Ice fest gets cold shoulder

The annual ice festival is on, but contributions are lagging. Festival organizers say they are trying to tap more businesses for contributions.

BY KEVIN BROWN

The ice festival is on for Jan. 12-17, but the event will be scaled back if sponsor support stays soft.

"Things are remarkably pretty slow," said ice fest organizer Mike Watts.

Watts said he finds this ironic, as the festival has seen two consecutive years of high attendance and good weather.

Before that, the festival had suffered some unseasonably warm behind in sponsorship solicitations," weather during festival week that melted sculptures. This bad-luck string was topped by the Gulf War starting during the 1991 festival.

Watts, a metro Detroit music promoter, took over the ice festival starting with the 1992 event. He's been able to attract more corporate sponsors and festival attractions, like the fantasyland sponsored by First of America Bank.

"That will be back," Watts said, adding it was a prime attraction for kids and families.

Commissioners also voted unanimously to name Loiselle as mayor pro tem.

After his re-election Nov. 2, Miller identified some pressing issues the commission faces in the next two years, the usual term a city mayor serves. Among them are the city's financial situation, after the state Legislature decides on how much state-shared revenue will go to cities and property tax legislation.

Miller has also cited concern about redeveloping the city's commercial and financial districts, street and sewer repair, and how to finance the downtown street-sidewalk renovation plan. But the meeting opened with remarks from outgoing mayor Jones, before he and Miller

reports damage

An employee at the West Trail Nursing Home on Ann Arbor Trail told police that a Smith Corona typewriter was found to be damaged a short time after two men were noticed in the waiting room about 2:50 p.m. Sunday.

The typewriter with the broken keyboard was in an office just off the waiting room.

Employees said two males were in the waiting area and appeared so intoxicated that police were called to remove them. A third man, who appeared to know the two and lives next door, came in and asked to borrow a ladder so that he could get into his apartment. Nursing home personnel denied his request.

The first suspect is described as 6 feet 1 or 2 inches tall, with brown hair, a slim build and a black eye. He is in his late 30s or early 40s. The second suspect is 5 feet 10 inches tall with a slender build, blond hair, also in his late 30s or early 40s.

Before the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band finished its rendition of "Jesus Christ Superstar" on Saturday the Hoosierdome audience of 20,000 parents and band members from across the nation was on its feet with an emotional standing ovation.

The marching band gave a performance balancing song, theatrics, marching, music and symbolism.

'These students have gone through a year that should not be wished on any one person. The millage was defeated in June, and many of the students had worked hard for its passage. Then after the defeat again in August many were not sure that this year for the marching band could be saved. But rather than take a step

One of the judges who was in on back and rebuild for next year the preliminary judging panels this group of dedicated young people put together a performance that has the entire industry talking," said booster Jim Vassallo after the final results were an nounced.

More than 200 students participated from Plymouth-Canton. They were joined in Indianapolis by nearly 350 parents, alumni and friends.

Poets featured in calendar

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Twenty-five Plymouth poets strut their stuff on the pages of a 1994 calendar now available to the public.

The "Plymouth Poets 1994 Engagement Calendar" features 53 poems printed on flecked gray recycled paper, bound with a ring binder. The front and back covers are black, with gold lettering on the front.

The calendars sell for $7.95 each and are available at the Little Professor Book Store, Sideways Gifts and Engraving Connection in downtown Plymouth.

Karen Gould, who owns her own marketing business, Ideas Ink, said, "The idea came to me one night.

She'd already bought a binding machine earlier this year, and made 20 copies of a friend's cookbook. Left over from that project were several covers. And when you add to that Gould's interest in poetry - some of her poems are printed in the calendar - you have the recipe for a homemade yet professional looking publica-

Gould had meanwhile become familiar with the Plymouth Poets group formed by Rod Reinhart this year. "I called him and said what do you think? We sent out calls for submissions." Gould

One attraction to creating the calendar is that it's usually tough to get poetry published.

"I started thinking it would be nice to put together poetry ordinary people would like," she said. Nearly everyone who submitted poetry was included in the calendar. Submissions were reviewed by a selection panel of Steve Marsh, Barb Masters, Reinhart, Vera Scott and Renee Skoglund

Gould edited the calendar and AlphaGraphics of Canton printed it. When opened, a poem appears on the left page, while the dates in a week are printed on the right

Cost to print the calendar was $944. She's put together 270, with plans to maybe complete 30 more.

'I have to sell 150 books to break even," Gould said, added to the calendars ordered by the poets for their friends and family. Poets were each paid with a copy of the

Legislators, educators discuss funding

BY M.B. DILLON

Plymouth-Canton's four state legislators helped the Board of Education make sense of the alphabet soup of enabling legislation that has sloshed around Lansing since Gov. John Engler unveiled his school reform pack

Engler's plan would permit schools of choice, charter schools and other innovations. It would fund schools not with the traditional property tax, but with a sales and single business tax increase, sin taxes and real estate transfer tax. Districts would receive foundation grants of $4,500 per pupil.

State Rep. Deborah Whyman, D-Canton, State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, and State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said it's likely the Legislature will have a package put together by Dec. 31.

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, wasn't as optimistic, saying she won't vote for anything unless it replaces educational funding dollar for dollar.

Whyman said a bipartisan 'Gang of 14 is drafting some bills for us. They're working to try to find a bottom line we can get 56 votes on.

Vorva said he doesn't cotton to the Gang of 14's secrecy. "Some of those things are going on in the absence of our participation. I've leveled my complaints to the leadership. I think it should be done in open meet-Whyman surmised that if voters turn down the two-cent sales tax increase, a 20-mill, statewide property tax could be imposed. "There's also talk of a 9 percent increase in the income tax. The governor has said if we put together a reasonable package, he will support it. Everything is on the table. I believe we will see a local millage option for everyone, but I think it will be capped.' School board president Roland Thomas said he opposes the proposal to place adult education under the Department of Commerce, "which knows nothing about education and will be forced to hire someone who

Trustee Les Walker asked whether "We may wake up one morning and hear what the deal is going to be." Acknowledging there may be no chance for the public to offer input, Whyman said, "There is nothing that says there has to be any logic. It's the speaker's prerogative."

Barns said she's strongly opposed to charter schools. "If I have a flat tire on Joy and Main, I don't go out and buy a new car," she said. "I get a new tire or I get it fixed." Barns said she'd like to give Public Act 25, the school improvement legislation passed three years ago, longer to work.

Vorva said "if one party or the other blocks any movement for the sake of gaining political ground, they will be too bloody to enjoy victory." It's in everyone's best interest to examine critically education and move forward, he said.

Thomas said the Legislature's actions make planning difficult and create cash flow problems.

Geake said he can't foresee the state returning to the former method of financing schools. "We can't live with that anymore. We don't want any federal judge to say, 'This is how you are going to fund schools.' It's become almost impossible to pass millages anyway."

Ray Hoedel, the district's associate superintendent for finance, said "We feel as a district we are getting shortchanged, and we'd appreciate consideration." Under Engler's plan, Plymouth-Canton will be locked into a per pupil foundation grant that doesn't factor in the cost of operating two new elementaries boarded up this year due to lack of funds.

Tom Tattan, executive director for instruction, said teachers here are struggling with classes of 35-38. "We are not serving those students at all, and we won't have the chance to serve them as we should going into the 21st century.

Vorva submitted that the "sucking sound" Ross Perot refers to isn't the sound of jobs going to Mexico; it's the sound of money being sucked from the classroom into administration and lobbying. "Of the money spent on education, only 50 or 51 percent goes to the class-

Trustee Jack Farrow disagreed, saying the sucking noises are due to expensive "state and federal mandates for programs we have to offer without being reimbursed."

Trustee Barbara Graham said she was tired of talk about politics and salaries. "The bottom line is kids. Let's worry about a country that's going downhill instead of uphill, that's behind other countries instead of in front, like we used to be. I want Johnny to come out of school able to read, write and get into college or the workplace.

Thomas said the district runs a tight ship, yet "our kids are going to continue to suffer. I submit there would be a parental lawsuit, because we are locked into a class size of 29."

Responded Geake: "Increasing class size is the only way you can reconcile a higher salary schedule. When you lay off the newest teachers, the average cost per teacher goes up. I'm not criticizing anyone, I'm just pointing out a fact of life."

"Personnel costs have gone from 80 percent to 86 percent over the past seven years" in education, Vorva said. "That's an important picture to look at.

Thomas thanked all four legislators for coming. Vorva cracked, "With one hand grenade, you could zap us all.

"And the state could be saved," answered Geake with a

In recent years, the city has also cut its support of the ice festival from residents' tax dollars even though a case could be made that the festival brings respect and notoriety to Plymouth, things that can help maintain property values.

"Some residents will tell you they don't like it, but it showcases the community," Watts said.

Also, "There are a lot of new businesses that don't really feel they're part of Plymouth," he said, including some setting up shop in the township industrial parks. "We get some support out of there," he said, but added more support is being sought.

If interest remains low among potential festival sponsors, Watts said it's possible that only downtown businesses that contribute to the festival will get sculptures placed outside their businesses. We'd rather not have to do it," he said.

One addition to this year's festival is an expanded competition pitting college ice-carving teams against one another.

Businesses that contribute $250 get an ice sculpture with the business name on it, listing in a direct mailing touting the ice festival, a window poster identifying the business as a participating sponsor, and more.

A $500 contribution includes recognition on the Kellogg Park sponsor banner, listing in the official program guide, and a sign in front of your ice sculpture featuring your company logo.

ing that's one part of the job he won't miss

While Jones said he was satisfied by the accomplishments of city government in the past two years, there are several projects needing completion. Some of those, including the downtown streetscape renovation and parking ordinance changes, "require approval that is outside control of the city.

"As a result, you can only push so hard," Jones said, adding the projects "must be pursued to completion.'

"Teamwork between the (city) administration and the commission has been excellent," he add-

On finishing his remarks, audience members and commissioners rose to applaud Jones.

Miller said that when Jones took the post two years ago as some new commissioners were elected, "There were dire predictions about how divided the city commission would be

"What the doom-sayers didn't count on is that Bob Jones would be elected mayor," Miller said, adding his work "won the approval of even the harshest critics."

Our commitment to quality

Providence and Charter House are committed to delivering quality service and personalized attention. A skilled, highly motivated staff is available 24 hours each day so your loved one receives individual attention in a luxurious hotel setting. And the Novi Hilton is conveniently located near major roadways.

A first-class setting

The rooms designated for the program include semi-private accommodations and are secure and handicapped-accessible. A private conference area serves as a dining facility and an activities center, where your parent or loved one will enjoy supervised recreation, including playing cards, reading, viewing movies, exercising, enjoying music and doing arts and crafts. Loved ones may also use the hotel's main dining room.

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER Auto insurers aren't liable for medical benefits until an injured person has tried to collect all of his or her health benefits, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled in three major cases.

Auto insurers benefit

as court lessens liability

The result: Injured persons may have to pay heavy medical bills - especially when they have used doctors outside the system paid for by their employers.

'Henceforth, you have a burden," said Wayne Miller, a Birmingham attorney who represented two of the plaintiffs. "If they (the health insururer) can't provide it, then you can go outside the system. It's very troubling.

"The Supreme Court justices are seven general practitioners, however bright, who are trying to practice in all the areas of law before them. I don't think the court appreciated the duress the plaintiffs (in auto injury cases) are under.

"The Supreme Court felt the only important matter was containing (insurance) costs. So they elevated cost-containment to the only important matter," Miller said.

The high court ruled 4-3 for auto insurers in cases involving injured persons from Brighton, rural Jackson County and Detroit. The cases started in Southfield's District Court and Wayne County Circuit

"We hold that a no-fault insurer is not subject to liability for medical expense that the insured's health care insurer is required, under its contract, to pay for or provide," said Justice Charles Levin, who wrote all three opinions citing section 3109 of the No-Fault Automotive Liability Act.

Levin was joined by Chief Justice Michael Cavanagh and Justices Robert Griffin and Conrad Mallett

Out $5,000

Louise Ann Tousignant, 31, a former Northwest Airlines flight attendant from Brighton, is out $5,000 for treatment of injuries suffered in a July 1987 auto accident.

"Tousignant was examined and treated after the accident for back and neck pain at the emergency room of Henry Ford Medical Clinic in West Bloomfield, an HAP (Health Alliance Plan) facility. She was released with instructions to return if her back or neck pain continued," Levin said.

"Instead of returning to the Henry Ford Medical Clinic or another HAP facility or physician, Tousignant sought treatment from a physician other than an HAP physician," said Levin. She received heat treatments for a year and dental services from unaffiliated doctors. She sought payment from her auto insurer, Allstate

After the case was moved up from Southfield District Court, Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert Templin ruled in favor of Allstate, was reversed by the Court of Appeals and upheld by the Supreme

Levin said the legislative policy "requires an insured who chooses to coordinate no-fault and health coverages to obtain payment and services from the health insurer to the extent of the health coverage available from the health insurer.'

'Where this hurts," said David Martin, Tousignant's attorney in Southfield, "is when they have an HMO chosen by the employer as opposed to the best coverage." His client now is a housewife and mother.

Snafu with VA

A costlier case involved Kenneth Owens, a young Coast Guardsman who suffered permanent brain injury in a December 1982 accident when his car hit a tree. He was on leave and visiting his parents in rural Jackson County.

The Veterans Administration Hospital in Ann Arbor treated him until his discharge in June 1984. A VA neurologist recommended he go to Herrick Hospital in Tecumseh, where Owens ran up a $110,000 bill for intensive rehabilitation therapy. Owens also got $70,000 in treatment at Saline Community Hos-

The VA did not identify another VA facility where Owens could get in-patient treatment. Then VA refused to pay. Owens' insurer also refused.

Said the Supreme Court: "Owens has the burden of establishing that the services rendered by Herrick and Saline were 'allowable expenses,' and that 'reasonable charges' were there 'incurred for reasonably necessary' services.

"Owens also has the burden of establishing that he sought to obtain appropriate services from the VA," the high court said.

Martin, Owens' attorney, said he would be back before Wayne County Circuit Judge John H. Gillis in two weeks to meet those tests. "We start all over," Martin said.

At stake are $180,000 in hospital bills plus interest for up to nine years.

'Double dip

The third case was what attorneys call a "double dip." George Yancey Jr. of Detroit was seriously injured in an auto accident. Citizens Insurance Co. reduced his work-loss benefits by the amount of Social Security disability benefits Yancey received.

"We hold that Social Security disability benefits should be subtracted," the Supreme Court said, citing its 1979 ruling that Social Security survivors' benefits also are to be subtracted.

She knows school history from A to Z

Give Joan Cavell Palmer a name and she can pretty much tell you which of Canton's 10 oneroom country schoolhouses that person attended.

'This book is all names," said Palmer, who researched and compiled more than 550 pages of history about Canton's schoolhouses from the 1800s to the 1950s, when the schools were consolidated into adjoining districts, such as Wayne-Westland and Plymouth.

"Canton's Country Schools" will be available for sale from 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, at the Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road. Palmer, a member of the Canton Historical Society, will be on hand to autograph the books, which will sell for $30. After Saturday, the book will be on sale 1-3 p.m. Tuesdays and 1-4 p.m. Saturdays at the Canton Historical Museum at the corner of Proctor and Canton Center roads.

"They have backed me all the way financially. They will reap all the profits," Palmer said of the historical society.

Save history

Palmer decided to do a book on Canton's country schools because no one had. "I have a strong sense of history. The history of these country schools would be lost. No one was doing anything," she said. "I know now it will be saved.

Canton had nine country schools within its boundaries. A 10th school at Joy and Ridge was across the boundary but took in Canton students. Each school was a separate school district with its own board and budget, which hired and paid its own teachers, and which bought its

"There was only one school board meeting a year. It was decided then who was going to teach, what books would be used, and how much money there was. They got a certain amount of money from the state," Palmer

Of the original schools, the township owns Sheldon, Cherry Hill and Canton Center, which have all been restored. Walker and Truesdell schools still remain but have been renovated and no longer look like former schoolhouses. Palmer said.

The book took Palmer more than three years to compile. The cover, which shows each of the schools, was designed by Ruben Doumanian of Doumanian Graphics, Canton. Palmer said she didn't write it like an author would. Rather, it's a compilation of facts and memories. She relied on archives at the historical museum, as well as articles from the former Plymouth Mail newspaper.

"I wanted somebody who wanted to find out the history to have someplace to go to find it. Anyone who is interested in history can sit down, read this and see what children looked like in the early 1900s - boys with no shoes. They can see the clothing, see how it changed, and they can follow the schools into the 1950s."

The schools educated children in kindergarten through eighth grade. But kindergarten was called chart class. "It was for the little ones. When you lived out in the country and had five or six kids, the little ones would see the bigger ones go to school and want to go," Palmer said.

The boys generally didn't go to school in the summer because they had to help on the farms. "Some of them were pretty big boys. That's why they had men teach the winter school (when boys went to school). The women taught the summer school - for less money," she added.

Memories of students and teachers were compiled through a four-page form sent to as many people as possible. Throughout the book, readers will see under each section devoted to the 10 schools, "remembers" in italics. Those are the comments made directly by former students and

For Palmer, the photos, all of which were not easy to come by, are dear to her heart. Included is her husband, Dick, who attended Hanford school. In one picture, he stands next to a little girl, who became Palmer's maid of honor at her wedding.

"I couldn't have done this book without my husband - his encouragement, his patience, his help. He was wonderful. He never complained," Palmer said.

When Palmer first decided to work on a history of the country schools, she thought she would do the research and hand it over to Diane Wilson, who wrote "Cornerstones," which is a history of Canton. "I am not a writer," Palmer said. But Wilson assured Palmer she could write the book

Emotional benefits accrue for Livonia foster parent

BY MARY RODRIQUE STAFF WRITER

As Deloice Huntsman's children grew up and became independent, she looked for a suitable career. With a mentally impaired teenage son requiring a good deal of care at home, her thoughts turned to foster parenting other children with developmental dis-

Huntsman and her late husband, James, took the plunge 15 years ago with a placement from the Wayne Community Living Services, which specializes in placing developmentally disabled children and adults throughout Wayne County. It turned out to be the perfect career move.

"It's been very rewarding," said Huntsman during a rare quiet moment in her comfortable Livonia home, full of tropical fish, chirping birds and cabinets showcasing a porcelain doll collection. Years ago James built a handicapped accessible wing onto the chairs.

By 10 a.m. one recent morning, Huntsman had seen the three foster children she has adopted off to school, as well as her son, James, now 30, who works in a sheltered workshop. She had also taken a grandson she babysits four days a week to preschool and done some grocery shopping. "I stay busy 16 hours a day,"

'Fabulous 14' hammer out school finance reform

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Tourists in the State Capitol guidebooks that never mention the committee doing the school reform work.

Students gape at the ornate restoration of the Senate and House chambers and portraits of former governors in the rotunda, never realizing their schools' future is being determined behind the closed doors of room 172 in the north wing.

"The Fabulous Fourteen" meet there, in the office of Rep. Don Gilmer, a fairly obscure Republican until this year. Seven members of each party meet regularly to hammer out a single compromimse on 28 bills and one constitutional amendment that, if adopted, will change how public education is financed and run for decades.

"I spent two years in the Army, two years in the Marines, and 10 years with a band, and I never heard language like that," said Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, of an early stormy session.

"This is our deer hunting," said

Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, noting the Senate last week adjourned all sessions except a few committees for the last two weeks of November Veterans Day was a holiday for all but 14 state employees in Lansing. Berman said their five hour session was productive with no distractions.

Junior members of the House sometimes reveal they are unhappy their work is held up as the Fab 14 troop off to closed sessions. The Legislature repealed all school operating property taxes in July, and the Dec. 31 deadline for replacing the revenue is fast approaching.

Who are 14?

Democrats

William Keith, 64, of Garden City. In his 11th term, co-chair of the House Education Committee, former banker, former school board member, champion of voc tech schools, among a handful of most potent lawmakers in school

James E. O'Neill Jr., 64, of Saginaw. In his 14th term, former teacher and school administrator, champion of equity in school funding, writes the school aid bill (with Sen. Dan DeGrow) each vear.

Maxine Berman, 47, of Southfield. In her sixth term but fairly new to Appropriations, former teacher, used to specialize in elections and tenant laws, defends out of formula districts ("rich" property tax bases, no state aid), most frequently quoted on abor-

H. Lynn Jondahl, 57, of Okemos. In his 11th term, co-chair of Taxation Committee, ordained minister, voted in newspaper poll as most influential member of the House, running for governor, rated one of the most liberal members.

Robert L. Emerson, 45, Flint. In his seventh term, former field rep for AFSCME (public employees union), new co- chair of school aid subcommittee (and now wears a suit and tie).

Ted Wallace, 51, Detroit. In his third term, attorney, started as assembly line worker, emerging as one of most effective members of black caucus with choice committee posts, best known as author of bills to permit and regulate assisted suicide.

James Agee, Muskegon. Only freshman in the group, emerged quickly as vice chair of Education Committee, vocal in defending interests of public schools (against private).

Republican

William Bryant Jr., 55, Grosse Pointe. In his 12th term, attorney, former minority leader but now functions as "free spirit," unquestioned GOP master of school policy, co chairs Education Committee (with Keith).

Barbara Dobb, 43, Union Lake. In second term, member of Taxation Committee, certified public accountant with business practice, leaped into prominence on Bipartisan Legislative Team (school equity), chaired task force on single business tax.

Susan Munsell, 42, Howell. In her third term, former township treasurer, almost a twin of Dobb - CPA with business practice, BLT, Taxation Committee, political centrist.

Willis C. Bullard Jr., 50, Milford. In sixth term, co-chair (with Jondahl) of Taxation Committee, attorney, former township treasurer, ranks with Dobb and Munsell among least vocal GOP lawmakers but emerging now that his party shares control.

Glenn Oxender, 50, Sturgis. In sixth term, member of Appropriations, co chairs school aid subcommittee, former math and computer science teacher, proposed replacing all property taxes with income taxes, champions school funding equity for in formula ('poor") districts.

Donald H. Gilmer, 48, Augusta. In ninth term, obscure until he became co chair of Appropriations, host of ad hoc group, fruit grower in Kalamazoo County, political centrist.

Bob Brackenridge, 52, St. Joseph. In second term, junior GOP member. Former secondary and college teacher, publisher of supplemental classroom materials, one term as Berrien County clerk, nowco chairs House Local Government Committee.

Insider: State Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, is one of 14 members of the committee in Lansing working on school finance.

Official says schools seek minority faculty

A story in Monday's Observer was inadvertently trimmed and a complete report was not published.

The story outlined a Schoolcraft College economics professor Prantosh Nag's complaint with the Michigan Civil Rights Commission claiming that college officials are discriminating against him based on his age, 63, and ethnic origin, Indian.

Because of my national origin, I belong to an ethnic minority group without any political clout or influence. I am the weakest link in the chain and therefore an easy victim," wrote Prantosh Nag in a statement delivered to the Observer.

College President Richard McDowell declined to comment on Nag's case because of the complaint and grievances pending.

Conway Jeffress, the vice president for instruction, would only say, "Our attorneys have advised us that we should not comment on the case because there may be pending litigation.

Although Schoolcraft officials were reticent regarding the case, an official at another local college agreed to speak anonymously on the subject of academic discrimination in

Colleges, he said, have nothing to gain and a lot to lose by discriminating against employ-

"Administrators are usually careful and solicitous of faculty members who represent minority groups, and they do want to keep those numbers up. But on the other hand, if you're getting consistent reports that someone is not doing his job, you're going to see efforts to get rid of him, and that's not easy to do.

Hart to hear complaints about state lottery

People with gripes about the State Lottery can air them before state senators at 7 p.m. Monday.

Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, will host the panel in the 19th District Court building, 16077 Michigan.

Hart is sponsor of Senate Bill

863 to make the Lottery subject to the Administrative Procedures Act. It would regulate how the Lottery makes rules that affect operation of bingos, raffles and operations of lottery agents.

"If the Lottery wants to develop or discontinue a game, change the rules, issue or revoke licenses, there are no legislative or regulatory controls that check their powers," said Hart.

The Lottery has total revenues of $1.25 billion. After payouts and administrative expenses, it contributes $475 million to the school aid fund - about 1/18th of all public school revenues. The State Affairs Committee is chaired by Gilbert DiNello, R-Eastpointe, and includes Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, John Pridnia, R-Hubbard Lake, and Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit.

Board appointment

n Monday night, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will appoint an individual to fill the vacancy created by board treasurer Dean Swartzwelter, who resigned due to health reasons last week.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting will be at the E.J. McClendon Educational Center, 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth.

Candidates who submitted letters of interest by Wednesday's 5 p.m. deadline include Canton's former state representative James Kosteva, now director of research for House Democrats; Betty Bloch, director of the Business Education Partnership; Ted Bohlen, a government activist retired from General Motors; Sue Feiten, co-chairwoman of the Class-size Action Partnership; Bill Joyner, executive director of the Canton Community Foundation; Steve Kilijanczyk, second-highest vote-getter in the last school board election and an active parent at Allen Elementary; John LaFond, a member of the district's schools of choice committee; former school board candidate Terry Chuhran; school activist Pat Liljestrand, who worked to pass the millage; Albert Calille; Sue Dodson; Michael Kelch; Paul Moniodis; Edward Pritchard; and G. William Trapp.

The candidate chosen by the board will serve through June 30. The appointee may then run for election for either the one remaining year of Swartzwelter's term, or for one of two four-year terms. Up for re-election in June will be trustees Les Walker and Carl Battishill.

U-M economist predicts profitable yule season

■ Canton and Plymouth merchants heard some good news at the Canton Economic Club; Christmas sales are expected to be up by 8 to 9 percent. The reason is lower interest rates.

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

Christmas sales this year should spell good news for Plymouth-Canton businesses if economist David Sowerby is on target.

"It's the low interest rates." said Sowerby, who is featured weekly on "Money Wise," Detroit's only television show devoted to business issues.

No doubt the low interest rates have been a boon to the economy. "This is equivalent to a tax cut and a benefit to the economy.

Sowerby, who teaches economics and finance at the University of Michigan, told the Canton Economic Club Wednesday that he expects an 8-9 percent growth in Christmas sales this year thanks to the extra money consumers have in their pocket due to savings from the low interest rates.

In fact, Sowerby said Michigan's economy - particularly in Wayne County and southeastern Michigan is ahead of the national economy. On a scale of 1-10, with 1 described as "lousy" and 10 as "bliss," Michigan is at 7-7.5, while the country is at 5.5.

He estimated that auto sales will continue to increase in 1994 by 8-10 percent. "That speaks well for the entire state of Michigan."

Compared to the national scene, Michigan companies have exceeded earnings growth and unemployment is at or below the national level. The state also has faster employment growth and faster vehicle production.

"In every case on this score card, we are beating the United States,' Sowerby said.

Doing well: Economist David Sowerby told the Canton Economic Club that the state of Michigan is doing well, in most cases outdistancing the national economy.

The bad news, however, is recent tax increases. "It will slow down the ability to grow," Sowerby said. The increases, he said, will hurt small businesses.

Results of a survey conducted by Beacon Investment Company, where Sowerby is employed, show that small business owners are hurt by taxes and regulation.

In response to questions from the audience, Sowerby said proposed mandated costs on small businesses for President Bill Clinton's national health care plan will hurt.

"Why when other countries are moving away from national health care, why do we want to move in that direction?" Sowerby asked. "Mandatory costs on business isn't going to create jobs and this is a loser.'

While he believes the state, under Gov. John Engler, is moving economically in the right direction, Sowerby is keeping his fingers crossed on Senate Bill 1, which would reform school finance.

"I wish we would move a little faster," Sowerby added.

He told the audience that he is looking for a true tax cut - not a shell game where taxes are shifted. Michigan has an average tax burden of 4-5 percent, while the city of Detroit is at 7 percent, which is higher than the average U.S. city.

"We need a net tax reduction. I would just try to cut property taxes as much as I could and leave the rest alone.

It's hard to believe, but baseball announcer Ernie Harwell at one time considered himself tongue-tied.

"Through the grace of God, I overcame that handicap," said Harwell, in recalling his visits to an elocution teacher in his younger days. He went on to a distinguished career as a baseball announcer, and for many years has been the voice of the Detroit Tigers on WJR-AM radio.

Baseball's a great game and the Tigers are a great franchise," said Harwell during a Sunday morning service at West Plymouth Community Church. Some 350 to 375 church members and guests turned out to listen to Harwell's stories of baseball and of his Christian faith.

Those attending welcomed Harwell and his wife, Lulu, with a

Out to the Ballgame." The Rev. Phil Rogers, pastor, recalled his own days as an 8-year-old living Downriver and playing Little League during that magical 1968 season when the Tigers won the World Series.

We realize that Ernie Harwell is much more than a baseball announcer," Rogers said. "He has created a lot of memories.'

Stories to tell

The Georgia native, who was born in 1918, came from humble beginnings. His father had multiple sclerosis, and Harwell's mother supported the family by making sandwiches and cakes. The Harwell boys sold things to help out.

"I wanted to play baseball in the worst way, and that's how I played it." Harwell, who was inducted into the National Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1981, realized he would never make it in the majors.

In high school, he wrote to The Sporting News editor in St. Louis, and became that publication's Atlanta correspondent. He later got a job at the Atlanta Constitution mainly doing things nobody else wanted to do.

He started in radio in the minor leagues. Following service in the Marine Corps during World War II, he set his sights on the majors.

still had an emptiness, a void in my heart that needed filling." He'd been a regular churchgoer, but didn't have much of a relationship with God.

'Our attitude was pretty much if we went to church, did a few good deeds and stayed out of everyone's way, we would go to

His success as a major league announcer in Baltimore and other cities didn't bring fulfillment. All that changed in 1961 when he went to a Billy Graham Easter service while with the Tigers during spring training in Florida.

'God has set my priorities in order. I made Him my Lord and my savior from then on.'

Harwell, who took some time after the Sunday service to sign autographs, recalled the thrill of playing cards with Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella, Pee Wee Reese and other baseball greats.

He recalled Robinson's breaking of baseball's color line in 1948 with the then-Brooklyn Dodgers. "It was quite an experiment, a noble experiment by Branch Rickey." Robinson was the ideal choice as major league baseball's first black player, he said, not only because of his playing skill but also because of his ability to

"Jackie I think was the most exciting player I ever saw." Willie Mays of New York (later San Francisco) Giants fame is the best player Harwell ever saw.

He remembered a catch Mays made in Pittsburgh when he was a rookie, "Willie made the greatest catch I've ever seen." Mays couldn't catch the line drive with his glove, but caught it with his bare hand.

He came back to the dugout and the more seasoned players remained silent, to tease the rookie. Mays asked manager Leo Durocher about the catch, and Durocher responded "Willie, I didn't see it, go out and do it again."

On to Detroit

Harwell's arrival in Detroit introduced him to a number of Tiger players and fans. "I came to Detroit in 1960 and the people of Michigan have certainly been great to me.

He considers Al Kaline the best Tiger of all time. "I'm just glad he's still around and doing the telecasts along with George Kell." Cecil Fielder's a fine player too, as was the late Norm Cash, who was a friend to all. "He loved to play ball, no question about that.

Harwell has fond memories of Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, who played for the team in the 1970s.

Fidrych was a "sweet kind of guy," but not too adept with words. One time in Kansas City, Harwell asked him about the team physician's opinion of his arm injury.

Fidrych replied that the doctor knew little about such injuries. 'He's a skin doctor. He's one of those gynecologists," he told Harwell.

Harwell didn't mention his abrupt firing by former Tigers owner Tom Monaghan or his return to the broadcasting booth after the team was bought by Mike Ilitch. He had nothing but praise for the team and its team chapel program. That program has now spread into the minor leagues and other sports. "I've seen a lot of athletes devote themselves to Jesus." Those include such current and former Tigers as Frank Tanana.

Travis Fryman and Milt Cuyler. Harwell recalled the story of headlines by announcing in the early 1970s that they planned to swap wives. That player was later traded to the Texas Rangers, where he met player Danny Thompson, who had leukemia and was dying but continued to

"Fritz dedicated his life to the Lord" after meeting Thompson, Harwell said. "God can work wonders wherever he is, in the locker room or the church.

"I'm richly honored that God loves me," Harwell said. "Since I've given my life to Jesus, I've had a peace I've never had before.

"It's like knowing the final score of the game. Sooner or later, the outcome is going to be on God's side."

Rogers, the pastor, told those attending how Harwell announced on the air the name of his former second-grade Sunday school teacher, who's battling cancer. "She called me and she was so excited because he mentioned her name. I think he is the epitome of humility.

"There's a new idea in funeral planning I thought you'd like to know about."

More and more people are taking advantage of the opportunity to pre-plan their funeral arrangements with the Family Considerations program.

You can choose the arrangements you want. This way your family won't face a difficult decision later. You can also pre-pay your arrangements so your family won't inherit a financial burden.

Job well done

Swartzwelter will be missed

he Plymouth Canton Board of Education will miss the voice of Dean Swartzwelter, who recently resigned from the board for health reasons.

While we sometimes disagreed with Swartzwelter, we never doubted his commitment to educating all 15,000 students in the Plymouth Canton school district.

A board member since 1984, Swartzwelter hardly ever missed a meeting, and this showed tremendous commitment during an era when public pressure on those involved with education increased.

During meetings, he also kept his head, and was willing to explain why certain things were being done by the board. Those explanations went a long way toward fending off criticism.

The latest crisis schools face is financing, and Swartzwelter was willing to talk in public about the dilemma facing the state and the local school district.

That quality was welcome on a school board that hasn't been known for having strong leadership. Swartzwelter on numerous occasions was known to ensure that members of the public had their questions answered during long board discussions on educational issues.

The job of school board member isn't easy. The pay is low, $30 per meeting with a yearly maximum of $1,500, and the abuse usually outweighs the recognition.

And with a string of three lost millage elections, there has been plenty of criticism laid on the school board. Swartzwelter, however, didn't get bogged down by that, as some do. He quickly recovered from criticism and was able to stay confident of his abilities and keep the mission of educating students in mind. He was focused while others got bogged down.

Also, he commanded the respect of local politicians and fellow board members.

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, who opposed the recent 4-mill property tax increase for schools that voters rejected, had this to say: "I think Swartzwelter has served the district well. When you stop and think about the amount of time it takes to to do this job properly, for someone to exhibit that dedication without remuneration is a demonstration of their concern and their dedication to the public and to our children."

Roland Thomas, school board president, noted that Swartzwelter was always willing to compromise and "had a strong commitment to children."

Swartzwelter's well-informed voice will be missed on the school board, as will his willingness to compromise and his dedication to the community.

Dean Swartzwelter leaves some pretty big shoes to fill as the board looks for a replace-am writing to you in response to "Halloween Ban" instituted by Barbara Young. I don't understand the reasoning behind not letting her elementary students dress up as socalled "sick characters."

Ban questioned

Just because a student may dress up as Freddy Krueger or Jason does not mean they idolize these people. They are only having fun, seeing as how they are so young why not let them have their fun before they grow out of the holiday? Believe it or not, wearing a costume, that's all it is, is part of celebrating the occasion.

I don't believe Mrs. Young's actions are in the interest of children; it is more disrespectful than beneficial to the children.

Serving men, too am writing in reference to an article entitled "Trustees say WRC serves men too." This appeared Thursday, Nov. 4, in the Observer.

I am one of the 45 volunteers mentioned in the story and I wanted to rectify what was probably just an oversight. While the article meant to focus on the controversy of a name change for the Women's Resource Center, it did not provide a good picture of the services available. In fact, it described only one program, that of the displaced homemaker.

My concern is that someone reading this article may think they are not eligible to use the WRC services. Today, both men and women use the Peer Counseling and referral services provided. Our clients come from the community and the student body. Peer counselors and staff assisted more than 14,000 people this year. Everyone is welcome, without regard to race, religion, age, sex, or handicap.

We provide financial aid to people without resources who are trying to go to school. We sponsor support groups, seminars and conferences, and so many other beneficial services I can't list them here. Instead, I am enclosing a ne community's reluctance to help fund the Eight Mile Boulevard Association only serves to mock the group's purpose of "Joining Together to Make a Difference."

Eight Mile plan demands unity

The association is a collection of 12 communities working with the Michigan Department of Transportation and Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to improve the Eight Mile business district

Southfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills and Redford Township are among the Cakland and Wayne County participating members of the association who have paid their dues.

Livonia, Michigan's eighth-largest city, has

Although Mayor Robert Bennett said this week the city could still reconsider, Livonia is at this point the only community to refuse to pay its dues — about $7,000. The dues are reasonable - especially for a city the size of Livonia - and have not been levied arbitrarily. They are based on the city's miles of frontage on Eight Mile.

The money goes to clean up litter, help workers get to their jobs at Eight Mile businesses, improve traffic flow, help businesses attract customers and improve landscaping and streetscaping to this critical boundary shared by Detroit and its suburbs. Livonia's reluctance stems from recent tight budgets and the feeling the city won't benefit directly from the effort.

Other nearby communities are experiencing the same fiscal pressures — some even greater than Livonia — and still have managed to fund the Eight Mile project.

The refusal to pay the relatively small fee is troubling but more worrisome is the attitude that Livonia is an island and need not cooperate with its neighbors.

That city seems to have no problem spending that kind of money on strictly local cleanup or beautification projects - planting flowers around its Five Mile-Farmington civic center or on the boulevards in the Six Mile-Newburgh commercial district, for example.

Although Livonia officials have pledged to cooperate in spirit and support the overall intent of the group, that's not enough. A promise to support and cooperate can't do the job. A welldesigned plan with concrete goals and objectives can succeed — only if it's properly funded.

The coordinator for Business Group for a Competitive Livonia, an economic development partnership between the city and the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, recently completed a study assessing the future of economic development in Livonia.

According to the report, Livonia benefited and continues to benefit from decisions made

"However, Livonia is no longer the fresh new kid on the block," the report states. "It has entered middle age. The existing industrial corridor is nearly at capacity and there is little land remaining for major residential development."

All communities have fiscal pressures. We urge Livonia's leaders to look at this project in its larger scope.

Benefits to the metro area from a healthy, attractive Eight Mile Road transcend one city's Lesson 1: Around 1970, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a Missouri community college's apportionment violated the U.S. Constitution's "equal protection of the laws" — or as common folks say, "One person, one vote."

Schoolcraft College was one of two or three in Michigan with malapportioned voting districts that clearly were unconstitutional. Either equalized districts or at-large voting had to be adopted. Schoolcraft's Old Guard knew it from reading the paper. Their attorney advised the chair that Schoolcraft's election districts were unconstitutional. Moreover, the flaming young liberals in the New Democratic Coalition began collecting money for a lawsuit.

The chair of the Old Guard hid the attorney's opinion. During the delay, the college president retired, and the Old Guard hired a new president. When the NDC suit came into Wayne County Circuit Court, the Old Guard surrendered. But since it already had hired the man who would be president for 10 years, age and treachery had prevailed.

Lesson 2: The Michigan Legislature currently is writing a school tax package and educational reform measures that are likely to be in effect for decades, even generations. It will be the biggest change in schools since the adoption of the sales tax in the 1930s and the high school building binge of the 1950s and '60s.

Meanwhile, young and vigorous idealists are waiting for the state constitutional amendment on term limitation to kick in — the one voters adopted in 1992. Representatives must leave after three terms (six years), senators after two (eight years).

In the House, the Old Guard won't let this chance slip away. It's not letting the big decisions be made in the standing committees, where freshmen members can be heard. Instead, an ad hoc group of a dozen or so senior members is meeting behind closed doors to bargain the issues.

In the House Education Committee, co-chairs Bill Keith of Garden City and Bill Bryant of Grosse Pointe — who have been around 20 years or so apiece — quietly amended one key proposal of Gov. John Engler's and informed everyone that this would be the vehicle bill. That was that.

That bugged newcomers like Jerry Vorva of Plymouth, Deborah Whyman of Canton, Al Cropsey of DeWitt and others. Vorva, in particular, is unhappy with the Old Guard's tactics. "We didn't even get to vote on Engler's version," he complained.

Personally, I like how the two Bills massaged Engler's plan, but that's not the point. The point is that the Old Guard is using its last years in power to dictate school taxes and policy for decades, riding roughshod over the new kids.

Lesson 3: What the young idealists vote for during the year is taken away by the Old Guard on the joint House-Senate conference committees.

During normal deliberations, freshman Rep. Greg Kaza of Rochester Hills won 87-1 approval of a budget bill amendment requiring the Legislature to show in detail its costs and number of jobs. A conference committee then met to iron out differences in the House and Senate versions of the bill-Old Guard senators insisted Kaza's amendment had to go. It went.

Dad's lesson deserves to be in the civics books: "In any contest, old age and treachery will outwit youth and vigor." I wish him a happy 84th birthday — and thanks for the civics lesson.

Vorva praised

he courage displayed by Gov. John Engler, State Sen. Bob Geake and State Rep. Jerry Vorva in confronting the special interest groups in order to reform education in the state is unique, refreshing and worthy of high praise.

They have placed their political careers in jeopardy by disregarding the voices of the opulent and powerful few in order to lift the burden of property tax and improve the quality of education for the multitude.

They are deserving of both our praise and support as they continue on their quest to provide the highest quality education and keep open the door of the American Dream for our children.

It is time for the average citizen to speak out and quell the voice of the self-serving, misguided few. Reform is never easy, but reform we must if the future of our children is to be se-was intrigued to read your front page story on Oct. 28 in which the Plymouth Canton School Board urged citizens to contact their legislators to protest Governor Engler's educational reform proposal as "wrong and unconscionable."

It struck me that this was the same group that predicted the significant demise of educational quality in the district twice this past summer when advocating additional millage support.

It appears the school board was wrong then, and if I remember my children's stories, despite the warning cries of Chicken Little, the sky never fell. Before any of the citizens in the district contact their legislators, I'd suggest they first contact Dr. Paul N. DeWeese, M.D., the chairman of the board of "Teach Michigan" at 913 Holmes, Suite 147, Lansing, Mich. 48910 to discuss the kind of potential reform opportunities available to us. There are some extremely interesting models to effectively educate the public in some other states that deserve consideration and are not inconsistent with much of the Governor's proposal

It seems the voters were sending a message requesting reform and improvement last summer. Maybe the board members should contact Dr. Deweese as well, or at least watch the video from the Deming library on "Education as a System." Who knows, with creative thought we might find truly exciting opportunities to enhance Plymouth Canton and all of Michigan's education systems.

Doyle half accurate

oc Doyle's Nov. 8 article on Outcome
Based Education was as clear of an explanation as any I have read. Outcome Based Education is a conservative approach to educational reform, despite criticism of the movement from the right.

My objection stems from his cavalier explanation of Michael Apple's (University of Wisconsin-Madison) criticism of Outcome Based Education. Doyle's definition of Apple was a "warm, kindly professor" implies he is weak on substance. He also says Apple takes a "Gestalt" approach, "looking at a person in totality and not only as a learner, but a social, psychological human being with other needs." Doyle is only half accurate.

Apple's ideas are broad based, replete with historical and political visions of the purpose of public education. Doyle fails to mention that the psychological considerations Apple refers to come straight from John Dewey. Doyle also fails to mention the concerns that Apple voices about Outcome Based Education comes from Thomas Jefferson. Apple objects to states like Michigan that insist on one proficiency test for all students. Jefferson argues that in a democracy, public schools ought to identify and develop individual talents in students rather than taking a cookie cutter approach to proficiency as the current state mandate does. One test does not fit all.

Outcome Based Education techniques can play a positive role in education but not if it fails to consider the importance of individual thought in a democratic society. Apple's concern with Outcome Based Education is that we not lose sight of what Thomas Jefferson and John Dewey would call primary obligations of public education.

Adopt better mass transit to expand area job market

rriving last Monday morning at Washington National Airport, I walked 100 yards to the nearest subway stop.

It was well lighted and clean. The fare card cost $1, dispensed from an automatic machine. A train arrived shortly. It, too, was well lighted and clean, and the ride was relatively quiet and quick. I arrived at the Labor Department, serene and on time for my meeting.

Such is mass transit in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, thanks to the Metro. It's quick, convenient, inexpensive, safe. It links the center city to the growing suburbs, and it has played an enormous role in the fantastic job growth of the entire region.

Contrast this with mass transit in the metropolitan Detroit area. Here we have two bus systems — Detroit's DOT and the suburban system, SMART — both separate and both unequal to the task.

Detroit, with a population around one million, has around 300 buses running daily, while smaller Washington has 1,100 buses plus a rail system. Worse, D-DOT buses run mostly in Detroit, so Detroiters who work in the suburbs have to change and wait to get to their jobs.

And it's clear that job growth in southeastern Michigan for the foreseeable future will be concentrated in the suburbs.

According to NPA Data Services, more jobs will be created in the Detroit metropolitan area, relative to population growth, than in any other U.S. metropolitan area. Projections show population growth of 111,100 new residents from 1989-2010, but 285,700 new jobs. That's a ratio of 2.57 new jobs for every one new resident, best rate in the country.

But nearly all these new jobs will be located in Oakland, western Wayne and Livingston counties.

That's why Dennis Archer, mayor-elect of Detroit, talked repeatedly and bluntly during the campaign about how important regional mass transit is in solving the unemployment problem in the core city and providing the necessary labor to fuel economic growth in the suburbs,

Archer also called for merging SMART with D-DOT, partly to provide better services and partly because running one system is cheaper and more efficient than running two in parallel Mayor Coleman A. Young, you will remember, refused for years to consider anything remotely

County Executive Ed McNamara has been for a merged system for years, while Brooks Patterson, Oakland County executive, long an opponent, recently said he'd consider it.

The big problem, of course, is money. Detroit taxpayers kick in $35 million a year to support D-DOT, while SMART gets no suburban government subsidies. It's going to take a lot to persuade suburbanites to pay a regional tax to support an old mass transit system that relatively few of them use.

But suppose the choice were not taxes for a bad bus system but, instead, taxes for a good rail system. For example, with just half the population density per square mile as Detroit, Atlanta now operates two rapid transit rail lines 25 miles long, about the distance from downtown Detroit to Pontiac.

What interests both the suburbs and the city is not merging separate and inadequate old transit systems but creating a good new one that can drive the economic growth of the entire area. Now that suburbs and city are beginning to talk, that's a good early agenda item.

ell, it's been said sports are for kids, and the way a few college coaches are acting. that adage has certainly proven true. It's just too bad they didn't leave it to the kids.

Here's my (unsolicited) opinion on how eligibility problems should be handled on collegiate levels below the NCAA's Division I, where big bucks are at stake: immediately, quietly, in-house. If there's a problem, rectify it.

If one school becomes aware of potential trouble at another school, alert that other school.

Tom Teeters and Gary Gray have defied that and become embroiled in what can only be termed a very ugly mess. Teeters coaches Schoolcraft College's volleyball team; Gray coaches Henry Ford

A brief history leading up to the controversy: Two Henry Ford players, Kristen Barnes and Danielle Pfeffer, transferred to Schoolcraft in January. No problem with Barnes, who had signed with the Hawks for just one year; but Pfeffer's letter of intent at Henry Ford covered two. She needed to get a release to be immediately eligible.

She didn't get it. The oversight wasn't discovered until the season was one-third over. SC had to forfeit all matches played to that point in which Pfeffer had played.

Henry Ford took over as the Eastern Conference's kingpin, earning the top seed in the NJCAA's Region 12 Tournament, hosted by SC. The Lady Ocelots were up to the challenge, howev-

Chiefs, Blazers set stage for final

The stage is set for a classic confrontation Friday when Plymouth Canton (20-1) meets Livonia Ladywood (14-3) for the Class A district girls basketball championship. Game time is 7 p.m. at Northville High School.

The long anticipated Star Wars matchup is upon us.

State-ranked girls basketball powers Plymouth Canton (20-1) and Livonia Ladywood (14-3) will collide Friday for the Class A district championship at Northville. (Game time is 7 p.m.). Both teams advanced with impressive wins in Wednesday's semifinal double-header.

In the opener, Canton rolled to a 65-21 victory over Kensington Valley Conference co-champion Novi, while Ladywood crushed Plymouth Salem in the nightcap, 59-23.

"It will be a great game because they are two outstanding teams that play great defense and know how to Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "They've both have played a high level of competition this year and done very well.

Ladywood showed no ill effects of a two-week layoff following its 49-44 semifinal loss to Dearborn Divine Child in the Catholic League playoffs.

"We took a couple of days off and some of the girls said it really helped them," Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh said. "A majority of them play year-round, not because I want them to, but by choice.

"We came back with our basic man-to-man defense and we stressed teamwork during the layoff."

The Blazers, using a full-court press, stormed out to a 21-3 firstquarter lead and never looked back.

By halftime it was 37-11 Ladywood. "We played a pretty good basketball team," said Thomann, whose Rocks bowed out with a 13-8 record. "Defensively, Ladywood is so good. And once they can shake the ball loose, they have the ability to finish at the other end and score.

"With their size and the way they rebound the ball, it makes for a tough defensive matchup."

Junior forward Tara Overaitis, showing no complications from a broken nose suffered in the Divine Child game, led the winners with 19 points. Tara Wasiak, a 5-11 senior, came off the bench to score 11.

Lisa Craven, a senior guard, tallied nine to pace the Rocks.

Kavanaugh also shook up his lineup, starting senior Erin Lucas at guard.

Lucas did not score, but gave the Blazers some stability in the backcourt. Ladywood only had eight turnovers on the night to Salem's 20.

"Erin's an excellent passer, a good defender and makes smart plays," Kavanaugh said. "She decided in the Divine Child game that we wanted to be a basketball player and it's show-

Canton, meanwhile, made all the right plays in routing Novi, which bowed out with a respectable 16-5 record.

Canton led 14-6 after one quarter, but turned on the jets with runs of 21-6 and 17-2 in the second and third periods. The Chiefs made 20 of 39 shots (51 percent) from the floor during the first 24 minutes.

Britta Anderson, a 5-7 senior forward, led the victorious Chiefs with 18 points, while 5-10 sophomore Sarah Warnke came off the bench to score 14. Floor general Alyson Noune, a 5-foot senior, added nine points.

Novi, shooting only 15 percent from the floor (six for 38), got eight points from Kelly Kearney.

We came out early and were pretty aggressive," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "We took the ball to the basket, rebounded and defended well.

"The good start gave our team confidence. We were really into it. We got shots inside and we also got the ball to the rim versus their zone. Overall I'm pleased with the way we played." Kavanaugh also came away impressed with Canton.

They're an excellent team," he said. "We're going to have to step our game up a level to beat them.'

Head makes decision: Iowa

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

The parents of Plymouth Salem senior James Head can look forward to making more crosscountry trips in the future.

Head became the second member of his family to earn a basketball scholarship out of state when he signed a letter of intent on Tuesday to attend the University of Iowa. Head's sister, Dena, played on two national championship teams at the University of Tennessee and was national Player of the Year as a senior in 1991-

Jim Head said he doesn't mind logging several more thousand miles on his five-year-old van

"You always find transportation for that (watching a son or daughter play)," the elder Head said. "We felt he would have the opportunity to play somewhere, and - it being a Big Ten school - it's an honor and privilege for those participating at that level. The coaches at Salem and the entire school staff prepared James well for the next level.'

Eyeing lowa:

James Head. who will graduate from Salem in the spring, liked the staff and everything else about Iowa, which is why he chose to accept a scholarship there.

Head, a first-team All-Observer choice last year after averaging 14 points and 10.4 rebounds per game, said he was glad to sign during the early signing period, which started Nov. 10 and ended Wednesday. The 6-foot-6, 210pound forward said he has passed his ACT test and will be eligible to play as a freshman.

Head said he chose Iowa over several Big Ten schools.

"lowa is the best place for me," he said. "I fit in real well for them, and I was real impressed with the staff, the way they handled themselves. Everything was first class. They recruited me as a student-athlete first.

Head made an official visit last month and became friends with Iowa sophomore Kenyon Murray, the former Mr. Basketball from Battle Creek. Head has never seen an Iowa game in person but was on hand for an intra-squad scrimmage at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"I was amazed by their fan support," Head said. "It was a practice game, and they had several thousand fans there.

Salem coach Bob Brodie said Iowa coach Tom Davis and assistant Rich Walker, who is from the Detroit area, started recruiting Head seriously last year. Head's stock improved over the summer when he played well at the ABCD camp at Eastern Michigan University, where Detroit Pershing's All-America candidate

Willie Mitchell also played. Head is the third Salem player Brodie has had who signed with a Division I school out of high school. Rick Taylor, a 1987 Salem graduate, signed with the University of Detroit-Mercy, and Jake Baker, a '91 grad, signed with Central Michigan University.

"Iowa is an excellent decision. It's a quality program with a good staff," Brodie said. "They were in our gym last year watching James during practice time. They showed a lot of interest in James as a person. Signing early gives him a chance to concentrate on his senior year academically and athletically.'

Crusaders are facing an imposing obstacle

BY C.J. RISAK STAPP WEITER

Vengeance will probably occur to some of Madonna University's volleyball players Saturday when they travel to the College of Mount St. Joseph's in Cincinnati — but it won't be a key motivational factor.

The incentive surrounding Saturday's match will be consumed by what's at stake: a trip to the NAIA National Tournament in San Diego.

The Lady Crusaders are ranked seventh in the nation with a 42-6 record; they advance past the district round of play for the first time ever. Mount St. Joseph's, 40-6 for the season, is ranked 16th and has been to the bi-district round the past three years. Each time, it lost to Northwood University.

The two teams have met before. On Sept. 10, in the opening round of the Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis Tournament, St. Joseph's disposed of Madonna in two-straight games in the first round of pool play. The Crusaders rallied to win their next five matches and capture the tourney title.

Bannon adds instant credibility to Madonna, but she isn't alone. Among the other additions expected to help immediately are freshmen Meegan Marlatt, a 5-8 first-team Class D all-state guard from Atlanta (Mich.) who averaged 17 points per game as a high school senior, and Rachel Emery, another 5-8 guard from the same area as Marlatt (Fairview) who's quick and rebounds well. We had a tremendous number of turnovers," said Bogataj. "The youth really showed. Both Muskegon and Kellogg had more sophomores than we did.'

In the lopsided loss to Muskegon Saturday, SC twice made runs that cut the deficit to a reachable goal. In the first half, a 15-point bulge shrunk to three with 31/2 minutes left, and in the second the Ocelots trimmed a 22fell 103-72 on Saturday to point gap to nine with 61/2 minutes remaining.

> Both times, Muskegon replied with a run of its own. The Jayhawks led 54-38 at the half; after SC's second-half run, they powered their way back to a comfortable lead that culminated with the 31-point victory.

Muskegon was aided by McNeil's foul trouble. McNeil and Whitlow were the Ocelots' only reliable offensive weapons; McNeil had 30 points and 13 rebounds before fouling out with five minutes left. Whitlow finished with 17 points and five boards. Next highest scorer among the Ocelots was Mitchell with eight.

Earl Canning's 30 points was best for Muskegon (7-of-11 from three-point range). Ed Pernell had 15.

The run 'n shoot offense is alive and well, just ask Flint Central football coach Joe Eufinger.

It's certainly flourished this season for the unbeaten Indians (11-0), who take on Westland John Glenn (10-1) in the state Class AA semifinals, 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Lansing Everett High School.

"This is my fourth year using the offense," said Eufinger, who last reached the state semifinals in 1984 with a one-handed quarterback named Jim Abbott. Sometimes it was good, and sometimes it was bad.

"But the fans certainly got their $3 worth and more. It was entertaining football."

Speedy Central wide receiver DeAngelo Mitchell has become a human highlight film. In last week's 46-21 Region I championship win over Grand Rapids Union, Mitchell caught six passes for 108 yards and two touchdowns.

For the season, he has 12 TD receptions and 44 catches, averaging close to 20 yards per catch.

T've been the head coach here 18 years and I'd say he (Mitchell) is as good as anybody," Eufinger said. "He also has the best pair of hands on the team.

Eufinger also said Mitchell may be in the same class as Cedric Gordon, who led Ann Arbor Pioneer to the state Class A title in 1984.

"Number 80 (Mitchell) is a great receiver," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "They (Central) have athletes, a lot of speed.

"They'll put a slot-back on each side with a one-back set. Then they'll run a back in motion and it becomes an I-formation. They try to spread you around the field like Adrian did.'

Quarterback Freddie Jackson, who now has 22 TD tosses on the year, was 11-for-16 last week for JOHN GLENN

170 yards and three TDs against

Union. Other scoring threats include Andre Weathers and sophomore tailback Reiko Hurd. "Our alignment is as much run as it is pass," Eufinger said. "But yes, we run double-slot and throw it around a lot."

Defensively, the Indians play some 4-4 with an occasional 5-3 look, according to Eufinger.

"It depends how the game is going," said the Flint Central

Torrey Robinson, a 5-foot-9, 250-pound down lineman, is an All-Saginaw Valley Conference

Weathers, Mitchell and Hurd have also excelled at the defensive back positions.

Eufinger said a come-from-behind 27-13 victory over Bay City Central in the second game of the season was the team's turning

"We were behind 13-12 with about six minutes to go and we fumbled on fourth-and-goal at the 2," Eufinger recalls. "We could have gone in the tank, but we came right back and caused a fumble at their 30. We went in and scored, held them again, and scored. And that was against a pretty good team. Bay City ended up 7-2 with losses to us and Saginaw Arthur Hill, another playoff Eufinger, like Gordon, also has some concerns of his own going into Saturday's final four clash.

"Glenn does a nice job on special teams, I'm impressed with that," said the Central coach. 'And another thing that stands out is their team defense. The intensity level there seems to be sol-

John Herrington has won 202 football games, 31 post-season games and five state championships at Harrison. And he's still taking lessons from his mentor.

On Monday, Herrington was discussing the virtues of the Fraser football program, Harrison's opponent in the Class A semifinals at 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Eastern Michigan's Rynearson Stadium.

'Man, they are big," Harrison said. "Their offensive line averages around 270 pounds and we don't have a single lineman over 200. I don't know if we can stop their power game.'

Overhearing the conversation was Farmington Athletic Director Ron Holland, legendary former North Farmington coach who used to tutor a young, hotshot assistant named Herring-

"Your kids won't know they can stop them either if you keep talking about how big they are," Holland chided.

Herrington nodded.

"He's right. Everybody has tried to power us and only one team really pounded us," Herrington said, referring to a 35-0 loss to Birmingham Brother Rice. "We'll just have to do what we've been doing, try to HARRISON offset their size with our quick

Then, after Holland walked away, Herrington added, laughing, "What we really have to do is hope they get a lot of holding penalties. Fight the power

Fraser (10-1) is huge up front and its success is tied to a powerful, albeit one-dimensional, running attack and a punishing defense. The Ramblers' line weighs in at 285, 270, 230, 256 and 270 from tackle to tackle. Much of the traffic flows behind tackle Brian Wilcox (6-7, 285), son of former Detroit Tiger pitcher Milt, and center Robb Moore (6-

And that traffic is usually in the form of senior tailback Ron Tresh. He has set a school record with 284 carries and has rushed for more than 1,200 vards.

But Fraser coach Ray Barr isn't convinced his team can just ram the ball down the Hawks' throats.

"I would like to think we can; but I'm not sure," said Barr, whose teams have been 28-5 the last three years, 20-2 the last two, and won its first regional title last week beating Birmingham Seaholm, 20-3. "We're pretty big but we aren't that fast. We look good coming out of the locker room, but we're cumbersome. And with Harrison's great quickness, that could present a problem."

Especially on the fast carpet at Rynearson.

"I'm hoping for rain, snow and ice," Barr joked.

Herrington, whose team is 9-2, knows he'll have to gear up to stop the run, but he also fears Fraser's quarterback Fred Schwarze.

"He can throw when he has to," Herrington said. "And he has quick feet. Harrison's defense has been a bit schizophrenic of late. After putting the clamps on Westland John Glenn, the Hawks allowed 58 points and 769 yards to Rice and Edsel Ford. Against Northville last week they allowed 16 points in the first half, then completely shut the Mustangs down the rest of the way.

"I was happy with the defense last week against Northville,' Herrington said. "We got (linebacker) Nick Williams back and that made a difference. But we aren't real big and we need to play with a lot of emotion and intensity. With this group, we're never quite sure what we are Air time?

Harrison faces a major challenge on the other side of the ball, as well. Fraser's defense, led by all-state candidate Kris Masi (6-3, 237), has allowed just 83 points in 11 games and more than one touchdown in just two.

"Our defense is very similar to John's," Barr said. "We like to fly to the ball. But we'll get a big test this week. I know John will present us with some new things and some very good things.

Herrington actually isn't sure how he's going to attack Fraser.

"You look at the films and you think maybe they are vulnerable to the pass, but the only team to really hurt them passing was Utica Eisenhower and they hurt a lot of people," Herrington said. "We have to keep all our options open and let the game determine which ones we

The options are: A power running game featuring Williams, who rumbled for 115 yards against Northville, a flash-anddash running game featuring Jason Granger who has been hobbling on a tender ankle, or a passing game featuring quarterback Joe Pesci and receiver Kevin Bryant who produced two touchdowns last week.

E FOOTBALL CHAMPS

The Canton Lions junior varsity football team finished an undefeated season and won the league Super Bowl, 23-14, over the Belleville Cougars.

Brandon Evans scored two touchdowns, kicked a two-point conversion and also had a TD saving tackle. Evans had 104 yards rushing.

The Lions took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter after a 35-yard

TD run by Evans and a two-point conversion kick by William Wanniger. Robert Drabicki also had a memorable first quarter, recovering a Belleville fumble on the Cougars' 26-yard line. A few plays later, Drabicki recovered another teammate's fumble for a TD. Wanniger's pass to Justin Bradley for the extra point gave the Li-

Belleville closed the margin to 15-6 at halftime but Andrew Sieber's fumble recovery on the Belleville 37 in the fourth quarter set up the Lions' final score. Evans scored a few plays later on a 1-yard run and he added the twopoint conversion kick for a 23-6 ons a 15-0 lead.

Belleville scored to make the margin 23-12 and was driving again, but Wanniger recovered a fumble with 3:46 to go to ensure the victory. Belleville's last score came on a two-point safety.

Mike Klimek, Drabicki and Wanniger had six tackles each. Sieber and Jonathon Deboe had five each and Tom Mazur and Dean Shirkman contributed four stops. Joe Brafford, Jacob Lyons, Justin Sproul, Shaun Reynolds and T.J. Gibbons also played strong.

The Lions' freshmen lost to the Ypsilanti Braves, 25-14.

The freshmen scored on a 32-yard run by Brendon Wheeler, a 48-yard run by Chris Trott and a gang safety in the end zone for a safety.

Kris Kowal denied an extrapoint attempt and Jason Evans had six tackles. Russell Scott had four tackles and Brandon Ellison finished with three.

The Braves had not lost since 1991 and defeated the Steelers, 38-13, in the third game of the regular season.

Kevin Salla gave the Steelers a 14-0 halftime lead with TD runs of nine and 60 yards. Salla made a two-point conversion kick after his first score.

Salla's second TD came as time expired in the first half after quarterback Chris Movinski called a timeout with :01 remaining on the clock.

Chuck Cole had a fumble recovery in the first quarter and Joel Kozma had a fumble recovery in the fourth quarter.

Salla led the Steelers with 177 yards rushing on 18 carries. John Patrick gained 21 yards on five at-

E HALLORAN CONTRIBUTES

Kelly Halloran, a Canton resident and Redford Catholic Central graduate, is playing regularly for the Michigan Nationals of the North American Junior Hockey League. Halloran, a defenseman, has two goals for the Michigan Nationals, who are in first place in the West Division at 8-8-1 overall. They are 6-2-1 in their last nine games.

For a day.

That's when the trouble began. It ended with Henry Ford being disqualified from the NJCAA Tournament, which the regional title qualified them for, after using an ineligible player; the berth was filled by tournament host Miami Dade-Kendall.

Allegations flew from both camps, but there were far more denials. Gray had a few choice words for Teeters, claiming he turned his team in and that "this is retribution for what happened to them."

Teeters countered by claiming he knew nothing of Henry Ford's problem until the day it was uncovered.

Gray added that he wasn't the one to blow the whistle on SC regarding Pfeffer.

Know what? I couldn't care less about the problems these two may cause themselves. My gut reaction is not to believe either of them. Teeters insisted the process that ended with Henry Ford's disqualification, but more than one source has revealed Teeters knew the Hawks had an ineligible play-never knew. "If I knew a team was using an ineligible player and I didn't say something, I would be fired. And I would expect to be fired.'

As for Gray, there's some doubt there, too. After all, his team played SC (with Pfeffer) the week before Pfeffer's eligibility problems were uncovered. Gray said he believed the NJCAA office discovered the mistake. But according to Mary Ellen Leicht, who handles volleyball for the NJCAA, SC's problem was phoned in to her office by an outside source.

The bottom line is, it's idiocy. Had both school administrations been on top of things, none of this would have occurred. Pfeffer's ineligibility was caused by a mistake made in the SC athletic office. Her credentials should have been checked and re-checked.

At Henry Ford, counselors and coaches are both supposed to make certain their players know they cannot drop below the minimum number of credits necessary to be eligible. A player did, and it cost the

The losers in all this are easy to pick out: the players. They do all the work, and they don't even get a chance to reap the benefits. "Brad developed into a lead runner this season by learning to start his races at a fast pace with the top runners," coach John Gerlach said. A growing need for computer rentals by businesses and other organizations is providing opportunity for a Plymouth Township firm.

Detroit PCR (Personal Computer Rentals), from its facility in the Plymouth Oaks business park, is the metro Detroit franchisee for the national PCR company Owner John Crotteau started the Detroit franchise five years ago, after taking a buyout from Detroit Diesel, where he worked as chief metallurgist.

"I really was not computerliterate; I learned most of it afterwards," Crotteau said.

It was after leaving his job that Crotteau saw an ad for people willing to buy franchises for the national computer rental firm.

He paid a $650,000 franchise fee and eventually spent $250,000 more to get the company started. "I used my credit cards; I maxed them all out,' he recalled.

Since starting in December 1987, Detroit PCR has provided computer rentals for the Bill Clinton campaign in Michigan, for the Senior Tournament Players golf tournament in

"We've been growing over the years, not as much as we wanted it to grow the last year, but it's still growing," Crotteau

Plymouth, he said, is a good place for a business serving metro Detroit.

"When I looked around, it had to be in either Wayne or Washtenaw County," he said. "This is centrally located between downtown Detroit and Ann Arbor; this is a good spot.

'Our first office was on Ann Arbor Road and Lilley," Crotteau said. There, computers, printers and accessories were stored upstairs and had to be taken down on an elevator.

At Detroit PCR's current location, equipment available for rent is kept in a ground-level storeroom behind the company office. "It's a lot easier," Crotteau said.

Two technicians now work for the firm, to allow Detroit PCR to make repairs of its rented equipment when needed, rather than send out for as winners when the Father Victor J. Renaud Council of the Knights of Columbus hosted a spelling bee

The spelling bee was open to the top fourth-, fifth- and sixthgrade students of each school in the Plymouth-Canton area. The five schools which were represented at the Nov. 6 contest were Hulsing, Bird, Farrand, Hoben and Our Lady of Good Counsel elementaries.

The first place winner, Angela Dunnigan, a fifth grader at Hulsing, was presented with a dictionary and a trophy. Dictionaries were presented to Cayna Carnes of Hoben, who placed second, Sarah Greene of Our Lady of Good Counsel, who placed third, and David Dixon of Bird, who placed fourth.

Those top four students will now compete at the archdiocese level on Dec. 12 at the Father O'Kelly Council in Dearborn. The winners at that level will compete on Feb. 5 in Owosso, Mich., for the state championship.

Other students who participated in the spelling bee were Amanda Little, Patrick Meyn, Keith Lukasik, Oliver Wolcott, Andy Boyer, Joey Vaughan, Phil Marrone, Jacob Draplin, Emily Nicolau, Jeff Thomas, John Vilches, Jeff Tegtmeyer, Danielle Grierin, Stacy Crouch, Tim Merenda and Bobby Zydeck.

Celestial treat: Total eclipse of moon coming Nov. 29

BULLOCK

November's best celestial delights will occur during the second half of the month; Mercury is very wellplaced for spotting, there will be a second meteor shower and a total eclipse of the moon will occur.

In the evening Nov. 18, the moon will be found within the constellation of Capricornus the goat. The star above the moon is named Al Giedi (Arabic for the goat). While it is not one of the brighter stars in the sky, it is the brightest in Capricornus, so it is distinguished by the first letter of the Greek alphabet and is known as Alpha Capricorni. The second brightest star in Capricornus, Dabih or Beta Capricorni, will be to the left of the moon. Dabih, whose name means "lucky one of the slaughterers" or the "slayer's lucky star," probably bode no good luck as far as a sacrificial

The moon will be at first quarter phase at 9:03 p.m. on Nov. 20. The moon will have completed goat was concerned.

the first quarter of its orbit around the earth. Still located in the constellation of Capricornus, the bright star below the moon will be the planet Saturn. Below Saturn will be Deneb Algiedi (the "tail of the goat"), the fourth brightest star in this constellation, hence also called Delta Capricorni.

About four degrees to the northeast of Delta Capricorni is the location in which Johann Galle discovered Neptune in September 1846. This planet moves extremely slow, taking 165 years to complete a single orbit around the sun. Since 1846 was "only" 147 years ago, Neptune has not yet completed a single orbit since its discovery. Neptune, and coincidentally Uranus, are currently within Sagittarius.

Mercury will be at its maximum elongation (greatest apparent distance from the sun) on the morning of the 22nd and will be nearly at its brightest. Mercury will be 20 degrees to the west (right) of the sun and nine degrees above the east-southeast horizon. Can you still see Venus below Mercury? It will be seven degrees below Mercury all week. Bright Jupiter, between Mercury and Spica, will be very easy to Moon puts on show

The moon will be approaching the Pleiades star cluster on the evening of the 27th, and on the 28th it will be located midway between the Pleiades and Aldebaran (below the Pleiades and above Aldebaran). The following night the Full Moon (November's full moon is also known as the Frosty Moon or Beaver Moon) will put on a very spectacular show!

Full moon will be at 1:31 a.m. on Nov. 29. The moon will be opposite the sun, as seen from the earth, and will be fully lighted. In fact, the moon will be exactly opposite the sun, and it will be totally eclipsed as it passes through the earth's shadow. This will be a lunar eclipse, an eclipse (covering) of the moon.

The earth always casts a shadow, and it always points away from the sun into space. When the moon is opposite the sun, as the moon is during its full phase, it usually passes above or below our shadow and remains lighted. But should things line up precisely, the moon will pass through the shadow and the light of the sun, streaming past the earth, will be

Many eclipses are partial; the alignment is close, but not exact. The moon will pass through a part of the shadow and only a portion of the moon will darken. This month, however, the alignment happens to be quite precise. This will produce a total eclipse; the moon will be totally covered and should darken considerably.

The eclipse will officially begin at 10:27 p.m. when the moon will enter the penumbra (pen UM bra), the faint outer shadow of the earth. Because this part of the shadow is very faint, no change in the moon will be noticed to the casual observer.

At 11:40 p.m. the moon will begin to enter the umbra, the darker part of the shadow. As the moon continues to move into the shadow, it will darken from left to

Totality will begin at 1:02 a.m. The moon will be totally within our shadow for the next 48 minutes. The darkest "phase" of the eclipse will be at 1:26 a.m. The top part of the moon will be nearest the central part of the shadow and should appear slightly darker

No disappearing act

During totality, the moon probably will not disappear from view, as the sun does during a total solar eclipse. Enough sunlight streaming past the earth will be refracted (bent) by our atmos-phere and will illuminate the moon, but with an eerie red glow. (Sunrises and sunsets are red because our atmosphere refracts the sunlight. This same effect colors the moon red.)

It is not possible to predict how "dark," or how red, the moon will be. Each lunar eclipse appears differently. The more dust and pollutants we have in our atmosphere, the redder the moon. In December 1963, volcanic eruptions on the earth caused more light than usual to be blocked by our atmosphere, and the moon disappeared from view during totality. The 1991 eruption of Mt. Pinatubo in the Philippines could cause a portion of the moon to appear dark red or even brown.

Total phase will end at 1:50 a.m. as the orbit of the moon begins to carry it out of our shadow.

The moon will still be eclipsed by the fainter penumbra until 4:25 a.m., but for all intents and purposes the show will be over at

An eclipse of the moon is totally safe to observe. Best views of the eclipse will be through binoculars or with a telescope at low power, although there will be plenty to enjoy if you just go out and watch with the naked eye. And enjoy it you should; the next lunar eclipse, in May 1994, will be a partial one. The best viewing of the next total eclipse of the moon, in April 1996, will be limited to the eastern part of the country. (The moon will rise invisibly, already totally eclipsed, as seen from Michigan.)

Reps back Super Collider shutdown

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Oct. 22

votes in the week ending Oct. 22

To Kill Super Collider: The House voted 282 for and 143 against to terminate the Superconducting Super Collider project in Waxahachie, Texas. The death sentence was included in the Department of Energy's fiscal 1994 budget (HR 2445). The Senate later went along and the massive research project has been declared ended by supporters as well as foes in Congress. The SSC would have conducted high-speed proton collisions in an underground loop, yielding information on the origin of matter. About $2 million toward a projected $11 billion cost to taxpayers has been spent. The bill contains $640 million to begin the

A yes vote was to kill the supercollider. Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, D-Pontiac, Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, and William Ford, D-Ypsilanti.

Jobless Benefits: By a vote of 302 for and 95 against, the House passed a bill (HR 3167) providing an additional four months, until Feb. 5, 1994, in which the long-term jobiess can qualify for additional unemployment checks after exhausting their basic 26-week allotment. Some of the estimated $1.1 billion cost will be offset by limiting Supplemental Security Income welfare payments to recent legal immigrants. But most of the tab is to be paid over five years by a plan to return the jobiess to work earlier, through better state retraining mandated by the bill.

The legislation is expected to give 750,000 workers in all states seven or 13 weeks of additional checks. The emergency program of extended benefits was enacted two years ago as a temporary measure in response to the recession. Its cost has been about $25 billion.

A yes vote was to pass the bill.

Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, Dale Kildee, Sander Levin, William Ford. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg.

Benefits Issue: By a vote of 128 for and 277 against, the House rejected an amendment to limit the latest round of extended jobless benefits (HR 3167, above) to states with at least five percent unemployment. The amendment would have excluded from the program 10 states with relatively low unemployment — Delaware, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin.

A yes vote supported the amendment. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Carr, Kildee, Levin and Ford.

Selective Service: The House voted 236 for and 194 against to preserve the Selective Service, which registers 18-year-olds for any restoration of the military draft. This reversed a House vote four months earlier to kill the agency, and put the House in agreement with the Senate that the Selective Service should be kept alive. The vote approved a $25 million service budget as part of a multiagency fiscal 1994 appropriations bill (HR 2491).

A yes vote was to preserve the Selective Service. Area representatives voting no were: Carr, Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin and Ford.

SENATE

Command Issue: By a vote of 33 for and 65 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to prevent foreign commands other than NATO from sending American troops into combat. The amendment was aimed mainly at United Nations commands such as those for Somalia, Bosnia and Haiti. It was offered to a fiscal 1994 defense appropriations bill (HR 3116) later sent to conference with the House.

Sponsor Don Nickles, R-Okla., objected to committing U.S. combat troops "to an international standing army that is without a mission, that is looking for a fire to put out, looking for a problem to solve."

Opponent Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Congress should caution President Clinton about U.S. combat in hotspots like Haiti and Bosnia but stop short permanently changing "the balance of power between the Congress... and the president

A yes vote was to prohibit United Nations commanders from sending American troops into combat.

Michigan Sens. Carl Levin, D, and Donald Riegle, D, voted no.

Civilian Marksmanship: By a tally of 67 for and 30 against, the Senate voted to continue the Civilian Marksmanship Program that will spend $2.5 million in fiscal 1994 to help the National Rifle Association and private gun clubs teach shooting skills to young people. The Pentagon provides guns and ammunition to clubs participating in the 90-year-old government program. The vote occurred during debate on the 1994 defense appropriations bill (HR 3116).

A yes vote was to continue the Civilian Marksmanship Program.

Carl Levin and Donald Riegle both voted no.

'Lettice and Lovage' smashing success

■ Lettice Douffet is a tour guide at the dullest house in England. To liven things up, she embellishes history, just a bit, with hilarious results.

BY VICTORIA DIAZ SPECIAL WEITER

If you're seeking entertainment that will leave you smiling, don't miss The Village Players' production of Peter Shaffer's "Lettice and Lovage."

In the contemporary comedy, Lettice Douffet is a middle-aged English tour guide with a tendency to embellish history a bit when she feels it needs embellishing. If the real story is dull, she reasons, why not enliven it with a jot and a tittle of fantasy now and then? It keeps her motley little tour groups from nodding off as they trudge through musty old Fustian House ("the dullest house in England") and, for the frustrated actress, it's certainly a lot more fun in the telling.

Trouble is, the jot and the tittle soon grow into embroidered fantasies of rather monstrously filigreed proportions. And almost before she knows it, Miss Douffet is called on the carpet at the no-nonsense offices of the Preservation Trust in London.

There, she comes up against one Charlotte Schoen. Schoen, whose very soul is surely sensibly shod, is commander-in-chief of tour guides like Miss Douffet and a dedicated guardian of historical truth. Despite hilarious histrionic pleadings, Lettice is given the ax by the all-powerful Schoen, and that would seem to

But Lettice's troubles have just begun. And, for the audience, so has the fun, in this smartly paced play directed by Stephen Tadevic. As the lovable, loquacious Lettice, Sandy Martin is a smashing delight. Her way with Peter Shaffer's words, her body language, and her comedic timing are all a treat to watch and listen to. But what cinches her success with this role is a kind of charged and sparkling energy. Her Lettice is like a star burning in a dank cellar in today's Dark Ages. The more desperate the situation becomes, the funnier Martin gets and the brighter she seems to burn.

In a challenging role as the prim and proper Miss Schoen (who admittedly cares more for buildings than for their inhabitants), Joan Reddy manages to bring warmth to what appears at first to be a rather unlikable character. She's a fine flat-footed foil, often at her best when totally exasperated by Letbibing a bit of Lettice's homemade, heartwarming quaff.

Talented cast captures spirit of 'Private Lives'

BY BOB WEIBEL SPECIAL WRITER

The Theatre Guild has returned once again to the venerable work of Noel Coward. This time it's "Private Lives," a witty, sardonic left jab at domestic tranquility.

Director, Rebbeca Smith's talented cast captures the spirit and style of the sophisticated comedy made popular by Coward in the 1930s.

The characters in "Private Lives" are educated, intelligent, world travelers. They are elegant and gracious. Except, of course, when Coward cleverly exposes their imperfections. Then, it's a jolly good free-for-all as they go at each other with barbs and sarcastic putdowns - culminating in juicy quarrels and rousing fisticuffs.

Charles Van Hoose is engrossing as Elyot, who is honeymooning in France with his new bride. One moment caustic, the next debonair and charming. He has a knack for delivering Coward's cynical lines with just the right edge.

For example, "Certain women should be struck regularly, like a gong." Anyone who can make that line work in the 1990s obviously has created a great character.

The new bride, Sibyl, is played by Maggie Patton. She is captivating as manipulative, giggly, lovestruck

Symphony, chorale present concert

The St. Hugo Festival Chorale, under the direction of choral director Kim Bishop and symphony conductor Valery Leonov, will be featured in the Southfield Symphony Orchestra's first concert of the season Sunday, Nov. 21, at St. Hugo of the Hills Church in Bloomfield Hills.

The 60-member choir will perform Schubert's "Mass No. 4 in C, Opus 48," which was composed by Schubert in 1816 and is distinctive as a Viennese "church trio" without the violas as well for demanding soprano solo. While the piece originally was composed in a simple and restrained style, Schubert later added parts for trumpets, drums and oboes Bishop has been director of the choir for two years and has a master in music education and choral conducting degree from the University of Michigan. He is a graduate of Interlochen Arts Acade-

Now in its sixth year, the Chorale was founded by Michael Gehab. Two years ago, Gehab left for a position in New York State, and Bishop assumed the post. The chorale performs two or three large concerts each year and at Masses each Sunday.

"We are very pleased to be hosting the Southfield Symphony again this year," said Cynthia E. Dailey, St. Hugo music director for the past nine years. "The acoustics of the new church, which is 41/2 years old, seats 1,000 and is on 30 acres, makes a beautiful setting."

Conductor: Valery Leonov will conduct the opening concert of the Southfield Symphony Orchestra on Nov. 21.

St. Hugo's offers a prestigious four-manual, 58-rank Zimmer pipe organ, a 28-rank Casavant Freres and a Bechstein piano, which accompanies the choir. Dailey and the Zimmer organ were featured in last season's March concert with the symphony orchestra.

We are fortunate to have the kind of chemistry where friendships work among the people from the Southfield Symphony, the chorale and St. Hugo's," Dailey said. "We are looking forward to this and future joint endeavors.

Symphonie Pathetique." Tschaikovsky's sixth and last symphony, is considered a masterpiece and his swan song. The introductory dark theme climbs slowly into a romantic melody, beginning explosively and continuing into loud and soft contrasts. The intermezzo movement features an unusual 5/4 time and is followed by a marchlike third movement, closing with a grief-laden finale that has become Tschaikovsky's epitaph.

"The Magic Flute" is the result of Mozart's lifelong dream to create a "German" opera; at the suggestion of a well-known theatrical nanager and producer, Emanuel Schikaneder, to create a work on a spectacular and supernatural subject. Mozart's "The Magic Flute" is based on German poet Wielend's fairytale, "Lulu, or the Magic Plute." Mosart died nine weeks after its first research after its first performance as she's concerned, the current Disney retelling of Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" just doesn't compare. Of course, the new version has the considerable kid appeal of young guns Charlie Sheen and Kiefer Sutherland buckling their swash and dispatching villains. And if you can see beyond them as pale copies of their respected actor fathers, you may have a great time.

When D'Artagnan (Chris O'Donnell) gallops into Paris, he hopes to follow in his father's footsteps and join the Musketeers, the elite band of soldiers dedicated to protecting the king. Instead he finds them disbanded and the kingdom in upheval.

He quickly discovers that behind the scenes lurks evil Cardinal Richelieu (Tim Curry), who has plans of offing young King Louis and ascending the throne himself. It's up to D'Artagnan and three renegade Muskeeters to stop him.

Among the young actors, Sutherland comes off best as the moody, profoundly noble Athos. Sheen brings a twist of the theologian to Aramis. Oliver Platt plays the slightly slobby Porthos, a former pirate we're told, who usually proves the most resourceful in O'Donnell made a respectable traveling companion for Al Pacino in "Scent of a Woman." But here, as D'Artagnan, fresh-faced O'Donnell simply doesn't have the flair required to make girls swoon and boys dream of life as a Musketeer.

Curry, meanwhile, isn't as evil as he is quirky and affected. Despite threats of the torture chamber and lecherous glances at the queen, you get the sneaking feeling that the former "Rocky Horror Picture Show" star is just itching to whip off that scarlet cardinal's robe and reveal garter belts and a corset underneath.

"The Three Musketeers" is typical live-action Disney fare, the same engagingly silly family entertainment they produced 30 years ago. The only change here is the body count, which mounts considerably after the frequently bloody swordfights.

I'd be surprised if director Stephen Herek ("Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure") didn't borrow from old Errol Flynn movies. Here he even pirates the climactic scene from Hitchcock's "The Man king. Sure, this "Musketeers" has a few unique flourishes of its own.

A galloping D'Artagnan, in an attempt to avoid a low-hanging log that would surely dismount him, leaps from horse to log and then back on horseback. He also has a clever sword fight near the end while dangling from a French flag.

And of course, there's the requisite love interest between D'Artagnan and a starry-eyed lady in waiting, though it stays mercifully in the background. Instead we're treated to Rebecca DeMornay as a sultry spy who tries to seduce young D'Artagnan and also has some painful history with Sutherland's Athos.

Add to this a mucho-creepy dungeon, where the Cardinal, upon capturing D'Artagnan, orders his men to "take the prisoner below." You have to wonder how much farther down you can go than the dungeon!

The best thing about "The Three Musketeers" is that it doesn't take itself too seriously. Movie-goer Dardanelli agrees. "It wasn't the kind of movie where I was on the edge of my seat," she added. "But I think the audience liked it. Like me, they go to movies like this to escape into that chivalrous time.'

The passionate couple of the big screen and their devoted family return with "Addams Family Values," a Paramount Pictures presentation opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Morticia and Gomez are delighted by their new arrival, baby Pubert, complete with sweet smile, that familiar pallor and that cute little moustache. Uncle Fester has been targeted by cupid as he yearns for Debbie Jellinsky, the new nanny with her own ideas for Fester's future. Charles Addams' macabre characters return for this second dose of Addams family madness following their film debut in 1991.

Lori Jacobs exhudes charm as Ida, the cookie-baking grandmother who realizes she wants to move on and have a life of her own. Ida is realistic enough to

Eugenia Garner works her way from flip to honest in the meatiest role in the play. As talky, flam-boyant Lucille, Garner barges onstage asking the price of her mink coat, hat, muff, (Doris always knows the price), telling us about all the men who can't keep their eyes off her, changes wigs with lightening speed, cuts her bridesmaid's dress into a disco outfit, and calls a seance "a Seder."

Garner manages to be adorable; she turns in a poignant, intelligent performance as a woman who finally emerges into the light of day and is able to say goodbye to a dead man she should have said goodbye to 30 years before.

Gene Ewald, as the phlegmatic butcher Sam, keeps asking, What field?" as he moves from one woman to another. Ewald moves about "the field" in his worker's cap and trenchcoat, looking the soul of ambivalence as he waltzes toward Ida, then waltzes away at a hint from her friends.

Ewald has a marvelous moment when Garner asks him what he thinks of her pendant; he leans into Garner's cleavage and asks, 'What pendant?" Andrea Gleason does a handsome cameo as Mildred, a fourth woman San packs into his carload. She's obvi ously an "extra."

The pickings in Queens are rich. Sam invites Ida to eat "kosher Chinese." The three wome forgive each other anything and everything, and we believe them. The 1940s living room set and the cemetery, ill-kept ivy ar. I all, designed by Jack Tilletson and decorated by Laura Weidner, Linda Bruder, Michelle Hubert and Holly Helsten, are inventive. She eyes the world via her camera lens y day, she's a buyer for Yale Material Handling, a Livonia Hi-Lo dealer. By night, she's an aspiring alternative photographer who shuns traditional print paper for more unusual methods of reproducing images.

Connie Christy's photography is on exhibit to

Nov. 30 at Urban Park-Detroit Art Center, on the third floor of Trappers Alley, 508 Monroe, Detroit. The 1984 Livonia Churchill High graduate is exhibiting 14 collaged photos with realistic

Each photo represents the effect of collaging several exposed frames into a large photo printed on cloth, watercolor paper or color copy paper.

"The processes I use are considered alternative," the lifelong Livonia resident said, "because they all produce one-of-a-kind images. I can't duplicate them. I could repeat the process but the result wouldn't always come out the same.'

On view at Urban Park are a photo of carnival images, two photos of church images, and other photos of friends and a favorite mannequin.

Christy uses two cameras: a Pentax K1000 and Mamiya 645. Instead of traditional print paper, she uses one of three print methods: ■ Polaroid transfer — Polaroid images on cloth.

■ Gum biochromate — contact printing images, using sunlight through negatives, on cloth and pa-

■ Color copy — color slide images on paper. "It's a tedious process," Christy said, "and I'm never guaranteed a perfect result because of the effects of sunlight, chemistry or temperature.

"The one-of-a-kind idea is both good and bad," she added. "It's good because it's more apt to sell. But it's bad because if one sells, it's gone unless I get it scanned to be printed as a reproduction.'

Whether they sell or not, her work tends to grab the eye, she says, "Many people who view them can't believe it's photography at all."

Works oft-exhibited

No stranger to exhibiting her work, Christy often focuses on people and statues.

"I like working with people because they're real. I like to know my subjects because then I can draw on how I perceive them, yet still portray them in their own style," she said. "As for statues, I really love Roman statues and architecture."

The Urban Park show includes a photo of a Hercules statue under a skylight in the Chicago Art Institute.

In 1992, she took an honorable mention from the Scarab Club in Detroit for a Polaroid transfer entitled, "Polaroid Self Portrait." That same year, she showed a Polaroid transfer, "Hints of Reality," in the Scarab Club's Silver Medal Show.

In June, she showed 25 pieces at a garden party at The Whitney in Detroit. In September, she exhibited 20 pieces at the Michigan Gallery in De-

She has shown in six student shows at Oakland Community College, where in April she earned an associate's degree in photography. Last year, she was an officer with the student photo group. She hopes to earn enough money through her job to pursue a bachelor's degree in fine arts.

Her creative eye developed while studying metalshop and woodshop in junior high and graphics and photography in high school. The lure of the viewfinder prevailed. Her yen toward collage evolved from a love for blending textures.

Christy forms a mental picture before setting out on a shoot but she won't shy away from improvising. "I always have a game plan of what I'd like to do. But I'll change it if I think something else will work better.'

Christy will greet Urban Park vistiors 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and 3:30-7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 20-21. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday.

'Her work is very innovative," said Dave Roberts, gallery director. "She tries a lot of things normally not associated with photography - the way she applies emulsion to fabric, the way she prints on fabric.

The imagery she captures also swayed Roberts. "She's very inventive in the things she chooses to represent in her photographs. She deals a lot with portraiture and figures but in ways that aren't conventional or expected."

Shop for antiques Sunday in Livonia

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

From a 1933 German Erphila Russian Wolfhound to an array of Star Trek memorabilia, the 10th Metro Productions Antiques and Collectibles Show and Sale promises something for everyone Sunday, Nov. 21 at the Livonia Holiday Inn, 17123 Laurel Park Drive, Newburgh and I-275.

Admission is $2, children free. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Nearly 80 dealers will exhibit small furniture, dolls and toys (antique and modern collectibles), pottery, glassware, jewelry, Hummels, Royal Doulton figurines, collector plates, china figurines, jade, Walt Disney, books and paper collectibles.

"It's diversity we try to stress quality and diversity. There are a lot of old toys, Steiff pieces, Barbie dolls and Star Trek collectors in the show, said Barbara Framke, show co-coordinator with Cindy Oakes. Both Livonia residents make about 30 stops a year on the southeast Michigan collectibles show circuit. Many of the dealers are from Livonia, Plymouth, Novi and Royal Oak.

Framke's business, "Just Animals," specializes in wildlife and domestic animal collectibles, including ceramic, porcelain, prints and jewelry, along with Beatrix Potter items. She displays her wares at about 20 shows a year in Michigan. She also sells the collectibles through a mail order

"I've got tons of stuff, wildlife and domestic figurines. I carry two lines: Castagna and United Design's Stone Critters," said Framke.

"I have collectors all over the country for an animal item I pick up for resale. I'll have a Royal Doulton dog, Bohemian Royal Dux deer figurine and Erphila Germany elephant.

Framke, who has been a collector for 44 years, finds horses irresistible. Her collection includes 1,000 horses ranging from fine porcelain to china and plastic.

Framke's prices range from $5 to $300 for a limited-edition porcelain mare and foal by G. Armani. The ceramic wolfhound is $125.

Framke and Oakes, who became a dealer 12 years ago, originated the show in 1989. The show is held twice yearly, in February and November. Oaks specializes in Hummels and antique dolls but also carries Star Trek and Star Wars memorabilia and Barbie Dolls

Other highlights in the show include a 1937 Madame Alexander Snow White, a Royal Doulton mug collection, a pair of porcelain Danish birds, 18th century to 1912 Meiji era dolls, an early 19th century netsuke, costume jewelry from the 1940s and 50s including crystal, a 1940s doll buggy, composition and hard plastic dolls, an amber Bohemian glass vase, vintage baby apparel, a 1920s Buddy L's water tank and firetrucks, an antique Meerschaum pipe, still banks, a mechanical Punch and Judy bank, an antique Armand Marseille bisque doll, tree bark carnival glass, Depression glass, antique linens, and prewar cast iron fire engine and trucks.

HEART OF GOLD

Westland weaver Jim Hicks has donated a 1903 floor loom to the Helen C. Brown Westland Historical museum. Denise Mehelich, a member of the Friends of the Westland Historical Museum, picked up the loom from Hicks in late Aug-

"I'm excited about it. It would give people the opportunity to see something not done too much anymore," said Mehelich, Friends of Nankin Mills president.

Once assembled, Hicks, who's known in these erts as the Hillbilly Weaver, has promised to onstrate this nearly lost craft.

Hicks, who's been weaving rugs for 10 years, displays his wares at nearly one-dozen arts and crafts shows a year.

Last summer, he won Best of Show at Spring Elegance, the annual Westland fine art show and country fair sponsored by the Friends of Nankin Mills and Wayne County Parks Division to ben-efit restoration efforts of the white clapboard mill built in 1863.

columns and an arched overhang accent the private entry

Since the Heslops work together - he's president and she's vice-president of Michigan-based Heslop's china and gifts - modifying the home's floor plan after-hours was just an extension of a day's work.

The builder was ultra-accommodating when it came to structural changes and only "rolled his eyes a few times." Barbara said.

For months, the couple worked with Livonia architect Chuck Doone, altering a few room izes enminating the den's half-bath, raising the lower-level ceiling and adding windows here and there.

We actually built the house around our furniture," Barbara said.

She reduced the master bath by a few feet so that a wall unit displaying Lladros would fit in the master suite.

It's probably the first time a builder had to bug the homeowner to move in," Ron Heslop

Rons den is a place to work and relax. It took three months to convert the second bedroom to a state-of-the-art den with loads of built-ins and shelves to hold a collection of Royal Doulton character mugs. The room, ceiling included, is covered in rich, cherrystained mahogany

More traditional than the other rooms, the len has cove molding, a marble fireplace and generous, well-placed lighting. A custommade mahogany coffee table and desk are analed toward a built in entertainment center til a western art collection.

The first floor is bright and airy with ample views of the pond, a nesting place for a pair of black swans.

Barbara reused most of their country French furnishings throughout the house, including a grand-sized armoire in the master suite. The room opens to a wrap-around deck.

She said the move was a good excuse to recover some favorite things bought during the couple's 30-year marriage.

The colors in our Farmington Hills colonial were straight from the '70s - ivory, blue and earth tones. I was ready for something bright and different," said Barbara, who does the layout and design for Heslop's stores.

Her decorating plan began by selecting wallpapers for nearly every room. Most are subtle background papers that give the lofty walls a sponged look.

"I tried using a decorator once, but it didn't work because I have my own ideas," said Barbara, who's known around the office for visualizing store displays that wind up dazzling.

The spacious entry, on a curved wall, has off-white marble flooring with bottle green accents, a color that is repeated around the great room and den fireplaces. A shapely oak railing with pineapple-shaped finials leads downstairs.

The great room has eight-inch crown molding - painstakingly curved on one wall lots of conversation areas and a formal dining table used for frequent entertaining. A mirrored wall unit holds favorite glassware and collectibles.

are placed around the room.

Our other house had separate living and dining rooms, so this was a challenge to decorate. We weren't sure if we'd like the combination," Barbara said.

Queen Anne dining chairs are recovered in creamy upholstery to match carpeting and walls. Several high-back Queen Anne chairs are covered in burgundy and teal stripes and tapestries. A camelback loveseat, custommade by a New Boston upholsterer, is the only new piece. Arched windows are topped with burgundy upholstered valances and simple pleated shades.

The all-white kitchen, with lavish built-ins, has several glass-front cabinets to show the couple's fine china, which they use daily. Dinnerware even matches teal and rose English garden paper in the adjoining morning room, a sunny place filled with white wicker furniture and plump floral cushions.

The lower level (all 2,400 square feet) is informally decorated, with comfy leather sofas, wall units and some family antiques. There's a wet bar (long as "Cheers"), a bedroom and bath, a library and a fully-equipped exercise

Barbara said the toughest job was selecting bathroom fixtures because the choices today are numerous. She settled on gold faucets and decorative sinks throughout and let her love of Southwest design influence her choice of tiles. which range from pastel to turquoise.

I got a little antsy decorating because I like Several of Barbara's imported music boxes to get things done, but it was such fun to do. I could do it everyday." she said.

Literary duo pens romance/suspense novel

West Bloomfield authors Jan Greenberg and Karen A. Katz, writing a novel can be double the fun when it's collaborative effort with a close friend.

The two, who met each other 12 years ago at their children's nursery school, are celebrating the fruits of their collaboration this month, as their first novel, Something Borrowed, Something Blue" (Doubleday), makes its debut in bookstores across the coun-

Already, "Something Borrowed, Something Blue"- written under the pseudonym, Jillian Karr has made an appearance on the Detroit Free Press bestseller list. In October, Cosmopolitan magazine excerpted the novel. And CBS-TV has recently optioned the story, with an eye toward making it into a movie of the week.

Not surprisingly, Greenberg, a prolific romance novelist (who writes as Jill Gregory) and Katz, a painter and former journalist, are hard at work on a second novel. Like "Something Borrowed, Something Blue," it will be a "ro-mance/suspense/thriller."

The writing of the first novel came about after the two had collaborated two years ago on a nonfiction book entitled, "What Does Being Jewish Mean?" The book, co-written with Rabbi E.B. Freedman and published initially by Prentice-Hall, has since been brought out by Simon & Schuster's Fireside Books. "We had such a good time writing the first book, we sort of looked at each other one day and said, Why not try fiction?" recalls Green-

Not long after, the two friends were meeting every afternoon, usually in Greenberg's at-home office. With scratch pads and plenty of coffee at hand, they began brainstorming ideas for the story they would write, and also started to develop characters for that story.

"We were both definitely interested in writing women's fiction, says Greenberg. "And we came up with this idea of writing a story about four strong, dynamic women - all brides- to-be, but all distinctly different.

Each of the future brides in Something Borrowed, Something Blue" - a New York model, an actress, an editor of a bridal magazine, and a Livonia hairdresser - harbors a dark secret that she must face down as her dreamed-of wedding day approaches. Prepublication notices called the partially-set-in-Michigan romance "a sizzling tale of four weddings, four women, and four lives on a collision course with violent passions and dangerous desires.

"My brother, John Tintori, was the editor on the film, and we asked him if we could just watch the making of the movie for a few days," says Katz. "Then, when we went to Toronto, we spent two or three days working as extras about 14 hours every day. It was fantastic. And we actually ended up on the screen, too - in the wedding scene toward the end of

Other research included a daylong visit to the offices of Detroit Metropolitan Woman, where they met with editor Alice Sieloff. Katz also scouted background locales in Los Angeles (especially Rodeo Drive), the streets of Chicago and the exclusive neighborhoods of Georgetown in Washington, D.C., where much of the action in the novel takes place.

In writing "Something Borrowed, Something Blue," they also discovered themselves experiencing a genuine marriage of the minds. As one writer sat at a computer typing the story each day, the other always literally at her side, they recall that, after awhile, they found themselves suddenly coming up with the same words.

They usually spent about five hours a day together, working on the book, and then often telephoned each other after hours to work on leftover ideas. On days when they couldn't get together, they worked over the phone. But, despite all the togetherness over the 11 months it took to complete the novel, they can recall no arguments, not even a cross word in the course of events.

Meadow Brook show boasts joyous nature

Outside, nature is celebrated in the magnificent autumn colors of the leaves. Inside the Meadow Brook Art Gallery at Oakland University in Rochester Hills, nature is celebrated in a different way with the exhibit continuing through Nov. 21.

"Culver's Nature: Selected Works of Animals, Birds and Plants by Charles Culver" presents watercolors by Michigan artist Charles Culver. Most of the works were loaned from Florence Culver, the artist's wife, and have never been shown publicly. Others were loaned from the Detroit Institute of Arts, William Beaumont Hospital, the Huntington Woods Public Library and private

"These paintings are evidence of an artist enjoying his work," said William Bostick, former DIA administrator and Detroit art commission secretary and a close friend of Culver.

"His paintings have that delightful, universal quality." Meadow Brook curator/director Kiichi Usui called the paintings "quite lively.

"I didn't think anybody else painted animals like this," he Culver (1908-1967) was a leading Detroit artist in the 1950s and 1960s. He headed the watercolor department of the art school of the Society of Arts and Crafts (now the Center for Creative Studies) and was an art critic.

Culver was a musician who painter who had more permanent works in the DIA than other artists. He did some landscapes, but was known for his interpretations of animals and plants.

All creatures great and small were subjects for Culver, and he painted them in a warm, refreshing style. Many paintings were done at the Detroit Zoo, near which the artist lived.

"They have a sense of humor about them," Bostick said.

In Culver's painting of a platypus, the platypus is facing the viewer but its eyes are off to the side, giving it a sly, whimsical expression. Penguins are grouped facing each other with beaks open and wings wide, making it seem as if they are having an animated Culver's interest in Oriental art can be seen in the display.

"He had that feel of poetic imagery," Usui said.

A watercolor of a resting deer conveys its gentle beauty. A portrait of a bee fills the canvas and shines in luminous colors. Also glowing are the colors of a sleeping tiger. A mosquito is shown in a way suggesting that it has the grace of a ballet dancer. Hippos are shown forming a circle, the lines transparent at places so both animals are seen at once. In a portrait of a cat, strong lines convey the animal's dignity. A lion reclines behind bars, the bars fading over its body so as not to cover it. A dove looks at the viewer as though it were posing for a portrait, while a peacock' spread tail is shown without color, emphasizing the bird instead of its adornment.

For white, Culver often let the watercolor paper come through or used opaque white.

Usui would like to have a Michigan artist show at OU. Culver and others of his time were lost in the "tidal wave from New York" of pop art, op art and abstract art, Usui said.

"Michigan artists were respected in this area but pushed to the back.

With today's consciousness

such as Culver's that takes joy in animals, birds and plants seems especially appropriate.

As a special treat, a raffle for "Dik Dik," a 25-by-27-inch original Culver drawing donated by Florence Culver, will take place 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21, on the Meadow Brook Theatre stage. Raffle tickets are sold in the gallery during exhibition hours at $5 each or five for $20. Only 300 tickets will be sold.

Hours are 1-5 p.m. Wednesday, 2-6:30 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, and evenings of a Meadow Brook Theatre performance (one hour before the performance and during intermission). The gallery is across the hallway from the theater. Call 370-3005.

transfer of shares in the event of default by a tenant/member. How do I convince the board of the need to update our documents?

Point out to the board of directors their potential liability in not being able to administer the affairs of the co-op properly because of the apparent ambiguity and/or vaguensss in your cooperative documents as it relates to a default by a tenant paying the monthly operating fee.

It should also be clear to the members of the board that the cooperative could, indeed, spend many dollars on legal fees in attempting to retrieve the shares of a defaulting cooperative member through unnecessary court proceeddings, which are required, simply because of the inadequacy of the coopertive documents.

If the board recognizes this liability, it will recognize, hopefully, its business responsibility to raise enough money in order to engage competent counsel to come up with an updated set of cooperative bylaws and a revised proprietary lease.

Realtors merging listings

Realtors representing 650 real estate offices in southeast Michigan are finalizing plans to merge their Multiple Listing Services into Realcomp II, Ltd., reports Bill Mountain, president of the Farmington service.

The merger will provide 7,000 Realtors with unlimited access to real estate information for buyers and sellers of homes.

Involved in the merger and formation of Realcomp II, Ltd. are the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors, Dearborn Board of Realtors, Detroit Board of Realtors, North Oakland County Board of Realtors, Rochester Area Association of Realtors, South Oakland County Board of Realtors and the Western Wayne-Oakland County Association of Realtors.

The merger becomes official Jan. 2 as Realcomp Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary formed in 1984 by four area real estate boards, invites additional real estate boards to become shareholders in Realcomp II, Ltd.

The regional Multiple Listing Services will merge several current board-operated multilist services into one centralized service on or before March 1, 1994, says Kevin McQueen, Realcomp Inc. executive vice president.

Participating Realtors will have unrestricted access to all listing information, providing buyers and sellers with comprehensive information about properties by simply contacting any real estate office subscribing to the new regional Multiple Listing Services.

Realcomp II, Ltd. will relocate in November to 28555 Orchard Lake Road.

MAKE THE MOVE NOW!!

NOW is the right time to Buy a Home!

Purchasing a home has always been a wise decision, but current market conditions are making it even more attractive to buy now.

THERE'S NO BETTER TIME TO BUY

If you've been thinking about moving from your current residence to the house of your dreams or from an apartment to a starter home, this is the time to do it.

- · The selection is excellent.
- · Low interest rates are available.
- · There are many financing options available.

EXCELLENT FINANCING IS AVAILABLE NOW

Interest rates are lower, and mortgage lenders are offering a wide variety of financing options. Low interest rates mean you can get more for your money.

- · 30-year fixed mortgages are still available as
- well as many other financing alternatives. First time buyers are encouraged to purchase now through financing packages offering small down payments.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

Purchasing a home is the best way to build a solid financial foundation. A home not only provides you with warmth and comfort, it also serves as a secure investment.

- · Today, homes in the area continue to be a wise investment.
- Equity in your home can be used as collateral, thus providing you with additional financial
- security. · Home ownership provides you with a sizable tax advantage because interest paid on mortgages is fully deductible. Property taxes can also be deducted.

Park Ridge: hills, wetlands, woods

 Road improvements spurred by the Haggerty Connector and the topography of the land are expected to lure buyers to Park Ridge, a new residential development from The Selective Group and Cohen Associates.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Some people may not consider a new house of 2,700 square feet priced at $239,900 an especially good value. But if it's on a rolling piece of land with wetlands and woods in West Bloomfield, along a major road where houses just a couple of miles away cost several times more, then it takes on a different dimension.

That's the thinking of Steven Friedman, vice president of the Selective Group based in Farmington Hills, and Larry Cohen, a developer/ builder (Cohen Associates) in West Bloomfield.

Their companies, highly regarded in their own right, have joined forces to develop and build Park Ridge, along Pontiac Trail, east of Hagger-will be built on the 60-acre site. About a dozen lots already have been sold, the developers said.

"One of the points that intrigued us about Park Ridge was the land,' Cohen said. "I have yet to develop a piece of land like this, rolling up and down with hills . .

'Many subdivisions developed today from former farms," he said. "They're flat and devoid of trees or have the liability of being near a railroad or main road.

Bureau aids consumers, businesses

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Eastern Michigan was founded in 1917, essentially as an advertising vigilance committee. Now headquartered in Southfield, the BBB has expanded its scope significantly.

The nonprofit organization, with an operating budget of $1.5 million and a staff of about 20, is funded primarily by the dues of some 4,000 business members.

Thomas F. Ashcraft is president, Deborah A. Nigbor, operations director. Following are edited excerpts from an interview:

What exactly is your mission?

Ashcraft: Our mission is self-regulation. We can be an impartial third party between a consumer and provider of goods and services

Part of that philosophy says it's in the best interest of the marketplace for responsible business to step up to its problems and do it through an organization like the BBB rather than a (governmental) regulatory agency

Whether the customer wins a dispute or the company wins is irrelevant as far as we're concerned. Our role is to bring a complaint to the attention of the provider.

In every city, one true builder rises to the top. Builders so inseparable from their communities that when you think of one name, the other always follows.

That's why West Bloomfield and The Herman Frankel Organization have been synonymous for over 35 years. Today thousands of lives in our widely acclaimed city are being enhanced every day by Herman Frankel's award-winning style, customer service and lasting value.

See for yourself. Showcase model centers are open daily from Noon to 6 pm (Closed Thursdays).

We have a large woodland that backs up to Pontiac Trail. There isn't a bad lot in the whole sub. The site really affords quite a bit of privacy, Cohen said.

'Aesthetically, this is a fabulously beautiful piece of Friedman said. "It's very low density with approximately 30 acres of open space.

The perception of Pontiac Trail as you take it from Orchard Lake Road and go west is that houses are selling from a half million to three million. Pontiac Trail has never really been opened to this market. he added.

A good deal on the land, smaller models, no lakefront frontage or access and - until fairly recently - not the best of road access all combined to result in lower prices. Cohen said.

Construction of the Haggerty Connector (a limited-access highway under construction a parter mile west of Haggerty between 1-96 and Pontiac Trail) provides a golden opportunity for Park Ridge, Friedman said

The partners acquired the land about 31/2 years ago but got bogged down in the approvai and development processes as West Bloomfield struggled with growth.

Selective and Cohen will do all the building themselves. Six models each with several different elevations or exterior looks are available

Nothing is more disappointing than to go into a sub where a majority of builders does a fine job, but someone comes in with different standards and a homeowner finds something next door that he doesn't care for," Cohen said.

nook and there's four of us sitting around this table and no one is crowded. You have a large cooking area.

"Curb appeal is real important," Friedman said. "We put a tremendous amount of attention to detail on the elevations bricks, porches, window details, roof lines.

One interesting twist in the Newport model is a secondfloor room with windows overlooking the foyer. The space can be used as a fourth bedroom or as a study room, exercise room, dayroom or sitting/sewing room.

"The Monterey is our most popular model," Friedman said. "Any and every room has access to a tremendous amount of light. It has a step-up master bedroom, open foyer, dramatic stairwell.

Selective and Cohen have acquired 70 acres directly across the street from Park Ridge. where they plan to build houses in the $300.000-$500,000 range starting next year.

Park Ridge is in the Walled Lake School District. The current property tax rate for municipal, school and county services is $54.66 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owner of a house worth $250,000 in Park Ridge now would pay about $6,800 annually in property taxes. That, however, probably will change as state lawmakers decide on a new school financ

Farmer Jack revamps store

Farmer Jack Supermarkets created 30 new jobs in refurbishing its Livonia store at 37685 Five Mile to the tune of $450,000.

The face lift is part of the 77store metro chain's $70 million capital growth program in southeast Michigan taking place during 1992 and 1993. The Livonia store is the 47th to be completed under the renovation-rebuilding program. Don Suida is store manager. Jim Fox and Brian Robinson are co-managers.

When the 38,000-square-foot store hosted its grand reopening Sunday, customers were introduced to many new departments, prototype conveniences and important advances in the supermarket industry.

"This new Farmer Jack Supermarket is typical of the new and remodeled facilities that are making Farmer Jack one of the most modern regional supermarket chains in America," said James Wood, chairman of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., owner of the Farmer Jack chain.

Almost all of the company's Michigan stores have been revitalized recently. "We intend to keep them that way and make sure our stores here are up to date," Wood said. "We have at least 10 new store locations identified over the next two years and our remodeling and expansion programs will continue.

"A combination of new consumer needs and high technology allows us to really focus on customer service in our new and remodeled stores," said Craig Sturken, Michigan Group vice president.

"In the Livonia store, customers can use the post office, pay bills, get photos developed and buy a lottery ticket as well as use many other services. We think they will especially like our innovative new recycling center." he added.

We listened to our customers. We know they expect low prices and broad product selection with quality and service. They also want all the newest conveniences such as our innovative self-service bottle return, gourmet service meat counter, flower shop, pharmacy, post office, bakery and

Birmingham resident Judith Trepeck, a partner with the Farmington Hills CPA firm of Rehmann Robson & Co., is a 1993 honoree of Michigan's Initiative for Entrepreneurial Excellence

She was one of five women business owners honored.

EXCEL! is funded in part by the Small Business Administration. Honorees received their awards for either making admirable progress or outstanding achievement in business or who have made significant contributions to other business owners.

Trepeck, a former president of The Greater Detroit Chapter of the National Association of Business Owners (NAWBO), received the most nominations, according to Chinyere Neale.

"Judy epitomizes leadership," Neale said. "She is assertive, intelligent and professional without sacrificing warmth, encouragement and humor.'

Trepeck said she was, regretfully, out of the country when the award was given. Friend Tamara Tazzia accepted it for her. "I'm really proud," Trepeck said modestly. Trepeck was NAWBO president in 1990-91 and was responsible for bringing the EXCEL! program to NAWBO, Neale said.

"As a past NAWBO president, she enthusiastically continues to support both NAWBO and EX-CEL! and has served as mentor both formally and informally to many project clients," Neale said. "She does all this while working with clients, playing a very active role in the many professional, and service organizations to which she belongs and maintaining a fami-

Trepeck holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Michigan.

"Ever ready to be of service, she served as project manager of the Michigan Alliance of Women Business Councils in its early development and has been a delegate to the White House Conference on Small Business (1986) and was the first woman president to the Accountant's Guild," Neale said.

DEVELOPER TREAT

A Novi subdivision of largely young, married couples with small children was treated to a Fall Festival family barbecue by the developer, Nosan/Cohen Associates and Nosan Building Corp., both of West Bloomfield.

Invitations included masks that children were to decorate and bring to the barbecue for judging at Woods of Novi subdivision, west of Decker, south of 14 Mile. The winner won a Toys R Us gift certificate although each child received a gift.

Uptown Deli of Farmington Hills catered the 200-guest event, held under a tent between two models Oct. 15. A DJ from Silver Sounds set the tone for an evening of dancing.

That afternoon, the developers treated 100 Realtors to lunch while introducing them to the subdivision. Too Chez of Novi did the catering.

The weekend featured a grand closing with a clown, music and refreshments even though the sub is almost fully occupied.

To keep the site attractive, the developers have planted thousands of dollars worth of trees behind the houses that back up to Decker Road. The sub has won a Novi beautification award each year since it opened about three years ago.

■ WHERE'S THE BEEF?

Detroit-based Cattleman's, one of Michigan's largest beef processing companies, has opened a 19,000 square-foot meat and produce store in Uptown Farmington Plaza, Grand River and Orchard Lake, Farmington. The refurbished store, in the former Oak Farms fruit and vegetable market, employs about 60 people. It is Cattleman's first new store since merging with Oak Farms.

Shoppers can select packaged meat in the store's 5,000-squarefoot, walk-in meat locker or get packing house cuts from the butcher.

Cattleman's has four other metro-Detroit stores and plans another new location on Detroit's east side.

"Our combination stores respond to the demands of consumers for value in all of their food purchases. Our walk-in meat lockers, we believe, are particularly attractive for modern-day consumers," said David Rothbart, Cattleman's president and chief executive officer.

■ ENVIRONMENTAL CHECK

Dziurman/Associates, a Troybased consulting engineering firm, has finished an environmental inspection of buildings and grounds owned by Heritage Federal Savings Bank, Taylor. The site evaluation precedes Heritage's merger with Standard Federal, Troy. It took about 45 days to inspect the facilities, located from Flat Rock to Petoskey.

Dziurman calls site assessments like this the "first line of defense against future liability for environmental contamination found on property." The company specializes in environmental consulting.

It's just a few doors from its sister store, Lots for Tots. The new store sells casual and career wear, designer clothes, maternity wear, coats, seasonal clothing and some new accessories.

Customers who shopped at Lots for Tots, also resale, started asking for the same sort of store for women's wear, said owner Kathy Newton, who opened Lots for Tots in 1985.

Newton keeps an eye out for special clothing requests that customers place on the store's "wish list." The store has layaway and a seven-day return policy. Clothing is accepted on consignment during store hours.

Family Life — It's all about you

Dear Readers,

Here we are again, fast approaching the end of another exciting calendar year. With 1993 came your excellent suggestions for articles, including comments and/or questions about many topics covered and your personal or professional experiences shared, as well as your expertise. You have contributed to, hopefully, the very best, interesting and most pertinent information that impacts and influences our daily living - community concerns, people issues.

Family Life readers take on many faces, representing parents, grandparents, child-care professionals, teachers, the human service network, corporate representation, physicians and many more. Because you represent a pool of people with a variety of good ideas, and key information resources that are valuable to other readers, as they relate to family issues — family preservation, participation, awareness of health/safety precautions, child-behavior management, education, budgeting, business, family values and supportive services - it is necessary to hear from you more.

Your continued comments and valuable information are most welcomed. Don't sit on that story you'd shared with only one other person about having excellent child-care service, the professionalism and nurturing skills your caregiver demonstrates. Tell readers through Family Life column how you personally as well as professionally handle issues pertaining to developmentally appropriate practices working with children, including teens. Tell readers what your corporation is doing

Crowd 'lights up' to hospice

The staff of Angela Hospice Home Care has reason to be doubly pleased with a highly successful "Light Up a Life" benefit that has generated $25,000 for its program and the opening of its free-standing care center.

It may well have been the grand opening celebration. More than 1,000 people packed Jacobson's Laurel Park store in Livonia Nov. 9 to sample food, sip wine and share in the euphoria of the opening of the Angela Höspice Care Center.

It was the largest crowd ever for the sixth annual "Light Up a Life" benefit for Angela Hospice. Sponsored by the Italian American Club of Livonia, the event raised more than $25,000 for the hospice organi-

"We're just so thankful for them (the Italian American Club) and their work," said Sister Mary Giovanni, president of Angela Hospice, sampling the coconut chicken served by the Country Epicure, one of 17 restaurants and food merchants providing food and beverages for the evening.

Interest in the evening at Jacobson's has been slowly increasing but the leap from 680 patrons in 1992 to a sellout this year was because 'people find it's a good cause," said Carolyn DiComo, benefit chairper-

"I guess we're just organized," a beaming DiComo said. "Every year we get better and better, we get more and more organized.'

Notables like State Rep. Lyn Bankes, Sheriff Robert Ficano, county Commissioner Kay Beard, even Carol Cassie, who just staged the highly successful "Hollywood Nights" benefit for St. Mary Hospital's Project S.M.I.L.E., were spotted mingling with other party goers.

The fund-raiser came less than two weeks before the by-invitationonly formal dedication of the Angela Hospice Care Center, set for Sunday, Nov. 21. A public open house is set for 1-3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5.

The care center is the first freestanding facility of its kind in the state and is situated along Newburgh Road north of Schoolcraft on the Felician Sisters' property.

Ground was broken for the twostory facility in November 1991. The first floor will be occupied by patients. The second floor is for administrative offices which Angela Hospice staffers moved into Nov. 8.

This is a vision come true," Sister Giovanni said. "In a month, we'll begin taking in patients and already we have a waiting list."

Seriousness aside, the evening was a time for party goers to watch as children sometimes shyly, sometimes boldly marched down the runway in fashions they selected for their fashion show. "Oohs," "aahs" and "Isn't that cute," followed the kids as they headed for the dressing room, including one young boy who took only one step before dashing

A once-rundown historic Canton schoolhouse is now providing relief for Alzheimer's patients and their caregivers

Canton Adult Day Care moved into the Sheldon School house in early October and redecorated on a shoestring budget. Mauve paint now covers the walls, natural wreaths hang on the windows, and gold and white lights illuminate overhead.

Director Cindy Lockman and site manager Kristin Witte used pastel bedsheets to re-cover couches

The warm colors and one-on-one attention the day care center offers soothe Alzheimer's disease patients and their caregivers.

'They (Alzheimer's patients) sometimes feel confused or abandoned on their own; we give them a lot of TLC," Lockman said. "We have volunteers who work with the programs and activities. We get the closest we can get to one-on-one.

Alzheimer's disease is an irreversible brain disorder that impairs the brain's ability to function normally. It strikes most frequently with advancing age and as it progresses causes loss of memory, impairment of judgment, and abstract thinking.

The disease most often afflicts people in their 60s and 70s. It shows itself very gradually and runs its course from two to 15 years. Starting as minor memory loss, Alzheimer's eventually leads to complete disorientation and incontinence. Toward the end, individuals are incapable of caring for them-

Vancouver. British Columbia. designer Ron Leal of jax showed off his holiday, spring and cruise wear collections, offering the audience pointers on the changing trends in fabrics and how to make their clothes work for them.

Pajama-style pantsuits in bold red and black checks and a black cashmere sweater paired up with a full-length skirt made of 30 yards of tulle offered go-anywhere party styling, while triacetate rayon, "the fabric of the '90s started by Giorgio Armani," gave soft shapes to pants, jackets and skirts in muted shades of celery and tan.

Cruise wear also was the focus of the women's celebrity fashion show, featuring Segrets resort/ cruise wear by designer Ingrid Olsen. Radio personality Colleen Bucar and TV newscasters Sarah Barr and Cheryl Chodin helped showcase the fashions.

But stealing the evening was the men's celebrity fashion show, where Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann did an encore of his "Night Stalker" pajama modeling of last year, involving fellow celebs Rick Rizzs of the Detroit Tiger organization, meteo-

With the theme from "Rocky" as a backdrop, Amann padded down the runway in a white robe, multi-colored boxer shorts and

"models" walked out in boxers, flannel sleep pants, even a night shirt worn by hospice doctor Sean Coyle. Rizzs, wearing boxers and a black T-shirt under a white robe, protested that he "didn't know about this," before striking a Hulk Hogan pose and doing a John Travolta "Saturday Night Fever" strut.

The evening at an end, DiComo happily admitted that the event is "a lot of work, a lot of fun work."

Our writer refers to herself as a evnic. While this may be the case, numerous signs suggest her cynicism may be the result of a need for understanding and love. It seems quite possible that she has not always been on the receiving end of unconditional love.

This is an independent woman, one who often wants to have her own way. Also, she sometimes wants to control others by giving the orders and having them obeyed. She can be somewhat inflexible in her attitudes at times.

There is an element of secrecy in this handwriting. Often, a secretive person is living with a problem or problems. Because she cannot solve them she tries to hide them. Her defense against intrusion is to block off intimate information from others.

This woman is sensitive and subject to changeable moods. Sometimes they are up and some-

she wrote this letter I think she was inclined to employ more negative thinking than positive.

Self-discipline seems to be a trait with which she is not too well-acquainted. She appears to work as the mood moves her.

I am inclined to think something of a sad nature has happened to this special woman. Marked irritability can be seen throughout her handwriting it is easily triggered. Most of it appears to be directed at herself. I do not know what is causing this amount of vexation and guilt, but I feel certain it is troubling her.

Another trait which is currently having a negative influence on her is resentment. Very often she is on the alert to injustices she perceives from past hurts. This has resulted in a chip-on-the-shoulder syndrome. When she feels someone is taking advantage of her, she uses sarcasm as her de-

Then let go of it and move on. We see a liking for laughter in her handwriting, which is a healthy sign. She may even be a little witty herself.

According to the American Health Assistance Foundation, one out of three families in the U.S. has been affected by Alzheimer's in some way and 70 percent of those families care for an Alzheimer's sufferer at home. That type of care can take its toll on a family, and that's where the the day care center comes in. It offers respite for the family and a supervised, organized program for the patient.

The center, open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, offers recreational and therapeutic activities that promote independence for individuals suffering from Alzheimer's and related diseases.

The activities for the center are planned according to individual participant assessments, physicians' orders, and individualized care plans. They are designed to build self-esteem, maintain independence, maximize the capabilities of the participants, provide mental and physical stimulation, and promote social interaction, according to Lock-

The adult day care volunteers also monitor self-administered medication.

"We watch them take it and document it," she said.

Transportation is also available. The center is also forming caregiver and participant support groups.

Canton Adult Day Care is the fourth center organized by Parent, Child and Family Services of Washtenaw. Since 1980, they've established three other centers, the first in Ann Arbor in 1980, followed by one in Plymouth in 1987 and a third in Redford in 1991. Lockman directs all the centers but is based in Canton.

The program is funded by the Older Americans Act through the State Appropriations and Office of Service to the Aging and administered by the Senior Alliance and the Area Agency on Aging 1-B. Fees are based on a sliding scale ranging from $15 to $25. Reservations are required. Lockman stresses that the program is not a drop-in center.

"Because it's funded through the Senior Alliance, nobody is denied service due to inability to pay," Lockman said. The only requirement is that the patient must live in Wayne County.

"If there's too many (clients), there's too much stimulation for Alzheimer's patients." Lockman said.

Canton Adult Day Care also caters to the needs of the caregivers by providing a "Learn and Care" program which will offer workshops about stress, time management, and financial and legal empowerment.

"It's a new venture: it came about because the needs of the caregiver are often overlooked," she said. "We need to address those needs as well as the needs of the victim."

Right now, the center is looking for new participants, which are sometimes hard to find.

One way Lockman is introducing the center to the community and raising some extra money is a small craft bazaar that will be held there on Saturday, Dec. 4.

'No matter how much we do, it's hard for people (to find) us," she said. "People don't get the Yellow Pages and look up adult day care.

Soaps' 'queen' talks about her life on stage and TV

BY BARBARA ORTO SPECIAL WRITER

Veteran actress of the stage and television Eileen Fulton, known as "the queen of the daytime soaps" for her long running character Lisa Coleman-McColl on 'As the World Turns," kicked off the 1993-94 Northville Town Hall season.

Born in Asheville, N.C., as Margaret Mary McLartey, Fulton, as a child, never tired of moving to different towns - something she did frequently because of her father's ministry. She welcomed the opportunity as a venture to try on a different acting persona in each new town.

The young McLartey would oftentimes take advantage of her father's Sunday congregation to make her grand entrance while playing dress-up. To her, it was an audience and she loved their reaction. Through it all, the McLarteys were always supportive of their daughter's childhoodacting efforts.

Fulton also recalled her mother's love for opera music, especially "Aida," played on the family phonograph, which she would imitate in song and dramatic gesture. That influence set the stage for a more serious and disciplined style of stage acting she would later pursue.

During her collegiate years, Fulton earned a double major in music and drama and later starred in her first off-Broadway play, "The Lost Colony." In the leaner years between live stage jobs in her young career, she admitted that one summer she posed for a few scandal magazine stories in a slip. "It was my only way to act," she said.

Her unrelenting persistence to find an agent to represent her landed Fulton the character part of Lisa Coleman on the award winning daytime TV soap "As the World Turns.'

During her mid-20s, she managed to delicately juggle her work on the live morning TV soap with starring roles in the Broadway plays "The Fantastics" at night and "Who's Afraid of Virgina Woolf' for afternoon matinee per-

"I always knew I could be whatever I wanted to do," said Fulton who is no stranger to Mighigan, having performed in numerous summer stock plays at Traverse City's Cherry County Playhouse. In her early years of live television, Fulton recalled on-air bloopers and blunders - falling props, flubbed lines and missed cues - that helped boost the soap opera's ratings, much to the producer's surprise.

She recalls one particular taped episode that called for her hardened shrewish character to consume an ice cream soda. What

■ Over the years and in her spare time, Elicen Fulton has performed in a nightclub act, written a book, been a health entrepreneur, a sports team owner and a recording artist. She penned her first autobiographical book, 'How My World Turns,' in 1970. She's given her second book the working title 'Diva Darling.'

resembled whipped cream was shaving cream, a practical joke concocted by another actor. Without as much as a flinch or facial grimace in the tradition of the show must go on, Fulton consumed the entire thing to the astonishment of her fellow actors. She played it straight and the scene was never edited, she said.

In public, Fulton is quite often recognized by fans, whom she graciously obliges with an autograph. In one instance, Fulton was repeatedly struck with a handbag in front of New York's Lord & Taylor store by an overzealous viewer who vehemently objected to the latest antics of her soap character.

Fulton also required round-theclock police protection after receiving written death threats from a fan upset by her character's dastardly misconduct.

"Sometimes truth can be stranger than fiction," she said.

Over the years and in her spare time, Fulton has performed in a nightclub act, written a book, been a health entrepreneur, a sports team owner and a recording artist. She penned her first autobiographical book, "How My World Turns," in 1970. She's given her second book the working title "Diva Darling."

Fulton, at age 60, attributes her youthful appearance and vibrant enthusiasm to New Skin and Interior Design products for which she is a consumer and distributor. Fulton was owner of the first professional women's basketball team, the New York Stars, who won a national basketball championship title in 1980. Currently, Fulton is looking for a reputable distributor to market her recording, "First Kiss."

Fulton says she has been married three times and although she has no children, she delights in the companionship of her three small pedigree dogs she considers 'my children in a way.'

Always careful never to reveal specific details of future soap episodes, Fulton did hint at a possible future male love interest to be written in the script for her more mature but ever-sophisticated character, Lisa.

Fulton has always wanted to play the part of a pioneer-type woman, many of her acting credits speak volumes as a professional, female actress who continues to champion and pioneer the everevolving role of women in society.

Women stuff pillows with love

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

They're soft and colorful, come in a myriad of shapes and sizes and can be tucked under a blanket, snuggled beside a rosy cheek or wrapped in the tender embrace of tiny arms. For a child facing surgery or coping with hospitalization, the squeezably soft, handcrafted creations can be a comforting companion.

They're the "Love Pillows" that are made by members of Church Women United (CWU) and collected from others within the members' individual churches. For more than 10 years, CWU has collected the pillows at the group's November meeting.

"They are divided between Children's Hospital in Detroit and Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor," explained Joan Patterson, president of Church Women United of Suburban Detroit-West. There were 146 pillows collected this year.

The "Love Pillows" collection is just one of the many activities of the ecumenical group of women. "We collected soaps for World Medical Relief, and we also took an offering for the Midwest flood victims," Patterson said.

Church Women United is a national movement that started back in 1941 as United Church Women in Atlantic City. The group grew to 70 protestant, Catholic and Orthodox denominations and is open to all Christian denominations. In 1967 the name was changed to Church Women United to reflect a movement rather than an organization.

Locally, the movement has its roots in Livonia. United Church Women of Livonia was organized in 1959. Other groups organized in Redford, Farmington and Northville, but later disbanded and joined forces with the Livonia women. That's when the name was changed to Church Women United of Suburban Detroit-West.

Patterson, a CWU member for more than 30 years, served as local president 1972 to 1975. She accepted the presidency again and has served since 1990. Recently, she agreed to continue in the office for another year.

"I don't want to lose this organization," she said, conceding that the membership has been decreasing for a number of years. 'We're getting smaller, it seems, because there are so many of the younger women who are working.'

The meetings - generally held in the early afternoon on the first Friday of the months of February, March, May, October, November and December - are inconvenient for many working women. Bonnie Chrysler, vice president of the organization, believes this is a common occurrence in many church women's groups. "We need to reach out in various kinds of forms to meet their needs and have them included in our purpose and organization," she said.

There had been some discussion about changing the time for the meeting to an evening time

"I asked the group earlier this year, and they voted unanimously to keep it as a daytime meeting, Patterson said. "If we did have some leadership that wanted to go in the evening direction, we'd be glad to help them out."

"I think we need to experience some change," Chrysler added. Of course, we have some of the other women in other ways of life where they need the daytime meeting approach, where others in the work force need the evening approach. This is what we're discussing and working toward because in order to grown we need to be inclusive.'

For moms with a desire for fellowship and community involvement who are at home with young children, Patterson pointed out that they also offer free babysitting at every meeting. There are special activities and speakers at each of the six yearly meetings and four of the meetings also incorporate a breakfast or luncheon. Meetings are held at a different member church each

The November meeting was World Community Day. This year, Frieda Spafford, a member of CWU for nearly 25 years and a resident of Northville, spoke on the theme of churches in solidarity with women, empowerment of women within their churches, enabling them to reach their fullest potential for good within the church. This is one organization where no dues are collected, just freewill offerings. Even supporting churches are not asked for a specific donation, simply "what is compatible with their budget,' Patterson said. "It can be as little as $5 and we have had as much as Another special project CWU participates in involves the donation of just one penny from each member at the meeting. What possible good could come from such a collection? Well, when combined with the smallest currency from women all over the world . . . plenty.

The Fellowship of the Least Coin was started in 1956 by a woman from India, Shanti Solomon, and CWU is one of many participating organizations. The least coin currently used in each country represents the symbol for a prayer and is sent to a general fund. The combined coins represent the unity of women in their common quest for peace.

added up to more than $175,000.

That was divided between women's and children's organizations all over the world. U.S. agencies received $18,000.

And it is that unity of women of all faiths that is what CWU is all

"I think it's a very important organization because the women come from so many different places, different denominations,' said longtime member Norma Roberts from Livonia. "We have our own ways of doing things but we come together and we find the commonalities are there.

"There are so many ways that we believe the same and we do things the same in spite of the fact that we have gone in different directions to our different church-

Chrysler also finds that working with this ecumenical group is personally rewarding.

"I find the activity in working with women of other denominations is more of a growing process than just working in my own local denomination," she said. "I find that I enjoy my own way of worship and celebration but I think it's a broadening aspect for a woman to be able to share with others different ways of doing things for the same common capital punishment, and euthanasia have in common? It goes without saying that they are all life and death concerns, but there is something more. Each of these realities is an attempt to solve a problem, to make that which is not wanted - on a myriad of levels to be sure - go away. Each is an attempt to remove a problem, a pain, a fear or a combination of all of those things.

Pain and fear are enough to prompt emotive responses in most of us. The pain and the fear experienced by a women with unwanted pregnancies is some-thing that I, as a male can only imagine, but it is their pain and it is their fear. The pain and the fear of those who have fallen victim to violent and senseless crime or who are at risk of becoming victims are exacerbated by a large dose of anger. That combination is also enough to arouse any of us. The pain and the fear that envelop the lives of those in the throes of serious and terminal illness are something that only they can know. So what do we do when faced with pain, with fear, with inconvenience, with threat to our dignity, our comfort or our peace of mind? We do what society has gradually let us know is acceptable. WE do that which the experience of others - or indeed ourselves has shown to be a surefire cure. ISSUES from page 5H tory will also show that across the cultures the quick fixes have all too often involved death. Kings used it to rid themselves of enemies. Individuals have used it to blot out people who stood in their way. Many of us grew up with the movies of the Wild West where a Smith and Wesson was the ultimate problem solver.

Perhaps a closer look at what really resolves problems in the human condition would be more enlightening than putting the microscope on the symptoms. That of course has something to do with exploring the meaning of human existence in the first place. Granted such reflection and discussion will probably not draw many marchers or placard painters. It will not provoke ralftes to the degree that the symptoms will, but does that mean that ignoring such a basic issue might not shed more light than the smoke to which we have become accustomed?

And oh yes, there is another possible answer as to why discussions on the big three are so seldom enlightening. How often do those of us who involve ourselves in such discussion attribute as much sincerity to those with opposing views as we presume for ourselves? At times the righteousness that drapes the opinions of many is almost as disconcerting as the ease in which we continue to accept death as our solution to life's problems even if it isn't with a Smith and Wesson.
