Senior center replaces mall plan

Plymouth Township planners are awaiting the filing of plans for a senior complex at the former St. John's Seminary property, as plans for commercial development there were withdrawn. The seminary closed in

BY KEVIN BROWN

Now that the developer of the former St. John's Seminary property has withdrawn plans to build a mall, Plymouth Township officials are waiting for him to return with plans to build a senior center.

James Anulewicz, township public services director, said he and other township officials had met three times with developer Eric Lindquist before the mall concept was proposed

"Mr. Lindquist had continually said that the approach the seminary was going to take was consistent with what the community desires, the retention of existing buildings, and the incorporation of a senior citizens complex ranging from independent living all the way to assisted care, Anulewicz said.

The plan, which included modifications at Mission Hills golf course, was the presentation all the way along the line, and they were looking at the best avenue, the best way to mesh with our ordinance requirements to accomplish that," Anulewicz said.

Township officials said they expected talks would continue along the same lines at a work session on the project with the township planning commission on July 7.

But at that session, a 14-acre commercial development was proposed along with a sports health clinic on 10 acres - and Mission Hills golf course was to be reduced to nine holes to make room

Just ducky

To the rescue: Sunflower resident Jerry Wieman — with the help of other neighbors crawled into a sewer recently to retrieve 10 ducklings who fell through the grate.

Team rescue saves drained ducks

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

Life in the wild just might be easier than in the suburbs for a duck family that called the Sunflower subdivision home for a short

Ten ducklings literally went down the drain little more than a week ago when the mother led them from their nest across one of the subdivision's roads.

"I was standing at my back door and saw the mother leading the young ducklings down the road," said resident Jerry Wieman. "Unfortunately, the ducklings didn't walk in the right place."

As the duck family approached a storm sewer grate, the mother had no problem. But the ducklings weren't so lucky. One by one, they fell into the sewer.

The mother was flying around and quacking. She was so worried," said neighbor Kay McGimpsey, who photographed the ensuing rescue effort. "We could see them swimming around in the sewer."

That's where Wieman's knowledge came in handy. An AT&T operations supervisor, Wieman, who had a manhole hook, was able to pull up the sewer grate. But that was just the beginning of the 11/2hour rescue.

Funding scramble kicks off

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

In a special memo to school boards across the state, Tom White, the Michigan Association of School Boards' director of government relations, said it's critical for voters "to let their lawmakers know what they want and don't want to happen" in the wake of the legislature's scrapping of the property tax as the chief funding mechanism for schools.

"If we do not respond to this challenge, public education as we know it today may be completely altered," he said. The Lansing-based White is a spokesman for the MASB's legislative relations network.

"We don't mean to sound overly paranoid, but some paranoia is healthy in this situation," he said. "It is crucial that school board members and school supporters prepare to influence the reorganization process."

Plymouth-Canton school board members and administrators heeded those words at their meeting Monday night.

School officials proposed forums to gather suggestions from the public as to how schools should be funded, as well as meetings with legislators.

On the air

The district is preparing to tape a question-and-answer cable TV show next week. Board members will answer voters' questions concerning the 4-mill proposal on the ballot Aug. 17, and discuss the impact on Plymouth-Canton schools of the loss of property tax funding.

Residents who'd like specific topics addressed may suggest them to the district's community relations office by calling 451-3188. Omnicom air times aren't yet set.

Tax cut brings streetscape plan to panic stop

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Just four days after the city commission approved a bond sale to pay for a $2.4-million street-sidewalk improvement project, the bond sale has been stopped and the project put on

City Manager Steve Walters said the decision was necessary after getting a call from the city's bond coun-

They called in the wake of the state legislature's action to end the funding of schools through property taxes. Those school taxes, collected and held by the downtown development authority from downtown businesses, were to pay for the project.

Walters said the bond counsel advised that the bonds would now not be rated and the city probably couldn't sell them, forcing the city to put the project on hold.

DDA director Steve Guile said that the way things stand now, the legislature's action has "reduced the revenue of all DDAs and their opportunity to pay off bond issues.

At present, the legislature's action would cut the annual $450,000 DDA budget by about 60 percent. 'We're kind of in a wait-and-see attitude right now," Guile said.

'We're hoping enabling legislation will spell out eventually what type of funding is going to be instituted to make up the shortfall," Guile said.

"I think the decision on DDAs and their continued funding will be made relatively soon, in the next six months," Guile said.

If the funding is not restored, Guile said the DDA will have to choose between continuing business recruitment and retention programs and paying off the downtown parking deck, or paying for the streetscape

State Rep, Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, said the City of Northville, which is also in his district, also had a downtown building project under

"I think it will turn out to be a happy ending," Guile said. "It will force DDAs and city governments to find a new way to fund economic development in Michigan.

"There's got to be a stable funding source for economic development, from property taxes or whatever it might be," Guile said.

City officials say that should the legislature act quickly to find replacement funds for state DDAs, construction on the project could start in the Industrial development feeds service businesses

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Where industrial parks and subdivisions sprout, fast-food restaurants and other service businesses often follow.

That explains the rise in the number of those businesses in recent years in west Plymouth Township, following the strong growth of industrial parks along M-14.

The Discovery Learning Center, a child day-care center, opened in the Metro West industrial park west of Sheldon Road in April 1991 with a staff of two and not many more kids, explained director Pat Troy.

'We now have a staff of 32," she said. The center now serves 130 kids; capacity is 148.

The Discovery center, which operates another day care facility in Southfield, was recruited by the R.A. DeMattia Co., which operates Metro West and several other industrial parks in west Plymouth Township.

"(Robert) DeMattia was looking to do this as a service for his tenants in the park," Troy recalled.

"It took a while letting people know we were back here," Troy said. She estimated that 60 percent of the kids have parents who work in Metro West or other parks, while 40 percent live in west Plymouth Township. Gary Roberts, vice president for development for the DeMattia Co., said fast-food businesses are seeking to do business on the township's west side because marketing research suggests it.

A Hardee's restaurant opened on Beck south of Five Mile Road, near Metro West, in 1989. A Burger King followed at Five Mile and Sheldon roads a year later. And the township planning commission on Wednesday was scheduled to hear from Papa Romano's Inc., which wants to open a restaurant in Metro West in a warehousing facility for the restaurant chain.

Schools recall 8 teachers

Eight pink-slipped teachers were recalled by the Plymouth-Canton School Board Monday

The action was included in the board's consent calendar, which lumps together for a single vote such routine items as bills for payment, leaves and resignations. The board explained that money is budgeted for the recalls, being made periodically to save money in unemployment costs.

Employees are being recalled based on staffing needs and certification requirements.

A total of 42 certified staff will be laid off if the 4-mill proposal on the Aug. 17 ballot fails.

If the millage passes, the district will also open the two new elementary schools in Canton restore extracurricular activites: re store public use of school buildings; keep the Central Middle School pool open, purchase textbooks, re-establish the budget surplus; reduce class size by one student per room, fund student assessment and staff development; extend media center hours; and add to the maintenance and marching band budgets.

"We will try to respond to major questions people are asking in terms of the need for the millage and the impact of Senate Bill 1 (which will eliminate property tax funding after it's signed by Gov. John Engler Aug. 19)," said district spokesman Richard Egli The need (for 4 mills) is still here, and it's still real. People have to be aware of that.

School board president Roland Thomas said, "Presently, there are 230 bills on education in the House and Senate. One might say they represent micromanagement. Some might say they are the result of a full-time legislature. We have to influence Lansing somehow. We're trying to be proactive, rather than reactive.

Superintendent John Hoben noted that in Texas, the legislature meets for six months every two years. "We are one of six states with a full-time legislature." he said.

Board members discussed meeting with the district's three legislators one-on-one rather than in a group. "Three soldiers returning from the front have a camaraderie, even though they're from different battalions," said trustee Les Walker.

"Our ability to influence them is nil at best," said trustee Carl Battishill.

'Let's start with a public forum and our own citizens to get a few ideas," said trustee Jack Farrow.

Ongoing ties

Trustee Barbara Graham pushed for regular meetings with legislators "to keep communication going, and going strong."

Thomas noted that State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, has suggested public forums locally, perhaps in schools. "None of us have been approached by Rep. Vorva," said Thomas. "He wants to hold some forums in schools. That's contrary to his position on schools, because if the millage fails, schools won't be open for him to hold his meetings.

Hoben said, "I'll try to be a prognosticator and say they don't know much at this point in time' about how schools will be funded. 'Rest assured they aren't going to go for $6 billion (the amount the state will forfeit in property tax revenue.) "They'll go for $4 billion or less and dump it back on the local districts, saying if you want more, go to a local income tax. I can almost predict you won't see them replace in-kind

Despite the fact Plymouth-Canton's ballot says the four-mill proposal is for two years, the tax hike actually will be levied for just one, because the new legislation becomes effective in 1994.

One mill will raise $2.2 million for the district. It will cost the owner of a house worth $100,000 an additional $200, and the owner of a house worth $200,000 an ex-

The reaction of planning commissioners and township offi

There was shock and dismay that someone would present something verbally that is so opposite from what had been conveyed over a period of months, Anulewicz said.

Charles Curmi, a planning commissioner and township trustee, said, "The consensus of the group was it (the retirement community) was an excellent proposal except for the part that was not on the drawing, a large commercial development at Five Mile and Sheldon.

We're concerned about commercial development being there my personal feeling is on the long term effect on the business district in downtown Plymouth, Curmi said.

"It was a trial balloon, it popped," he said. And while the land is zoned for residential development, "If somebody has a good idea like a retirement community we'll listen to it," Curmi

After the meeting, Anulewicz said Lindquist reiterated his intention to build a retirement community and no commercial development on the 175-acre site.

We're hoping the reversal represents the solidification on what they are going to do at that site, Anulewicz said

He said the developer has yet to make a formal application on the development to be proposed.

The 40-year-old seminary was closed in June 1988. The land is zoned residential for one-acre or larger lots, so the developer would need to seek special use approval or some type of rezoning from the township government.

Meanwhile, a Zax car wash has won site-plan approval from the township for a site at Five Mile and Sheldon Construction should be complete by late fall, Roberts said.

"It was such a team effort," Wieman said of the neighbors who came to help the ducklings.

Once the grate was open, Ralph McGimpsey got a ladder. Wieman changed his clothes and work began. Wieman crawled into the 2foot by 2-foot sewer opening and got into the water about four feet down from the road.

"The mother duck was going into cardiac arrest," Wieman said. "She heard her ducklings but couldn't get to them. She flew over us rather low, I assume trying to scare us," Wieman said.

Knowing Wieman couldn't catch the ducklings with his hands, children Adam and Megan Kilker lent their butterfly net to scoop out the babies. "Naturally, my presence scared them and they crawled into the drain tiles," Wieman said.

But Wieman wasn't alone. His brother-in-law, Jerry Ryan of Florida, was on the road taking the net as Wieman pulled out the ducks. Ryan put the ducklings in a bucket - so human hands didn't touch them - and let them out on the ground.

"They waddled to their waiting mother," Wieman said. "After we got the first two out, she (the mother duck) seemed relieved."

Neighbors - about 10-12 strong - came out to see what was happening. Though it was Wieman in the sewer, he says the rescue was a team effort with Ryan and his wife, Debbie, and the McGimpseys, as well as neighbors Dan and Debbie DeWard, Joe Jungkurth and others joining in to help the duck-

"It was obvious the ducklings were scared. They were calling their mother. So I started to whistle trying to mimic them. And they responded. I brought a few of them out that way," Wieman

With two ducklings remaining in the sewer - and unwilling to come out - Wieman, his wife, Barbara, Ryan and other neighbors, had to devise another plan. They blocked the street. A garden hose was brought to the scene and stretched across the road. The water was turned on at one side of the sewer.

"The splash pushed the ducklings into the net my brother-inlaw was holding (on the other side of the road)," Wieman said.

Commission axes exec's layoff plan

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Wayne County officials are still working in strange and mysterious ways to close an $11.75 million budget deficit.

The county commission voted unanimously Tuesday to rescind more than 300 layoff notices sent out by Wayne County Deputy Executive Michael Duggan, who was acting on behalf of County Executive Edward McNamara.

Commissioners steamed because McNamara's plan would do away with 126 part-time, temporary and contractual employees, including 66 commission staffers, but affect no one from McNamara's

Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton, noted that his two staffers would have McNamara's plan. "You lay off one Mike Duggan and that's worth seven of my employees, he said. "This is the most flagrant politicization of an issue as I've seen in a long time." Amann added that McNamara will meet with commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell, D-Detroit, early next week to see if they can make a deal.

Legionnaires attend convention

Plymouth Legionnaires Robert Patow, Jim Maahs, John Cenzer, Cornelius VanBoven, Vic Riblett and James Barbour recently were delegates to The American Legion, Department of Michigan 75th annual convention held in Dearborn.

"A well organized, and most productive convention," said Patow, delegation chairman and commander of Plymouth's Passage-Gayde Post 391. "Once again, the majority of the resolutions adopted, which will be forwarded to the Legion's National

In addition to all the work completed in committees and on the convention floor, delegates also elected their state officers for Legion year 1993-1994.

"The results of our elections were a definite pleasure to me," said Maahs, a past Post 391 commander. "An old time friend of

Since McNamara vetoed the commission's budget-cutting plan Monday, the commission has to compromise with McNamara or try to override his veto.

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford and Livonia east of Middlebelt, said Duggan doesn't remember that commissioners have to be accountable to their constituents.

"Mike is a staff member," she said. "He really isn't accountable to the community like we are, and sometimes he forgets that. We work for the community. He works for Mr. McNamara.'

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, a Livonia Republican who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, wonders why a Democratic commission and a Democratic executive office can't be friends.

"You'd think the Democrats could get together and work out a budget that's good for the countacking each other individually and nothing's getting done. They're pontificating, not communicating."

The commission didn't like the budget cuts McNamara suggested recently and so approved its own set of cuts July 16. McNamara vetoed the commission cuts Mon-

Duggan said some of the cuts in the commission's package are impossible to implement, making layoffs necessary. Commissioners say that McNamara's cuts are unfair because they reduce the commission's budget, but leave McNamara's untouched.

Plawecki said everybody involved should forget about politicking and get the job done. "We're all adults," she said. "We all have responsibilities. If it means setting aside your personal feelings, we need to do that. It's gone on too long.' Duggan and McNamara didn't return the Observer's phone calls

A. The suburbs are in a bad spot. No longer can they rely on their local property wealth. All school funding will come from the state aid formula. The outstate and city districts easily can gang up and "average" school income. High-spending suburban districts will be hurt. They are likely to seek some form of local supplementary revenue.

Q. Weren't lawmakers talking about other school cost containment measures?

A. They sure were. The tal: stopped temporarily with the big breakthrough. You will see cost containment ideas surface soon. Among the schemes:

Limiting superintendents' salaries to 85 percent of the governor's. That's unlikely because it would interfere in local administration and contractual rights.

Taking bids on health insurance for school employees. Currently health coverage is bargained locally, and most districts deal with a subsidiary of the Michigan Education Association, the teachers union.

Q. Politically, how does this affect Gov. John Engler and his leading Democratic opponent, Sen. Debbie Stabenow?

A. Engler delivers on a promise to cut property taxes. Stabenow delivers on a promise to get replacement revenue. Both win because the school finance question is neutralized as a campaign is-

Within the Democratic Party, however, Stabenow has trouble. Two-thirds of House Democrats voted no. Howard Wolpe and Rep. Lyn Jondahl, her intra-party guagainst her in the primary.

Q. How does the Michigan Education Association come

A. That's hard to say. Clearly, MEA is the most hated group in the state, as education columnist "Doc" Doyle pointed out July 19.

In part, the wrath is manufactured by the religious right, which seeks to dislodge Satan from the schools, but they are a minority. Plenty of non-ideological working people see MEA as continuing to collect big raises while their real incomes are stable or declining MEA influence over local school boards could become an issue.

Even legislators, accustomed to voter wrath over salary hikes, say the MEA is surpassing them in salary hikes. At least two legislators who left said their teacherwives made more than they did.

Outstate, MEA members are likely to be winners, particularly if school funding is increased in poorer districts. In suburbia, MEA could be a loser. But that's just speculation.

Meanwhile, while Mars has been moving, so has Jupiter. By the end of the month Jupiter will be four degrees closer to Spica, but Mars will end the month eighteen degrees closer to that star. One of the most recognizable constellations in the sky will be rising in the east southeast shortly after sunset this month: Orion (oh RYAN) the hunter. To spot Orion, who is tilted at a 45 degree angle, first locate Venus in the east. Eighteen degrees to the right of Venus will be the orange-red star Betelgeuse ("beetle juice"), whose Arabic name (Beit Algueze) means "Armpit of the Giant." This is Orion's right armpi... er, shoulder.

Above and to the right of Betelgeuse is the other shoulder, Bellatrix. Twenty degrees to the right of Betelgeuse will be blue-white Rigel, the "Left Leg of the Giant." The other foot, below and to the left of Rigel, is marked by the star Saiph ("safe"). Notice three stars forming a vertical line mid-way between Betelgeuse and Rigel. These stars represent Orion's belt.

Small carrier, big heart helped U.S. win WWII

Commissioned on April 25, 1940, the USS Wasp became the seventh of eight aircraft carriers when the United States entered World War II.

Displacing 14,700 tons empty, Wasp was smaller than her more famous cousins Enterprise, Lexington and Yorktown. Because the Washington Naval Treaty limited the U.S. to 135,000 tons for aircraft carriers, Wasp had to be made smaller than the Navy would have liked. She was the only ship in her class.

With a wartime crew of 2,367 men, Wasp carried 80 aircraft and was defended by eight five-inch guns, 16 1.1-inch guns and 30

20mm guns. During most of her short life, Wasp served in the Atlantic Ocean. In 1942, Wasp twice delivered Spitfire fighter aircraft to the beseiged Mediterranean island of Malta, prompting British Prime Minister Winston Churchill to quip "Who said a Wasp couldn't sting twice?"

In mid-1942, Wasp transferred to the Pacific Ocean in time to help support the invasion of Guadalcanal. Wasp missed the Battle of the Eastern Solomons in August 1942 because she was sent away to refuel. Had she not been sunk by three torpedoes fired by a Japanese submarine Sept. 15, 1942, Wasp would have provided a sorely needed boost to U.S. naval forces in the Battle of Santa Cruz a month later.

In 1943, the Navy launched a replacement Wasp (CV-18), this one an Essex-class carrier and not to be confused with the aforementioned Wasp, CV-7.

Nowadays both of the World War II Wasps are gone, but the name lives on with a new class of amphibious assault ships. The first vessel in that line, USS Wasp, LHD-1, was commissioned in July 1989.

Former crewmen of the old Wasp follow the career of the new Wasp in the quarterly magazine 'Stinger" published by Livonia resident Norman Watson.

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Never forget: More than 50 years after his old ship, the USS Wasp, was torpedoed and sunk in World War II. Livonia resident Norman Watson keeps in contact with old shipmates through the Stinger Club, a group of 650 Wasp veterans. Here Watson holds photographs of him and the Wasp, circa 1942.

Old Wasp sailors recall her demise

Although the aircraft carrier USS Wasp was sunk more than 50 years ago when three Japanese torpedoes slammed into her side, the memory of CV-7 lives on in the hearts and minds of her crew, whose members publish a quarterly magazine and meet annually to reminisce.

Livonia resident Norman Watson was a 19-year-old Wasp sailor who enlisted in the Navy a week after Pearl Harbor was assaulted on Dec. 7, 1941. Less than a year later, on Sept. 15, 1942, Watson slid down a rope into the Pacific Ocean near the Solomon Islands after the Wasp was torpedoed by the Japanese submarine I-19.

"I was not a good swimmer, but there's a certain will, a somebody up there likes you thing," he said. "I was fished out of the water buck naked, covered with oil and grease.

Like most of his 2,000-plus shipmates, Watson was picked up by a destroyer after two hours in

Sam Bamford, a Livonia retiree who grew up in Farmington, was a young boatswain's mate at the time. He dug himself out from a prison of bunks that crashed down on him when the torpedoes hit, then proceeded to the flight deck to check on his brother, Charles.

The sailors in the water fretted about their chances of surviving. You kind of reconcile yourself to the inevitable," Watson said.

"The big thing you worried about was the sharks," said Bamford, whose brother survived the sinking but died recently.

Everyone felt the concussion of depth charges dropped nearby in hope of destroying the submarine. You could feel it in your guts," Bamford said.

Picked up after 31/4 hours in the water by the destroyer Lansdowne, Bamford had the dubious honor of watching that destroyer finish off the fatally wounded Wasp. "It made me feel bad," he said, "There still could be survivors. That's what really bugged me. I thought about those fellows trapped below decks."

Ray Lempke, a Troy resident now, was a plane handler with fighter squadron VF-71 when the Wasp went down. "I had mixed emotions when it was occurring," he said. "It's like you lose your car, you lose your home. It's a to-

Three years ago, Lempke heard about the USS Wasp Stinger Club, a group of about 650 veter-ans of CV-7, most of whom were also in the water on that inauspicious day 51 years ago, then separated from one another soon thereafter to man other ships.

To encounter, 50 years later, the shipmates he thought he'd never see again, Lempke said,

"was a beautiful experience." But even Wasp sailors like Lempke, who was 17 when he enlisted in December 1941, are well into their 60s now. Many are older, and many have died.

"Every year, the ranks are de-pleting," Lempke said, "and it's a shame to see them all go." (Just last year, for example, former aviation machinist's mate Bill Cooke, a Rochester Hills resident, Henry Milamowski, a Livonia resident, was a Wasp signalman who joined the Stinger Club in 1982 and has attended every annual reunion but one since then. "There's a different feeling when you see them," he said. "There's something in you that can't be described. It's almost brotherhood.

It didn't take long to get to know each other.'

Watson, who discovered the Stinger Club in 1981, is now a club officer and editor of the quarterly magazine. It's not easy to get Watson to talk about himself because his main interest is finding Wasp sailors who've never heard of the Stinger Club. Old Wasp sailors may contact him at 477-1143.

Within the Stinger magazine, club members find updates on the latest annual reunion, news of their old shipmates, reminis-cences of former Wasp sailors, and articles reprinted (by permission) from various magazines.

A page in an old Stinger edition sums up pretty well how most of these men feel about their old

Green trial reveals ill feelings between MEs

BY PAT MURPHY STAFF WRITER

Ill feelings between the medical examiner's offices in Oakland and Wayne are obvious from testimo-ny in the trial of three police offi-cers charged in the beating death of Detroiter Malice Green, according to presiding Recorder's Court Judge George W. Crockett III.

But it's difficult, if not impossible, to say which side injected them, Crockett said in response to an objection raised during Monday's proceedings, the second day in which the Oakland Medical Examiner said the office in Wayne County is inept and subject to pressure.

The issue of whether defen attorneys or prosecutors first brought out any feelings of ani-mosity came up late Monday dug-ing cross examination of Ljubias. J. Dragovic, who worked in the Wayne County medical examin-er's office before becoming Oaks, land County medical examiner in

With Dragovic on the witness stand, defense attorney Fred Walker referred to the prosecution "bringing up ill feelings" between the offices in Oakland and Wayne counties.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Area reps deny special trade status for China

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending

Trade With China: The House failed, 105 for and 318 against, to deny China favorable trade status. The vote on HJ Res 208 upheld President Clinton's one-year extension of preferential terms including the lowest U.S. tariffs on imports

Pete Stark, D-Calif., said he opposed favorable trade terms for China because of "a dirty little secret - that China is helping to build and distribute nuclear weapons around the world, and we know

Robert Matsui, D-Calif., said "we are creating an entrepreneurial class in China at this time. The way to get democracy is by getting a marketplace system in China.'

A yes vote opposed most-favored-nation trade status for China. Area representatives voting ves were: Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin and Ford.

House Post Office Scandal: By a vote of 242 for and 186 against, the House tabled (killed) a Republican bid (H Res 222) for immediate release of records from an internal probe of misconduct including embezzlement at the House Post Office. This followed by days a former postmaster's court admission of diverting cash to unnamed House members. The U.S. attorney prosecuting the case opposed the release, while Republicans charged a cover-up.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., questioned "why anyone in the face of the clear. unequivocal recommendation of the U.S. attorney, unsolicited by this House, would want . . . to vote to send these materials out obstruct or bungle what is an ongoing and obviously successful criminal investigation. Supporter Scott Klug, R-Wis., urged disclosure of "public files produced by public employees investigating public officials (accused of) ripping off public money." He said the vote would show "who in this chamber wants to 'fess up and who in this chamber wants to continue to hush up."

A yes vote opposed public disclosure at this time of House investigatory files on its post office scandal. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Ford, D-Ypellanti. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Tourism Agency: The House rejected, 158 for and 263 against, a U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration budget that was controversial because it included $5 million for a new program of grants for state tourism promotions. The vote rejected the $5 million and left $17.1 million as the proposed fiscal 1994 budget for the Commerce Department agency. Nearly all of the money is for federal promotions. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2519.

Supporter Toby Roth, R-Wis., said "every single state is going to benefit economically by this amendment.'

Opponent James Moran, D-Va., called federal tourism spending "a subsidy to the major airlines and hotel chains" that takes money away from higher-priority programs.

A yes vote was to increase U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration spending to help state programs. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Ford. Voting no: Knollenberg, Levin.

SENATE

Hatch Act: By a vote of 68 for passed a bill (S 185) enabling most civilian federal employees, on their own time, to take part in most forms of partisan politics short of running for office and raising money from the general public. The bill softening the 1939 Hatch Act was sent to conference with the House. It affects 3.1 million U.S. employees including postal workers. But still "hatched" are those in military uniform, Federal Election Commission staff, top-level federal executives throughout government and certain law enforcement and intelligence employees.

Supporter Don Riegle, D-Mich., said "the time has come to grant civil servants the political freedoms the rest of the American population Opponent Dirk Kempthome, R-Idaho, said the bill will "further diminish public trust in the federal bureaucracy.'

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin (D) and Donald Riegle (D) both voted IRS Employees: By a vote of 50 for and 49 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an attempt to continue the Hatch Act's ban on partisan politicking by Internal Revenue Service agents, auditors and examiners. The vote occurred during debate on S 185 (above).

Tabling supporter John Glenn, D-Ohio, said existing law already contains strict penalties to dissuade IRS personnel from abuses of pow-

William Roth, R-Del., expressed concern about the impartiality of 'the IRS auditor who examines tax returns by day and is active in partisan politics at night."

A yes vote was to enable IRS personnel to participate in most areas of partisan politics on their own time. Levin and Riegle each voted yes.

"But he did so in response to your questions," countered Walk-Crockett put the dispute to rest by saying, "It's difficult to say who brought up the ill feeling. But they're definitely there.

In testimony last week, Dragovic said he was "very unfortunate to have worked with Dr. Bader Cassin." That was after Cassin was named Wayne County Medical Examiner, a job Dragovic said he applied for, but really didn't

Dragovic makes no secret of his opinion that Wayne County Medical Examiner Bader Cassin is inept, particularily in his concurrence with the finding that the death of Malice Green was caused by "blunt force trauma to the head" with cocaine playing an

"insignificant role." Dragovic is one of several expert witnesses called in the trial that began in early June and is much of August

Jurors don't have to accept testimony from expert witnesses, said Crockett, without referring to Dragovic specifically.

Rather they should evaluate that testimony and factor it into their consideration of all the relevant facts, the judge said. Jurors should also take the expert's motive for testifying into consideration along with any extenuating

Buyers bid on relics

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

You've got to know what you're buying. That was the common cry at Saturday's auction of farm equipment and cars and trucks at Roger Bordine's farm on Saltz Road. "You go to auctions. You buy stuff, clean it up and sell it in a garage sale," said Ralph Rosen of Romulus. "You've got to know what you're buying. I made over $500 on my last garage sale."

George Webber of Temperance was looking for parts from machinery resting in open fields on both sides of Saltz Road, west of Ridge. "I just collect junk."

Others were looking for parts for their own equipment, or buying a lot of the equipment to resell as scrap. After an old baler was auctioned for $10, one of the auction-goers mentioned that on the scrap market the new owner will get $120.

While each had their own reason for attending the auction — hosted by Rollo Juckette of Dundee - many auction-goers said the event was just another sign of changing times - the end of an era.

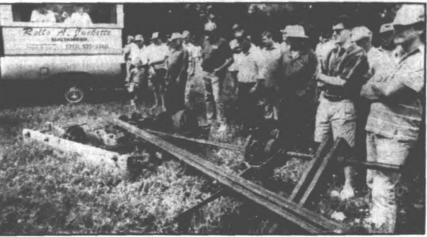

"It doesn't fit the image the township wants," said Todd Ehrhart of Canton, referring to the equipment and old cars that have sat on Bordine's rural property for years.

The auction stemmed from a series of violations against Bordine issued by the township. The tickets are for the unlawful storage and keeping of junk and inoperable vehicles, as well as the storage of unlicensed vehicles and parts, and the accumulation of junk and debris.

In March, township officials met with Bordine and his attorney and Taking a peek: Chet Barnes of Ann Arbor took a fancy to the 1937 Plymouth that was to be auctioned by Rollo Juckette of Dundee Saturday on Roger Bordine's farm.

A day at auction: Roger Bordine (center with safari hat) watches as auctioneers Rollo Juckette and Alyce Reister (both in truck) auction equipment he has collected on his farm.

developed a plan to resolve the tickets and cleanup what officials considered a mess on various parcels on Saltz Road. The auction was part of that agreement. A pretrial conference is scheduled for Aug. 19, according to township records. Many at the auction bemoaned the township's actions, including increased property tax assessments on farms this year. "His family was here long before the township," said a farmer about the Bordines.

But those feelings didn't stop visitors from bidding on Bordines' equipment. "Roger, do you want to tell us about these?" Juckette asked as his pickup pulled to another batch of farm equipment in the field. "The bird nest goes with it. I can't tell you much about it," Bordine shouted

One farmer recognized a piece of equipment that used to be on his land. Bordine apparently bought it at an auction at his house a few years

While some equipment definitely was sold for scrap or parts, others were bound for a new home on another farm. One tractor went for more than $1,000.

"There's a lot of familiar faces here," said Lori Komora of Ypsilanti, who has traveled the auction route for three years. "About half of these people are regulars."

White Lake resident Dick Kowall, who calls himself a hobby farmer, took a look around. "There are a few tractors back there that are repairable. Some of these things are for parts."

When Kowall came across a 1937 Plymouth in poor condition, a smile came to his face. "It brings back memories. My very first car was like this one," he said.

safety and how to respond in a fire situation. This was one of several visits the firefighters have made this summer to the program. Nearly 400 four- and five-year-old children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall are participating in the program this summer.

Fire dog: Blazer, who works with the Plymouth Township firefighters, visited students in the Plymouth-Canton Community School District's Safety Town program at Central Middle School. The kids learned about safety tips, got to sit in a fire truck and squirted a fire hose.

Town, students learn that they must get out of the house in case of a fire and not return. They learn that they should crawl on the floor and that the door and window are the two ways to get out of a room. They also learn what a smoke detector is and what it sounds like. In the event that clothes catch on fire, the children are taught to stop, drop, and roll. In addition, they learn that 911 is the number to call if they see a fire.

"We encourage students to ask their parents to help them listen to their smoke detector so they will be familiar with the sound it makes," Haar said. "We also encourage families to practice fire drills at home."

During the Safety Town visit, the firefighters show the children their fire suit, which includes an air tank and oxygen mask. This helps the children feel more comfortable if they encounter a firefighter, Haar explained.

To highlight the visit, children had an opportunity to operate the fire hose with the help of firefighters.

New to the Safety Town program this year is the Fire Safety House, which is owned by the Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township fire departments. The Fire Safety House is a miniature house the firefighters use to teach fire safety. The remaining days firefighters will bring the house to Safety Town this summer are July 26 and Aug. 9.

Pat Maybouer, Safety Town director, said that the program benefits from supportive community groups which often donate their time and materials to Safety Town. In addition to visiting the Safety Town program each year, the Plymouth Township Firefighters union and the Metropolitan Club, which consists of police officers, firefighters and postal workers from the Plymouth-Canton area, recently donated 20 big wheels to the program at a value of $200.

"These people are donating money out of their own pockets to support the Safety Town program," Maybouer said. "Our program benefits greatly from that kind of generosity."

The nine-day Safety Town program includes fire safety, traffic and seat belt safety, water and electrical safety, bike and bus safety, stranger and poison safety, firefighter day and police officer day. Students learn about bus safety while taking a field trip to a fire station on one of the district's school buses. The program concludes with a special graduation

"We have received positive feedback from elementary teachers who have said the children who participate in Safety Town are retaining the information they learn," said Haar, who has volunteered in Safety Town for more than 10 years.

Haar explained that the success of the Safety Town program was proven in August 1991 when Justin Bailey, then age five, rescued himself and his younger sister, Kelsey, from a fire in their Plymouth Township home.

For more information on Safety Town, contact Pat Maybouer at 451-6672.

Bill targets underage drinkers alcohol level of 0.02 percent or above would face strict penalties for operating a motor vehicle un-der legislation approved Wednes-day by the Michigan House, said state Rep. Deborah Whyman, who supported the bill.

"Drinking and driving is a deadly mix at any age. But for teenagers who are not prepared to handle the responsibilities of alcohol consumption it's a guaran-teed formula for disaster," said Whyman, R-Canton Township. "This legislation puts it in perspective for teens. If you choose to ignore the law, you will lose your

"This legislation reinforces the fact that it's illegal to drink if you are under-21."

House Bill 4839 strengthens current law by saddling violators with up to a 90-day suspension of their license and a maximum fine of $250. Repeat offenders would face a license suspension of up to one year and a maximum $500

Whyman said the 0.02-percent level was agreed upon by lawmakers because some medications, such as cough syrups, contain amounts of alcohol just over zero.

"It's unfortunate, but statistics clearly show a direct link between auto accidents involving teenag-ers and alcohol," Whyman said. "In 1991, alcohol-related crashes took the lives of 79 youths between the ages of 15 and 19. If you look at the big picture, one out of eight people killed in alcohol-related accidents that year were teens. Those are compelling numbers.

The lawmaker said that tougher laws and enforcement are not the sole answers to eliminating underage drinking.

"Social attitudes must change," Whyman concluded. "The community, especially parents, must play a vital role in educating our children about the grave dangers associated with alcohol. That is why I strongly support local Drug Abuse Resistance Education programs and other area youth alter-native organizations which focus on curbing the dependence many teenagers have on drugs and alcohol. These kinds of efforts are ef-

Commission

These 8 are best in city primary

"City of Plymouth voters will select eight candidates from a field of nine in the Tuesday, Aug. 3, primary election for city commission.

The primary is the first in recent history and was necessary because of the large number of candidates. The primary will lop one candidate from the field, with the remaining eight vying for four open seats in the fall.

While some political insiders lament the need for a primary, citing the $10,00 cost, we think the cost is simply the price of democracy.

The city is better served when there is a primary. The issues are discussed and solutions presented. And when that happens, everybody

In the Aug. 3 primary, the Observer recommends: Stella Greene, Ron Loiselle, Glen Mackie, David McDonald, Douglas Miller, Tom Prose, Rosita Smith and John Vos.

Those eight candidates during interviews were conversant on city affairs and were committed to finding solutions to the problems plaguing the city.

Here's a look at the endorsed candidates: Greene is an incumbent. Since being appointed to the city commission, she has tread the line between residential and commercial interests. She has the ability to bring common sense judgment to the commission. During a recent vote on Plymouth's streetscape plan, Greene was able to push the project forward, despite some opposition from residents.

Loiselle, a former city commissioner, has remained active and interested despite losing a re-election bid two years ago. He serves on the planning commission.

Glen Mackie, a newcomer to city politics, would be a voice for younger families on a city commission which is presented dominated by older residents.

McDonald, another newcomer, is a U.S. Army retiree. He would bring a background in administration to the commission.

Miller, an incumbent and mayor pro tem, has done the tough work of going through the city's old-fashioned parking credit system with the goal of eliminating the system. He's a hard worker on the issues that make a difference and he doesn't grandstand for the crowd.

Prose, a planning commission member, knows what's going on in the city and what needs to be done.

■ Smith has run for commission in the past and will be a voice for the concerns of residents. Vos, an incumbent, has been able to balance the concerns of residents with those of business owners during his four-years on the commission.

Your vote does matter in such a lively and crowded field. Remember to vote on Aug. 3.

Tax plan is dangerous gamble ■ The perceived inequality of ichigan lawmakers have demonstrated that their lust for power far outweighs their concern for the future of education in Michigan.

Last week's vote to ditch the property tax system without a plan to replace funding was an act of irresponsible adolescence. And like teenagers who have misbehaved, these errant legislators should be roundly disciplined for putting their careers before our children's future.

Legislators are acting like gambling casino dealers instead of responsible lawmakers. Since they have chosen to gamble with our educational system they should be put out of office if they lose this bet. This is particularly true for leaders such as Gov. John Engler and wannabe leaders such as Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, who sponsored the legislation in the Senate.

We, of course, have some locals, who deserved to be soundly paddled for going along with this ridiculous prank.

For 20 years state politicians have been attempting to foist the property tax monkey off their back. But instead of working out an alternative strategy that makes sense, they have attempted to punish voters because we rejected the carnival-like Proposal A.

Offering a plan that simply shifts taxes from the basically equitable property tax system to other regressive modes, such as sales and income taxes, isn't the answer. The perceived inequality of property taxes and that those taxes should not be paid at all has become stuck in the groove of a broken record, needling the Legislature through 20 years of inaction. So there was no slow dancing in the state's capitol, when in a quick two-step, first the Senate, then the House approved the historic SB1, wiping out school operating property taxes without giving heed to how the money will be will employ them — legislators were making all the wrong moves.

Trading gridlock for chaos as they did the limbo last week, legislators cut $6 billion in local taxes for residential, commercial and industrial property in 1994 in Michigan.

The Legislature had alternatives to quell the noisome qualities of property taxes.

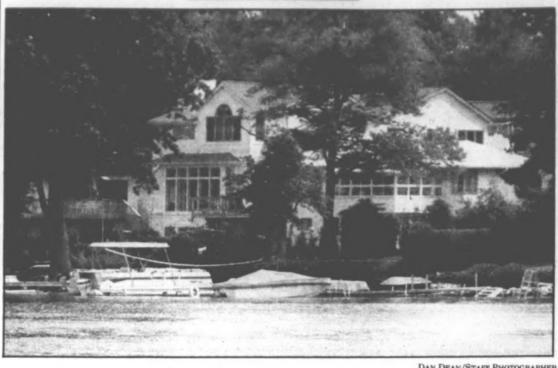

Legislators could have taken steps to assure taxpayers, such as retirees and those on disability, that they wouldn't lose their homes. They also could have made home ownership easier for first time buyers.

Remember state Representative Barbara Dobb, R-Commerce Township, who told a reporter last week that she couldn't wait to get to the floor to vote yes on the bill because that's what she came to Lansing to do. We remind her that the job is only half done, and done irresponsibly unless equitable, substitute funding is found.

Out of the chaos remember as well the voice of state Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham. "The train was on the tracks and it's running without brakes," Bouchard said. " . . . But I'm going to be one loud voice we do not destroy good districts and begin the largest Robin Hood plan we've ever seen.'

We're going to hold Bouchard to that, and expect that he lead the way in a bi-partisan effort to pull suburban school districts out of educational limbo.

A no vote

y hat is off for Jerry Vorva in Thursday issue. I fully agree with his main thrust; namely, the school system is comprised of unions from the lowest job up through teachers, administrators, principal and superintendents. To get on the board one must be education minded. All respond to MEA.

Remember the highly publicized Blue Ribbon Committee "vision into the year 2010." Well, we have 17 years to go yet. They spent $60 million dollars for buildings and material things but forgot to plan for operation, or did they even plan to plan. Jerry certainly tells it as it is.

My idea, one I share with others is as one editor has stated in writing, "Retire and all go fishing. You've earned it. You will sleep better

Last, I say vote "no" on 4 mills. We will be allowed to vote again in October. How generous of them. Their motto, "all for one and one for

am sure, by now, that you are all well aware of the current problem facing the Plymouth-Canton Schools concerning the millage. Much has been debated in recent months over important related issues.

What it all boils down to is that if the millage doesn't pass this time around, all extra-curricular activities will be dropped from our schools. This list would include sports, cheerleading, band (one of the best programs in the nation), debate, and a number of after-school honorary clubs and societies.

All of the great memories we have of our high school days can be directly attributed to these activities. Now there is a chance that they will no longer be available to the present and future students at Canton and Salem, many of whom are our younger brothers and sisters.

Every time you see someone from high school, whether it be someone you lined up next to on the field, swam laps with in the pool, shot extra free throws with after practice, cut weight with for four months, competed in national band competition with, worked on a pompon routine with, or cheered on your team to victory with, think about what you would possibly talk about if you weren't able to participate in these activi-

Think about the many of us who were able to go on to a good college on scholarships because, with the help of our coaches and teammates, we were able to perform and prove ourselves every week on the field, on the court or on the mat. What would our lives be if it weren't for that, chance? This is what our younger brothers and sisters are facing today if this millage isn't

I did not attend Canton or Salem with my friends, but I grew up in this community, one that is strongly based on family and friends. I grew up here playing Little League football and baseball, learning from volunteer coaches from this community. These people helped me develop my skills and grow, until I eventually earned a scholarship to play football in college. I cherish the memories I have of high school and my days spent with my friends playing football and baseball and together winning awards and winning championships.

I think of the captains and other seniors of the teams for this 1993-94 school year, who will have their dreams of victory and hopes of earning a scholarship to a good school destroyed with a vote of "no." Imagine how they will feel for the rest of their lives if they are forced to miss this opportunity they have worked so hard for. I can't even imagine what an awful and empty feeling that would be.

All I ask now is that all of us who have benefited from our schools' programs to recall your memories of high school. Whether they be playing in the Silverdome for the national band competition or performing your pompon routine in the Plymouth Fourth of July parade, or just making the game-saving tackle on Friday night in front of all your friends. After reminiscing for a while, make sure you vote yes on the millage proposal and give other kids the same opportunity we had.

I don't know why a successful, prosperous, ever-growing community would want to take these opportunities away from their own kids. But it is now our turn to step in and vote yes to say thank you and give someone else the same chance we had.

Chris Johnston, Plymouth

n response to all the very angry, very vocal yes voters. If you spent half as much time and effort demanding accountability from our school board and administrators and from our state government as you have spent shaming and degrading the no voters, you might actually accomplish something.

Rather than demanding a new vote on the millage issue, why don't you demand to know why administrators are being recalled when programs remain cut? Why don't you demand to know why taxpayers are urged to "give up one fast-food meal per week" while administrators receive a 5 percent pay increase?

Why don't you demand to know why they continue to shove this developmentally appropriate curriculum down the throats of parents who know it does not work in our schools?

Why don't you demand that our state government get its priorities in order and cut unnecessary spending in order to come up with the funding necessary for quality schools?

esponsible editorials provide informed viewpoints based on facts; you seem to have forgotten that in your editorials in today's Plymouth Observer.

Addressing the items you mention in your editorial

The administrators took a 2 percent concession on their contract last year. In return for that, their contract was extended another year with a 5 percent pay increase this year.

The teacher's union was asked, months ago, to forego their 3 percent pay increase. We were willing to commit to using every dollar saved from that to bring teachers back from layoff. The union declined to put the proposal to a vote of their membership.

The proposal of offering early retirement incentives to finance the 3 percent pay increase would not save the school district any significant amount of money unless a rather large number of teachers, about 50, opted to take it.

For the plan to work, enough teachers need to take retirement so we can recall all the teachers on layoff and then hire a significant number of new teachers at the bottom of the pay scale.

Last year, less than 30 teachers took the early retirement incentive. This year, even fewer would likely accept it. While we appreciate this suggestion from the teacher's union, we cannot see how it will save any money.

As for the employees recalled at the last school board meeting, it was done as part of our normal way of operation. Whenever layoffs are necessary, we provide at least 60 days notice to the affected employees. At the time we issue the layoff notices, we have no idea how many people will choose to retire, resign or take medical leave by the end of the school year. Therefore, we issue a "worst-case" number of layoff notices and recall people as we find out what vacancies become available due to resignations, retirements and leaves. We are not trying to be sneaky or dishon-

The saddest thing about this whole issue of how much we spend for schools is this: We have lost the vision that we want our children to be better educated than we were. As a community, we are willing to sacrifice the future of our children to save a few dollars.

Real improvements to public education will not come from people screaming poverty. Improvements will come when people understand what is happening in education and offer their time and talents to make it better. Public ignorance of education is what got us into this mess; public enlightenment is the only way out. Fighting over money will accomplish nothing.

I also take issue with Steve Barnaby's editorial in the same issue of the Plymouth Observer.

The public has certain expectations of the public schools. It costs money to meet them. When we don't have enough money to meet the expectations, we ask the voters to make a choice. We identify the areas where we will not meet expectations and we identify the costs of meeting those expectations. I resent the implication that we are "holding children hostage" to get a millage increase passed. We are trying to give the children of our community the best education we can.

What's so arrogant about that? At every step, the welfare of the students is foremost. Where budget cuts are necessary, they are done so as to have minimal impact on learning on the classroom. That is why extracurricular activities are usually the first items to be cut. Is it arrogant to put academics above athletics in impor-

When we decided to place a millage increase on the ballot on June 14, we also decided to give the voters as much information as we could on where the money would go. Since teachers' salaries are the single largest item in our budget, we decided to try to get the teachers' contract settled well before June 14 so this major portion of our costs would be known to the voters. In return for 3 percent (about cost-of-living), we got some favorable contract language changes and an early settle-ment. Is it arrogant to be honest with

On June 28, over 2,000 people came to the school board meeting. We were presented with petitions signed by over 5,000 people urging us to put the millage issue back on the ballot as soon as possible. Are we arrogant because we listened to these people and did what they wanted us to do?

Jack Farrow is a Plymouth resident and a member of the Plymouth Canton. school board.

Not listening

t seems that the no voter is still being ignored. The school survey asked many questions; unfortunately the election committee never asked the voters "if they voted no, why they choose to vote no?"

More than 8,700 voters voted no, maybe a few misunderstood or mistrust the district's position, but to assume that many voters are not intelligent enough to understand the meaning of their no vote is an insult to the citizens of

This is the age of the informed voter. Today's voter reads, gathers information, and makes decisions based on facts provided by the school district. Some voters base their choice on the relationship they have with the school system, others base their vote on their pocketbook. It's about time the administration started listening to the public. They don't like the way the school is spending the tax money they receive.

Fact No. 1 — A large group of parents are unhappy with the elementary school curricu-

Fact No. 2 - Less than 40 percent of the high school students play sports, or march in the band, or participate in any after-school activities. Why should 60 percent of the parents pay for the minority of students who participate?

Fact No. 3 — The district agreed to a contract with the union that increased teachers salary by 3 percent and we didn't have the funds to pay for that raise before the first election.

Fact No. 4 — The district agreed to pay administrators an additional 3 percent plus the 2 percent postponed from the 92/93 contract and we don't have the funds to pay them unless the 4 mills are passed.

The question isn't do these employees de-

The question is do we cut programs and services to give these select employees a raise. If so, when do we give the rest of the staff a raise, i.e., bus drivers, cooks, secretaries, janitors, security guards, library aides, the classroom aides.

If we can afford a raise for one group, why can't we afford it for all the employees? The reality is we can't afford to give anyone a raise, unless we cut programs and services.

The 93/94 budget eliminated several programs in order to meet the contractual obligations the district has entered into with the union, prior to the June millage election. Now the administration and the board of education expect the property owners to bail them out of the problem and if we don't, the cuts stand.

Carol L. Bollman, Canton

ast week some friends of ours were telling us about an apparent new scheme that is in operation to help pass the proposed 4 mills school tax. It goes like this. Young people who recently graduated from the Plymouth-Canton School system are contacted and asked to be sure that as soon as they turn 18 years old, if they haven't already, to get themselves registered to vote for the upcoming millage question. They are then encouraged to vote yes.

Young people who have just graduated, living at home and for the most part are college bound are being asked to throw their support behind a tax program that they will not have to help pay.

To vote is certainly the right of every citizen. But to coerce a segment of the Plymouth-Canton School system voting population, to swing this question to the yes side, especially when that segment will not have to pay, to me is dishonest and dirty politics at its best. If the millage does pass this time, it will give the school administration, school board and teachers one more time to slip by without listening or being accountable to those of use who are paying the

Tinkering with education failed to solve its problems

ast week the Legislature abolished the local school property tax, thereby yanking at least $5.6 billion out of funding for Michigan's kindergarten through 12th grade

Contemplating the wreckage yields two conflicting feelings.

My head says at last we have a chance to break through 25 years of futile argument about school financing and get something serious

My heart asks if those clowns in Lansing are really going to screw my son, Nathan, who enters sixth grade this fall.

First, for the head.

There is absolutely no doubt that education in Michigan is a mess. Not only is there a tremendous disparity in per student funding between rich districts and poor ones, but overall the system today is educating 25 percent fewer kids than it was 15 years ago, costing 25 percent more per student (after inflation) and yielding declining test scores.

Attempts to find a way out have all failed, in part because each merely tinkered at the margins (thereby allowing the lobbyists to kill anything useful) and in part because each failed to link reform in finance to serious improvement in educational quality. Precisely because what the Legislature did last week is so radical, the pressure is on to produce far reaching remedies. Or so they say. Already two large positions are being staked out, both based on relating spending to what kids actually learn. One calls for "voucherizing" the entire system, giving parents vouchers for a certain amount of money and relying on market forces to drive improvements in educational quality. The other urges creating a state-wide assessment system and linking funding for schools with performance against this standard. Both are based on widely available information about student learning. This newspaper regularly publishes results of the MEAP tests, district by district, building by building. Nothing we have ever done has aroused such intense reader interest.

My head concludes that the basis now exists for serious reform of our kindergarten through 12th grade system.

My heart reacts with the deepest possible skepticism for a number of reasons.

PHILIP POWER

Attempts to find a way out have all failed, in part because each merely tinkered at the margins (thereby allowing the lobbyists to kill anything usoful) and in part because each falled to link reform in finance to serious improvement in educational quality.

First, it hardly inspires confidence that even the apologists for what the Legislature did last week admit that our system of representative democracy can only function when faced with a crisis. Holding 1.8 million kids hostage to the legislative process is, well, scary.

Second, this issue is so complicated, so ideological and so infested with lobbyists representing so many special interests that it's hard to believe state government will act in time to prevent disaster. A telling indication of the Legislature's reluctance to discipline itself came when attempts to impose a deadline to come up with a financing plan before school starts in 1994 were all defeated.

Third, I'm old and grumpy, but my memory is still pretty good. And I remember two things that feel a lot like what happened last week. The enormous tax cuts at the beginning of . the Reagan Administration, masquerading as a stimulus to the economy, in fact provoked the disastrous ballooning of the deficit that still plagues us.

The U.S. Army officer said during war in Vietnam something along the line that "We had to destroy the village in order to save it."

Pitcher "Drew" Margolick was quite the artist Sunday, leading Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury to the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff championship with a 7-3 triumph over Little Caesars at Ford Field.

The North Farmington High grad, whose first name is Andrew, threw a masterpiece. With an easel and brush in his left hand, he painted the corners with a precious touch for nine innings against the league's most potent offensive team.

Finesse wins under-16 tourney

After an unscheduled — and certainly unwanted - detour, Finesse under-16 girls softball team emerged with its fourth tournament championship of the summer, capturing the USSSA qualifier for the nationals in Dayton, Ohio Sunday.

Finesse defeated Touch of Class (from Miamisburg, Ohio) for the second time in three meetings in the tournament, 8-3 Sunday for the title. Sarah Rowe (from Plymouth Canton) excelled at the plate, going 4-for-4 with one run batted in and two runs scored. Vonne Jenks (Garden City) added three hits and a run scored.

Christina Boguslawski (Dearborn St. Alphonsus) contributed a two-run double and Carah Best (Plymouth Salem) a two-run single to the Finesse cause. Sherry Foster (Dearborn Edsel Ford) had two hits

The team's "detour" came in what could have been the title game. On Sunday, Touch of Class defeated Finesse 8-4 - a victory aided by six Finesse errors. Stacey Phillips (St. Clair Shores Lakeshore) and Kelly Klene (Westland John Glenn) each had two hits, with Phillips driving in two Earlier that same day, Finesse had romped to a 15-8 win over Touch of Class. Teresa Reese (Lakeshore) had a two-run single and a two-run triple, and Colleen Wutke (Garden City) had a tworun homer and scored four times. Rowe and Jenks also had two hits Finesse advanced on Saturday easily, beating the Milford (Ohio) Hit-Hers 11-1 and the Lady Rebels (Columbus, Ohio) 23-0.

Northville newcomer wins Redford Roadrunner race

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Livonia's John Patterson, who has run all 10 Redford Roadrunner Classics, seemed to sum up the sentiments of most of the 839 runners and walkers who entered the 8-kilometer race Saturday evening in Northville.

"The quote used to be that Redford had the worst course and the greatest party," he said. "Now it's one of the best courses, and it still has the greatest party.

Patterson likened the hilly course to "a mini-Crim." (The Bobby Crim is a gruelling 10-mile run held each August in Flint).

Redford switched its course from the flat, cement streets of Livonia to hilly, scenic Northville this year. Northville Downs served as the site for the finish line and post-race party.

Fittingly, new Northville resident Rick Brauer, 30, won the race in 25:15.

Brauer, who led from the get-go, is a new arrival from California where he did some Olympic training until injury struck. The former Youngstown State runner hung with the lead pack at the start before waiting until the first turn "to let the photo seekers get out of the way." " I hit the mile in 4:43 and then just settled in after that, Brauer

Redford gains Mickey Mantle district

It's not over yet. Redford's Mickey Mantle team finished in a tie with Westland America for third place in the Little Caesar's Baseball League, good enough to land a berth in the American Amateur Baseball Congress district tournament hosted by Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton Thursday through Saturday.

Redford, which was 17-3 during the regular season, opens against the North Oakland County representative at 9:30 a.m. today at Salem. If Redford wins, it plays again at 3:30 p.m. at Salem; if it loses, it plays at 6:30 p.m. at Canton. The championship game will be Saturday at Salem.

Redford finished its regular season with a 12-10 loss to South Farmington Saturday at Redford Union and a 15-5 victory over the Walled Lake Vikings Friday at Walled Lake Western.

Redford had 10 hits against South, led by Rob Laho's 3-for-4, with three runs batted in and three runs scored. Greg Rogers, Robert Septer and David Karrick each had two hits, with Septer getting two RBI.

In the win over Walled Lake, Laho again paced the offense with three hits and two RBI. Ray Kastl had two hits and three RBI, Mark Juncaj had two hits and two RBI and Rogers collected two hits and two runs scored. Todd Tobin was the winning pitcher.

Redford added three players to its roster from non-playoff teams: Randy Pfeiffer, a catcher from Trenton; Taylor Heid, a shortstop from Bloomfield Hills; and Mike Mullins, a righthanded pitcher from Dearborn Heights.

The win puts the regular season LCBL champs into the All-American Amateur Baseball Association regional against Washington. D.C. at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Altoona, Pa. Two of the eight teams will advance to Johnstown (Aug. 9-14).

Pitching was obviously the key to Hines Park's success during the regular season and it carried over into the playoffs. But after clinching the regular season title with two weeks to go, Hines Park tailed off during the latter stages of the campaign. To make matters worse, injuries to pitcher/infielder Scott Kapla (inflamed elbow) and Jason Riggs (broken ankle) made Hines Park's playoff bid look

"I knew the intensity would be there this weekend and it certainly was," first-year Hines Park manager Ken Wandzel said. "A lot of people wrote us off because we had only 12 guys available, but like my old football coach Tom Mach at Catholic Central says, The magic is in the believing. We believed in ourselves and it

In Friday's LCBL opener of the four-team double-elimination playoffs, right-hander Jeff Paluk (Plymouth Salem High/Saginaw Valley State) pitched a gem, going nine strong innings in an 8-3 triumph over Westland Federation. Paluk struck out nine, walked only three and hit a batter while allowing just six hits.

In the seventh, Hines Park put it away when Ross singled and Gary Pierce walked. Both came around on another Caesars infield throwing error.

"It was awesome to shut a team like Caesars down (on Saturday) and to come back on Sunday and contribute with the bat was a great thrill," Ross said.

Earlier in the day, Caesars eliminated Del-Wal, 5-4, as Jesse Gerwatowski pitched seven seven innings to gain the victory.

Gerwatowski needed relief help from Adam Marano (11/s innings) and Mark Van Ameyde (save). Todd Boike, who took the loss, went the distance for Del-Wal. Aaron Mach went 3-for-4 to pace Caesars. Mike White added two hits, while Mark Rutherford contributed a two-run double.

Tommy Grigg had a two-run double for Del-Wal. Chris Munson also knocked in two runs.

In the battle of unbeatens Saturday, Hines Park beat Caesars, 6-2, as Pierce, Davey and Margolick each collected two hits.

Del-Wal pounds Westland

Earlier in the day, Del-Wal ousted Westland, 9-1, as Todd Faulkner had two hits and three RBI. Mike Pesci (Farmington Harrison/Yavapai JC) added a two-run double. Noah Bremen also had two hits.

Winning pitcher John Vandenbrink, the league earned run average champion (1.50), raised his record to 4-2 by going the distance on a four-hitter. He allowed just four hits and struck out five.

Del-Wal starter Mark Temple (North Farmington/Michigan), however, was rocked on Friday, allowing seven straight hits and eight runs in two innings as Caesars romped to an 18-1 (mercy rule) victory.

Van Ameyde, the winning pitcher, struck out five and allowed just four hits in six innings.

Offensively, Mark D'Antonio collected four hits, while Mach and Andy Gagne each contributed three. (Mach, the right fielder, homered and doubled). Jerry Shippe, Roman and Patterson also contributed two hits apiece.

Hines Park kicked off the double-elimination tourney with an 8-3 win over Westland, which was plagued by base-running miscues.

Pierce, Gundry, Davey, Margolick and Brian Paluk each had two hits for the winners. Hines Park out-hit Westland, 13-6.

Joe Biedenbach doubled and tripled in a losing cause.

Kelly chooses Detroit-Mercy

Mary Jo Kelly, a three-spor ar from Livonia Ladywood signed a national letter of inte last week to play softball at the University of Detroit-Mercy.

Kelly was an All-Observer first-team choice in volleyball and softball and made second-team All-Observer in basketball as a senior so deciding which sport to play was about as hard as deciding which college to attend.

"Personally, I think I play basketball the best but everyone tella me I play volleyball best," Kelly said. "Softball is fun for me and I look forward to playing at U-D Mercy. They have a good program over there.'

Kelly said she considered playing both basketball and softball at Tri-State University in Indiana and playing softball as a preferred walk-on at the University of Michigan. Kelley, a pitcher at Ladywood, said she will receive a partial scholarship and play infield at U-D Mercy for at least a couple years before possibly getting a chance on the mound. "I wanted to go into engineering and play softball," said Kelly,

Saginaw Bay great for bass fishing

PARKER

It's no secret that Saginaw Bay provides Michigan anglers with some of the best sport fishing in the midwest. With 1,143 square miles of surface area (from Point Lookout near Au Gres to Sand Point near Case-ville and south to the Saginaw River) covering a sand, clay, rock, and gravel bottom walleye and yellow perch tend to dominate the fishery. So why is Roland Martin - host of the cable TV show on TNN "Fishing With Roland Martin" coming up from Florida to do a show on the bass fishery in Saginaw Bay.? "The bass fishery in Saginaw

Bay is probably lower Michigan's best kept secret," explained Rochester's Art Ferguson III, one of Michigan's premier professional bass anglers. "There is such an abundance of bass out there it's incredible. There are a lot of walleye and perch fishermen out there, but not a lot of people pounding the bass every day. You don't catch a lot of five and sixpounders, but they're out there. And two and three-pounders are everywhere. Pound-for-pound I consider it the best bass lake in

Ferguson will guide Martin around the bay when he comes up to tape the show. The duo is also hoping to take in a couple tournaments - the Wayne County Bass Anglers Open on the Lower Detroit River and the Michigan Bass 'N Gals Open on Lake St. Clair while Martin is in town.

"Roland Martin is the most famous bass fisherman that ever lived," said Ferguson. "He's been to 17 B.A.S.S. Masters Classics and he's been the National B.A.S.S. Angler of the Year something like nine times. I've never had the opportunity to fish with him personally, but he's one of my idols. It will be a great honor to be in the boat with him.'

Ferguson, who runs a guide service on Saginaw Bay, Lake St Clair and the Detroit River during the summer, guides on Florida's Lake Okeechobee during the winter months. He works out of the Roland Martin Marina, which is where he first met the living leg-

"He's wanted to come up to Saginaw Bay for five years," added Ferguson. "We hope to spend about four days on the water."

The winning edge

Ferguson has already spent a lot of time on the water this summer and has achieved very favorable results. In eight tournaments so far he has finished first three times, second three times, seventh once and eighth once.

Ferguson and Rochester resident George Hoffman opened the season on May 22 with a secondplace finish in the Professional Bass Fishermans Circuit tournament on Saginaw Bay. Using Bulldog spinnerbait and Gitzits with Bulldog jig heads the two hauled in a six-bass limit that weighed 18.87 pounds. Ferguson teamed up with Redford's Marnie Harris on June 19th and won the Backlashers Bass Club's Lake St. Clair Open. They caught an eightbass limit that weighed 25.02 pounds, again using Bulldog spinnerbait and jig heads with Gitzita.

On June 24th Ferguson and Birmingham's Robert Sultsman joined forces to place second in the Bass Anglers Sportsmans Society Motown Classic on St. Clair. They boated a 10-fish limit that tipped the scale at 20-pounds, 1ounce. Livonia's Ed Dietrich joined Ferguson on June 26 in the PBFC tournament on Lake St. Clair. Using Bulldog spinnerbaits and Bomber crankbaits they took top honors in the tournament with a six-fish limit that weighed 14.80 pounds.

"The reason I throw Bulldogs is because they come with Gamagotsu hooks," explained Ferguson. "They're absolutely the sharpest hooks out of the package."

Ferguson teamed up with Hoffman in two other tournaments. On June 27th they used Bulldog spinnerbait, Slug-O's and Berkley Power Worms win the Macom County Bass Anglers Open with a six-fish limit that weighed 14.02 pounds. The defending champs of the Michigan B.A.S.S. Federation Circuit were back in action July 18 as they placed second in the Federation opener on St. Clair. Rat-L-Traps and resulted in an eight-fish limit that weighed in at 20.84 pounds.

Ferguson is also currently in the top eight of the Michigan Division of the Operation Bass Redman Tournament Trail after two of six scheduled tournaments. He placed eighth out of 142 anglers in the Red Man opener on Saginaw Bay and placed seventh out of 128 anglers on July 25 in the Red Man tournament in Muskegon.

'Into the Woods' colorful, entertaining

"Into the Woods," currently onstage at the Village Players Theatre in Birmingham, is a colorful, lively, thoroughly entertaining way to spend a midsummer evening. Produced by the Actors' Company, the Stephen Son-VICTORIA dheim musical is directed by Michael A.

Gravame, with musical direction by Martin Mandelbaum. 'Into the Woods" is a kind of behind-the-scenes peek at the lives of some of our most beloved fairy tale characters. Here is Little Red Ridinghood, on the way to visit you-know-

Here is the hard-working Baker and his wife, yearning for a child. Here is the witch. Here is Jack and his exasperated mother, along with that pesky Giant and all those magic beans. Here are Cinderella, Rapunzel, Snow White, Sleeping Beauty, the handsome prince. You get the picture. All are wishing for something, and in order to see their dreams come true (maybe), all must venture into the metaphorical Woods, dark and mysterious as they are. What happens then? Ah, but what happens after

The 15-member cast is not only talented and just plain fun to watch onstage, it's also impressively disciplined by Gravame (who is also impressive playing the hard-working gled, and sometimes bewildered, she's as bewitching as any witch you'll run across in dark, deep woods anywhere. "I'm not good. I'm not nice. I'm just right," she sings at one especially telling moment in this play. Nancy Potts is just right in this role. Her stage presence is remarkable. She can be funny, wicked and touching in just the right measure at just the right times. And her way with a Sondheim song will knock you out.

Other knockouts: Marnie Baumer as the charming brat, Red Ridinghood; Lisa Brandow as the Baker's willowy wife with the sometimeswandering eye; David Burtka as the energetic Jack the Giant Killer; Allison Leigh as a melancholy Cinderella; Christopher Pearce as Rapunzel's agonizing Prince with the golden, gorgeous hair; and Nicholas A. to be charming, not sincere. To say that some performers stand out in such an excellent cast is certainly not to find real fault with the rest, however. In fact, the overall, first-rate team effort here - onstage and offstage - is essential to making this production the enchanting success it is. Speaking of offstage contributions, set designer Tim Hughes deserves special applause for his simple but fanciful backdrops. Done in basic earth tones, and punctuated with royal blues, purples, and fairy tale gold, they set just the right mood for Sondheim's storybook stew of sweetness, sadness and silliness.

Costumes, put together by a ninemember group (including Gravame) play such an integral, effective part here, one hesitates to refer to them as "peripherals."

'Rising Sun': emotion-charged murder mystery

"Rising Sun," Twentieth Century Fox presentation opening Friday at suburban movie theaters, is a murder mystery set against the backdrop of U.S.-Japanese business relationships and competition.

Lt. Web Smith (Wesley Snipes), a liaison officer with the Los Angeles Police Department, is called to investigate the murder of a young woman in the boardroom of a Japanese corporation in downtown Los Angeles. A mysterious call puts him together with a strange, shadowy figure - Detective John Connor (Sean Connery), who is rumored to be under the influence of the Japanese.

Connor becomes his guide (the senpai) and leads the younger detective (kohai) through the investigation through futuristic technological secrets and through ancient ways and loyalties.

And as they close in on the mystery, the mystery closes in on them. Doors slide shut. A secret world opens.

"Rising Sun" is directed by Philip Kaufman and produced by Peter Kaufman with Sean Connery as executive director. The screenplay is written by Philip Kaufman, Michael Crichton and Michael Backes, based on the novel by Crichton, who also wrote the novel "Jurassic Park." "Rising Sun" also stars Harvey Keitel, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Kevin Anderson, Mako and Tia Carrere.

"The story has all the things that I find interesting in a movie: strong characters, a culture clash and a topic that's significant," said Sean Connery, who also serves as the film's executive producer. "There's a lot of humor in the film which is something I always search for in anything I do. You can reveal more through humor than through the actual telling of the story. No matter how dramatic, how bloody, how bad the circumstances, humor always gives a reassuring balance to things.

Many of the lighter elements in 'Rising Sun" come as a result of the contrasting viewpoints that John Connor and Web Smith bring to the murder investigation.

For Connor, this new partnership creates a dynamic which he immediately understands. The Japanese call it a senpai/kohai union, which clearly defines the roles of the senior and junior partner in any business situation.

"It's just a given that at meetings and at other types of dealings, the top person is never up front," said Connery. "The real No. 1 man is always observing while the junior man does the

Unfortunately, this philosophy isn't taught at American police academies. Web Smith, whose nononsense approach to police work has yielded great success in the past, is resistant to being bogged down by the protocol of a society not his own. But as both men adapt to the working methods of the other, a mutual respect is

The supporting cast of "Rising Sun" is led by Keitel. It is Keitel's character, Lt. Tom Graham, who gives a face to the hostility with which some Americans respond to the growing Japanese presence in their country. It is through this character that the phrase "Japan-bashing" packages a lot of emotion and generates an almost immediate gut reaction when it is used or portrayed.

Contrasting Keitel's inflammatory character in "Rising Sun" are a number of actors from the Japanese-American acting community, including Tagawa, Stan Egi and Mako. They work alongside co-stars Anderson, Carrere, Ray Wise and fashion model Tatjana Patitz in her acting debut to supply the film with its array of heroes and villains.

"The real luxury with the Japanese roles in 'Rising Sun' is that they are not simple characters who walk the typical lines," said Tagawa, who plays the key role of Eddie Sakamura. "Eddie is a man who is caught between the Japanese and American cultures, with certain loyalties pulling him in different directions.

"Because there are so few Japanese writers in Hollywood, as well as projects that honestly deal with the Japanese and Japanese-American communities, this type of character hasn't really been seen in the American cinema.

"These are certainly two different cultures, two quite different concepts of how one solves problems," said Connery. "I think there is a great deal to be learned from the Japanese, not just from business practices but from their culture. And the Japanese can learn from America, which is something they seem to do very on the baseball field, wants desperately to catch it. A trip on an errant ball sends

Henry flying into the air Charlie Brown-style and smack onto his shoulder. Months in a cast tighten the tendons in his arm to such an extent that they snap with the force of a mousetrap spring when he lobs a baseball.

Soon Henry finds himself under contract to the Cubs, pitching to real-life players like Pedro Guerrero and Barry Bonds. Gary Busey plays Chet "Rocket" Steadman, a once-great but nowtired pitcher who Henry ends up relieving in earlier and earlier innings.

As the kid, Nicholas is cute enough and nerdy enough for the role. He spends most of the film with his mouth gaping open, even after several games, and the geewhiz quality wears a bit thin after a while.

The always-watchable Busey sports a mustache and thick blond hair tucked up under his Cubs hat. He looks like a majorleague player and acts like one too, though the usual pitchers' cheekful of chew has mysteriously disappeared.

The real rookie in this picture is Daniel Stern, stepping up to the plate for his first time as director. Penny Marshall and Henry Winkler have gone behind the camera, so why not this gangly character actor, best known for playing one of the bad guys in the 'Home Alone" movies?

While he succeeds in bringing wholesomeness back to the movies, Stern gives himself an irritating part as a super-dweeby pitching coach who walks into walls and locks himself in closets. The rest of us aren't quite prepared for such a literal tribute to Jerry

Stern and screenwriter Sam Harper may have underestimated their audience. Most kids, especially teenagers, are too sophisticated to fall for anything this dopey. They like a realistic framework even during an obvious fantasy.

I know it's a movie, but Henry always tries out new stuff (like pitching and batting) in front of a sellout crowd at Wrigley Field. Don't these guys ever work anything out in practice? And why do the Cubs have only two pitchers in the bullpen?

There's a message in here somewhere as Henry realizes that a career in baseball is only a fleeting dream-come-true. Friends and family are what really matter in the long run.

Parents will love "Rookie of the Year;" so will some small children. But most of the teenagers I know will be snoozing after 20 minutes or sneaking into the neighboring theater for a second run through "Jurassic Park."

The Tailgate Ramblers will perform at the Prudential Sunbowl behind the 3000 Prudential Town Center off Civic Center Drive. The Larry Nozero Quintet will perform 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 4 at the historic Burgh Gazebo at Berg Road and Civic Center Drive. A picnic supper will be available for purchase 6-7:30 p.m.

Bandleader Jim Joseph, termed the "granddaddy of Dixieland," began the Tailgate Ramblers in 1956 and they've been steadily pumping life-blood into the metro Detroit Dixieland jazz scene ever since. The Ramblers began their professional career in 1959 as the house band at the Keyboard Lounge, one of the nation's oldest jazz clubs.

With a swinging and soulful style that is both lyrical and expressive, native Detroiter Larry Nozero has faithfully continued Detroit's rich jazz legacy. The national release of his latest recording "Kaleidoscopin," heralds his ascent into the American jazz consciousness and presence in a new generation of talented artists.

The state Legislature came un-der heavy fire Monday from some Wayne-Westland school officials for slashing school property taxes without announcing a plan for restoring the money.

But some school board members and residents appeared optimistic that the plan will finally force the state to find a school-financing solution.

Superintendent Larry Thomas said the latest action amounts to the Legislature telling school districts, "Don't worry, we have ended your paycheck, but somehow we're going to pay you.

board of education or the state Legislature should play games with students."

The district includes portions of eastern Canton Township, with about 300 families sending students to the Wayne Westland dis-

The state has decided to eliminate local school property taxes as a method of funding beginning with the 1994-95 achool year. But McCusker predicted lawsuits will be filed that will delay the plan possibly for years.

Board trustee Laurel Raisanen was among those who said she is optimistic for school finance reform. She even suggested the board should consider a resolution calling the plan "a coursgeous first step" and urging the Legislature to develop a "fair and

Westland landlord and atture? ney Walter Warren told the boards Monday that the state action is "a great day for the taxpayers of a Westland."

Warren, an outspoken critic oft rising teacher salaries, labeled theo growth of education costs "a cancer" but predicted that "I think those days are over.'

popularity of Cushman collectibles has pushed the asking price of a really good Cushman Eagle up into the low four figures, an incredible sum compared to the hundred bucks or so a good Eagle brought back when it was a couple of years old.

That was when you could get a license to drive a motor scooter when you were 14 years old, a concept that had something to do with the Jewish rites of manhood

> Motor scooters satisfied the blood lust of early adolescent for anything powered on wheels. The first kid I knew that had total freedom on wheels was a friend of mine who bought a Lambtetta motorscooter with his paper route money. After a couple of years or so struggling with broken clutch cables, pushing the thing home and delivering the papers on foot, I was ready for a British sports.

seemed to have a job, or at least admitted to one. Eagles reached their peak when Baby Huey drove one to a class record at Detroit Dragway powered by nitromethane model airplane fuel, a feat that should have guaranteed a place at Meadowbrook if nothing else did.

But as it turned out, motor scooters were a short-lived interlude in motoring history that eventually went the way of the Schwinn bicycle. Honda raised the specter of import competition that actually kept running, and then the liability attorneys and a safety-conscious public finished them off.

They were, of course, probably the most dangerous vehicles ever sold. Not just because of the combination of a 40-mph top speed guided by a mindless adolescent in the full throes of hormonal development. Mainly, the scooters

BIDCO a boost to business

■ Livonia-based Onset BIDCO is taking chances and winning on young small- and mediumsized business, and otherwise providing a boost to the state's economic picture.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Onset BIDCO, the second Business and Industrial Development Corp. to jump into the investment arena in Michigan back in 1989, has become the first to pay a dividend to inves-

Onset, headquartered in Livonia, recently paid primary stockholders/ owners Chrysler, the state of Michigan Pension Fund, Michigan Strategic Fund and Masco Corp. Pension Fund 12.5 cents per share.

The payout was some $160,000.

But perhaps more important for Onset and the small and mediumsized companies it may one day nurture with loans is that a couple hundred thousand dollars were retained for future investments.

That's good news for growing companies like: Advance Material Process Corp. in Wayne, which provides a technical processing service for increasing the strength of metal components. Onset loaned $1 million.

■ Intelligent Controls in Novi, which provides specialized engineering and management services and a proprietory line of test and control products primarily for the auto industry. Onset loaned $600,000.

■ Telesource in Pontiac, which remanufactures, repairs and sells telecommunications equipment. Onset loaned $750,000.

"We're coming in after a bank is al-ready involved," said Scott A. Eisenberg, also a vice president, investment officer and Bloomfield Township resident. "The bank has lent as much as it can based on collateral and the company still needs money."

Onset's four major investors put up $10 million to launch the venture in 1988. Since then, Onset has made 20 loans from $250,000 to just over $1 million to 17 companies.

The firm hasn't been burned yet, said Walter J. Aspatore, Onset president and a Bloomfield Hills resident. "Typically in any portfolio, you're going to have a bell-shaped curve," he said. "You have two or three stars, the majority making payments and one or two at the other end struggle a little bit.

"We're a lender," Aspatore said. "We will typically get a current interest rate on the loan (about 10 percent now) and we structure a success fee on the back end with warrants or roy-

Homeowners, buyers, builders laud new property tax cut plan

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The fallout from state legislation eliminating local property taxes for school operations beginning with the 1994-95 academic year will touch almost every homeowner, renter and prospective buyer in one way or another.

The exact form depends on what, if any, taxes are enacted to replace the local school property measure. But for now, some outcomes are fairly clear.

■ Homeowners who escrow their property taxes will have smaller monthly mortgage payments. But what of the escrow accounts, themselves? Standard Federal Bank, headquartered in Troy and the largest mortgage lender in the state, currently has some 135,000 residential mortgages in Michigan. About 75 percent escrow taxes.

Some surplus escrow balances could be refunded.

However, William R. Yaw Jr., marketing director for Standard Federal, provided a more likely scenario.

Tax bills for the upcoming 1993-94 school year, as in years past, will be received and paid by most financial institutions for their mortgagees this summer and in December.

Next year, at escrow analysis time, monthly mortgage payments will be adjusted downward to reflect elimination of the school tax for succeeding years. There would be no large surplus at that time because the money will have been paid out for taxes.

Minimal refunds

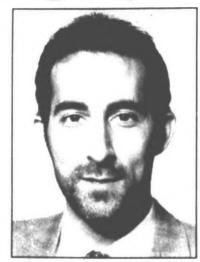

"My gut reaction is there will not be a need for massive refunds," Yaw said.

"We're batting a lot of things around," said Albert King, manager of mortgage operations for First Federal of Michigan. "There's so many variables involved, it's premature to say how we're going to do this.'

At least two things are appar-

If the Legislature doesn't implement a state property tax to fund school operations, monthly mortgage payments eventually will decrease for homeowners who pay their taxes through escrow accounts.

The other relates to banking

'You're going to see a reduction in interest income," said Ellen Batkie, manager of investor relations for First Federal of Michigan. "It can be replaced or lost. You can build it into the cost of mortgage servicing or you decrease your profit.'

Landlords and tenants both should benefit with the property tax cut, said Jonathan Holtzman, co-chairman of a Farmington Hills company that owns 10,000 Village Green and Village Park apartment units.

'The highest operating expense for an apartment community is real estate taxes," he said.

Property taxes here range from $300 to $1,200 per unit annually, Holtzman said. Elimination of the school portion, about 65 percent of the total bill, will especially help landlords in high-tax com-

"What you're going to end up with is consistency. I think that's good for everybody," he said.

It's reasonable that tenants would expect to share in the financial good fortune of their landlords, Holtzman conceded.

"I think what will end up happening is competitive forces will create more value for renters," he said. "Real estate taxes going down will give renters much more choices. When things are competitive, it's always better for con-

Like his banking counterparts, Holtzman was reluctant to predict exactly how things will shake out until the Legislature determines, what if any, taxes will replace the local school property

'I think what will end up happening is competitive forces will create more value for renters. Real estate taxes going down will give renters much more choices. When things are competitive, it's always better for consumers."

Wait and see

"The whole program hasn't been articulated yet," he said. "They may come back and put on some business tax that will offset that."

■ Houses become more affordable for first-time buyers and move-up purchasers can acquire more house for the dollar.

As a general rule, housing costs including principal, interest, taxes and insurance shouldn't exceed 28 percent of gross monthly income, lenders say. Many people think payment when they shop.

By eliminating local school property taxes, the buyer of an $80,000 house in the Birmingham School District could afford another $93 monthly in interest and principal, in the Livonia School District $103 and in the Troy School District $115.

The advantage compounds with lower interest rates.

"It will make first-time buyers qualify for a larger mortgage, which means you can get into a bigger home," said Edward J. LeVoir, regional director for the Re/Max realty firm. "And it also frees up money for additional purchases, appliances and other things for the house."

Mary M. Arlinghaus, president of Pierce Realtors and president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors, sees a shortterm benefit. Longer-term benefits will depend on what happens to the quality of local schools.

"In some instances, it will make it easy to qualify," she said. "In some cases where taxes are

Serve kids 'kool, kwik' summer food

When the kids Finally come inside from pounding the pavement with skates and scooters, sunkissed skin and sand in their hair, they're usually hungry. Their appetite often calls for immediate

Food that is satisfying, tasty and light is th best thing to serve the hungry horde. Heavy meals with thick pastry creams and sauces are less favorable in the summer months.

Children prefer quick and easy to handle foods. Foods that won't take hours to prepare are welcomed not only by the children who, when hungry, can demand in-a-hurry meals, but by busy parents as well.

Serving foods that require minimal preparation and contain the necessary nutrients in the way to go. As for children and tasty, healthy meals, it is perhaps better to take those favorite foods, such as cheese, noodles, applesauce, spaghetti, corn and carrots with dip, and serve them with "good foods." Moreover, foods make great combination dishes - for example, turkey, cheese, tomato and lettuce, red kidney beans, taco sauce and sour Carmen Dostal, area coordinator for the Association of Child Development Child Care Food Program in Livonia, suggests that turkey breast pieces, ham chunks and pineapple are great for kabobs. She also says to serve plenty of fresh strawberries, offering color and a high source of vitamins A and C.

Dostal also suggests serving pita pocket bread, stuffed with a variety of meats, vegetables and cheese. And interestingly, salmon patties are a favorite, according to several child care providers and professional she consults with.

To give your meal planning ideas s thought start with these two weeks of suggested lunch or dinner menus.

Week I

Sunday - grilled barbecue chicken, crispy potato wedges, green beans, honey dew melon, rolls and butter and frozen lime yogurt pops.

Monday - Hamburger and bun, pasta salad, fruit cocktail, honey glazed carrots and strawberry

Tuesday - Ham and pineapple kabobs, rice pilaf, cheesy broccoli and crescent rolls.

Wednesday - Ground turkey pizza, celerycheese logs, cinnamon applesauce and oatmeal

Thursday - Sweet and sour meatballs, red eye (pimento) corn, potato pancakes, sliced peaches and kiwi fruit in orange juice and biscuit. Friday - Grilled salmon pattie, baked sweet potato, summer squash, fresh strawberries and cream and cheese bread twist.

Saturday - Hot dogs and buns, vegetable tray, baked beans, watermelon and ice milk sodas.

Week II

Sunday - Grilled cheese with pickle on whole wheat bread, sticky apple wedges (with peanut butter) and cool, lightly seasoned cucumber slices.

Monday — Open-faced turkey sandwich, sweet red tomato slices, fruit with yogurt (favorite fruit mixed with plain yogurt, cinnamon and raspberry

Tuesday - Grand Slam hero sandwich (cheese, meat, cucumbers and tomatoes alternating with crackers) and Michigan frosty (a blend of frothy orange juice, plain yogurt and a banana).

Wednesday - Spaghetti with sauce, tossed salad, fresh sweet cherries and garlic bread.

Thursday - Pig in the blanket (ham and vegetables with mayonnaise in a soft taco shell), cantaloupe slices, bugs on a log (carrots with cheese and raisins) and chocolate chip cookie.

Friday - Fish sticks, tator tots, cole slaw cups and frozen goofy grape pops.

Saturday - Open-faced peanut butter and pineapple sandwich, sweet peas and carrot salad and lemon gelatin with whipped cream. Now use you imagination.

Garaging it: Bargains to behold

■ It's hard to say who invented them, but call them garage sales, yard sales, moving sales or whatever, they're thriving. During any given week during warm weather, signs can be found, directing bargain hunters to stash. The only requirment - bring cash.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Helping set up her mother's garage sale, Erin LaHaie learned that sometimes in business you get a raw deal

The 3-year-old was eating breakfast at a parfait table when a customer came by and decided that was her purchase.

They bought it (the table) from underneath her," said her mother Kathy of Plymouth. "She said, 'I'm not done eating my breakfast yet.'

When it comes to garage sales, the adage about the early bird and the worm is most appropriate. She who gets there first gets the best pickings. And likewise, she who hesitates could wind up watching that just-got-tohave item being loaded into someone else's car.

Add to that the one about trash and treasures and you have garage sale style and etiquette wrapped up in a neat package.

For the seller, how well you do could be as simple as how well you advertise. Nail-studded utility poles are a side effect of the garage sale craze. Even old lawn signs are revamped for at-the-curb advertising. Balloons, penants, even step ladders have been pressed into service, all to attract the buyers.

Garage salers are gonzo bargain hunters with wheels. Many check the classifieds, looking for sales' specifics and planning routes so they can get to as many places as humanly possible. And at times, it seems like they have built-in radars. They can tune into a sign, note the location and be off as fast a sprinter Carl Lewis.

This is La Haie's first — and last - garage sale (and presumably the same for her daughter). She got an A for creativity for her yellow "Make Us An Offer" sign on her garage.

"If we weren't under necessity, we wouldn't be doing this because it's a pain in the neck," La Haie said.

Good pickings: Colton Ash, 7, of Plymouth helps Jennifer Hill, 10, of Monroe pick through a collection of games that he was selling at his mother's garage sale.

Half the pain is getting organized. Seems as though there's never enough space or table surfaces to display the goods. And heaven help you, if the sale encroaches on the forbidden zone. You could end up hoarse from telling people the lawn edger and hand tools aren't for sale. Then there's pricing. Too high and sales are slow; too cheap and you lose the room to barter. These motorized bargain hunters need to think they've gotten a good deal and the ability to cut prices even a dime can mean the difference between a sale and a walk

But for all the woes, garage sales do have one redeeming quality, according to LaHaie.

'I've met a lot of very nice people," she said, pointing out that "most of them have this (garage sale shopping) down to a science. They come for very specific things it seems.

Laura Freeman of Plymouth has a better outlook for her sales career.

"We have at least one sale a year, she said. She and her sister Julie Ash pooled their adult and children's clothes together to form a massive sale in the driveway of Ash's home.

Pam Danaher of Redford took advantage of Ash's and Freeman's goods to buy clothes for her upcoming grandchild.

Theresa Szymanski of Livonia also had grandchildren in mind, checking out the children's clothes stacked on tables in the hot sun.

Even their children got into the act. To cool off thirsty and sweaty customers, they held a lemonade sale in the shade near the "check-out table."

Aside from getting up early, putting ads in newspapers and posting signs to advertise the sale, garage sale orga nizers can look forward to more work in some cities. Garden City and Livonia both require organizers to pull

Rocker's the name; money's the aim

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

You could say Randall Short knows how to rock. He even has the nickname - Randy "the Rocker" Short - to prove it.

But you won't find him tearing up the dance floor. His kind of rocking involves a chair and the Michigan Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. In fact, you'll find him rocking at The Mobile Station at 13 Mile and Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak through tomorrow morning as part of WLLZ's fourth annual radiothon.

"I wanted to donate last year, but didn't have the money, so I called to see if there was some-thing I could do and they didn't know," Short said. "So because it's a rock station, I decided to sit in a rocking chair."

Short's rocking coincides with a marathon ra-dio show by the WLLZ morning team of Ken Calvert and Ed Kelly and a golfathon by a foursome including golf pro Dan White. All three events kicked off at 6 a.m. today (Thursday, July 29) and go until 10 a.m. tomorrow (Friday, July

Calvert and Kelly are broadcasting from the WLLZ studios in Farmington Hills where their on air antics include an auction of such oddities as a wedding in the bleachers at Tiger Stadium, original framed artwork by John Lennon, lunch with Bob Talbert and a courtside seat with Calvert at a Detroit Pistons game.

And while Short is in Royal Oak rocking away, White, with the foursome, is at the Wolverine Golf Club in Macomb County playing 350 holes.

To date, the WLLZ radiothon has raised more than $350,000 for the chapter.

Last year, the 25-year-old Westland resident raised $1,800 for the Leukemia Society; this year's goal is $3,000, and he expects to reach it, thanks to help from WLLZ.

Short has banners and WLLZ merchandise to give to people who donate. Late last week, organizers were still trying to find a recliner/rocker for Short who used his own chair last year. He had to cover it with plastic to protect it from the a woman who expresses herself well. Words and ideas flow easily. When combined with her imagination this could conceivably lead to literary talent. We are analyzing a bright young individual here. She has a keen mind that likes to investigate information and analyze it to her satisfaction. Then she ferrets out what she can accept and discards what she cannot.

This is also an ambitious woman who is not afraid of hard work. She is not living just for the moment. Many of her goals are for the long range and are at a level which requires challenge on her

One's past strongly influences the personality. To better understand our writer, we must look at her developmental years. During this time, it appears that her emotional needs were not always understood or met. Seemingly, she did not share a close relationship with mother or father.

Emotionally, she would like to move away from some past events, but still finds herself threatened by them. Other times, she yearns for the nurturing she feels she missed, but may also feel guilty and place blame on herself. This can result in ambivalence and/or indecision. One of her coping techniques is to concentrate on specific matters so completely that she can shut out feelings which tend to upset her.

She is self-conscious and easily hurt by personal criticism. A little resentment is also noted. If she can learn to forgive those responsible for these feelings she would find more happiness in her life.

Locomotive swaps freight for people

Fleet-footed and powerful? It sounds like an odd description for a 1940s steam locomotive that will make its intra-Michigan debut by pulling excursion trains on round trips from metropolitan Detroit to two separate outstate destinations in mid-August.

The well-known former Nickel Plate Road 2-8-4 fast freight locomotive Number 765 will •carry passengers from Livonia to Holland on Saturday, Aug. 14, and from Livonia to Flint and Saginaw on Sunday, Aug. 15. The public excursions are sponsored by Bluewater Michigan Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society and CSX Transporta-

In tribute to CSXT, successor to Michigan's Pere Marquette Railroad, the Chesapeake & Ohio and several other major carriers, Number 765 is being slightly reconfigured to resemble C&O Number 2765 for its trips in the Great Lakes State. The renumbered and relettered locomotive also will pull excursions in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia following its Michigan

The Aug. 14 excursion — the Windmill City Steam Special departs CSXT's Detroit Division Headquarters on Levan Road, two blocks south of I-696, at 8 a.m., and makes an intermediate passenger stop at the former Pere Marquette-Michigan Central station (now Clara's Restaurant) in downtown Lansing at 10 a.m. Arrival at Holland is scheduled for

1:30 p.m. Passengers will have 31/2 hours in Holland to tour Windmill Island, Baker Furniture Museum, the Holland Arts Center, Centennial Park, business district and area restaurants before the train returns to Lansing and Livonia.

On Aug. 15, the Saginaw Valley Steam Special will leave the Levan Road location at 9 a.m. and arrive at Flint's McGrew Yard on Coldwater Road at 11 a.m. Departure for Saginaw will be at approximately 11:30 a.m., arriving at

The Saginaw Valley Steam Special offers passengers two options: an afternoon at Crossroads Village and the steam-powered Huckleberry Railroad to celebrate Railfans' Weekend, or a tour of Bluewater Michigan Chapter's Saginaw roundhouse where Number 2765 will be turned and serv-

There will be tours of Number 2765's cab, tours of part of the roundhouse, including Bluewater's coach repair facility, and discussions by railroad veterans and local historians of Saginaw's importance to railroading in Michi-

Round-trip adult tickets (in air-conditioned coaches) for both trips are $79 (ages 16 and over) and $64 for children 6-15 years of age. Children 5 and under travel at no charge provided they do not occupy a separate seat. Silver Class Service, including lounge car seating, light breakfast, allday hors d'oeuvres and soft drinks, and a croissant sandwich supper, is $165 per person. Special fares are available to persons taking both the Holland and Saginaw trips.

Tickets must be purchased in advance. Information and ticketing is available at 399-7963. Visa, MasterCard and Discover may be used with telephoned orders. Boarding site maps and other information will be provided with train tickets.

All aboard: The former Nickel Plate Road fast freight locomotive will power two excursion trains from Livonia to Holland and Saginaw Aug. 14-15.

blankets. I got completely soaked, especially because I had to sit on plastic. Short did his rocking at a gas station in Livonia last year; that spurred competition among Livonia police officers on the midnight shift to see who could give the most. When it was all done, the patrol supervisor had out-given the rest, Short said.

"People threw change in a bucket; some donated $50," Short said. "Other people would hear the interviews on the radio and specifically drive by to donate."

Short would take five-minute breaks periodically and spent much of his time listening to the radiothon and talking to people who came by. There was no training for the event other than Short's plentiful "experience with the cable remote.'

But he has some "secondhand" experience with leukemia. An elementary school friend had leukemia and Short would go with him when he went to the hospital for treatments.

"I remember his screams when they'd stick the needle into his bone," Short said. That friend is in remission and is now a teacher in Alaska.

Program offers back-to-school basics

Thinking about college?

If you are, then now's the time to sign up for "Thinking About College," a daylong program for women who are considering returning to school. The program is offered by Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource

The program will be 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 4, on the college's Livonia campus and 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 5, at the Radcliff Center in Garden

"It helps alleviate a lot of problems for these women," said Nancy Swanborg, WRC director. "They think they're the only one at school who doesn't know what they want to be. They think they should, but that sort of feeling of not knowing is very common."

"Thinking About College" is offered in early August in time for walk-in registration for the fall term and again in November prior to the winter term. A spinoff of an informal support group formed in 1979, the program will start with an invitation for participants to introduce themselves, so everyone knows at least one person by name," according to Swanborg. They also are encouraged to write down questions they have, questions that will be answered during the day.

Topics will include getting started, affording college, financial aid, juggling responsibilities, and others.

And interstingly, salmon pat-ties are a favorite, according to several child care providers and professionals . . .

Faculty representatives from the business, computer science, child care development, fine arts, liberal arts, health care, technical fields and academic options departments will also be on hand to cover such Schoolcraft services as admissions, financial aid, registrar's office, counseling, Learning Assistance Center, Career Planning and Placement Center and the Women's Resource Center.

A panel of mature students will also share their experiences and answer questions. Each member of the "re-entry panel" will talk about her own experiences, covering such topics as goals, fears and challenges, a family's reaction to "Mom" going to school and support services.

"The panel lets the women hear from students who were where they were a year ago," Swanborg said.

The program also includes a tour of the campus directed by volunteer peer counselors from the resource center.

"Thinking of College" had its start in 1979. A new student who described herself as "going in the back door, but coming out the front" decided to return to school after a

Married, she had two teenage sons and no high school diploma, but with the encour-agement and support of other older female students, she earned her GED while simultaneously working on her collegiate studies. The group shared resources and ideas, along with solutions to on-campus and athome problems. Members met regularly at coffee hours that featured a program or speaker. The woman graduated from Schoolcraft in 1984 with an associate of arts degree and went on to earn her bachelor of arts degree from Eastern Michigan Univer-

With the loss of the group's leadership, the Women's Resource Center stepped in to fill in the gap, offering the first "Thinking About College" program in 1985. The pro-gram will start with check-in at 8:30 a.m. in Room LA 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the Livonia campus, Haggerty Road south of Seven Mile, and at 8:45 a.m. in Room RC-320 of the Radcliff Center, Radcliff south of Ford Road.

The campus program costs $5 and includes lunch, while the Radcliff program is $2.50 and includes refreshments but no lunch. Reservations can be made by sending checks, payable to Schoolcraft College, to the Women's Resource Center, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia 48152. For more information, call 462-4443.

Concert benefits prison chapel

A variety of musicians will be center stage, so to speak, at St. Gregory the Great Catholic Church in Detroit Saturday,

A gospel concert will be held that day for the benefit of the proposed Faith Chapel at the Scott Regional Correctional Facility in Plymouth.

The concert will be at 5:30 p.m. and will feature the gospel sounds of Miracle Christian Center, the combined choirs of St. Gregory and Madonna Catholic Churches, Hartford Memorial Baptist Church, Church of the Covenant, Christian Faith Church, Rita Clark, Judith Williams and Linda Johnson.

The fund-raiser is part of an expanded effort to build a facility at Scott to be used as a chapel and for other educational classes. The concept has been approved by the state, but must be constructed with other than state money.

Announcement of the plan was made several months ago, but publicity has been slow to spur interest, according prison

This new chapel will be used to meet the spiritual needs of inmates and to provide a setting for community volunteers to share their faith with the women of Scott.'

Rev. C. Vaughn Brown chaplain

chaplain, Rev. C. Vaughn

"This new chapel will be used to meet the spiritual needs of inmates and to provide a setting for community volunteers to share their faith with the women of Scott," Brown said.

A stone's throw from Western Wayne Correctional Facility, the old De-Ho-Co, the Scott Facility is a woman's prison, a fact perhaps unknown to many. Attempts are being made to offer inmates at the prison quality education in order to lift up their image and give individuals more insight into what they can do with their lives.

One way is "Women in the Scriptures." Not a new soap for the daytime TV fans, or an article for "Reader's Digest," 'Women in the Scriptures' is the title of a scripture course being taught at the Scott by Dave McKeon, a professor at St. Mary's Seminary at Orchard

The scripture course is a sixweek endeavor that began July 25 and continues Sundays through Aug. 29. It is offered to Level IV inmates, women doing long terms.

The course might be considered the "new look" for programs at Scott. Brown is slowly attempting to upgrade religious educational conditions in the prison and provide quality programs.

Brown has been joined in promoting the project by the Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, including Steve Spreitzer and the Rev. Thomas Physician of the Archdiocese's Criminal Justice Ministry.

Besides the "Women in the Scripture" class being taught in the prison by McKeon, a number of outside activities are planned to spark interest. The first is the gospel concert at St.

"As members of the Scott Community Volunteer Board, we are excited and challenged by this opportunity, and, hope that you will assist us with the Faith Chapel Building project," said Brown said in letter soliciting donations for the chapel build-

Tickets for the gospel concert are $10 each and are available by calling St. Gregory's at 861-0363. Donations for the Faith Chapel can also be made by sending checks, payable to State of Michigan, to Faith Chapel, P.O. Box 40422, Redford 48240.

For more information, about the project call Brown at 459-

Yes is a better message for our kids was enumerating REV. ROBERT some of the ma-SCHADEN jor problems in the world of today's adolescent. Topping the list were pregnancy, drugs, venereal diseases, including AIDS, and suicide.

Whether or not I have these in the proper order, I am not sure. There are, however, two things of which I am sure. One thing I know is that these are major problems which in their own lethal way make adolescence the beginning of the end of life itself.

The other thing I know is that our response to these problems, more pointedly our response to these kids, appears to be, at best driven by fear of the teens them-

Teens deserve something more than fear and cop-out tactics from those who are supposed to introduce them to life.

Frankly, our response to their problems says something sad about the legacy we offer them. On one hand, we tell them to simply say "no." Then at the same time we do not believe they have enough self-respect to say "no," so we hand them a package of condoms and tell them to be safe. Simply saying "no" is not adequate because it is not realistic. Simply using a condom is not realistic because it is not adequate.

Advocating "no" has never, in itself, changed a whole lot of adolescent behavior. For one thing, too many of those who hold out such a solution are peddling a double message. They too often stand with their one too many martinis in hand as they suggest saying "no" to drugs.

It is also true that ours is the generation that uses sex to sell everything from the clothes teens wear to the breath spray they inhale to the movies they are urged not to miss. We plaster the walls of the video and music stores with posters designed to stir the hormones of would-be buyers in any

The oxymoron "adult entertainment" screams out from neon lights and magazine advertisements. The soaps and so much more of television convey the message that sex is the most important ingredient of relationship, and that, indeed, sex is as fitting in the context of a weekend romp (with a condom, that is) as it is in a lifelong commitment.

In such an atmosphere, message is far weaker then the hormones coming to life in a generation that almost by definition believes itself to be immortal.

So, rather than create a society in which the message of no might at least be consistent with the media entertainment by which adults make their money, we opt for selling something else.

It is as if we are saying, "Look, we have done our part by telling you to just say no. At the same time we do not believe you will, so In such an atmosphere, the no message is far weaker then the hormones coming to life in a generation that almost by definition believes itself to be immortal.

here. Take this piece of latex and, for heavens sakes, don't talk to us about it, because your sexuality frightens us. How many of those who advocate mass condom distribution as the solution of choice for high schools would be comfortable knowing that their own daughter infected with HIV as long as a condom was in use? Many of those who would suggest that condoms make for safe sex among adolescents would be the first to sue a manufacturer of almost anything that failed as often as the misused or defective condom often does.

or son was in bed with a person

Yes, there are those who would counter with the suggestion that this is exactly why we need to instruct even the very young on proper condom use. Perhaps if we show 13- and 14-year-old how to live life properly, they would not have to learn about how to use a condom at a time when just making friends is difficult enough.

So if no is not heard and condoms are not all that safe, what do we do? What is the alternative? Why not at least begin by providing the kind of relationships with adolescents, parental as well as academic, in which they are free to talk about their fears. their misgivings and, yes, even their sexuality. And then we might teach them to say "yes."

The yes word has always worked better than the no message. How about yes to self-respect? How about yes to a young adolescent life free from the unnecessary emotional and relational entanglements that premature sex is bound to fuel? How about yes to the thought that I am worth something and quite lovable, thank you very much, even if I don't put out for you?

How about yes I am very much a man even if I do not conquer every young woman who is willing to enjoy my company? Out of such a background they may well be better equipped to know what they are about when someday they speak a yes of commitment to one with whom they can share their whole person.

Perhaps the yes message might even let young people know that we respect them rather than fear them. It might let them know we have something to give them rather than simply something to protect them from contracting.

Lensman focuses on alluring natural views ature's bounty fills Dick Arthur's viewfin-"I see the beauty of nature through my camera," says the 35-year Livonia resident. Arthur snaps all sorts of natural wonders: raccoons, squirrels, butterflies, tiger beetles, flowers, rivers, woodlands. "I enjoy being outside. It's a good excuse to get out and walk in the woods."

He adds: "My father was an amateur naturalist and he knew the names of most of the trees, flowers and bushes in the area I was brought up in Dayton, Ohio. We spent a lot of time out in the woods together. We covered every back road within 300 miles of Dayton."

A retired automotive design engineer, Arthur, 76, has zoomed in on nature through the focus of his Nikon camera for 20 years. He shoots with slide film, makes prints in his basement darkroom, then mats, mounts and frames his work.

"It's a hobby for me really. I've taken product pictures for businesses and catalogs, and I've taught some classes in Detroit and Livonia, but I wouldn't go so far as to say I'm a died-in-the wool professional.'

Learns from photos

Inquisitiveness drives Arthur.

"I like to see what I can learn from nature. I like to be able to identify the species in a photograph, like a Lady Slipper orchid, and know something about it. Nature photography forces you to study up on some of the things you've taken pictures of."

Within this backdrop, Arthur will exhibit his work Aug. 2-31 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"He has a very nice eye," says Livonia arts commissioner Ed Ferguson, curator of city-hall art shows. "His photos would look nice in a travel magazine. There's a real nice feel to his work.'

All but one of the color and black and white photos in Arthur's 47-piece retrospective were taken since the early '70s.

The other photo was taken on a trip to Louisville, Ky., in the late '30s. It shows a sunset silhouette of mules grazing on a hill in a farmer's field. "When I stopped and whistled at them, they all looked at me with their ears standing up real good, then posed," Arthur recalls. "The weather had been miserable but this particular day, it cleared up and there was a beautiful sunset. This was the only good picture I took the whole trip.' The slide, he says, "looks as good today as the day I shot it as far as the color is concerned. The colors remain true, a good example of how the old Kodachrome film holds up.'

On a whim, Arthur recently printed the 55-yearold slide on Ilford Cibachrome paper.

"It turned out so well, I like it better than most of the stuff I shot recently. The detail is fantastic with absolutely no grain. And the colors hold longer. I printed the slide once before on a different kind of paper but it didn't turn out so well and I never printed it again - until now.'

Arthur wound up printing most of the shots in the retrospective on Ilford Cibachrome paper even though it involves a more expensive process.

Most of the 38 color prints showcase Michigan views - from a white rose with a lavender fringe in his yard to berries at Kensington Metropark to the headwaters of the Jordan River. There's also junipers in Colorado's Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument.

The nine black and white prints capture western vistas from Yosemite National Park in California as well as Black Canyon.

His works are framed in matte-black aluminum with a white interior matte and a light-gray outer matte except the rose. "It's framed in ivory with a coral type of matte and a V line. The coral complements the pink in the rose and brings out the color better," Arthur said.

Class swayed him

Arthur has flirted with the world of flashes and film since high school. But it took a nature photography class in the early '70s at the University of Michigan-Dearborn to hook him. "After that, I figured this is the thing for me.'

To sharpen his technical skills, Arthur has spent one week each summer for 12 years at a Houghton Lake nature photography workshop hosted by Larry West of Mason.

A volunteer cameraman for Livonia's cable Channel 8, he has spent the last few years helping broadcast city council meetings at city hall.

"I'd been looking at the art displays in the city hall lobby for three years and one day decided, 'What the heck. I'd like a shot at it. My stuff is as good.' So I contacted the arts commission — and they must've agreed."

Kodak lauds kids' photographer

Children's portraits by Kimberly Jamieson of Livonia are framed to tell a story. Her own daughter is the subject of a national award-winning photo.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

Near her bag of tricks and other kids' toys, children's photographer Kimberly Jamieson of Livonia has placed a coveted keepsake of her own: a Kodak Gallery Award for her entry in the portrait category.

Nicole is wearing boy's Victorianera clothing and a brimmed cap to conceal her shoulder-length hair. Her shirt and suspenders harmonize with the clay-tone door and brick building; only the child's full porcelain-colored face, with a pensive expression, stands out against the stately architecture.

"I did the series for myself," said Jamieson, 33. "I wondered how my daughter, who always looks so beautiful, would look dressed like a tough little boy.'

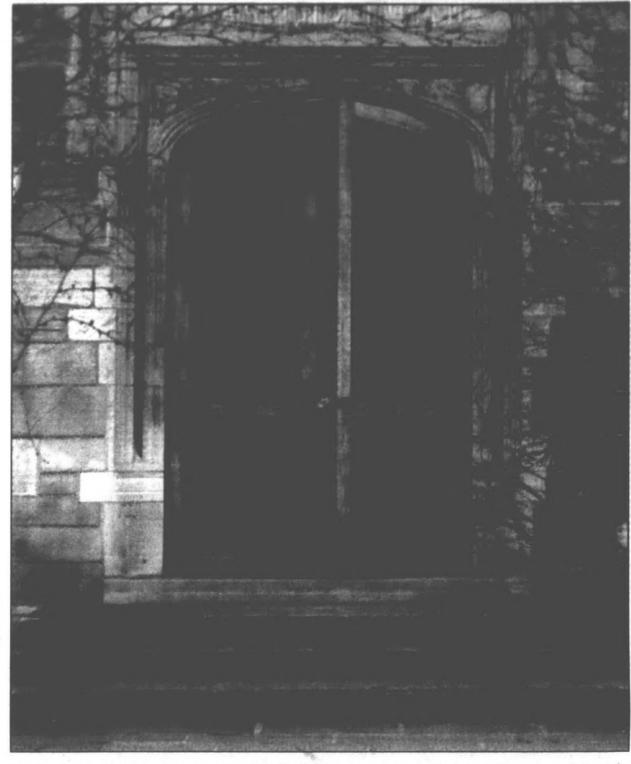

She shot the series with available light using a Hasselblad camera and Kodak's Vericolor 400 professional Kodak receives up to 1,000 entries per state in its annual Gallery Award competition, a contest for professional photographers in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. A winning photo in four categories (portrait, commercial, wedding and unclassified) is selected from each state. Photos are judged by the state's professional photographer's association.

Plymouth painter arouses emotion via rich oils

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Andrea De Zell expresses the human experience in rich oil-covered canvasses composed of realism and abstraction.

The Plymouth artist exhibits more than 30 paintings in a retrospective dating back to 1982. The one-person show continues through July 31 at Creative Framing and Fabric Accents, 853 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

Pensive portraits of people ranging from the very young to Englishmen weathered by life encapsulate distinct moments in time. De Zell surrounds the realistic focal points with abstract pastels of ethereal nature.

Florals in the style of Georgia O'Keefe employ fluid movement to awaken the viewer's spirit to their beauty. Still life, such as "Blackberry Harvest," sprinkles sunlight via white highlights on a bucket of luscious black red fruit.

As in each of her paintings, De Zell places the realistic mouth-watering harvest against an abstract background.

"What I do is my own creation. It's abstract yet it's realism. I love to combine them because it makes for a really pretty painting," De Zell said.

The focal point of De Zell's exhibition is a 3-by-4-foot canvas entitled

Cranbrook highlights the elements

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

It's element-al.

That's the theme of a current exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills.

The ancient Greeks believed that four basic elements — earth, air, fire and water — made up all matter. The show at Cranbrook is called "Earth, Air, Fire and Water: Elements of the Permanent Collection."

Exhibited paintings, prints, sculpture, ceramics and glass have earth, air, fire or water as subjects, or they refer to those elements through their form or the way they were made. The display continues through Oct. 31 at 1221 N. Woodward, between Lone Pine and Long Lake roads.

These are romantic pieces that span centuries.

The earth is represented in Zoltan Sepeshy's 1941 tempera study for the "Scientist, Artist and Farmer" mural for the Rackham Building in Detroit, and a stoneware vase by potter Mary Scheier and glazer and decorator Edwin Scheier. This 1948 vase features figures that resemble art by ancient or primitive people.

"Celestial Navigator" by Brian Kritzman, a 1989 work, balances wood, metal and plexiglass to form an instrument. Dating before 1931, the wool piece "The Sunbeam" by Lorentz Kleiser features human figures among cacti, trees and vines.

Subjects from the air include birds (in embroidered wool on linen bed hangings from about 1917 by May Morris and Mary J. Newill) and a plane (in a 1974 lithograph by James Rosenquist).

John Kirchmayer's work called "Music," dating from before 1917 and made out of wood with gold highlights, depicts an angel playing a violin, while the 1981 "Icarus Series No. 25" by L. Brent Kington is an abstract piece made of mild steel, acrylic and krylon.

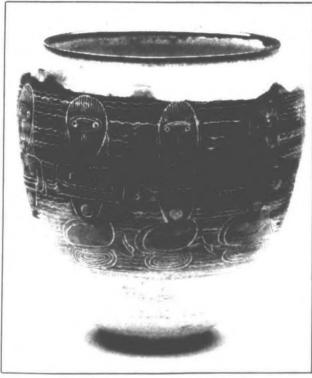

Images of fire are in the red chair and ottoman made of tubular steel by Eero Saarinen, circa 1946-48, and the 1977 lithograph called "Devil at the Keyboard" by Willem DeKooning. A stoneware vase from Pewabic Pottery, circa 1930s, changes color as it is viewed from different sides, and molded glass vases designed by Rene Jules Lalique, also from the 1930s, glow in red, blue and purple like a flame.

Water is presented in the oil paintings of Niagara Falls by 19th century artist Thomas Cole and "Snow" (1990) by Nancy Brett, and the 1948 cocobola wood sculpture of an endlessly curving "Wave" by Glenn Booth Chamberlain. Different moods are shown in Eva Kwong's 1981 porcelain work "Quiet Storm," and Karel Appel's 1978 brightly colored wooden "Flying Fish."

Hours are 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Admission: $3 for adults, $2 for children, seniors and full-time students; free for children under age 7 and museum members. Call 645-3312.

see photographers stretch the limits and do something different with our products. They start with blank paper — what they do beyond that is all imagination," said Terry Deglau for Eastman Kodak Co. in Rochester, N.Y.

Deglau said judges liked Jamieson's image for "the natural setting that blended with the beautiful child's clothing."

Jamieson's winning photo and her other impressionistic portraits are picture-stories that capture children's moods and feelings. They line the walls of her home studio, but the bulk of Jamieson's work is portrait photography — with a creative bent.

"Children should be photographed the way they are and not the way we want them to be," said Jamieson, who likes photographing kids in bare feet or wearing soiled tennis shoes.

She also has photographed children playing in spaghetti, painting a picket fence and chasing piglets and rabbits.

Jamieson likes a high key look (white clothing on a white background) because it draws attention to a child's face. She also thinks monochromatic colors crebe picture-perfect. Mine isn't and I don't expect others to be," she said. "The best pictures aren't posed and don't show a child smiling. I never say 'cheese.' One day, I'll hang a sign that says, 'Smile is a bad word.'

One of her favorite portraits happened by chance. After photographing two sisters in velvet dresses and matching mid-calf boots, the girls eagerly removed the formal clothes. Jamieson quickly shot candids of the two playing in their plain white cotton slips and pearl necklaces.

She learned photography at Stevenson Junior High in Westland and as a sophomore was chief yearbook photographer at John Glenn High School, the first female to land the job. She studied photography at Washtenaw Community College in Ann Arbor and for several years shot wedding photos. After Nicole's birth, children's photography became her specialty.

Like all artists, Jamieson gets inspiration for her work from life experiences. She isn't sure how a recent trip to Alaska will show up in her portraits, but somehow the state's beauty will be interpreted in her photography, she said.

So far, daughter Nicole's birth has had the greatest impact: "My eyes opened when I had a child. Before Nicole, I photographed two kids and they both cried. Now, no one cries. They sing, I sing, and we all act like children. I hope I never grow up."

Athletic action: A fast shutter speed, predetermining the exposure and anticipating the action all combined to reward Monte Nagler with this action-filled shot of Kirk Gibson safely sliding into home base.

So "go for the gold" with your camera. Here are some tips to help you get good sports photographs.

As in all good photography, fill the frame for impact. So when photographing sports, a telephoto lens is needed. Use one that will bring the action in close. For the Little League game down at the corner lot, a moderate 135mm lens will do. But for the major leagues. you'll need a major league lens of 200mm to 400mm in length.

You'll require an action-stopping shutter speed of at least 1/500 second so fast film is in order. Use a 400 ASA film in either color or black and white.

The key to good sports photography is to anticipate the action and capture the spontaneity of the game.

In the photograph shown here taken during a Detroit Tiger/Boston Red Sox game, Tiger Kirk Gibson was on third base eager to score.

Anticipating a play at home plate, I predetermined the exposure using 1/1000 second and prefocused my 200mm lens on home base. By keeping my left eye open, I could follow the action of the game and be ready to snap what I hoped would be an action-filled pic-

Sure enough, the play at home happened and I got the shot. As you can see, Gibson was safe. Only by prefocusing, determining the exposure ahead of time and anticipating the action, was I rewarded with this memorable photograph.

Other sports work similarly. Get to know the game and anticipate the action. Use your concentration and be prepared to take a couple rolls of film to get the few shots you want.

Remember that sports photography is not only concerned with freezing the moment of victory or defeat, but also of capturing the spirit of the

The time and the place seemed especially appropriate last week as Franklin artist David McCall Johnston and the Troy-based Kmart Corp. announced plans for the design of the company's holiday merchandise.

The announcement was that Johnston's Americana painting, "Country Memo-ries," will be the design of sect Kmart items this year - collectible orcelain villages, gift bags, a 20-piece dinnerware set, 13-by-16-inch framed reproductions, placemats, a kitchen designer rug and a puzde. The merchandise will debut in Septem-

In addition, Kmart will donate 200 signed, mited edition prints to schools, libraries and museums around the country to display or use in fund-raising.

"David's . . . style captures the . . . es-ence of our past," Mike Wellman, Kmart marketing vice president, said at the July 20 press conference.

As for the time, it was "Christmas in July," Wellman joked. As for the place, it was the te 19th century Poppleton School in the roy Museum and Historical Village at Wates and Livernois, and "Country Memories" emed right at home.

The gouache (opaque watercolor) painting features a traditional, early 20th century winir barnyard scene. A sleigh waits at the gate, one of the passengers waving to a woman on the porch. Skaters, a rider on a sled and riders in another sleigh frolic outside a Victorian style house. Evergreens and bare trees dot the Closer inspection reveals such touching details as the stones in a low wall, the latticework and a cat on the porch, the bricks in barn buildings, glowing candles in windows.

"To say that this is a passion of mine — the historic painting of mine - is an understatement," said Johnston, an internationally known artist and the 1990-93 artist-in-residence at Detroit Country Day School in Birmingham. "I've lived in five historic homes in my life and restored three.

"I thrive on the past. My painting reflects

"It's a simpler time. It's a memory that a lot of us would like to recapture."

Johnston works in a restored 1840s Greek Revival-style house that is filled with antiques and folk art of the period. He does intensive research for his art.

A bank in Rapid City, S.D., commissioned him to do a painting of Mount Rushmore for the national monument's 50th anniversary. Among his other commissions are works for children's books, the Jules Verne Museum in France, Steuben Glass, national magazine covers, Celestial Seasonings tea and Thorn Apple Valley.

The Kmart project began in March 1992. Johnston's wife and business manager, Ruth, first contacted the corporation.

"The work really reached out," Maxine Lauer, also of Kmart, said of "Country Memo-

"We really want it to feel that you're going back to Grandma's for Christmas. It's the feeling that we wanted to evoke. David was just excellent at taking those feelings and transforming them into a masterpiece of art.

"At Kmart, you'll be able to become a collector of a masterpiece. We're really excited about this. This project has been a project of warmth and love.

At the press conference, gold tinsel and red ribbons adorned tables on which some of the merchandise was displayed. The painting, covered with a red and green quilt and standing in front of a pot-bellied stove, was unveiled at the announcement.

izing her son has risen from the dead. Still unaware of what has occurred, Mary Magdalene sits sobbing, her head downcast.

The search for religious-oriented imagery was a three-year endeavor for the Sapienzas. They began their search after reading "Religion for Little Children" by Christiane Rus-

"We learned from reading the book it was important to have something central to your faith in your home. I wanted it to tell a story. As the years went by, I wanted my children to ask me questions," Michael Sapienza said

The couple went to art fairs and galleries looking for a print or painting. They were unable to find an artist who would take on a work of this magnitude. One artist accepted the commission then after a year's wait decided the painting was too difficult. That's when the Sapienzas happened upon De Zell's paintings at Atrium Gallery in Northville.

'We couldn't find anything we were happy with. Some of them were pretty grim. My wife and I are really happy with it. It's a very pleasant painting. The clothing is traditional. What I like about it, the figures are pretty real. I like the realism in contrast with the abstraction."

De Zell thoroughly researched her subject matter before making preliminary sketches.

"I wanted to do something contemporary but with the Old World figures," said the self-taught painter. "It was up to me to come up with something

"I read the Scriptures, the passages pertaining to the resurrection so I knew what was going on at that time," De Zell said. "I researched the clothing for the time period.

The painting is a combination of Old World and contemporary." Dedication, discipline and perseverance over an untimely illness enabled De Zell to complete the painting in a little over six months. "This painting has given me the opportunity to say thanks (to God) for the talent I have." De Zell originally worked in clay sculpture, but switched to oil in 1977. She has been painting seriously since. Most recently, she exhibited in an international show, the annual "Women in Art: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow,' sponsored by the Oakland Comumunity College Women's Center and Oakland County NOW. She frequently exhibits as part of 3 Cities Art Club and Farmington Artists Club. Her work can be found at Atrium Gallery in Northville.

"I hope people are inspired by the painting," De Zell said. "With how things are today with abortion, drugs and promiscuity, we all need to be drawn back to what life is all about. We need to find goodness again. I hope through this painting some good will come, for people to think twice about what they're doing." Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Area boards pick Realtors of Year

People who stand out among their peers generally take the long view. They go beyond the expectation of the moment, get involved in issues and motivate others to Outstanding Realtors are no exception. Several recently won special honors for their efforts in the profession.

Curtis Shinsky, broker/owner of Remerica Suburban in Livonia, was selected Realtor of the Year for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

Harold R. Buckindail, associate broker and assistant manager with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Royal Oak, was chosen Realtor of the Year for the South Oakland County Board of Realtors.

Sue Thorn, associate broker for Century 21 East in Rochester Hills, was named Realtor of the Year for the Rochester Area Association of Realtors.

Professional associations, formed to meet educational, political and social objectives, are only as good as their members.

Shinsky, 53, has been in the real estate business for 20 years. His WWOCAR committee involvement has included political affairs, professional standards, strategic planning, grievance and financial planning.

President-elect of the association, Shinsky was instrumental in structuring a mega-regional multiple listing service in southeast Michigan.

"I take great satisfaction in taking care of people's housing needs, doing a good job for them, Shinsky said. "I especially like working with young people. They need a lot of guidance, first-time buvers.

Shinsky also is active in the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Livonia Goodfellows and Livonia Church of Christ. He and his wife, Patricia, live in that community.

"He truly is a credit to our profession," said Bill Deacon, current WWOCAR president and a former Realtor of the Year. "He's very good at what he does."

Buckindail, 75, started selling real estate 20 years ago after retiring as a plant manager in the manufacturing sector. He has served as a SOCBOR director for 11 years and has held four executive posts including president.

Buckindail also has served on eight different standing board committees and many appointed positions including bylaws rewrite committee, SCOBOR scholarship trustee and MLS regionalization task force.

He also was selected SOCBOR Realtor of the Year in 1989.

"I like the challenge, I like to work in the computer end of it, to try to provide faster, better information for all realtors," Buckin-dail said. He added: "You can sure make some people happy when they buy or sell.'

Buckindail, lives in Clarkston with wife Jean, is father to Karen Schultz, Keith, and Kay Bryson, and grandfather to nine.

He's also active with the North Woodward Shrine (Masonic) Club, the Clawson/Troy Elks Club and as an Elder for the Royal Oak First Presbyterian Church.

"Harold is the kind of individual who asks a question, then gets involved," said Maurice Richards, SOCBOR executive vice president. "He accepts responsibility and carries it out."

The Rochester association traditionally names its current president Realtor of the Year.

Thorn, 39, also has served as secretary and treasurer, education committee chairman and on a regionalization MLS task force for the local board. She has been in the business for 13 years.

Married to Paul and mother to Scott and Michael, Thorn resides in Rochester Hills and is active in St. Mary's Church of Royal Oak. Her hobbies are golf and bowling.

"I like having flexibility of hours, flexibility of income," Thorn said. "I make whatever my ability is. I also like meeting people, different situations.'

"Sue is a young, goal-oriented, natural leader," said Judy Waugh, executive vice president for the Rochester association. "She's also a very upbeat person who thinks yes instead of no.

Stake a property claim via adverse possession

I own a lakefront lot which is adjacent to neighbor's lakefront lot. My neighbor owns a 15-foot walkway which my property borders. Eighteen years after we bought, we told our neighbors that we were claiming title to the walkway by adverse possession. We had planted trees and built a fence and a dock on the property. In the winter, we stored recreational equipment there. We never asked the neighbor's permission. In fact, our activities interfered with the neighbor's ability to use the property. Do we have a valid claim for adverse possession? Yes. The law says that in order for you to obtain adverse possession, you must have continuous possession for 15 years and your possession must be "actual, visible, open and notorious." It would appear based upon the facts of your circumstances that you could win your claim for adverse possession, but you will probably

We are forming a corporation as a family business and are wondering what tips you have in regard to handling the legal papers. We are thinking about buying an office condo.

The documents necessary, among other things, from a legal standpoint would be the Articles of Incorporation which must be filed with the state, a set of bylaws for the operation of the corporation and minutes of the corporation to reflect a meeting of incorporators, shareholders and the board of directors.

You will also need various other tax forms in order to comply with state and federal obligations and you should consult with your CPA. You will need a corporate resolution, no doubt, to make a purchase of a condo unit for office

Etkin honored

Southfield-based Etkin Equities won Suburban Office Park of the Year honors from the Building Owners and Managers Association for its work on the 350,000-square-foot Brookfield Office Park in Farmington Hills. The honor is given to buildings that demonstrate excellence in office building management, operations, community involvement, emergency evacuation procedures and Brookfield's master plan and Buildings One and Three were designed by the late Minoru Yamasaki. Rosetti & Associates designed Building Two as the headquarters for Compuware. Brookfield also houses Cellular One, Reuters Information Services, Mass Mututal Companies, Octel Communications and M.O.R.-Pace.

Other Etkin buildings, like the Franklin Center, City Center Office Park and Timberland Office Park, have won BOMA honors in consecutive years dating back to 1987.

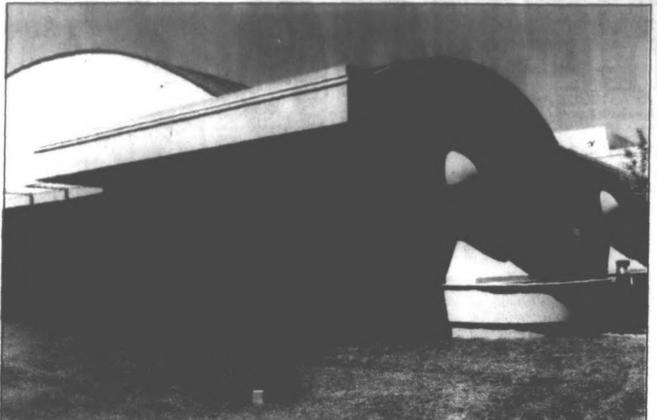

Complying with ADA

The Ann Arbor architectural firm of Culbertson Jacobs & Milling has been selected by First of America Bank to evaluate and correct 43 sites for compliance with the Federal Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA).

ADA specialist Christopher Pyzik will visit all First of America branches in Washtenaw, Wayne and Livingston counties.

Face lifts: Architectural Exterior Finishers' portfolio includes the Community EMS building in Troy (left) which was converted from an auto dealership, and Ethan Allen store in Livonia (below), which got an upscale image that brought the furniture store into the 1990s.

Putting on a brand new face

For roughly 20 percent of what it would cost to build new, Architectural Exterior Finishers of Redford can give your building a fresh face and your business a refreshed attitude.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Refurbishing may be the current buzz word in the construction industry here.

On the commercial side, an auto dealership in Southfield transforms into administrative headquarters for CEMS, an ambulance service. Troy Commons, a strip shopping center, receives a makeover and an Ethan Allen furniture store in Livonia gets an upscale look.

Architectural Exterior Finishers in Redford was responsible for all of those projects.

Robert Mantua, president/owner and said he was one of the first to a variety of colors, is then brushed jump into exterior finishing when that specialty evolved a few years ago.

"There's an increased need for image," he said. "Appearance in the marketplace is important for tenants and owners. And it is more economical than new, obviously."

Renovations can come in at 20 percent of the costs of building from the ground up, Mantua said.

More good than bad

Several exterior insulation finishing systems - Senergy, Dryvit and Sto - are available. They're basically Expanded polystyrene (Styrofoam) sheets which can be cut and routered into various shapes and design are cemented to the wall of the existing structure. A reinforcing mesh is attached to those sheets and a liquid acrylic plaster finish, which comes in onto the mesh where it hardens.

'The advantages are that this stuff is very flexible," Mantua said. "It can expand and contract more than any other building material."

There are some drawbacks.

The plaster can be applied only if the temperature is at least 40 degrees, the work is labor intensive and the outside shell is prone to cutting over time, Mantua said.

Still, the plusses outweigh the minuses in his mind.

"In remodeling a building with many different phases, this makes it all look like one phase. It brings it all together," Mantua said. "The main benefit is durability to weather and ability to use many colors . . . and unlimited shapes.

The cost is about the same as brick $6 a square foot, he said.

Mantua said he got started in exterior finishing work in the mid 1980s when he was hired to install smaller windows in many Plymouth/Canton school buildings.

He figured that he could put in the windows, studs and trim and leave the exterior finishing work to someone else. He figured wrong. So Mantua did some research, did the job himself and became a convert.

Now, others do the work, Mantua said, but none as much on-site, custom work as he does.

Office market has hit bottom, starting on road to recovery?

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

activity through the first six months man. of this year believes that the sluggish metro office market has bottomed out and is on the road to recovery.

Some pockets like Farmington Hills and Livonia are faring better foreclosure in metro Detroit, this than others like Troy and Southfield, reported Joel Feldman, senior vice president and broker with the Noble/ Advantage Group in Southfield.

The key to the resurrection of our local multi-tenanted office market . . will continue to be absorption the net decrease in the current oversupply of office product," Feldman wrote.

How? "Continued abatement of new, speculative office development coupled with the expansion of companies already present in our area as well as attracting new businesses to our community on a massive scale,"

Feldman reported. The task won't be easy, Feldman warned. He called upon business and governmental notables already here to lead an expansion of local commerce and attract new business. "I've been on numerous committees and attended numerous meetings," he said. "I've made it very clear to them I think the state of Michigan and city of Detroit have done a very poor job attracting new business to our area. It's been a chronic problem."

Occupancy rates range from 94 percent in Bingham Farms to just under 75 percent in Southfield, Feldman said. The average for the entire metro area was 82 percent.

Here's a capsule look at the office situation as of July 1 in several O&E At least one analyst eyeing leasing communities as provided by Feld-

FARMINGTON HILLS

Termed the best model of dealing with problems of overbuilding and market has tightened considerably in the last year.

Occupancy levels have improved dramatically in buildings like Village Park, Wellington Place North C, Hunters Square and Westfield.

'Competitive rental rates, good hands-on management, aggressive leasing agents and the financial wherewithal to do tenant build-outs" sparked the turnaround, Feldman reported. Two other factors - brokers hustling to find user/investors to buy troubled properties and aggressive marketing through lease renewals also paid dividends.

WESTERN LIVONIA

Progress in filling vacancies along the I-275 corridor continued through the first six months of 1993.

A general tightening-up has occurred throughout the community.

"Aggressive rental rates, the retention of existing tenants and the modernization of some older buildings are major reasons for this," Feldman

"A significant and disproportionate amount of existing leases expire (this year) and accordingly landlords here must spend a good deal of time and money while focusing their attention on this fact," Feldman in-

This community's office market is the most troubled in the metro area, according to Feldman's analysis.

"Troy today is fraught with serious problems officewise, exemplified by a record amount of vacant office buildings, a record amount of vacant office space and a record amount of foreclosures," he reported.

Demand simply exceeds supply and will only get worse as National Bank of Detroit and GM move a significant amount of employees out of town in the next few years.

are wise to go easy on granting concessions, Feldman indicated. "This approach will . . . serve as a strong deterrent from allowing Troy's current problems to reappear," he

Progress will be slow in the short term, however.

SOUTHFIELD

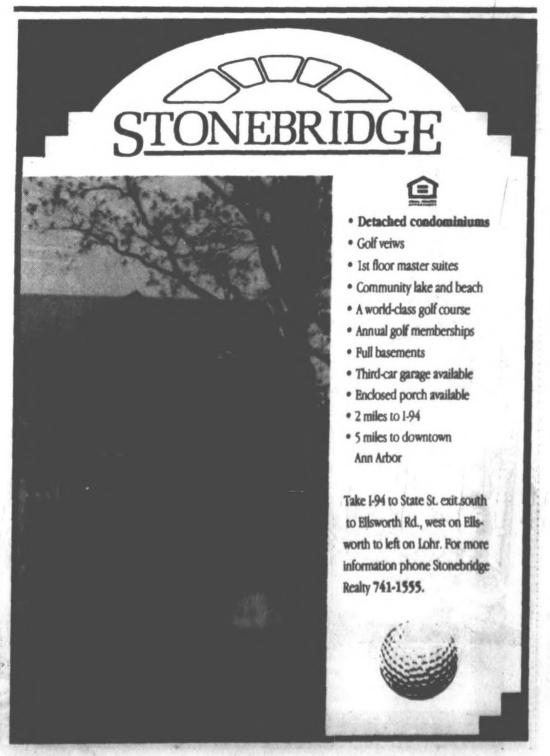

This market was as active as any in the area through the first six months of the year, but the results were mixed. "It is becoming more and more clear that Southfield's size and age inherently cause it to chronically experience a vicious circle," Feldman reported. "As one problem is solved, another appears. Part of it has to do with the immensity of the market. Some progress has been made in the southern tier through "major renovations and excellent management together with aggressive rental rates," Feldman indicated.

Light is Right

Sunshine design is an illuminating concept

As you might have gathered from the name, the Sunshine from Landmark Designs of Eugene, Ore., was conceived to take full advantage of natural light.

One of its most unique features is a front-facing upper deck, or solarium, adjacent to the master suite. While providing privacy and protection from the wind, the space also serves as a nurturing environment for pots of colorful sun-loving plants.

The solarium's back wall is almost entirely glass. Two sets of sliding doors flank a stationary window and all three are capped by half-rounds. Step through one of the sliding glass doors and you'll find yourself on a balcony with a 12-inch shelf at railing height — another neat nook for plants.

The balcony overlooks an exceptionally bright kitchen and dining room. Light filtering in through the solarium windows combines with light from four skylights in the two-story ceiling to provide reliable natural illumination throughout the daylight hours, most of the year.

Located well away from the activities of the rest of the home, the master suite serves as a quiet adult retreat. Luxury amenities include: his and hers pass through wardrobes, a double-basin vanity and a raised spa tub. Tropical plants flourish in the warm, moist atmosphere around the tub.

A second bedroom, on the opposite side of the balcony, also has a private bathroom. The bedrooms downstairs share a third bathroom.

Counters wrap around four sides of the generously sized kitchen. An eating bar is convenient for snacking and lazy susan shelving provides easy cupboard access in two corners. Sliders in the bayed dining room make it easy to move meals outside onto the railed deck.

Additional storage space is available in a pass-through utility room between the dining room and garage. The two-car garage has a U-shaped shop in back, complete with counters and cabinets.

To take a closer look at the Sunshine, send $7.50 for a study plan (301-01) to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene, Or. 97402. Be sure to include the plan name and number.

"This stuff is becoming a com mon building material," he said Five years ago, I had difficulty explaining to people in the busi-ness what I did."

CEMS coveted a former auto dealership for its headquarters primarily for the service area to maintain the ambulance fleet, said Donna Lawrence, marketing and community relations mana-

"As far as the exterior, we wanted to design a state-of-the art look, something not of the typical office building look, something unique," she said.

The architect recommended Mantua's firm.

It beats relocating

Ethan Allen, with a store in Livonia for 27 years, didn't want to move from a highly visible location when contemplating an image change, said Peggy Pobuda, regional manager.

"We enjoyed good success there," she said. "Ethan Allen had been looking a couple of years to change its image to bring our look into the 90s and give people an idea of the breadth of the line

"Remodeling of the facade was a much less expensive option than relocating," Pobuda said. Mantua does some design work, but most of the time he plays a subcontractor role to jobs already specified. Seventy percenty of his commercial work is renovations, 30 percent new. He's even starting to get requests for residential renovationa

"As new work picks up, this material finds itself into every new building," Mantua said. "It may just be an entryway, but it's in some way. We do jobs 10-by-10 and we do jobs that are 40,000 square feet."

Do-it-yourselfers should take care in jumping into smaller projects alone because there is a skill involved, Mantua cautioned.

"Workmanship has to be very precise, as the manufacture recommends, or there will be failure," he said.

How to extend hot water lines

swered by Popular Mechanics magazine.

Q. We live in a drought area and I'm concerned about the amount of water wasted while running the tap to get hot water in my bathroom. My water heater is at one end of my home and my bathroom is at the other end. In order to get hot water through the faucets at least 80 feet of cold water has to come out of the hot water line. Is it possible to continue the hot water line past the bathroom and then return it into the water heater? Will this save a lot of water?

A. The hot water system that you have, like those in most residential systems, is a noncirculating type. It is generally installed because it costs less for labor and materials than a circulating hot water system. Even though the noncirculating system is very common, it does have the disadvantage you describe.

You can convert your system to a circulating hot water system by installing a return loop on the distribution line which runs from the last faucet to the hot water heater. If the elevation difference between the hot water heater and the faucets is greater than 5 feet, then the hot water circulation can usually be achieved by gravity, the so-called thermo-siphon system. This works because hot water rises forcing the cooler water down.

run in the pipes or if there is less than a 5-foot height difference between the boiler and the faucet, the thermo-siphon system won't work and you'll need a pump to circulate the hot water.

This system, often used in hospitals where instant hot water is required, has the advantage of making it available at all fixtures as soon as you turn on the tap. Continuous circulation between the hot water storage tank and the faucet does the job.

Q. We have a Hotpoint refrigerator with a top freezer. Whenever the compressor stops, we hear a sharp thudding noise. This noise first appeared about three months ago as a quiet thud which has gradually gotten louder. Now the refrigerator has started to rattle. We're afraid it might explode one of these days. Will it? And, what should we do to quiet it down?

A. There's no danger that your refrigerator might explode, but your thudding and rattling noises sound as if one of the internal suspension springs that mount the compressor may have broken.

What you are hearing is the motor and pump assembly on its subframe hitting against the side of the compressor case that surrounds the entire compressor assembly. The only real cure is to have the compressor replaced.

Rejuvenate those hardwood floors

Restoring a worn hardwood floor that has a clear finish takes

You will need a day to prepare the space and gather materials and tools, another to sand, and several more to apply the finish and allow drying time between coats. You can save time by asking someone to help you.

If an existing finish is severely damaged and the flooring is at least one-fourth inch thick, it should be stripped with a sander before refinishing.

You can rent equipment. A drum-type floor sander handles most of the floor refinishing. Use a hand-held disc sander, or edger, to sand stair treads and along baseboards, in corners, inside closets, and in other places that are inaccessible to the large drum sander.

Prepare for sanding by removing all rugs, furniture and other furnishings in the room. Carefully take off the quarter-round shoe moldings along the baseboards. (Number the moldings and their places on the wall so that you can put them back.) Cover all vents. Seal doorways and windows from the rest of the house with plastic

Inspect the floor carefully. Pull out any staples left from carpeting. Drive any visible nail heads one-eighth inch below the surface using a nail set and fill the holes with wood putty. Repair cracks and secure loose floorboards. Vacuum and thoroughly inspect the floor once more.

Caution: For sanding, wear goggles, a dust mask and ear protection. To avoid marring the floor, don heavy socks or clean, whitesoled sneakers. Remember that sanding dust, finishes and finish fumes are flammable. Don't smoke. Extinguish pilot lights on nearby appliances.

Sand the floor first with the drum sander and 36-grit paper. Raise the sander off the floor, turn on the power, then lower the drum carefully, keeping a firm grip on the handles. Work across the floor - always with the grain - then return to the beginning and strip the next section parallel to and slightly overlapping the

Using an industrial drum floor sander is like walking a headstrong dog. Your job is to let it pull you, but not as fast as it can. Always keep the machines moving or the sander will eat down into the floor and leave an uneven surface. Repeat the sanding process twice, using 80-grit sandpaper, then 100-grit paper.

Next sand along the walls with the edger. Hold both handles firmly and keep the disc flat on the floor to avoid gouging. Sand with the same succession of paper grades as you used on the main

Use a block of wood wrapped with sandpaper or a paint scraper to clean even the tightest areas in corners and under radiators where neither power sander can reach. Finally, hand-sand, working with the grain, to remove swirls caused by the edger. Vacuum thoroughly between sanding

After sanding, vacuum the floor and walls using the brush attachment. Wipe down moldings, windowsills and door frames so that dust won't fall off later and mar the finish. Let dust settle overnight, then vacuum again. Wipe the floor thoroughly with a tack cloth, available in hardware

If you want floors to be only slightly darker than the bare wood, apply sealant of any kind. If you want the finish to have a darker tone, apply wood stain before the sealant.

Oil-base polyurethane is a popular floor finish because of its durability and ease of application. You need three coats when you use polyurethane as the final finish. Thin the first coat with one part mineral spirits to four parts polyurethane; this acts as a Brush polyurethane across the grain and then along it. Use a long-handled roller to apply the finish on the main surface of the floor; use a small brush for the edges and corners. Work in small sections, overlapping the strokes before the previous section is dry. Inexpensive foam rollers are best.

Let each coat dry as directed before recoating; observe ventilation precautions on the container. In between coats, buff with a rented floor-polishing machine equipped with superfine steel wool. After each buffing, vacuum well and clean with a tack cloth.

AP — Homeowners planning for a child's college education or a comfortable retirement streamed into mortgage institutions last year to take advantage of sinking interest rates that dipped as low as 7 percent. One year later, they are doing it

A refinancing boom that began in early 1991 when mortgage rates fell below 10 percent is still drawing customers as rates continue to drop, loan officers say. Some are refinancing for the second and third time.

"Last year was a record-breaking year for us and we are ahead of that pace this year," Kathleen Clancey, vice president of marketing for Troy-based Standard Federal Bank, said Tuesday. The leading mortgage lender in southeastern Michigan, Standard Federal closed 24,437 mortgages year, a 12 percent increase from the 21,700 closings for the first half of 1992.

Refinancing accounts for half its mortgages, bank officials said. William and Andrea Briggs of Walker plan to close on a new mortgage this week, their second refinancing in 30 months. Two years ago, the Briggses traded in their 30-year mortgage with a rate of 10.25 percent for a 20-year mortgage at 9.75 percent. Now that loan is being exchanged for a 15-year mortgage at 7.125 percent, chopping $40 off their monthly payment. "Fifteen years from now, our kids are going to be starting col-lege and it would be great to have the house paid off," says Mrs. Briggs, whose children are ages 1 and 3. "And you can't beat the interest rates right now."

"The housing markets need a lot more" than low interest rates, Lereah contended, noting low consumer confidence, weak job growth and uncertainty about the effects of economic and health care legislation.

That uncertainty and expectations of continued low rates and stable prices curbed any sense of urgency, Seiders added. However, Seiders said a survey of home builders in early July indicated sentiment was "perking up," at least in the single-family sector, which had fallen 2.8 percent in
