Mom: Son left to fend for self

The ice storm that hit the area last week has one woman angry. She said a school bus driver sent her child on a two-mile walk because of icy roads.

BY KEVIN BROWN

Because a school bus couldn't navigate wet, icy roads Thursday, a Canton woman said, her 8-year-old son was let off the bus and told to walk the two miles home.

She's unhappy with the action. Deborah Havlik said she wants to make a formal complaint to the Plymouth-Canton Schools board of education, as she wasn's notified about the situation.

Her son and an 8-year-old neighbor boy were dropped off just west of Beck, she said.

"They would have had to cross Ridge," she said, to get to their homes on Hanford Road, adding that darkness was approaching. "There are no street lights, it was pouring rain, and they were sent off on their own," she said.

By 6:30 p.m., she got a call from the parents of her son's classmate. Havlik said her neighbor's husband went to pick up the boys.

"I don't have a problem with the bus not being able to go through. I do have a problem that they sent these children off on their own," she said.

"To me it was really poor judgment; it was irresponsible.

The school district's director of transportation and safety was una-vailable to comment Friday, as schools were closed. One employee of the transportation department said trucks and other vehicles were sent to places where buses were forced to stop, and kids were picked up and taken to their homes.

"My husband's called transportation twice; they called the board of education; they said they'd make a note of it - that's not good enough,'

Helping out: Many have contributed to the effort to help Marilyn Wiltsie, a Field Elementary School third-grade teacher.

Love surrounds ill teacher

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

There's no doubt who's rooting for Marilyn Wiltsie

"Her spirite are high and she has a support system that won't quit. That combination has been remarkable," said Field Elementary School principal Larry Miller.

Wiltsie may be hundreds of miles away at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute at Harvard University, but she's been in the thoughts and hearts of her co-workers at Field and within the Plymouth-Canton school Wiltsie, 39, is one of 12 people in the world diagnosed with monocy-toid B-cell low grade non-Hodgkins lymphoma. The rare form of cancer generally strikes the elderly.

Diagnosed last January, the third-grade teacher began treatment at the University of Michigan Hospitals and was then sent to Harvard for chemotherapy, radiation and a bone marrow transplant.

That transplant alone costs $80,000-$120,000, which insurance won't pay. "Insurance doesn't want to pay because they say it's experi-mental," said Sonia Culver, a secretary at Field who organized fund-raisers to help Wiltsie, who is unmarried, and her parents who rented an apartment in Boston to stay nearby while their daughter is undergoing

Altogether, fund-raising efforts have raised $4,072 from a raffle and $2,905 from school employees' direct donations. Culver began her efforts by sending district employees a let-ter asking for help. The next step was a raffle Jan. 17 in which Culver contacted businesses and individuals to donate items for the event

"Everything given away on the raffle was given from the communi-ty. We want to thank them for their

Anyone who would like to donate to help Wiltsie may write checks to Field Elementary School, 1000 S. Haggerty, Canton.

City weighs options on railroad traffic delays

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

The city of Plymouth legal department is close to wrapping up a review of options on dealing with trains that block street crossings for five minutes

The review follows Gov. John Engler's signing of a bill earlier this month that increased the time trains could legally block those crossings, from five to seven minutes.

City officials and state Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, fought the legislation, saying long crossing blockages hamper emergency vehicle access to problems and cause inconvenience for City attorney Ron Lowe said the city got a response from the governor's office on his approval of the legislation. "They said they did carefully consider it, but in the end we were but one community objecting to the signing of the bill," Lowe said.

"They said there was strong support in the House and Senate and from a number of groups in the state," he added.

Legislators accepted the railroads' argument that Michigan regulates railroads more than other states, and that hampers business.

At the Jan. 17 city commission meeting, Lowe outlined four options the city legal department and the city manager would consider, for writing tickets against trains that block

Manufacturer moves headquarters to Canton

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

Gil-Mar Manufacturing, a defense contractor and automotive parts manufacturing firm, is moving its headquarters to Canton from Farmington Hills as part of a $3-million expansion project.

We're the largest manufacturer of tank track components,' said Bob Zulker, plant manager.

With approval from the township board of trustees for a 12year tax abatement following a public hearing Tuesday, the company is moving its entire operations from the Oakland County community to three vacant acres on Ronda Drive, where it already Thirty-eight employees work in the Farmington Hills location. Fifteen employees work in the Canton facilities and Zulker said he expects that 12 additional jobs will be created due to a new contract from Ford Motor Co. New jobs are expected to pay $12.82 per hour.

'There are some people who will not make that drive, and that creates some job openings," Zulker said, referring to the Farmington Hills employees.

The new corporate headquarters will be situated between the existing Gil-Mar buildings. The company is planning to build an additional 50,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space.

'We've already purchased equipment for the new building,' Zulker said.

Despite a decrease in defense work, Zulker told township officials that Gil-Mar's business has grown. "We have grown faster than our expectations."

The original recommendation was to give a tax abatement to Gil-Mar for nine years. Twelve years is the maximum available. The company already has a tax abatement on one of its existing buildings that is due to expire in 2001. Gil-Mar did not have a tax abatement in Farmington Hills, which generally does not offer tax

"I, for one, would like to give them 12 years," said trustee Phil LaJoy, adding that their move from another community, as well as the potential for new jobs and business potential in Canton, would justify the maximum number of years.

Gil-Mar makes tracks for tanks that are generally designed for 2,000 miles. In the rough terrain of the 1991 Desert Storm effort in the Persian Gulf, the tracks lasted 600 miles. For its work, the company received a national award for outstanding performance, Zulker said.

Students learn to resolve conflicts

To learn ways to deal with conflict, students from Central Middle School are participating in a peer mediation program.

More than 40 students in grades six, seven and eight were trained this school year to serve as peer mediators at the school.

Led by Renee Eley, Central Middle School counselor, and Lynn Sandmann, Central Middle School teacher, the program taught students how to deal with conflict without resorting to fighting and violence. The program, which began last year, was continued this year.

Other staff members at Central who are involved in the program are Fred Crissey, Joan Davis, Andrea Dubrinsky, Sandra Fuller and Karen Janer-Hanson.

During the training, students learned the definitions of conflict, denial and confrontation. Students gained skills in problem solving, decision making, critical thinking and listening. By learning how to see both sides of a dispute, the mediators learned to look beyond the emotions that typically prevent understanding an opposite point of view.

Students participated in brainstorming sessions to consider such questions as, "What are things that prevent people from resolving conflicts?" As a part of the training, students participated in role playing exercises to practice how various conflicts could be solved.

Students may choose to seek out a peer mediator to assist in solving a conflict or may be referred by another student, teacher, counselor, administrator or classroom aide. Some of the conflicts peer mediators help students solve involve rumors, teasing, fighting, gossiping, namecalling and lying.

Eighth-grader Adam Covington, a second-year peer mediator. believes the peer-mediation program helps other students, as well

"This program has given me a boost in my life," he said. "People see me as someone who stands out and can help them with their problems.'

According to Covington, peer mediators serve as guides to help direct students when they are trying to solve a conflict.

'We are there to guide students along," he said. "The students are usually able to solve the problem on their own.

Peer mediators encourage students to discuss differences, respect individual needs and make decisions that lead to healthy solutions to problems.

The peer mediators visited all of the homerooms in the school recently to talk to students about the program. One of the main points they stressed was that using the peer mediation program is completely confidential.

For more information on the peer mediation program, call Renee Eley at 451-6580.

As a clergyman, Rev. Thomas Eggebeen has walked through both the valley of the living and the near-dead.

The suffering person grabs you by the collar and says, 'Please help me die'," Eggebeen said.

Call it fate or coincidence then, that the petition drive to attach the "Mercy Amendment" to the Michigan ban on physician-assisted suicide was launched Sunday at Eggebeen's St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

The church regularly holds a forum session Sunday mornings between scheduled church services to give congregation members an opportunity to explore and discuss current issues and the church's interactive role.

The stage for Dr. Jack Kevorkian's first scheduled public speech in three years was set there when Farmington Hills resident Janet Good, president of Hemlock of Michigan, who was originally scheduled as Sunday's speaker, relinquished her spot after learning Kevorkian was available.

"You're trying to raise me up to the level of hero," Kevorkian began. "There's no hero in this anymore. We are all in this together.'

Kevorkian was recently freed from an electronic tether imposed by Oakland Circuit Court.

Applause followed his repeated assertions that all people have a right to not suffer. He referred to Lansing legislators as "tyrants" and the "mentally infirm.

A person's right not to suffer when he is dying is as important as the right of freedom of speech and assembly when a person is healthy, Kevorkian said. He referenced President Franklin Roosevelt's "four freedoms" speech equating freedom from fear as being directly related to freedom from fear of suffering.

"The legislature has said, 'You must suffer'," Kevorkian said.

Geoffrey Feiger, Kevorkian's attorney, preceded Kevokian's speech. "This transcends religion," Feiger said. "It's a metter of choice, a constitutional right to be left alone. I know damn well that the government does not own my Feiger stressed that the amendment is aimed at mentally competent adults, not minors.

Life and death decisions are made every day, Feiger added.

"Who gets a heart transpant? And, who doesn't? Who gets kidney dialysis? And who doesn't."

Joycelyn Koenig, of Redford, said that her grandfather committed suicide when he learned that he, like his two sisters before him, had cancer of the stomach. Because her mother-in-law had no living relatives, Koenig felt frustrated when she didn't have a legal say in her fate. Her mother-inlaw died in a nursing home. "I could have saved the taxpayers a lot of money," Koenig said.

Added Koenig's son, Fabian
Lanzy of Redford: "I'd like to see the voters decide.

Carol Poenisch, daughter of Merian Frederick, who took her life in Kevorkian's Royal Oak apartment last October, said her mother was single-mindedly focused on suicide as soon as she learned she had ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease. But, Frederick also grappled with who would assume care of a mentally retarded daughter who lived at home. Poenisch now does.

Youth Chorale offers kids something to sing about

BY JULIE BROWN STAFF WRITER

Young singers looking for a place to perform don't have to travel far. The Plymouth Youth Chorale, formed in September 1992, provides a perfect outlet for those talents.

"We're trying to promote musicianship and develop their own skills as a musician," said Susan Lindquist of Plymouth Township, one of the directors. The group, which now has 25 singers, is open to young people ages 9-14 with unchanged voices.

"So it remains a treble choir, a children's choir," Lindquist said of the group. Members come from Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Northville, Dearborn and Novi. Membership isn't restricted to those from certain communities.

Other directors are Margarete Thomsen and Richard Sneider. All three directors are music educators and church musicians.

Weekly rehearsals are 5:30-7 p.m. Mondays at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 1160 Penniman, in Plymouth, although the youth chorale isn't church-affiliated. Members come from public and private schools.

"It's open to anyone," said Lindquist, who has an 11-yearold daughter in the group. Open auditions are being scheduled; for audition information, call 451-

Boys and girls perform fine chorale literature written or arranged for children. They don't perform music from "Aladdin" or other popular films. Some, but not all, of the music has a religious orientation. Some is modern, "but not modern in the sense of what you hear on the radio."

"It's gotten around mostly by word of mouth," she said of the membership. About 25 percent of the membership is male, "which is pretty good. Most choirs of our situation are not that lucky." The boys' voices have an incredible beautiful quality, she said.

Members typically do four concerts during a season, which corresponds with the school year. They recently performed with the concert choir at Northville High School during two Christmas concert performances.

Last year, Plymouth Youth Chorale members sang in the lobby for a Plymouth Community Chorus spring concert, welcoming music-lovers to the concert.

The group got its start when organizers realized churches and schools offered only so much in terms of musical opportunities for youngsters. Other communities have organized youth chorales. Lindquist said, so organizers decided to give it a go.

Andrew Smith Jr. recalls watching his father in the old Canton Township hall at Cherry Hill and Canton Center roads counting votes in the 1940s and "I can remember going with him and it was a small, wooden building," Smith said, recalling his father, Andrew G. Smith Sr., who died in Florida Jan 23.

Andrew G. Smith Sr. was Canton Township clerk for about 17 years in the 1940s and 1950s. Yet he's remembered for the buildings he constructed in Canton and Plymouth under the business name of A.J. Smith & Sons.

"I was 12 years old when he formed the company and put "sons" in the name," recalled Andrew Jr., who never went into the construction business. When Andrew Sr. was about 65 years old, business was changed to

Smith was well-known for the schools and other commercial buildings he constructed. Among the more notable buildings were the Walker and Truesdell schools, both of which no longer exist. He also built a school for St. Mary's Church in Plymouth. That's not to mention a number of car dealerships.

Smith, who would have turned 101 March 11, was born and raised in Canton. His family owned a farm, which still stands on Lilley Road. Smith took over the family farm at age 15 when his father died. He stayed in farming until he was about 25 and then went into building contracting, Andrew Jr. said.

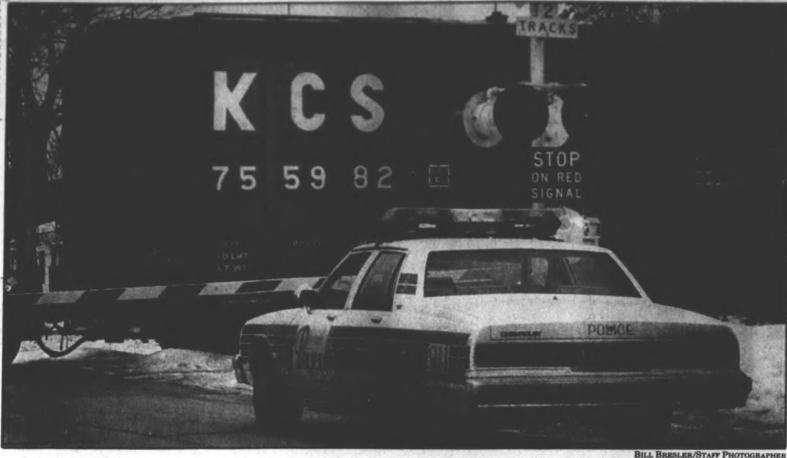

A photograph of Smith's wife's house on Michigan Avenue then called Plank Road - remains in the Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village. When the road went through, the house, which sat in the right-of-way, had to be cut in half, Andrew Jr. said.

Smith was a member of the Wayne Rotary and helped many a Boy Scout troop with carpentry skills, family members said.

Smith was buried in Sheldon Cemetery with his ancestors. His granddaughter, Linda, said that family members gathered round following the funeral to talk of the good times they had with Smith.

People who met him just fell in love with him. He was a unique, fun-loving person," Linda said. "There wasn't a single person who could say a bad word about him. He had a sense of humor until the end."

"We've eliminated writing tickets under the state statute," Lowe said, and eliminated the option of creating a city ordinance "that will reflect the current state law (seven minutes).

That leaves the options of writing tickets under the state's uniform traffic code, which could retain the five-minute provision, or writing tickets under the current city ordinance, which also specifies five minutes.

Writing tickets under that current ordinance could be the best way to go, Lowe said, as any change in how the city writes tickets against CSX for crossing delays could suggest a weakness in the city's position related to the expected to stay in Boston about another month for checkups. But Culver says all reports so far about Wiltsie's progress are positive. Her bone marrow was removed in November and replaced Jan. 14. She had been placed in isolation to prevent infection.

"They are amazed with her," Culver said, referring to physicians working with Wiltsie. "They expected her to run a temperature, she never did. They are using her as a case study."

For sure, doctors say Wiltsie will be able to keep her dog, Shadow, but her habitat for frogs of a variety of species - for which she won a Detroit News science award in her backyard will have to go, Culver said.

Without a doubt, Wiltsie's goal is to return to Field, where the 40-45 employees will welcome her with open arms. "Her spirits are so good," Culver said. "I really think it had a lot to do with this building. We are a family. No one will give up on her."

Proposal A

Vacation homes get taxed more

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Q. I have a northern Michigan summer home as well as one in town. Will the cut in property taxes affect both

A. No, only "your principal le-gal residence," according to the state treasury department. Your principal residence will be taxed at six mills if Proposal A passes March 15, and at 12 mills if it doesn't. All non-homestead property will be taxed at 24 mills. Q. How will the local treasurer know the difference? A. The state treasury department will mail you a form in which you get to choose. Forms are due out in a couple of weeks. You have until March 1 to return it to the city or township in which the property is located.

"Vacation homes and income property which you do not occupy as your principal residence may not be claimed," says the treasury notice.

Q. Suppose I claim both homes to get the six mill rate.

How can they catch me?

A. We have calls into Lansing to determine that. Meanwhile, if you do get caught in a false claim, you can be ordered to pay (1) the extra 12 or 18 mills, (2) interest at one percent above the current prime rate, and (3) a penalty at 5 percent per month of the due tax to a maximum of 50 percent.

Q. We're empty nesters. We have just a small home in town where I work but a much larger lakefront home up north. Can I declare the lakefront home as my principal legal residence?

A. treasury says to use the one that is your "domicile" — that is, 'your principal residence, the place you intend to return to whenever you go away. You can have only one domicile at a time."

Q. How much paperwork is there to fill out to get my property tax cut? A. Very little. Your name(s) and address, social security number(s) and the tax identification number of the property. Q. I live in a condo. Can I get the lower rate, too?

A. Yes. The treasury form says: "If you own and live in a unit in a multiple-unit dwelling or in a multipurpose building, give the percentage of the entire building that your unit (your principal residence) occupies.

Another section of the form covers cooperative housing corpo-

Q. How do farmers fare in all of this?

A. Farmers always fare well. Not only the house but the entire farm gets the lower homestead tax rate. The city dweller who lives above his store gets a break only on the residential portion.

There are farmers, however, who have lakefront homes and commute to their farms the way a city person drives to work. We have no word on whether such agricultural property will be taxed as homestead.

Schools upgrade phone system

The Plymouth-Canton Com-munity Schools will have a new phone system on Feb. 21 as a part of the technology package voters approved in the 1991 bond project.

Between Feb. 11 and 20, Ameri-

tech will be activating and testing the new Centrex System. All schools will receive the new Centrex lines and will be able to communicate within the district using five-digit dialing.

Every building within the district will have a new main phone number. It will be answered electronically. When a call comes to a building's new main number, the caller will be offered the options of dialing a person's extension, di-aling the letters of a person's name, or reaching the building's secretary.

After Feb. 11, if a person dials the building's old number the person will receive a recorded message giving the new number. Ameritech directory assistance will also give out the new building telephone numbers when people call for information.

In addition to the new Centrex lines, Allen, Bird, Central, PCEP, East, Fiegel, Isbister, Pioneer, Smith, Truesdell, West, Hoben, Administration, Maintenance and Transportation/Curriculum buildings will receive new telephone equipment in February. All other buildings will receive new telephone equipment during the fall semester of the 1994-95 school

This new communication system also includes voice mail. The voice mail will be phased in throughout the district between now and the end of 1994.

From a classroom phone, teachers will be able to call 911, dial any classroom or office within the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, access their voice mail, transfer a call to another employee, or hold a three-way conference call with colleagues. Teachers will be able to use the volume control to prevent an internal call from ringing into an active classroom.

With the exception of 911, no outside calls can be made from the classroom phones. Outside calls coming into a classroom phone will go directly to voice mail so that class will not be interrupted.

While decreasing the costs of internal phone service, the system will provide district employees and the community with an effective, easy means of communication," said Donna Aveck, the district's director of computer services and instructional technology. "As with any new system, there will be a period of adjustment. But when we are fully operational, we'll have a phone system that serves well the communication needs of the staff and

Kindergarten signup planned

Kindergarten registration for the 1994-95 school year will be March 7-11 in the Plymouth-Canton Community School District. Children are eligible to attend kindergarten if they will be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1994.

To register, parents or guardians must bring the child's birth certificate, Social Security number and record of immunization to the elementary school in the child's current attendance area. If you are uncertain about the attendance area, call Ginnie Murdoch, pupil accountant, at 451-3137. Proof of residency in the district also is required.

Immunization includes four doses of diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus; three doses of the polio vaccine; and two doses of the measles, rubella and mumps vaccine. Additional doses of diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus and polio vaccines are required if the series was administered when the child was under 4 years old. Immuniza-tions are available from local physicians or can be obtained free at the Wayne County Health Department on Merri-man Road near Michigan Avenue in Wayne. The phone number for the Wayne County Health Department is (313) 467-3319.

Birth certificates for chil-dren born in Michigan can be obtained from the Office of the State Registrar and Center for Health Statistics, Michigan Department of Public Health, at 3423 North Logan St., Lansing 48909. The cost is $13. The phone number is (517) 335-

While registration can be made anytime during the year, parents are urged to register their children during this period to permit adequate plan-ning for fall kindergarten.

Students take PRIDE in reading

To promote reading for person-al pleasure, the staff of East Middle School has started a reading PRIDE (Put Reading Into the Day at East) program began at the school this fall. Students and staff read during the 20 minute PRIDE reading time daily. Students were expected to come to class prepared with appropriate reading material.

tered slightly to allow for the PRIDE reading time. By taking five minutes from each class period and adding them to the end of the school day, students now have 20 minutes of uninterrupted sustained silent reading. According to East principal Thomas Workman and assistant principal David Farquharson, PRIDE supports the 1986 "Nation at Risk" recommendation that students need to do more independent reading.

'Silent reading is one of the most important activities for reading development of students of all ages," Workman said. "Independent reading enhances reading comprehension, provides a wide range of background knowledge and promotes reading as a lifelong activity. In addition, independent reading accounts for at least one-third of vocabulary growth."

"Research shows that reading skills improve significantly if students read silently for at least 60 minutes a week," Farquharson commented. "Research also shows that the most effective independent reading programs are implemented on a school-wide ba-

Gardening discussed

A free workshop, "The Indoor Gardener," will be held 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Plymouth District Library, 223 S. Main. The workshop is being conducted by Wesley Berry Flowers.

This workshop will cover many aspects of indoor home gardening. A question and answer session will be conducted. A free gift will be given to those who attend.

Because of limited seating, reaervations are recommended. For reservations, call Lynn Lanstra at 1-800-628-9371.

Former drug addict undergoes a renaissance

emember the name David Mi-chael Holifield. No, not the heavyweight boxing champion, although he's the same height and weight, and his body is built like a weapon. David Michael Holifield is an ex-drug addict newly paroled from an Ohio prison. Presently he's living in a shelter for the homeless near Detroit's Trombly Adult Day High School on Harper and Van Dyke, where I'm developing a counseling program.

He won't be living there long. Impeccably groomed and dressed in a clean suit and tie, David walked into my counseling center one hot day last September and asked for my help. Technically, I wasn't supposed to give him any, because he already had a high school diploma. But after speaking with him at length and carefully sizing him up, I took him across the street to a clothing store called Off-the-Rack and asked the owner, Richard Jarrett, to give him a job. I had met Richard through his lifelong friend, Cliff Hatcher, the swift leadoff man on Wayne State University's Ohio and Penn Relays champion quartets I anchored in the 1950s.

Richard has a canny cautiousness born of six decades' worth of street experience. "Doc," he told me, "I'll hire this kid, but I confess I'm reluctant. He's a grenade that could explode any

Far from exploding, David became one of Richard's most dependable employees, getting paid $20 a day for guarding the racks of merchandise displayed on the street. In the meantime, I contacted MESC and other agencies, and friends such as Reggie Bradford of Detroit's Club West, Greg Blaney of

JOHN TELFORD

Vic Tanny's, and Spencer Haywood of the Haywood Anti-Drug Foundation to see if I could find David a better-paying job so he could move out of the shelter. Reggie, a University of Michigan All-American, was one of my allstate quarter-milers at Pershing High. And you'll recall that Spencer is the ex-NBA all-star whom I had coached in track.

When recently I brought Spencer to my school to speak, I introduced him to David. Spencer immediately offered him a foundation job that will include an apartment in the Brewster projects and a leased automobile. David's Detroit renaissance was under way.

Earlier, I had suggested that David write to seek employment in the Archer administration. When I read David's handwritten letter, I was pleased to note that he is as eloquent on paper as he is orally. After having a Trombly coop student type it for him, I wrote a cover letter assuring Archer's people that David, with his reformed reformer's controlled zeal, will make a perfect spokesman for the city's downtrodden legions of ex-cons. David hasn't heard from the mayor's staff yet, but he will. I also introduced him to Delta Saulsberry of Wayne State, who helped him get financial aid to attend Wayne. In the first session of his sociology class there, he scared his professor and fascinated some coed classmates with a self-introduction detailing his prison experiences. In many ways, he reminds me of a young Malcom X.

I have absolutely no doubt you'll frequently be hearing David Michael Holifield talk on television someday. Remember the name, and mark my words.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was an administrative assistant in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth - Canton district.

Superintendents must balance finance, public relations

QUESTION: I've been a high school teacher for over 27 years. During that time I have seen five superintendents in our district come and go. Now our district is looking for a new superintendent. What qualities do boards of education look for in a new candidate? Why didn't you ever become a superintendent? ANSWER: To set the stage, it is my belief a school superintendent has the toughest job of any job in any given community.

The superintendent is responsible from the time he/she wakes up for the safety of every child who gets on a school bus (the largest transportation system in any city); responsible for the largest lunch room in any city (let's hope no child gets ptomaine poisoning); responsible for gifted, special, college and non college bound students' education; the major caretaker of homeowners tax money, while constantly under the local newspaper's microscope; and always a possible target of the teacher's union, while working up to 70 hours a week.

It is a tough job and the most singular reason why I never sought to go beyond the assistant superintendent for instruction level. Indeed, the one time I was approached by a superintendent head hunter organization (and had my ego inflated), I put on my running shoes and ran six miles (I was a runner at that time) just to clear my head of such insanity.

It is a tough job. I worked with seven superintendents. Three were canned (contracts not renewed); one took a job in Washington (his time was up); one was reassigned to an embarrassing non-entity position (school farm director); another moved on to other challenges; one - a warm, kind man died right after teacher negotiations went into effect in 1965 (and I know grievances, arbitrations and contracts did him in); one, a survivor, is still a superintendent in the metropolitan Detroit suburban area.

You ask what qualities does a community look for in a new superintendent. The canned answer is they are looking for an educational and instructional leader. But there is more to the story. Let's look primarily at superintendents hired from outside the district. Most internally hired superintendents are well known commodities. Often, a new superintendent, hired from outside the district, is a contrast to the departing superintendent. Say the departing superintendent was outstanding at public relations and did an excellent PR job with the teachers and community for years.

His/her only weakness was in school finance, budgeting and money in general. The money issue was a low interest area: he/she wanted peace at any price (and the union knew this). He/she pleased many teachers and principals with purchases beyond the budget, while driving the business manager up Money gets tight, the board begins to ask tough questions. The business manager takes some heat (most have documentation of every penny requested and by whom). But put your money on the superintendent getting nailed. No different than the head coach of a professional football team. When things get bad, who goes? The head

Typically the above district, suffering from financial problems, will now go looking for a candidate with a strong business/financial record.

An opposite example can be made. Say the superintendent is great at school finance but is perceived (right or wrong) as an uncaring, cold person, who is poor at community and teacher/ administrator relations. Over the years, the superintendent starts becoming a bit paranoid of the teacher's union and some of the independent thinking administrators.

Anger leads to vindictive language, normal relationships begin to break down. The union leadership starts complaining about a negative environment (and leaks word to the board). The union is not necessarily the problem; that's their job! It is when the superintendent loses support of too many building administrators, the die may then be cast.

Many building administrators are highly respected by their parents, and many of these parents know board members personally. Indeed, there are administrators in some districts so powerful that they could get a superintendent fired. I've seen it happen.

My 30-plus years of experience tell me that the superintendents I've known are a unique breed. Most are extremely bright, have tremendous energy, are able to "juggle 10 problems at one time," a most resilient species, one who took the job for a challenge and not just the money.

Indeed, some superintendents I know, if they had entered the business or the industrial world rather than education, would now be in major corporate positions making five times what education pays.

There are many superintendents who are winners and a few who should have "chickened out" like I did. But my daddy didn't raise any dummies. I knew I had too sensitive a nature for the position.

Stress and anxiety can grip even the shapliest sunbather as they worry about their swimsuit riding up their backside, the bathing suit straps falling off their shoulder or the suit's french cut revealing too thick a thigh.

Carol Bross of Bloomfield Hills is out to fix all that. She maintains that women can and should feel great, poolside. At her shop, Beach Bound Ltd., you can create your own bathing suit, custom fit from a variety of designs, fabrics and patterns.

Bross, with the help of seamstress Theresia Oppermann of Rochester Hills, has been creating custom swimsuits and cover-ups for nine years. Locations in Farmington Hills and Rochester were recently consolidated to a centralized location at Adams Square in Birmingham, south of Maple.

"There are a lot of reasons why women can't buy swimsuits off the rack," Bross said. "And I've seen them all. Some people have scarring, others have undergone mastectomies or colostomies. Others are one size on

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO STAFF WRITER

OK. OK. You know it's cruisewear because it's got little nautical flags all over the front and it comes in red, white and blue.

Don't these designers have any imagination?

Sigrid Olsen does.

In 1984, the silk-screen print artist joined forces with a sales representaer to start a clothing c - and SEGRETS was born. (Their first collection of cotton sportswear was called SEGRETS, a combination

Today the collections are called Sigrid Olsen and Sigrid Olsen sport, with the motto Vision/Art/Clothing/

Olsen traveled to Livonia recently to raise money for the Angela Hospice at a fashion show of her latest collection at Jacobson's in the Laurel Park

Place Mall. "I stay close to my roots as a handweaver by relying on natural fibers such as textural linens, washed cottons and twills, shaping them in colors that run the gamut from ul-tranatural to vibrant," she said. "My prints are all one-of-a kind, inspired by my love of nature."

Olsen's primitive-looking prints appear on sweaters, suit lapels, vests, and dresses. She said she is one of few designers who actually design their own prints from scratch.

"All the forms we create as human beings really come from nature in one form or another," she said. "It's always been a big influence on me. I love going to the beach, the sand, the waves . . . The color of sand is really a million different colors. I take them and interpret them into whatever it is I'm doing.

Olsen found she could create decorative motifs for clothing the way primitive man decorated shields, jars or stools. She creates designs in thein pure state, reflecting the art in places like Jakarta, the Ivory Coast, Nepal and Morocco.

"The most common-asked question 't vou afraid out of ideas?' But, I'm so happy that I've found something that can keep up with the number of ideas I have!'

Olsen said the first time she knew her fashions would be exciting was the first time she saw yardage of her fabric printed.

"I learned all the aspects of getting prints onto clothing," she said. "The styles and silhouttes I like best are simple, direct, flattering and comfortable so when you put a garment on, it feels like your best friend."

She compares creating prints to composing music, where the colors are like notes of a melody that come together to give a "thrill."

This season's hottest staple will be knits that turn up in one-of-a-kind patterns on chunky sweaters that ward off spring's cool breezes.

"I like wearing Olsen's designs because they're comfortable and unique," said Laura Wolf of Farmington Hills. She was shopping for a "few fun and funky" evening looks to wear in Jamaica next month.

"I may buy this print vest to wear over a long skirt," she said. "It's really neat and I can pair it with shorts or ssistant Sharon Feury of Troy, asks questions about the customer's swimsuit needs and preferences. When the salesperson gets an idea of what the customer is all about, the two enter the fitting room in the back of the shop to select appropriate tops, bottoms or one-piece designs - and the first fitting begins.

"A customer will tell us if they want the waistband higher or lower, the neckline with or without straps, the thighline cut longer or higher," Bross said. "We talk about what would look best and why.

Next, the customer selects her swimsuit fabric from various color and print samples that can be mixed and matched for a custom creation. In the privacy of a dressing room, measurements are taken and entered into a computer for a numerical pattern from which to cut.

The order and fabric go into a bag for Oppermann to stitch into a Beach Bound Ltd. special. Her work is so perfected that the inside of the suits look as smooth and professional as the outside, with no open seams.

Bross said she bought the idea for the company nine years ago from a woman who had a similar store in Florida.

"I stopped in her shop while on vacation and thought it was a great business idea. The woman warned me that custom bathing suits would never sell well in Michigan, but she was wrong," Bross said. "Our swimsuit season is actually longer than hers because so many people travel and vacation year-round.

"I really enjoy my work. I know I'm helping people feel together when they are in a situation where other people are looking at them. My swimwear gives confidence that you normally don't have when you go to the pool or the beach.

Donna Herron of Waterford stopped in to order her fourth bathing suit from Beach Bound before a trip to Cancun.

"I can get the fit I want by asking them to drop an inch or two here or there, tighten the suit on top or add a tummy liner or sockup bra," she said.

"So many of the bathing suits in department stores are too skimpy or there's no bra inside. If there is a bra, then the suit is too old fashioned. I can get just what I want here and they do a great job. I've sent five of my girlfriends to Beach Bound."

The shop no longer makes men's or children's swimsuits. It's for women only.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Casino food safe bet, odds favor you in Vegas

lanning any late winter or early spring travel? If you're headed to sunny Las Vegas, you might be interested in hearing about what I encountered recently. It could help steer you clear of any mishaps along the way. Not that yours truly is a travel expert, but experience has taught me many lessons.

I'm writing this column somewhere over Utah heading back to the wintry Midwest after spending four glorious days in Las Vegas. The Janes Gang - momma, dad, twin sister Mary and a host of cousins - descended on Glitter Gulch hoping momma would win the slot tournament at the Westward Ho, and we would return with our pockets bulging.

Momma didn't win, and we were all bulging, not from winning Megabucks or Quartermania, but from experiencing one of Las Vegas' finer qualities, the all-you-can-eat buffet. Before we regress to the buffet, allow me a few insights on "air" fare.

Travel insights

I firmly believe you get what you pay for. When you pay a little over $220 for round trip airfare prime rib and fresh grilled tuna are certainly not expected on the in-flight catering menu.

Having experienced charter air service in the past, my expectations were not those of one flying first class. Suffice it to say that the four hours spent on the charter were as pleasant as the tub of chicken and pasta (made with overcooked noodles and lunch meat-style chicken chunks) complete with a plastic fork (no knife).

There is only one thing to say about charter airline food folks, and that is simply to forget it and bring your own.

Casino cuisine

On a much more positive, and somewhat suprising note, I am pleased to report that there seems to be a changing of the guard in corporate food service offices throughout the casinos. Don't be misled here folks, you can still find "beef ala Dutch" (the ingredients still undefinable to this writer) and leather tough roast beef carved by someone wearing a white jacket and a hair net in any casino buffet. You might even have to bypass the "stuffed sole" sitting under a heat lamp, but on Friday night, Harrah's chefs were chargrilling, much to my suprise, fresh Alaskan salmon fillets, and the tab was only $5.95.

Saturday night at Circus Circus rivaled Harrah's with steamed crab legs, and they weren't snow crab either, while the Mirage breakfast buffet was resplendent with fresh fruit, hot and cold cereal assortment and sausage that actually looked edible.

It wasn't served on a plastic plate or smothered in what Las Vegans think is country gravy. For the uninitiated, let me pass along a little secret - some casinos actually use the rendered grease from cooking your sausage and bacon to make their gravy.

One last word on casino food and that is simply that anyone who dares eat a half pound hot dog deserves exactly what they get. If the slots don't pay out, your gut certainly will. If the thought of dining during normal times and waiting like a pen of cattle in the buffet line concerns you, the best times to buffet are between normal hours, Las Vegas offers some consistently good restaurant dining experiences.

Again, as with air travel, you get what you pay for. Remember that the person serving you at some cheap sandwich shop probably couldn't cut the mustard at a hotel. Service can be spotty if downright nonexistent.

Pietro's offers center strip visitors a particularly enjoyable Italian dining experience, but for good food and a great value, cab it over to Warren Klien's Garlic Cafe. If you love garlic you'll find it in everything from soup to ice cream there. One of my Las Vegas contacts snuck me a privy copy of the new menu for the Planet Hollywood restaurant soon to open in the Forum Shops at Caesar's Palace.

Movie memorabilia lovers will go wild, but so will those who enjoy cutting edge cuisine from La-La land. Look for a March opening. Old downtown Las Vegas sandwich lovers will certainly appreciate the hot pastrami sandwiches at the Four Queens (momma's favorite) and if you go there, go at night when the lights are as wild as the city itself.

Dining experiences abound everywhere in Las Vegas from the 49 cent breakfast to the $50 dinner, but remember, if you fly there via charter, pack your own lunch. See Larry Janes' family-tested recipes inside. To leave a message for Chef Larry, dial 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then mailbox number 1886.

Dig into catalogs to plot gourmet garden

BY ELEANORE AND RAY HEALD SPECIAL WRITERS

If you'd like to make your summer dinner table a place of delight and discovery, you need to start planning. If you've only planted packaged seeds from a local garden supply center, you may want to expand your horizons by investigating heir loom seeds available through catalogs.

Will Horwath of Southfield is an avid gardener. "It has always been a joy for me to watch things grow," Horwath said. "Weeding was never Horwath makes a point of choosing vegetables that are unique. "I grow things you can't get at a produce market in high season like tomatillos. They make incredible salsas. Silver Queen corn doesn't transport well even when Michigan's commerical farmers grow it so that's a good one to choose. There's nothing like the flavor of freshpicked vegetables. Everyone realizes this about corn, but it's true for all vegetables. Horwath emphasizes the beauty of a garden. Eggplants are pretty to grow, especially the small Oriental varieties suitable for stuffing," he said. "Where else, but in your own garden, can you get a zucchini as big as your little finger with the flower still on the end? Grow red cabbage, it's beautiful."

As soon as the ground can be worked, Horwath plants snow peas and spinach, but because Michigan's growing season is short, a part of his garden focuses on vegetables that can be harvested during the fall, and frequently into early win ter if plants are covered with straw.

"I refer to these vegetables as the cabbage and tuber varieties including potatoes, onions, celeriac, carrots, leeks and parsnips," he said. "It's nice in the fall and early winter, when everything's dying, to continue picking a vegetable from a garden.

Horwath also grows what are affectionately called winter greens including Bok choy (Chinese cabbage), Swiss chard (both red and green), broccoli, kale and collard greens. "When frost hits cabbage and tuber crops, they don't die, they get sweeter," Horwath said.

Because Oakland University professor Bob Christina savors the taste of homegrown tomatoes, he plants "long keepers" in his Rochester Hills backyard garden. "You need to be conscious of fall weather patterns and monitor the first frost," he said. "But if you cover long keeper tomato plants on a frosty night and pick as late pounds on her first trip to Weight Watchers in 1991.

"I learned I had multiple scle-rosis and pictured myself someday lying somewhere unable to care for myself," Keller said. "I prayed a long time for the desire to lose the weight, hoping in the back of my mind that it wouldn't be granted. But it was and a friend asked me to go to a meeting with her.'

Now, Keller said, it feels great to know that if she falls down she can pick herself up again.

"We find that most people eat for emotional reasons," Ferris said. "They find food has a numbing effect and are used just like drugs and alcohol."

The therapist said it is important to understand why we eat too much and consider what is at the root of the binging before sitting down with a box of Little Deb-

"We tell people that when they get an urge to binge, they should put the craving off for 15 minutes and gradually extend that time. Most of the time, they find the craving passes," said Ferris.

Keller said there is little chance of eliminating desserts and snacks from her life, so she has just learned to accommodate the treat into her daily food plan.

"If I'm going to fix a dessert, I plan for it all day and cut back someplace else," she said. Noble finds herself snacking during the day, so instead of getting out the whole bag of pretzels and munching during the course of the day, she measures out a cup of pretzels and puts that on the

"That's all the pretzels I get for the day," she said. "I eat them more slowly and am more conscious of how many I am eating."

Rutkowski, a Plymouth resident and immediate past president of the Michigan Dietetic Association, said these are good ways to curb the amount of food you eat during the day and to better plan meals.

'It's important to make trades sometimes," she said. "You can't eliminate junk food completely. It's just important to consider what we are eating.'

Fat is perhaps the most important dietary avoidance there is. We all need a certain amount of fat in our diet, but Rutkowski said Americans eat far more fat than is necessary. Chicken, fish and pasta are all healthy alternatives to the high-fat, red meat diet most of us grew up with. Rutkowski said it is also important to consider calorie density when selecting fruits and vegetables. Fruits with lower calorie density have a greater amount of water — a banana has greater density than watermelon. The banana is still good for you, but you may want to limit the amount of bananas you eat to promote weight loss.

Here are some other tips Rutkowski offers on weight loss and just healthy eating in general:

■ Consider the size of the plate used. A luncheon plate will look full with less food on it.

Sit down and slow down to eat. By eating slowly, the body has more time to digest the food and know that it is full. Try putting utensils down between bites of food and don't watch television while eating.

Avoid convenience foods. They are fatty, salty and expensive.

Bake rather than fry. ■ Try salsas and chutneys in place of sour cream, butter or creamy dips.

■ Make a menu for the week with everything included and make a grocery list using that menu. Buy only as much as is needed for the meal and buy only what is on the

■ Plan meals with the meat or protein source as the side dish and the vegetable as the main course. This creates a wonderful opportunity to try new side dish

■ Take some time before going back for second helpings or start with small portions, leaving yourself the option of going back for another small serving.

Exercise is an important part of all diet plans and is an important part of a healthy lifestyle.

the kitchen counter and extend homegrown tomato delights long after vine-ripened toma-toes are unavailable in the produce section.

Horwath is interested in ordering from seed companies specializing in heirloom varieties. "This year, I'm ordering Radiator Charley's Mortgage Lifter tomatoes for the first time. I understand they are especially flavorful in addition to having an intriguing name.'

Horwath's garden also includes herbs. "I buy basil plants from a garden supply/ nursery house," he said. "Once started from plants, the perennials such as thyme, oregano, rosemary, sage and mint come up every year. Mint is an underused and undervalued herb. Mediterranean cooking, which is popular today, has discovered the use of mint."

Much creative gardening is being done by several California wineries. The most innovative is at Fetzer Vineyards Valley Oaks Ranch in Hopland, California. Always on the cutting edge of food trends, the Fetzer garden abounds with an infinite variety of vegetables, especially peppers. Southwest cooking is hot!

Fetzer's gardening coordinator Jeff Dawson starts peppers in a greenhouse with heat underneath the trays. "After the frost-free date in your area, harden seedlings for a week or two by setting them out for a few hours on warm days,' Dawson advises. "Don't plant seedlings too early. They will react negatively if the ground or night air is cold and they may never recover. Pepper plants need staking if you live in an area subject to gusty summer thunderstorms.'

Dawson's remark about transplanting too early holds for all seedlings. They all need warm soil and warm air. A cold spell can set them back all season. The recommended planting period in Wayne and Oakland counties is May 20 to June 1. Plants can go into the ground earlier than May 20, as possible into October, but then the gardener must they'll last another month on monitor weather forecasts and cover tender plants with cut-off milk cartons to protect them. Frost-free dates are statistical and only provide guidelines.

Dawson agrees with Horwath that a garden offers ornamental attraction. Peppers perform well in containers and enhance the attractiveness of a patio or terrace,' he says. "In cooler climates, containers make good sense. You can move them into the sun during the day and keep them sheltered at night."

Herbs grow equally well in containers and in the ground. Using planters in a variety of colors provides instant outdoor beauty. When using a planter, drill drainage holes in the pot bottom and for enhanced drainage, fill the bottom with

Most modern seed companies concentrate on hybrid varieties that are bred for uniform size, high yield, disease resistance and shipability with little flavor consideration. If you haven't been able to grow tasty tomatoes like the ones your grandpa used to grow, you need to research heirloom seeds. ### Savory Middle Eastern salad rich in fiber

Americans are discovering the distinctive flavors and textures of three delicious whole grains barley, buckwheat and bulgur that are versatile additions to almost any meal. These grains are excellent sources of fiber, nutrients and complex carbohydrates, and they give you more vitamins and minerals than most refined or processed grain products.

Trying new types of grains can add new interest to your meals and, by replacing some of the meat in your menu with grains, you can also cut back on fat and calories. Here's a guide to barley, buckwheat and bulgur. Barley is generally available as either pearl or pot (Scotch) barley. Refined pearl barley is white and translucent with its husk removed, while whole-grain pot barley has only the outer layer of the husk removed and must be soaked overnight before cooking. Barley's chewy texture is delicious in a pilaf, stir-fry or stuffing, and can be used to flavor and thicken soups and stews

Use three cups of boiling liquid for one cup barley and simmer for 30 to 50 minutes. Or use quickcooking barley, which uses less water and cooks in 10 to 12 min-

Buckwheat is actually a fruit, but it looks, cooks and tastes like a grain. Groats, the pale kernels in the buckwheat shells, are used most often as flour in pancakes, biscuits and muffins. However, groats make a fine breakfast cereal and are a good substitute for rice or pasta. Add one cup groats to two cups boiling water or broth, then cover, reduce heat, and simmer about 15 minutes or until the liquid is absorbed. Kasha, the roasted, hulled buckwheat kernels, have a light brown color and nutty flavor that is very different from groats and makes a good substitute for potatoes. Kasha can be cooked the same way as buckwheat.

Bulgur is the parched, steamed and dried berry of wheat. The process conserves most of the nutrients in the grain by leaching them from the outer layer into the center of the grain. In the Middle East where bulgur originated, it is best known for its use in tabouli

With its crunchy texture and mild flavor, bulgur is also excellent in casseroles, vegetables steady stream of food labeling claims for "light" (or "lite"). Soon, these terms will have to shed their ambiguity as the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) forces retailers to comply with new labeling rules by July, 1994. Under the new regulations, "light" may be used to describe a product that contains at least one-third fewer calories or 50 percent less fat than the reference food. "Light" may also be used to describe the sodium content of a low-calorie, low-fat product if it has been reduced by half. On the other hand, the term "more" may be used to describe any food containing at least ten percent more of the daily value for protein, vitamins, dietary fiber, or potassium than the reference

Instead of trusting the labeling of foods designated as "light" learn to read the labels for fat content. Fats are measured in grams, and the more grams of fat in a product, the higher its fat content. ### Cool food fast for safety

"Cold weather inspires many people to cook up a large pot of homemade soup these days," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Michigan State University Extension Program, Oakland County office.

"However, if hot soup is not cooled quickly and properly, you may get more than you bargained for," said Treitman.

If a large pot of soup is left to cool by itself, it will need many hours to reach a cool temperature. By that time it may have already begun to grow dangerous bacteria, which can result in food poison-

Rapid cooling of food is a food safety practice to avoid a food poisoning incident. The best advice we can give is to cool that large pot of food quickly.

Rice costs just pennies a serving, and is a big budget booster. Since there's no waste in fixing, no loss in cooking, you get exactly what you pay for. There are thousands of rice varieties, but for most cooks, the length of the grain is the most important dif-

Cooking rice

Short grained rice tends to be sticky and glutinous when cooked. These short grained rice varieties are used most frequently in croquettes, rice puddings, casseroles and molded rice rings. Long grained rice cooks fluffy and is a good choice for salads, pilafs and Chinese style dishes.

To cook rice, it is not necessary to wash it before cooking. This old method probably dates back to the time when rice was dusted with talcum powder that needed to be washed off before cooking. It should not be necessary to rinse it after cooking either. When properly cooked, rice shouldn't need to be drained.

The secret in cooking is measuring accurately, and making sure your cooking pot has a snug cover. One cup raw rice will yield three cups when cooked. One cup of brown rice yields three to four cups cooked. One cup of pre-processed rice will yield about one to two cups cooked.

Parboiled rice, also known as "converted" rice, is processed white rice that has been partly cooked before milling. This rice is long-grain with a light golden color and cooks the same as regular rice. The reason they parboil it before milling is to make it more nutritious. Usually converted rice will give you a fluffy product every Precooked rice or "instant" needs only the briefest cooking. This rice has been fully or partially precooked before being dehydrated. It's sole advantage is a short cooking time, as it is more expensive than regular rice.

Flavorful varieties

Brown rice (long-grain), retains the bran but not the hulls. Brown rice has a hearty flavor and chewy texture that many people like. Nutritionally, however, brown rice is similar to enriched white varieties, except that it contains slightly more trace minerals, a bit more fat and up to three times more fiber. But unless you eat several cups of it a day, brown rice is not a significant fiber source. Brown rice has about 89 calories per half cup whereas white rice is about 82 calories. Brown rice is usually packaged in smaller boxes or bags because the oil in the bran can go rancid if stored too long. It is recommended that brown rice be stored in the refrigerator for the best quality.

Apple pie with figs sweet

AP - Dried figs add a new wrinkle to old-fashioned apple pie, along with a sweet, melonlike flavor. To make this full-of-fruit pie, you can use light Calimyrna figs or dark Mission figs. Both types are available all year long. APPLE-FIG PIE

1/2 cup sugar

1 tablespoon cornstarch 1 teaspoon purchased or Homemade Apple Pie Spice

6 ounces dried figs, stems removed and finely chopped (1 cup)

1 cup cold water 2 tablespoons honey

(recipe below)

1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel

2 tablespoons lemon juice 4 cups thinly sliced, peeled, cooking apples (about 11/2 pounds)

15-ounce package folded, refrigerated, unbaked pie crusts (2 crusts), at room temperature

1 egg

1 tablespoon water Whipped cream (optional).

For filling, in a large saucepan stir together sugar, cornstarch and spice. Stir in figs, the 1 cup water, honey, lemon peel and lemon juice. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Remove from heat; gently stir in apples.

Line a 9-inch pie plate with one of the piecrusts. Pour filling into pie plate; spread evenly. Trim pastry to edge of pie plate.

Using an hors d'oeuvre or cookie cutter, cut leaf shapes out of center of top crust; place crust over filling. Arrange leaf cutouts on pastry. Seal and flute pastry edges. In a small bowl beat egg; stir in the 1 tablespoon water. Brush egg mixture onto crust.

To prevent overbrowning, cover edge of pie with foil. Bake in a 375degree F oven for 25 minutes. Remove foil; bake about 25 minutes more or until golden. Cool on a wire rack. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

To Freeze: Prepare pie as directed, except do not make cutouts in top crust, brush with egg mixture, or bake. Cover unbaked pie with an inverted 10-inch paper plate. Wrap tightly in foil; seal, label and freeze for up to 4 months.

To bake, uncover frozen pie. Prick or cut slits in top crust. Rewrap with foil. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 45 minutes. Uncover and brush with egg mixture. Bake about 40 minutes more or until crust is golden brown. Cover edge of piecrust with foil the last 15 minutes of baking to prevent overbrowning, if necessary.

Homemade Apple Pie Spice: In a storage container combine 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 11/2 teaspoons ground nutmeg, 1 teaspoon ground allspice and ¼ teaspoon ground cloves. Store, tightly covered, in a cool, dry place.

Gangster Fun: To be ska free

■ Fed up with being exclusively labeled as "ska," Gangster Fun is trying to show people that the horn-laden form of music isn't just a novelty.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

There's no way to misinterpret how Gangster Fun feels about being pigeonholed as a ska band.

'Ska sucks, drummer Brian Bowie and lead vocalist John Bunkley said almost in

"We're tired of being labeled as a ska band. We're pigeonholed as some sort of novelty act . . . As if ska is any different from alternative. We're just as alternative as any other alternative music," Bowie said.

"Really, we're just like every other rock band in Detroit except we have a little different beat," Bunkley added.

Most people don't realize that, according to Bunkley. He's tired of explaining ska music to people who are unfamiliar with it. (For the record, "The Rolling Stone Encyclopedia of Rock & Roll" describes it as "quicker and less brooding than reggae.")

Because of the ambiguity of ska music, many people assume that it's "this weird, weird fringe thing," Bowie said. In response, they're trying to clear up that misconception. Many things have hindered their quest, however, they said.

For example, winning the "Best World Beat Band" prize at the Detroit Music Awards has caused further confusion. Bowie said that being incorrectly lumped into "world beat" is insulting because they're "alternative.

"When somebody gives you an award that says 'Best World Beat Band,' that's a put down to every world beat band in Detroit," said Bowie, a Pontiac resident.

Also, compilations like "American Ska-thic: A Portrait of Midwest ska Past to Present" further pigeonholes ska, he added. Members of Gangster Fun appear on the CD with the Steady Earnest horns playing a cover of AC/DC's "You Shook All Night Long." They're unhappy with the track because it was recorded with another member singing lead — not Bunkley.

At any rate Midwestern ska, they said, doesn't offer Gangster Fun any competition because many bands are just studio projects.

"We don't want anything to do with it," Bunkley said of Midwestern ska.

label: Few people know what "ska" music is, so Gangster Fun wishes that more people would just call them 'alternative."

Chuck Wren, a Chicago ska DJ and organizer of "American Ska-thic," said the "ska" or "Midwestern ska" labels aren't all that bad.

"'Alternative' means nothing today. For them to want to be called that means nothing."

STREET BEATS

Bowie and Bunkley stressed that they're not being "pompous" by wanting to nix the musical pigeonhole.

If you've been listening to it for as long as we have, (you'd be sick of it, too). . . . Our music is different because it's our own. If you can't stand your own music, then you quit the band," Bowie said. Gangster Fun has been around since the late 1980s when it released "Come See, Come Ska" on England's ska Records in 1989. The album proved successful for the band, which has since gigged with bands such as Fugazi, Bad Brains, Bad Manners and Bim Skala Bim. Bunkley said the key to their success is that musically and lyrically, they use a light-hearted approach to get serious messages across.

"I think we're more light-hearted people than most bands. They take themselves and their music 'way too seriously. They use it as a means to an end . . . just have a good time until you break up," Bunkley said.

Despite general unhappiness with the music business, the duo didn't see Gangster Fun breaking up any time soon. In fact, they're recording an EP at The Disc in Eastpointe for possible release in June. The CD, which will include a cover and a few originals, is their first since 1991's 'Time Flies When You're Gangster Fun." It took three years to record their new record, they said, because they were "lazy.

"We just didn't get around to doing it. It's expensive to run a band with 10 people in it," Bowie said. Rising stars: Hot Footin' Puddin' Pie - Kim Marro (left), Dee Boman, Deb Agolli and Lenny Pops — is quickly becoming one of the most talked-about Detroit bands.

Proof is in Puddin' for charming band

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Hot Footin' Puddin' Pie has an undeniable charm about them. When lead singer Lenny Pops enters a room, he commands attention with his somewhat pompous air, trademark curly reddish-brown hair and 1970s-style black leather coat. In tow are three females who ooze "cool" - suave drummer Deb Agolli, the platinum-blonde cherubic Kim Marro, and the sweet-talking smiling Dee

This quartet may be an eyeful to look at but don't underestimate their musical talent. They've become one of the most talked about up-and-coming Detroit bands

Modestly Marro explained how she thinks the buzz about Hot Footin' was created.

"We're not so serious. We have a playful, charming aspect. It's conta-gious when people see us," she said.

Try to take your eyes away from the stage on which Hot Footin' is playing and you'll find yourself subconsciously returning to them. The sweet vocal harmonies of Agolli, Marro and Boman in songa like "Willow Tree" will swirl around in

In "Blink," Madeleine Stowe plays Emma, a raven-haired Celtic violinist who has been blind for most of her 28 years. Following a cornea transplant, her vision blurs in and out of murky focus as she becomes accustomed to her second sight.

Emma isn't overjoyed with what she sees. She lives in a dingy section of Chicago, where everything appears ugly and crass. On the first night with the bandages off, she sees the foggy image of a murderer who killed the woman in the apartment upstairs.

For her part, Stowe is quite believable as a strong-willed woman coping with a dramatic change in her life. The script for "Blink." however, degenerates into your standard serial killer scenario with only an occasional twist.

MOVIES

Likable Irish actor Aidan Quinn is the police detective assigned to the murder case. Not surprisingly, he falls in love with his star witness.

There's an appealing Chicago/ Celtic background to "Blink," but it's only on the surface. A brief chase through the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade adds up to nothing and only serves to remind you how cleverly the same event was used in last year's "The Fugitive."

Fans of the genre will find a few surprises, a decent red herring and a perverse quality that goes beyond the killer's penchant for necrophillia and blood-letting. The cop himself has a weird view of the victims. As a dead woman lies in her own blood in a bathtub.

And as much as we're outraged by the murder, our only images of the victim are of a spoiled, noisy young woman who made faces at Emma as they passed on the

Among the movie's assets is Michael Apted, perhaps the only director in Hollywood who jumps nimbly between documentary and narrative projects. He's still best known for his ongoing portrait of English classmates from children to adults. (The latest installment was called "35 Up.")

He uses the heroine's blurry vision to effectively keep you on edge, messing with the part of your body which many might consider the most sensitive. Faces transform in a yellow haze, sometimes into the killer or her mother, who blinded Emma at age eight by slamming her face into a mirror.

A tough, smart woman plagued by memories of the past, was one of the keys to "Silence of the Lambs," but that's overshadowed here by typical dumb movie conventions. The love-hate relationship with Quinn's chauvinistic cop leads to a steamy scene in her apartment where they can't hide their passions any longer.

The Oscar for "Silence" proved that you don't need a dopey love relationship to sell a thriller. Movies like "Blink" remain blind to that idea.

your head long after the show is over. In sync with their influences that begin as far back as the 1950s, the three women dress the part. Sometimes it's calf-length poodle-like skirts and scarves tied around their hair, or tight Tshirts and jeans. But in Hot Footin's case, it's not the clothes that make the band, Pops said.

"We work really hard in writing songs that we'd like to listen to and play," said Pops, whose band plays The Falcon Club in Hamtramck on Thursday.

That list includes influences like The Velvet Underground, David Bowie's Ziggy Stardust years, Parliament-Funkadelic and The

"P.J., P.J. Harvey," interjected Boman, dressed in shorts, thighhigh leg warmers and a bulky sweater.

"Old disco," energetically added Agolli, who chose that day to wear a tight Peter Frampton Tshirt, faded jeans and a tan cardigan sweater.

Hot Footin', a name that Marro and Boman came up with while driving back from a trip down south, blends these influences into a groovy, sometimes bluesy and hypnotic sound. Pops said it is their way of honoring their main influences, such as "the Detroit sound of the '70s."

We like to pay homage to it in our own way," said Pops, a Philadelphia, Pa., native.

They don't mimic any sound. however. It's one that's definitely their own.

"We just play what's true to us; we're not trying to jump on any bandwagon," Pops said.

"I don't think there's any bandwagon we could jump on, interrupted Agolli, who also plays with the band Outrageous Cherry.

"We just want to make ear-drums bleed," Pops added with a suspicious smile.

Folks attending this year's Mardi Gras festival in New Orleans will get to feel that pleasantly painful experience. The band will head down there later this month to play on the street for partiers. Boman and Marro, one-time members of an Irish folk band, are veterans of the festival. They made a whopping $6.66 in donations from the crowd.

"We felt so stupid singing to the air," Marro said sweetly. "But it's the whole vibe."

Most of the people down there are too, well, pre-occupied to pay attention to the music. Marro said nevertheless it's fun playing along side of national alternative rock acts like the Chickasaw Mudpuppies.

"It's like it doesn't matter who you are . . . There's a whole diverse musical range (performing)," she said.

Although they don't plan on making tons of money down there, the scene is befitting of the attitude they have about their shows.

"We try to create a party atmosphere. We want it to be laid back. Forget about the big show business vibe," Pops said.

CC ices Stevenson

edford Catholic Central, rated No. 2 in the latest statewide coaches Class A hockey poll, ran its overall record to 11-0-1 with a 7-2 win over Livonia Stevenson in a non-leaguer Wednesday at Eddie Edgar Arena.

Greg Vaquera, Pete Davis, Eric Vaquera and Bob Klemmer scored during a third-period surge. Kevin Pedersen assisted on two of the goals. Davis, Dan Hunt, Greg Vaquera, Ken Lauer and Chris Gonzalez also drew assists.

The Shamrocks led 3-0 after one period on goals by Jon Heady, Mark Holdridge and Greg Vaquera. Assists went to Jeff Helner, Jason Couture, Heady

Stevenson got second-period goals from Kevin Berger and Dave Gorton, but the Spartans (8-6 overall) couldn't beat CC netminder Mike Brusseau in the final period.

CC outshot the Spartans, 31-12.

Ocelots can't keep pace with Henry Ford

After losing for the ninth time in 10 Eastern Conference games, it's easy to understand why Schoolcraft College men's basketball coach Dave Bogataj would be a bit short on patience. Particularly when history keeps repeating itself, which it seemingly did in Wednesday's 92-74 loss to Henry Ford CC at SC.

"We talked about it last time," said Bogataj. "We got destroyed in the second half. And we didn't get the rebounding when we needed it.'

Against St. Clair CC four days earlier, the Ocelots had pulled to within five with 71/2 minutes left to play, then ended up losing by 20.

They never got that close to the Hawks in the second half. The best

SC could do was narrow the gap to 10. Henry Ford, which shared the conference lead at 7-3 with Highland Park going into Saturday's games, opened the game with a 13-2 run and was never headed.

Mickey Brown proved overpowering for the Hawks; he scored 39 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and limited SC's Todd McNeil, the conference's leading scorer and fourth-best rebounder, to 17 points and five boards.

Chris Ireland added 18 points and Aaron Bailey scored 15 for Henry Ford.

In addition to McNeil, SC got double-figure scoring from Dan Perttula (17 points) and Tony Maciejewski (16). Maciejewski also had a teamhigh seven rebounds. Fadi Bazzi played well at point guard, collecting six points and nine assists while committing just two turnovers.

The Ocelots, now 7-13 overall, were without starting forward Steve Whitlow for the third-straight game. Whitlow was suffering from a mild case of pneumonia; he is expected to be able to play Wednesday against HENRY FORD 69, SC 61 (WOMEN): A terrible first half proved more than the Lady Ocelots could overcome Wednesday at SC.

The loss left them at 7-8 overall, 3-6 in the conference. Henry Ford improved to 6-3 in the conference.

SC coach Jack Grenan estimated that his team "missed 10 layups" in the first half, one good reason the Lady Hawks were up 43-23 at the break. But the Lady Ocelots kept hammering away at the deficit, thanks to strong inside play from Jennifer Samson (14 points) and Tricia Kazyaka (12).

Canton rally clips Pats

■ There was no giving up in this match. Plymouth Canton and Livonia Franklin struggled through five full games, with the decisive final game going into overtime. And in the end, it was a player off the bench who decided the outcome.

Smart subbing. Laura Logsdon had played well at middle blocker for Plymouth Canton's volleyball team, but now the Chiefs needed a strong server if they were to overtake Livonia Franklin. They were down to their final substitution, and it was Logsdon's turn to serve. And they trailed 14-10.

So Canton coach Melinda Cain inserted Michelle Moreno into the lineup for Logsdon. It proved to be an exceptional move; Moreno served sixconsecutive points, and the Chiefs battled their way back from the brink of defeat to beat Franklin in five games, 7-15, 15-10, 15-3, 11-15, 16-14 Wednesday at Franklin.

"Michelle Moreno was a big plus for us," said Cain. "She doesn't get to play very much, she's kind of a specific role player. She's a good server, though; she'll consistently get her

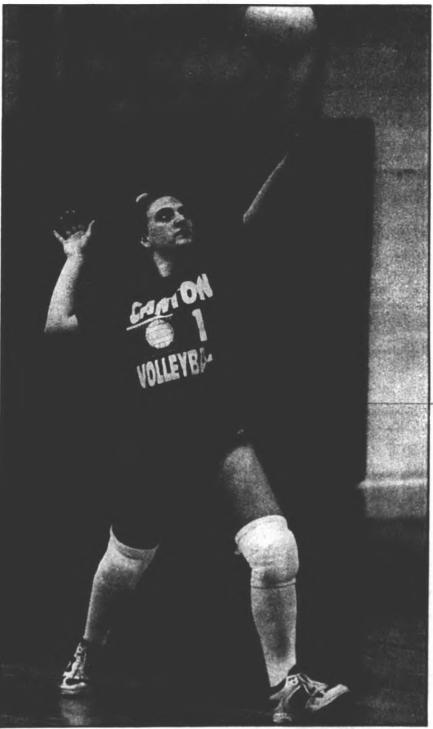

Which is exactly what she did against the Patriots. Of the six points she served, two went unreturned including a floater that the Patriots got a hand on but could not get back over the net on game-point.

"The kids played really well," said Cain. "The Farmington loss (Jan. 24) was very disappointing to us. We had a long talk about mental intensity after that.

"They came back and really put their heads into the game. They're still not playing the way I'd like, but at least they're heading in the right direction. They're learning to adjust to game situations.

The win evened Canton's overall dual-match record at 2-2; the Chiefs are 1-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Ndu Okwumabua topped the Chiefs in kills with 15. Beth Ostach and Janet Zabivnik had five apiece. In addition, Ostach had three key blocks - one on a Franklin serve that broke a string of Patriot points in the fourth game. Canton trailed 11-3 in that game but fought back to challenge before losing it.

On target: Amber Wells helped set up Canton's comeback win over Franklin with some strong serving. She led the Chiefs with two aces.

Setter Amber Wells also had a strong match with 22 assists to kills and two service aces.

No defense leads to loss for Crusaders

There are signs of improve-

For example, check out the shooting from the floor. Madonna University was consistent Wednesday against visiting Aquinas College, converting 40 percent of its first-half shots (15 of 37) and 44 percent in the second half (15 of 34). And the Fighting Crusaders hit 6 of 18 three-pointers (33 percent), too.

MADONNA

But they still showed little ability on defense. Aquinas hardly a powerhouse; the Saints were 3-15 coming into the game - connected on 70.4 percent from the floor in the first half (31 of 44) to pull out to a 72-41 halftime lead. That was more than enough cushion; Aquinas won easily, 125-89.

The loss dropped Madonna to 2-21 overall.

"People have figured out if they go down low on us, they can do anything they want," said Madonna coach Bill Sharpe. "(Aquinas) usually doesn't try to force the ball inside, but knowing how weak we are they're going to take it in-

"Our freshmen big men are clearly overmatched by upperclassmen.

For the Crusaders to challenge, they needed an emotional effort. They didn't get it, offensively or defensively. They committed 24 turnovers to Aquinas' 11 and were outrebounded 38-

"As long as we let a team put us in a 30-point hole in the first half, we're not going to win any ball games," said Sharpe, adding sarcastically, "Our stellar defense was incredible as usual. When you play with a lack of emotion, and lazy, you're going to get blown out of ball games. It didn't help that two start-

Salem shows it has the talent to repeat

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

In case anyone doubted that Plymouth Salem was capable of defending the Class A state gymnastics title it captured last season, please take

The Rocks put on a show Wednesday against Westland John Glenn while recording their fifthstraight dual meet victory. They took the top three positions in each event, and their two allarounders, Melissa Hopson and Sarah Makins, finished one-two.

But that's just part of the picture. Examine that final score — 140.7 points. Salem's total tied Holland for the highest recorded by a team

And that means the Rocks are certainly capable of defending their title. "I don't think we're up to full strength yet," said coach Johanns Anderson, calling her team "tired" after its second dual meet in two days (the Rocks beat Ann Arbor Pioneer 132.6-123.6 Tuesday). "We're just getting stronger as a team. "We were alow getting started (this season) because we're a young team. They're not used to competing 15 times in a season. But they're warming up to the competition." Hopson was superb against Glenn, winning the uneven parallel bars (9.15), the balance beam

(9.3) and the floor exercise (9.3). She was secon in the vault (8.9) to teammate Kristin Kosik (9.2); Makins placed third in vault (8.65). Hopson totaled 36.65 in the all-around, with Makins scoring 35.9.

Makins was second in the bars (9.05), beam (9.05) and floor exercise (9.15), and Zoe Yockey took third in the bars (8.9) and floor exercise

"They're gaining experience," said Anderson.
"They need to gain confidence. There's still a long way for us to go."

Perhaps so, but does the trail travel to the state title? "I think it is possible," Anderson replied. "But we still have to put those difficult tricks into the routines."

Those additional stunts could appear at Saturday's Plymouth Invitational. Salem will have 10 days without competition to prepare. "Hopefully," said Anderson, "our scores will rise by

In the win over Pioneer, Kosik (33.55) and Yockey (32.65) posted the top all-around scores. Kosik finished first in the vault (8.7) and was second on the beam (8.55).

Makins won the bars (9.05) and tied Yockey for first in the floor exercise (8.7). Makins also finished second in the vault (8.45); Yockey was Hopkins finished first in the beam (9.25) and third in the bars (8.35).

Plymouth Canton

The Chiefs continued to excel Wednesday, beating North Farmington 132.1-128.6 in a dual Katey Gilles dominated once again for Canton, finishing first in all four events and scoring a meet-best 36.8 in the all-around.

Gilles won the vault (9.1), the uneven parallel bars (9.25), the balance beam (9.15) and the floor exercise (9.3). Other strong performances were turned in by Canton's Angie Lamerato, second in the floor ex-ercise (8.55); Brie Wall, third in the bars (8.15), tied for third in the vault (8.3) and fourth in the all-around (32.15); and Adrienne Brenner, tied for fourth in both the beam (7.95) and floor exercise (8.25). North (3-3 overall, 1-3 in the Western Lakes) was led by Michelle Tsai, who was second in the vault (8.7), bars (8.75) and beam (8.55), and took third in the floor exercise (8.35). Her 34.35 total was good for second in the all-around.

Both teams compete in the Plymouth Invitational, which starts at 9 a.m. Saturday at Canton High School.

Rolling a 700 series makes the pain worthwhile

HARRISON

snowy day in Farm-ington Hills, so Mark Silverstein went out with his shovel to clear the snow. When he struck a crack in the cement, the shock went right up his arm - his bowling

The next day he was bowling with his Inter-Lodge League, and all that happened was his best ever - a 710 series with a 277 game. I asked him about bowling with the pain. His reply: "It was worth the pain!" ■ The St. Linus Men's League has been active for 35 years. It had an 800 series until last week when David B. Bazner fired an 824 with games of 278, 258 and 288.

This was the second 800 series in the house, Garden Lanes in Garden City. Bazner, who works for Mastercraft Carpets, averages 207. He had 30 out of a possible 36 strikes in the series. After his first game, he knew he was in a good groove. He just wanted to stay focused and see how far he could go.

Country Lanes is setting up an "Ashley Ponke Fund" to help the 9-year-old whose mother was killed recently. Bowlers can donate at the counter or send donations to: The Ashley Ponke Fund c/o Country Lanes, 30250 W. Nine Mile Road Farmington 48336.

You might recall the incident, which made front page and TV news, in which her mother, Jackie, was killed. Her father has been charged in the killing. Ashley is a very talented young bowler.

Barb Sroka bowls with the "AMers" at Mayflower Lanes and carries a 144 average in the league. Wednesday was somewhat different, for after a slow start with a 119 game, she rolled her highest game ever, 222. The third game was better yet; she started with eight strikes in a row and finished with a new high game of 250!

January 31-February 6, 1994

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

You will have a more optimistic attitude, especially where matters of the heart are concerned. Valentine's Day cannot come too soon for you.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

Take your health problems seriously and do what has to be done. There is a good chance you will receive a message containing great news

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

You need to do your best to get rid of some outstanding debts. It will probably be difficult for you to make the necessary budget changes.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

Use your head when dealing with stubborn people. Do not compromise your moral standards, for a get-rich-quick

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

Self-improvement classes usually do not appeal to you, but this might be a good time to check one out. A loved one may disappoint you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

Your mind and body need a release from stress, and there is no better way than exercise. Making necessary dietary changes will also help

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You may be dealing with a person who is not what he or she may seem to be. It will not be easy, but it may be time for a reality check

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

Add some color to your life and buy some art work you have been admiring. You may get financial assistance, but not in the way you expected.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

Break from your regular routine and head out for some fun. A young person may give you some valuable informa-

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

You may have to put another person's needs ahead of your own for now. Don't worry; you will one day be rewarded for your good deeds.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Problems are probably not as bad as you think. Get yourself in gear and know that you can tackle anything that comes your way

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

A psychic premonition could have some validity. Spend some quality time with a neglected loved one. A short trip could prove interesting

Behind-the-scenes stories heighten Olympic drama

By SARA BENNETT

Will freestyle skier Donna Weinbrecht be healthy enough to win another gold medal for the United States in the 1994 Olympic Winter Games?

How will bobsled driver Brian Shimer apply the techniques of autoracing to his sport?

Will the shortened two-year break between Winter Olympics help or hurt CBS' coverage of the Games, beginning Saturday, Feb. 12, and concluding Sunday, Feb. 27?

Because of a new format, this year's Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway, will be the only Games to get underway after such a short hiatus. Subsequent Summer and Winter Games will take place at alternating two-year intervals.

After the recent 1992 Olympic Winter Games in Albertville, France, analysts should be accustomed to the pace and style of Olympic events, from the booth, in the studio and at event-level.

Multifaceted analyst Greg Gumbel, who served as a morning host in Albertville, serves as prime-time anchor for CBS' coverage in Lillehammer.

we've just done it recently," he says.
"I think it will be that much better this time around."

However, Gumbel concedes, there's still plenty to work on.

"One of the things that we all have to learn is just how is this going to work physically," he says. "Actually getting there, and putting a show together, and getting it on the air, and getting off the air, and everything (that goes along with) it tends to be something you can plan all you want, but there's nothing like doing it."

Gumbel's segments will come to the United States taped because of the six-hour time difference between the U.S. and Norway.

Live or taped, Gumbel and other analysts have a job to do in Lillehammer: They must show the audience the events, but perhaps more importantly, they must show viewers what they wouldn't see otherwise.

"Every competition kind of has its own stories within," Gumbel says. "The people involved in figure skating, for instance, are probably very (well known), especially the comeback people, Brian Boitano and Katarina Witt, who appears on her way back to the Olympics after a layoff.

"In mogul skiing," Gumbel continues. "Donna Weinbrecht is a terrifically interesting story because she won the gold medal in Albertville and then ripped up her knee. She's been going through rehab, and now the question is, is she still the best in the world?"

Gumbel adds, "In bobsledding, the United States has made terrific strides. Brian Shimer is a young guy who has worked hard and diligently at it, and he's been assisted by Geoff Bodine, the race car driver, who has tried to apply some of the aerodynamics that go into auto racing and into the construction of race cars, and tried to combine that into the bobsled that Brian drives."

Just as interesting, and more controversial, are the varying opinions on the reinstatement of professional athletes to the Games. Some people believe the amateur spirit of the Olympics is lost. Others just aren't sure who the United States is up against.

"We beat the Russians," says CBS late-night Olympics anchor Pat O'Brien, in reference to the U.S. hockey team's performance during its pre-Olympic tour "But we don't know if it's the real Russian team. And the real Russian team could be somewhere else, beating the (stuffing) out of other countries."

Tim Taylor, coach of the hockey squad that won or tied approximately 75 percent of its John Hancock USA Hockey Tour matchups, also has mixed feelings on reinstatement.

"Philosophically and romantically I believe in the traditional Olympic ideal," he says. "A player has to make a sacrifice of huge proportions to be an effective Olympian, especially in a team sport. (But) I think it's fine if they reinstate themselves in time to be part of a program that we've put together that's gonna help us win a medal."

From plans for a "goalie-cam" to the performance of U.S. figure skater Nancy Kerrigan, who will test her strength and courage after an assault that captured the world's attention, all eyes look to the Olympics to answer questions and, of course, to entertain.

SOAP WORLD

'Days Into Night' special airs on NBC BY CANDACE HAVENS

"Days of Our Lives" is hitting the prime-time scene with its "Days Into Night" special, airing Friday, Feb. 4. on NBC. This is the third year for "Days" to air a prime-time special preceding the "Soap Opera Digest Awards," which airs live.

James Reilly, who scripted the nighttime episode with Maura Penders. promises the hour-long program will be filled with romance and intrigue.

The show was written so that fans and those who are not so familiar with "Days" can enjoy the special.

There will be two different remotes with Bo (Robert Kelker-Kelly) and Billie (Lisa Rinna) in a tropical paradise shot in Puerto Rico, and Austin (Patrick Muldoon) and Carrie (Christie Clark) in the snow-covered mountains of Big Bear, Calif.

Then, as usual, there will be the wicked Vivian stirring up trouble at the Pine Haven sanitarium

The featured cast for this year's event includes Jaime Lyn Bauer, Jason Brooks, Christie Clark, Bryan Dattilo, Ivan G'Vera and Melissa Reeves.

Last year's special served as a catalyst for events that are still being played out. Fans may remember the gala celebration held at Titan Publishing, where John (Drake Hogestyn) would not leave Marlena alone (Deidre Hall). (They later made a baby together, which caused a great deal of problems, because Marlena is married to Roman.)

It was also the night when the disgruntled boxing promoter, Gus, threw acid on Carrie's face. (Carrie and Austin eventually broke up because she didn't want him to feel sorry for her )

Carly (Crystal Chappell) was trying desperately to get Nicky (Erik Von Detten) out of the country and was shocked when Lawrence (Michael Sabatino) showed up to help her. (Carly, Lawrence and Nikki ended up leaving Salem for good.)

It will be interesting to see what happens with the story lines from this year's special.
