Streetscape project on track

The street and sidewalk renovation project for downtown Plymouth could proceed in 1994. Things are up in the air as far as the project's getting under way, according to Downtown Development Authority and city officials.

BY KEVIN BROWN

The downtown street and sidewalk renovation project put on hold last year could get the go-ahead this year, city officials say.

But beginning work on the long-delayed project is no sure thing. "It's kind of open right now," said Steve Guile, Plymouth Downtown Development Authority director, who added, "We'd like to break ground sometime this year." First, the March 15 ballot issue.

Proposal A, must be decided. It would lower property taxes while raising the sales tax to 6 percent.

'If it passes then DDAs will no longer be able to capture any money at all, which makes it difficult to finance the project unless it's financed mostly by special assessments." Guile said.

Under a special-assessment scheme, downtown businesses would be assessed so much per square foot of store frontage to pay for the project.

"If the ballot proposal fails, DDAs will be able to capture funds to get enough money to make up the difference between the existing bond debt and expenditures," he said

Guile said that if Proposal A fails, the state would guarantee to back bond payments of $180,000 per year for the $2.4-million project, to be paid off in 15 years.

To win the state guarantee - if "A" fails - the city would have to Thomas refused to allow bus critic Ted Bohlen, a retired General Motors attorney from Plymouth, to speak.

Bohlen asked why the board, with little data at its disposal, rubberstamped administrative recommen-

Hoekstra Truck and Equipment Co. of Grand Rapids and five other Michigan distributors pleaded guilty last August to bilking school districts by rigging bids for school buses, Hoekstra; Wolverine Transportation

Bohlen asked why information about the indictment was withheld from the board, and why the single other bidder - AmTran Corporation's Genesis - was dismissed by transportation director Dale Goby as not having met specifications.

Bohlen also asked what the specifi-

The popular Italian Cucina restaurant is slated to change hands and change names. Pending Plymouth Township and state approval for a liquor license transfer, the restaurant is slated to become the Water Club Bar & Grill, an "upscale yet affordable seafood restaurant," said general manager John Cleveland.

"We're hoping April is when that will all happen," he said.

A month ago, as part of the change in ownership, Cleveland became general manager of the Italian Cucina, 39500 Ann Arbor Road.

Cleveland had worked 14 years for restaurateur Chuck Muer. "From him I learned a service orientation, ensuring the quality of food and service, making sure my guests feel important while they're dining with me, and the importance of the owner being in the restaurant. It builds quality and trust," Cleveland said.

While he said 60-70 percent of the menu will be seafood, 30 to 40 percent will be pasta, chicken and red meats.

After leaving the Muer company, "I spent the last 10 months looking for a restaurant in the Plymouth area," said Cleveland, who lives in Ypsilanti Township.

Why Plymouth? "It's centrally located to markets I've done business in - Plymouth, Ann Arbor and Northville. The demographics were excellent for a seafood restaurant.

"What I want to create is a restaurant that is part of the community, a showplace, a gathering place for the community.

No injuries in blaze at Adistra

Plymouth and Plymouth Township firefighters were called to put out an elevator shaft fire at 2:47 p.m. Monday at Adistra Corp. on Union Street.

An electrical motor apparently overheated and a wooden floor caught fire. No one was trapped in the building's elevator, nor was anyone injured in the blaze, extinguished within moments by firefighters using an aerial truck and other equipment.

The fire was unrelated to the three-week-old strike ongoing at Adistra, said Plymouth fire Chief Al Matthews.

We had a concern about debris dropping down to the shaft into wood structures below," said Matthews. The fire was contained before that happened.

'There's a huge motor at the top of the elevator shaft on a pulley system. It was on fire, as well as the wood floor below," he said.

Buses from page 1A

Thomas and Goby said Hoeks-tra's Thomas MVP bus is believed to be superior to the Genesis. They acknowledged Grand Rapids schools use Genesis buses, but said that Genesis is a relatively new introduction to the school bus market. They added that the vehicles are not yet proven in Michigan school bus applications. Unlike Hoekstra's bus -35 of which the board has purchased at a minimum of $65,276 each - the Genesis bus does not have rear-mounted engines; twoway radios; engine pre-heaters; and other features.

Bid questioned

"The Genesis bid at the very least was very deceptive and may have been fraudulent," Thomas said. "I believe the job Dale Goby and his staff have done is nothing short of outstanding."

The administration was aware of the indictment and the plea entered by Hoekstra, said Goby. "The knowledge of the indictment was not intentionally kept from the board. It was felt these charges stemmed from bidding arrangements used up to 1988 and were not germane to the purchase of buses at this time."

Bohlen also questioned why buses are traded in, rather than sold to the highest bidder at a better price.

Goby said the district maintains the right to do that, and has done so in the past.

Bohlen said the district in one recent instance took a lesser trade-in value despite a higher of-

"The Salvation Army in Plymouth wanted to buy one of the buses from Plymouth-Canton. They went over to them a number of times and got no response," he

The Salvation Army was interested in one of the 15 buses the district traded into Hoekstra for $800 apiece. The Salvation Army ended up buying a used bus from Hoekstra for $3,000, said Bohlen.

Board attitude

Bohlen said what concerns him most is the district's cavalier attitude. "We're talking about highticket items, and they're saying to the board, 'Don't worry; trust us. We'll judge what the board is told.' How can the board pass judgment on bus purchases when they don't have any of the data? They walk through the thing as if they're a rubber stamp.'

As for Goby's contention that buses with rear-mounted engines are safer, Bohlen said, "An overwhelming majority of school buses have front-mounted engines. If what he says is true, half of Plymouth-Canton's buses are hazardous."

Bohlen said he was disappointed he wasn't allowed to speak. 'Mr. Thomas up to last night had always stated, 'If you have any comments to make on agenda items, hold them until we go through the agenda and we'll discuss them.' Last night, he changed the rules."

But if "A" passes, money for the project is less sure. "The way it stands is DDAs would no longer be able to capture any school millage at all," Guile said.

Money from the state's general fund would be guaranteed to back remaining bond payments on the downtown parking deck, but that's all, under current plans if "A" passes.

"There may be the possibility that when all is said and done the situation may not be as severe as first we feared," Guile said, "but we have no way of knowing that."

The way it stands is DDAs would no longer be able to capture any school miliage at all."

Guile said it's possible that if "A" passes, legislators will decide to step in and find some way to help fund Downtown Development Authority projects.

Guile and city manager Steve Walters are to discuss alternatives and report to the city com-

Livonia man heads car seat drive for kids

County gives green light to 14 area roads

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Livonia resident James Mariani wants more people to restrain their children - out of love and concern.

Urban sprawl: SEMCOG report says slow it down

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Without a peep of controversy, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has adopted a strategy report to slow down "urban sprawl" - the development of suburban open space with little population increase.

SEMCOG's General Assembly last week approved a 40-page strategy to save older cities and infrastructure, including reclaiming contaminated sites.

Revitalizing Urban Communities" contained no hint of the charge of "racism," which deeply offended Oakland, western Wayne and Macomb delegates two years ago during debase over the Regional Development Initiative (RDI).

The new document started in the RDI," said John Amberger, SEMCQG's executive director. "There were five major findings in RDI. One was that we need to do a better job at the suburban level of managing growth so it doesn't turn into sprawl.

"If we can have quality growth in the suburbs, and don't just suck out jobs, that's part of the equation," Amberger said. "It (the new report) is positive for older areas.

People shifted

Crux of the problem: SEMCOG expects the amount of developed land to increase 40 percent in the seven-county region in 20 years while population rises only 6 percent - a shifting of people without real growth.

Twin evils: abandonment of older, built-up areas and heavy taxpayer burdens to serve newly developed land.

"Cooperation between urban centers and their surrounding suburbs could be enhanced," the SEMCOG policy says. "By joining together, all communities in the region will enjoy greater economic success.'

One recommendation calls for "quick take" laws allowing older communities to assemble the large land parcels required by modern industry. Another would allow property tax breaks to be giving only by "disinvested areas" to end the bidding war between SEMCOG points a finger of blame at a law it once praised -PA 233 of 1990, the so-called "Polluters Pay" act. The planning agency now says the law "tightly restricts" redevelopment of land in urban areas.

SEMCOG continues its call for a stronger public transit system, noting 33 percent of Detroit families and 12 percent in the region have no auto.

Amberger said the "Revitalizing" report benefited from much suburban input. Task force members included Joan Buser, Oakland Township supervisor; Don Gross, Southfield community development director; Tim Pope, Novi councilman and aide to Sen. David Honigman of West Bloomfield; Nancy Bates, an aide to Rep. Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills; and officials from such Wayne County communities as Dearborn, Southgate and Grosse Pointe Farms.

"It's an absolutely superb work," said Amberger. "We'd like to get a copy into the hands of every zoning official in the region, and even the state."

Oakland Township's Buser, outlining the work, said it would help suburban officials retain open space and the character of their communities even as development arrives.

Prosecutor's office gets new western Wayne chief

Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair has promoted Raymond P. Walsh, 47, of Northville Township, a 20-year veteran of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, to be new chief of the prosecutor's western Wayne Office at 3000 Henry Ruff Road in Westland.

Walsh replaces Howard (Mickey) Philippart Jr., a Redford Township resident who is retiring in April after 26 years with the prosecutor's office, the last two years as chief of the western Wayne office. "Mickey Philippart, and Bob

"Mickey Philippart, and Bob Sage before him, were prosecutor's prosecutors — pillars of support to the police agencies in western Wayne County," O'Hair

"Ray Walsh has big shoes to fill, and I have every confidence that western Wayne will be very pleased with the dedication and commitment to public safety of Ray Walsh." In 1987, Walsh was picked "man of the year" by the Michigan Department of Agriculture for prosecuting gasoline station operators who "shorted" customers.

Walsh and his wife, Susan, are the parents of two teenage daughters, Meridith and Georganna.

Walsh is a graduate of Northern Illinois University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in 1970, and of Wayne State University School of Law, where he earned his juris doctorate in 1973. He has extensive experience in criminal trials and appeals. For the last five years, he has specialized in warrant approval and has been the assistant prosecutor assigned to work directly with the Detroit Police Department on its campaign against illegal drugs.

campaign against illegal drugs.
Walsh's professional publications include: contributing editor,
"Investigating and Prosecuting
Obscenity Cases," Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan (Higgins Lake, 1991); contributor, annual survey, "State of the Law, Criminal Law," Institute of Continuing Legal Education (Ann Arbor, 1979 and 1978); author of "History and Law of Detention in Michigan," State Bar of Michigan, Criminal Law Section (Mackinaw, 1978); contributing editor to "Habitual Offender Manual," Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan (Lansing, 1977).

In 1993, he was honored by the American Family Association of Michigan.

The prosecutor's Western Wayne Office handles approval of requests for arrest warrants from suburban police departments, preliminary examinations in 24 suburban district courts on felony cases, and all misdemeanors and traffic violations committed in the out-county area through completion of trial.

In announcing the appointment, O'Hair said: "Our western Wayne office has been very fortunate in having had excellent leadership from committed public servants during my tenure as prosecutor."

Grant puts kids on superhighway

Students at Canton High School and Salem High School will benefit from an Ameritech grant. The grant will provide high-tech equipment to be used to help students learn.

BY SUSAN ROSIEK AND M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITERS

Canton and Salem High School students will take their first ride on the so-called information superhighway thanks to a $535,000 grant from Ameritech. School officials and students along with a host of Plymouth and Canton government leaders were on hand Monday as Ameritech vice president Stephen Economy presented the money that will establish research and distance learning centers at the two high schools.

Student talk: Students communicate with each other using the new technology.

ing, Economy told the group that Ameritech's corporate goal is "to make schools better." Economy said the company is committed to "providing schools with the tools to move in a positive direction."

Hi-tech tools

The tools include personal computers, projection television sets, laserdisc players, CD ROM players and printers. The equipment will allow students to access electronic bulletin boards via the Internet (an international computer network that links government agencies, universities, corporations and individuals) and Info Track and use other multimedia applications.

The distance learning centers will contain television monitors, TV cameras, light and sound systems and video cassette recorders. Students may debate and discuss issues via interactive satellite TV with other students, local business leaders and legislators.

The centers will be used initially by students in the Close Up program, a hands-on method of teaching government used in high schools across the country.

Singled out Monday for special recognition by Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben were Plymouth-Canton taxpayers who passed the 1992 bond issue which will help to "provide technology described as being on the cuttingedge" and Close Up government teachers Mike McCauley and Bill Gretzinger, who were responsible for writing the grant proposal awarded by Ameritech.

Learning: Students use new equipment to communicate.

'A legacy'

"We want our students to navigate the information superhighway," said Gretzinger, who added that the learning centers are "a dream and legacy for future citizens.'

McCauley thanked the Close Up students who worked so hard in the 1992 bond issue.

These seniors won't be able to enjoy the fruits of their labor, but it's because of all their hard work that the bond issue passed," said McCauley, who pointed out that only 9.8 percent of eligible voters in the Plymouth-Canton district cast ballots in that election.

McCauley said Close Up students identified the "yes" votes and helped to get out the vote out on election day.

McCauley said the burden is now on teachers "to produce."

Both teachers said the grant will dramatically change the 20th century factory model of a civics education where students sit in rows and the teacher lectures.

"The learning resource center. distance learning town hall meeting and video studio will allow the learner to understand and prepare themselves for responsible citizenship.

"The Year 2000 goals of the United States government will be fulfilled by this grant because students can work at their own pace.

"Students can interact with other high school students throughout America.

"Lastly students will solve current problems using simulations and interactive software about the Constitution and the Bill of Rights," said Gretzinger and McCauley in a prepared statement after Monday's check presentation

Schools lead the way

can the landscape along the so-called information superhighway and what you see spells excitement - especially for students in Plymouth-Canton schools.

Computer bulletin boards and video conferences will allow for on-line seminars - linking students and teachers from anywhere in the world. Customized learning on any topic with the integration of various media (voice, picture and text) can provide a quicker and deeper level

Plymouth-Canton schools are being equipped with the technology - personal computers, CD-ROM players, projection television sets, laserdisc players, and printers - that will make it all possible.

Earlier this week, two very determined Close Up government teachers - Mike McCauley and Bill Gretzinger - were on hand to see their hard work pay off when Ameritech awarded the district $525,000 to establish research and distance learning centers at Canton and Salem high schools.

Congratulations, Mike and Bill, for your persistence and innovation.

The two - teaching partners and friends pursued the grant money because they believe strongly that technology is an exciting tool for learning and teaching. Their hard work has paid off, and now Close Up program students will be the first to use the centers.

The distance learning centers will contain television monitors, TV cameras, light and sound systems, and videocassette recorders. Students may debate and discuss issues via interactive satellite TV with other students, local business leaders and legislators.

There are other visionaries in this district to be commended on the technology issue: Superintendent John Hoben, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, and local taxpavers who approved a bond issue two years ago to equip all schools with state-of-the art technology.

■ The reason that this is a "winwin" for both Oakland University and for Detroit is that moving the law school would free up land for another purpose. DCL sits on land that currently is rumored for the location of the proposed new Tiger stadium. The DCL land is relatively tight for a campus but spacious enough for added parking or other stadium-related uses.

Hoben and school trustees had the foresight years ago to set the district on a course that would embrace, not fear, technological change. And Hoben's strategic planning will pay off handsomely for local students who will use the technology.

Students learn by visualizing things, and animation and audio help them visualize. Computers personalize learning. An electronic book which uses text, graphics and audio can help guide a student through a complex math problem, a civics lesson, a foreign language or a complex science experiment.

It's a whole new frontier as far as learning and teaching are concerned. But while exciting to some, the new technology is frightening to many.

As on any new frontier, there are risks and rewards.

The district has prepared itself well, but much still needs to be done. Teachers must become comfortable and must adjust to the technological classroom, and parents, too, must be educated.

But we believe the rewards outweigh the risks this district must take to prepare students and teachers for a ride along the information superhighway.

etroit College of Law is thinking about hitting Eight Mile, a phrase that has come to hold very negative connotations. This move, though, to Oakland University is one that affects Detroit little and could have a tremendous impact on Oakland County.

In the hub of Detroit are currently three law schools - the University of Detroit on Jefferson, DCL on Elizabeth and the Wayne State University Law School. Those three are more than half of the law schools in the entire state. (The other two are the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor and Cooley Law School in Lansing.) Losing one law school in Detroit would have little impact on the city.

Although it's still in its earliest stage of talks, DCL is thinking of being an independent college located on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. There is no law school currently in Oakland County, and a third of DCL's student body is composed of Oakland County residents. We see it as an added convenience for Oakland County residents who don't want to travel 20 or 30 miles to class each day.

Additionally, should the law school stay in Detroit and the new Tiger stadium be built, DCL officials worry about the impact on its students. DCL Dean Dave Favre already is concerned that a stadium so close to the Elizabeth Street campus would make it difficult for night students to attend night classes.

The move would also be a feather in the cap of Oakland University. The campus would offer a variety of opportunities to Oakland County residents, offering everything from bachelor's degrees to law degrees without ever having to seek new surroundings.

The reason that this is a "win-win" for both Oakland University and for Detroit is that moving the law school would free up land for another purpose. DCL sits on land that currently is rumored for the location of the proposed new Tiger stadium. The DCL land is relatively tight for a campus but spacious enough for added parking or other stadium-related uses.

The transformation of the land from school to business puts the land back on the city of Detroit's tax rolls, since educational institutions are tax-exempt. The added available space also gives Tigers' owner Mike Ilitch a more concentrated center of development.

Freeing up the land will also give Detroit the opportunity to establish the area with its own identity. The area near Woodward Avenue easily could become the entertainment center of Detroit, providing everything from baseball to theater to a major comedy club.

Proposal A is fair. It spreads the tax burden evenly to all consumers, including tourists who enjoy our recreational facilities.

The opposition to Proposal A comes from outside our boundaries. It is choreographed by opulent special interest groups cloaked in their own self-serving agenda. Their tactics are confusion and deception. However, the voters of Michigan will not be swayed by chicanery.

am a concerned staff member of the Michigan Peer Review Organization, a company that evaluates the quality of care received by Medicare and Medicaid patients in the state of Michigan.

We are not only statewide but linked nationally with similar organizations. We work with physicians and hospitals in order to improve performance, quality of care, and furnish appropriate follow-up procedures in situations where care was inadequate.

Whatever happened to "for the people"? Well, health care is for the people, and the debate over health care reform seems to have forgotten that. Quality should be the chief concern in health care today: Clinton's health care reform legislation does not offer the protection of knowing there's an organization out there overseeing the quality of care our families deserve.

Thank you for taking the time to hear my point of view regarding these concerns.

Support legal challenge

here is a third choice! Proposal "A" and the "Blackmail" backup statutory plan do not represent a choice between the sales tax and the income tax, nor the Democratic plan versus the Republican plan. They represent the actions of an arrogant and deceitful government who, having lost fairly several elections in the past, is now trying to force you to accept a massive tax increase and the loss of your constitutional right to tax limitation and tax fairness.

The uniformity clause in the constitution is destroyed by Proposal "A" and seriously violated by the statutory plan. This includes both the uniformity of property assessments and property tax millages levied. The door will be wide open for tax discrimination! Both proposals immediately discriminate against business people, renters and other people foolish enough to have invested in Michigan. Under Proposal "A," they will pay four times the property tax of single-family owners, twice as much under the "Blackmail" plan. Remember, if you grant the government the power to do this to your neighbor, you give them the right to do the same damn thing to you!

Both proposals also nullify the property tax limitations of Article 9, Section 6 of the Michigan Constitution. A state education authority is created for the sole purpose of levying property taxes which will be exempt from these limitations. Local school boards may vote to become authorities, thus exempting their taxes from these limitations. The stated property tax limits in these proposals of 6 or 12 mills on homesteads and 24 mills on non homesteads are sinking fund millages. Many property owners will pay more property taxes than they currently

To add insult to injury, Proposal "A" takes away your right to vote on future school tax increases and grants this right to the legislature!

The proposed sales tax or income tax increases are less than 18 percent of this total school spending program, which has been increased by $1.2 billion. Obviously, many other taxes are increased, such as land transfer taxes, single business taxes, cigarette and tobacco taxes and tele-

All of this is supposedly being done for education and school finance reform, neither of which is accomplished by either proposal! The funds behind each student will still be unequal and the little education reform involved pushes us further down the path of outcome-based education and school intervention in student privacy and parental rights. The funds raised by these proposals are not earmarked for kindergarten through 12th-grade education. They may be used for higher education and school employee retirement costs, the proportion of which will be determined by the legislature.

You do not have to choose the lessor of these two evils! Defeat Proposal "A" at the ballot and support Taxpayers United in mounting a legal challenge to the unconstitutional and illegal statutory plan.

Tonya Harding deserves a measure of respect

ive Tonya Harding a break!

I hereby declare myself the first media person to say something nice about Harding.

Frankly, it amazes me that no one else has risen to say something decent about the poor woman.

Can't somebody around here show a fellow human being a little sympathy? And if she's so bad, are we any better for trashing her at every opportunity?

I'm embarrassed for my media brothers and sisters, for their shameful followthe-crowd behavior.

But that's the way journalism is these days. Be like everybody else; don't think

The way I'd always heard it, folks into journalism felt for the underdog. They wanted to explore the other side of a sto-

What a hoot. I saw nor heard not one word of sympathy for Harding during the Olympics, on newspapers or TV.

When Tonya had that problem with her skate lace, the TV announcers were so anti-Harding that none thought to explore the idea that maybe she really had a problem.

Her tears moved them not one bit. Instead, they commented, "Just incredible" and "This is unprecedented."

If Nancy Kerrigan had a problem with her skate lace, you can bet Connie Chung would be grilling the lace maker and "Inside Edition" would want the company

KEVIN BROWN

Can't somebody around here show a fellow human being a little sympathy?

No media person examined the possibility that Harding had guts to go out and do a good routine even after stopping earlier. That's right - Tonya Harding has some good points.
Sure, if Harding helped plan to have

And maybe the whole skate lace thing was just as some said — another example of Harding being a handful. The point is, we don't really know

Even if she were guilty of the worst people think of her - and she's not been found guilty of anything - it wouldn't have killed anyone to get behind Harding a little bit when it was her chance to

And call it old-fashioned, but I find it cowardly for men to beat up on a woman. In the Detroit papers, there were plenty of big tough men whacking little Tonya

One called her the "wicked witch of the west." Another big-shot columnist made fun of her skating dress

Maybe I just don't get it. Everybody seems to hate Harding, so I'm supposed to, too. Sorry, gang. Count me out. Maybe Tonya Harding's behavior is lacking in some areas. But we're not doing any better.

Farmers get break if 'A' passes

sually I answer readers' questions about Proposal A in the news columns. But last week one question called for both facts and opinion, which I herewith supply.

I live in Detroit and own 19 acres on Buno Road (Milford Township). I see a bias in this school finance reform plan against a person who owns agricultural property . .

Count them, and you will find agribusiness people have many advantages over their city and suburban cousins under the new school finance laws.

Not only do agri-business people get the lower residential property tax rate (6 or 12 mills) on their homesteads, but they also get it on contiguous and adjacent farmland that is unoccupied the business part of their property. They will pay the full 24 mills only on non-contiguous land and on land they rent to someone else.

Contrast this with the treatment given city folks:

■ The small-town Main Street merchant who lives upstairs from his store pays 24 mills on the downstairs portion of his property.

■ The college-town widow who rents a couple of rooms to students gets the homestead rate only on the part of the home she occupies. The students' quarters will be taxed the full 24 mills.

All along, agri-businesses have had special advantages.

TIM RICHARD

Remember the Robin Hood act in which property taxes on city and suburban commerce and industry were to be shared? Rural districts would take a share of city and suburban business taxes, but farmers wouldn't have to share taxes on agri-businesses, which are considered residential.

The school finance reform movement was fueled on the farm. Remember that comparison of poor districts spending $2,500 per student while rich ones spent $9,000?

Many poor districts' problems could have been alleviated by consolidation sharing of taxes and administrative costs. Give Midland County farmers a cut of the Dow plant by making a countywide district. Give Berrien County farmers a cut of the nuclear plant's taxes by consolidating the rural districts around Bridgman.

Two state senators who suggested such a common-sense solution got burned. Suburbanite Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and city man John Schwarz of Battle Creek learned the hard way that small town politics are extremely important to agri-business people, and consolidation is heresy, even if their kids got better-run and better-financed schools.

Well, the Robin Hood law was tied up in court, and now we have a reform plan that shares all property taxes statewide.

The cap on assessments in Proposal A will benefit lakefront homeowners, but we tend to overlook its special benefit to agri-business in growth corridors. Assessment growth would be limited to 5 percent until the agri-business person sells to an industrial park developer or mega-mall.

Such are the facts. You also asked for an opinion.

Not content with these advantages, agri-businessmen are demanding that all farm property be taxed as residential - even disjointed pieces, even farms owned as investments, even rented farm land.

My opinion is that any further picking of the public pocket by agri-business would be immoral and selfish bevond belief.

olumnists and other suburbanites are quite generous with advice and admonitions for Detroiters and our new mayor.

By way of returning the favor, let me suggest that our suburban brothers and sisters do the following:

1. Begin by making a commitment to finally dismantle the racist segregation that state and federal government mandated until just 45 years ago and that government continued to reinforce by penalizing the neighborhoods where African-Americans reside and by steering investment, real estate demand, and tax base away from them.

There are many white victims of this white racism, such as residents of Detroit and close-in suburbs stuck with the bill for benefits for retired municipal employees left behind by those who fled to new suburbs without retirees. Other victims are those left behind when a beloved religious institution

2. Re-establish the interfaith centers for racial justice.

3. Send donations to the Fair Housing Center and apply to be a volunteer.

4. Ask your state senator and representative to make sure that class sizes in the Detroit schools are as small as those of the most privileged suburb.

5. Make sure that the business people of your community are hiring the graduates of Detroit and other high

6. Make sure your county and municipal governments hire African-Americans and other disadvantaged minorities as police officers, firefighters, recreation leaders, etc.

7. Tell your county and municipal government to stop using contractors and vendors that exclude African-American job-seekers.

8. Ask your local government to provide financial support for public trans-

9. End the subliminal suburban socialism that subsidizes fringe development in this region.

10. Ask your county and municipal government to support the cultural institutions that are supported by Detroit but used mostly by suburbanites. Your municipal recreation department could bus senior citizens to the Symphony concerts or to the Art Institute.

Institutionalized racism is "America's original sin." But we can get it off our backs, if we work together. Our children (all our children) will thank hen I was younger, winters didn't seem to go on this long.

U-M flower and garden show brings spring a little bit closer

There was hockey on the pond, with hot cocoa afterward. I looked forward to the occasional snowstorm, if only because there would be skiing afterward. And there was always a fire in the fireplace and a warm spot to sit and read.

But this year, it seems winter has gone on forever. Here we are at the beginning of March, the snow is still on the ground, and the deep frost is still freezing the water pipes.

Worse, the flower and vegetable catalogs start fluttering through the mail at this time of the year. Looking at the bright pictures on the newest rose or thinking about planting strawberries take on a certain fictional quality when it's below-zero outside.

Coming up, however, is a good reality check: The Flower and Garden Show, sponsored by the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens, will open March 24 for four days at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds east of Ann Arbor.

This year's show will feature an acre of professionally designed landscapes and more than 500 horticultural and floral design exhibits. For those who are serious about their gardening, there is also a Standard Flower Show produced in cooperation with the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan.

The show also benefits a very good and very under-reported cause, the Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Located on an enormous piece of land given to the U-M years ago by former Regent Frederick C. The gardens adopted a new statement of purpose: "We aim to contribute to a better quality of life for the world community by maintaining a living museum and plant sanctuary where a dynamic interaction of scientific, educational and aesthetic pursuits can take place within the context of a world-class university." A Friends organization was launched to raise money. Birmingham's Frederick Matthaei Jr., son of the original donor, has continued his family's tradition of generous giving.

So if you want to get a jump on spring, get a few gardening tips and at the same time give support to a good cause, you might want to check out the Flower and Garden Show. I'll see you there.

Readers' questions on Proposal A answered here

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

This is the final installment of answers to readers' questions about Proposal A on the March

Q. Is the real estate transfer tax deductible on the income

A. No, says the state treasurer's office.

Currently, the Legislature has reduced the rate to 0.75 percent, or $750 per $100,000. Lawmakers are dickering over whether to give the cut immediate effect. Best guess: They'll vote immediate effect after the March 15 election.

Q. On the question of putting your Social Security number on the homestead affidavit (to get the lower property tax rate), your facts are totally erroneous. The federal Privacy Act protects your Social Security number. You should feel pretty bad about misleading the community. Shame on you!

A. Better check Section 42 USC 405 (c)(2)(C)(i), (v) and (vii) the Social Security Act, which permits state and federal tax collectors to request Social Security numbers.

If you withhold the number from your affidavit, Treasury's

Treasury hasn't worked out-what will happen next. Lansing will either ask you for other proof (unspecified) or assign its staff to look up your Social Security number, which already is on your state income tax return.

Twin results: Your exemption will be delayed, possibly costing you money, and the costs of state government will go up, draining the general fund budget.

Q. Must I file an affidavit if I don't think I'm eligible for the homestead rate?

A. No. If you sign the affidavit, you're saying you are eligible. It's for homeowners and only for the domicile, or principal residence.

Q. My husband was transferred here. We're renting temporarily. Our house in western Michigan is for sale but empty. Are we eligible for the homestead rate?

A. You must own and occupy your principal residence to be eligible for the homestead rate.

But there's hope. Lawmakers are working on a system of prorating the tax for the months in which you occupied the home. Meanwhile, the governor has ordered the Treasury Department to set up an appeals process.

Q. I'm due in the hospital for surgery March 15, election day. How can I vote?

A. Contact your local (city or township) clerk immediately and ask for an absentee ballot appli-

Q. I live in foster care but keep my own home. Am I enti-tled to the homestead exemption? I get confused answers. The assessor says I should file for it.

A. "Yes, unless the home is occupied by someone other than your spouse or dependents," says

Q. My daughter and I are coowners of each others' homes. I live in Detroit, and she lives in Livonia. We signed each other's homestead affidavits. How can we correct the mistake?

A. Yes, you did make a mistake by signing two affidavits. But you

You should file in Detroit and your daughter in Livonia because that's where you live. Q. I'd like to see both proposals in print. A. There's only one proposal -

A on the March 15 ballot. Plan B is the legislative backup plan, which becomes law automatically if Proposal A is defeated.

Proposal A will be summarized in 100 words on the ballot. Actually, it is an amendment to Article IX of the Michigan Constitution and runs a couple thousand words. Moreover, its adoption will affect 26 different statutes running into hundreds of pages.

Plan B consists of the aforementioned statutes.

Statutes affecting school finance reform are: PA 312-314, 322-334, 336, 338 and 340.

Statutes affecting education reform are: PA 318, 320-321, 335, 337, 339 and 362.

Our newspapers and the dailies have printed many stories adequately summarizing the plans. Suggestion: Pay no attention to the bombastic TV commercials that began last week and will run through election day.

Q. I'd like to see a list of major supporters on each side.

A. For Proposal A: Gov. John Engler, Michigan Chamber of Commerce, business groups in general, Michigan Townships Association.

Opposed: Democratic gubernatorial candidates, Michigan Education Association, major labor unions, League of Women Voters, Michigan Municipal League.

The tobacco industry is rumored to be planning to spend megabucks because Proposal A would raise the cigarette tax (currently 25 cents a pack) to 75 cents while the backup plan would raise it to 40 cents. Michigan is a crucial state for the tobacco industry because many neighboring states may raise their tobacco taxes if voters here approve Proposal A.

Many state legislators are keep-ing their mouths shut and catering to local concerns. As a broad generality, Republicans back A,

Democrats oppose it.

Q. You said the sales tax was raised to 4 percent in the early 1960s. I remember it as being passed in the 1940s .

A. Our copy of the Michigan Constitution as of 1960 still says 3 percent. The fourth cent was added in the early '60s, but was general purpose money.

Your lengthy question asks what makes this sales tax increase different. Under Proposal A, the sales tax increase is dedicated to schools, not the general

Chiefs clobber ailin' Salem

Coach gone, top player ailing . . . there were a lot of obstacles blocking Salem's drive to the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game. The greatest, however, emerged in the second quarter Tuesday - Canton, the hottest team in the league.

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Talk about wins and losses if you must, but coaches use a different measuring stick when evaluating their team - growth.

If a team grows and improves as the season progresses, then the coach feels he's getting his message across.

Prime example: Plymouth Canton. The Chiefs met cross-parking lot rival Plymouth Salem in their first Western Lakes Activities Association game of the regular season in January and lost 64-57.

Now if they were going to reach their pre-season objective - as stated by coach Dave VanWagoner, "We told them the first day of practice our goal was to get to the (WLAA) championship game," - something was going to have to change. Since there was little hope of their growing physically (their tallest starter is only 6foot-3), the Chiefs had to find another

They did, and for the past six weeks their perfected formula has been working at full speed. Which is what destroyed Salem Tuesday. Canton's speed and defensive quickness wore out the Rocks, 68-52, at Salem in a WLAA semifinal.

The Chiefs, now 13-6, go up against Farmington (13-6) in the WLAA championship game at approximately 7:30 p.m. Friday at Northville. Salem (16-3) plays Northville (12-7) in the consolation game at 6 p.m. at North-

"I think our defense took them out of anything they did," said VanWagoner, calling it the "Arkansas defense," which he defines as "full-court man-to-man pressure," the same kind applied by the No. 1ranked Razorbacks.

It was refined after the last meeting between Canton and Salem, something not lost on Salem assistant coach Craig Bell. "We saw that same kind of defense, but it was early in the year," Bell said. "And they've gotten a lot better at it."

Bell, Rick Wilson and Tom Williams were filling in for Salem coach Bob Brodie, whose 14-year-old son Joe was seriously hurt in a skiing accident Feb. 24. Joe suffered a neck injury; he underwent six hours of surgery Tuesday, during which part of his hip bone was fused into the vertebrae in his neck.

Latest word regarding Joe was optimistic: He had movement in his arms and legs, but had suffered nerve damage. Still, the prognosis was promising for a full recovery.

The Rocks had "JB" taped to their jerseys in a show of support for their coach's son. However, there was nothing they could do to help their star, 6-6 forward James Head, who was still suffering from a virus first contracted two weeks earlier.

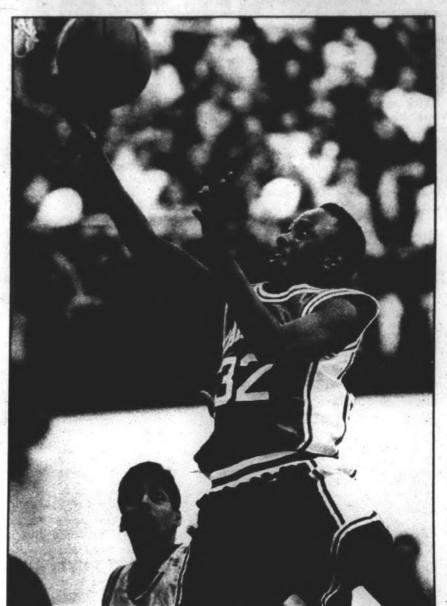

Head was nearly a nonentity in the first half, scoring five points on 2-of-5 shooting. He came out far more determined in the second, scoring nine of Salem's 17 third-quarter points and helping the Rocks trim Canton's 11point halftime bulge to five, 47-42, late in the third quarter.

But a pair of Tadarius Rachal baskets in the last 1:16 of the third pushed the Chiefs' lead back to nine (51-42). The fourth quarter belonged to Matt Paupore, Canton's 6-2 guard.

Madonna falls in finale

Some may think Bill Sharpe, coach of Madonna University's fledgling men's basketball program, welcomed the end of his first season with a sigh of relief. Not so.

The Fighting Crusaders bowed to Spring Arbor 102-90 at Spring Arbor, ending their first season of men's hoop in five years with a disappointing 2-30 record. But while the season was certainly trying, the end was not. 'It was their best effort of the year," Sharpe said of his team's play against the Cougars. "They started five seniors and we started five freshmen. They're one of the two best teams in the WHAC (Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference), and we played with them for 40 minutes. Unfortunately, it wasn't enough to put one in the win column. Spring Arbor (20-11) led 54-45 at the half, thanks in part to Madonna's poor performance at the free-throw line (5-of-12, 42 percent; Spring Arbor was 10-of-15, 67 percent).

In the second half, the Crusaders' poor shooting spread to the floor - they were 13-of-45 over the last 20 minutes (29 percent), one very good reason why they never got closer than six.

Mike Slone (from Plymouth Salem) enjoyed his best game of the season, connecting on 9-of-15 from the floor (60 percent), including 6-of-10 three-pointers.

Jason McNab added 16 points, eight rebounds and three blocked shots, Shawn Branum scored 13 and Jay Dimes finished with nine points and nine boards.

Christian Emert totaled seven points, eight assists and three

Spring Arbor got 23 points from Enzley Mitchell; 17 and nine assists from Scott Cochran; 16 and seven assists from Rvan Cottingham; and 15 apiece from Soren Campbell and Dennis Ley.

One of the bright spots for Madonna - rebounding. For the first time in weeks, the Crusaders outboarded an opponent, grabbing 48 to the Cougars' 46.

"What I've seen in the last 10 games," said Sharpe. "The improvement was dramatic. Nothing makes up for losing 30 games, but I've seen a steady improvement. Some of the coaches we've played felt these kids, by the time they're juniors and seniors, will be challenging for the league title.'

Still, Sharpe won't make the same error he made before and start predicting how many games his team will win next season. "I am a little more enthusiastic than a week ago," he said. "I'm not as depressed.

"But this year I'll be cautiously optimistic instead of wildly optimistic.'

After losing 30 games, finding any optimism at all is commend-

There's no doubting the losses are considerable for Madonna University's baseball squad, which departs Friday on its 12game trip to Florida.

Gone from last season's 43-22 team, a team that won the NAIA District 23 regular-season title with a 22-4 mark, are six key players - three of them all-district performers.

"I don't think we had a weakness," coach Mike George said in examining last year's accomplishments. "I think it was as good a team as the team that won the national championship.'

That says a lot. But it doesn't say much about this year's team. Can the Fighting Crusaders match that performance?

George thinks yes. Sure, he has lost pitchers Shaun Hayward (three-time all-district pick, 7-0 record, 1.45 earned run average) and Mike Coleman (2-4, 3.83): second baseman Joe Brusseau (three times all-district, .310 batting average, 13 doubles, three triples, five home runs, 26 runs split time at second base. The key to Madonna's season, according to George, is at catcher. Chris Gajewski returns for his senior season (.264, 10 RBI); the question is how much catching he can do. There are no experienced substitutes - backing him up are Steve Zann (20 at-bats in '93) and

"Catching's the key," said George. "If (Gajewski) gets hurt, we won't be nearly as good."

freshman Craig Peterson.

It seems to be the only question mark, however. The pitching seems deeper and at least as good; the infield defense should be better if Miller and Pendell improve; and the outfield should be better, with Anderson patrolling center, Solak's arm in right, and Raptis and freshman Shawn Penzak adding depth.

If the snow melts by April, this could be George's finest team in his six years as Madonna coach.

enough to be tough

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

There are lots of changes fac-ing a team that reached the NAIA District 23 championship softball game last year.

First and foremost is the new face coaching the team: Jerry Abraham. While his face may be new to Madonna softball, it's hardly new to Madonna or to softball, for that matter.

Abraham has coached the Lady Crusaders' volleyball program for seven years, guiding them to a top-five finish at the NAIA Tournament last December. And he has coached Taylor Center's softball team for the past six years, posting a 132-49 record and winning four Tri-River League titles. The Rams reached the state semifinals in '89 and '90.

He also coached softball for two years at Redford Bishop Borgess, taking the Spartans to a Catholic League title in '84.

Abraham, who succeeds Dave Racer (forced to resign due to personal reasons), now must see if he can take his success with Madonna's volleyball and in high school softball to another level.

"I'm trying to establish a team concept here," said Abraham, who will also continue to coach Taylor Center's team. "Since I've taken over, the kids have worked hard. They've responded."

The overall record last season wasn't good — 18-26. But the Crusaders were 7-7 in the district's regular season, and made a strong run in the district tournament.

Although the coaching has changed, several experienced players return, bolstering Madonna's hopes. Leading the veterans are pitchers Dawn Terrasi, a senior, and Lynda Weichel, a junior.

Abraham's guideline for building a team is time-tested: "Strong up the middle." With his pitching and second baseman Mandi Armstrong, a senior, and shortstop Michelle Birchmeier, a sophomore, both returning, Madonna should fill that requirement.

His greatest concern is behind the plate. "I think catching is critical at this level - at any level," Abraham said. Jennifer Pinter, a sophomore, started and returns.

Providing leadership in the field are seniors Jill Burt at third base and Holly Jondro in the outfield. Both are threeyear starters.

Three newcomers that could have an immediate impact are Mo Paulin, a junior; Ronnie Ronco, a senior; and Jeanie Baxter, a freshman. Paulin was a four-year starter and an allleague pitcher while at Farmington Hills Mercy; she's played on Madonna's volleyball team for three years.

Baxter, an outfielder, was all-league at Redford St. Agatha last season. Ronco, a utility player, was with Abraham at Center and played two seasons at Wayne State before transfer-

There are others, some recruited from Madonna's other teams: freshmen Becca Bloch (Livonia Franklin) and Maria Liwag, both basketball players, and Jenny Czach; and Christy Pvdvn.

All will get a chance - and it probably won't look pretty, at least not at first. Madonna opens its season Saturday in Fort Myers, Fla., and the schedule is extreme. Of the 11 Florida games, seven are against solid NCAA Division I teams.

"We have a very hard schedule," conceded Abraham. "We have no weak teams here. But it's good. We're looking forward

Surviving the early-season tests with a positive mental outlook will be Abraham's first major challenge. Others will

The idea, according to O'Shea, isn't to teach coaches how to emotionally prepare their team to play. Rather, the symposium concentrates on how to play the game: passing, shooting, goalkeeping, principles of defense, officiating, etc.

All told, there are 15 hour-long sessions planned (several coincide).

O'Shea has formatted the program on the Olympic Development Program-sponsored clinics conducted by national team coaches he has attended. Those are for coaches at a higher level of expertise; O'Shea's is aimed more at the novice- to medium-range coaches.

"Really, what I'm trying to do is promote the sport and educate people about it along the way," he

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER Farmington High had a plan

to offset Northville's height advantage on the basketball court Tuesday, and the Falcons could not have been more pleased with the results.

In the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs for the first time, Farmington advanced to the final with a 61-53 victory over the visiting Mustangs.

The Falcons will play Plymouth Canton for the championship 7:30 p.m. Friday at Northville. Both teams are 13-6.

"This is probably the biggest win since we've been here," Farmington coach Denny Mikel said. "It's a great win and the kids are all excited about (being in the final)."

Canton defeated the Falcons 88-67 earlier in the season and Plymouth Salem 68-52 in the other semifinal Tuesday.

"I think we're quick, but Canton might be the quickest team in the conference," Mikel said. "We'll have to play our best game of the season to beat them, although I like the way we're playing now.' Farmington, the smaller. quicker team, forced the Mustangs out of their zone defense and was able to get inside against their taller opponents for good shots. That often resulted in the Falcons going to the free throw line where they actually won the game. Farmington sank 20 of 26, the Mustangs four of 10.

"We wanted to get them to match up and play us man-to-man," Mikel said. "If we could do that, we thought our quickness would really kick in and we would have an advantage.

"If they played man, we would have to rely on our outside shooting. I didn't want to sit outside and shoot threes all day. We wanted to attack the basket. Even if they stayed in their zone, it would spread it out and we'd be able to attack the lanes.'

The Falcons used a delay game at midcourt, passing and dribbling until the Northville defenders came out to challenge them. That usually left the middle open for Stan Lewis or Scott Menser to drive to the Menser scored 17 points to lead Farmington, and Lewis got most of his 14 at the free throw line where he made 10 of 13.

Mike Tokar had 11 points (all in the second half) to go with 10 rebounds. Steve Juncaj gave the Falcons a jump-start with eight of his 10 points (two threes) in the first quarter, and Kevin Afflerbaugh added seven points.

"Stan is the middle man on our press breaker and our zone offense," Mikel said. "We tell him to face up and attack the basket or kick it outside to the wing for a shot. He's kind of our spark plug."

Six-foot-10 center Josh Williams had 17 points for Northville (12-7), but no one else reached double figures. John Farrar had seven, Chuck Apligian and John Buser six apiece.

"I think their stalling tactic was the biggest factor," Northville coach Larry Taylor said. "I don't think their quickness hurt us as much as their holding the ball and waiting for us to come out. They were able to get behind us for easy baskets.

"I think they knew they couldn't play with us if it was a full-court game. They couldn't match up in terms of speed and height. I've never seen them play like that, so I think it was a tactic they felt they needed to beat us."

Farmington led 15-5 after one quarter, but the Mustangs rallied to within 25-20 at halftime and 41-35 after three periods. The Falcons extended the lead to 49-43, but Northville got within 51-49 with two minutes

"Every time we got within one or two, we'd give them a couple easy baskets and they'd stretch it out to five or six,' Taylor said.

Tokar was a big player at the end. His basket and two free throws made it 55-49. He rebounded a missed Northville free throw and made another himself for a seven-point lead with 56 seconds left. Farmington made 10 of 14 free throws in the last quarter.

"We got in a situation where we had the lead, and we stopped attacking somewhat because we wanted to use some of the clock," Mikel said. "We kinda went into a shell.

"So when Northville made a run, we scrapped (the control game) and went back to our normal zone offense. But it carried over and we seemed to lose some of our momentum.'

By spreading the floor, the Falcons were better able to jockey for position and rebound with the Mustangs. Jason Jackson had eight rebounds, Lewis and Juncaj six each and Afflerbaugh five.

"We'd tip, tip, tip and it would end up in their hands," Taylor said. "I think we would have controlled a lot more boards if we hadn't fought ourselves for rebounds.

This time it was Paupore. He scored 11 points, sinking all three of his floor shots and 5-of-6 free throws. His basket with 3:11 left capped a 15-2 Canton run that started with Rachal's scores ending the third quarter. The Chiefs were ahead by a comfortable 62-44 margin.

That was nearly dead right in the first half. Canton forced the Rocks into 15 turnovers in the first 16 minutes; the Chiefs had three. For the game, Salem had 24 to Canton's 12.

They remained in control the rest of the way, despite Head's third-quarter efforts. He finished with 16 points, a team-high; James McDonald added 10 and Sanj Seth had eight.

The Chiefs got 25 from Paupore and 17 from Rachal.

They also got a lot of momentum heading into the WLAA final. Canton hasn't won the league title since 1984, but, then again, Farmington's never won it.

"We finally got over the hump," said Paupore, "where we feel we can beat the good teams.'

That point was reached amid a 7-out-of-8 win streak, Paupore thought. And in the middle of that streak was an 88-67 blowout of Farmington.

Can the Chiefs repeat their success? If they can force the tempo with their "Arkansas" pressure and keep hitting the boards,

Everyone knows someone with diabetes.

Fourteen million Americans are living with diabetes. Unfortunately, more than half do not know they have it because diabetes can strike silently. Many will first learn about diabetes when they are treated for one of its complications - kidney disease, blindness, amputation, heart disease or stroke. Know the early warning signs of frequent urination, unusual thirst, extreme hunger, frequent infections or blurred vision. Vhile there is no cure for diabetes, every day research brings hope. The American Diabetes Association is the nation's leader in the fight against diabetes funding research, education and patient services.

Unexpected pregnancy turns 'Angie's' life upside down

reverent Angie (Greena Davis) has matured into a young woman with dreams and ambitions that are different from those of friends and neighbors in tightly knit Bensonhurst, Brook-

Increasingly restless with the routine of her life, Angie's growing need for personal fulfillment begins to express itself in ways that her family and friend Tina (Aida Turturro) can't understand. And when Angie becomes pregnant by her longtime boyfriend Vinnie (James Gandolfini), and begins an affair with Noel (Stephen Rea), a cultured and successful lawyer in Manhattan, everyone is aghast.

However, they really chafe when Angie decides not to marry Vinnie but still have the baby. And when the child is born, and her affair with Noel ends, Angie's whole world suddenly takes a new direction. Embarking on a journey of selfdiscovery, Angie sets out to find answers to life's toughest questions. She faces her family's darkest secrets, and learns to take responsibility for herself and her new baby, in Hollywood Pictures' and Caravan Pictures' comedy/drama "Angie." Philip Bosco and Jenny O'Hara also star.

"Angie" is directed by Martha Coolidge from a screenplay by Todd Graff, based on the novel "Angie, I Says" by Avra Wing. The producers are Larry Brezner and Patrick McCormick. Buena Vista Pictures is the distributor.

Adapted from the novel, "Angie" began its gestation in 1991 when noted film producer Larry Brezner read the book and quickly recognized its value. He specifically responded to the humor and humanity of Angie Scacciapensieri, and the series of experiences which this central character - a working woman from Bensonhurst, Brooklyn - moves through during the course of the Angie's pregnancy and birth of her child are the centerpiece of the movie, changing the direction of her life and practically everyone else around her. Never having had the benefit of experiencing pregnancy, with this role Greena Davis was presented with a delicate challenge. Director Martha Coolidge made certain that there were techical advisers to assist Davis, as well as the actors portraying doctors and nurses, and even the production and costume designers and decorators who were to bring the hospital labor room and pediatrics unit to life on

In preparing for the role Davis spoke with many women who were either pregnant or had recently given birth. She also spoke with obstetricians and specialists, and worked privately with a birth

With the mood, texture, pace and people of Bensonhurst, Brooklyn, weighing in as equally important as the details of pregnancy, Coolidge always considered shooting in this location an integral part of bring "Angie" to the screen.

Bensonhurst is a subculture in the true sense of the word," explains producer Larry Brezner. "It has its own distinctive sound, style of dress, entertainment values and cultural aspects. A large part of the intensity that makes the community what it is, is due to it being a tightly-knit neighborhood where everyone knows each other. The Italian language is still spoken from every street corner, and some of the people go as far as to live on the same street blocks with others who have immigrated or are descendants from a particular Italian village.

Rifkin was also fascinated by the challenges of sustaining one continuous chase scene in real time. "I wanted the film to have a fast-paced, documentary feel as if we're actually watching a news show. I wanted it to be as if the cameras were racing to catch the excitement of something unfolding live. The technical challenges of "The Chase" were formidable.

"We're racing at 90 miles per hour from beginning to end in this film," said Wyman. Still, top priority was given to carefully delineating the film's two leading characters: the fugitive Jack Hammond and his initially reluctant passenger, Natalie Voss. "We have to care about who's in the car," said Rifkin. "They're real underdogs, and we want the audience to be rooting for them."

don't miss too much school. For Lindsay, performing in her first play, "Charlotte's Web," is very special and exciting. This vivacious and good-natured 9-year-old continues to overcome health problems, including hearing loss, that have challenged her young life. But that has not stopped her from pursuing her dream of performing on stage.

Kalli and Lindsay have very loving, and supportive parents, Brynn and Clark, who encourage their daughters to develop their interests and talents. The Fortunes believe that people overcoming special needs and challenges in their life, like anyone else, need to be given opportunities to participate in community activities.

Twenty years ago, communities were not equipped to support people with special needs and challenges, so they could not take part in projects. All parents have hopes and dreams for their children. That is not any difterent for Lindsay. We, have hopes and dreams for both our daughters," said Lindsay's mom. "Lindsay is thrilled to be having the entire third grade of her school come to see her in 'Charlotte's Web.'

During rehearsals for the play, Kalli has helped her sister learn the music and dances, and helps her overcome her hearing challenges on stage. The Marquis Theatre staff has been equally supportive and willing to attend to Lindsay's special needs.

On display:Freelance photographer Guy Warren documents the life of the homeless in America in an upcoming exhibition at the Urban Park Gallery-Detroit Art Center.

Photographs capture life of homeless

hey are images of life in America that shatter the belief of it being the land of plenty. They are the images of people living on the edge with nowhere to go. They are the images of America's homeless

The plight of the homeless of this country hits home in a series of documentary photographs by photographer Guy Warren on exhibit Friday, March 11, through Monday, April 4, at the Urban Park-Detroit Art Center.

The exhibit's at the gallery. The opening reception will be 6-9 p.m. Friday, March 11. At that time, Warren, a Westland resident, will talk about the stories behind the haunting images.

Using the stark, sometimes harsh elements of black and white photography, Warren shows what it means to tough it out on the streets of America's major cities. Detroit, Boston, New York City, Washington, D.C., Seattle, San Diego and San Francisco serve as backdrops for the men, women and children without homes.

From disabled Vietnam veterans to the elderly. they carry all their worldly possessions in plastic bags or packed in shopping carts. From New York City to Rodeo Drive in Los Angeles, they pick through city trash bins in search of food.

They sleep in laundry carts, in homes made from cardboard boxes and in the subways of lower Manhattan. Others, unable to find an available bed in area shelters, wander the streets in search of a safe place to lay their heads at night.

Warren originated the series of photographs focusing on the homeless as a book project in the spring of 1991 because he "recognized the need to bring a greater awareness to the problem of homelessness in the U.S."

"I also felt a need to contribute whatever I could to help," he said.

Warren is asking that those who view the exhibit bring a donation of canned food, blankets or money which will be distributed to the homeless in the Detroit area.

Thanks to the generosity of Urban Park-Detroit Art Center and Laura Hardy of Nelson's Gallery in Livonia, who provided framing materials at cost and donated the labor, 50 percent of the proceeds from the sale of the prints will also benefit the homeless.

Warren has been a freelance photojournalist since 1984. It was his photographs of individuals visiting a center providing food, clothing and furniture for the needy and accompanying stories on the poor in suburbia, "Poverty: A Case of Mistaken Identity," by Observer & Eccentric staff writer Sue Mason that landed them a firstplace award for best feature in 1990 from Suburban Newspapers of America. "Granted, the problem of homelessness is of enormous proportion all across the United States," said Warren. "It is obvious that I can't even begin to scratch the surface of the problem but I can help.

Urban Park is at 508 Monroe in Greektown's Trapper's Alley.

SUBURBAN LIFE

Another character: Judy Kulchar of Livonia is one of characters in the Parlour Theatre Productions' latest effort. "Steel Magnolias."

Live theater in your neighborhood

Performers of Parlour Theatre Productions will take their act just about anywhere. A Farmington Hills couple began flirting with theater in their teens and years later began the traveling production company.

BY DIANE GALE

If you enjoy live theater but hesitate to patronize fine area companies because it seems you have to drive a long way to see a production, sit back and relax. Parlour Theatre Productions will bring the stage to you.

The traveling theater company delivers the stage, set and performers to retirement centers, church or civic group gatherings, dinner theaters and just about anywhere you can imagine.

"We can go into a fairly small area," said PTP founder Ed Meade of Farmington Hills.

"Our purpose is to make drama available at your convenience, which means that we bring the stage to you," a PTP brochure said. "We believe that whatever your mood, the stage is the ideal way to amuse, enlighten, move, challenge or maybe bring a tear. Comedy and tragedy often go hand-in-hand in theater and we try and bring a little of both.'

Love blooms

Meade came up with the idea for PTP after a lifetime fascination with the theater. In fact, he met his wife, Jeannine, while they both performed in a high school production in 1947.

They continued flirting with theater through college at Eastern Michigan University. They also performed in musical variety shows with the St. Damian's Singers and Players in Garden City and an Indian Village theater group in Detroit, Meade said. And when they retired they decided to continue their passion for theater by starting PTP. Jeannine is retired from National Bank of

Group flourishes

One year after their first performance with PTP, Meade said, the group goes most often in retirement centers.

"Older people still like theater, but they don't have a chance to get out much," Meade said. "So we bring it into them.'

PTP recently had a sold-out performance at Botsford Inn in Farmington, Meade said, adding that he is working with Botsford management to bring PTP there on a regular basis.

The usual charge is $150 for each performance, which lasts about two hours. Meade said PTP just about breaks even when considering costs.

"Actually we're just getting out of the red," he said. "We try to meet the (performers') expenses."

Expanding repertoire

"Bedroom Farce," a British comedy by Alan Ayckbourn. The story is about three "happily married" couples who find their relationships crumbling while they cope with a fourth husband and wife who are "trying to communicate."

"My wife and I saw this show in New York and it was very funny," Meade said.

PTP recently added to the repertoire "Steel Magnolias," a story involving six women and their various life experiences. Meade said he plans to bring in another show that involves primarily men this spring. The company performs two to four times month-

"Everyone (PTP performers) works and this gives them a chance to do theater and it's not too time-consuming," Meade said.

The performers come to the company with varied backgrounds, including work in film, at the Attic Theatre in Detroit and with area community theater groups. The performers live in Farmington Hills, Livonia, Garden City, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Northville.

Currently, PTP performs For more information about PTP. call Meade at (810) 477-5540.

She brews up a flavorful lecture

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

"Good to the last drop" aptly describes the Women's Resource Center's luncheon where Diana Dimitroff of the Coffee Beanery spoke of her trade.

Women who attended the luncheon were so enthusiastic that Dimitroff nearly ran out of the Mocha Cinnamon Swirl and Vanilla Almond coffees that were served during the meal. They went through more than 100 cups of the coffees.

Dimitroff took the chill off winter, opening the winter luncheon series sponsored by the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College. As Dimitroff traced the history and traditions of coffee, the 100 guests passed around a basket filled with different kinds of coffee beans. They compared the smells of Guatemalan Coban, Supreme Extra Fancy, Green beans, Breakfast Blend, Espresso Roast, Vienna Roast and Kenya AM beans.

Meanwhile Dimitroff spoke of the beverage's origins in Ethiopia. At first, the beans were consumed; they weren't "brewed as a beverage," she said. Since then, coffee has become the second most traded commodity, the first being gold.

She also served up some coffee trivia.

■ One tree produces five pounds of coffee beans but only one-fifth of the beans are of good enough quality to be used.

"We drink a lot more coffee than many of the trees are able to produce," said Dimitroff, who runs the Coffee Beanery store in Laurel Park Place in Livonia. Soil and rain water result in different tasting coffee.

■ Coffee beans can be kept for one to two months in an airtight container. However, don't think about freezing them. Coffee beans don't freeze because there isn't enough water in them.

STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM JAGDFELD

There's no such thing as naturally decaffeinated coffee. Chemicals are used to get rid of most of the caffeine.

While Dimitroff spoke, her assistant Megan Beale passed out

Nature programs highlight March SC offers home seminar

For me, part of the pleasure of a vacation or an event is the anticipation. Planning, reading and counting the days before the experience all help to make it special. So I thought I would share some

TIMOTHY events that I'm looking forward to, so you can put them on your calendar if you like. On March 5 and 6 the Bluebird Festival will be on at the Jackson Community College near Jackson, Michigan. From Livonia heading west on I-94 it takes approximately 90 minutes to get there. It's right next to the Michigan Space

Several environmental groups will have items dealing with nature for sale, as well as information on a variety of subjects. Many artists setup their carvings, paintings and photographs of plants and animals for sale too. These exhibits are in the large field house on campus.

In the adjacent classroom building there will be several speakers presenting programs. There will be programs on loons, tropical rain forests, black bears and a visit from Prof. Avian Guano (a must see).

Plan to spend the day. It will take you that long to see everything. For more information, call 517-782-3453.

At 6 p.m on Sunday, March 13, in the Cranbrook Science Center, Joe Rogers and Jim Battles will present an evening everyone who is interested in nature will enjoy. Rogers will have several live birds of prey to show and talk about. He rehabilitates injured birds and through the years has returned 7,500 birds to the wild.

It's hard to beat seeing live birds of prey like hawks and owls only a few feet away, but Battles will add variety to your animal list that night by showing slides of "Wildlife Across North Ameri-

Some of Battles photos have been published in magazines like "Audubon," "National Wildlife," "Birder's World" and "Wild Birds." For $5 a ticket, how can you beat it. Call 810-545-2929 for ticket information.

The weekend of March 25-27, the 11th annual Michigan Wildlife Art Festival, sponsored by the Michigan Habitat Foundation. will be held at the Southfield Pavilion in Southfield. If you want to see some of the premier wildlife artists of the country, this is the show to see. Paintings, bronze sculptures, scratch board, decoys and more will be on display for

In addition to viewing the art work, there will be lectures on the gray wolf in Michigan, butterflies and moths, wildlife at night and establishing a wildflower patch. There is an entry fee of $7 for adults. Children under 12 are free, but proceeds from the event enable the foundation to fund several conservation projects that improve habitats throughout the

Tickets will be available at the door, but for more information call 517-882-3630.

Well, that certainly fills up my March calendar. Hopefully, it will fill yours too.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can leave him a message using a Touch-Tone phone at 953-2047, mailbox 1874.

Schoolcraft College will host the first annual "Home Improvement Seminar" from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, April 9.

The seminar consists of 10 90-minute, hands-on clinics revealing the mysteries of ceramic tile installation, glass block installation, kitchen design ideas, wallpapering, and toilet installation, each offered twice; plus one three-hour clinic on basic deck construction.

Each person will get a 10-percent discount coupon from Handy Andy and a chance to win the 8-by-8-foot deck that will be assembled in the deck clinic. Handy Andy personnel will transport the deck to the winner's abode, but installation is up to the winner.

Cost is $30. To register, call

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing. Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time.

More support, more education. It's a better way of caring To learn more about the benefits of mother-baby nursing call 313-591-2882. Ask for a free brochure, tour, or physician referral.

Nothing in outer space is named after a plant

Last month's thaw induced spring fever in nearly everyone. One scrutinizes the ground in search of the first green shoots that herald the emergence of tulips, daffodils and crocus.

Looking in the opposite direction (upwards, that is), one looks for constellations that honor plants and flowers. One looks in vain, for of the 88 constellations, not one is named for a plant. OK, so Virgo holds a sheave of wheat; but where's the constellation of Orchis the orchid; Semperflorens the begonia; or Smilax the asparagus?

Considering the vital importance of agriculture to the ancient Greeks and Romans, it's remarkable that none of the constellations were named for plants.

Now, to be perfectly honest, there is the constellation of Apus in the southern hemisphere sky. Apus means "The Bird of Paradise," but this represents the avian bird, not the floral one. Apus was invented by Johann Bayer in 1603. Bayer, who obviously had a lot of idle time on his hands, published a star chart in which he added 12 new constellations to the 48 that were in use at the time. It was Bayer who assigned Greek letters of the alphabet to identify stars, a system that is still in use today.

There are a lot of plants that can be traced to celestial objects, and I don't necessarily mean the Venus flytrap. I refer, of course, to the Moonflower and the ever popular Moonwort, to name just two. So what better place to begin a fly-by of Uranus.

The moon will be at last-quarter phase at 11:53 a.m. on March 4. On this day, 15 years ago, the probe Voyager I made the remarkable discovery of narrow rings orbiting around Jupiter.

The bright star four degrees below the moon before sunrise on the 4th will be Antares, the orange-red "heart" of Scorpius the scorpion. As long as we're at it, it can be mentioned that Scorpion grass is related to the forget-

The moon will have moved from Scorpius into Sagittarius on the 5th, and it will be located directly above the "teapot" of Sagittarius. At least, the star pattern looks a lot more like a teapot than an archer, and what better vessel to use to water our celestial garden?

Another interesting, "ringing" anniversary will occur on March 11. On that date, in 1979, the rings of the planet were discovered telescopically from the earth. Uranus was undergoing observation because it was going to occult (cover) a star. Such a rare event offers a great opportunity to learn a lot about a planet (as the subsequent event showed), so the occultation was receiving a great deal of attention from the scientific community.

Surprisingly, prior to, and immediately after, the occultation, the star was noticed to flicker. This only could be attributed to the presence of an invisible ring system passing in front of the star. Voyager confirmed the existence of the ring system during its

New moon officially will occur at 2:05 a.m. The moon will be located between the earth and the sun and will not be visible. An eclipse does not occur because the alignment is not perfect this time

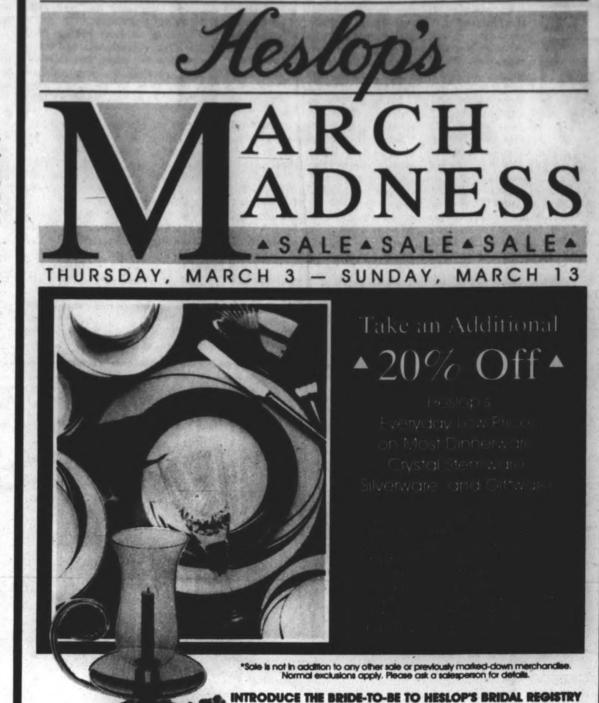

Why mention that at all? Because in two months there will be a perfect alignment and we will be privileged to witness an eclipse of the sun. Considerably more information will be forthcoming in the May Skywatch, but now is a good time to start spreading the word.

Yet another anniversary involving Uranus will occur on March 13. Astronomer William Herschel discovered that planet in 1781. Herschel's first impulse was to name the planet Georgium Sidus, in honor of his royal patron. (Herschel was no fool!) However wiser heads prevailed, and the name Uranus was adopted in keeping with mythology. That was 213 years ago, and people have been trying to figure how to pronounce the name ever since.

Notice the "smiling" crescent moon in the west on the evening of the 13th. The bright star below the moon will be Venus, of "flytrap" fame. The official name of that plant is Dionaea muscipula, Dionaea being the Greek name for Venus. Since the plant is native only to North and South Carolina, it is safe to assume the ancient Greeks never saw one!

Coming up in the next Skywatch: Yet another anniversary, and spring officially arrives!

Plymouth scriptwriter fulfills 10-year dream

hese days, he seems a little distracted. He worries he'll run late for appointments. Sometimes, he misses them altogether. For a recent meeting, he arrives slightly breathless, his glasses just a bit askew. His conversation tumbles out, riddled with exclamation points, bristling with italics. There's a sense he's keeping his fingers crossed, somehow holding his breath - most of all, counting the

Welcome to the world of Plymouth's screenwriter-in-residence Jim Burnstein.

One evening this summer, he and his wife, Cyndy, will get all dressed up and go out to a movie. The movie, titled "Renaissance Man," won't be just any movie, however. It will star Danny DeVito. It will be directed by Penny Marshall. It will be released through Touchstone, a division of Disney Studios. And it will mark Burnstein's debut as a screenwriter.

"I don't plan to be excited," he deadpanned recently, over a quick lunch at a popular Plymouth eatery. He means, of course, that as the lights go down in the theater that night and the movie at last begins, he will feel as if he is just about the most excited person on Earth.

More than 10 years ago, he wrote a screenplay about a man who teaches Shakespeare to a group of young soldiers on a U.S. Army base. He didn't have to go far for his idea.

Burnstein, a University of Michigan graduate, taught Shakespeare (still does) to military personnel at Selfridge ANG base. He had gleaned from his classroom experiences a story he felt he was compelled to tell, about the value of education.

On its completion, several film folk showed interest in the script, but somehow "Renaissance Man" never reached the screen. Burnstein performed numerous rewrites, wrote other screenplays (none were produced, although most sold), one stage play ("Learn To Fall," performed at the Attic Theatre in 1988), and kept hoping.

Then, one day last May, a call came from Hollywood producer Sara Colleton, informing Burnstein that Penny Marshall, who had been considering the script for some time, was definitely interested in the film if she could get actor Danny DeVito to play the lead.

Within 48 hours, DeVito had read the script and quickly agreed to join the crew. With the actor's signature on the dotted line, "Renaissance Man" was headed for the screen.

When the film crew arrived in Detroit for a week's shooting last September, Burnstein was on hand each day, doing brief, last-minute revisions, and generally making himself available for any questions Marshall might have. He watched as the company filmed a traffic jam on Jefferson Avenue, the opening scene at the Renaissance Center, plus another shot at a brokerage firm on Griswold.

He also went along when the crew traveled to the Port Huron area for a scene on the Blue Water Bridge. (From Michigan, the company headed for Ft. Jackson, S.C., and then back to Los Angeles to complete filming.)

"Except for the producer, Sara Colleton, who came into the picture in 1989, I've spent roughly 10 years nearly alone with this project," says Burnstein. "And then, on the first day of shooting, it's like the circus comes to town. You see all those people and all those cameras, and you really realize then that, ultimately, this is a collaborative effort.

As a matter of fact, Burnstein ended up collaborating during shooting in a way he never anticipated. At a special request from Marshall, he and his wife and two of their three children ("the baby didn't make it") actually make an appearance in

If their big moment survives the cutting room, you'll spot them in the Tiger Stadium scene, seated just behind DeVito, cheering on the home team.

We had to be out there before the game at night to shoot and because the scene is set in summer, we had to be dressed for summer," says the screenwriter. "It was 35 degrees and I was in Tshirt and shorts for 13 hours! That's the coldest I've ever been.'

While it doesn't look like he'll be appearing before the cameras again, Burnstein is already looking toward his next big screenwriting project. Once you get a movie in production, you suddenly get the kind of film offers you never saw before," he says. "You want to say yes to so many

Plymouth home to new arts co-op

Michigan Art Exchange kicks off the opening of the first artists cooperative gallery in Plymouth with a live auction Sunday, March 6.

By LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Fun, families and reasonably priced artwork that's the concept behind Michigan Art Exchange, an artists cooperative gallery in Plymouth. The fine arts enterprise opened Feb. 13 to provide a place for artists to show their work, demonstrate how it's created and teach others about the process. Inside Forest Place Mall, the gal-lery boasts nearly 1,100 square feet for exhibiting two- and three-dimensional artworks. A separate area is set aside for hands-on types of learning activities: classes, workshops and lectures. "Ît's strictly Michigan artists, a group of local fine artists interested in showing their work and making it a working gallery," said co-director Frank Kuszak of Plymouth.

"The concept is not a new one. We're just approaching it differently. We want it to be fun. We want people to come in as a family. In Plymouth, it has to be an event. People come to see things happen-

Knowing most people feel uncomfortable entering a gallery, extra steps were taken to welcome visi-

"We wanted it to be well-lit, open, a comfortable atmosphere — not to intimidate people," said co-director Clifford Holdhampf of Farmington

The gallery fare includes glass by Don Schneider, paintings by Andrea DeZell and sculpture by Judith Shellhaas of Plymouth; paintings by Diane Tasselmyer of Westland, Marie Tuthill of Livonia and Shirley Mohout of Redford; wheelthrown raku by Melissa Emery of Southfield; fiber art by Terri Wilva Jurewicz of Dexter; mixed media by Lisa Miller of Northville; graphic art by Amy Conner of Belleville; and textiles by Sylvia Stetez of Pinck-

Eventually, the coop, which is still looking for more members, hopes to show between 15 to 30 fine artists. Initially, Kuszak and Holdhampf juried artists into the gallery. Now that a membership of artists exists, they will serve as jurors.

'We are, for the most part, nonprofit. We're trying to make it so it's profitable for the artists," said Kuszak.

Local art adorns Garden City mayor's office

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

When Garden City Mayor Michael Breen took office in January, the walls of his city hall office were stark and empty.

Instead of spending tax dollars to decorate the space, Breen chose to put into play an innovative concept to display a local artist's work without Norma McQueen, one of which features the lush greenery of the Caribbean, adds warmth to an otherwise cold office environment.

"Norma McQueen is one of our fine local artists," Breen said. "I believe her paintings deserve to be shown in a public place where people are able to enjoy them."

The idea to ask McQueen to display her paintings in the mayor's office originated with Winnie Wiacek.

Once contacted, McQueen had a few ideas of her own. Before long, she had rescued an old couch from storage and rearranged the existing furniture. What began as a concept for furnishing the office without a budget evolved into McQueen providing full interior design services. McQueen had one final suggestion to showcase other artists' works.

"When Mike first moved into the office the walls were bare. He didn't want to invest any money to redecorate the office," said Breen's wife, Elissa.

"Councilman Wiacek's wife suggested we contact Norma. Since artwork is already displayed on the one wall in city hall, it just sort of naturally extended down the hall. It was Norma's idea to rotate the work every three to four months. The public is

The roofmounted heaters smelled so bad that they had to be frequently turned off and then it became uncomfortably cold. Today, the structure is replaced by a modern banquet room.

When the show's founder, the late Marge Kulifay, attempted to sign up dealers to do the first couple of shows, all of the well-established, long-time dealers refused

The designs were created as part of a scholarship competition sponsored by Scott Shuptrine Furniture and PPG Industries. First, second and third place prizes were awarded in color and design categories. Award winners included Greg Darby of Canton, second place in the color category, and Jeff Tilley of Plymouth, third place in the design category.

An offer (from Touchstone) to do a feature-length film based on a true, contemporary story eventually got the nod from Burnstein. At the moment, he can't provide any real details, he says, since Touchstone discourages preproduction publicity.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will be in charge of plans for the Michigan premiere of "Renaissance Man." Release date, according to Burnstein, is expected to be around June 1.

Marilyn Robbins of Troy-based The Prudential Great Lakes Realty will attend the sixth annual Prudential Real Estate Affiliates national convention in San Antonio in March.

She'll study up on pricing property in today's market, relocation problems and solutions, and the 1994 economic outlook.

Robbins entered the real estate industry in 1978. She specializes in residential real estate sales.

E GROUP ASSISTANT

E. James Harkema, who as head coach turned around footaball programs at Eastern Michigan University and Grand Valley State University, was named assistant to the president of the Michigan Group, Livonia.

He "will be working with the managers of five Michigan Group offices in an effort to recruit the best possible real estate staff members," said Fred Madley, president of the Michigan Group, which also has offices in Ann Arbor, Clarkston, Union Lake and West Bloomfield.

"His lack of real estate background will be a plus for the firm as he will be able to view the operation without bias or preconceived notions."

"I am pleased ot be with a winner," Harkema said. "This is not a turn-around effort but an opportunity to help fine-tune one of Michigan's superstar real estate teams into the nation's best."

Study up to know if assessment's wrong

BY DOUG FUNKE

Mary, a Livonia resident, owned a ranch in a neighborhood of colonials. She couldn't obtain the original listing price when she put her house for Mary eventually lowered her asking price. Then she started looking around and became convinced that her property was over-assessed for tax purposes. However, she eventually sold the house before she could appeal to the board of review.

Mary was probably right in her as-sessment of her assessment and definitely not alone, said Robert E. Mattler, an attorney who specializes in real estate law in Southfield.

"I have found, and I've been in the bly one in three properties, residential and commercial, one way or another is assessed improperly," he said.

The most common mistake? Over-generalization in sales studies," Mattler said. "Assessors take a whole neighborhood and slap a rate on it and not every house is the same.

The window of opportunity for error actually can open much earlier in the process, Mattler said.

Mistakes arise on field cards filed in city, village and township halls that describe physical attributes of buildings. Then there's the possibility of mathematical miscalculations.

Sometimes, mistakes are made in a homeowner's favor, like when improvements are made without a permit. "It cuts both ways," Mattler

Assessment notices are on the way and local boards of review, empowered to revise assessments, will soon convene. State law requires assessments at 50 percent of true cash

"We work very hard to make sure they're equitable," said Judie Nagy, L'ivonia assessor. "If we find something that's broken, we fix it. Because of our computer set-up, we're able to break down into subs.

"The hardest thing for people to understand is how much their houses are worth," Nagy said. "Twenty five years ago, they bought for $14,000, $15,000. It's hard to believe now they're worth $110,000, $120,000. It's

What is an aggrieved property

Indeed, one of the questions you

"The first thing to do is ask for a copy of the field sheet, the property record card," Mattler said. "Make sure it's all right. Make sure the calculations are right.

"If you believe the assessment is still out of whack, pull your neighbors' field sheets and other houses like yours. You have to compare apples to apples. If you have a ranch with three bedrooms and two baths, you want to look at others.

"If there's a big disparity, I think you have a good argument based on uniformity," he said.

Ask a Realtor for a comparative market analysis for recent listings and selling prices of houses similar to yours in the neighborhood, Mattler advised. "If all listed or sold for less, I think you have a great argument for lowering your assessment.

"A recent sale or a recent appraisal if you refinance is the best evidence you can give an assessor for a reduction," Mattler said.

It doesn't pay to get emotional and rant and rave about taxes in general at board of review hearings.

"You have to understand the intense pressures and problems of assessing people," Mattler said. "They're underpaid and overburdened.

"Values are never stagnant. They either go up or down. An assessor's task is to try and conduct studies, mail out surveys and keep up with values.

"Just don't take the assessor's word for it," Mattler said. "He's not trying to screw you. He's overbur-dened and doesn't have time to look at every house. 'You have to make sure you aren't swallowed up in these studies. That's your job. You have to be well informed and have the right arguments. Do research. Be well prepared." "People need to know we're always willing to talk to them," Nagy said. And don't be afraid to appeal to the Michigan Tax Tribunal if you're unhappy with a local decision, Mattler said. Upwards of 70 percent who continue the fight get some kind of reduction in Lansing.

Plymouth Commons: big and luxurious

Not every residential subdivision moves problem free from start to finish. Outside events intervene. But seasoned builders ride out storms and continue to offer quality products that eventually sell when confident buyers return to the market.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Sometimes, plans take a little longer to materialize than first anticipated.

A. Rossi & Son Builders, for instance, started erecting spacious houses in Plymouth Commons - off Ridge between North Territorial and Powell in Plymouth Township - in 1989. Shortly, thereafter, the economy soured. Then war broke out in the Middle East.

Orders tapered off.

Business picked up again last year. Now, only about 18 building sites and three sales models remain available in the initial phase of the subdivision. Rossi & Son offers 10 different models, all two stories, and all with a choice of four possible exterior appearances. The watchwords are big and luxurious.

Prices, including lots, range from $259,900 for 3,300 square feet (Sherwood) to $309,900 for 3,400 square feet (Dynasty) to $319,900 for 3,575 square feet (Nottingham) to $409,700 for about 4,000 square feet (LaMirage).

The three models on site, all with upgraded features, range from $345,050 to $592,250.

'We give our customers a lot of choices, so you're not tied down to what you see is what you get," said Claudio Rossi, construction manager. "That's why we're custom builders."

The typical buyer here already has owned a couple of new houses, Rossi said. "Most are executives, people who work for Ford or GM, some doctors, people in the upper echelon, so to say, or self-employed."

The Sherwood model, with four bedrooms, 31/2 baths, a double staircase, two-story foyer on a 31/4-acre lot is especially popular now.

"It's a real nice layout, a real low price," Rossi said.

Quality construction, attention to detail and the opportunity to deal directly with family members throughout the process from start to finish make his company stand out, Rossi said.

"It's a family-run business," he said. "We do our own sales, our own supervision. When you deal directly with a builder face-to-face, you know what you're getting.

"We put in a lot of custom touches - a more expensive interior door, crown moldings, oak staircases. Our craftsmanship is really good," Rossi said. "Personally, I think we're very quality oriented."

Students work masonry into building designs

By Doug Funke STAFF WRITER

The challenge was direct - to design a building utilizing masonry that would showcase modular housing models and include adminstrative offices, a daycare center, lecture hall, library and a small restaurant.

Juniors at Lawrence Technological University's college of architecture in Southfield stepped up to the task as part of their academic program and a biennial competition sponsored by the Masonry Institute of Michigan.

Laura Clary of Northville placed second, Todd Rankine of Livonia third.

"It's always fun and impressive to see students' work like that," said Victor Saroki, a Birmingham architect, who chaired the judging panel. "The overall effort was excellent, the level of drawings and models quite high.

Clary, 25, produced a fanshaped design that features a retractable nylon roof over four modular houses, offices on either side of models, the lecture hall behind the models off the main entrance and the daycare and restaurant on a second level overlooking the models.

"The most challenging part is combining the civic center and community of homes," she said. "You're incorporating two functions - large areas for display and small spaces for individual

Clary utilized precast concrete panels and brick on the exterior.

Rankine, 22, designed a single-story, T-shaped building with the restaurant, conference center, daycare, and meeting rooms along the long corridor leading from the front entrance and the models at the top.

A skylight runs along the spine of the structure. Pre-cast granite panels and brick were used on the exterior.

'Our class almost had a bad attitude about buying a house in a mall," Rankine said. "I was going to try to make it a little more personal than it appeared to be." Clary prefers to create by working with models, while Rankine vacillates between drawings and models. Both said they prefer to sketch by hand rather than use computer-aided design systems. They enjoy that personal, artistic touch.

Rankine currently works part time drafting and dispatching for Siegal/Tuomaala Associates in Farmington Hills, Clary as an assistant designer doing kitchens and baths for Living Spaces in Sylvan Lake.

Both are optimistic about future professional prospects.

"I'd like to teach as well as practice . . . perhaps publish as well," Clary said. "I see myself doing a variety of things.

"I basically want to design," Rankine said. "An architect always has a tool that can be used. There's always going to be someone even in down turns that wants something built, remodeled or fixed."

Daniel S. Zechmeister, executive director of the masonry institute in Livonia, said the main purpose of the competition is to introduce students to working with brick, block and stone.

"The biggest problem we have is masonry isn't a required course for architects and engineers," Zechmeister said. "Our goal is to promote masonry. Before we do that, we have to ed-

"They're getting better and better every year," Zechmeister said of the student entries.

"They work very hard," said Betty Lee Sweatt, assistant dean at LTU. "Requirements included plans, elevations and a model so they (judges) had a sense of what the building was like."

Laura Clary: Second place. Todd Rankine: Third place.

Home Depot opens 1st Midwest store in Pontiac

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

Atlanta-based Home Depot Inc., the nation's biggest retail home improvement center, today opened its first Midwest store at 545 S. Telegraph, Pontiac, near the borders of both Bloomfield and West Bloomfield townships.

The sprawling 122,000-squarefoot, warehouse-style store employs about 200 people. It's one of five locations the retailer plans to open in metro-Detroit this year, a spokesman said. Other stores are planned in Canton, Redford, Northville Township and Warren. The Warren store will open Thursday, March 10, at 25879 Hoover. The Canton store is planned at the southeast corner of Ford and Lutz; the Redford store will be on Inkster Road, between Plymouth Road and I-96. The Northville store will go in at Seven Mile and Haggerty.

By the end of 1999, another 15 stores could be built in metro-Detroit, providing about 3,000 more jobs. Another 10 stores are planned elsewhere in Michigan by the end of 1997, the retailer said.

The Pontiac store, managed by Gregg Gerstenburger, is a boon to the city, which didn't have much hope for the location at Orchard Lake Road and Old Telegraph, said Richard Hahn, Pontiac city planner. To build its expansive warehouse, Home Depot razed an old concrete block manufacturing plant that was "out-of-place in the business district" and did extensive excavating, Hahn said.

"Just by the nature of its business, the plant wasn't sightly and we had problems with it for years. There was always gravel spread on Orchard Lake. It was a non-conforming site that didn't fit the city's long-range plan," he said. Since the retailer started landscaping, a nearby business owner has spruced up his storefront, Hahn said.

Every Home Depot conducts free in-store home improvement clinics geared for the growing doit-yourself market.

The warehouse's inventory includes more than 30,000 kinds of building materials, home improvement supplies and lawn and garden materials. The in-store design center is staffed with profes-sional designers who give free consultation for home improvement projects that range from lighting placement to computer-assisted design for kitchens and bathrooms.

Here's a roundup of the March/ April clinics in the Pontiac store: ■ 7 p.m. Mondays: Basic wiring. 7 p.m. Tuesdays: Install a wa-

O&E Newspapers offer tax form request service

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers is making the tax season a little easier for the taxpayer this year by offering a tax form request service.

Taxpayers can selectively order the tax form they need by calling 1-800-947-4368 and ordering any of the federal or Michigan forms available through this service.

Callers must use a Visa, MasterCard or American Express card for payment of the $4.95 fee per form. Forms can be mailed or faxed to the caller. Simply indicate which delivery method is desired and give the complete mailing address or the 10-digit fax telephone number. If the caller doesn't know the specific item number of the tax form desired, federal or Michigan directories (which list all available forms) can be requested for $1.95 each.

This service includes commonly used Michigan forms such as Amended Michigan Income Tax (dial no. 0141), SBT Credit for Small Business (dial no. 0801), Request for More Time to File (dial no. 0426), just to name a few.

The federal list of available forms is extensive and ranges from the Common Capital Gains & Losses (dial no. 1044), Employee Business Expenses (dial no. 2106) to the elusive Sale of Your Home (dial no. 2119) and Noncash Charitable Contributions (dial no. 8283).

Consumer Connection simplifies home improvement

MARKETPLACE

The hardest thing about starting a home improvement project is finding the right contractor to do the work.

The right contractor needs to perform quality work at a reasonable price. The right contractor needs to be completely qualified and able to complete the job on time. Knowing this,, where does a homeowner look?

A small Livonia company called Consumer Connection takes the big worry out of finding reliable contractors.

Founded last March by co-owners Ben Ciccarelli and Cesar Roman, Consumer Connection specializes in referring pres-creened and qualified trades people and companies for persons who need home improvements and don't necessarily have the time or patience to find a good. qualified contractor. Best of all, the service is offered free to homeowners. "We looked at home improvement projects both from a homeowner's and a contractor's pointof-view and our service benefits both. Consumer Connection protects homeowners and good contractors alike," Roman said.

To take advantage of the service, homeowners call Consumer

Connection and let them know what home improvement project they need done. Consumer Connection then refers a contractor in close geographical location to the homeowner and gives information about the contractor. The con-tractor is then called by Consumer Connection to let them know the homeowner will be calling

All contractors are given a thorough screening. Consumer Connection investigates each of the contractors they refer for excellence in reputation, workmanship quality, politeness, guarantees, timeliness and affordability. It also makes sure each of the con-tractors is completely insured and

Consumer Connection produces The Consumer Connection Newsletter every quarter and distributes it to homeowners and companies around metropolitan. Detroit. The newsletter informs readers about the service and keeps them updated on any new contractors in the area, as well as handy hints and an events calen-

LASER OPERATIONS

Rofin-Sinar Inc., a Plymouth producer of lasers for industrial and manufacturing applications, has completed the first phase of expansions to its Midwest base of operations to include the manufacture of high-power CO2 lasers, product research and development functions, and a central service facility.

The project consisted of adding 35,000 square feet to the 23,000square-foot Plymouth facility, which allowed consolidation of the firm's North American opera-

The company's manufacturing and product research facilities in San Jose were moved to Plymouth to join sales and marketing, applications research, and managerial functions, which have been based in Plymouth for four years. The Plymouth operation employs Richard Walker, Rofin-Sinar vice president, said proximity to its major customer base and a more efficient use of resources prompted the move.

The laser has demonstrated its value as a versatile manufacturing tool, being used for welding and cutting in industries throughout the U.S. In the late 1980s, however, a clear concentration of customers emerged in the Midwest and especially within automotive OEMs (original equipment manufacturers) and their suppliers.

Locating our application research center in Plymouth in 1989 was done to better service and support this customer base. The consolidation of our manufacturing operations is a natural progression of that service-based philosophy."

BARNEY FACTOR?

If trend-trackers are right, look for purple and gold vehicles in the next year or so, plus rising consumer interest in bi-color effects, says Troy-based DuPont Auto-

Is it a Barney factor? Whatever, DuPont says purple, especially in dark, rich reddish hues, will show up on sport/compact models and full/intermediate sized vehicles.

Light and bright gold will emerge over the next two to three years and bi-color effects (where hue changes at different angles) will appear in all four vehicle cat-

The top five vehicle colors for 1993 were white, green medium red, bright red and black. Green doubled in popularity last year and was the most popular choice for sport/compact cars, DuPont reports.

Besides being the environment's color, green represents balance, normalcy and security. "People who select it are socially well-adjusted, civilized and suburban," says Roseann Forde for DuPont Fibers.

M AUTOMATIC BILL PAYMENT

The Troy-based Michigan Au-tomated Clearing House Associa-tion has initiated a joint customer authorization program that brings together Ameritech (Michigan Bell), Consumers Power, Detroit Edison and Michigan gas utilities to help customers easily sign up for automatic monthly bill pay-

The effort allows each major utility to offer an automatic bill payment service via a single combined customer authorization

"The development and implementation of this form allows customers the opportunity to sign up with one or more utilities in one step, using a single form," said William Thornton, MACHA president. Each joint utility authorization form includes a postage-paid envelope. Once completed by the customer, it is mailed to MA-CHA, where the information is reviewed and then distributed to the designated utilities. Each utility, upon receipt of this information, prepares the necessary information that allows the originating financial institution to initiate customer pre-notification transactions and subsequent de-

Simple, honest, straightforward. How else would you expect to lease a Saturn?

By now, you've probably heard about the Saturn buying experience. No hassles, no pressure, no fuss, just common courtesy, along with a pretty great car.

Well, the way we see it, your experience shouldn't be any different if you want to lease a Saturn. After all, what could we possibly gain by making things any less straightforward than they have to be?

($168/Month $1000/Down 36/Months)

SmartLease payments based on 1994 Saturn SL Sedan, 5 speed, AC, MSRP $11,210 excluding taxes, title, license fee and insurance. First month's lease payment of $168 plus $200 refundable security deposit and down payment of $1,000 for a total of $1,368 due at lease signing. Option to purchase at lease end for $6614. Payments total $6048.

GMAC must approve lease. Mileage charge of $0.10 per mile over 45,000 miles. Your payments may be higher or lower. Lessee pays for excessive wear and use.
