Scaled-down streetscape weighed

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A scaled-down street-sidewalk improvement plan could happen next year, if city officials win approval for available federal grant money.

On Thursday, Downtown Development Authority members heard a report on money available through the federal Inner Modal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act.

By this act, the federal government doles out money collected from gas and weight taxes to deserving transportation-related projects.

"The act allows cities to apply for federal funds for enhancement activities, brick pavers, brick treatments and benches if they're historically accurate," said Steve Guile, DDA director.

The DDA is considering asking for a $886,700 grant to do the project, to improve streets and sidewalks on Main Street from Church to Wing.

"The amounts granted through the state have been as low as $20,000 and as high as half a million (dollars)," Guile said.

Getting the grant, he said, depends on several factors. "One is the amount of local match that's pledged, the priority in terms of the amount of work being done, its timing," Guile said.

The city's application is due April 15. Word on whether the project would be paid for should come by the end of June. If the city gets the grant, construction wouldn't begin until next year, he said.

While earlier plans for a streetscape project included construction of a boulevard on Main Street between Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman, the revised plan excludes the boulevard.

"That could be built by utilizing some sort of local (money) match," Guile said.

The search for grant money to pay for street and sidewalk improvements follows state legislators' lack of action to restore DDA funding. That funding has been cut drastically.

In recent years, the DDA has raised money to pay for various projects from property taxes that normally go to schools and other taxing entities on property in the downtown develop-

The temperatures were on the cold side, but that didn't dampen the spirit of the crowds that on Saturday flocked to Plymouth for the annual ice festival.

Most folks thought near-zero temperatures were good for the Plymouth International Ice Spectacular.

But some said frigid weather was keeping crowds down — especially Friday night, when the thermometer dipped below zero.

But while one had to do some serious bundling to make the rounds of ice sculptures that filled Kellogg Park, The Gathering and the central parking deck, cold weather and sunshine gave the sculptures a crystalline look to capture the attention of crowds that filled Kellogg Park all day Saturday.

"It's cold for once," noted festivalgoer Diana Eakin of Dearborn Heights, in a blue down jacket and blue and white scarf.

"The sculptures look nice and crisp instead of on the drippy side," she said.

Asked to pick a favorite, her husband Bob commented, "Just about everything."

"It's something to get you out of the house," Diana Eakin added.

Questions on a college geography exam? Nope. These are among the questions put to finalists in Central Middle School's National Geographic Bee Thursday.

Fourteen boys and girls won classroom bees, besting more than 600 sixth- and seventh-graders to qualify for Thursday's contest.

In the finals, they were given a weather map and asked questions about pressure systems, fronts and temperature before they answered questions like the above-mentioned.

When it was down to semi-finalists Amanda LaCross and Chris Hott, the going got tougher.

Amanda and Chris were asked: Which European country peacefully separated to form two new countries in 1993? Name the sea that was created by the spreading of the earth's crust along the junction of the African and Arabian plates. Which eastern Mediterranean country controls the Dardanelles and the Bosporus, strategic straits that separate Europe and Asia?

Seventh-grader Chris Hott emerged the winner. He'll go on to statewide competition in Lansing and if he's successful there, to the finals in Washington, D.C. First prize is a $25,000 scholarship, second prize a $15,000 scholarship, and third prize a $10,000 scholarship.

Asked how he prepared for the bee, sponsored by the National Geographic Society, Chris said, "I didn't. I just prayed. I kind of like forgot to study. I

Tax break gets township's OK

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

While some Plymouth Township trustees are turning against the policy of giving tax breaks to township businesses, trustees voted Tuesday to approve a tax break for Johnson Controls Inc.

The firm, which makes car seats and related components, won approval for a 50 percent 12-year tax abatement on a 65,000-square-foot addition to its Plymouth Township facility.

The board voted 4-1 in favor of granting the abatement. Two trustees who oppose giving businesses tax breaks did not vote.

They are Mary Brooks, township treasurer, who was ill and unable to attend the meeting, and Charles Curmi, who was allowed to abstain from voting as he works in the auto industry and said he wanted to avoid any appearance of conflict of interest.

That left clerk Marilyn Massengill as the lone trustee voting against the abatement. "You're (Johnson Controls) already receiving $300,000 in tax abatement," she said, from all taxing authorities since 1990 when the firm moved here.

"I think the township's been very fair as far as tax abatements being given to you," Massengill said.

Trustee Ron Griffith, who voted for the abatement, said offering these tax breaks is good for the township.

That's because Johnson Controls will be paying $7,600 this year in township taxes on the addition — and the township would be getting nothing if the company wasn't here.

Robert Morris, Johnson Controls facilities manager, said the availability of tax breaks in Plymouth Township was one reason the company moved here.

"We've expanded very quickly in the last three years," he said, from around 400 employees to more than 1,000. Morris said that once the expansion is finished, around 1,200 will be employed at the firm on Halyard Drive.

The firm has supported the community with more than $300,000 in Plymouth United Way contributions since opening in 1990, and around 60 employees have moved to the township, Morris said.

Also voting for the tax break were trustees Kay Arnold and K.C. Mueller, and Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy.

During a public hearing on the tax break, former township supervisor candidate Ron Edwards spoke in support of the abatement.

'Celebrities' take crack at carving ice sculptures

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A select group of wanna-be ice carvers entered the Celebrity Ice Carving Contest Thursday, impressing a throng of spectators with their amateur efforts in the process.

Contestants trying their hand at chain-sawing, chiseling and grinding were Observer photographer Bill Bresler, Judy Coy, WJR meteorologist, Chris Edwards, her counterpart at Channel 2, Tim Kiska of The Detroit News, and Dr. Tom Morse and Larry Pulkownik of Plymouth.

From a 400-pound block of ice, Bresler fashioned an acoustic guitar, engraved with the name Elvis. "It's a tribute to the Elvis sightings in Canton Township," said Bresler, who unlike the other celebrity carvers accepted next to no help from a professional coach provided by the festival organizers.

Coy carved a professional-looking "Weather Wizard," replete with a lightning bolt and an eight ball. "That's because I'm always behind the eight ball," she said, joking with onlookers. Coy made folks happy with her pronouncement that temperatures will be cold enough to keep Plymouth's "Art for the Moment" from melting into the coming week.

Kiska's impressive carving was entitled "Flying Eagle." "I had a good coach," said the modest writer. Asked how he came up with the idea, Kiska gave credit to his coach, Hawaiian Roy Calo. "I had a couple of ideas, and he said, 'Let's do something artistic,'" said Kiska.

Morse and Pulkownik, who bid on the chance to carve in a Chamber of Commerce contest, won with their "Flying Swan," or in keeping with the festival's theme, "The Western Flying Swan," joked Morse, a repeat champion.

Morse and Pulkownik won $500, which they donated to the Plymouth YMCA "so kids can enjoy our efforts." Morse directs the Plymouth Y's annual 10K and 5K runs each June.

Edwards carved a "Cold Water Cactus," so entitled because "It's supposed to look like a cactus, and my feet are cold," he said. "It turned out, thanks to the help I got" from John Dineen of Nadeau Ice Sculptures.

If he's back next year, Edwards says he'll wear his ski bibs, an apron and boots.

Along with Coy, Bresler, and Kiska, Edwards tied for runner-up honors. All contestants received a black and silver Ice Sculpture Spectacular mug.

Bresler thoroughly enjoyed himself. "I've been watching these folks for 12 years, and was dying to carve myself," he said. "It was a lot of fun. It's an interesting medium, since I usually work with light, film and chemicals."

Carvers worked with a chainsaw, chisels, routers and electric grinders.

Their coaches, in addition to Calo and Dineen, included Hawk Ramirez, Brian Sheakley and Jim Nadeau.

No one has to explain to Nadeau — who's carved several of the festival's major pieces for more than a decade — how contagious ice carving can be. "I went to Chicago in 1978 to do some work," said the founder of Nadeau Ice Sculptures of Forest Park, Ill.

"I was supposed to visit for three weeks and I never left." Nadeau's company, featured on TV's "Today" show last week, does ice carvings for hotels, weddings, commercials and the movie and TV industries.

If voters in March approve the plan to raise the sales tax to 6 percent and cut property taxes to 6 mills, "DDAs will not be allowed to capture anything," Guile said.

If the fall-back plan is adopted, "DDAs will be able to capture a certain amount of money for long-term debt and pipeline projects," leaving no money for projects including street-sidewalk improvement, Guile said.

Ice festival goers love the ice sculptures, and Plymouth's downtown shopkeepers love festival goers and the extra business they bring to town.

"We sell film, Chapstick, batteries, Kleenex and hand warmers," said Lori Malm, pharmacist at Wiltse's Community Pharmacy across from Kellogg Park.

Like several other downtown businesses, the store adds staff at ice fest time to cope with increased store traffic.

"You go anywhere in the country and they would die to have an event like this — It's Christmas after Christmas," said Larry Bird, co-owner of Country Charm on Main Street.

Taking a break from answering questions from customers who filled his store at noon Saturday, Bird said store traffic is always good during the festival, despite extremes in weather.

"Even with the warm weather we had tremendous business days," he said.

Cathie Kessel, co-owner of Brass & Iron Beds on Ann Arbor Trail, said ice festival traffic also benefits her business, which tends toward bigger-ticket items.

"The traffic is good, we get a long-term benefit from it," she said. Her husband, co-owner Rob Kessel, estimated that 10 to 15 percent of their business annually stems from people who discover the business during the ice festival.

Rob Scott, working the counter at the Outback Cappaccino Bar on Main Street, said that while traffic was steady business was down slightly because of the cold.

"It's not like last year," he said, adding the business was selling "a lot of hot chocolate."

"Most people come in to get warm, there's a lot of browsing," reported John Rutherford, a clerk at the Little Professor book store on Main Street.

Employees of several stores said they'd noticed that many festival goers were from out of town, and some spoke in foreign accents.

Pat Allen, a sales clerk at Aventura Ltd. on Main at Ann Arbor Trail, said of the ice festival, "Definitely it helps us. It's helped us this year, people have been coming in and buying a little bit of everything."

Denni Englehart, owner of Chameleon Galleries Ltd. on Main Street, said festival related business "makes January for me."

"The ice spectacular is definitely the best thing that happens for Plymouth. Just today there were two people in from Cleveland, people from Chicago have been calling to find out how to get here," she said.

sculptors Tom Recinella and Scott Storbeck worked on a carving of a serpentine dragon.

How does one dress to work outside at near-zero temperatures? Recinella favored three pairs of long underwear under his pants while Storbeck opted for two pairs.

"You pretty much keep getting dressed until you can't move, then you put on some more," said Recinella, a University of Michigan chef.

Near their dragon, orange electrical cords snaked around on the snow-covered ground. Two long nearby tables were topped with an assortment of tools and accessories, including different size chainsaws and a can of WD-40.

Another two-man professional carving team, Dan Huntsbarger and David Balla of the Gandy Dancer restaurant in Ann Arbor, shaved ice from the rumps of three-foot long ice horses, in preparation for their placement along the rim of an ice merry-go-round.

They drew the attention of Mike Telenko's family, from Canton. "We just like to watch the carvers," Telenko said, adding it was his second year at the festival.

Just off of Main Street, the "Jurassic Park" ice display, complete with dinosaurs and the park gate featured in the popular movie, drew the attention of kids and parents. Nearby was a 6-foot-tall house of ice, to promote Icehouse beer.

Across the street, the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce office was getting a steady stream of visitors. "Mostly people want to come in from the cold. Some want walking maps," said Gerry Triplett, a former chamber president.

Another popular place to warm up was the Repeat The Beat record store just off the park on Penniman. "A lot of people said it was really cold," said sales clerk Mark Toth.

Referring to some past years, when warm temperatures melted sculptures, he said, "It's humorous — it's either too warm or too cold."

Back in the park, Bob and Flo Westerfield of Warren said it was their second year visiting the ice festival. "It's just nice," Flo Westerfield said.

Stolen car found stripped

A car reported stolen at 7:30 a.m. Thursday was found stripped at 5 p.m. in Detroit, according to a report compiled by Plymouth Township police.

A Ohio man staying at the Red Roof Inn, 39700 Ann Arbor Road, said his 1991 Chevy Caprice was last seen there at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

The car was found near Fenkell and Lahser. It had a broken window and dashboard, and all the wheels were missing. Also missing were $3,000 in samples of hand tools, and a car phone, the report said.

Police have no leads or suspects.

Deer hit

A driver told police that a fawn was struck by a car at 3:23 a.m. Thursday near Beck Road and M-14, and that it was still alive and had run off.

Police were unable to find the animal, according to the report on the incident. The police report contained no further information on the incident.

Flags gone

Three flags on flagpoles were missing from the front of a business at 47690 E. Anchor Court on Jan. 10, after thieves had apparently cut the flagpole rope, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

There was no description of the flags in the police report. Police have no leads and have closed the case.

Radio station will air auction

WSDP, 88.1-FM, will produce its radio auction in 1994. The auction will air Saturday, May 14.

WSDP's radio auction was a regular part of the station's fund-raising program in the early 1980s. It was revamped in 1989 and 1990, and will reappear this year.

"I hope it will become a regular part of our programming again. It has great fund-raising potential," said Bill Keith, station manager.

As in past auctions, WSDP volunteers will contact local businesses for gifts to auction off. The auction provides business owners with an excellent vehicle to promote their business, he said. "It's a win-win situation for everyone involved," said Keith.

Planning for the auction already has begun and will shift into high gear in February with a volunteer meeting. Auction volunteers are still needed, and interested people should call the station at 451-6266. WSDP is also looking for area businesses to sponsor the auction. Details regarding sponsorship can be obtained from the station.

"The auction is a signature event for the station and has always been a community favorite," said Keith.

WSDP is owned and operated by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The station provides broadcast training for local students and has been serving the community since Feb. 14, 1972.

guessed on half of them."

Amanda, also a seventh-grader, said that since she won her class competition, "My mom helped me every night, studying everything out of the atlas. I was kind of scared."

Many contestants agreed it was stressful to be on stage in front of a cafetorium full of students, teachers, reporters and cable TV cameras.

Margo Panko, a sixth-grade teacher who initiated the bee, said it was done in response to the common complaint that students aren't learning enough geography. "The kids were real excited about this, and really scared," said Panko, who's getting increasingly involved with the National Geographic Alliance, which works closely with the National Geographic Society. "I've never heard kids so quiet in my life."

Geography is no longer simply a matter of memorizing the capitals of states and countries. In addition to location, students are learning about "characteristics that distinguish a place; language; culture; food; human/environmental interaction; relationships between people and their environment; occupations; industry; tourism; how nations exchange products, people and ideas; transportation; communication and similarities among regions," she said.

PLAQUENIL FOR ARTHRITIS

In 1951 a physician used plaquenil, a form of Quinine, to treat malaria in a group of English civil servants stationed in India. He noted that those individuals with malaria and rheumatoid arthritis, had improvement in their arthritis while taking the plaquenil.

Not everyone improved, and it was not possible by blood test, xray or the joints involved, to know who would benefit and to what extent. In most cases, the increase in the individual's well being was definite but modest.

Furthermore, the medication had side effects. In a small number of individuals, the drug deposited in the retina and caused loss of sight that did not resolve when the patient stopped takign plaquenil.

Because of the small benefit and possibly hazard, the medication did not gain popularity. However, recently its use has increased for two reasons. First, a small modification in structure makes the drug much less toxic than in the past. Second, recent studies indicate that when plaquenil is added to other medications such as gold or methotrexate, the patient benefits more from the combination than from each medication alone.

Plaquenil illustrates a familiar pattern in the treatment of arthritis. That gains in therapy often occur from reworking familiar medication in new combinations, rather than searching for a new drug with novel features and unforeseen hazards.

Dorothy McAllen

Sexism didn't deter police inspector

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

When Dorothy "Dotty" McAllen joined the Michigan State Police in 1973, they dressed her in culottes and high heels and sat her down beside a radio.

That was how women in the state's police department were treated until the mid-1970s. For the first few years that women were hired, they were eligible only for jobs thought "suitable" for them, including radio dispatcher. Once permitted to join the road patrol in 1975, assimilation wasn't easy.

"They didn't have uniforms for us to wear," McAllen said. "They gave us culotte skirts and high heels."

The heretofore male-dominated, quasi-military organization likewise took time to adjust to the ever-expanding role of women. "It was awkward for (male troopers) to suddenly have female partners," said McAllen.

Four years after she joined the road patrol, McAllen got pregnant, and the hierarchy didn't know what to do with her. "They thought I should leave my job totally," she said. "(And) we had to go through a few legal battles."

McAllen won those battles, stayed on the job, took maternity leave, and returned to her squad car after the twins were born.

Lt. Sandra Miller was a trooper at the time out of the Northville post. "Even after (McAllen's pregnancy) they didn't come out with a clear policy," she said. "I don't think they were really convinced women were going to stay in police work."

Still, McAllen seems to hold no grudge against the state police, and she's rather reticent regarding the oppression she has experienced at the hands of the men in blue.

Women joining the state police now, she said, have difficulty comprehending a time when their kind weren't quite welcome.

Said Miller: "We used to have get-togethers for moral support, and now we don't need to. There are enough (women now) that I don't know them all anymore."

Today, Inspector McAllen is the highest-ranking woman in the Michigan State Police, second in command of the intelligence division for southeast Michigan, an area that extends north to the tip of the thumb, south to the Ohio line and west to Ann Arbor.

McAllen's job is somewhat mysterious and not unlike that of the spymaster "M" from Ian Fleming's James Bond novels. But where M's agents fought communism and evil geniuses, McAllen's troops work undercover to arrest illegal drug sellers and chop shop operators, where stolen cars are stripped to be sold in parts.

"We don't advertise what we do," she said. "We can't really use names. We can't use faces."

Not only will McAllen not say where her headquarters is, she won't disclose the city or township in which she resides. The closest she'll come is to say her home is in Oakland County. "I don't worry so much for myself, but more for my kids," she said.

McAllen has been a member of the intelligence division since 1980, working mostly in the area of narcotics. What the undercover officers do, McAllen said, is buy illegal drugs and try to identify dealers higher and higher up in the distribution chain. Arresting low-level dealers doesn't help much, she said, because new dealers pop up to take their places.

On the larger social problem regarding recreational drugs, McAllen vehemently opposes legalization. Those who espouse legalization, like National Review editor William F. Buckley, Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke and The Economist magazine, are not living "in the real world.

"Narcotics is a very dirty, ugly world. I would not want any part of legalizing it. I've seen real life for 14 years and I don't want that."

However, McAllen believes that anti-drug education, i.e. teaching children about the dangers of drugs, is more important than imprisoning dealers.

Although she says government is making progress in eradicating illegal drugs, McAllen can't point to any evidence to back it up.

She did say that the Livonia Police Department has done an outstanding job in this respect.

All in all, McAllen is pleased with the career choices she's made, despite the struggles early on. "I enjoy what I'm doing," she said. "I've always enjoyed it.

Two timer: Bill Thomas has the best of two worlds as a talk radio DJ and stand-up comic.

Bill Thomas stands up to radio, clubs

BY BOB SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Bill Thomas, a veteran of the Detroit comedy scene for more than a decade, is not the first stand-up comedian to try his hand on radio, but usually funny people are paid to be silly as part of some morning team. That makes sense, doesn't it?

Thomas, on the other hand, has found a home on talk radio where things are taken a bit more seriously. He does a three-hour shift Sunday evenings on WXYT (1270 AM) and often fills in for weekday talk stalwarts like Tommy McIntyre and David Newman.

And, by the way, he loves being serious.

"People who listen to talk radio are involved on a daily basis and very intelligent," Thomas said. "No one's interested in the Bobbits on talk radio. They want to hear about Clinton and Whitewater. I really have the best of both worlds. I can go into a club and talk about the Bobbits, and then I can go on the radio and talk about the issues."

The talk radio format, driven by the popularity of personalities like Rush Limbaugh and Howard Stern, has taken the country by storm. Even politicians in the 1992 eletions had to take notice of its power, largely found in its ability to quickly reach the voters and gauge public sentiment at the same time.

"It's fun to be able to talk to people and let them express themselves," Thomas said. "People need that opportunity. They can't just call up Tom Brokaw, Dan Rather and Bill Bonds. It's like having a political discussion around the kitchen table with a pot of coffee."

While Thomas does enjoy his stints at the mike in a radio studio, he has not totally abandoned his original livelihood — performing at the mike in

Chisel Bros. cover like no other

■ The Chisel Bros. aren't the typical cover band. Thornetta Davis, backed by rock veterans, belts out tunes much in the same vein as Sarah Vaughan or Aretha Franklin, making the Tuesday night jam sessions at Alvin's in Detroit special.

BY MARK E. GALLO
SPECIAL WRITER

Bluesy: The Chisel Bros. — Brian "Roscoe Paradise," Tim Duvalier, Ron Pangborn and Gary Indiana — has a pedigree that just won't stop and vocalist Thornetta Davis draws the attention.

Twenty years after my last visit to Alvin's Twilight Bar, that eternal bastion of bohemia on the fringes of the Wayne State campus, it looks and feels much the same.

John Coltrane's "Giant Steps" is playing on the sound system and 26 years of history seep from the black and white photo-covered walls thick with momentos of those who have played — Eek-A-Mouse to Gil Scott-Heron, to those that the management sees in its dreams, like Buddy Holly.

■ STREET BEATS

It's a classic, often repeated motif, but it works particularly well here. Up front, in the brightly lit cafe, with its herbal teas and warm, inviting soups, the conversations are brisk, intense and, one imagines, full of politics and philosophy.

Deeper into the heart of the music room, past the bar and into relative darkness, musicians greet each other with remembrances of the last time they jammed together, puffing excitedly on cigarettes and sipping at what may be the only beer they'll be able to afford all night.

The Tuesday rhythm and blues jam nights are not a strip-mall version of a blues jam. This is the real deal. Some of the hopeful participants look like moonlighting gangsters. Some like misplaced Nebraska farm boys sporting their first goatee or Jean Shrimpton clones lost in a time warp. Most of the audience, as is the usual case at any jam session worth its salt, is comprised of players who have come to press the urgency of their story on their house band for this weekly rite — the Chisel Bros. and their truly spectacular vocalist, Thornetta Davis.

The Chisel Bros. are the very epitome of flexibility, though a bluesy rhythm and blues band is the closest you'll get to an accurate description of their sound. They sidestep any easy categorization. Like the Sun Messengers, the late and great Urbations and a few other bands around whom the foundation of Detroit's reputation as one of the musical capitals of the world as built, the Chisel Bros. are an amalgram of city sounds and conscious urban influences. As lead guitarist and former Buzztone, Rob Tyner's MC5 and Was (Not Was) man Brian "Roscoe Paradise" said a few years ago: "This music holds up, because we're not playing at anything. This is just what we sound like."

The centerpiece of the Chisel Bros., since a year after their formation in 1989, is Thornetta Davis. There's no way around Roscoe's slash and burn guitar work or the Keith Richards look-alike basswork turned in by Tim Duvalier, the extraordinary drumming by Ron Pangborn, who's played with the Buzztones, Mitch Ryder, Was (Not Was), Mary Wells and Matthew Sweet, or the Steely Dan/funky sounding guitarist/vocalist (and veteran of work with the Brides of Funkenstein and the Buzztones) Gary Indiana.

This is a band with chops aplenty and a pedigree that just won't stop, but it's Davis who draws the attention. Not because she's the only woman here. Not because she's "the singer." Davis is a major force of nature who blows most of the combined Top 40 out of the water.

Her range begs comparisons to Aretha Franklin, her control to Sarah Vaughan. Her passion is for the full-blown classic rhythm and blues, ala Chaka Khan and Etta James, whose "Damn Your Eyes" she covers with the fellas.

Everyone from Otis Redding to Ronnie Earl, the Temptations, Roy Head, the Kinsey Report, Elvis Presley, James Brown and Delbert McClinton gets covered by this rump-romping band, and there aren't many "cover" bands on the planet that I would recommend like I will continue to do this one. Check them out and bring the dancing shoes.

The Chisel Bros. featuring Thornetta Davis host the weekly Tuesday night jam session at Alvin's, 5756 Cass, Detroit. Call (313) 832-1328 for more information. The group will also perform at Mr. Lou's Rhythm & Blues Cafe, 16117 Mack Avenue, west of Outer Drive, Sunday, Jan. 23. The show, a benefit for the Autism Society of Michigan and the Wayne County Society for Autistic Citizens, also features Mimi Harris and the Snakes and The Alligators among others. Admission is $6. For more information, call (800) 223-6722 or (313) 882-9135.

Lemon Juice savors its '70s sound

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Lemon Juice lead singer/guitarist Mitchel Angelos has focused on a music career most of his life. In preparation for success, he has never strayed far from the "creative atmosphere" on which he has thrived the last 25 years.

At his Dearborn home Angelos received a music education that would make most aspiring musicians envious. Along with being the frontman for the rhythm and blues band The Reputations, Angelos's father John penned songs for the likes of Joe Cocker and sang with Ted Nugent's Amboy Dukes.

When the senior Angelos died in 1984, the younger Angelos continued his father's legacy by taking over The Reputations.

He continued to learn about the music industry while working at Cinderella's Attic clothing store in Royal Oak. His job there has allowed him to hobnob with established rock acts like Sonic Youth, The Smithereens and The Cult.

In January 1993, Angelos rolled all those experiences — with The Reputations' drummer Dominic Lamarr in tow — into the creation of the 1970s-flavored rock band Lemon Juice. Although only picking up the guitar five years ago, the swirling power behind it, reminiscent of older Aerosmith, drives the band along with Angelos' smoky voice. The unique blend makes the band one of Detroit's standout talents.

Angelos has a simple explanation for it.

"I don't follow trends. . . . We may sound a little Seattley. If we sound a certain way, that's the way it's supposed to sound," he said squinting his eyes and dragging on a cigarette in a Royal Oak pub.

Actually he prefers more of the camaraderie within the Seattle scene. On his wish list is the collaboration

'Philadelphia' is heavy on education

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

■ MOVIES

If good intentions always meant good movies, then "Philadelphia" would be a resounding success. Political correctness is stamped across every frame of this story about an AIDS victim who seeks justice when he's fired from his job.

Cinematographer Tak Fujimoto, behind the camera on all of Demme's recent movies, fills the opening credits with rolling scenes of Philadelphia's suburbs and ghettos. Bruce Springsteen sings earnestly on the soundtrack while hand-written credits add a personal touch.

So why did the rest of director Jonathan Demme's much-anticipated film leave me lukewarm? Probably because it manipulates, not cynically, but with the unattainable goal of pleasing everyone with heavy-handed contrasts of homosexuals and homophobes, good lawyers and bad lawyers. It begs its audience to both cheer and tear.

Education is at the heart of "Philadelphia" and for this it should be hailed. Still, screenwriter Ron Nyswaner treats the movie like propaganda, filling it with high-minded, stilted dialogue that robs the main relationship of even the slightest nuance.

Other characters, especially Antonio Banderas as the dying man's lover, serve essentially as scenery. He logs the movie's only subtle moments because he has so little to do.

Denzel Washington plays attorney Joe Wheeler, who reluctantly agrees to the case despite his personal objections to homosexuals. He believes that his client Andrew Beckett (Tom Hanks), himself a hotshot lawyer, was set up by his high-powered firm to botch a major case.

We know Beckett's innocent. After an important file is misplaced and then retrieved at the last minute, these good old boys, led by a distinguished Jason Robards, fire him on grounds of incompetence. Beckett believes that they discovered that he had AIDS.

The legal angle, according to a lawyer friend, was handled impeccably. Though Miller's line of questioning seems absurd at times, it strikes at the root of a case based on the public perception of homosexuals.

The courtroom dramatics, which take up a good third of the film, lose their power because the case seems so open-and-shut. If some doubt had been placed on Beckett's work performance, if he hadn't been so one-dimensional and upstanding, there could have been at least some suspense.

Likewise, there are few surprises in the personal relationships. You know that Miller is going to alter his views and become more tolerant of gays.

There's also the predictable contrast between the stogie-chomping members of the legal community and Beckett's real family, led by mother Joanne Woodward. Ultra-supportive, smiling bravely through the court proceedings, they come off as plastic TV commercial-style versions of the ideal American family.

This comes as a surprise from director Jonathan Demme, who has managed to create anything but predictable characters in his dozen or so films. The director of "Melvin and Howard" and "Silence of the Lambs" seems uncomfortable in the world of mega-budgets and big-name stars.

Which isn't to belittle Hanks and Washington in their respective roles. Hanks, who shed some 30 pounds to depict the physical deterioration caused by AIDS, will most likely grab the gold come Oscar time.

Violins used to signal tear ducts in the old movies. "Philadelphia" employs an entire opera, with Hanks swaying in ecstasy to the sounds of Maria Callas on the stereo while Washington's eyes well up. Well over two hours into the film, as friends and family members file past Beckett in the hospital, I felt not so much moved as indoctrinated.

Criticizing a movie like "Philadelphia" won't please those rightly hail it as Hollywood's first mainstream treatment of the AIDS crisis. Twenty years from now, I'd prefer to look back on movies like "Longtime Companion," a 1990 independently produced drama twice as honest as a dozen heavy-handed "Philadelphias."

comedy clubs. In his search for continued professional and artistic growth, Thomas has a one-man show concept that he's begun working on. With the project very much in its infancy, Thomas declined to say a lot about his ideas, but he is aware many have tried performing one-person shows and failed miserably.

"Not too many people have done it successfully," he said. "A lot of people will also say they're doing a one-man show, but they're actually doing 90 minutes of stand-up — 15 minutes of McDonald's jokes, five minutes of body parts, 10 minutes of something else, and so on. I'm not looking to just be a joke machine."

Thomas has also been doing some writing on a sit-com pilot. He admires shows that have strong ensemble casts, like "Cheers" and "Barney Miller," and would like to craft something in that mold. Whether or not the show provides a star vehicle for its creator is not a major factor, Thomas said.

"I like what Tim Allen and John Caponera (now the star of NBC's "The Good Life") are doing," he admitted, "but it's not what I'm looking to do at this time. I just want to put something together that has some quality. I've been lucky enough in the last year to find some people I can bounce ideas off of."

Also on the television front, Thomas expressed dismay at the glut of stand-up comedy found floating around on cable and network television.

"I fear that if there are beings out there in the cosmos watching our satellite feeds, they probably think that everyone on earth is a stand-up comic and that all we do is stand around in front of a brick wall and talk."

Bill Thomas will appear Jan. 25-26 at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth, Royal Oak. Call 542-9900 for reservations and show times.

of area songwriters which would again create a "creative atmosphere." That's the kind of environment in which he grew up. However, his father hit many obstacles.

For example, while performing under the name Johnny Angel, John Angelos' song "Rock 'n' Roll Kids" was chosen by Billboard magazine as its pick hit. But just as the song was about to be released to the public, his record company, Scepter, went bankrupt.

"He was always on the verge of making it big and then something would happen," he said.

So far, year-old Lemon Juice has been mildly successful in a variety of clubs, including the hard rocking Ritz in Roseville. The alternative rock venue St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit has been a supporter since Lemon Juice's early days. Only a few months after the band was formed, the club booked Lemon Juice to play the Clutch Cargo birthday party at the Phoenix Center Amphitheatre in Pontiac.

Even then, their tight playing and professional attitude hinted at future success. In March, the band will record their debut release at The Bone Yard, a new studio in Warren owned by Benjamin Ridley of SisterSeed and Blue Nation.

In every show Angelos exudes a care-free attitude. You won't hear any political ranting and raving from his rock band, he said.

"I think politicians should do politics, and musicians should do music," he said. 'Basically, I'm just writing music from the heart."

And his mission is a simple one.

"I just hope they (the fans) enjoy them (the songs), have a good time, and groove," he said.

Lemon Juice performs on Saturday, Jan. 22, at Paycheck's Lounge, 2932 Caniff, Hamtramck. For more information, call (313) 874-0909.

STREET SENSE

BARBARA SCHIFF

Barbara,

I am an intelligent, thoughtful, mother of a 12-year-old son. He and I are very close. Although my upbringing was Catholic, I struggled successfully to rid myself of the biases against the open discussion of sexuality with which I was raised. I am backed up in this by my husband who was raised in a different culture, one in which openess about sexuality is supported.

Last week my son came to me and told me he wants a subscription to "Playboy" magazine. He is an active, healthy kid who is popular with his peers and gets excellent grades. He is well-adjusted. He explained to me that he loves to look at pictures of the beautiful women. He says that since he knows he and his friends will be doing this, he does not want to sneak. He wants his behavior to be out in the open.

I know my brother loved to look at pictures of naked women when he was a teenager, but he couldn't be honest about his behavior. He had to lie, to do it. My brother outgrew his interest when he was about 20. So, I reason, isn't it better to have honest communication than to know my son must hide from me? I am open, however, to suggestions about this from others. What do you think?

Dear Caller:

The question you ask is something called a "rule of the house" question. That means that in every home there are rules and guidelines the family works out which then, hopefully, help them balance good taste, good psychological and physical health and individual enjoyment. Some other examples of these kinds of questions are: "Is junk food allowed?" "How open can teenagers and young adults be about sex?" "Is smoking allowed?" "Should infants sleep with their parents?"

Questions like these can be seen from more than one point of view; there is more than one good answer. The best answer depends on what is going on in that particular family, at that particular point in time. No professional can tell you what to do because he can't tell you who you are, or what kind of home you want to have.

Do you want your home to be one with "Playboy" or without "Playboy?" Or, in another example, one with junk food or one without junk food? After you decide how you will answer the first question, then you must decide who is in charge in your house; how much democracy you think is approriate.

That said, there are some pitfalls in your reasoning you should consider. First, if you tell your son you do not want him to have a subscription to "Playboy," he need not deceive you. With your knowledge and approval, he can enjoy the pictures outside of your home.

Second, a stack of "Playboy" magazines on his nightstand will probably command a lot of time. As you know from your brother's and husband's experience, it is expected that 12-year-old boys will like to look at pictures of sexy women, but does liking something justify spending a lot of time that way?

Third, recent feminist literature decries the commercialization of women that "Playboy" and magazines like it convey. There is much to support the point of view that these magazines encourage disrespect for women.

Fourth, and last, men have complained that a steady diet of "fantasy" women makes them disappointed when they are with "real" women, and thus, poor partners for them.

With these arguments, I reveal my point of view on the subject. If any of you reading this have other arguments on either side, please write to enlighten all of us.

Schools engage in misinformation campaign on MEAP

JEFF COUNTS

What the hell does this mean?" muttered my wife when our son's MEAP scores came to the house.

Since I'm a professionally trained journalist, she handed them to me for an explanation. Of course I could figure them out, I've been mucking through the things at work for a number of years.

But after an hour or so, the test scores still looked about as clear as the political situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Chances are this same scene is being replayed in living rooms throughout suburban Detroit as the test scores hit home.

The point of having MEAP scores is to allow parents to see if their kids are learning anything and if the schools are doing a good job.

However, the trouble with MEAP is that the numbers are so murky that you'd suspect the school systems hired one of Al Capone's accountants to cook the books.

In the MEAP score test results I received from the Livonia Public Schools, there are numbers, but no way to tell what they mean. The text used to allegedly explain the numbers is unclear and is steeped in that obscure education language that leaves you wondering if it's a boy, girl or a box of jello.

Here's an example: "All MEAP tests report results in relation to a standard set by experienced educators. Any score that meets or exceeds the standard is satisfactory. MEAP results are never reported in terms of how a child performed in comparison to other students."

Here's a translation: The tests were corrected by teachers who decided how to grade them. (This is like asking the Mafia to prosecute itself.) Your kid did OK if he or she passed the test. However, we're not going to tell you if he did better or worse than other kids.

Thank you, Livonia schools, for the fantastic explanation. Without it I would have assumed that the tests were given by the Russian bobsled team and graded by a peace-keeping mission in Bosnia. Also, I wouldn't have understood that when you pass something it's satisfactory.

However, what really bugs me about the test is that I don't know how my kid stacks up against others. That lack of comparison gives me and other parents no way to judge our school district or our kids.

In a sense the MEAP tests, and the educators who give them, flunk when it comes to providing any usable information to parents and the public.

Because school types don't want us to compare, they don't give us information.

Oh, sure there are numbers, but they're without meaning. My own kid scored around 300 on "constructive meaning," whatever that is. In "story selection," he scored 300. From the information sent by the Livonia schools, I have no way to tell what "story selection" is. Does it mean he picks good books to read? That would be the obvious meaning in English, but then educators don't speak our language.

Then there's the score, 300. Because there are no comparisons, I have no idea what's at the bottom of the heap and what's on the top. Is 500 the top score or is 400?

The terms used aren't much help. To cook the books, schools now consider passing as either scoring satisfactory or moderate. It use to be that only satisfactory was considered passing.

And here's how the terms are described, according to Livonia schools. "Satisfactory: If a child scored 300 or above on both reading selection. Moderate: If a child scored 300 or above on only one of the reading selections."

Just the use of the terms moderate and satisfactory continue the obvious intent of educators, to obscure the results. What's the matter with using a set of terms like high, medium and low?

The answer to that is simple: Educators don't want us to know what they're doing.

The numbers: Once you get past the educational jargon you're faced with numbers that are meaningless. The above example is a real MEAP report sent to parents in Livonia.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers and is still wondering about the meaning of MEAP. He can be reached at 459-2700.

Some districts outwit MEAP for better results

DOC DOYLE

QUESTION: How do some school districts increase their MEAP test scores? I heard one school district cheated to raise MEAP scores. From your experience, what observations do you have of the Michigan Educational Assessment Test program?

ANSWER: My observations:

■ Whenever MEAP scores increase too dramatically, the state Department of Education is viewed as having developed a test that is too simplistic.

■ Once scores go up significantly on any MEAP version, the Department of Education will develop a new, more difficult MEAP. This phenomenon occurs about every four or five years. The difficulty of the test (item difficulty) has increased, in my opinion, by about 150 percent since inception in the '70s.

■ The structuring of MEAP test questions tends to follow the flow of the latest educational thinking. For instance, today estimation, problem solving and higher level thinking skills in math and reading are seen as the direction to go to insure students are capable, self-sufficient learners.

This is a step forward for those students who come from stable, affluent or at least semi-affluent homes, but a disaster for those children in Detroit, Highland Park and other poor districts where MEAP scores in math are as low as 5.6 percent mastery.

Those children need highly intensified help in basic and essential skill development, which includes simple math calculation, capitalization and other basic skills, regardless of what the math, reading and science curriculum gurus say.

■ Many school districts, sensitive to lower MEAP results over the past few years, have developed a plan to address their low MEAP scores. They study last year's MEAP test, then develop vocabulary lists and learning modules based on last year's MEAP questions. They "prep" kids for next year's MEAP.

■ If scores on any newly developed MEAP edition are extremely low, too low for public consumption, the Department of Education will adjust and lower the "cut-off" score for mastery, as they did a couple years ago. Meaning they lowered the passing score for mastery because up to 70 percent of the children did not master the test. Why did they? One reason was the 4th grade reading selections, when analyzed, were found to be at a seventh grade reading level.

■ Some districts will become very creative. Vocabulary lists of words found on the MEAP test will be developed for teachers to help children familiarize themselves with the language used on the MEAP test. Obviously if the children can't comprehend the words, they can't answer the questions.

■ Do some districts cheat on the MEAP? I've only heard of one or two districts over the years in which cheating occurred.

■ Some teachers will be surprised and angry to find their building and classroom test scores got to a board of education meeting before they even saw the results. Is this fair?

■ Principals will be very happy when the MEAP test scores are reported to the board of education and the issue is over for the year.

Do some districts cheat on the MEAP? I've only heard of one or two districts over the years in which cheating occurred. In one district, the teachers were allowed to read the MEAP reading selection to the children. This is a no-no.

Years ago, one superintendent put so much pressure on his teachers that a few teachers helped the children answer the questions. These are two isolated situations. It just doesn't happen. The seals on the MEAP test are not broken until test day.

You ask how some districts dramatically increase their test scores. In one district I served, we identified children whose math and reading skills were very low. We developed a program that contained the following elements:

1. Letters were sent to parents informing them their child was going to have severe problems in school without extra math and reading help. We requested that their children stay after school Tuesdays and Thursdays in a highly intensified content-specific program.

2. We talked the best teachers in the building into staying after school to work with the children — for a stipend.

3. We paid for a shuttle bus to take those children home whose parents were not available or did not have a car for pick up.

4. We developed learning modules that parents could use to help their child at home and, indeed, trained some parents.

5. We set up a summer school program specifically for those children who needed intensified "drill and practice" in basic skills, in comprehensive and higher level thinking, problem solving and test taking skills. Parents were thrilled and the results were outstanding.

MEAP test scores for these economically deprived fourth and seventh grade children increased from 38 percent to 78 percent over a two-year period.

So under-achieving children can learn, but a highly intensified intervention model must be in place. To hope for the best on next year's test will not improve test scores. A clearly defined program will.

Kitchen gadgets aid eating fresh

When Julee Rosso and Sheila Lukins first opened the legendary Silver Palate, they sought to define their passion, the American cooking style. They believed it transcended their inherited culinary traditions and coast-to-coast regional favorites. And certainly American cuisine was not merely that of other cultures replicated with American ingredients.

Rosso and Lukins concluded that our emerging cooking style is slowly evolving as we learn to "lighten up but retain taste, trim quantities without sacrificing pleasure, create simple, fresh, clear, and distinctive flavors, use our sense of humor and allow enthusiasm and ingenuity to reign."

Today, this same philosophy holds true. And to help us create those healthful, fresh, light but tasty dishes, manufacturers have developed a bevy of "must have" machines. Every new bride needs a bread maker and a pasta extruder. What college dorm room lacks a hot-air corn popper? And moms with young children praise their juicers and rice cookers. If the kitchen is stocked with all these healthy food inventions, who needs a deep-fat fryer?I browsed the Marketplace at Hudson's Northland store recently and eyed the impressive array of upscale gadgets. The Panasonic Automatic Bread Maker ($399.95) mixes and kneads your bread dough, calculates the leavening period and then bakes the bread. All you do is add the ingredients. There's even a digital timer so you can preset the machine to prepare the loaf up to 13 hours in advance. Can you imagine waking up to the aroma of fresh-baked bread or pastries?

Leanne Silverblatt received her bread baker for Hanukkah and declares it "the best thing that ever happened to our household."

The Panasonic Rice Cooker and Steamer comes in five-cup ($49.95) and 10-cup ($59.95) capacities. No more sticky, globby rice. The cooker keeps the grains fluffy and warm for up to five hours.

A perfect graduation gift, the West Bend II Hot Air Corn Popper ($16.95) uses no oil for fewer calories and no cholesterol. Team it with Hudson's Marketplace gourmet popcorn packed in a canning jar complete with red scoop ($9.99), and a wooden popcorn bucket that holds all four quarts ($14.99.)The Cuisinart Juice Extractor ($109.95) and the Braun Deluxe Juice Extractor ($89.95) are high on bridal registry lists, according to Hudson's personnel. Make citrus and non-citrus fruit and vegetable drinks with no preservatives or additives. The Braun model comes with a recipe book that includes Strawberry Banana Smoothies and Kiwi Spritzer.

Americans are pasta crazy and we've been told that, minus the cream sauce, pasta dishes are healthy and energizing. Lorraine Shalvoy of Rochester Hills recommends the following recipe for a simple, yet delicious supper. Combine four ripe tomatoes, cubed, with one cup of fresh basil leaves, three cloves of minced garlic, one cup olive oil, two teaspoons salt and a dash of freshly ground pepper. Let marinate for at least an hour. Serve over linguine, or your favorite pasta.

Of course, that linguine can easily be made fresh with a stainless-steel pasta machine ($36.95) from Crate & Barrel in The Somerset Collection in Troy. Boil it in the eight-quart white-enamel pasta cooker ($39.95).

To expand your repertoire of low-fat, heart-healthy recipes, invest in The Vegetable Market Cookbook by Robert Budwig ($24.95 at Crate & Barrel). This artful book with gorgeous illustrations explores the best of the vegetable markets from open-air stalls in France and Italy, to floating markets in Bangkok.

Refunds and receipts: It's no bargain if you can't take it back. The Better Business Bureau cautions shoppers to learn the latest refund and exchange policies at their favorite department stores.

Buyers: Beware of sales

Buyer, beware. The Better Business Bureau can't say it enough. Keep your eyes on the fine print and your ears tuned to the refund policy. Michigan retailers do not have to post their refund policy, but they must explain it if asked.

By Susan DeMaggio
Staff Writer

The following scenario is true. It will happen hundreds of times a day during the next few months. The names have been changed to protect the ignorant:

Ring. Ring.

"Good morning. Better Business Bureau. How may I help you?"

Agitated caller: "I would like to report Goody's Department Store. I was there yesterday to return the blouse my mother-in-law gave me for Christmas. Goody's won't give me a refund."

BBB: "I'm sorry, m'am. Do you have the receipt?"

Caller: "No. And I would never ask my mother-in-law for it. I don't want her to know I'm returning my gift."

BBB: "If Goody's requires a receipt for refund, they are under no obligation to refund or exchange your merchandise without one."

Caller: Boo hoo. There ought to be a law. . . .

There is: the Michigan Consumer Protection Act, the BBB reports. But in Michigan, retailers are not required to give you a refund without a receipt. They're not even required to post their policy or even tell you about it unless you ask.

Carmel Weehms, Michigan BBB spokeswoman based in Southfield, said the top complaint these days comes from people trying unsuccessfully to return holiday gifts.

"Ugh! These complaints will plague us through March," she teasingly bemoaned. "People don't realize that many retailers have tightened their refund policies within the last year or so. Hudson's, Kmart, Target, Mervyn's — they all require a receipt for a refund or exchange.

"And you wouldn't believe the number of people who would rather die than ask a relative for a gift receipt. It really poses a dilemma."

The BBB was created 75 years ago, Weehms said, to ensure ethical advertising and selling practices in the marketplace. It is a private non-profit agency financed primarily through contributions from smaller business owners.

In Michigan, two BBB offices — in Southfield and Grand Rapids — oversee more than 100,000 businesses and mail-order companies. There are 20 employees in the Southfield office.

"Unless a product is defective," Weehms said, "a retailer is under no obligation to refund or exchange mer-

It's tabletop time for brides to be

By Susan DeMaggio
Staff Writer

In "The New Tiffany Table Settings," Tiffany vice president John Loring writes: "The history of modern table settings opened on a momentous day in 1633 when Charles I of England declared once and for all that 'it is decent to use a fork.' "

Dearing

Since that day, bridal registries have been helping homemakers select not only their forks and plates, but also their finger bowls, ice plates, compotes and stemware. The winter months are the busiest for tabletop retailers because couples who become engaged over those romantic holidays begin preparations for all those June weddings.

The local leader in the bridal registry business is Hudson's. The Dayton-Hudson-Marshall Field Co. registers 86,000 brides a year companywide, according to Mary Dearing, divisional merchandise manager in the company's Tabletop department.

Another leader in the bridal registry business is Heslop's, registering 8,000 brides a year in 13 stores throughout Michigan. President Ron Heslop said January-February is the busiest time of year for his registry business.

Dearing will be one of several experts on hand Saturday to talk to engaged couples at Hudson's Bridal Fair in the Southfield Pavilion.

"I'll be explaining to new brides that lifestyle, not tradition, should guide their selection of china and crystal patterns and pieces," she explained from her Minneapolis office. "Yet traditions will play an important part in the new lives they are beginning."

Traditionally, beverage glasses are sold in sets of three — one for wine, one for water and one for champagne. But if a bride knows her family and friends like to drink ice tea with their meals, that bride should add long glasses to her registry. Likewise, additional bread and butter plates should be ordered by a bride who likes to serve luscious desserts, Dearing said.

Dearing refused to name the patterns that sell the best, saying that each Hudson's store stocks the patterns that sell well in that community. Price settings for fine china begin at $99 and go as high as $1,200 for hand-painted place settings with gold trim.

Via computer, Hudson's sales consultants can locate pieces and patterns anywhere in the Dayton, Hudson and Marshall Field inventories. Last year, the corporation debuted a 1-800-21 I DO I DO number that facilitates bridal gift giving for customers throughout the country.

chandise. It is the buyers' responsibility to know the refund policy — so ask, ask, ask."

The second biggest complaint in winter is from shoppers who rush out to buy merchandise advertised in "going out of business" ads, only to see that retailer still operating months after the so-called "liquidation sale."

"There are very strict laws against this," she said. "And we carefully watch for violations of the Truth in Advertising codes. False advertising can result in fines up to $500 and jail time of up to six months."

Shoppers can identify a legitimate "Going Out of Business" sale from the permit number for such a sale printed in the ad. A retailer must apply to the local municipality for a "going out of business" permit before declaring the sale.

"And don't be fooled by ads that say 'Must liquidate all stock' or 'Forced to vacate' or 'Lost our lease'," Weehms cautioned. "These ads hint at an urgency and rate of savings that may not really be there. Especially in the winter months, retailers are anxious to clear out year-end stock and may try to get you into their stores with false promises."

Weehms cautioned shoppers that when they buy a clearance item marked "As is," they are responsible, not the retailer, for the repairs.

The BBB compiles files on businesses based on consumer comments. If enough complaints come forward about a retail operation, the files are turned over to the appropriate regulatory agency.

The BBB has an automated telephone number available 24 hours a day, seven days a week: 810-644-9100.

screen is being experimented with to let shoppers pick through patterns and pieces from hundreds of images on a computer screen.

Coordination counts

Dearing and the company's linen buyers travel together to make sure the various tabletop departments are well coordinated so customers can buy the latest designs and color combinations. The newest trend, she said, is toward color in stemware, the use of underplates or chargers, and mixing of handed-down antique china with current patterns.

She goes to Europe once a year to preview the classic manufacturer's new offerings, reporting that the new patterns come out twice a year, in fall and spring.

And even though lifestyles have become more casual in the '90s, the love of formal dinnerware has not diminished. Brides still buy the good stuff, the patterns trimmed in gold or silver that spurn the convenience of the microwave and dishwasher.

"Here's where traditions come into play," Dearing said. "If formal dinners around religious celebrations were a part of a couple's heritage, you can bet that couple will continue that kind of entertaining in their new lives together. They want the good stuff for these occasions."

Heslop's hits

Ron Heslop said the three best-selling brands of china at Heslop's are Noritake, Lenox and Mikasa, with Royal Doulton and Wedgewood close followers. Casualware place settings begin at $25 and go as high as $750 for some fine china patterns.

"We recommend a bride register for 12 place settings. And an extra vegetable bowl or platter is also good idea," he said. "People always run short of serving pieces. The five-piece completer sets also come in handy."

Heslop said his store has an advantage in that the stores can display more patterns and more pieces of that pattern because tabletop is all they do — their number-one concern.

"We show the bride the napkin rings that match her selection, the teapot, the coffeepot and the gravy boat, for example," he said. "Our service is outstanding because that's all we do. Sometimes a bride won't like the shape of the teapot that goes with her pattern, so it really helps to see it up close.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Give salt, pepper a shake for flavor

Try to imagine cereal without milk, bread without butter, and beer without pretzels. Now try to imagine salt without pepper.

What is it that makes this tasty twosome such a hit? Salt and pepper enliven simple and elaborate dishes without masking their individuality. Salt is a flavor enhancer, and pepper serves as a penetrator enlivening dishes with a peppery aroma and biting, pungent flavor.

Grain of salt

There are many varieties of salt available on today's market. A trip to the grocers will have you noticing racks jammed with table salt, iodized salt, Kosher salt, pickling salt, seasoned salt, popcorn salt, rock salt, sodium-reduced salt and even sea salt. All have special flavors that enliven dishes.

Table salt is a frequent choice of cooks who use it because it dissolves easily. Kosher salt is used for it's flakiness, pickling, and many garnishes. It's especially tasty as a coating for bread. Seasoned salt is fine grained and interspersed with such notable herbs and spices as garlic, onion, celery and tarragon. Pickling salt is usually a fine grained salt made expressly for canning mainly because it is made without additives that can cloud the liquid used in canning. Popcorn salt is heavily flavored and made extra fine so that it will cling well to popcorn kernels.

Rock salt is usually unprocessed and mainly used for making ice cream. Local super chef Jimmy Schmidt bakes whole pears in rock salt while yours truly enjoys Yukon Gold potatoes covered in rock salt then baked to absolute fluffiness.

Sodium-reduced salt contains half the sodium of regular salt. It is made by chemically reducing the sodium content of the salt crystal. Sea salt is sought out by cooking professionals for its flavor enhancing capabilities without the saltiness of taste. It is usually more expensive than regular salt because it is made by dehydrating sea water and cannot be mined.

Peppery flavors

Pepper, on the other hand, is a berry or peppercorn of a woody perennial evergreen climbing vine. Pepper berries grow in spikelike clusters four to six inches long. Each cluster contains 50 or more berries. As they ripen, the berries change color from a green to a yellow and then to a red. They are fully ripened and ready for harvest after about nine months on the vine.

Supermarkets have a lot of catching up to do with the marketing of pepper varieties as compared to salt.

Sure, there's the traditional black pepper, white pepper and cayenne pepper, but a trip to a good gourmet shop or store specializing in spices will offer Telicherry pepper, Lampong pepper, Sarawak, Malabar, Brazilian, Chinese and Celaneese, just to name a few.

Personal favorites are the jars blended with the multicolor peppercorns that offer a well rounded aroma and pungency.

Pepper is one of the few spices that can be stored almost indefinitely (under proper conditions). Store them in a tightly closed jar, and whole peppercorns will outlast just about any spice on the rack.

If you have yet to acquire a pepper mill, run, do not walk, to your local store and buy a pepper mill. Throw away the pepper shaker. The flavor derived from fresh ground pepper compared to that which shakes from a jar is like the difference between night and day. Good pepper mills will set you back about $18 to $25, but a good mill will last, as mine has, going on 20 years.

When it comes to cooking with salt and pepper remember that real cooks will salt their foods only after cooking and tasting. Never salt meat before cooking as salt has a tendency to draw out the natural juices, making for a dryer, tougher piece of meat.

Pepper, on the other hand, can be added during the cooking process to enhance the flavor and aroma. Folks on a restricted salt program will certainly enjoy the taste of Morton's Nature's Seasonings and the Mrs. Dash varieties of salt substitutes. These are really herbal blends that heighten the flavor without the added sodium. But when it comes to using the real thing, dollar for dollar, you just can't beat the added flavor and aromas derived from the use of something as basic as salt and pepper.

MICROWAVE MAKES LOW-FAT DINNERS A ZAP

■ Norma Schonwetter takes the mystery out of microwave cooking in her new cookbook "Microwave To Your Heart's Content."

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Healthy Resolves

Lots of people have microwave ovens, over 80 percent of Americans, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, but I don't know anyone who cooks dinner in them. Norma Schonwetter, author of the newly published "Microwave To Your Hearts Content: A Heart-Healthy Cookbook," has two microwave ovens, and hardly ever uses her stove.

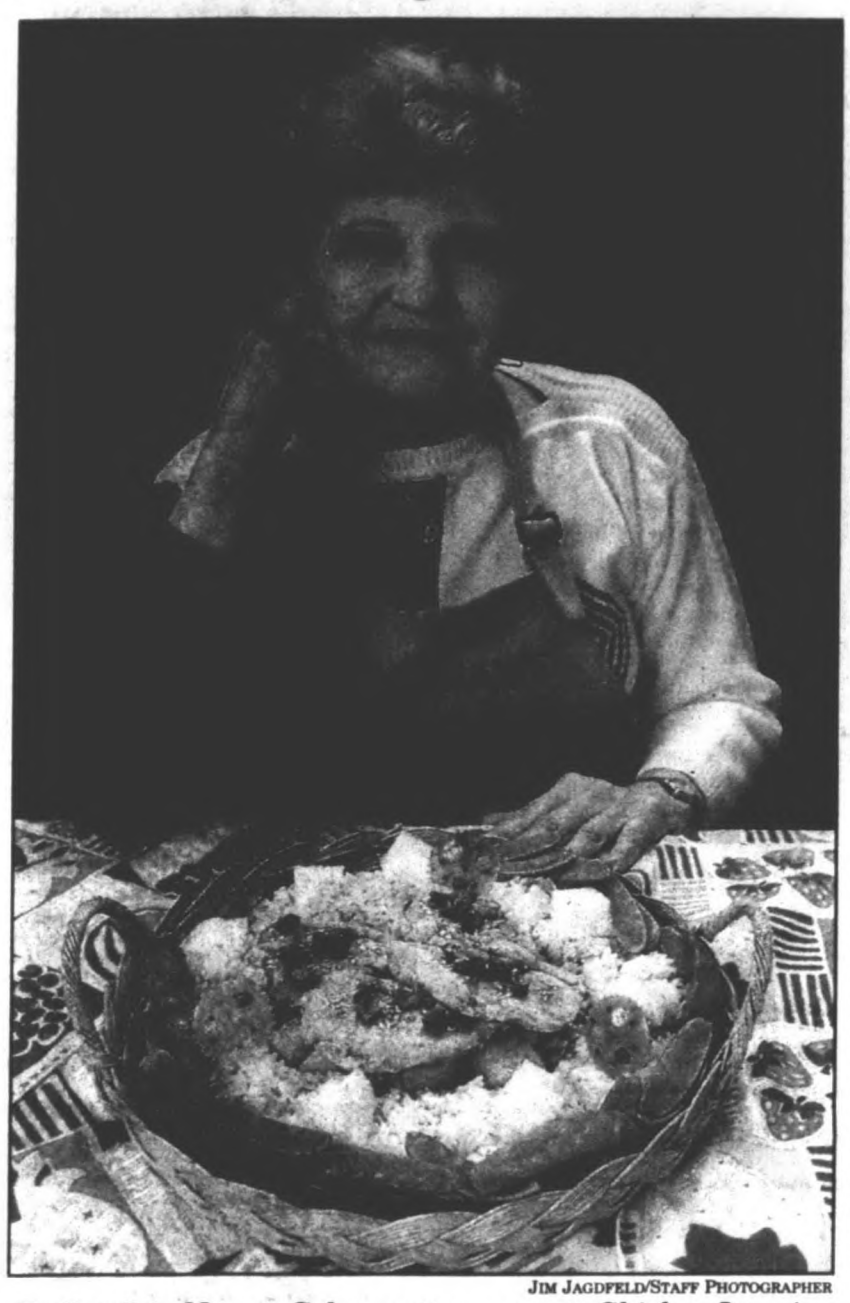
"You can cook in the microwave without any added fat, you don't have to grease pans, foods don't stick, and you can cook and serve in the same dish," said Schonwetter explaining some of the reasons she prefers microwave cooking.

Until I met Norma, I used my microwave for reheating, defrosting, and cooking vegetables. One rubber chicken is enough I told her explaining why I never cooked in my microwave.

"Over-cooking is one of the biggest mistakes people make," said Schonwetter. "It's better to undercook foods in the microwave, you can always put them back in to continue cooking. Food continues to cook after the microwave is turned off. By allowing the food to stand or rest a few minutes, the heat that is built up in the food is distributed throughout. Standing time is usually about ¼ of the cooking time."

If your microwaved dish comes out dry, tough, rubbery or brittle, Schonwetter says it's overcooked.

I wasn't easily convinced, I wanted proof. Norma's Chicken Lanai made a believer out of me. This Polynesian chicken dish, photographed in our Livonia studio, is ready to serve after seven minutes of microwave cooking. The chicken was moist, and flavored with fresh ginger. "How long did you marinate this chicken to make it so moist?" I wanted to know. She didn't.



JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Festive dish: Norma Schonwetter presents Chicken Lanai, a sunny Polynesian chicken dish with chunks of pineapple that's ready to serve after seven minutes of microwave cooking.

A home economist, and mother of two grown children, Schonwetter said she had a feeling microwave cooking would really take off in the late 1970s, and started learning all she could about it. She worked for Amana and Sears doing microwave cooking demonstrations, and teaching classes to people who purchased microwave ovens.

Later she taught classes in Oak Park, Southfield, and Troy, and has written a syndicated column "Micro Magic," for 16 years. Writing a book was a logical next step.

"I try to make things as healthy as possible," said Schonwetter. "The recipes are easy-to-prepare, and use easy-to-find recipes. I don't like to complicate things."

Nutritional analysis for recipes in "Microwave To Your Heart's Content," was provided by Karen Jackson, a registered dietitian and nutritionist for Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn. Symbols printed with each recipe tell cooks at a glance if the recipe is low calorie, extra low in fat, or extra low in cholesterol. It also contains healthy substitutions and microwave cooking guidelines.

The book is $12.95 and available at Bookpeople in West Bloomfield, Border's Book Shop in Birmingham, and Book Beat in Oak Park. To order by phone, call 1-800-43-MICRO or send check or money order to "Microwave To Your Heart's Content," 23600 Cloverlawn, Oak Park, MI 48237. Make check for $12.95, plus $2 for postage and handling, payable to Micro Magic.

Now lets get cooking:

The American Heart Association recommends using the microwave for cooking foods that cook well in moist heat - chicken, fish, ground meat, vegetables, sauces and soups.

Here are some tips for checking foods for "doneness" from the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.

- Food steams throughout, not just around the edges.
- Center bottom of dish is very hot to the touch.
- Poultry thigh joints move easily.
- Meat and poultry show no signs of pinkness and meat juices run clear when meat is cut close to the bone.
- Fish is opaque and flakes easily with a fork.

For crisp coated chicken parts, Schonwetter removes the skin, brushes the chicken with melted margarine or combines ¼ cup egg substitute and 2 tablespoons of skim milk; dip chicken parts in seasoned bread, cornflake or cracker crumbs.

Fruity Newlan, Armida wines tasty sips

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

Bob Foley is a talented musician, speaks six languages, lives in Napa Valley and makes great wines. We first met Foley when he made wine for Markham Vineyards. He is responsible for the delicious merlots that put Markham on the wine map. After increasing Markham's wine production and building a new winery, Foley decided that he wanted to return to making hand-crafted wines. In 1992, he joined Bruce Newlan at Newlan Vineyards and began making some flavorful wines we think you should know about.

Like so many people in the wine business, Bruce Newlan came from another business - Lockheed Aviation. In 1967, Newlan and his wife bought 13 acres of Napa Valley cabernet sauvignon and sold the grapes to wineries like Inglenook, Robert Mondavi and Silver Oak. In 1974, Newlan decided to leave Lockheed to become a full-time grower. He bought another 16 acres of pinot noir vineyards and began to experiment with winemaking.

Newlan Vineyards pinot noir is so special that Robert Mondavi bought most of it for his Reserve Pinot Noir. Today, Foley gets first pick of the pinot noir vineyard to make Newlan pinot noir.

"Fruit this good is very special to the Napa Valley," said Foley. "Pinot noir at Newlan

NEWLAN VINEYARDS

Wine Selections

Value wines from Newlan Vineyards are labeled Napa-Villages ($9 each) and include a Pinot Blanc, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, a red wine that is a blend of Rhone varietals and a white that is 80 percent semillon and 20 percent chardonnay.

Under the Newlan Vineyards label, we recommend the 1991 Newlan Chardonnay ($14), 100 percent barrel fermented in 50 percent new French oak barrels, the 1989 Newlan Pinot Noir ($15 reviewed above), the 1987 Newlan Cabernet Sauvignon ($14.50), a silky wine that was bottled aged at the winery, and the 1991 Newlan Zinfandel ($13), a premier release.

Armida wines available in this area include: 1992 Armida Chardonnay ($10), 1991 Armida Pinot Noir ($12) and 1991 Armida Merlot ($12) - all exceptional values.

Vineyards is the epitome of a hand-crafted wine. The grapes are given a long, cool, fermentation in small tanks, punched down by hand and the wine is aged in 50 percent new French oak barrels."

Foley makes two pinot noirs from his fruit, each represents a great value. As avid pinot-philes, we can attest to the virtues of The 1990 Napa-Villages Pinot Noir ($9) showing excellent fruit, with supple textures and juicy flavors. The 1989 Newlan Pinot Noir ($15) boasts big, toasty oak, good structure and bright, cherry fruit and spice that explodes in the glass. Why would you spend $40-$50 for a French Burgundy when this flavorful little beauty is available at one-third the price?

Our latest discovery from Sonoma County is tiny Armida Winery on the west side of Dry Creek Valley near Healdsburg, Calf., approximately 1.5 hours north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

The story of Armida Winery may sound strangely like the Newlan story; certainly there are interesting parallels. Owner, Bob Frugoli was born in California and spent most summers and many weekends visiting his grandparents on their Sonoma County farm. Frugoli's adult career, as a financial adviser with a national investment house, took him to Chicago and away from California farm life.

After several years, he began to realize how important the farm was to him and planned his return to that lifestyle. In 1979, Frugoli purchased established vineyards in Sonoma County's Russian River Valley. The cool nights and warm days of this wine region are particularly hospitable to chardonnay, pinot noir and merlot. For 10 years, Frugoli grew grapes that he then sold to local wineries. In the meantime, each year that he carefully tended his vines and raised his grapes meant another year of maturity for his vines and another year closer to his dream of leaving the investment business to return to the earth.

In 1989, Frugoli realized his dream of a lifetime when he located a spectacular site for his Armida Winery in the western foothills above the Dry Creek Valley with a view overlooking the Russian River Valley and Mount St. Helena to the east. At Armida Winery, Frugoli is able to use his own, estate grown grapes, in his carefully planned winery, to produce small quantities of three hand-crafted wines.

Armida Winery Chardonnay showcases exuberant fruit with oak in evidence as a spice rather than a dominating component. Fruity and lengthy, this is a wine to drink rather than ponder.

"Achieving a balance of fruit and oak is our chardonnay goal," admits Frugoli. He has tasted too many chardonnays where the delicate fruit is overpowered by raw oak.

According to winemaker, Frank Churchill, "Our vineyard will always have a characteristic grapefruit-like component." And Churchill does a masterful job of letting that fruit shine through in his wines.

The Armida Winery Pinot Noirs have a vineyard character too.

CORK BOARD

Ten-year Bordeaux vertical tasting (1982-1991) of the wines of Chateau Beychevelle 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 28 at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham. Cost $40 per person, includes champagne aperitif, hors d'oeuvres, dessert and coffee. Chateau Beychevelle's Yves Fourault will lead the tasting and answer questions about each vintage. For information, reservations, call Eleanor and Ray Heald, (810) 644-3443.

Tortilla lasagna, nutty rice, no fuss

See Larry Janes' Taste Buds column on Taste front.

Tortillas are an easy, precooked alternative to lasagna noodles, they taste wonderful. Cut them into the shape of the lasagna noodles — there's no par boiling, no muss, no fuss. We make this lasagna in double batches — vegetarian for the adults, and with precooked ground beef or ground turkey for the kids.

TORTILLA LASAGNA

- 1 teaspoon Canola or olive oil
- 2 large cloves garlic, chopped fine
- ½ pound (about 1 cup) small curd low-fat cottage cheese
- ½ cup shredded low-fat mozzarella cheese
- 1 (16 ounce) can kidney, pinto or black beans, drained
- 1 tablespoon flour
- Healthy dash cayenne pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- 6 corn tortillas
- 1 (32 ounce) can crushed tomatoes (Chopped tomatoes, or sauce can be used, if desired)
- 2 teaspoons Italian spices — basil, oregano

In a large saucepan, heat oil and add garlic and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently until garlic begins to sweat and become very aromatic. Do not allow to brown or burn. Stir in tomatoes and Italian seasonings, mix well, remove from heat.

In a separate bowl, combine cottage cheese with beans, flour, cayenne pepper, salt and pepper. Mix well. Set aside.

Slice tortillas. Prepare a glass bread pan or loaf pan by spraying completely with a non-stick cooking spray such as Pam.

Spoon in ¼ of the bean-cottage cheese mixture. Sprinkle with ¼ of the shredded mozzarella cheese. Spoon ¼ of tomato sauce on top, then top with ¼ of the tortillas. Repeat procedure until all items have been used.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Bake covered for 30 minutes at 375 degrees. Remove cover and continue baking for 30 minutes. Remove from the oven and allow to stand for 10 minutes before serving. Serves 5.

Each serving is apprroximately 350 calories, 22 gr. carbohydrates, 22 gr. protein, 7 gr. fat.

HONEY NUT BROWN RICE

- 2 cups water
- 1 cup uncooked rice (brown or white, but brown is best)
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon salt, or as desired
- 1 pinch of fresh ground pepper
- ¼ cup chopped nuts (walnuts or almonds)

Bring the water to a boil in a covered 2-quart saucepan. Add the rice, honey, salt and pepper, stir and cover the pot. Bring to a boil then immediately reduce the heat to low and cook until tender, about 20-25 minutes for white rice — 35-40 minutes for brown rice.

Remove from heat and stir in the nuts. Serve immediately. (Also excellent cold and made into a salad) Serves 4.

Each serving: 170 calories, 30 gr. carbohydrates, 2 gr. protein, 5 gr. fat.

Cook low-fat dinners quick in microwave

See related story on microwave cooking on Taste front. Recipes from "Microwave To Your Heart's Content," by Norma Schonwetter.

CHICKEN LANAI

- 1 (20-ounce) can pineapple chunks, in juice
- 4 to 6 thin slices fresh ginger
- 2 cloves garlic, minced or crushed
- 2 tablespoons each: reduced sodium soy sauce, ketchup
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 tablespoon each: chopped green onion, sesame seeds
- 2 cups hot cooked rice, without salt

Drain juice from pineapple into a microproof 8-inch square baking dish. Stir in ginger, garlic, soy sauce, ketchup, cornstarch and red pepper flakes. Add chicken breasts, turning to coat.

Cover with lid or vented plastic wrap and microwave on HIGH 6 minutes. Add pineapple; stir sauce. Microwave, covered, on HIGH 1 minute. Sprinkle with green onion and sesame seeds. Serve with rice. Yield: 4 servings.

Per serving: 248 calories, 2.1 gm fat, 20.5 gm protein, 44 mg cholestrol, 36.5 gm carboyhdrate, 312 mg sodium. Percent of calories from fat, 8 percent.

CRUNCHY FISH FILLETS

- 1 pound fish fillets (your choice, Norma uses White Fish)
- 1 tablespoon reduced calorie mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- ⅔ cup crumbled wheat or bran flakes
- ¼ teaspoon each: paprika, garlic powder

Pat fillets with paper towels; place in microproof 12 by 8-inch baking dish. Combine mayonnaise and mustard in small cup. Spread over tops of fillets. Combine crumbled flakes with paprika and garlic powder; sprinkle over tops of fillets. Cover with paper towel; microwave on HIGH 3 to 4 minutes or until fish flakes easily wiht fork. Yield: 3 servings.

Per serving: 164 calories, 2.8 gm fat, 27 gm protein, 7.1 gm carbohydrate, 64 mg cholesterol, 247 mg sodium. Percent of calories from fat, 15.

ORANGE POPPY SEED MUFFINS

- 1⅓ cups flour
- ½ cup each: sugar, nonfat plain yogurt
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 3 tablespoons margarine, softened
- 2 egg whites
- 1 tablespoon poppy seeds
- 4 tablespoons undiluted frozen orange juice
- Cinnamon and sugar blended together to sprinkle on top of muffins (about 1 teaspoon of sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon)

Combine all ingredients except for cinnamon and sugar mixture, in a medium bowl. Beat at low speed until moistened, about 1 minute. Line microproof muffin pans or custard cups with double paper baking cups. Spoon batter into muffin pan or custard cups. Sprinkle tops with cinnamon and sugar mixture. Microwave in two batches of six on HIGH for 2 minutes or until tops are dry. Yield 12 muffins.

Per serving: 134 calories, 3.3 gm fat, 3 gm protein, 0 mg cholesterol, 23.1 gm carbohydrate, 50 mg sodium. Percent of calories from fat 22 percent.

THREE CHEESE NOODLE CASSEROLE

- 2 cups uncooked cholesterol-free noodles
- 1 egg
- 2 egg whites
- 1 cup nonfat cottage cheese
- ¾ cup shredded low-fat Cheddar cheese
- ½ cup low-fat sour cream
- ⅓ cup chopped green onion
- 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ teaspoon reduced sodium Worcestershire sauce
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅓ cup crushed wheat flakes

Cook noodles as directed on package; drain. Whisk egg and egg whites together. Add to noodles with remaining ingredients except for wheat flakes. Spray a microproof 8-inch square baking dish with nonstick spray. Spread noodle mixture evenly in dish.

Sprinkle wheat flakes over top. Microwave, uncovered, on MEDIUM HIGH (70 percent) for 12 minutes or until center is set, turning dish twice. Knife inserted near center should come out clean. Let stand 5 minutes. Yield: 4 servings.

Per serving: 380 calories, 8 gm fat, 25.2 gm protein, 65 mg cholesterol, 47 gm carbohydrate, 560 mg sodium. Percent of calories from fat, 19 percent.

YOUR HEALTH

by Sandra John

EATING AND COMPETING

Athletes no longer believe the myth that they must gorge themselves with meat in order to build muscular bodies. This outmoded training table practice has all but been replaced by eating carbohydrates, which is the fuel that runs engines of muscle. Nowhere is this more evident than in the National Football League. More than 70 percent of the NFL trainers from 23 teams recommend that players bulk up on such foods as pasta, pancakes, cereals and fruits in preparation for competition. The wisdom of this strategy can be seen in the 1992-1993 Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys. Rated as the healthiest team in the NFL, they eat six daily servings of fruits and vegetables, in addition to such low-fat grain-based foods as bread and spaghetti.

Eating a diet comprised primarily of fruits, vegetables, and complex carbohydrates can create a healthy, happier you. The GOOD FOOD CO., a natural food supermarket, offers a tremendous variety of quality natural foods, along with vitamins and supplements to keep you in peak condition. Our staff is always willing to answer any questions you may have about a given product. Please call us at 981-8100. We are conveniently located at 42615 Ford Rd. Hours are Monday-Saturday 9-9 and Sunday 10-6. Give us a try - we offer great food at a great price! P.S. According to the Dallas Cowboys' trainer, the players are most partial to broccoli, cauliflower, oranges and bananas. - Advertisement -

Fuel football fans with bowl of chili

If you're tackling this year's TV Super Bowl party, you'll want a game plan that fuels the fans and allows the cook to catch all the gridiron action. One simple solution, sure to please armchair athletes and keep cooking and clean-up at a minimum, is to serve steaming bowlfuls of great-tasting chili with an appealing selection of help-yourself toppings.

Two richly flavored, crowd-pleasing new chili recipes from the Pace Picante Sauce Test Kitchens will help keep the fans cheering through the final play. Both can be made in short order on the morning of the big game, or made in advance and reheated. They only improve with "age."

Beef and Bacon SuperChili teams the crowd-pleasing flavors of ground beef and bacon with colorful vegetables, beans, picante sauce and Lone Star State seasonings for a hearty, satisfying meal-in-a-bowl that's easy to prepare and serve.

Touchdown Turkey Chili is a far-from-the-ordinary bowlful that simmers ground turkey, vegetables, picante sauce and seasonings with a touch of cinnamon for a spicy, satisfying dinnertime treat with super-special taste appeal.

With either or both chilies, pass your favorite crusty bread, corn bread, rolls, tortillas or crackers and you've got a winning combination that's sure to rate raves.

BEEF AND BACON SUPERCHILI

½ pound sliced bacon, chopped
1 pound lean ground beef
1½ cups coarsely chopped onion
1 large green pepper, coarsely chopped
1 can (28 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped
1 can (16 ounces) pinto beans, undrained
1 cup Pace Picante Sauce
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 teaspoon salt
Optional toppings: Sour cream, shredded cheddar cheese, chopped onion, chopped cilantro

In large saucepan, cook bacon over medium-low heat, stirring frequently, until crisp. Remove to paper towels with slotted spoon. Pour off all but about 1 tablespoon drippings. In drippings, brown ground beef with onion and green pepper; drain. Add reserved bacon and remaining ingredients except optional toppings; mix well.

Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 20 minutes. Ladle into bowls; top as desired and serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings, about 8 cups chili.

TOUCHDOWN TURKEY CHILI

1 pound ground turkey
2 cups coarsely chopped onions
3 garlic cloves, minced
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 tablespoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon salt
¼ to ½ teaspoon cinnamon, as desired
1 can (28 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained, coarsely chopped
1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans, rinsed and drained
1 cup Pace Picante Sauce
1 can (about 8 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained
1 green pepper, cut into ½-inch pieces
1 red bell pepper, cut into ½-inch pieces
Toppings: Sour cream, chopped cilantro, shredded cheddar cheese

In large saucepan, cook and stir turkey, onion and garlic in oil until turkey is no longer pink. Sprinkle with cumin, chili powder, salt and cinnamon; mix well.

Add tomatoes, beans and picante sauce. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add corn and peppers; cover and continue to simmer 15 minutes. Ladle into bowls; top as desired and serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 8 servings, about 9 cups chili.

PACE PICANTE SAUCE TEST KITCHENS

Party-perfect: Fuel armchair athletes at halftime with Beef and Bacon SuperChili. It teams ground beef, bacon, chili vegetables and Texas-style seasonings with picante sauce.

Pick pasta for meals in minutes

For great-tasting, light and healthy meals in minutes, few foods hold a candle to pasta. High in energy-giving complex carbohydrates and low in fat, pasta is just about perfect for the lighter way we're trying to eat today.

Versatile and fast to fix, with a "comforting" texture no other food can match, it's always a favorite as a main dish or side dish. Speed the way to great pasta dinners with two new recipes created for taste — and nutrition-conscious cooks by home economists at Uncle Ben's, Inc.

COUNTRY STYLE PASTA PRIMAVERA

1 package (4.9 ounces) Uncle Ben's Country Inn Recipes Fettuccine Alfredo
1 cup water
1 cup milk
2½ cups Italian style frozen vegetables
1½ to 3 teaspoons parsley seasoning blend, as desired
2 teaspoons grated parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ cup diced tomato
1 tablespoon chopped dry roasted peanuts
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
Chopped fresh basil or parsley (optional)

In 1½-quart or 2-liter microwave bowl, combine pasta, contents of seasoning packet, water, milk, frozen vegetables, seasoning blend, 1 teaspoon of the cheese and garlic salt; mix well. Cook in microwave oven on HIGH (full power) for 8 to 10 minutes; stir well. Continue cooking on HIGH for 3 to 5 minutes.

Remove from microwave oven; cover and let stand 3 to 5 minutes or until desired consistency. Stir in tomatoes; sprinkle with remaining 1 teaspoon cheese and peanuts. Season with salt and pepper to taste and garnish with basil, if desired. Makes 2 main dish servings.

GARLIC RIGATONI WITH TOMATO, OLIVES AND HERBS

1 package (5.0 ounces) Uncle Ben's Country Inn Recipes Creamy Garlic Pasta
1 cup water
1 cup milk
1 large tomato, chopped
½ cup sliced ripe olives
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 tablespoons thinly sliced fresh basil leaves
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Cook pasta with water and milk according to package directions. In medium skillet, combine tomato, olives and oil; cook and stir over medium heat 3 to 5 minutes. Add basil, parsley, salt and pepper; mix well. Stir pasta into tomato mixture; mix well. Makes 4 to 6 side dish servings.

Per serving: Calories 153 Fat 6 g (35 percent calories from fat) Protein 5 g Sodium 518 mg Carbohydrate 20 g

Association makes food-related predictions for 1994

For the past four years, the Associated Food Dealers of Michigan has issued food-related predictions for the coming year. According to Joe Sarafa, AFD executive director, here are the changes you'll see in your local grocery store in 1994:

■ Stores will cease "Everyday Low Prices." Over the past year some supermarket chains have gone to a system of offering consistently low prices on popular products. AFD predicts "everyday low prices" will fail to catch on in Michigan where consumers are accustomed to sales and specials, and unwilling to believe or accept the benefits of prices retailers say are consistently low.

■ Coupon values will increase.

■ Food prices will climb. The AFD believes we have seen the bottom for food prices and costs will climb in 1994. Ten years ago a two-liter bottle of soft drink cost $1.89. Today the sale price is 89 cents or less.

■ Warehouse clubs will fall. The AFD has long maintained that warehouse clubs will have difficulty surviving in Michigan. Pace Membership Warehouse was recently sold and Source Club closed its doors almost as soon as they opened. With a saturated market and the high costs of operation, the shake out is not over yet.

■ Convenience stores will fall. Convenience stores will go out of business in 1994 at record levels, particularly in urban areas where population is declining. Many of these stores are unsuccessfully attempting to compete with supermarkets, while others will be hurt by gas stations that provide many of the same services.

■ Packages will change more than products. In an attempt to be more appealing, food manufacturers will introduce new sizes, shapes and looks of many product packages in 1994. Expect bonus packs and larger sizes.

■ Consumers will charge on. Credit card usage will go through the roof at supermarkets and convenience stores across the state.

■ Red meat sales will slide. Although there are indications that beef and other red meat is becoming more popular in many Michigan restaurants, grocery sales of red meat in general, and beef sales in particular, will continue on a four-year downtrend. Poultry and fish will pick up the slack, as will prepared and ready-to-eat foods.

MHSAA creates turmoil with new decision on depth

Sports and statistics are so woven together, tightly bound, that people often mistakenly believe that the former cannot survive without the latter.

Untrue.

If you are familiar with sports at all, you know statistics do not always tell the story. Stats are portions only; people provide the story.

That is why I cannot accept all the facts and figures tossed about by the Michigan High School Athletic Association's executive director, Jack Roberts, regarding the mid-year recommendation to change the minimum depth for starts in swim meets.

Roberts and the MHSAA "recommended" to member schools that all starts off blocks at competitive meets be in at least five feet of water. Until that decree (or whatever the MHSAA wants to call it), the minimum depth was four feet.

Now understand — you don't just go get out the hose and pump another foot of water into the pool. Nor do you just pull out the starting blocks and move 'em around to where it's deep enough.

Here's the reality of the situation: Only four of the 11 teams in the Western Lakes Activities Association compete in pools that meet the MHSAA's new requirements.

And you know what? Those four — Plymouth Salem, Westland John Glenn, Livonia Churchill and Livonia Stevenson (the Spartans compete at Livonia Bentley) — might not be able to keep pace with the MHSAA, either.

How deep will it go?

That's because there's a good chance the depth requirement could change again. Two meters (six feet, seven inches) is the most common figure now tossed about.

Or maybe it'll be seven feet. Or eight. Who knows? Certainly not the MHSAA — it was just four years ago that the mandate was pushed through changing the minimum depth from three and a half feet to four.

That caused a major problem for lots of schools. Farmington's schools did not host a swim meet whenever possible, because any competitions at North, Harrison or Farmington had to have in-the-water starts, pushing off the wall.

Ever seen a 400-yard relay with four swimmers starting in the water? It's not the stuff Olympic dreams are made of.

So. Now we come to Roberts' reasons. Why the change?

"We felt we were slipping behind what a prudent high school association should do," he explained. And what's that mean? Well, according to Roberts:

- First, swimming has more catastrophic (defined as paralyzing) injuries than any other high school sport;
- Second, the result of those injuries is (surprise!) a lot of lawsuits;
- Third, because of the first two, all sorts of state agencies are getting in their two cents worth of opinion.

Back to the statistical game. How many catastrophic injuries have there been in swimming?

Numbers twisted

Roberts said there have been at least two and as many as four swimmers injured in the state in the past 15 years while diving into pools. In football, Roberts said there were two catastrophic injuries this past season, "but there were none in my previous seven years here."

Is that an accurate statistic? Not according to every swim coach from the Observer area questioned. "In my 13 years here, I have never had an accident off a starting block," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman. "Never."

Farmington coach Ross Bandy extended that viewpoint. "Nationwide, I have never, during a meet, heard of a kid suffering an injury" while diving.

Even Roberts wouldn't argue. He could only recall one of the diving accidents, and that involved horseplay on the deck. It had nothing to do with the swim team.

"It is not unsafe for trained persons to correctly use starting blocks," Roberts said. "The problem is incorrect use. That's where the injuries occur."

That means, because the use of blocks cannot be completely policed, the pool depth must be changed? And that will prevent injury?

That's pretty hard to swallow.

As Bandy noted, "They're penalizing the wrong people. That's where I find fault with the system."

Roberts goes back to his book of facts to argue his point. Florida and Iowa, he insists, have already mandated all pools must be five feet in depth. The YMCA and YWCA are endorsing the same thing. And the state department of health is

Chiefs repel Raiders' rally

With leading scorer Matt Paupore struggling, Plymouth Canton had to search for other sources for scoring. The Chiefs found them in Ron Hunter and Ted Docks, but when Friday's game against North Farmington was on the line, Paupore clinched it.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton scoring ace Matt Paupore had (for him) an off night Friday, but he was on when it counted most.

The senior guard sank two free throws with six seconds remaining to keep the host Chiefs from going to overtime with a 53-51 victory over North Farmington.

"With Matt standing at the line, I knew both free throws were going in," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "So I told the kids, after Matt makes the shots, we're going to D-up, no fouls and no threes."

The Raiders never did get another shot, committing a traveling violation just before time expired and closing the door on a fourth-quarter comeback by North.

Both teams are 1-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Canton improved to 4-4 overall, but the Raiders slipped to 2-5.

Paupore, averaging nearly 25 points a game, scored just eight and shot 2-of-17 from the floor. He made one three and was 3-of-4 at the line.

"We run a funny zone; we always play that against Canton," North coach Tom Negoshian said of the varied 2-1-2 defense. "We were manning with Paupore and trying to play zone with four kids and trying to hide it as much as we could. But their other kids stepped up."

With Paupore not scoring as usual, 6-foot-2 sophomore Ron Hunter produced a varsity career-high 17 points — nine above his average — and junior point guard Ted Docks added 10.

Hunter and Docks made two three-point shots each, and the Chiefs still managed to hurt North from the perimeter with seven triples.

"Ron Hunter gets better every day," Van Wagoner said. "Every time I turn on the lights in the gym, he gets better.

"In my opinion, Ted Docks is one of the best point guards in the area. He's the glue that holds our team together."

North had three treys, two by senior guard Jon Pennala, who led the Raiders with 15 points. Senior post players Scot Lord and Evan Ellis scored 13 and 10, respectively.

Canton held the lead since late in the first quarter but never could shake the Raiders, who trailed 27-20 at halftime and 40-31 after three quarters.

Docks scored both of his triples in the first quarter to propel the Chiefs into a 13-3 lead.

"Since Matt was taken out of the game, we passed it around and looked for one good shot," Docks said. "They threw a zone on us, and we needed someone else to pick up the slack."

It looked as if the Chiefs, leading 46-36 in the finale, would coast to an uneventful victory, but North made a strong bid in the last 5½ minutes.

A goaltending call along with two free throws by Pennala began the rally. Lord had 11 of his points in the last quarter and scored the last seven for North, including a layup with 28 seconds left to tie (51-51).

Lord, who missed most of last season with a knee injury and had reconstructive surgery, started his fourth-quarter scoring with a breakaway, one-handed dunk.

"Scot Lord hasn't been able to get up over the rim since he had knee surgery," Negoshian said. "He was down in the dumps a couple weeks ago and said 'Coach, I don't think my knee is ever going to be the same.'

"The dunk in itself was not as exciting for the kids as much as it was to see he could come back from that."

In the end, it was Canton's game to win, with a contribution from Paupore, who was fouled on the perimeter and completed the one-and-one.

"We're real pleased with the win," Van Wagoner said. "The exciting thing for me is we can get better. This is a real fun, hard-working group of kids to coach."

Lady Crusaders gain overtime win

■ MADONNA

Defense took over for Madonna University's women's basketball team in overtime Thursday against visiting Tri-State University.

The Lady Crusaders forced six turnovers in the first 4½ minutes of the extra session, limiting Tri-State to two points in that span. That was enough to lift them to a 67-60 lead en route to a 69-62 triumph.

The win improved Madonna's record to 6-8. Tri-State is 7-9.

"We were quicker," said Madonna coach Bill Potter. "Our press beat them."

The Lady Crusaders trailed 58-56 with 25 seconds left in regulation when Jill Burt was fouled on a three-point attempt. Burt, who led Madonna with 18 points, converted 2-of-3 free throws to knot the score.

Burt and Rachel Emery (14 points, four steals) each had four points in the overtime. Shawn Bannon finished with 14 points, five assists and five steals for the Crusaders.

Tri-State got 22 points from Kim Brefka, 14 and 10 boards from Carmen Ham, and 12 points, 10 rebounds and five blocks from Jennifer Stikes.

Free throws were a telling factor: Tri-State was 8-of-14 (57 percent) to Madonna's 22-of-27 (81.5 percent).

■ TRI-STATE 121, MADONNA 80 (MEN): A horrendous shooting start doomed the Crusaders to their 18th loss in 19 games Wednesday at Tri-State.

Madonna trailed 59-25 at the half, thanks to 11-of-40 (27 percent) floor shooting. Tri-State converted 23-of-41 (56 percent) in the opening half.

The Crusaders, who attempted just 20 three-pointers, a low number for them (they made five, 25 percent), were better in the second half. But they still struggled defensively.

"Defense is the most difficult thing to get a group to learn," said Madonna coach Bill Sharpe. "They have to play defense. It isn't glamorous, it isn't fun, but they have to play it."

J. Dimes paced the Crusaders with 19 points and seven rebounds. Shawn Branum had 16 points and Mike Slone scored 14. Tri-State got 33 points from Chris Singpiel and 16 from Doug Targart. Each also grabbed nine boards. Chris Keil added 12 points.

For the game, Madonna was 31-of-83 from the field (37 percent) to Tri-State's 45-of-87 (51 percent).

Salem overpowers Churchill for its 7th-straight triumph

Really, it was just a matter of time. Livonia Churchill coach Tom Lang knew it.

His Chargers basketball team kept it close Friday against visiting Plymouth Salem, trailing just 10-7 after one quarter. But then . . .

"Then the kids started throwing the ball away and got very sloppy," Lang said. The result was a 17-6 second-quarter onslaught for the Rocks, followed by an even more lopsided second half in their 62-30 victory.

It was Salem's seventh-straight win against one loss. The Rocks are 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Churchill dipped to 1-7 overall, 0-2 in the WLAA.

"In the third quarter, their superior talent took over and they just buried us," said Lang. Indeed, Salem outscored the Chargers 23-7 in the third quarter.

James Head paced the Rocks with 16 points. Justin Markus had 10, Sanjeev Seth netted nine and James McDonald scored eight. Ten players scored for Salem.

Jeff Barry's eight points topped Churchill.

■ BASKETBALL

■ REDFORD CC 59, BROTHER RICE 48: Redford Catholic Central gave coach Bernie Holowicki his 599th career victory, holding on to the Catholic League Central Division victory on the road after leading 27-20 at halftime.

The Shamrocks are 4-3 overall, 2-1 in the Central Division.

CC led 37-30 after three quarters and assured the win with a 22-18 advantage in the fourth quarter.

Senior guard Andy Slankster led CC with 18 points and Mike Ridley added a season-high 14 points. Senior guard Andy Kummer contributed eight points.

Rice, 1-2 in the Central Division, was led by Brian Kalczynski's 17 points.

■ BORGESS 62, U-D JESUIT 59: Despite failing to score a basket in the final five minutes, Redford Bishop Borgess managed to hold off University of Detroit Jesuit Friday at U-D.

The win improved the Spartans' record to 2-1 in the Catholic League's Central Division; they are 4-4 overall. U-D is 5-3 overall, 2-1 in the Central.

Borgess' final basket came with five minutes left. For the next 3:15, the Spartans did not score a point, with leading scorer Charles Smith — he finished with 23 points — missing the front end of two one-and-one free throws. Their only points came on three free throws.

Gerald Ross made the last two with six seconds left after U-D had pulled to within a point with a basket five seconds earlier.

Ross finished with 10 points. Perry Robinson contributed 17 to the Borgess cause. Julian Bonner netted 12 for U-D.

■ ST. AGATHA 60, CONCEPTION 57: Redford St. Agatha tasted victory for the first time Friday night, rallying to beat Hamtramck Immaculate Conception at home.

The Aggies trailed 47-42 after three quarters before outscoring Immaculate Conception, 18-10, in the fourth quarter.

The Aggies are 1-7 overall, 1-2 in the Catholic League C-D Division.

Junior guard Bill Matti scored a game-high 21 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter. Freshman forward Mike Fenbert scored 15 points on five three-point shots, all in the second half. Sophomore center Mike Wilson added 10 points.

Guard Mike Weigle led Immaculate Conception with 20 points.

"It feels good to get the monkey off our backs," St. Agatha coach John Fenbert said. "The kids were uncertain because they hadn't had any success winning. This gives them confidence."

Spartans still 1st; CC rolls

Livonia Stevenson remained tied for first place in the Suburban High School Hockey League following Friday's 7-2 triumph over Bloomfield Hills Lahser in a game played at Edgar Arena.

The Spartans, who overcame early deficits of 1-0 and 2-1, tallied four unanswered goals in the final period to improve to 7-5 overall and 6-1 in the SHSHL.

Junior forward Kevin Berger paced the victorious Spartans with a hat track. Kyle McNeilance, Jason Wesley, Tony Ferrero and Brian Calka also scored goals.

Nathan Caladia and Doug DelVigna each had two assists, while Gino Gauci, McNeilance and Calka added one each.

On Wednesday, Berger and McNeilance each scored twice, lifting Stevenson to a 10-4 victory over Birmingham at Edgar.

Berger also added four assists for the Spartans, who took a 4-1 lead after one period and led 6-3 after two.

Gauci scored one goal with three assists for the Spartans and Caladia had a goal and two assists.

Ferrero, Dave Gorton, Brian Tarsin and Nick McCormick scored one goal each.

HOCKEY

■ WYANDOTTE 5, CHURCHILL 2: Livonia Churchill lost a Suburban Prep Hockey League game Wednesday despite outshooting Wyandotte 34-13 at Eddie Edgar Arena.

After a scoreless first period, Wyandotte scored five second period goals on five straight shots, including a pair of power-play goals, for a commanding 5-0 lead.

Mark Dalassandro and Tony Cusumano each scored two goals for the victorious Bears (6-1 SHSHL, 7-3-1 overall).

Mike Hall had a goal and an assist.

Dan Higham scored an unassisted goal at 12:21 of the third period to avoid the shutout for Churchill (5-2 SHSHL, 5-6 overall). Dave Higham scored a goal assisted by Dan Higham 22 seconds later.

■ FRANKLIN 5, DEXTER 2: Joe O'Connell scored a power-play and short-handed goal Friday, leading Livonia Franklin (5-5-1) to a non-league victory over host Dexter (6-5) at Yost Arena in Ann Arbor.

Kevin Bernard and Jeff Berger each added a goal and one assist for the Patriots. Josh Dersnah also scored a goal, while Ed Kruschka contributed two assists. Brad Dicks also collected an assist.

Goalie Pete Stasevich, working 1¼ periods, held Dexter scoreless before giving way to Brendon Frazier.

■ REDFORD CC 7, GABRIEL RICHARD 3: Junior Jason Couture and senior Jon Heady scored three goals each Thursday, allowing Redford Catholic Central to stay undefeated in nine games.

Chris Wegienka scored one goal and Greg Vaquera picked up four assists.

The Shamrocks three goalkeepers, Mike Brusseau, John Livingston and Jason Hubenschmidt, played one period each. Brusseau did not allow a goal in the first period and has allowed only one goal in Metro Hockey League games.

On Wednesday, the Shamrocks jumped to a 3-0 lead after two periods and beat Ann Arbor Pioneer, 6-2.

Couture and Vaquera scored two goals each and Mark Holdridge added one goal.

Brusseau held Pioneer scoreless during the first two periods before coach Gordie St. John brought in Livingston.

Patriots pummel Stevenson, 66-43

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Despite the frigid Arctic temperatures outside Friday, the Livonia Franklin boys basketball felt warm and snug inside the friendly confines of Walt Cosens Gymnasium.

The host Patriots scored a bundle of points the opening half, 40 to be exact, while leaving city rival Stevenson out in the cold en route to a convincing 66-43 triumph.

Both teams have identical 1-1 records in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

But Franklin is clearly the best team right now among the three Livonia public schools. The Patriots beat Livonia Churchill easily before the holiday break, 75-48. Meanwhile, Stevenson and Churchill have split.

Paul Kruschka, a 6-foot-2 senior forward, paced a balanced Franklin scoring attack with a game-high 22 points. Greg Maple, a scrappy 5-11 senior, added 16.

Other contributions came from starters Jason Maschke (12 points and 14 rebounds), Clemente Herrera (five assists) and Mark Baluk (seven points and eight rebounds).

BASKETBALL

Franklin, now 3-3 overall, dominated just about every category with the exception of three-pointers made (9-8 for Stevenson) and turnovers (14-13).

But the Patriots made life miserable for the ice-cold Spartans, who could connect on only 15 of 65 shots from the floor (23 percent).

"We shared the ball very well the whole game, the kids have been very unselfish," Franklin first-year coach Larry Jackson said. "Coming in we knew we had to play defense and take away everybody shooting near the three-point stripe.

"Stevenson has the green light to shoot the three-pointer, so you better be ready to guard them on the perimeter."

Stevenson's top scorer, senior forward Chris Chichila, was limited to seven points.

The only Spartan to score in double figures was guard Kevin Szczembara, who came off the bench to net 17. He made five three-pointers on six of 17 shooting.

Franklin led 40-22 at intermission and opened up a 25-point bulge early in the third quarter, only to have the Spartans make a mild run near the end of the period.

Brett Ferris' basket with 18 seconds left in the third cut the deficit to 47-36, but Franklin responded with 10 unanswered points to start the fourth quarter. Kruschka capped the surge by converting a three-point play after being fouled on a drive to the basket.

"We got within 11, then had five nice shots and couldn't score," said Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre, whose team is 1-5 overall. "Every time we had an opportunity on the offensive end, we'd put up an errant shot or get a pass deflected. Then it seemed Franklin would come out of the pile and get a layup on the other end.

"Part of it was good hustle on their part, but also our misfortune of not finishing the play. Our offense hurt us more tonight than our defense."

Franklin shot 27 of 60 on the evening for 45 percent.

The Patriots' lone sore spot was the third quarter where they were outscored 14-7. Franklin made only three of 13 from the field.

"Any game is going to have momentum swings," Jackson said. "During that quarter we turned the ball over and did not make good decisions. Maybe we thought the first half was too easy and we lost our concentration."

The Patriots play Tuesday at Dearborn Heights Annapolis in a non-leaguer Tuesday before facing WLAA contender Northville Friday at home.

"It's important that we keep playing better defense and do a better job of blocking out on the boards," Jackson said. "Tonight we felt it was important to get out and contest the shot. Right now we're playing far less zone (defense) than earlier in the year. If we're going to move to the next level, we're going to have to get better at everything."

Trojans start fast

Livonia Clarenceville, a state Class C quarter finalist the past two years in volleyball, is off to a 2-0 start in the Metro Conference.

Last week, the Trojans defeated Bloomfield Hills Kingswood (15-13, 15-13) and Willow Run (15-8, 15-2).

Wendy Roy led Clarenceville with 10 kills, while Jaime Zemke added six. Joanna Galuszka and Stacy Bishop-Rick contributed three each.

Chris Nunnery had five service aces, while setter Kristen Przegendza had 11 assists.

Coach Alisha Love also received strong serving and defensive efforts from Elizabeth Trybus, Pam Inzano and Nikki Courturier.

The Trojans are 8-0 overall.

VOLLEYBALL

Wayne Memorial falls

Senior Toby Cain had seven kills and five digs Wednesday, but it couldn't prevent host Wayne Memorial from losing to Dearborn High, 15-4, 15-12, in a Mega Conference (Red Division) match.

Junior Audrey Raines added four kills and three digs in a losing cause, while freshman setter Tammy Raines collected seven assists.

Wayne is 1-3 overall and 1-1 in the Mega.

Bowling return results in a 300

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

This story has a happy ending. It's about a bowler who quit the game at the age of 18.

Ray Miller had been raised in a bowling family. Everybody bowled, and his grandfather managed the old Oakwood Blue Jackets. At age 9, he was on his way to developing into one of the top All-Star bowlers, or so everyone thought.

Four leagues a week, hours of practice, competing at the top level, this was a case of burnout. Ray just plain quit bowling. But not forever.

Twelve years later he joined an every-other-Sunday mixed league at Country Lanes.

And now for the rest of the story.

Ray Miller has just bowled his first 300 game. It was last weekend in the "Farmington & Friends Mixed." Everything just went right in that game, even the 10 pin cooperated.

Miller, a Farmington Hills resident, works for GM at the Tech Center. He goes against the grain for today's contemporary bowler, has only one ball, a Blue Angle, and does not go out for any practice, just bowls once every two weeks, and is averaging well over 200.

■ The 41st Annual "Tri-City Women's Tournament" will be at Wayne Bowl beginning on March 5, running three weekends, March 5-6, 12-13 and 19-20. It is a handicap event, based on 90 percent from 220.

Singles, doubles and team competition will be each weekend. It is open to all sanctioned lady bowlers and entries close on Feb. 4. The sponsor for this program is Livonia Trophy and Screen Printing. Call 728-1670 for details.

Skating draws cult-like fans

BRAD EMONS

It was Thursday night — Joe Louis Arena — the U.S. Figure Skating Championships. I was sitting in the press section — 109, lower bowl.

Rudy Galindo of San Jose, Calif., had just turned in a stirring performance in the Senior Men's free skate. He covered his face and wept as the crowd gave him a standing ovation at center ice.

The moment moved me as well.

A rather rotund woman sitting in the next section over held up a curious sign: "This is my NFL." Maybe she was hoping the ABC cameras could pan a glimpse of her sign with the huge national TV audience riveted to the screens at home.

They tell me figure skating is the second most popular sport on television, second only to the National Football League.

As far as spectator sports, however, it must rank in the lower half.

JLA was only half-full Thursday night despite the immense talent of Brian Boitano and Scott Davis on display.

These guys are as good as Barry Sanders and Pat Swilling, but at $35 and $50 per pop, figure skating has its share of no shows as well.

The $38 ticket was only slightly higher than what Lions fans were forced to dole out ($38 per ticket) for Saturday's playoff game against the Packers at the Silverdome.

But unlike the NFL, figure skating doesn't have blackouts.

I blacked out momentarily, though, when Galindo was given surprisingly low marks from the judges. Now I know why they call it figure skating.

How do you figure?

It was also curious to see the national media types herd into the press section, en masse, when Boitano and Davis, the favorites, took to the ice.

And once they were finished, the scribes, like sheep, streamed out. They must have known something I didn't.

What they missed was one of the most inspirational skates of the night when Arn Nielsen of Kansas City, Mo., the last of 16 performers, vaulted all the way into third place in the final standings.

But it was not an ordinary day at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

The Nancy Kerrigan attack made it a media circus for the national press corps.

While everyone's attention turned to this unfortunate incident, I was trying to get a local angle on Livonia's Joe Mero, who was teamed with new partner Calla Urbanski in the Senior Pairs.

After turning in an interview request, I watched Mero and Urbanski perform their technical program.

Afterwards, I was sure the two skaters would return for a press conference.

But overrun and overshadowed by the events of the day surrounding the Kerrigan attack, not to mention beefed up security everywhere, my request for an interview with Mero fell on deaf ears.

The day was not totally lost, however.

I ventured through the snow storm and over to Cobo Arena to see the Hartsells of Westland, Steven and Danielle, compete in the Junior Pairs.

On Saturday, the Hartsells eventually finished fourth overall, while Mero and Urbanski missed out on their Olympic dreams by finishing seventh.

Maybe I picked the wrong day to catch my first glimpse of big-time figure skating. It was a major national event, but it seemed to be run in a minor league way.

In professional tennis, all competitors are required, after a 10-minute cooling period, to be available to the media.

Not so in figure skating.

"If they're so upset with their performance, they don't have to show up," explained one USFSA press officer. "The media is not allowed in the staging areas of the arenas, either."

Funny, but even guys as upset as Wayne Fontes have to face the music after ballgames.

Tragically, somebody who didn't belong in Cobo Arena during one of Kerrigan's practice sessions, had access.

TV crews always have carte blance, but not newspaper reporters.

Security was a joke when I visited the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills on Monday.

All fans had to do was buy a ticket, then rub shoulders with skaters as they walked in and around the facility.

Fans could actually reach over the boards and touch the skaters if they wanted to.

Try to gain entry to the Silverdome field area without the proper credentials when the World Cup comes to town this summer, and I'll guarantee a nearby swat team will be ready for action.

Figure skating is a beautiful sport, but a curious sport for sure. The serious fans, however, must belong to some cult.

But I have to admit, at least for one night, figure skating filled my NFL void.

But the NFL, as Jerry Glanville once said, also stands for: "Not For Long."

Risak

considering both a five-foot and two-meter depth requirement (in doing so, the department has opted to disregard a University of Nebraska study that concluded 3½ feet was adequate).

"I'm not quite sure why we're rating all this attention," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "We've proven we're a safe sport, that there's not that many injuries.

"It just doesn't seem to make a lot of sense."

Not just to you, Chuck. I refuse to accept Roberts' claims. Football less susceptible to serious injury than swimming? Even maize-and-blue football coach Gary Moeller would have a hard time accepting that rot.

It's a good thing that the Farmington school board has a 12-foot depth planned for the starting-block end of its new $600,000 pool at North Farmington, scheduled to open in mid-August.

Of course by then, swimming may be completely outlawed by the MHSAA.

Album published on third Monday

The Observer Newspapers Monthly Album is published the third Monday of each month and is reserved for current and former residents of Farmington, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Redford, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton.

Engagement and wedding announcements for all of the above communities should be submitted to the Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48336. Forms for engagement and wedding announcements are available at that office and at the offices at Schoolcraft and Levan in Livonia and at Wing and Deer (east of Main and south of Ann Arbor Trail) in downtown Plymouth.

Prospective brides and bridegrooms may also follow the example of published announcements in the Monthly Album. All announcements should include a daytime telephone number of a person who can verify information.

The next Monthly Album will be published on Monday, Feb. 21. Announcements for that publication should be submitted no later than Monday, Feb. 7, to the Farmington Observer. Announcements run on a space-available basis, and may appear in a later edition than the one for which the announcement was submitted.

Photos are published with engagement and wedding announcements, and may include the bride or bride-to-be by herself or the couple together. Photos should be of professional quality, preferably 5-by-7 inch black and white prints. Color photos will be accepted, but will not reproduce as well as black and white photos.

For more information, call Rose Butler at 477-5450 during weekday business hours.

Life, disappearance of a dog named Buster

BY SUZANNE GILL

Edith Ann's dog Buster may not be dead; even Lily Tomlin doesn't know for sure. Concerned children may want to repeat this reassuring thought when their baby-boomer parents gasp or even shed a tear during the opening minutes of "Edith Ann – A Few Pieces of the Puzzle," an animated special airing Tuesday, Jan. 18, on ABC.

The facts: Edith Ann, the precocious little girl Tomlin made famous (along with the unseen dog Buster) a generation ago on NBC's "Laugh-In," is seen in the special with a new dog, Hug the Pug, whom she describes as "Buster's pregnant widow." Buster, she says, was the victim of a drive-by shooting. There is a chalk outline of his body on the sidewalk.

But does this mean Buster is deceased, or is Edith Ann reaching into her fertile imagination? Stay tuned, says Tomlin, who plays the voice of Edith Ann in this first of two specials. Her long-time collaborator, Jane Wagner, wrote the scripts.

"Maybe we didn't kill Buster," says Tomlin, tantalizing. "Maybe he'll turn up. I don't know, I can't tell you. I didn't write it. Jane did. But yes, she and I argued a long time about killing Buster," she says with a laugh. "I liked the idea of the drive-by very much, but I wasn't sure about being finished with Buster." She pauses, then adds firmly, "ABC will just have to give us a series."

Fox features Henry Winkler as a radio talk show personality in "Monty" on Tuesdays.

JAN 17

For Morgan, Matthau, third time's a charm

By Sara Bennett

Harry Morgan is pleased to be part of a trilogy of made-for-TV movies that doesn't model itself after real-life events. "Incident in a Small Town," airing Sunday, Jan. 23, on CBS, is the third film featuring Morgan as Judge Stoddard Bell and Walter Matthau as Harmon Cobb, two small-town lawyers who team up to solve a murder.

Morgan became a household name after starring in the "Dragnet" and "M*A*S*H" series. He and Matthau pick up where they left off in "Against Her Will: An Incident in Baltimore," from 1992, and before that, in "The Incident," from 1990, which won an Emmy Award.

Although the characters have undergone changes over the course of the three films, one thing remains constant: Stepping away from fact-based dramas that only bring news items to life is still the way to go.

"(The problem with fact-based movies is that) They sort of tell you about it before it commences, because it is based on real people," says Morgan. "It takes some of the charm, some of the mystery out of the project when it unfolds."

Not so in the latest "Incident" film. There are twists and turns at every corner, making the murder ultimately more believable. The whole story, in fact, set in 1953, has an "everyday" feel to it - viewers will be able to relate to the events more easily than dramatizations.

A different side of Judge Bell is presented in the form of his daughter, Lily Bell, played by Stephanie Zimbalist. Bell's family wasn't a factor in the first two films, but in "Incident in a Small Town," his previously estranged family becomes everything.

About to get herself tangled in a legal mess, Lily, an unwed mother, asks the Judge, now a partner, to come to her home in Illinois, were she is raising her 13-year-old son, John (Nick Stahl). John's father Frank (David Erman) has waltzed back onto the scene, and he'll take whatever attention he can get out of Lily and/or John.

Lily clearly isn't interested because of the couple's turbulent past, but John, who has never met his father, is thrilled with the idea of spending time with his old man.

As expected, Frank's violent nature resurfaces, and he attacts Lily.

Someone then kills Frank to defend Lily. She may indeed be the killer - after all, she resents the way he treated her 13 years earlier, and he certainly fails to make amends now. A series of twists, however, finds Judge Bell as the defendant in the case. But the defendants don't end there.

The third film marks Zimbalist's debut in the story, as well as her acting debut with Morgan.

"I liked particularly the relationship with Stephanie," he says. "I never had met her even. She's a wonderful girl to work with."

The changes in Judge Bell's relationship with Harmon are easy to spot. Bell is more vulnerable because the crisis concerns his own family - he's more willing to hear Cobb out.

"He sort of was leading me around, giving orders and directions, whereas in the other two I was clearly his boss," Morgan says. "When this picture ends you feel that the two guys are really very comfortable with one another, and you never really say that in the other two. We've come a long way since then. I think there's going to be a fourth film."

Off the set, Morgan and Matthau got to know each other pretty well too.

"I knew Walter rather casually," Morgan says. "I used to see him at Dick Widmark's Christmas parties, but I had never worked with him, always admired him though."

During the six weeks of filming, which took place outside Toronto, the veteran actors made the most of their time together.

"Walter and I rode out together and rode back together (from the set, about an hour outside Toronto), spent all day together out on the farm. And then when we got back to the hotel, we cleaned up, came down to the lobby and had dinner together. He's a delightful storyteller, and he never once repeated himself. He's just absolutely fascinating."

And if a fourth "Incident" film is made sometime down the road, Morgan awaits the call to do it.

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
Focus on future travel plans. Use your imagination in matters of the heart. Don't worry about the things you cannot control.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
You will have to keep an open mind when discussing an unusual subject with a friend. Your creative powers will impress those around you.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Things never seem to go quite the way you planned, but it all works out in the end. Show your appreciation of friends and loved ones.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
You may have to seek an outside source for help with financial matters. Using a budget is a good idea, but only if you really follow it.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
When going into a new situation it would be to your benefit to put your insecurities aside. You may not have as much control as you would like.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
You must be direct but tactful with a loved one. Outdoor activities should probably be put on hold for a while. Watch your tone with a friend.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
You should probably take a second look at a problem you thought was solved. Someone may not be as truthful as you originally thought.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
It will not get any easier for you for a while, but these tough times will lead to something quite wonderful in the end. Remember to count your blessings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
Financial matters will finally take a turn for the better, and it is not a minute too soon. Good news involving family is on the way.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
You may have to adjust your schedule to accommodate others. Don't worry; it may seem inconvenient right now, but it will turn out well.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
A long-standing debt needs to be taken seriously. Look at the many positive aspects of yourself and work on the things that are not up to par.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
It is time for you to get rid of the old baggage you have been carrying around. You are a worthwhile person with a purpose. Do something about it.

SOAP WORLD

Lucci, Gellar make the best of a tough story

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I have watched "All My Children" since the day it began. I really enjoyed it until they brought the character Kendall (Sarah Michelle Gellar) on to the show. I think the whole story line about Erica's rape is awful.

The rape supposedly took place before Erica (Susan Lucci) was even brought onto "AMC." It doesn't make any sense. The story line has really ruined the integrity of the show. –M.A. Brenton, Cranbrook, British Columbia.

Dear Reader: Many "AMC" fans were outraged by Erica's rape. Viewers have also noticed the many inconsistencies in the story, including the fact that one week Kendall was 17 and the next she was 23.

Rape is never a comfortable thing to deal with, but for the most part, Lucci has done a wonderful job with what she has been given.

Gellar has taken the task of portraying the complicated and manipulative Kendall to the hilt. This expressive young actress could someday be a diva to be reckoned with.

Dear Candace: Are the Bells out to lunch? Or do the writers of the "The Bold and the Beautiful" really believe that all viewers belong to the Dense and Dull Club? Square-jawed willowy witch Sheila has done her dirty deed on every victim to cross her path. She even hates her own mother. Am I supposed to believe that now she has a soft side, a capacity for human love? She does not deserve my understanding, compassion or forgiveness.

And then we have Lauren Fenmore, a floor-pacing, determined, tight-lipped, tongue-tied, wimpy example of a heroine. Pity the poor Forrester family for this faint-hearted friend. Get real!

The message of this story line is that sick, manipulative women can and do become rich and powerful by bringing other people down. I remember when "B&B" was worth running home from work on my lunch break ... Not much longer, I'm afraid. –Rian O'Connor.

LET'S TALK

What does teen idol Luke Perry like to do when not in 'Beverly Hills'?

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am interested in knowing a little about Luke Perry from "Beverly Hills, 90210" and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer." Where is his home town? Could you tell me his interests? What other programs and movies has he been in? Is there an address where I can write to him? I am a big fan of his. –Samantha Shilling, Kerrville, Texas.

A: Perry grew up in Fredricktown, Ohio, where he realized at the age of 12 that he wanted to be an actor. Determined to make that dream a reality, he moved to Los Angeles to study acting after completing high school. He continued his training in New York while also performing in various stage productions and television commercials.

Perry's first break in television was the role of Ned Bates in the ABC daytime drama "Loving." He also played the recurring role of Kenny on "Another World," an NBC daytime drama.

Besides television, Luke has worked on two feature films in addition to "Buffy": "Terminal Bliss" and "Scorchers."

Some of his interests include fishing, woodwork, basketball and cooking.

You can write to him C/O Fox Broadcasting Company, 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

Luke Perry

Q: A few years ago there was a TV miniseries about the takeover of America by a foreign country (Russia, I think). One of the stars was Kris Kristofferson and I think Christine Lahti was in it also. What was the name of the miniseries? Who were the other stars? Is it available on videotape? –D.R., High Point, N.C.

A: The miniseries in question is "Amerika." It aired in seven parts in 1989 and starred Kristofferson and Lahti as well as Robert Urich and Cindy Pickett. The series is not available on video.

Q: I am a big fan of "Saved By the Bell: The College Years." I especially like Dustin Diamond who plays Screech. Where is he from? What other things has he been in? Where can I write to him? –J.P., Sioux City, Iowa.

A: Diamond is a native of San Jose, Calif., and began performing at the age of 8 as a human mannequin in a San Francisco department store. Soon afterward he appeared as a catalog model and in commercials, which took him to Los Angeles.

"I was hired for my first commercial on Friday the 13th and now it's become my lucky day," Diamond says.

He made his television series debut as a guest star on "It's a Living," followed by a starring role on "Good Morning, Miss Bliss." He also has made guest appearances on "The Wonder Years" and "Hollywood Close-Ups."

His movie credits include "The Monster Squad," "The Price of Life," "Big Top Pee-Wee," "Purple People Eater" and "She's Out of Control." On stage he has performed in productions of "Sleeping Beauty," "The Nutcracker" and "The Magic Carousel."

You can write to him C/O "Saved By the Bell: The College Years," Sunset-Gower Studios, 1438 N. Gower, Box 27, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Send questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., TV Data Technologies, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

CABLE

Golden Globes and ACE Awards this week

BY JOHN CROOK

Some view the Golden Globe Awards as precursors to the Oscars; others, as prizes awarded to the highest bidder. Whichever viewpoint prevails this year, the 51st awards presentation from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association will be carried live by TBS on Saturday, Jan. 22.

The ACE Awards, which honor excellence in cable programming, airs exclusively on TNT Sunday, Jan. 16, after being carried on multiple cable services last year.

"American Justice" presents wrenching stories of people falsely accused and imprisoned, in an episode called "The Wrong Man," premiering Wednesday, Jan. 19, on A&E.

"Quincy" fans may want to explore the world of forensic pathology as featured in "Autopsy: Confessions of a Medical Examiner," a special premiering Monday, Jan. 17, on HBO.

Crystal Gayle visits "The Statler Bros. Show" Saturday on The Nashville Network.

Three comic shorts comprise "Chaplin: Flickering Images," a special premiering Sunday on Showtime as a companion piece to the 1992 Robert Downey Jr. theatrical film "Chaplin."

Mike Nelson and his robot friends Tom Servo and Crow of "Mystery Science Theater 3000" make mincemeat of "Village of the Giants," Saturday on Comedy Central.

Dan Rather anchors "48 Hours," the hour-long CBS newsmagazine airing on Wednesdays.
