple of times," he said. "It's great. They do a fine job. They are surrounded by top chefs here."

The American Harvest Restaurant isn't too hard to find. It's in the Waterman Campus Center on campus. Diners relax in comfortable surroundings decorated with works by local artists.

Don't forget to stop by the Professor's Pantry which offers freshly baked bread, pastries, smoked meats and salads.

Henry Ford

When I was attending Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn in the 1970s, students seldom ate at the Gate Room unless they were invited by a professor. Who had an extra $5 then to splurge on lunch? Located at the back of the Student Center next to the hospitality kitchens it seemed off-limits.

That's changed. A new entrance near the student grill in the Student Center provides easier access to the restaurant. Students prepare and serve meals under supervision of faculty including Executive Chef Richard Teeples of Plymouth. Reservations are accepted by calling 845-9642.

See sampling of menus and Chef Leopold's service tips inside.

College restaurant menus full of surprise

You never know what will be on the menu when you visit the American Harvest Restaurant, Ridgewood Cafe or Gateroom.

Here's a sampling of menu offerings on days we visited.

American Harvest — Thursday, March 4, 1993

Soup of the day was Smoked Chicken Bean Soup, $1.75 a bowl — served with Stromboli sandwich and pasta salad, $5.95.

Entrees served with soup, salad, bread or rolls including Frog Legs, $7.50; and Roast Duckling with Kiln Dried Cherry Sauce and Bread Dumplings, Braised Savory Cabbage and Roasted Mirepoix, $8.25.

Desserts made with Marie Briard Liqueurs including Lemon Curd Tart and Fresh Fruit with Puff Pastry. Costs varied.

Of note is the gourmet buffet served on Fridays, for $8.25 per person, and a special Easter offering by the Professor's Pantry. Oven-ready, traditional Easter dinners for two with Rack of Spring Lamb with Dijonaise, Rosemary Jus Lie, Ratatouille Casserole with Cheese Gratin, Anna Potatoes, Creme Brulee for two, and Petite Baguette, all for $25.

You can also select a 4-5 pound Boneless Pork Loin Roast with

Chef shares good service tips

Master Chef Leopold Schaeli teaches students at Schoolcraft College how to be good chefs and hosts. Here are his "Ten Basic Steps" of good service.

- The right attitude. Take pride in your work.
- Grooming guide. Your appearance is crucial. You are constantly "on stage."
- An immaculate station — clean linens, table set, water goblets sparkling, etc.
- Friendly greeting will set the mood for the entire dining experience.

- Take order carefully.
- Salad service — recommend house salad, explain other choices of dressing, offer freshly ground pepper as an extra touch.
- Order properly assembled. Be sure to have all the proper accompaniments to your order, serve hot foods hot, cold foods cold, check to see if order is complete.
- Recheck food and guest needs.
- Remove dishes and crumbs from table.
- Present check promptly.

Ridgewood Cafe — Thursday, Feb. 25, 1993

We picked an excellent day to visit the Ridgewood Cafe. The students were hosting a special Mardi Gras lunch. Many of the wait staff were in Mardi Gras costume. The restaurant was decorated with balloons and streamers, there was even entertainment.

Soup Du Jour — Chicken Gumbo $1, Chili, $1.35. Vegetable Du Jour, Corn Timbale 75 cents, Orzo Pilaf 75 cents.

The featured salad of the day was a New Orleans Shrimp Salad for $3.50. On the Sandwich Board were cold sandwiches at $2.75 each. A hamburger was $1.80 and a hamburger deluxe $2.45.

Entree choices included Catfish Lafayette, $4, Jambalaya $3.80 and Creole Beef Tips, $3.70. For dessert — Bananas Foster, $1.75 or New Orleans Bread Pudding $1.25.

Special buffet lunches are scheduled Tuesday, April 6, and Wednesday, April 21, the cost is $6.25 per person. For information call 471-7780. Be sure to call Oakland Community College in September for the schedule of special gourmet dinners. The Wassail dinner in December is very popular. Call 471-7786 for information.

Gate Room — Wednesday, March 3, 1993

Entree specials are served with cup of soup, salad bar, choice of potato or vegetable and assorted baked breads. Soup offerings were Mushroom Barley and Baked French Onion.

Diners had a choice of Honey Chicken with vegetables, $4.50, Broiled Lake Pickerel, $5.50 of Veal Cutlet Cordon Bleu stuffed with ham and Swiss cheese, $5.50. There was also a Maurice Salad for $4.50.

Healthy noodles good on the side

Many weeknight cooks agree that a healthful entree can be as easy as 1-2-3 but selecting the accompaniments takes more thought. Debate no more. Serve noodles to the side — they're great-tasting, good-for-you and fuss-free!

Noodle accompaniments are especially appealing in light of the most recent dietary recommendations from the United States Department of Agriculture — six to 11 servings of grain products (including breads, cereals, rice and pasta) are recommended per day.

The USDA's new Food Guide Pyramid also illustrates the importance of eating a variety of foods. A combination of grains, fruits, vegetables, meat and dairy products provides the energy, protein, vitamins, minerals and fiber your body needs for good health.

For a simple dinner tonight, season a boneless, skinless chicken breast with five spice powder prior to cooking. Or, try a pork loin chop or a lean cut of beef like a sirloin steak. Complete the meal with a green salad and Spicy Oriental Noodles starring red bell peppers, green onions and Oriental seasonings.

Other tasty side options include Noodles Parmigiano — savory noodles tossed with red onions, mushrooms, garlic, basil and Parmesan cheese. And Garlic Lovers' Noodles have the just right amount of garlic, sage and Romano cheese in every bite.

SPICY ORIENTAL NOODLES

- ½ package (6 ounces) No Yolks cholesterol-free noodles
- ¾ cup short, thin red bell pepper strips
- 4 green onions, cut diagonally into 1-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ to ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes

- 2½ teaspoons sesame oil, divided
- ¼ teaspoon salt, optional

Cook No Yolks according to package directions without salt. Meanwhile, saute bell pepper, onions, ginger, garlic and red pepper flakes in 2 teaspoons oil in large nonstick skillet over medium heat 4 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Drain noodles; stir into vegetables with remaining ¼ teaspoon oil and salt. Makes 6 (¾ cup) servings.

Cookbook features pancakes and waffles

KEELY WYGONIK

Pancakes are one of the few things my father didn't mess up when he cooked Sunday breakfast. Our dog Daisy liked it when dad cooked too, because whenever he made a mistake, she was standing by to eat the evidence.

Kids of all ages love pancakes. They're quick, easy, and with a few creative touches, are perfect for a casual or late dinner.

In her newly published cookbook "Pancakes and Waffles," (HarperCollins; Feb. 26, 1993; $12.50/hardcover) Elizabeth Alston explains new ways to make these family favorites. Making pancakes from scratch isn't much harder than adding eggs and milk to a mix. All it takes is a little extra planning and organization.

Alston, food editor of Woman's

Day and author of "Muffins, Biscuits and Scones," "Breakfast with Friends," and "Tea Breads and Coffeecakes," shares a generous baker's dozen of recipes for breakfast cakes (with both food-processor and by-hand directions).

She also flips a batch of good ideas off the griddle for light meals including Polenta Pancake with Greens and Ham; Vermont Baked Cheddar and Apple Pancake, and Carrot and Sweet Potato Pancakes.

In the introduction, Alston shares helpful tips for making and storing pancakes, waffles and crepes. Here's one for cooks with very little time — "Most pancakes and waffles freeze beautifully and it's great to have a supply on hand. Freeze them with pieces of wax paper between so you can easily remove as many as you need. Store in an airtight container or zip-closure plastic bag. Reheat pancakes on a cookie sheet, waffles directly on the oven rack (or cooling rack) for 5 to 6 minutes at 200 degrees F. There's no need to defrost them first."

A chapter is also devoted to syrups, sauces and toppings that will make your pancakes and waffles extra special. Here's a recipe from the book.

SUPER SIMPLE BAKED PANCAKE

- 2 large eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Few grains of ground nutmeg
- 1 tablespoon mild olive or vegetable oil (olive oil tastes best here)

Equipment: An ovenproof skillet 9 to 10 inches across the bottom, or a 9-inch glass or metal pie pan or an 11-by-7-inch baking dish.

Heat the oven to 450 degrees F.

Food processor or blender method: Process the eggs, milk, flour, salt and nutmeg to make smooth batter.

By hand: Put the eggs and milk into a medium-sized bowl. Beat with a wire whisk or electric mixer to blend well. Beat in the flour, salt, and nutmeg. If tiny lumps of flour remain visible, it's no problem.

Heat the oil in the skillet, pie pan or baking dish in the oven for 5 minutes. When very hot, pour in the batter.

Bake uncovered 18 to 20 minutes without opening the oven door, until the pancake is puffed and crisp around the edges and golden brown in the middle. Cut in wedges to serve. Makes 1 large pancake, enough for 2 to 4 portions. Serve with syrup or fruit.

Tip: It's important that the oven be hot enough so the pancake develops high, crisp edges with a pop-over-like middle.

Mix chicken, greens for dinner in a hurry

AP — Need to fix dinner in a hurry? Chicken with greens salad can be served with just about any kind of green, including broccoli, rabe, Swiss chard and spinach. Use boneless chicken (or turkey) breast and classic Jarlsberg cheese.

CHICKEN WITH GREENS SALAD

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 to 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 pound boneless, skinless, thinly sliced, chicken or turkey breast
- 3 to 4 cups washed, drained and packed chopped broccoli rabe, Swiss chard, bok choy, spinach, or arugula
- 3 tablespoons water
- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded classic Jarlsberg cheese

In a large skillet with cover, heat oil on medium-high heat. Sauté garlic 1 to 2 minutes or until golden. Remove with slotted spoon to a bowl, leaving seasoned oil in skillet.

Over medium-high heat, sauté chicken slices 3 to 4 minutes or until just cooked and beginning to brown. Arrange chicken in a single layer in baking pan. Reserve skillet and drippings.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Add (damp) greens plus 3 tablespoons water to skillet with drippings. Cover and allow to steam over medium-high heat 3 1/2 minutes (2 minutes arugula). Mix in bowl with garlic. Add cheese and blend well. Mound cheese mixture evenly on chicken slices. Bake in a 425-degree F oven for 8 to 10 minutes or until hot and cheese is melted. Makes 6 servings.

Crisp potato sticks low in calories, fat

AP — These slick potato sticks promise the crispness and flavor of traditional french fries, without the high calories and fat.

SLENDER FRENCH FRIES

- 2 medium potatoes (12 ounces total)
- 2 teaspoons cooking oil
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup ketchup (optional)

Cut potatoes lengthwise into 1/2-inch-wide sticks. Place sticks in a bowl of ice water about 30 minutes to crisp. Drain; pat dry with paper towels.

Place potato sticks in a plastic bag; add cooking oil, paprika and salt. Shake to coat.

On a large baking sheet arrange the potato sticks in a single layer. Bake in a 425-degree F oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden, stirring and turning once or twice. If desired, serve with ketchup. Makes 4 servings.

Spanish rice cooks in microwave

AP — You won't save a lot of time cooking rice in your microwave oven, but you will free up space on your stove top. Cooking rice in the microwave offers a couple of other advantages. It requires little attention on your part, and it cooks right in the dish you'll use for serving. Pair this easy, tomato-flavored microwave rice with Mexican dishes, poultry, or fish.

SPANISH RICE

- 1 1/4 cups long-grain rice
- 1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 10 1/4-ounce can condensed chicken broth
- 1 broth can water (1 1/2 cups)
- 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole combine uncooked rice, onion, garlic and oil. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 4 to 6 minutes (low-wattage oven: 5 to 7 minutes), or until onion is tender, stirring once.

Add broth, water, tomato sauce and pepper. Cook, covered, on high for 5 to 7 minutes (low-wattage oven: 8 to 10 minutes) or until boiling.

Stir; cook on 50 percent power (medium) for 16 to 19 minutes (low-wattage oven: 14 to 17 minutes on high) or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed, stirring every 5 minutes.

Nutrition information per serving: 191 cal., 2 g fat, 0 mg chol., 5 g pro., 37 g carbo., 1 g dietary fiber, 413 mg sodium. RDA: 12 percent iron, 26 percent thiamine, 22 percent niacin.

STREET SEEN

Discoveries by Janice Tigar-Kramer 953-2047 mailbox # 1861

Stylish coverup

Fashionwise, these hand silk screened umbrellas beat the accordion-style bonnet. Rain gear like this isn't a must-have, but it can be a bold fashion accessory, says Karen Daskas of Diane M, the Birmingham boutique that sells the cotton blend rain wear. Two New York artists premiered their generous-sized umbrellas this season in a few boutiques nationwide. For now, there are 12 patterns, including the black and white psychedelic print, teal fish and taupe cats and dogs. Besides looking good, the colorful gear from Let It Rain has sturdy wood shafts and handles. It's mildew resistant and water repellent — at no extra charge ($65).

Retreads

Nike's new outdoor cross-trainer gives old rubber a second chance. Available this spring, Escape Lo's outsoles are made of up to 20 percent recycled rubber. For now, the company recycles its rejected soles and rubber left over from the production process. When Nike has the know-how, it will grind up the whole shoe for outsole material for new athletic shoes. Tests show the newfangled sole doesn't reduce shoe performance. Best of all, leftover rubber doesn't end up in a landfill. Escape Lo (about $75) is sold at Foot Locker stores in Livonia, Troy, Birmingham and Southfield and at Twelve Oaks Mall, Novi.

Havens: Music with honesty

Don't look for a musical version of the tale of "The Hobbit" coming from this band, even though its name shows up in the book. The Grey Havens offer their music with feeling. As they see it, if it's not worth playing, why play it?

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

While The Grey Havens are talking seriously about their music, vocalist/lyricist Dennis Densmore is sitting in a chair huddling mischievously.

Suddenly, the Mount Clemens resident bursts his fist forward revealing a goofy face drawn on it.

"I'm tellin' you, you can't get ideas out of his head, whether it be a song or . . . whatever," bassist Steve Joachim said over the band's laughter.

Songs are usually what Densmore is cooking up. It's typical of the 23-year-old to talk about a handful of new songs a week or to spew out lyrical ideas on the spot. Most of the songs are put on the back burner, however, as drummer Ken Crego tries to keep the band focused on its immediate goal.

"I know I (frustrate) everybody in this band. I'm like, 'Look, good idea, let's put it on hold. Let's do this. We made a plan, let's stick by it this time,'" Crego explained.

STREET BEATS

Veterans of many small clubs throughout the Detroit area, The Grey Havens are shooting to play bigger venues. The group will get a step closer when they play St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit Saturday, April 3, with the Ferndale-based rockabilly band The Del-Kats. The Grey Havens are expected to showcase a few new tunes which will be on an EP the quartet will begin recording in mid-April. The songs will share a common thread with its older efforts — honesty.

Honest effort

"Everything we play, there's a lot of feeling in it. If it doesn't feel right, why play it?" said Crego of Fraser.

Densmore elaborated: "We're all really honest and nice guys. What you see is what you get."

Honesty is a quality that the band members embrace in their friendships. It's only natural for them to expect it from their fans and musical peers — no matter how it may hurt.

"They're paying to see us and we have to take that into consideration. It's not like, 'Yeah right, you don't know what you're talking about you don't play an instrument,'" Crego said.

The Grey Havens formed after playing in other bands with a myriad of influences. Crego comes from a rock background; rhythm guitarist Kevin Wilson prefers AC/DC-type rock; and bassist Joachim likes Rush.

Wilson, seemingly the odd man out influence-wise, doesn't feel he's compromising his beliefs by playing with The Grey Havens.

"This is the alternative type of music that I like," he said. "When I listen to it, it's just something (you listen to when) you're driving around on a Sunday at midnight. It's moody and melodic. The old U2 kind of style. That's the best way I can describe it."

Densmore is also heavily influenced by U2. He's played U2 covers in the past. While those may be gone, the influence remains within Densmore's guitar stylings — especially with the harmonics. But all those backgrounds roll into one unique rock sound.

'Just flows'

"When it (all the influences) meshes together, it comes out alternative . . . Just the way Dennis plays guitar. He does a little picking, his voice, . . . Everybody's on a different side of the fence," Crego said. "When we jump to one side (and see) what we can come up with, it just flows."

"We're all open minded. Four guys, different influences, but we all fit."

The band members admit, however, that the humble Densmore is the backbone of the group.

"Your guys could be the best songwriters in the world, (but) your singer is what makes it. He has the distinct voice . . . he's our key to success," Crego said.

Unfortunately, part of that success is spawned from the emotional rollercoaster a few of the band members have endured during the last few years. Sometimes Densmore finds it hard to sing about.

"There's a lot of things that I'd like to forget but I can't because it was a part of my life. I'm not gonna write about his girlfriend (pointing to Crego) or something. That's most of what it's about," Densmore explained.

He recently tried turning the tables, however, to write a song about the recent deaths of Crego's uncle and father. Densmore felt he couldn't convey Crego's feelings accurately though.

"If I could explain it to him (Densmore) then he could probably write about it. The song wouldn't be from my heart, it would be from his. Everybody in their life has disappointments. It's good that we play instruments and we can write about it. And people can relate to it," Crego explained.

Although emotionally difficult at times, music to Densmore is therapeutic and personally satisfying, however — more so than human beings sometimes.

"Music is the only woman that understands me," Densmore said with a snicker.

Like The Grey Haven in the tale "The Hobbit," the four members feel the band is the bright spot in their lives.

"There's a lot of garbage out there — a ton of it. I like to think of us as . . . not being swayed any way because, oh, this is what's popular now. We stick to what we like and what we've been doing it since," Joachim said.

The Grey Havens open for The Del-Kats at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Saturday, April 3. Doors open at 9 p.m. Tickets are $5. Call 961-MELT for more information.

Rage: Ex-rebels turn angst into music

In a Rage: Not quite, but Tom Morello (from left), guitarist, Timmy C., bassist, Brad Wilk, drummer, and Zack De La Rocha, vocalist, are Rage Against the Machine.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Former teen rebels themselves, Rage Against the Machine members have kind of become the spokesmen for their fans' boiling angst. They've also become students of it by observing the audience's reaction to their music.

"I thought the politics would be very alienating," guitarist Tom Morello said about his group's lyrics. "I figured they might get off on the (guitar) riff, the intensity of the band. (But) they would go, 'shut up.'"

But, Morello found, "the opposite is the case."

"There's a real deep dissatisfaction among young people in this country. People want a change. There's a realization that just changing from the Republican to the Democratic party is really no change . . . If there's going to be a real substantive change, it's gonna have to come from below."

The 1986 Harvard University graduate finds this rage especially prevalent in the Midwest.

"I grew up near Chicago; there's this certain angst among young people there that is different (from elsewhere)," he said. "There's different kinds of anger, angst and alienation among young people — urban and suburban — which is unique. Our music speaks to it."

That feeling is in Morello's blood — literally. His father was a member of the Mau Mau guerilla army which freed Kenya from British colonial rule. His mother is a founder of Parents for Rock & Rap, an anti-censorship organization.

This, in turn, framed his political thoughts as a child. Growing up in Libertyville, Ill., while other children were idolizing football stars "Joe Namath and Larry Czonka," he said, he was admiring Malcolm X.

'Yesterday' remade; 'Lawyers' loses

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Movie remakes rarely sparkle with originality. "Born Yesterday," an updating of Garson Kanin's play and 1950 film, might as well have been cranked out by robots.

Melanie Griffith holds her own as Billie Dawn, former Las Vegas showgirl on the arm of Harry, a millionaire scrap dealer (here John Goodman). Beautiful but far from brainy, Billie is best seen and not heard in social situations. Aside from her obvious assets, Billie also provides an important business service. She blindly signs anything placed in front of her, getting her beefy boyfriend off the hook in case his shady business dealings with senators are ever exposed.

When Billie ends up on a Washington radio show, Harry decides she needs some smartening up. He hires a cynical newspaper reporter (is there any other kind in the movies?) named Paul (Don Johnson) to give Billie enough information to get her through a dinner party.

Johnson dons tortoise-shell to make himself appear bookish, but it still doesn't make him much of an actor (William Holden played the role in 1950). Goodman, as usual, plays his part with the perfect blend of both menace and good humor and Griffith can often be a delight in roles like this and "Working Girl."

MOVIES

Some of the scenes in the admittedly dated "Born Yesterday" script remain quite funny, more a testament to Garson Kanin's original than anything done by director Luis Mandoki and screenwriter Douglas McGrath. A favorite bit still finds Billie good naturedly whipping Harry in gin rummy.

There's something frightening about the way Mandoki and company (in this case the Disney production arm called Hollywood Pictures) mess around with movies past. "Born Yesterday" joins recent Hollywood Pictures releases such as "Swing Kids" and "The Distinguished Gentleman" as pre-fab comedies that only remind you how great their predecessors were.

Like Linda Rondstadt or Barry Manilow recording your favorite Duke Ellington song, Hollywood Pictures creates the movies' equivalent to musak.

"Let's Kill all the Lawyers" has a catchy title, but the locally produced feature has little else going for it. Opening at the Star John R on Friday, it has competent performances in an almost incomprehensible one-joke script.

Rick Frederick, a familiar face on the University of Detroit and Attic stages, plays aspiring lawyer Foster Merkul. He learns the legal ropes during an internship with shameless shyster Junior Rawley (James Vezina) and realizes maybe he doesn't want to join the rat race after all.

In the movie's heavy-handed plot device (inspired by a quote from Shakespeare no less), lawyers begin to disappear, dragged away in burlap sacks and ground into fertilizer. Merkul, meanwhile, fantasizes about a beautiful woman named Satori (Michelle de Vuone) who, not too surprisingly, is responsible for the murders.

Along the way, you'll spot familiar Detroit landmarks like the Ren Cen, downtown Birmingham, and Liberty Street in Ann Arbor, along with local news anchors Cynthia Canty and Rich Fisher. The local recognition is always fun.

Frederick and Vezina (not to mention the other acting talent mined from Detroit-area stages) are comfortable with the camera and easy to watch. Hopefully they'll move onto better productions.

Writer/director/co-producer Ron Senkowski hasn't mastered the painful process of one shot flowing into another, making the movie (especially in the numerous dream sequences) almost impossible to follow. Edited into a 20-minute short, this might really be something.

Most local reviewers will be kind to this movie, not wanting to stifle film production in the city. So sue me for telling it like it is: "Let's Kill all the Lawyers" is rarely clever or funny. In fact, at times it's sheer torture.

Barbara, weren't you a bit quick to push therapy?

Dear Readers:

STREET SENSE

BARBARA SCHIFF

The following voice mail message refers to a letter written by someone "who cares," asking for advice for a friend. The writer's understanding is that her friend is allowing her family to needlessly take advantage of her. My response was that the family is dysfunctional and that her friend's hope is psychotherapy, which would allow her to separate and individuate.

Barbara:

I didn't like your response to the article on Feb. 22. It is very daring of you to tell the writer that her friend's family is dysfunctional and that her friend needs help. How could you be 100-percent sure and say something like that right off the bat without knowing the family, and especially when it was only the friend that wrote? She may not see things the way her friend does.

For some reason or another, we mothers do go through a lot of this on a daily basis. Mothers do nose in to others' business where they shouldn't be, and if the daughter doesn't take the advice, we get angry. Then you have to tell the mother where she belongs and that this is your life. The whole thing can even backfire. This lady could have been the only daughter. There's just no telling.

It is tacky to tell her friend that she needs treatment when you have never heard from the person going through it herself. You recommended treatment for someone without their input.

Dear voice mail messenger:

Thank you for your response to the article. I am in complete agreement with you that it is daring to tell the writer that her friend's family is dysfunctional and that her friend needs treatment.

I agree that I cannot be 100-percent sure and apologize in that my need to be helpful led to a conclusion that may not be accurate. I think that you will agree that there might be a kernel of truth or more in my response and that it could be helpful to the writer of the letter.

If such responses to letter are helpful to the writers, I am willing to put my neck on the block and rightfully have it chopped off by a thinking person like you.

Barbara

Voice mail message:

My name is Denise and I have a suggestion for "Sad at Christmas." Create your own traditions. That's what I did to get over my melancholy at Christmas. Don't depend on other people to make your holiday happy. Make your holiday happy for yourself by yourself.

Dear Denise:

What you said is so pertinent that I will extend it to every day of the year. The ability to know how to make oneself happy is important every day of the year and at Christmas.

Barbara

Voice mail message:

My name is Judy and I am the 43-year-old mother of two daughters. I want to compliment you on the "Statistics are not always right" column. It is right on target. As far as I am concerned, they should move you to the front page. You are an accurate media writer. Thank you for a well-written article.

Dear Judy:

Thank you. This is one of the nicest presents I have ever received.

'Vanishing' is chilling Dutch import

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

On a sunny day, a young couple drives along laughing and playing word games. With bicycles on the roof, they are going on vacation. The mood shifts abruptly when they enter a mountain tunnel and run out of gas. The couple argues and the man walks off through the unlighted tunnel leaving the woman crying in the car.

The couple makes up, stopping at a bustling rest area where the manswears he won't abandon her ever again. It's a promise that will come back to haunt the young man in the 1991 Dutch film "The Vanishing." The young woman goes across the parking lot to make a purchase and never comes back.

The young man starts his increasingly frantic search for his girlfriend, showing a snapshot and trying to convince someone that she is missing. A traditional thriller would follow the young man's search for his girlfriend or possibly shift to the girlfriend's perspective. "The Vanishing" is a different sort of film and instead shifts its attention to a man who we'd seen earlier hanging around the concession area.

We've seen the man, played by Bernard-Pierre Donnadieu, in his car putting a phony cast on his arm and covering a cloth with chloroform. He's experimented with himself as the guinea pig to see how long the effects last and calculating how far he could drive during that time.

This is a family man, a college professor, a self-described sociopath. Donnadieu's character seems to be a regular guy with apparently above average intelligence. He comments that his abnormality is such that those closest to him don't notice it.

His calm, studious exterior doesn't change whether he is contriving ways to lure victims into his car or chatting with his family. It's indescribably creepy to watch him interact with his wife and daughters or converse with a co-worker, as his comments take on a deeper meaning in light of his secret life.

The man spots a poster on the street seeking information about the missing woman and we learn three years have passed. Her boyfriend, played by Gene Bervoets, is still looking for information. He has no illusions or hopes that she might still be alive. He is obsessed with with the idea of finding out what happened to her. It's a fixation which affects his current relationships and his entire life.

The boyfriend has been receiving postcards, apparently from his girlfriend's abductor, instructing him to appear at meetings. After a couple fruitless meetings, the police conclude the postcards are a hoax but the boyfriend persists leading to a confrontation.

This is an extremely well done, thought-provoking film. The scariest part is the apparently reasonable way the abductor views his actions and the randomness with which he struck.

"The Vanishing" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call LeAnne Rogers at 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Rage from page 5B

"Kids wanted to be a fireman or doctor or football player; I wanted to be a revolutionary," he said. "That was sort of my ambition. Then I was cursed with being a guitar player and that became my obsession."

"In this band with the help of the other like-minded individuals, it's been sort of a fusing of the two worlds."

The fusion has proven successful. Before Rage released its self-titled debut album, the group sold more than 5,000 copies of its 12-song demo at its live shows and through its fan club. The group — which also consists of vocalist Zack de la Rocha, bassist Timmy C. and drummer Brad Wilk — also opened for Body Count, Public Enemy, Pearl Jam and Perry Farrell's Porno for Pyros.

"Kids wanted to be a fireman or doctor or football player; I wanted to be a revolutionary. That was sort of my ambition. Then I was cursed with being a guitar player and that became my obsession."

Tom Morello
Rage Against the Machine

Rage's music, a fierce meld of punk-inspired hard rock and politically charged rap, is a testimony to its musical abilities. The group used no samples, keyboards or synthesizers in the making of the album.

"All the noises you hear on the record are created by guitar, bass and vocals," Morello said.

They even carry that over into live shows.

"We play everything live; every squawk and sheet metal noise on there is reproduced live."

Rage Against the Machine performs with House of Pain and Wool at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Friday, April 2. Tickets are $10.50. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. Call 961-5450 for more information.

Boxes, Tubs And Baskets

Whether you have a green thumb or simply want to brighten up a small piece of your yard, now is the time to act.

With just a little preparation you can create patterns of color and foliage using window boxes, tubs and hanging baskets.

The simple yet clever trick is to group plants of different heights—all plants to give display depth and shorter ones to hide any bare compost. Trailing plants can cascade down the sides.

Many people create miniature herb gardens in tubs and containers, which are pleasurable to look at and provide a supply of fresh herbs.

Of course, cramming plants into compact spaces requires good preparation followed by good care because they will be competing for water and nutrients.

Choose a rich compost that will hold moisture or one that is specifically for container growing.

If you are using tubs, punch out or clear drain holes and lay broken pieces of pots over the holes. This will prevent soil from spilling through but will allow water to escape.

Top these with at least an inch of coarse material such as sand, shingle or gravel to further enhance drainage and prevent water gathering and rotting your container.

Fill and firm down a layer of compost to within three to four inches of the rim before planting, starting with the larger specimen-type plants before filling in the edges with smaller varieties.

Firm the plants in place as you go, using fresh compost to build up around them so the rim ends will be an inch above the soil when finished.

Hanging baskets need different treatment to prevent them from drying out when above ground level. Line the baskets with moss or a black polyethylene sheet with holes cut for drainage.

Be sure to keep a close eye on the soil moisture in your containers and especially hanging baskets. Each should receive adequate moisture—it only takes a few hours on hot summer days to ruin your hard work.

Uninvited Guests

The carpenter ant is at best a nuisance and an eyesore as it wanders through kitchens and other rooms in search of food. At worst, it is a wood-excavating machine determined to transform a beloved home into Swiss cheese.

Carpenter ants can be found virtually in every state. However, they are a bigger problem in the Northeast and Pacific Northwest. In the Pacific Northwest, carpenter ant damage surpasses termite damage.

In the spring, carpenter ants send out large swarms of winged adults for reproduction. If there is a nest already inside the home, swarms of winged insects often are seen trying to escape through a window. This is usually the homeowners' first clue that there is a problem.

Other telltale signs, according to the National Pest Control Association, are piles of wood splinters and large black ants in and around the house. Also, if it's quiet, you might hear these carpenter ants inside the walls.

Pavement Ants Like Indoor Living

If the pavement ant would only live up to its name and stay beneath the pavement, millions of homeowners would be far happier.

Unfortunately, pavement ants—slow-moving dark brown or black ants about an eighth of an inch long—are busy and aggressive seekers of food. They forge their way indoors, combing kitchen floors and cupboards for crumbs.

And once indoors, the ants are tempted to stay there, forsaking pavement life for the cozy year-round warmth beneath floors and inside partition walls. They're also nearer to a steady food supply.

The experts at the National Pest Control Association offer the following tips:

- Store food in airtight glass or plastic containers.
- Wipe up food spills immediately; keep counters, floors and cabinets clean.
- Vacuum frequently.
- Keep garbage cans tightly covered.
- Seal cracks and crevices; caulk openings around pipes, fixtures and cabinetry.

For a booklet on Uninvited Guests, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, legal-size envelope to National Pest Control Association, 8100 Oak St., Dunn Loring, VA 22027.

New Spuds Fresh From Your Own Patch

Warmth begins to seep into the winter soil during March and April, and it's a great time to start early potato planting.

When choosing a location for planting, the only concern is avoiding soils with high lime content. Ideally, you should also have done some soil preparation last fall by digging and working in organic compost.

If you haven't started preparation, you should concentrate on turning over the first few inches before adding the compost.

Choose seed potatoes that are guaranteed disease-free and start early varieties by allowing them to sprout in trays stored in cool, light and frost-free conditions.

After sprouting, plant the tubers four to five inches deep and a foot apart. Be sure to place the rows about two feet apart.

Once planted, protect the tubers from frost by building up straw around the young shoots. This also protects the growing plants from weeds.

Start harvesting the tubers as soon as they are big enough to eat. Once dried for a few hours and carefully stored, they will last a long time.

Answers To Most Frequent Exterior Paint Questions

(NU)—Exterior painting is one of the most popular do-it-yourself projects today. To take the guesswork out of this home improvement project, the experts from Dutch Boy Paints offer these answers to the most frequently asked questions about exterior painting:

- Q: What is the square-foot-per-gallon ratio?
A: On a smooth surface, 350 to 400 square feet per gallon should be obtained. Use less paint on textured or porous surfaces.
- Q: Can aluminum or vinyl siding be painted?
A: Both aluminum and vinyl siding can be painted with a good-quality exterior latex paint. Dutch Boy recommends thorough surface preparation to remove chalking and other surface imperfections.
- Q: Why can't I use house and trim paint on my deck?
A: House and trim paint is not designed to withstand traffic or standing water. To paint an interior or exterior horizontal surface, an interior/exterior porch and floor enamel such as Dutch Boy Porch and Floor Enamel is recommended.
- Q: Which is better—oil or latex paint?
A: A good-quality latex topcoat will be more durable in most situations and last longer than an oil-based paint. Acrylic latex tends to retain its color and sheen longer. It is also more tolerant of surface expansion.

1,000 Tips Make Spring Clean-Up, Fix-Up Easier

(NU)—There's a way to keep a shower clean without spending hours scrubbing. Just spend about 10 seconds after each shower wiping off doors and walls with a squeegee.

Saturdays don't have to be reserved for housecleaning. Cleaning during the commercial breaks on television or while talking on the telephone saves weekends for more enjoyable pastimes.

And when only a coat of paint will make walls look clean and sparkling again, there's no need to be overwhelmed. Try spacing out exterior painting jobs as do the Swedish, who commonly paint one side of their houses each year.

Harried Americans trying to find time for spring cleaning and home maintenance this year can get some much-needed assistance. Don Aslett, author of 500 Terrific Ideas for Cleaning Everything, and Jack Maguire, author of 500 Terrific Ideas for Home Maintenance and Repair, offer these tips and 997 more time-, energy- and money-saving suggestions.

Sure-Fire Solutions

Aslett, founder and president of a national cleaning company, is the bestselling author of Is There Life After Housework? and Clutter's Last Stand.

500 Terrific Ideas for Cleaning Everything is full of sure-fire solutions for every household dirt problem from dust bunnies to dirty stuffed animals.

By adding clever, preventative cleaning strategies and detailed instructions for long-term home care, Aslett's book goes well beyond a simple how-to cleaning manual.

For example, he suggests ways to unclutter kitchens, closets and bathrooms, and advises specific cleaning products to buy. He recommends buying rough-surfaced appliances because they are easier to clean, and suggests customers ascertain how easy it will be to clean particular types of carpet, tile or vinyl flooring before buying.

For Experts, Novices

Maguire, an expert in his field, has written 16 books on remodeling and home repairs and is a frequent contributor to Decorating and Remodeling magazine.

Emphasizing the practical, 500 Terrific Ideas for Home Maintenance and Repair suggests how to select and maintain tools and provides painting and wallpapering tips for both experts and novices. Maguire also advises on home-care jobs as simple as caulking and as challenging as refinishing walls and furniture.

Some of the energy conservation and money-saving ideas included in his book are: setting water heaters at 120 degrees rather than the typical 140 degrees to save money on monthly energy bills; taking showers instead of baths; washing clothes in cool water; insulating hot water pipes; keeping storm windows pulled down in the summer to help control air conditioning needs; and installing a water heater timer that will shut off the heater at night and turn it on before morning showers begin.

And forget about pulling the tub drain immediately after bathing in the winter. Maguire says letting hot water stay in the tub until it cools helps keep the bathroom warm and humidified during the coldest, driest months.

Slow or inaccurate readers can be helped with Special program

LIVONIA-Try reading the following sentence. (Hint: the b's, d's, p's, and q's are interchanged and the spaces between the words are altered.)
ob y ou hav etroup lere ading thes esimd lew orbs?

Was it hard for you to read the previous sentence (do you have trouble reading these simple words)? Unfortunately, many children find it just as hard reading normal text.

Children with learning problems struggle with everyday tasks such as reading, concentrating, and remembering because their basic learning skills are not automatic.

We all learn to read on a conscious level. We start by having to think about the sound a letter makes. Next we learn to blend sounds to form words. And then we learn the meanings of these words. Each skill requires a conscious effort, and reading cannot become automatic (subconscious) until these skills are established. And if reading is not automatic, children have to work especially hard to get information in, so their comprehension and understanding suffer.

According to Dr. John Jacobi, a locally known expert on vision and learning, having 20/20 eyesight means that a child can see clearly, but does not mean that the child can process or use what he or she sees. There could be a visual processing problem that affects the child's ability to learn.

Symptoms of a visual processing problem include:

- letter reversals
- avoidance of reading
- poor eye-hand coordination

- lack of concentration
- inability to sit still
- slow work
- careless errors
- troubles copying

Children who struggle with learning have even more at stake than just slow and choppy reading. Also at risk may be their self-esteem behavior, success in school, and even future employment options.

The Vision Improvement Program (VIP) can help the child place basic learning and visual processing skills into the subconscious level where they belong. Then the child will not put his or her energy into processing the material, but into understanding it.

VIP was developed by a team of visual, psychological, and educational professionals. The program attacks the causes of learning problems.

The 10-week program produces dramatic results, with an average improvement of 3.1 years in the child's ability to comprehend, stay on task, work faster, and handle more complex tasks. Outstanding results are the norm because it is an intense, one-on-one program with a highly trained therapist who specializes the program to meet each child's specific learning needs.

To identify a child who could benefit from this program, a comprehensive screening consisting of 18 different tests is provided without charge to children ages 6 to 15. If the results reveal a problem processing visual information, the program can begin immediately to help the child head toward a more successful future and a better self-esteem.

To help a child who has a problem learning, call Suburban Optometric at 525-8170 to schedule his or her free screening.

Vardar national champion

The Vardar under-14 boys soccer team won the national indoor championship March 12 in Atlanta, Ga.

Vardar advanced to the quarterfinals with wins over Datagraphic Dynamo (6-2), Gino Schiraldi Pizza (3-1) and a forfeit by Campioni. Vardar eliminated defending champion Udinese of Kansas City in the quarterfinal game.

In the semifinal, Vardar defeated Post 38 Spirit of Baltimore 9-2 and played a near-perfect game in the final to beat the Blitz Magic of Syracuse 7-3.

Two Vardar players made the all-tournament team: Tony Mouchoulis and Chris Curry, who was named the most valuable player in the tournament. Mouchoulis also received an award for scoring the most tournament goals.

Varga weighing decision

Redford Catholic Central graduate Chad Varga said he is uncertain about returning to the University of Richmond basketball program after being red-shirted his freshman year with a stress fracture in his foot.

Richmond coach Dick Tarrant, one of the primary reasons Varga signed early with the Spiders during his senior year at CC, announced his retirement last month. Tarrant had a 239-126 career record in 12 years at Richmond, guiding the Spiders to five NCAA Tournament berths and four trips to the NIT.

The Spiders failed to get a post-season bid with a 15-12 record this year. Richmond hopes to name a successor before the Final Four starts, Sports Information Director Matt Smith said.

"I was a little disappointed (when Tarrant retired)," said Varga, a 6-foot-6, 217-pound guard/forward. "He was one of the main reasons I came here. He knew the game and was successful."

Varga will challenge for a starting spot next season if he opts to return. He's considering transferring to Michigan, Florida State, Virginia, Rhode Island or Marquette. Varga would have to sit out next year if he transfers and then have three years of eligibility remaining.

At Richmond, Varga has four years of eligibility left. Varga played well in a Virginia summer league, that included Duke's Bobby Hurley, prior to his freshman year.

"It might be better playing three years somewhere else instead of four here," Varga said.

Varga sprained his right ankle the first day of practice last fall and after returning, developed a stress fracture in his left foot. Varga said doctors told him he got the stress fracture from overworking.

"I was running four miles after practices, doing extra shooting drills," he said. "The doctors said the feet are like a coat hanger. If you keep bending it, it's going to break. It was serious at the time but nothing long term."

Varga, who got a 3.67 grade point average his first term, said he has worked on his three-point shooting and defense.

"Granted, I can jump, but if I have a jump shot, too, it makes me a lot better player," he said. "No matter where I'm going — if I'm playing in the intramural gym — I'm playing hard. I don't want anyone scoring on me."

College hoops, hockey

Sophomore Susie Atchinson of Plymouth received the University of Notre Dame women's basketball teams' positive mental attitude award.

Atchinson, who played at Farmington Hills Mercy High School, was a first-year player who appeared in 12 games for the Fighting Irish. She made two three-point field goals and scored seven points in a game against Duquesne.

Notre Dame was 15-12 overall and 11-5 in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

Dave Green of Farmington Hills plays for the Clarkson University hockey team, which won the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament.

The Golden Knights were one of 12 teams selected for the NCAA Division I tournament for the fourth consecutive year. Clarkson was 20-9-5 overall going into a quarterfinal game Friday against Minnesota in Worcester, Mass.

Ladbroke cancels twice

Ladbroke DRC canceled its thoroughbred racing programs Wednesday and Thursday, March 24-25 because of unsafe conditions. The track surface, which absorbed considerable amounts of moisture because of rain and snow during recent weeks, worsened by sudden warmer temperatures and subsequent thaw.

Ladbroke DRC was also forced to cancel racing on Sunday, March 14 because of cold temperatures and high winds.

Officials are uncertain if or when any of the missed dates will be made up.

Rocks regroup for '93 campaign

Plymouth Salem girls soccer coach Ken Johnson juggled his lineup to shore up the defense, and the Rocks hope they have put together another quality team. Salem figures to be a Western Lakes Activities Association and district tournament contender again.

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Senior Kris Goff was Plymouth Salem's leading scorer and a first-team, all-area midfielder in girls soccer.

So why is coach Ken Johnson moving someone who is arguably his best player to defense this year?

Therein lies the answer. Johnson needs Koff there and, secondly, can afford to do it with a program that never lacks for talent.

"We have a good solid defense, probably the best one we've ever had," said Johnson, who begins his 12th season with a 126-43-25 career record. "The key position is sweeper, to control everything, and I felt we needed her experience."

Johnson had to rebuild the defense after losing two starters to graduation (Gwen Gibbish and Lisa Ferguson) and another to injury (Shelby Carey).

Carey, who made the all-area second team, missed part of last season with a knee injury and required surgery after re-injuring it in October. She will try to pass a physical so she can be on the tournament roster and be eligible for a medal should Salem make a post-season run, Johnson said.

"She will be missed because she's a quality player, but we'll slide people around and still be good," he added.

Thus, Johnson had to find some replacements on defense and decided to make it as strong as he could to give added support to junior goalkeeper Mesha Chicon.

Senior Michelle Cronan, who has signed to play soccer for George Mason University, begins her third year as a starting fullback. With her in the lineup the last two seasons, Salem has allowed only 21 goals in 35 games and had 24 shutouts, Johnson said.

Johnson also has moved junior Mackenzie Emmett from midfield to stopper, a position she played last year when Carey was hurt. Sophomore and returning varsity player Julie McGurrian becomes the only first-year regular on defense.

The Rocks, who were 10-4-2, also have adopted a new defensive philosophy and will play what Johnson calls an attacking defense. The defenders have the freedom to push up, especially Goff, who led Salem with 14 goals and six assists.

"Goff will be like (former Livonia Stevenson boys all-stater) Travis Roy," Johnson said. "She has the green light to go forward whenever the opportunity arises. She's such a talented player she'll react to whatever is needed."

Johnson thought he could afford to move Goff, Emmett and sophomore forward Kelly Lukasik from the midfield and still institute a 4-4-2 alignment because of the ability among returning and first-year halfbacks.

Sophomore Sue Parrish is the lone returning starter in the midfield. Senior Charu Sinha, who had knee surgery and missed all of last year, and returning sophomore Jenny Bazzarelli assume full-time roles.

The other starter will probably be one of two freshman phenoms. Johnson already compares Marie Hoff to former Salem all-stater Jill Estey. He knew Hoff was in the Plymouth-Canton system but not Stacey DeLong, who moved into the district from Redford.

"I saw 10 minutes of her in an indoor game and that was enough," Johnson said. Both freshmen are Olympic Development Players, and both are tall with good coordination and skills.

The Rocks also return junior midfielder Alexis Marinos, and juniors Julie Pond and Jaimie Krueger join the varsity from the JV. Additional defenders are sophomores Jodee Wilsher, who returns to the varsity, and former JV player Wendy Graves.

Kris Goff Salem senior

By sending a defender up and using four halfbacks, the Rocks can maintain numerical strength in the midfield and use more switches and give-and-go plays. "And we won't have three forwards up there all waiting for the ball," Johnson added.

Division outlooks familiar

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

The Hatfields and the McCoy's of girls soccer will be at it once again this spring in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

In fact, some things never change. The Western Division of the WLAA figures to be a scrap between defending champion Plymouth Canton, Northville, and Livonia Churchill.

Meanwhile, Lakes Division champion Livonia Stevenson, hard-hit by graduation losses, will be hard-pressed to fend off perennial state power Plymouth Salem.

Canton lost four starters off last year's 18-1-2 team which reached the state Class A championship game before losing to Rochester Adams, 1-0.

The Chiefs, coached by Don Smith, boast 14 returnees including All-Area goalie Jori Welchans and All-Area forward Leah Hutko.

Churchill (8-7-2), led by All-Area junior midfielder Aimee Cousino, came on strong at the end of last season and should be improved after a 1-5-2 start.

The Chargers have more speed and a solid corps of sophomore defenders. "The year before we had a huge turnover; we lost eight seniors," Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "Last year, with the young kids, it took a long time to adjust. This year

Canton has talent to challenge Salem

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton has loads of talent on its girls track team, but do the Chiefs have enough to outduel rival Plymouth Salem late in the season?

The Chiefs are undoubtedly one of the best teams in Observerland, but they were one place behind the Rocks in each of the big meets last year.

Salem, which also remains strong, won the Western Lakes Activities Association title with 170 points over Canton (137) and Livonia Stevenson (103). Ann Arbor Pioneer, Salem and the Chiefs finished in that order at the regional meet.

"As always our No. 1 goal is to win the division championship, and we should be on the right track to do that," Canton coach George Przygodski said.

"Salem has to be the clear favorite to repeat as (league) champion, but we're not going to concede anything at this point. We're going to do everything we can to be right there with them."

The Chiefs, who have 35 returning athletes, are solid in every area. Canton has two or more quality performers in the four categories; field events, hurdles, sprints and distance races.

"This is a very seasoned team," Przygodski said. "We have a lot of good, young kids, but they're going to have a hard time breaking into this lineup."

"Looking at our team from top to bottom, it might be the most talented group of athletes we've had."

The Chiefs are led by seniors Stephanie Gray and Selena Bastine, junior Ndu Okwumabua, sophomores Olive Ikei and Becky Bockstanz and senior Kathy Koshizawa in the field events.

Gray, who is going to Western Michigan University to play basketball, is the defending WLAA high jump champion (5-2) and was first-team all-area. Okwumabua, who was fifth in the state, and Ikei made it one of Canton's strongest events.

The Chiefs have an outstanding thrower in Bastine. In the discus, she was second in the WLAA and third in the regional, and she was fifth in the league in the shot put. Her best throws were 115-7 and 35-3.

Gray is a quality thrower in both events, and junior Becky Baigre will help in the discus. Gray had season bests of 34-10 and 91-2. Bockstanz (15-4) and Koshizawa (15-1) are the top long jumpers, and freshman Brooke Larson has potential.

"Once again, the field events are going to be one of our strong areas," Przygodski said. "We like to jump out quick with strong field events and win the 3,200-meter relay, and I'm sure we're going to go back to that strategy this year."

The Chiefs return all of their hurdlers, including the one-two combination of seniors Karina Kilpelainen and Angela Fountain.

Kilpelainen was second in the 100 and 300 races at the WLAA meet. Her best times were 15.9 and 47.5. Fountain, who was fourth in the 100 hurdles, ran 16.0 and 49.6. Juniors Erin Shriber and Alison Haremakei will run the 100 and 300, respectively.

"Our hurdlers have spent a lot of time learning the technique, and I don't know of anybody who has two better," Przygodski said.

Despite losing two attackers, Mandy Drummond (five/five) and Erin Bagozi (three/five), to graduation Salem returns much of its offense.

Senior forward Caryn Tatterton was just behind Goff with 13 goals and six assists, and Lukaik tallied five and nine, respectively. Tatterton was a welcome addition and pleasant surprise last season after being away from soccer for three years while she played softball.

Chicon had little goalkeeping experience when she was forced into action last season when former Salem all-stater Jenny Emmett was unable to continue in her senior year while she awaited a bone marrow transplant.

Chicon, who had six shutouts, has a full season behind her and is being tutored by Emmett. Junior backup Mandy Blumberg brings two years of JV experience to the varsity.

"She has the heart to tackle it again," Johnson said, adding Chicon played goalie last fall with her youth team. "She's a bona fide goalie now."

The Rocks, who won district titles in 1987 and 1991, expect to challenge for the Western Lakes Activities Association and district titles.

"We look for good things to happen," Johnson said. "I've coached a long time now and words don't win games. If we get a few breaks, we could go a long way. We could be up there as one of the (Salem) best, but we have to prove it."

should not take as long for us to get going.

"We hope to pick up where we left off. We played well at the end of last year and came together as a unit."

O'Shea knows his club will have to perform well early.

The Chargers take on Northville, which features several Olympic Development players, Wednesday, April 7 at home, in an early season showdown.

"Canton is going to be good in our division, but Northville has a lot of good, young talent," O'Shea said.

On the Lakes side, Stevenson (15-3-2) is reloading after graduating first-team All-Area players Ragen Coyne (Notre Dame) and Shannon Wilkinson (Michigan State).

First-team All-Area defender Patty Diamond, headed for Florida State on a volleyball scholarship, did not return, along with junior scoring threat Mo Drabicki (opted for the golf team).

"This league is still a tossup; anything can happen," Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey said. "It's pretty much the same. Canton is strong. They really didn't lose anybody."

Salem, 10-4-2 overall a year ago, should be the Lakes favorite.

The Rocks return 12 players, but lost second-team All-Area defender Shelby Carey to a knee injury.

Kris Goff, a first-team All-Area senior midfielder, is the team's top returnee.

Salem coach Ken Johnson also is high on freshman defender Marie Hoff, who reminds some of former Salem all-stater Jill Estey.

Farmington, another Lakes Division contender, lost All-Area forward Sue Gibson (MSU), forward Kim Popyk, and defender Julie Dugan to graduation.

The Falcons, however, return junior midfielder Michelle Lorenz, a second-team All-Area pick.

Livonia Ladywood, meanwhile, should challenge for the Catholic League title. Defending champion Farmington Hills Mercy, led by senior defender Beth Ziobro, will also be in the race once again.

The Blazers, meanwhile, lost only two players to graduation and return nine starters, including senior goalie Liz Gunn (second team All-Area).

Ladywood went 1-0-1 in two meetings last season with Mercy.

"We were the only team to beat them (Mercy) in our league last year," Ladywood coach Ron Predmesky said. "We have a good mix of players returning."

As for Livonia Franklin (8-12), the Patriots will miss All-Area first-teamer Patty Shea (University of Dayton).

Lenay Truchan, who scored four goals in three games before going down with an injury, is the team's top returnee.

SOCCER

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

Head coach: Nick O'Shea, seventh season. Last year's overall record: 8-7-2. League affiliation: Western Lakes (Western Division).

Notable losses to graduation: Dana Posoki (second-team All-Area midfielder); Melina Garrett, Carol Jackson and Shelly Hamby.

Promising newcomers: Maria Spaccarotella, freshman forward; Karri Verardi, freshman midfielder.

O'Shea's '93 outlook: "We've got some speed and we're faster than we have been in the past. We expect to score more goals with the players we have."

"The key for us to doing well this year is if our goalies step up and perform."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Head coach: Joe Galea, fourth season. Last year's overall record: 8-12. League affiliation: Western Lakes (Western Division).

Notable losses to graduation: Patty Shea (first-team All-Area midfielder); Kim Rodriguez, Tiffany Graves, Becky Monstur, Janis Ouellette and Carla Strugala.

Leading returnees: Lenay Truchan, junior midfielder; Lesley McDougall, junior midfielder; Angie Gonzalez, junior defender; Erin Craig, junior forward.

Galea's '93 outlook: "This is a rebuilding year. We'll just try to do our best and take it from there. Our schedule is very tough."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD

Head coach: Ron Predmesky, second year. Last year's overall record: 8-4-4. League affiliation: Catholic League (Central Division).

Notable losses to graduation: Sue Weidenbach and Janet Davis.

Promising newcomers: Susie O'Neil, sophomore winger; Jaimi Marinos, freshman winger; Maura Dugan, sophomore defender/forward.

Predmesky's '93 outlook: "I think we'll do real well. The strength is our defense. I like to see us score more goals. Last year we were not a high-scoring team."

"If we score more and play the same kind of defense, we'll be much improved."

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Head coach: Mary Kay Hussey, fifth season. Last year's overall record: 15-3-2. Titles won last year: WLAA-Lakes Division and Class A district.

League affiliation: Western Lakes (Lakes Division).

Notable losses to graduation: Ragen Coyne (first-team All-Area midfielder); Shannon Wilkinson (first-team All-Area forward); Tracy Morrell (second-team All-Area defender); Jean Barnes and Alicia Smith.

Okwumabua was the WLAA champ and all-area honoree in the 100 dash. She had best times of 12.7 and 27.5 in the 200. Bockstanz (13.3/27.1) and Ikeh (13.1/27.3) were fifth and sixth in the WLAA at 200 meters, respectively.

"They did an outstanding job last year, and there's no reason to believe they won't come back this year and perform as well if not better," Przygodski said.

Canton returns sophomore Meghan Barresi in the 400, and Larson and sophomore Tracey Cavin show promise.

The Chiefs have their all-area 400 relay team of Bockstanz, Okwumabua, Kilpelainen and Ikeh intact. The 800 is one area Canton needs to improve, and all positions are open, Przygodski said.

Canton also returns the WLAA individual 800 champion in senior Christie Saffron, who had a best time of 2:25.2.

Lana Boroditsch, who suffered a hip injury at the end of last season and missed the entire cross country season, has recovered and is being counted on in the distance runs.

"She has a ways to go yet, but I think she'll get there by the end of May," Przygodski said. Boroditsch was second in the regional in the 1,600 and 3,200 runs. Her best times were 5:22 and 11:55. She was seventh in the WLAA in the 1,600.

Sophomores Laura McWilliams and Kathleen Landelius will run both events again, also. Landelius was seventh in the 3,200 at the league meet.

"Both are coming off outstanding cross country seasons and have made tremendous improvement from last season," Przygodski said.

Juniors Jennifer Warnke and Melissa Bastine and sophomore Jennifer Barnes are additional distance runners, focusing on the 800 and 1,600.

Saffron, Warnke and Boroditsch were on the regional champion 3,200 relay team. The Chiefs must replace Kim Gudeth, but Przygodski believes Landelius, McWilliams or Bastine can do that.

Canton goes to the Novi regional this year and won't have to compete with the Ann Arbor schools, Brighton and Ypsilanti. The Chiefs are scheduled to begin the dual season Thursday at Ann Arbor Huron.

SPORTS SHORTS

Items for the Sports Roundup should be submitted by 5 p.m. Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and 5 p.m. Friday (for Monday edition).

Underclassmen spark wrestling honor roll

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Veteran stars like Mike Reeves, Jason Krueger, Nick Spano and Jason Peterson appear on this year's All-Area wrestling first team.

But what makes the team all the more impressive is the influx of underclassmen. Six of the 13 on the first team are underclassmen, including five sophomores.

So the future, especially at Livonia Stevenson (with three first-team sophomores), looks bright but let's reflect on some of the past.

Reeves (Westland John Glenn), Krueger (Redford Catholic Central), Spano (Plymouth Canton) and Peterson (Garden City) provided Observerland with excitement the last four years.

Reeves finished his career as a two-time state champion, losing only once in the last two years; Krueger was 177-27 for his career, Spano 146-28. Peterson graduates with a school record for pins.

CC's Mike Rodriguez is the Coach of the Year after leading the Shamrocks to the championship of the Observerland Invitational.

Here's a capsule look at each member of the first team:

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Jason Peterson, heavyweight, Garden City: The 6-foot-7 senior broke a school record with 44 wins this season against four defeats: Peterson, who was 94-23 in three years on the varsity, finished fourth in the Class A meet. He beat nine state qualifiers and nine state finishers throughout the season and was a district and regional champion.

Peterson's 32 pins as a senior are the most recorded in one season at Garden City. Peterson, who won nine tournaments as a senior, finished second in career wins and first in career pins (68) for Garden City. Peterson plans visits to Eastern Michigan, Ferris State and Marquette before deciding on what college to attend.

"Jason is a very aggressive wrestler, that's his strongest point," Garden City coach Phil Freeman said. "He put a lot of time into the off-season, more than anybody I ever coached. The guy's always trying to improve."

Bill Lamb, 103 pounds, Redford CC: The sophomore overcame pre-season surgery to be a pleasant surprise for the Shamrocks, going 36-6 with a fifth-place finish at the state meet. Lamb took first place at the Observerland, Catholic League and district and second place at the regional.

"Bill is one of those unique wrestlers of the old days," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said. "Three days after an appendicitis operation, he was out running five miles a day, getting ready for the season. It is indeed a great pleasure to have him back for two more years."

Anthony Underwood, 112, John Glenn: Underwood, a junior, is an outstanding artist and doesn't do too badly on the wrestling mat, either. Underwood was 32-11, won Observerland, was third in the Western Lakes Activities Association and third in the district.

"Anthony is an excellent artist; he did a drawing of all our wrestlers in 45 minutes," Glenn coach Dave Hill said. "He's extremely quiet, intelligent and well motivated."

Luley Haddad, 119, Thurston: Haddad finished 33-10, won a Class B regional and finished third at the state meet. Haddad won the Observerland tournament, placed second in the Tri-River League, Dearborn Fordson and Erie-Mason meets. Haddad, only a sophomore, was third at Thurston's tournament and third at the Gibraltar-Carlson tournament.

"Luley definitely has the potential to be a two-timer (state champion)," Thurston coach Jeff Newton said. "He wrestles with a tremendous amount of heart and gets better after every match. Luley beat some tough Class A guys this year."

Garry Aral, 130, Redford Union: Aral finished a memorable career with a 100-32 record. He was 41-6 this season, qualifying for the state meet after taking third in the regional and second in the district. He was a Tri-River League champ, won four invitationals and placed third at the Observerland meet.

Aral also excelled in AAU, taking the 1992 freestyle state championship and fourth place in the AAU Junior Olympics the same year.

"I have had a handful of state finishers and the one wrestler that impressed me the most was Garry Aral," said RU coach George Houtteker, who has been in coaching 10 years. "His desire and drive to better himself throughout his career was outstanding. He has brought back the pride the Redford Union wrestling team was once known for. We have junior high and elementary kids that accept Aral as a role model and want to be just like him."

Nick Spano, 135, Canton: Spano was a WAAA, district and regional champion. He was a tri-most valuable wrestler of the Observerland meet, in which he also was a champion. Spano, who was 41-2 this year and finished his career with a 146-28 record. Last year he took sixth place at the state meet in the 130-pound division.

"Nick became a better wrestler this year because he used the moves he already knew but was afraid to use last year," coach Ray Givens said. "It helped him pull off matches in the last second because he was willing to take a chance. He worked on a variety of moves for different situations."

Scott Goldman, 140, Stevenson: Goldman showed tremendous improvement over last year, when as a freshman he was 5-15. Goldman enjoyed a 32-8 record this year, winning the WAAA and Observerland meets. He was a regional qualifier after placing third in the district. Goldman broke a school record for take-downs this season.

"Scott is a very talented athlete who always gives 100 percent in the practice room," Stevenson coach Don Berg said. "We call him 'Mr. Take-down' because he's so good on his feet. Scott's goal for next year is not just to go to the state meet but to place as a junior."

Chris Mullett, 145, Stevenson: Like Goldman, Mullett took his lumps as a freshman before enjoying a banner sophomore campaign. Mullett was a state qualifier, finished 32-15 and won the Observerland meet. He placed second in the WAAA and district and earned fourth place at the regional.

"What makes Chris so good is that he is relentless at all times," Berg said. "If anyone thinks they can beat Chris, they not only have to be a better wrestler, but they better wrestle for a full six minutes. Not only does he work hard, but he helps his teammates try to improve, which is why he was elected a captain."

Gerry Simoneau, 152, John Glenn: Simoneau was 27-12 as a senior with a first-place finish at the Observerland and second in the WAAA. He was fourth in the district.

"He's a very stylistic, smooth wrestler and has a lot of holds," Hill said. "He's in excellent condition, an excellent student with high-level classes."

Mike Reeves, 160, John Glenn: Reeves hopes to make the U.S. Olympic Team and coach Dave Hill wouldn't be surprised to see it happen. Hill has watched Reeves lose only one match in two years, that coming on a disqualification, and he is a two-time Class A state champion. Reeves last year won the 152-pound division at the state meet and was undefeated in 44 matches this year at 160 pounds.

"Mike is the most dedicated wrestler I've ever worked with," Hill said. "He's driven from within, wins for himself. He's always right there for his teammates and was a true sportsman this year."

"He's too fast, too strong for high school wrestlers. He wants to be an Olympian. Someday we'll sit in front of the TV and watch him."

Jason Krueger, 171, Redford CC: Krueger had a 47-2 senior season, capped by a third-place finish in the Class A meet. He was first at the regional and district and also took first place in the Catholic League and Observerland tournaments and meets at Trenton, Lansing Sexton and CC. He finished his career with a 177-27 record.

"It is young men like Jason who make my coaching at Catholic Central a true joy, not because of his wrestling ability, but because he is a fine outstanding young man who will be very productive in our society down the road," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said. "I am very proud of his grit. He'll always be a champion in my eyes."

Craig Martin, 189, Stevenson: Martin took second place in both the district and regional to qualify for state. He was a champion at the Plymouth Canton, Salem, Garden City, Observerland and WAAA meets. Martin finished his sophomore year with a 35-4 record. Two of his four losses came against a state champion.

"He plans on staying at 189 next year, but it doesn't matter; he will do very well at any weight," Berg said. "He is a great kid who leads our team as well as he wrestles."
