Schools eliminate pay-to-play

Students who participate in sports and other school activities won't have to pay a fee to participate this fall because of a vote by the Plymouth-Canton school board. Critics say the money should have gone elsewhere.

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Students in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will no longer have to pay to participate in activities.

After prolonged debate at its meeting Monday night, the Plymouth

Canton Board of Education approved a plan suggested by Superintendent Charles Little to end pay-to-play.

The departure of assistant athletic director James Finn — leaving after 20 years to become assistant principal at Redford's Thurston High School — presented a valuable opportunity, Little said.

tunity, Little said.

"We can post the position at a $30,000 savings and use that money to reach a large group of people who may not be able to participate in athletics due to their situation," said the new superintendent. Finn's salary was about $71,000.

Three supervisors are needed, but "not three veterans. This could set the tone for administrative realignment. That money should go to young people," Little said.

Doing away with pay-to-play carries a $50,000 price tag. "We can take $20,000 from the fund balance now, or keep picking away at the budget," Little said. "We need to make our schools more attractive. We need to make people feel we are servicing them, and this is a step."

Athletic Director Paul Cummings favored the move, citing a 25-percent drop in participation since pay-to-play began in 1992 due to budget problems. High school students paid $125 to enroll in co-curricular activities last year.

Rescue of birds their focus

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

If you find a bird that's injured, Bird Rescue of Huron Valley offers a place to take it.

The group is seeking volunteers in the Plymouth-Canton area to care for injured birds and perform other work.

"Most of birds coming into Bird Rescue are hit by cars, they fly into windows, or they're poisoned by man," said Crystal Keller, who takes in birds for the group.

Keller, who lives on Earhart Road just north of Five Mile in Northfield Township, is the volunteer taking in injured birds closest to Plymouth and Canton.

Bird Rescue of Huron Valley is unique in Metro Detroit. The group, originally part of the Huron Valley Humane Society, became independent about two years ago.

Keller and her husband, Richard, originally sought to volunteer for the humane society when they got involved three years ago, to take care of animals.

"I used to think of gulls and pigeons as junk birds, they hang around garbage dumps," she said. "Richard and I both found we really enjoyed working with birds. We have a respect for them we didn't have before," she said, adding gulls and pigeons are now her favorites.

Bird help: Crystal Keller is one of the volunteers working with Bird Rescue of Huron Valley. "Most of the birds coming into Bird Rescue are hit by cars, they fly into windows or they're poisoned by man," she said.

The bird rescue group gets plenty of calls on injured birds, hence the need for more volunteers.

On Monday, Keller and her husband were housing about 30 birds — some in laundry baskets with screen on top, others nearly ready to release on a screened-off section of their front porch. In the spring, they've had as many as 100.

"We've had all kinds. We raised four baby screech owls, we released them about two weeks ago," she said.

The group discourages people from bringing in fledgling birds — young birds learning to fly that are spotted walking on the ground.

While these fledglings are easy targets for other birds of prey or cats and dogs, Keller said it's natural for fledglings to be on the ground.

She said there's nothing wrong with people picking up the birds and returning them to nearby nests, adding it's an old wives' tale that if a human touches them the parent birds will have nothing to do with them.

"We have a large percentage of birds that shouldn't come in," she said. "It's very stressful to the parent birds to take away a healthy baby."

Keeping domestic songbirds as pets is against the law, unless the bird is so severely injured that it can't be returned to the wild. In these cases, the Department of Natural Resources must issue a permit allowing the bird to be kept.

While many sick or injured birds die, those with broken legs or wings

Law cites door-to-door campaign in victory

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Former state Rep. Gerry Law, who upset incumbent Rep. Jerry Vorva in last week's primary, attributes the victory to hard work.

"I worked harder. I walked door to door six weeks, my wife made thousands of phone calls, my two daughters worked with me," said Law, the Plymouth Township Republican who is seeking election to a fifth term in the state House.

Asked how he felt about surviving the primary, he said "It feels good anytime you run for office, obviously winning is a lot more enjoyable than losing."

In November, he'll face Carolyn Blanchard, unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Blanchard, who faces an uphill battle in the heavily Republican district, said, "I will stress the differences. He's a career politician, I'm not."

Law said that philosophically, he and Vorva weren't much different on fiscal issues. "I think it was just a matter of knocking on doors and meeting people."

While Vorva said Right to Life of Michigan's work against him was a big factor in his defeat, Law downplayed the influence.

"There isn't any magic to it, you've got to pound it out, you go out and try your best. I just tell them I'll do a good job for them, and if I'm elected they'll see me, they can talk to me," he said.

While the 20th District, which includes Plymouth, Northville and west Livonia is heavily Republican, Law said he's not assuming he'll win in November.

Asked how she'll seek to campaign against Law, Blanchard said, "He's already said he doesn't want to do the job. (Law resigned his House seat in 1992 to accept appointment as Plymouth Township supervisor). I do want to do the job," Blanchard said.

Asked how he felt about surviving the primary, he said "It feels good anytime you run for office, obviously winning is a lot more enjoyable than losing."

The Northville Democrat said she hasn't decided how much she'll spend, adding she'll campaign by "meeting people at community meetings, possibly some door to door, direct mail."

Law said he'll probably go door to door to places he didn't visit during the primary. Saying he spent about $15,000 in the primary, Law said he'll spend "maybe $5,000" in the general election, on lawn signs and mailings to voters.

Comeback: Gerry Law says he outworked incumbent Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, to defeat him in last week's Republican primary.

New Santa house in the making for Plymouth

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It's not too early to think about Christmas, if you're building a new house for Santa.

Even though volunteers built a new house for Santa in Kellogg Park last fall, they're going to do it all over again this fall.

The new Santa house was an improvement over the old one, which had become structurally unsound after years of hauling it to the park and then back to the Department of Public Works yard.

But while the new house was safer, there were still problems.

"The house is too small; we kept bumping into each other," said Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile.

Also, the new house has to be taken apart for storage, and isn't easy to move. "Part of the problem is finding a trailer to put it on," Guile said.

DDA member Russ Webster and Plymouth Township Fire Department Capt. Randy Maycock are organizing the effort, backed by the DDA in July, to get a new house built.

"It's going to be 10 by 15 feet rather than 6 by 8; it can be used for different community events," Guile said.

Maycock said the trailer is on order. He planned to meet Tuesday with architect Ron Myers, who is designing the house, and present the drawings to the DDA at its meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

"We'll try to keep the colonial Plymouth theme," Maycock said, adding the house will be barrier-free. Lumber Mart of Plymouth and Mans Do-It Center of Canton are donating much of the lumber.

Volunteers are donating labor, and the DDA plans this fall to raise money from the public — possibly through sales of "Santa's helper" buttons.

For information on making donations of money, call the DDA at 455-1463.

Program is a real help to foreign families

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

There's not a restaurant in Plymouth or Canton that served a more savory meal than the folks at Tanger School Aug. 4.

Chefs and the patrons were one and the same; adults and children from throughout Wayne County enrolled in HELPS, Helping English-Limited Proficient Students. Residents newly arrived from Bulgaria, China, India, Poland, Japan, the former Yugoslavia, Saudi Arabia, Mexico, Romania and Pakistan prepared native dishes and shared them with fellow students at a potluck lunch.

Mazda, Ford and manufacturing and engineering firms serving the auto industry have drawn new residents. Others are here because of war or because they've joined relatives, said Sue Shepard, coordinator of the federally funded program.

Among the popular entrees was a dish made with red beans, rice, sugar and milk prepared by Kazu-ko Koide of Japan, who is studying English along with her three sons.

Others prepared spring rolls, chicken with soy sauce, soups, fruit dishes and desserts.

"HELPS brings beginners from other countries, children and their parents, into a five-week intensive English class," said Shepard. "We have children in one class and adults in the other."

The students — 16 adults and 30 children — come from communities including Plymouth and Canton, Belleville, Wyandotte, Taylor, Redford, Northville, Grosse City and Dearborn Heights.

"We have an instructor here from Eastern Michigan University learning about how to teach these kids. And the students are learning about each other," added Shepard.

The students, who "graduate" today from the tuition-free HELPS, practiced their writing skills, putting recipes on paper for their fellow classmates.

HELPS teacher Sheila Norgren says her job is gratifying.

"Students come here and they're not exactly depressed, but they certainly are fearful. They can't communicate and often can't communicate basic needs," she said.

"By the end of the program, they are more comfortable and confident with school, and they can express basic needs. We notice a drastic change in their demeanor."

Hortensia Gomez and her elementary school-aged daughters Arelia and Melissa arrived from Sonora, Mexico two weeks ago. Jose Luis Gomez, Hortensia's husband, was transferred to the Ford plant in Wayne. The Canton residents are making steady progress. At the potluck, an amiable Hortensia was speaking English with visitors. Melissa and Arelia held their own in a game of picture bingo after lunch.

"The speed at which children learn just amazes me," said Norgren.

Norgren, who's accompanied students on field trips. "We have children who know English in six weeks."

HELPS continues during the school year on a limited basis. Teachers and tutors rotate among school buildings, teaching "out of a bag for one hour a week," Norgren said.

HELPs teachers find themselves "really leaning on phonics. Whole language doesn't mean a thing to them. You can talk 'til you're blue in the face, but they need something a little more concrete," she said. "You can't rely on just one teaching method."

Norgren would like to see HELPs continue during the school year. "More attention should be paid," she said. "Students who aren't a problem will sit in a regular classroom and they won't get the attention they need. But like everything, it comes down to money."

Those who find injured pet birds are referred to the Ann Arbor Caged Bird Club.

U-M club plans annual scholarship dinner

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The University of Michigan Club of the Plymouth Community welcomes alumni, fans and boosters to its eighth annual scholarship dinner featuring guest speaker/athletic director emeritus Jack Weidenbach.

The event is set for 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 15, in the Colony Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

After a reception at 7 p.m. and the dinner at 7:30 p.m., Weidenbach will address issues facing inter-collegiate athletics.

Tickets are $30, and proceeds will support the club's 1994-95 scholarship.

Tickets are available by calling Kathy Goose at 326-4463 or Ken Holmes at 453-8457.

The winner of this year's $1,200 club scholarship is Christina Wyrybkowski of Westland, a 1994 graduate of John Glenn High School.

Eligible for the scholarship are prospective University of Michigan students from Plymouth, Canton, Westland and Wayne, the area served by the University of Michigan Club of the Plymouth Community.

The alumni club welcomes new members, said Howard Finkbeiner, scholarship chairman.

"The club is open not just to graduates, but to anyone who has an interest in the university," said Finkbeiner, who graduated from U-M and is retired from a research position at U-M.

Activities throughout the year include football parties; outings to U-M athletic events; concerts and band performances; and dinners featuring guest speakers.

Dues are $10, half of which funds the scholarship.

The club was founded in 1986 "by a group of alumni in the area including Kathy Goose, Tom Turner and Ken Holmes, who thought it would be nice to have a club," said Finkbeiner, who added that the club assists U-M in awarding its Regents merit scholarship.

While the club scholarship also is based on merit, financial need is considered.

Applying for and awarding scholarships is gratifying for everyone concerned, said Finkbeiner.

"It's a chance for members of the club to listen to and talk with high school seniors. And they get a chance to speak with a variety of people who've gone through the university. It's a great experience; I've really enjoyed it."

Others on the committee are Tiv Balogh, Ed Bapraski, William Carter, Paulette Cebulski, Gary Gaylord, Marjorie Harrington, Fran Jurcak and Goose.

The scholarship committee also welcomes direct tax-deferred gifts. "That's how we fill in the difference in what we raise at the scholarship dinner and with dues," said Finkbeiner.

Statewide, 378 of the 1,134 nominees received U-M scholarships. Winners rank in the top 1 percent of their class.

"In no other area do we charge a student for the opportunity to be successful," said Cummings. "At a time when teen-age violent crime is increasing, drug use is, again, increasing, and after-school TV is providing questionable viewing, we would hope to be increasing opportunities for young people."

Trustees Sue Feiten, Mark Horvath and Sue Davis opposed the idea.

"We are in deficit spending," said Feiten. "We don't know next year if we are going to get the same amount of funding. If you take money out of the fund balance, that's not a one-time expenditure."

Complying with the state's new curriculum and testing mandates will be costly, said Feiten. "We just purchased a slew of computers. Do we have the software? Do we have enough money for staff development?"

With class sizes of 35-36, "I have a hard time seeing where a one-time $30 fee really will exclude students," she added. "It's important that we choose what is going to benefit our students to the greatest degree."

Horvath said the proposal was another example of throwing money at a short-term problem, and that it comes at the expense of non-high school students. "If co-curriculars are important to 12th-graders, they're just as important to fifth- and second-graders," he said. "The lessons learned are valued at every level. Thirty dollars doesn't seem unreasonable when parents are paying $35 for tee ball."

Davis said the money for extracurricular activities won't always be there.

"I'd like to see us hook up with other organizations and clubs in the community to provide recreational activities for more kids, not just an elite group of superstars."

School board member Roland Thomas supported Little.

"Eliminating the fee will have a great (positive) impact on student achievement at the high school. I've seen it in my own family and in other people's families."

Trustee Barbara Graham said program-versus-program competition "has to stop. I say we speak with our legislators and tax sports arenas to support sports."

Thomas moved to eliminate pay-to-play. Supporting him in the 4-3 vote were Trustees Jack Farrow, Dave Artley and Graham. Voting no were Horvath, Feiten and Davis.

Police departments getting 'drug grants'

The Canton Township and Livonia police departments are among dozens of state law enforcement agencies to receive $12.8 million in "drug grants" from the state government to use for narcotics law enforcement.

The Canton Township Police Department gets $37,000 to hire one officer to work with residents of the Canton Commons apartments to improve efficiency of the neighborhood watch. The officer will coordinate with social service agencies to meet identified needs.

The Livonia Police Department gets $49,000 to extend its Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

Area travel school closed by its owner

Elliott Travel School in Farmington Hills has been closed by the owner, the State Board of Education reported.

Operated by Jay Klein at 30000 Orchard Lake Road, Elliott Travel School offered four courses — two in how to become a travel agent and two in hospital careers.

Four other proprietary schools have been closed recently, the state agency said. Downriver Court Reporting School in Southgate, McIntosh School of Floral Design in Waterford Township and the National Education Center in Detroit were closed by the owners. Reliable Training Academy in Flint was considered closed when its telephone was disconnected and mail returned.

Students fight to save SC program

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

A group of Schoolcraft College students are mobilizing to defend the existence of the college's Academic Options program, which is on the table in the administration's contract negotiations with the faculty union.

Academic Options students (27 were enrolled last winter) attend class 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. every Saturday during fall and winter semesters. The program is in its 20th year.

Each student may take up to 12 credit hours of instruction in any discipline Schoolcraft offers. Most of the students are women in their 30s. Most of them are part-time students, averaging about 5.5 credit hours each last winter.

Now a group of students fears the college administration plans to ax Academic Options. Protest organizers Bonnie Reardon and Shirley Wold, both of Plymouth, have mailed letters to 75 Academic Options students and alumni in an attempt to rally around instructor Suzanne Kaplan and save the program.

Reardon and Wold hope students will pack the next board of trustees meeting Aug. 24 to convince trustees to keep the program.

Reardon believes that Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell and vice president of instruction Conway Jeffress are determined to cancel Academic Options.

"They don't care how beneficial it is to these adult learners," Reardon said. "They just want to get rid of it. Schoolcraft should be publicizing this program instead of trying to bury it."

Reardon believes that McDowell and Jeffress dislike Kaplan because "they can't control her."

Schoolcraft spokeswoman Sandra "Sam" Florek said the administration can't comment on the controversy because Academic Options is a subject in negotiations with the teachers' union.

Board of trustees Chairman Steve Ragan said he would withhold comment until he speaks to McDowell.

Backers say insurance reform will save millions

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Michigan businesses can save $52 million a year and all vehicle owners $700 million if voters approve an auto insurance reform proposal Nov. 8, say its backers. "Imagine pumping $700 million into the Michigan economy," said Jim Barrett, Michigan Chamber of Commerce president and vocal supporter of Michigan Citizens for Insurance Reform (MCIR). "This addresses the root causes of rising insurance rates — skyrocketing legal costs, medical costs that have gone out of control."

"Many Detroit area businesses and individuals are at a competitive disadvantage," said Claudia Berry of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, another group supporting MCIR's reform law. She praised the ballot plan for "offering discounts for those who install anti-theft and theft-recovery devices."

Added Ed Gaffney, of the American Auto Manufacturers Association: "Drivers who choose air bags, enhanced side-impact protection, and anti-lock brakes will save on their insurance rates" under the MCIR-backed plan.

State officials probably will give the name Proposal C to the auto-insurance reform referendum. The Michigan Legislature gave it bipartisan support a year ago, and Gov. John Engler signed it as Public Act 143.

To prevent a voter referendum, lawmakers tacked on a $50,000 appropriation. But the courts called that an evasion and said a referendum could be held.

The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association collected enough signatures for a referendum, scheduled for Nov. 8, and is raising funds to attack it.

MCIR is a coalition of auto insurers and 48 other groups including the chambers of commerce like Detroit's, Howell's and Flint's; health care professionals; farm groups like the Farm Bureau, Corn Growers and Grange; and law enforcement groups like the deputy sheriffs and traffic safety associations.

MCIR's John Saltzgaber, who will run the campaign, displayed ads that will emphasize savings to consumers. MCIR held press conferences Monday in Southfield, Lansing and other major markets. Samples of other savings:

■ Auto owners no longer will have to buy unlimited medical coverage but can buy $1 million and increments up to $5 million.

■ There's a medical fee schedule. "Those injured in automobile accidents are sometimes charged 150 to 200 percent more for medical care than those injured in other kinds of accidents, such as in the home or on the job." PA 143 will institute "managed care" cost controls such as those used by Medicare and company health plans.

■ Uninsured drivers and those who cause accidents will be prohibited from suing for non-economic (pain and suffering) damages.

PA 143's opponents, the trial lawyers and Michigan Consumer Federation, began attacking the ads before they were unveiled.

"Coverage and benefits would be cut significantly and permanently while there is no guarantee that rates will be reduced, either short- or long-term," said Richard Stoddard of the consumer group.

"The new law gives insurance companies significantly more control over the medical treatment accident victims can receive," Stoddard added.

Differences exist between '94 proposal, plan defeated in '92

Some differences between the 1992 (defeated by voters) and 1994 ballot proposals:

1992 PROPOSAL D

- Was not passed by the Michigan Legislature.
- Was an initiative, placed on the ballot by AAA Michigan.
- Capped personal injury protection at $250,000.
- Aimed to roll back rates 20 percent.

5. As an initiative, could have been amended only by another initiative or a three-fourths vote of both chambers of the Legislature.

1994 PROPOSAL

- Passed in the Legislature with bipartisan support, enacted as PA 143.
- Is a referendum, placed on the ballot by the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association.
- Caps personal injury protection.

tion at $1 million under insurance policy; consumer can buy more coverage in million-dollar increments up to $5 million.

4. Rolls back rates to levels of Nov. 1, 1992, minus 16 percent, guaranteed for six months, subject thereafter to actual loss experience.

5. Can be amended by simple majorities in the Legislature.

PA 143 does not yet have a title but probably will be Proposal C on the Nov. 8 ballot.

SC board, faculty reach agreement

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Schoolcraft College officials reached tentative agreement with the 128-member faculty union on a new contract Aug. 4.

The board of trustees will consider the contract for approval at its Aug. 24 meeting.

Teachers must also ratify the contract, but there was no word at press time as to when they will vote.

"I think it's a good contract in a lot of respects," said board Chairman Steve Ragan. "My guess is that it's within the parameters of what we discussed (on the board)."

Ragan said the college received "some important concessions in health care" and succeeded in holding pay increases to an acceptable level.

The new contract, if approved, will run through 1996.

"It's good that it's four years," said trustee John Walsh. "That definitely breeds stability for the college and the union."

Ragan and Schoolcraft administrators declined to say what the new pay increases will be for teachers, but in the last contract, teachers were given raises of 5.9 percent, 5 percent and 4.6 percent over three years.

The salary range for full-time Schoolcraft faculty is $26,000 to $56,000.

Teachers are expected to return for the fall semester Aug. 23. Students will return Aug. 25.

A faculty spokesman could not be reached for comment by press time.

Columnist assembles wildlife book

Longtime Observer & Eccentric nature columnist Tim Nowicki has written the book on nature, literally.

Nowicki, a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County, gathered together the columns he has written for the last 10 years to assemble the 190-page paperback book titled "Awake to Wildlife: The Complete Naturalist's Great Lakes Wildlife Almanac."

Published by Glovebox Guidebooks of Clarkston and edited by Observer & Eccentric regional reporter Tim Richard, the book retails for $11.95 and is available in area bookstores. You may also order a book with your credit card by calling (800) 289-4853.

Nowicki, who lives in Livonia, said his philosophy is to write about aspects of nature that suburbanites can observe and appreciate without taking an African safari or a trip into the mountains.

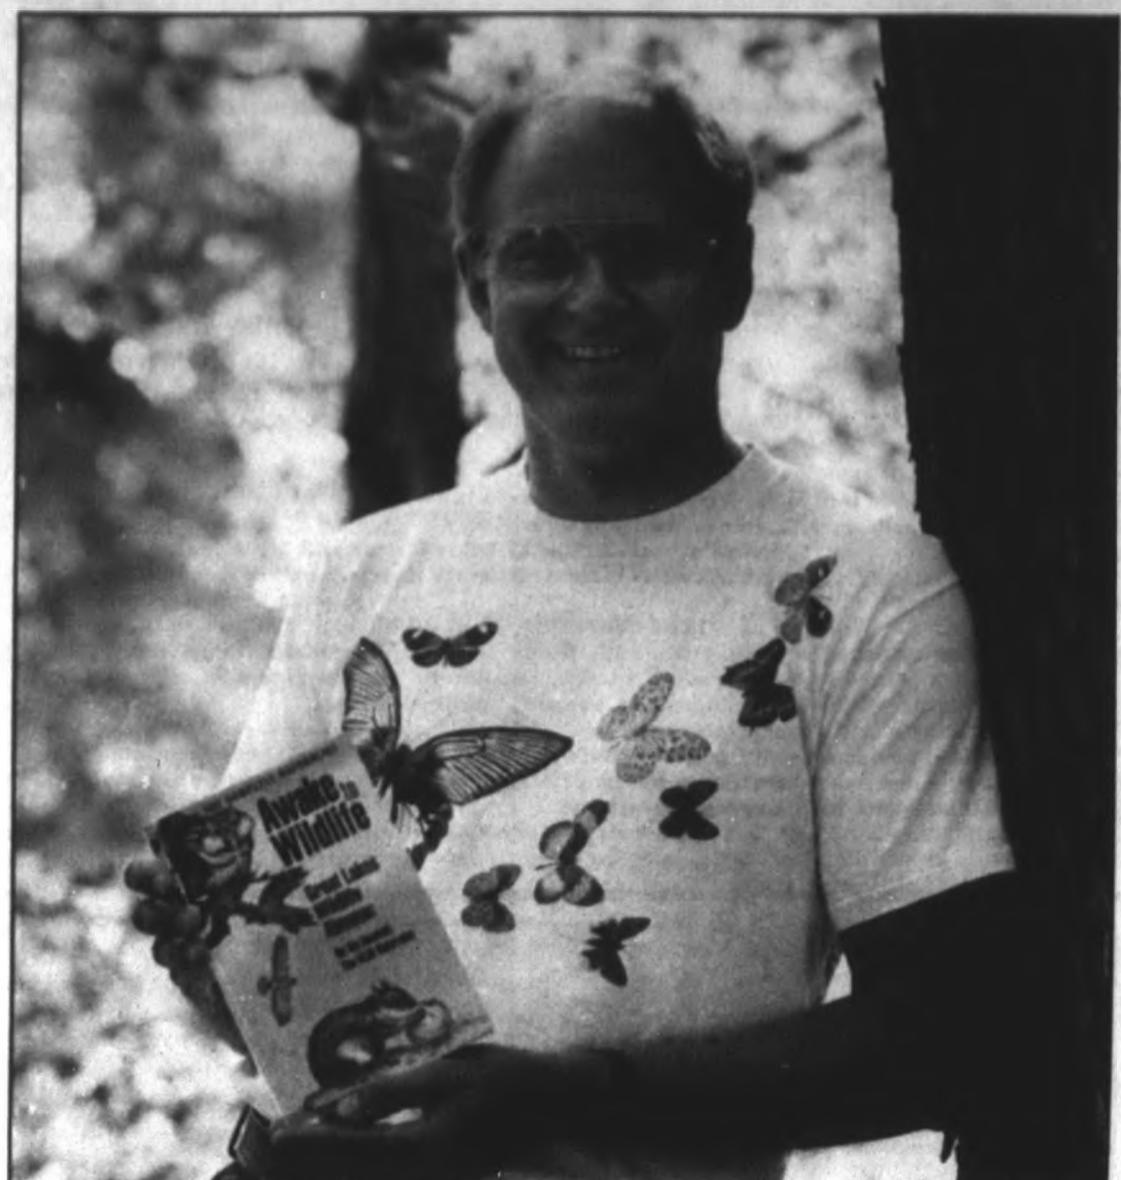

"We try to encourage people to observe what they can see right in their back yards," he said.

For example, in a piece titled, "Lifeless, But Alive: Dead Trees," Nowicki explains how various animals make use of dead and dying trees for food and shelter.

Other sections of the book cover bird nest building, snipe hunting for woodcocks, seeing the seldom-seen owl, bird displacement at the bird feeder, playful young squirrels, hunting earthworms with wood turtles, caterpillars and cuckoos, fish watching, nighthawks and flying ants, that amazing squirrel tail, pole vaulting chickadees, owls at the airport, and tunneling moles.

"I feel that the more you know about something, the more you're going to appreciate it," Nowicki said.

Nowicki has been on the board of directors of the Detroit Audu-

He teaches nature classes at Schoolcraft College. This fall he will teach a Monday evening class called Animal Behavior.

In the mid 1980s he coauthored and illustrated two guides on bird identification, and while at the University of Minnesota he wrote and directed production of the "Uncle Foggy Bird Songs" cassette tape.

He has also contributed articles to Michigan Natural Resources magazine and Seasons.

Since 1987 Nowicki has been a weekly guest naturalist on WJR radio. He also hosts a cable TV show called Animal Club.

AROUND PLYMOUTH

They're expanding

The Animation Station, an art gallery at 550 Forest Ave., is expanding. The store in Westchase Square Mall plans Sept. 1 to more than double its current floor space as a wall will be removed and the store will expand into space being used by the Stop, Look & Listen Shoppe.

"This expansion will allow us to better serve our increasing customer base and provide a greater variety of products," said co-owner Charles Eveleth.

The store will house a complete selection of cartoon related merchandise including clothing, school supplies and more. It carries animation art from all major studios and provides custom framing and other services.

The store is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

New store

Bloomsbury Lane is a new retail store at 580 Forest specializing in dried floral arrangements.

It's one of the few stores in the country offering historic Williamsburg-style arrangements, such as colonial finger vases and preserved magnolia wreaths.

All design applications are available including swags, wreaths, baskets, topiaries, centerpieces, door and wall arrangements, said owner Gloria Jancar. Floral arrangements feature the use of Battenburg lace and French-wired ribbons.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony is planned for 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18. This is the 24th grand opening of a retail store in downtown Plymouth since June 1992.

Park concert

Radio station Q95-FM will present a free lunch and concert from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday in Kellogg Park, in conjunction with the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Development Authority.

Some of DJ Dick Purtan's radio characters will be on hand.

Couple adopts greyhound to save it

Mike and Kathy Hall have a dog named Phantom, a greyhound no longer able to race. Phantom was to be put to death, but instead found a loving home.

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

If Kathy and Mike Hall hadn't come along when they did, Phantom could have been only a memory.

"My husband had been looking, researching for about one year the kind of dog we should get," said Kathy Hall.

They went to the Michigan Human Society and found out about greyhounds - specifically the ones who race and when they are of no use to owners and trainers the dogs are put to death or sent to research laboratories.

"We have contacts down there (West Virginia) who deal with the tracks and some of the breeders," Hall said, referring to the Michigan Greyhound Connection, founded in 1989 by director David Houy to find adoptive homes for retired racing greyhounds.

Greyhound Connection volunteers travel to race tracks in West Virginia, for example, to retrieve the dogs for adoption. Animal activists place the number of greyhounds killed each year at 50,000. Others in the greyhound racing business put the total at less, perhaps in the 7,000 range.

The Halls got Phantom, a 72-pound greyhound, a year ago when he was two years old. Greyhounds begin racing when they are 18 months old and must be retired by the time they are 5. The dogs have a life expectancy of 12-15 years. But any dog that does not race well is likely to be shot or bludgeoned to death or sent for animal research, according to the Greyhound Connection.

The Halls went through the organization to adopt Phantom. That included filling out forms, in which you must discuss your home and environment. A telephone interview follows. "They approved us 4-6 weeks later," Hall said.

To encourage others to get involved in the volunteer adoption program, Michigan Greyhound Connection will be at Pets Supplies Plus, 43665 Ford Road, noon to 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13. Phantom and the Halls will be there.

"We will have information so people can think about adoption," Hall said. "We want these dogs to be placed permanently in a home where they will be treated right. They have had a hard life."

When greyhounds can't be adopted immediately, Greyhound Connection finds foster homes for the animals, who are considered docile pets. Adoptions are not made according to what color or sex of greyhound families want.

"You have no choice. You can say male or female. But whatever you bring up is what you get," Hall said.

The adoption fee is $150, which covers medical care the greyhound receives before adoption. All greyhounds who go through the organization are spayed or neutered.

Greyhound owners, such as Kathy Hall, are volunteers for Greyhound Connection. "Everyone tries to help somewhere," she said. Donations are being taken to build a greyhound haven where dogs can be kept until adopted.

The majority of dogs that are retired from racing are 2-5 years of age. Trainers prepare the dogs for racing often by using live bait - rabbits, guinea pigs - put on a pole. The dogs are encouraged to chase and kill the bait so they will chase inanimate lures during a race, according to Greyhound Connection information.

SHERRI BUZZY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

A family member: Kathy Hall of Canton poses with Phantom, the 3-year-old racing greyhound she and her husband, Mike, adopted through Greyhound Connection, which tries to save racing greyhounds from certain death when they are no longer considered good racers.

When dogs become racers at 18 months they are kept in 3-by-3 foot cages. The Greyhound Connection wants to talk to potential adoptive families because some training is involved with a greyhound because of the conditions in which they were raised.

The Halls had to housebreak Phantom, who was kennel trained. They have a fenced yard, which is not required, but encouraged. And greyhounds like Phantom must be kept on a leash when being walked or outside without a fence.

"If he gets loose, there's no way you're going to catch him," Hall said. "And they don't know where they came from."

Hall is certain Phantom is enjoying his life - especially with his two feline friends, Tiger and Shadow. "He gets to sleep on the couch," Hall said.

Both Mike and Kathy Hall work so when Phantom first arrived, they kept him in a roomy dog cage. "He felt safe. That's what he was familiar with," she said.

Because Phantom, like other greyhounds, has a fear of being abandoned, the Halls left him for short periods of time to get him accustomed to them being away.

"They are so gentle," Hall said. "Phantom is so quiet. The neighbors love him."

Time running out for Hough School move

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Optimism appears to be running thin for the fate of the historic Hough School, which is planned to be moved to Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport for a permanent home.

"I would like to save the building," said airport board member Barbara Bergenty, who is chairwoman of the Hough School committee. "At this point it won't do anything for the airport."

That is if the state holds to its position that it be moved from its site at Old Haggerty and Warren roads to a spot at the southern end of the airport. Bergenty and other airport board members had hoped the vacant Hough School could have been moved close to the airport's main parking lot off Lilley Road.

"They offered us a parcel down at the end of the runway," Bergenty said, of the state Aeronautics Commission. "The state offered to take over the building after X number of years."

The plans to move the school to the airport were to save the building and to use it as a place for community and airport meetings.

Meanwhile, state aeronautics officials are waiting for cost estimates for moving the school to the airport, as well as renovation and utility costs. A new parking lot would have to be built at the south end of the airport for the school. Any money the state would use for Hough School would come out of revenues generated from the airport, Bergenty said.

Cost estimates are expected to be provided to state officials by the airport board's next meeting Sept. 1. "There are problems because of the costs," Bergenty said.

The Canton Historical District Commission asked the airport board to consider moving the school to the airport in January. The building sits on property owned by developer Mel Belovitz, who does not want the school and who offered it to anyone who wanted it.

The historic district commission also has put Belovitz on notice that he may not destroy the building because it is a designated historic structure. Belovitz said he originally intended to use the school as offices for himself. But township officials wanted him to make landscape and site improvements, an investment he didn't want to make.

Whatever decision comes for the Hough School, Bergenty is concerned because the building should be moved before winter. Plans for the restoration include using vinyl siding on the exterior. Bergenty also has a promised donation of a foundation for the schoolhouse — but not forever.

Renovation for the schoolhouse includes the need for carpeting, roofing, windows, siding, plumbing and cash. Bergenty said contributions are tax-deductible because it would be a donation for historic preservation. Anyone who is interested in donating money or supplies should call Bergenty, 981-3681.

The Hough School was built in the late 1890s when the Hough School District bought the land from a settler named Harry Anderson. Belovitz bought the acreage and schoolhouse from the Plymouth-Canton Community School about four to five years ago. Before that, the Plymouth Nursery School used the building.

Independence Day

Asian Indians recall their heritage

By PAT MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

What is it like to be Asian Indian in the suburbs?

To begin with, it's a tremendous source of pride, according to a group of Asian Indians who gathered in Bloomfield Township recently as a prelude to commemorating Aug. 14, Indian Independence Day.

But at times it's also a struggle. "Sometimes people don't seem to understand we're just different," explained Parini Mehta, 15, of Rochester Hills.

On Aug. 15, 1947, India — led by Mahatma Gandhi — ended almost two centuries of colonial domination by England and became the largest democracy in the world. Asian-Americans like look on Aug. 15 much as their American counterparts regard July 4 — a day of pride.

While statistics are unreliable, metro Detroit is home to an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 Asian Indians. Like other old-world minorities, they came to the United States for a variety of reasons including economic opportunity.

And while they like their new home, they take pride in their cultural and ethnic background and want to maintain at least a core of it.

"We want to be part of the United States," said Dr. Ratnakar Kini of Bloomfield Hills. "But we want to maintain our cultural identity."

The Asian Indian community will commemorate India's Independence Day beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday at West Bloomfield High School. It will start with the national anthems of the U.S. and an invocation dance. There will be festive dancing — including folk dance competition — ethnic food and a touch of politics.

Historically Asian Indians have not mobilized their numbers — as other minorities have — and exercised significant political clout, according to Art Varavadekar, a spokesman for the Indo-American Forum for Political Education. But an awareness of politics, if only to vote, is part of citizenship, he said.

Three Indian American candidates for U.S. representative — Neil Dhillon of Maryland, Ram Uppaluri of Tennessee and Peter Mathews of California — have been invited to the celebration, along with Gov. John Engler and U.S. Sen. Carl Levin of Michigan.

There's an ironic twist for Indian Americans trying to maintain their heritage in an adopted land: If not for the English language, they might not be able to talk with one another. A resident of Gujarat on the country's west coast, for example, might rely on English to converse with a person from Maharashtra, 500 miles to the east.

India is an expansive country with much diversity, said Bharat Sanghvi of Livonia, "with many languages and dialects. The national language is Hindi, but not everybody speaks it. People are more likely to speak English."

Being different, however, does have its advantages, according to Parini Mehta, 15, of Rochester Hills. "It makes us more accepting of other people who are different."

Anuja Tolis of West Bloomfield said a big difference between her native Indian culture and the U.S. culture is often evident in the schools. "We're not allowed to have boyfriends," she said. "Friends are OK, and we can have friend dates. But there can be nothing more than that . . . our parents are very strict about that."

Payal Patel of Troy High School said being Asian Indian sometimes means being placed in the position of trying to explain customs and traditions the teenagers themselves might not fully understand or accept. "Some of my classmates don't understand arranged marriages," she said. "But that's just one example."

Jobless rate lowest in 21 years

For the fifth month in a row, Michigan's unemployment rate is at or below the national rate.

F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, said the state's rate rose by about half a percentage point in July to a seasonally adjusted 6.0 percent. But it's still at its lowest monthly level in 21 years.

"The increase occurred as summer job seekers continued to enter the job market while employment levels dropped in the state's motor vehicle industry and among local schools," Edwards said.

According to federal estimates, the state's work force climbed by 9,000 to 4,745,000 in July, and employment fell by 18,000 to 4,462,000. The number of unemployed in Michigan rose by 27,000 last month to 283,000. The June jobless figure was 256,000 or 5.4 percent.

Among the 11 most populous states, Michigan had the fourth lowest July rate. California had the highest rate at 9.0 percent, while North Carolina had the lowest at 4.7 percent.

Pay-to-play Scrapping it best for students

New school Superintendent Charles Little sent a message to the Plymouth-Canton community Monday that hopefully will set the tone for the future of education here.

Little convinced the school board to scrap pay-to-play for sports and school activities, using money from a vacant administration position to pay for the action which has a $50,000 price tag. Students paid $125 last year to participate.

The action tells parents and taxpayers that kids come first and the school bureaucracy comes second. It's a message that's long overdue.

Also, the action indicates that Little can set priorities and make decisions quickly. It's a good sign for things to come.

The money to sports and school activities comes from two sources. First, about $30,000 is available from the salary of an assistant athletic director who was paid $69,508. The assistant director resigned to take a job with another school district, and a replacement can be hired for $30,000 annually. The second source is the school district's fund balance, really a savings account.

Since pay-to-play started in 1992 there has been a 25 percent drop in participation in sports and other activities, according to school officials. To us, that's unacceptable. At the foundation of public education is the idea that every child should have access to programs offered by the schools, not just those who can afford it.

Opposed to scrapping pay-to-play were newly elected school board members Sue Feiten, Mark Horvath and Sue Davis. Their objections ranged from not wanting to take the money out of the district's fund balance to the possibility of using the money to reduce class sizes.

We understand the concerns of the new board members, but $50,000 would make no dent in class size and the $20,000 being taken from the fund balance, really a savings account, certainly won't make any difference in next year's school budget.

During a school board discussion about the issue, Little said the resignation that freed the money brings up the possibility of "administrative realignment."

Let's hope Little will pursue the issue. Right or wrong the schools are perceived to be over-administrated. And as they say, perception is reality, which means Little could gain much credibility with the community by addressing the subject in a simple and straightforward manner.

Such comments and actions from a new school superintendent who started on the job in July are encouraging. As Little said: "Money should go to young people."

So far Little is a much-needed breath of fresh air in the Plymouth-Canton school district.

Let's just hope there's more to come.

Awash in the primary's wake

An important election, like a hearty meal, needs a bit of digesting afterward.

So, it is with our feet up and a cup of steaming coffee in our hands (and perhaps some antacid tablets close by) that we sort out the odds and ends and bits and pieces of the primary just passed.

Law wins

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, lost in the Republican primary to former lawmaker Gerry Law. Incumbents rarely lose, but Vorva managed to anger teachers and Right To Life members with his stances. The MEA targeted Vorva and worked for Law. However, the teachers will be backing the Democrat in the general election.

You be the judge

Voters in Plymouth and Canton's 35th District Court judge's race had 11 candidates from which to select. Standing out in the field was a tough task, but Ron Lowe managed to do that with a sign which carried the warning, "Criminals Beware." Other lawyers in the race objected, contending it violated codes of ethics. However, when the votes were counted, Lowe was one of the two top finishers and will make it to the general election.

The aides needed aid

It was a lousy primary for former congressional aides.

David Geiss, Congressman William D. Ford's former Washington aide, lost in the Democratic race for the 13th District. Cynthia Wilbanks, Congressman Carl Pursell's former in-district aide, lost in the GOP primary.

As it turned out, Wilbanks was endorsed by more than 60 local officials from western Wayne and Washtenaw counties, but was narrowly defeated (by 209 votes) by former Livonian John Schall.

It appears the endorsements of local officials aren't all they're cracked up to be - or the Wilbanks camp took a victory for granted and didn't push hard enough the last week before the election. The 13th District includes Garden City, Westland, Livonia, Plymouth and Canton.

Not nice to Geiss

Phones at the campaign headquarters of congressional candidate David Geiss were ringing off the hook the weekend before the primary, thanks to a political ploy master-minded by one of his opponents.

Geiss was the victim of a false classified ad that appeared in the July 31 edition of the Detroit News and July 30 Free Press. The classified ad read as follows: "Mustang 1993 Conv - rarely used. Loaded. Must sell. $3,000 firm. Ask for Dave, (313) 595-1994."

Just a week before Geiss, the head of Congressman William D. Ford's Washington, D.C., office, was the subject of a Detroit Free Press article which charged that Ford and Geiss used a car supposedly leased for government business instead for personal use.

The car was stolen from a Southgate Ramada Inn and the car rental company was out $3,000 - the insurance deductible.

The ploy tied up the telephone lines at Geiss' Wayne headquarters. Approximately 20 to 30 calls were received each hour, according to campaign staffers.

The Name Game - Part II

Name recognition means a lot to candidates, you think? Don't tell that to David Keith, a Garden City Democrat who lost in his bid to replace his father, William Keith, in the state House.

Young Keith's signs irritated some voters who apparently felt that he was running only to capitalize on the father's name. The elder Keith was in the House for 22 years.

Library expansion

Although your editorial of Aug. 4 regarding the proposed expansion of the Plymouth District Library presented an interesting idea, it missed the mark on the value of a strong accessible community library in making the Plymouth community a dynamic and vibrant place to live and work.

The Plymouth District Library provides individuals of all ages with access to valued and interesting information conveniently and efficiently. This summer my youngest daughter was a participant in the summer reading program along with many other youthful readers; our middle school age children have used the library for recreational reading as well as just browsing on a summer afternoon, and my spouse took her first steps in learning Wordperfect 5.1 using a computer system and software available for use at the Plymouth District Library.

A strong community library also supports other community organizations by being a repository of community ideas as well as a convenient way of communicating with many local residents who are regular library patrons. The Plymouth District Library today is attempting to meet the requirements of the Plymouth community with a facility that is woefully inadequate. Limited study space, overflowing bookshelves, cramped office space for library staff, and the need to provide expanded computer-based services are only some of the needs to be addressed. Soon the library board should begin to present its case for the support of the Plymouth community in meeting these needs.

I believe that we will be better served by supporting the proposed expansion and look forward to the many improved as well as additional services to be offered by our Plymouth District Library. I also believe that after a more enlightened review of the facts your newspaper will support the library board's vision for the future.

Brian A. Barbuto, Plymouth that could only be a small fraction and what of the others?

Those who complain about the politicians and who failed to cast their ballot have no room to complain. Special interest groups will be sure to cast their ballot regardless of whether it is for the good of all or not.

I have seen good people, who are highly qualified, run for office in the last few years. They have put their own money, time and effort on the line, only to see a low voter turnout. When you get a majority who vote then the electorate has spoken. How discouraging when it is low.

Do Americans have to lose something before they appreciate it? All over the world people are fighting and dying for the right that we take for granted. Our own right to vote did not come without a price in human lives.

If only all those who say "My vote doesn't count" would vote, what a difference it would make. Politicians would sit up and take notice if that happened, because as the old saying goes, "You can fool some of the people some of the time; but not all of the people all of the time."

What power is in our hands, if we would only use it. So when election time rolls around again, please even if you are tired after work go to some of the Candidate Forums or better yet talk to some of the people running. I have never seen a candidate who wasn't willing to talk to a voter. Then either get an absentee ballot or go to the polls and vote. It is a responsibility not to be taken lightly, because our democracy depends on it.

Last of all, if you need a ride to the polls or help with an absentee ballot or even a babysitter while you go to the polls, let me know at 455-9427. There is no excuse for not voting. I will help you.

Rosita A. Smith, Plymouth

Wake up call

Wake up, Republicans. Our party has been taken over by the Right To Life. In Plymouth, they defeated state representative Jerry Vorva, by sending mailings urging voters to reject him for his pro-choice views. They also defeated congressional candidate Cynthia Wilbanks, another moderate, pro-choice Republican. Both these candidates were highly qualified, experienced, and endorsed by most of the area media.

Right To Lifers have a right to their views, and have successfully won primaries for candidates they support in the last few years. But their views are not the views of most voters and these candidates go on to lose in the general elections. When will the Republicans understand that the moderates are their true base of support? When they're tired of losing?

I am a pro-choice Republican and I intend to continue crossing party lines until my party starts listening to the voters again.

Sheryl Khoury, Plymouth

Vote next time

Congratulations go to the "Special Interest Groups" for electing a Republican candidate for state representative who quit four months after being elected previously saying "I'm tired of the long boring drive," and after only one year as township supervisor increased his salary 30 percent.

Can you honestly say this was for the good of the community?

To say I am disappointed is an understatement. However my disappointment is directed at those who did not vote. What does it take to get people to vote? Would someone please tell me?

I am not referring to those who may have missed for the first time for some emergency,

Homeowners Advisory Council contributes to community

This isn't easy for me, writing about myself or a Canton organization I'm deeply involved with, and yet this is a group I feel strongly about, a group that has the potential to make a difference for homeowners.

I'm talking about the Canton Homeowners Advisory Council.

Where else can homeowners associations get together and hash out problems in their subdivisions and in the community? Where else can a resident come and hear the inside and honest scoop from people like Tom Yack, Canton Township Supervisor, or Bryan Amann, Wayne County commissioner, or a host of other important community officials? Where else is it possible to work with neighbors to strengthen Canton and look beyond one's street to the greater need of the community? Nowhere.

Today's society gives us plenty of ways to fill our days, but they are just distractions and don't offer us a way to give back to the community. There aren't enough means for someone who cares about the community but is pressed for time to get involved. The council is the kind of organization where our precious time is well spent.

This is my second year with the group and I already feel attached to it. It's not what it is because of me. A group of dedicated souls has been with the group since we reformed in 1993 and they deserve the credit. Believe it or not there was suspicion in 1993. Why did Yack want to get this organization running again after it had fallen on difficulties and fallen apart? But suspicion gave way to a sense of cooperation and a sense of purpose.

This community needs an organization like the Homeowners Advisory Council. The need is important with the rapid rise of new subdivisions and the graying of older subdivisions.

We don't vote on issues or take pro/con stances. It's not up to us as an organization to stand in judgment of the Canton government. We're not a government rubber stamp. Think back to the home inspection issue when the council raised serious concerns about the idea during lengthy open debates.

GUEST COLUMNIST

BARBARA BERGENTY

■ Today's society gives us plenty of ways to fill our days, but they are just distractions and don't offer us a way to give back to the community. There aren't enough means for someone who cares about the community but is pressed for time to get involved.

We are trying to develop ways to help each other find snow removal companies, understand the guidelines of recycling and waste removal, find out what's going on at the police station or in the ordinance office, take care of problems in our common areas, meet with local leaders to get first hand updates, gather information on important issues such as home inspections, and work with the township staff in preparation of new materials which will be helpful to all homeowners.

I don't understand how other communities have failed to see the benefits of getting their associations working together and forming an advisory council. Is this something that has to come from the grass roots?

There isn't anything wrong if residents work with government, even at government's suggestion. Things get done that way and they get done with the direct involvement of the citizens.

Canton needs the council. We need it because of the growth. We need it because we have got to get more involved. We still don't have even half of the homeowners associations attending our meetings, but we keep trying. We need it for an informed citizenry. We need it to fight apathy and the attitude that others will fight our battles for us.

Some of our goals have been to get more associations involved, to get more people involved in each of our 35-plus associations. We now have new members from other associations that give our council renewed energy and commitment. We also want to make the community more aware of whom and what we are. We field gripes and complaints, just like the individual association officers, but we do it together.

That sounds like a slogan, and maybe it is. Together we can create a community worth cherishing.

Unclaimed deposits indeed should help clean state

Sorry, I misled you in a column five years ago and just found out about it, but a correction is better late than never.

On July 10, 1989, I wrote, "This time the beverage industry caved in fairly quickly." It was about the unclaimed deposits law — you know, the bottles and cans of beer, pop and wine coolers that someone pays 10 cents for but never redeems at the store.

A dime here, a dime there, and pretty soon you're talking tens of millions of dollars per year. The estimates ranged from $12 million to $121 million a year and cluster around $30 million. Only the manufacturers know for sure, and they're not revealing.

Under duress, the Michigan Legislature in 1989 wrote a law saying that 75 percent of the unclaimed deposits should go into the state treasury trust fund be used for cleanups of toxic cleanups, solid waste disposal and recycling.

My column correctly said Michigan United Conservation Clubs had to bludgeon our lawmakers by collecting 30,000 petition signatures toward 300,000 needed to put such a law on the ballot. The Legislature acted before MUCC had to collect the other 270,000 signatures. At the time, it appeared the industry would accept the inevitable.

"I hope industry will have brains enough to grasp that Michiganans want a clean state and that the Litter Lobby will give in without an expensive, knock-down, drag-out fight," my column said. Well, I was wrong. The industry was dumber and more selfish than I thought.

To date the amount expended on cleanups has been: zero. The Michigan Soft Drink Association has tied up the law in the courts. First, Ingham Circuit wrong and that the money should go to the treasury.

Our appellate court cited supreme court decisions in Massachusetts and Maine to disprove the industry's shaky argument that our unclaimed deposits belonged to the industry and that the state laws were a "taking" without compensation. Our court said:

"Because of public sentiment against windfall profits to distributors and manufacturers from the unredeemed deposits, the Legislature explicitly amended 1989 Public Act 148 to provide that unclaimed deposits on returnable containers are considered the property of the purchaser, not the manufacturer or distributor. . . . Further, distributors or manufacturers are to report annually to the Department of Treasury the total amount of deposits collected and refunds paid. . . . (T)he excess must be remitted to the Department of Treasury. . . ."

Will the soft-drink industry and its allies waste another year and hundreds of thousands of our tax dollars dragging this out in the Supreme Court? Not if they're smart. So far the bottlers and wholesalers, to their shame, have lost every round: the 1976 ballot proposal, the mid-'80s fight to include wine coolers and the court battle over unclaimed deposits.

Perhaps they're hoping an environmentally conscious public will get tired of hitting them over the head and leave them alone. If that's their delusion, the industry will be wrong for a fourth straight time.

Michigan needs to validate academic prowess of grads

Awhile back, I wrote a column about how the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test scores are being used as the basis for state-endorsed diplomas for this year's high school graduates.

I suggested this step is very useful to employers and college admissions officers as it validates a graduate's actual academic performance, something previous diplomas failed to do.

At the end of the column, I wrote that "stakes for graduates will go even higher in 1997, when they won't get a high school diploma at all unless they received passing scores on all three MEAP tests."

The same week, I received a letter from Dorothy Beardmore, the thoughtful treasurer of the State Board of Education, pointing out that that was "a major error of fact."

She's right.

Sec. 1279 (2) of Public Act 335 of 1993, part of Michigan's school reform package, says quite clearly that "a school district may award a high school diploma to a pupil who successfully completes local district requirements established in accordance with state law for high school graduation, regardless of whether the pupil is eligible for any state endorsement."

In other words, local schools may establish their own standards for graduation and award their own diplomas, regardless of what the State Board or Legislature decides to do about state endorsement of diplomas.

Not only that, but beginning in 1997, the MEAP test will be replaced as an assessment instrument by another, less multiple choice-oriented, more essay-ish examination which is now supposed to be under development in Michigan.

The same law quoted above is clear: "Beginning with pupils scheduled to graduate in 1997, if a pupil achieves the academic outcomes required by the state board (of education), as measured by an assessment instrument . . . the pupil's school district shall award a state endorsement on the pupil's diploma"

I have three points to make about all this:

The first is to thank Ms. Beardmore (and others) who wrote and called to correct this error. This certainly won't be the last time I'll make a mistake, and the only way I can correct the record is to have such helpful people point out my errors.

PHILIP POWER

■ Instead of developing its own exam, Michigan should seriously think about joining in with a number of other states in working with a set of assessment instruments now being developed under the auspices of the National Center for Education in the Economy.

Second, regardless of whether the assessment instrument is the MEAP test or some other exam, Michigan still intends to assess academic performance of high school students so a graduate's diploma actually means something to an employer or college admissions officers.

Third, instead of developing its own exam, Michigan should seriously think about joining in with a number of other states in working with a set of assessment instruments now being developed under the auspices of the National Center for Education in the Economy. If Michigan is seriously interested in world-class academic skills, we should get with the program of developing what will one day be a national system of performance assessment.

Overall, things are moving forward. The state still plans to assess what kids actually learn. Amid all the hoopla about what's going on in our schools, that is reason for continued hope of progress.

Bass qualifier

Linda Bennett of Canton came up 6 pounds light. But it was enough — she'll have a shot at nationwide recognition among anglers when she competes in the Classic Star Championships in the waters of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers near St. Charles, Mo., Sept. 30 to Oct. 1.

Only the top 30 women from among hundreds of competitors qualified for the invitation-only tournament. Bennett earned her spot by placing 16th overall in the National Bassin' Gal XVIII Classic Star World Championship standings, based on her 12th-place finish at the National Bassin' Gal U.S. Invitational Tournament Aug. 4 and 5 on Kentucky Lake in Benton, Ky.

"I'm very pleased with my finish at Kentucky Lake," said Bennett, 33 and a Plymouth Salem High School graduate. "I've now surpassed some of the biggest names on the tour in the points standings. I've worked very hard to reach this level, and now it's starting to pay off."

Bennett was actually expecting something better than her 12th-place finish at Kentucky Lake. "I was only six pounds away from winning it all," she said, "and I lost three fish that would have made the difference."

"I had one on that I lost near the boat that had to weigh at least three pounds."

Bennett is among the top anglers in the local state chapter of Bassin' Gals and is in contention to win the chapter's top angler of the year award.

Fitness Meet scorers

Thirty-nine finalists from Canton attended the Detroit Metropolitan Area Youth Fitness Meet July 28 at Kensington Metropark in Milford, and three came home with top-three finishes.

Kendra McKinney, competing in the Class C (9-to 10-year-olds) Division, finished first in chin-ups with 12 chin-ups.

Angela McKinney, competing in Class B (11-12 year-olds), was second in the standing long jump with a leap of 6 feet, 8 inches. And Andrew Meagow took a third in the Class C standing long jump with an effort of 6-1 1/4.

There were 36 communities represented at the 37th annual meet, with more than 1,500 participants between the ages of 7 and 14.

Camp standout

Nicholas Cabauatan of Canton made the most of his participation in the David McCracken Basketball Camp this summer.

Cabauatan, who will enter the sixth grade at West Middle School next month, collected eight first-place ribbons and placed in 13 of 14 events. He was selected to the all-star team and won the pride award, presented to just one camper in each age group.

Golf tryouts

The Plymouth Salem golf team will have tryouts starting at 7 a.m. Monday at Hilltop Golf Course, located at Beck and Ann Arbor Trail.

Players will be expected to pay the junior greens fee rate. For further information, call Rick Wilson at 459-3786.

Soccer camps

A series of soccer camps, run through Nick O'Shea's Soccer Store and More, will be conducted at Heritage Park in Canton starting Monday.

The series kicks off with a Rec/In House camp, which will run Monday through Friday and will be divided into two groups: Those born before Aug. 1, 1984 (9-11:30 a.m.), and those born after (12:30-3 p.m.). It is designed to teach younger players basic skills and help older players develop skills further. Cost is $65 per participant.

A PeeWee Camp, for kids born after Aug. 1, 1986, will be conducted from Aug. 22-26, with two morning sessions (9:10-30 a.m. and 10:30-noon). This camp, which costs $45, is to teach basic skills and have fun.

A Select Player Camp will also be held Aug. 22-26, from 1-4 p.m., for players born before Aug. 1, 1983. This session will emphasize advanced skills as well as individual and group tactics. Cost is $75 per player.

And finally, a team camp will be held from 1-4 p.m. Aug. 22-26, with training by some of the area's best coaches. Work will concentrate on specific problems a team is experiencing. Cost is $75 per team.

The camp will be directed by O'Shea; Lars Richters of the Detroit Rockers; and Rob Ludwig, formerly a star at Eastern Michigan University.

Registration forms are available at the Soccer Store and More, located in Civic Center Plaza on Five Mile Road just west of Farmington. For information, call 421-7533.

Pee Wee Reese tryouts

Tryouts for the Plymouth-Canton Pee Wee Reese baseball team (11- and 12-year-olds) will be 4-6:30 p.m. Sept. 10-11 at Township Park. For further information, call Brian Wolcott at 453-7667.

Anyone wishing to submit items for Sports Scene should mail them to sports editor C.J. Risak, 96251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or fax them to (313) 891-7879.

Steele's wins regional, heads to World Series

BY BRAD EMONS

Prepare for takeoff.

Steele's of Trenton, featuring several Obersonland standouts, is floating on air today, headed toward Farmington, N.M., for the American Amateur Baseball Congress Connie Mack (18-and-under) World Series.

Winning six-straight games, capped by a 4-3 championship victory Sunday over Hoenig's of Ann Arbor, Steele's captured the 16-team AABC North Central Regional at Battle Creek's Bailey Stadium.

Steele's, sporting a 35-18 overall record, opens the double-elimination tournament against the West Regional champ 1 p.m. Saturday. Eight teams, including host New Mexico and a representative from Puerto Rico, will vie for the national title.

Steele's catches fire

"The kids are on quite a role," Steele's coach Chet Kapla said. "It's unbelievable what the kids did."

"Everything fell into place. Their confidence is way up. They're playing good baseball and having fun."

Steele's won four of its six regional games by one run, including the final over Hoenig's, which advanced after eliminating Westland Federation, the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation champs, 3-1.

Steele's earned the trip to New Mexico by rallying for two runs in the top of the seventh.

Eric Marcotte (Plymouth Canton High) singled and Jeff Lance (Redford Thurston) walked to start the comeback.

With one out, Dave Kapla (Redford Catholic Central) then delivered a clutch two-run triple to right-center field to put Steele's ahead to stay.

Hildebrand goes 2-0

Joel Hildebrand, a right-hander from Henry Ford Community College, won his second game of the tournament by going all seven innings. He struck out four, walked four and scattered five hits.

Steele's jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first when Kapla brought home Lance with a sacrifice fly. They added another run in the fifth to make it 2-2 when catcher Juan Sanchez (Redford CC) was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on Greg Nesbitt's single. (Nesbitt is a Westland John Glenn product now at Henry Ford CC).

Hildebrand, meanwhile, threw a no-hitter in the tournament opener (Aug. 3) against the Wyoming Royals, 5-0. He struck out four and walked only two.

"Our pitching was there the whole weekend and that was the key," Kapla said. "We had fresh arms right until the end."

Outfielder Kapla contributed two RBI in the win.

Saturday, Westland fell to Zanesville, Ohio, 4-3, in 11 innings.

Wakefield, Westland's ace all season, worked all 11 innings in suffering the loss. He scattered eight hits and three walks, while fanning six.

Zanesville sent the game into extra innings with a pair of runs in the ninth before scoring the game-winner in the top of the 11th.

Mark Messier, whose solo homer in the fifth inning gave Westland a 2-1 advantage, finished with three hits. Danny Taylor and Jeff Schaffer, both pickups from Wal-Mart's of the LCBL, added two hits each along with Mark D'Antonio.

On Sunday, Westland bounced back with a 10-4 victory over New Brunswick, N.J., as shortstop Lee Gardner was the hitting hero with four hits and three RBI. He also scored twice.

Westland collected 14 hits.

Vote's in: WLAA stays as it is — for now

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Principals from the Western Lakes voted Tuesday to keep their 12-school activities association intact — for the time being.

In a special meeting held at the Dickinson Center in Livonia, the principals decided against expansion, which would have allowed the seven-member Kensington Valley Conference to join the WLAA.

Under WLAA constitutional by-laws, a unanimous vote was needed to approve expansion. (There are no provisions in the WLAA by-laws to vote on a merger.)

"We're just not ready to commit to any other configurations," said Livonia Churchill's Rod Hosman, the WLAA president and spokesman. "We discussed it for an hour before we voted. All I can tell you is that there was at least one no vote."

Hosman said the WLAA principals, however, agreed to pursue more cross-scheduling with the KVC in non-league contests.

"We'll try and schedule as many open dates as we can," Hosman said. "We also made it a priority to work more together in student activities events."

The WLAA is made up of Western Division members Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Canton, Farmington Harrison, Walled Lake Western and Northville. The Lakes Division includes Livonia Stevenson, Plymouth Salem, Walled Lake Central, Westland John Glenn, Farmington and North Farmington.

The KVC, which originally approached the WLAA about a merger, includes Novi, South Lyon, Hartland, Howell, Brighton, Milford and Milford Lakeland.

"The timing is not right and there's a lot more work to do," Hosman said. "There has to be more dialogue, but I think we're moving in the right direction. I think everybody at the meeting came away with a positive outlook on this item. We have all kinds of options, but the timing is not right now."

With the proliferation of 20-school-plus mega leagues throughout the Detroit metro area, athletic directors in both the KVC and WLAA have expressed concern about scheduling non-league contests. Outside scheduling needs are generally met under the mega concept.

The event is a cooperative effort between the Bowling Centers Association, the Greater Detroit Bowling Association and the Detroit Women's Bowling Centers Association.

Featured will be new products, discount closeouts, tournament and league information, instruction, software, contests and celebrities for their autographs.

There are other things to see and do at the trade center, as it covers seven football fields of space with hundreds of small businesses selling everything from arts and crafts to sporting goods and clothing.

Admission is $1.50 per carload. The hours are from noon to 9 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 26, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 27 and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28.

He pushed Lance home with an RBI double in the first and added an RBI single in the fifth. Derek Besco (John Glenn) clubbed a long drive that was played into a two-run error to give Steele's a pair of runs in the third. Jason Rice (Northville) also added an RBI sacrifice fly in the fifth.

One-run win

In the second game (Aug. 3), Steele's edged Hoening's, 2-1, as winning pitcher Derric Terry (4½ innings) and reliever Mark Watt (save) combined on a four-hitter.

Sanchez walked, Dave Stark singled and Marcotte hit a sacrifice fly to give Steele's one run in the second. Bryan Besco (John Glenn) singled in Kapla with the other run in the third.

Kapla, Lance and Stark each collected two hits for the winners.

On Friday, Steele's took advantage of 11 walks to mercy Birmingham Chrysler-Plymouth in five innings, 12-2.

Steele's put it away with eight runs in the third.

J.J. Putz, who struck out eight, walked seven and allowed just one hit over five innings, was the winning pitcher.

On Saturday, Steele's scored a pair of one-run wins over Joliet, Ill.

Besco twins excel

Derek Besco had a two-run single in the first and added an RBI double in the sixth, while twin brother Bryan had a clutch two-run double in the fourth as Steele's won the opener, 6-5.

Both Bescos are headed this fall to the University of Michigan.

Bryan Besco, who pitched the first four innings before giving way to Mark Watt, earned the victory. Derek Besco came on in relief to earn the save, striking out the final two batters with a pair of Joliet runners on base.

In the nightcap, Brian Reynolds tossed a three-hitter, striking out five and walking two, as Steele's posted a 3-2 win.

Bryan Besco belted a solo home run in the second inning.

Steele's added two more in the fourth on an RBI single by Nesbitt and a successful suicide squeeze bunt by Marcotte, scoring Sanchez.

For the tournament, Stark led Steele's with a .500 batting average (seven for 14). Lance went six for 17 (.353) and scored nine runs. Kapla drove in five runs and scored four times.

"They came through in the clutch," Kapla said.

Hockey

It was a difficult loss for the Broncos (11-1-2), who had the best record in the league and were unbeaten until their last game. But player/coach Keith Pietila accepted the outcome in a sportsmanlike manner.

"That happens; we had our chances," he said. "They were hot in the playoffs, and they have a lot of good players on that team. They deserved to win."

"We had some close games, but we were able to pull them out. We play to win. That's probably one of the reasons we had such a good season. The guys are competitive and hate losing even though it's a summer league."

The Broncos failed to hold a 3-0 lead and had to rally from a 4-3 deficit in the third period to force overtime.

"We should have been able to hold them, but they played well," Pietila said. "Both (Lakers) goalies played well; so did ours. We had it under control but let it slip away."

The Broncos led 2-0 in the first period on goals by Jim Pietila and Mark Pietila, and Peter Bourke made it 3-0 in the second.

The Lakers began to stir when Andrew Perry scored with 42 seconds left in the second period, flipping the puck from the blue line into the net.

It became a different game early in the third period when the Lakers scored two goals 20 seconds apart in the first minute. Dave Lambeth and Chuck Vockler converted the first two shots of the period to tie, and Carl Schumacher gave the Lakers their first lead (4-3) with a power-play goal at 10:55.

"Between periods, we tried to keep our heads up," Weber said. "We said we were just up against a hot goalie (Dave Roach), which we were, and to keep peppering the next goalie, who didn't have a chance to warm up. We thought we'd get some to go in, and we did."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

TOPS ON THE LINKS

Brad Volas of Canton made a run at the title in his division at the Kensington Junior Golf Championships, played at Kensington Metropark Golf Course in Milford last Friday.

But he fell two strokes short.

Volas, competing in the 13-14 year-old division, shot an 83 to finish third. The division champion was Richard Dolph III of Waterford, who fired an 81. Bobby Straka of Sterling Heights was second with an 82.

Scott Cervin of Milford collected his second title and was the overall low scorer. Cervin won the 15-16 division with a 70.

It was the sixth-annual tournament, and it attracted 242 players.

PCJBA BASKETBALL

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association will conduct registration for its 1994-95 season from 7-9 p.m. Aug. 24 at the Plymouth Canton HS gymnasium. All kids in grades three through eight living in Plymouth and Canton are invited to sign up.

The PCJBA offers leagues for both boys and girls. Cost for C League (third and fourth graders) players is $65; cost for B Leaguers (fifth and sixth grades) is $70; and the cost for A Leaguers (seventh and eighth grades) is $75.

To submit items for the Sports Roundup, send them to sports editor C.J. Risick, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or FAX them to (313) 591-7279.

will be announced at a later date.

The PCJBA is divided into separate boys and girls leagues (the C League is instructional), with all players guaranteed playing time and no one playing the entire game.

The league has been operational for 30 years, and it is expected more than 900 players and 200 adults will participate this season. Coaches are always needed; they, too, should register Aug. 24. Games will be refereed by paid students (grades 9-12) trained for the job.

The registration fee includes the cost of one practice per week, a minimum of 10 games per team plus the season-ending tournament, and a jersey each player can keep. Registration is limited.

3-ON-3 SOCCER

The deadline is here to register for Soccermania 3v3, scheduled for Aug. 20-21 at Schoolcraft College.

The objective of this unique 3-on-3 soccer tournament is fun. Teams can enter with as few as three, but no more than five, players on their rosters.

Cost is $75 per team, and the registration deadline is Friday.

For further information, call 421-7533.

It's tough losing a friend

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

"Old."
"Wornout."
"Slow."

The insults sliced like the razor edge of a broadhead.

"We get the job done," I'd say with a frown. "We know our limitations and we hunt within them."

This fall will be different. When archery deer season begins on October 1st I'll sneak into the woods with a stranger in tow.

Last week, my eight-year relationship ended with a snap. I'd taken a dozen shots with my old reliable partner — an aged Darton Trailmaster — and was drawing down on my target for another shot when there was a loud, startling "SNAP". The first hunting bow I had ever owned is now history. It had snapped in half. The riser broke just above the grip. The relationship had ended.

Over the years we spent more than 500 hours in the woods together and at least that much time practicing at the archery range or against the straw bales stacked in my backyard.

We were tight and I'd immediately go on the defensive any time someone scorned me for having a partner so old and haggard. "Hey, we get the job done, don't we?" I'd growl in response with a question not intended to be answered.

A working relationship

She wasn't real pretty or flashy, but did have a soft, quiet tone about her — compared to some of today's loud, brash models. And beside, we worked well as a team. We put venison in the freezer seven of the eight years we hunted together.

Still, she never got the respect she deserved.

Although I'm disappointed I certainly can't complain. The bow, which featured a carriage (hanger) to anchor the wheels to the limbs, was probably closer to being an antique than it was to being a new bow. I pushed it to the limit but "Father Time" had the final word.

We were first acquainted eight years ago when my good friend Timmy King handed her over with words of caution.

"Here," he said. "You can have this bow, but it's getting old. I bought it used five years ago and I've never taken anything with it. I hope you have better luck with it than I did."

The bow was old when I received it, but it never really needed much maintenance. It never needed a new cable or string.

Opponents of the mega concept have expressed concerns about added travel and additional transportation costs.

Mega leagues also offer parity among competing schools, breaking down members into divisions by enrollment and past performance records for each individual sport.

"There was talk of making the KVC a third division of the WLAA," Hosman said. "And we'll continue to look at surrounding schools, keep our options open and see how it evolves wheel. Never needed a new limb or even a new paint job. The only thing that ever needed changing was the string, which was replaced annually due to wear and tear.

Now I'm in a bit of a jam. October 1st is only 50 days away and I'm shopping for a new bow.

Decisions, decisions

Do I continue to shoot a compound bow or reacquaint myself with a recurve. Do I want a short or long bow? Overdraw? Release? I'll have to answer all these questions and more before I decide on a bow. Once I find one, I'll have to set it up, tune it in, then shoot, shoot.

With my old Trailmaster, I knew its limitations. It came to rest comfortably in my hand. I knew how it reacted in cold weather and how it reacted in warm. I knew how my arrow would fly at 15, 20 and 25 yards. Those old securities are now new mysteries. Now I have to learn all over again, but at least I have 50 days.

If you're a bow hunter and have yet to dust off the cobwebs, don't delay. Time is running out.

Recurves, longbows and compound bows take time to zero in. A good archer knows there's no substitute for practice. Now is the time to make up for the missed shot you took last year. Get out and practice.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker 6-10 p.m. Monday at 901-2573.

Finesse claims 3rd at World Tournament

Finesse made Michigan proud last weekend by finishing third out of 41 teams in the 18-and-under U.S. Slow-pitch Softball Association World Tournament held in Hutchinson, Kan.

Led by Garden City High varsity coach Barry Patterson, Finesse won five of seven games to finish the year at 41-12 overall.

"It was the strongest field we've played against and the highest finish we've had in awhile," Patterson said. "It was also the highest finish by a Michigan team in any age group since 1984."

Music under stars launches season

The stars will shine regardless of the weather as the Livonia Symphony and Plymouth Symphony present outdoor concerts to kick off their fall and winter performance series.

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

A warm August night with the stars overhead and beautiful waves of music ripple through the air as you relax on the grass.

It's a glimpse into a slow-paced world of yesterday. Or is it?

The community symphony orchestras of Livonia and Plymouth are hoping residents from all over the area will slip into the time machine and attend their outdoor concerts to kick off the 1994-95 season.

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Francesco DiBlasi will perform at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 18 at the Livonia City Park on 5 Mile, just east of Farmington.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Russell Reed will perform at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 25 at Heritage Park in Canton Township, on Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill.

Both concerts are free and guests are encouraged to bring blankets and picnic baskets to enjoy during the concerts.

The outdoor events are always popular drawing as many as 500 people.

"Listening to music on the radio is such an individual experience, but there is nothing as moving as a live musical performance with a quality orchestra," said Linda Alvarado, president of the Plymouth Symphony Society, a fund-raising group for the orchestra beginning its 49th season with the outdoor concert.

Brian Moon, the trumpet soloist for the Livonia orchestra's concert, said playing outdoors offers a new challenge to musicians, especially brass players.

"Brass players try to fill the room they are playing in and it's difficult to do that outdoors," he said. The assortment of music planned for Livonia's concert, however, will keep the mood relaxed and fun, he added.

Moon, who has performed with the Livonia Orchestra 14 years, will be featured in La Virgen della Macarena (the bullfighter's song) and the Trumpeter's Lullabye in the outdoor event. "I enjoy the piece (La Virgen della Macarena) because it was written for trumpet and allows your best qualities to show," Moon said.

The Livonia Symphony will also welcome mezzo soprano Irina Lekhtman to the outdoor concert to perform excerpts from "Carmen" and "Climb Every Mountain" from The Sound of Music. Other selections to be performed include selections from the musical "Showboat," "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Blue Danube" and the Overture to Candide.

The Plymouth Symphony performance will feature the music of Andrew Lloyd Webber, music from favorite MGM movie musicals and a solo by Fred Breitenbucher as they perform the popular 1812 Overture by Tchaikovsky.

Alvarado said the more contemporary tunes are usually favored at the outdoor concerts because the atmosphere is much more relaxed.

Moon agreed that these initial outdoor concerts attract large audiences and hopefully spark an interest in attending future performances during the regular concert season.

Golden age of radio worth reviewing

BOB WEIBEL

If you've ever wondered what it was like to be in the audience of a 1940's radio show, drop by "The Burgh" (Berg and Civic Center Drive) in Southfield.

Director Marje King and SRO Productions have another winner in "WSRO On The Air II." This nostalgic tribute to the golden years of radio, is a lively variation of last season's successful "WSRO On The Air."

REVIEW

Gilkles and Bill Mandt, the simulated radio show weaves in episodes of Baby Snooks, The Lone Ranger, Red Skelton, My Friend Irma and The Bickersons — along with news, sports, gossip, commercials and music of the 1940's.

"WSRO On The Air II" is performed in a historic church at The Burgh, that has been transformed into the studios of station WSRO, including equipment for live sound effects.

Seeing how sound for the thundering hoofs of the great horse Silver are created (by Laura Walker) while the announcer (Harold Landis) says, "The Lone Ranger rides again," is a delightful experience.

And what great fun it is to hear long-forgotten commercials for Twin Pines Dairy, Iced Maxwell House Coffee and Ovaltine. (I seem to remember sending away for one of those Little Orphan Annie "shake-up mugs.")

The cast of 17 doesn't attempt to mimic the characters from the past. For the most part, they capture the essence of the shows and are uniformly good in their varied roles. Paul and Bob Myers are a hoot as the feisty Bickersons. Karen Liphardt scores as

Pacifist misfit finds he is 'In The Army Now'

PAULY SHORE is definitely not one of the few good men Army recruitment has in mind for molding into a soldier. But that doesn't stop pacifist Pauly from signing up for a hitch in the Reserves in order to cash in on all the great perks, including free room and board and a steady salary for doing minimal work. Now, this man's Army is putting Pauly to the test. And Pauly the military misfit is serving his country as only he can, and single-handedly putting the Army on Red Alert.

Clipped off his curls and scuttling from a scud base in the African desert, he's battling with everything from rules and regulations, to power-hungry authority figures and would-be world dictators. Surrendering to the comic crisis of being a soldier who marches to the beat of a different drummer, G.I. Shore is on a mission that promises to score a direct hit in Hollywood Pictures' new comedy, "In The Army Now."

Directed by Daniel Petrie Jr., "In the Army Now" is based on a screenplay by Ken Kaufman, Stu Krieger, Petrie, and Bahr and Adam Small. The film is produced by Michael Rotenberg and is distributed by Buena Vista Pictures. It will be released this week in local theaters.

Shore plays Bones Conway, the most unlikely hero there is. Somehow he manages to land in the right, however, as he is left with the task of destroying a Libyan Scud base in the Chadian desert. Bones and his water purification team are sent to deal with Gaddafi's best.

"Bones Conway is the quintessential screw up," says Shore of the character he plays. "He can't hold a job. He has no respect for authority and no future to speak of. Bones is really going nowhere. All he really has is this pipe dream of owning a stereo store and thinks joining the reserves will make it happen. He's in it for the money and nothing else."

Bones' team of misfits includes Andy Dick as Jack Kaufman, Lori Petty as Christine Jones and David Alan Grier as Fred Ostroff.

Kaufman is an old buddy of Bones who has followed him everywhere in life. The Army reserves is no exception.

Jones is the only member of the team who actually joined the reserves to "do in the bad guys and save the country."

Ostroff is a recent graduate of dental school who joins the reserves on the urging of his therapist to overcome his neurotic tendencies.

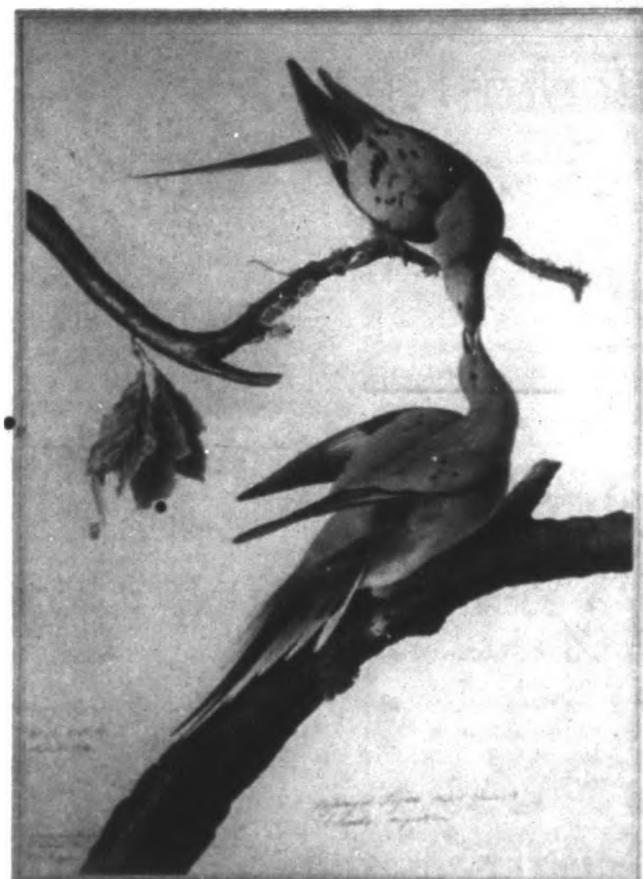

Right from the beginning everything goes wrong for these four misfits. They're sent to war and immediately get lost in the desert with no food or water. When they finally discover a life-saving oasis, they're captured by Libyans. And when they escape, they find themselves saddled with an impossible mission and the fate of the world in their hands. That's when these unlikely soldiers go into battle, and become even more unlikely heroes, destroying the Scud base and saving the world.

Area college offers job training

Scholarships for training programs in high demand career fields like machine tool technology are available through Oakland Community College's Center for Dislocated Workers. The funds, provided through the Federal Job Training Partnership Act, are available to laid-off workers who are not likely to return to the same industry or occupation, and to low-income women entering non-traditional fields.

The center offers a number of condensed programs designed to give people job skills needed to move quickly back into the workforce. The first program, machine tool technology, begins Aug. 22. The 15-week class meets four days a week, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at OCC's Auburn Hills campus.

Students will earn 24 college credits as they learn shop math, blueprint reading, statistical process control and operation of lathes, milling machines, grinders and shapers. An introduction to computer numerical control is also included in the coursework. Trainees will build their own tools to take with them for use on the new job.

Center director Karen Pagenette says that "local employers routinely look to the college to fill their manpower needs. As a result, nearly 100 percent of the machinist program graduates have found jobs, at an average starting pay rate of $9.50 an hour."

For information regarding scholarships and tuition rates, call the center at 340-6787.

KAREN MEIER

Unlikely hero

He hailed from a northern place, a foreign land. He was young and he was strong. The mane of hair atop his head he wore like a golden crown. The green garment with its various ties and its deep, mysterious looking pockets graced his figure as he strode down the long avenue. He was a hero. Truly a hero. A hero unsung until today.

He was . . . the bag boy at Mr. Grocery.

Listen as I sing his praises and tell the story:

Once upon a time (last month), our family of six climbed aboard a train and rode across the Canadian countryside. When the towering skyline of Toronto appeared through the glass, the children cheered. Soon we stepped out into the warm, muggy Canadian afternoon and made our way to the room we had reserved in the very large hotel. In the room was a little kitchen.

We'd made sure of that.

You see, we've discovered that making our own meals and eating them in the privacy of our own room is so much better than "Going Out to the Restaurant." With four young children, "Going Out to the Restaurant" is not only horribly expensive, but just plain horrible. The spoon wars, the sugar pyramids, the baptisms by pop, the science experiments, the See-Food episodes, the exploding diapers. The whole thing. Nasty business.

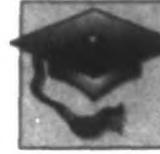

I just don't care to inflict such things on strangers. The waitresses hate it. The people trying to enjoy a nice meal hate it. And the bus boys especially hate it. We're a mess. And we know it. And so we rent a room with our own kitchen facilities.

Immediately upon arriving in our room, we ask the information lady where the nearest

Like illusionist David Copperfield, 7-year-old Emily Arble of Plymouth was very careful not to let out her magical secrets.

"Shhhh," she said with a forceful look to a New Morning School classmate when asked how she made a magic wand move without touching it. "Don't tell her the secret."

After all, she couldn't let out the secret before the big magic show. And she didn't go as far as Copperfield, though, making them sign papers promising not to share anything.

Emily and about 10 other children learned to perform magic tricks as part of New Morning School's Discovery Days classes, held every summer. Aside from learning how to move wands magically, the children figured out how to make a penny disappear and a genie appear.

In other rooms throughout the cozy Plymouth school, children aged 3-10 learned organizational skills and how to make masks, musical instruments and crafts out of recyclable material.

Jennifer Darling, 8, Katharine Keim, 9, both of Canton, and Dan Wojciak, 7, of Plymouth showed off their papier mache masks that they stressed were designed for decoration - not for wearing.

Katharine's elaborate mask had bulging eyes, while Jennifer and Dan opted for the simple mummy look. All of them found the task challenging.

"It was hard; it took a long time," Dan said.

Besides papier mache, they learned to sculpt with wood and clay.

The "We Just Call It Garbage" class, held outside, was based on the song by Tom Hunter. Teacher Pat Griffin showed her class how they can make their own toys and musical instruments out of recyclable material.

Lids from plastic containers were used as Frisbees. Instead of tossing eggs, kids passed wet sponges back and forth. An empty ketchup bottle made a pretty good squirt gun.

To top it off, paper plates were easily be made into sun visors.

Royal support: Sisters give monarchs a home

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

She's been dubbed the "Matriarch of the Monarchs," and you might find names like Charles and Diana among the monarchs she's nurtured to adulthood.

But these "blue bloods" are in no way, shape or form related to Britain's royal family. Formally, they're known as Danaus plexippus; to the casual observer, they're a monarch butterfly.

And around these parts, Sister Nancy Marie is their "matriarch."

Sister Nancy laughs at the title, but it seems well-suited for the vice president of student life at Madonna University. An empty cocoon hangs from the ceiling in her office, another from a countertop. Her room in the convent features an makeshift "incubator" and paper bag "nursery."

"I've found them as early as May 24 a few years ago," said the Felician sister, checking the nursery, "but July and August is the high time for finding them."

Sister Nancy has been gathering up butterfly eggs for 22 years. She estimates she "mothers" an average of 36 a year. She got into it while on a camping trip to Wilderness State Park. There with several other sisters, they saw the milkweed and caterpillars and decided to take some home.

"We had two get out of the bag while we were in the restaurant and attached to the rear window of the car," she recalled. "I told sister she's was just going to have to leave them there."

Sharing her interest is Sister Giovanni, executive director of Angela Hospice Home Care, who recalls collecting butterfly eggs as a child. Inspired by Sister Nancy, she's started again 20 years and estimates she's fostered 60 or so monarchs.

"My mom and dad used to do it when we were kids," said Sister Giovanni. "We had a big yard and a lot of milkweed. And I also had eight brothers who always liked wormy things."

Not quite scientific

Theirs is not a scientific process. They find the small white eggs by checking the underside of milkweed leaves. Sister Nancy picks the leaves and adds them to the incubator; Sister Giovanni takes the stalk and puts it in a vase filled with water.

It takes about nine days from the time the egg is laid to when it turns black, a sure sign a caterpillar is about to be born. The tiny creature then spends the next 11-14 days devouring the milkweed plant and growing to about 2 inches in length.

Sister Giovanni used to keep her caterpillars in the bathtub in the old Angela Hospice offices. Now a bud vase sits on her desk in her new office, a 1½-year-old caterpillar munching away on the plant.

"In the other chair," she said. "It can get a bit messy when it gets bigger. All they do is eat and poop and eat and poop."

The monarch butterfly also has a special meaning for Sister Giovanni. The butterfly is the Christian symbol for hospice and throughout the Salem Lutheran Church will have its vacation Bible school Aug. 15-20 at the church, Ann Arbor Trail at Hubbard, Westland. The theme will be "Exploring God's Kingdom" and will include Bible stories, songs, games, crafts and refreshments. Family Night will be at 7 p.m. Aug. 18. The school is for children 4-12 years of age. For more information, call 422-5550.

The Jews for Jesus traveling evangelistic team, The Liberated Wailing Wall, will be coming to the Detroit First Church of the Nazarene Sunday, Aug. 14.

The troupe will present a program of music, drama and testimony at 6 p.m. at the church, 21260 Haggerty Road, Northville.

Jews for Jesus developed Jewish gospel music more than two decades ago. They wanted music with harmony and rhythm that could blend their Jewishness with a message proclaiming Jesus as Messiah. They were surprised that others enjoyed their minor key music.

"Our music reflects many styles of Jewish and Christian worship," said Jonathan Bernd, leader of the Liberated Wailing Wall. "The group's sound is achieved through a variety of instruments including piano, guitar, violin, flute, piccolo and dumbek (Middle Eastern drum). Some songs capture the poignant longing that has been a part of our synagogue worship throughout the ages.

"All the lyrics are taken from both the Hebrew Scriptures and the New Testament portion of the Bible."

Jews for Jesus is an independent missionary organization founded in 1973 by Moishe Rosen. The staff consists of more than 100 workers based in the United States, Canada, Argentina, Great Britain, France, Ukraine, Russia and South Africa. Their goal is to let Jewish people know that the gospel is for them, that belief in Jesus does not take away one's Jewish culture and heritage.

According to Rosen, belief in Jesus is validated by the Hebrew prophets who recorded what is commonly referred to as the Old Testament Scriptures.

"The fact that we say Jesus is the Messiah is not enough to make it so," Rosen said. "And the fact that the majority of the Jewish community says that he isn't not enough to make it not so. Our job is to get out and let our people know that the issue is too important to ignore."

"Our hope is that people will care enough to look into the Scriptures for themselves and ask God to show them the truth about Jesus."

One of the team members is Rob Meisel, who graduated from Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti with a bachelor of science degree in geography. Raised in a Reform Jewish home in Cleveland, Ohio, Meisel was told about Jesus by college friends and he has believed since 1982.

"I met other Jews who believe in Jesus and enjoyed celebrating the Jewish holidays more than ever," he said. "God's intervention in our history became that much more real to me because of my faith."

Meisel plays bass guitar and sings tenor.

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

RABBI IRWIN GRONER

In June of this year, a momentous event took place with the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Vatican and the State of Israel.

For many centuries before, the Jews of Europe became victims of Christian fury. Even though in some lands and during some centuries, the Christian-Jewish relationship was filled with light, mostly it was a history of dark, ominous shadows, of bigotry and persistent persecution. For nearly 20 centuries, Christians and Jews lived an uneasy and stressful and often bloody co-existence.

The Nazi Holocaust and the mass murder of six million Jews in the heart of Christian Europe between 1933 and 1945 shattered the fragile relationship between Christianity and Judaism. A new relationship needed to be developed between Christian and Jew.

For Jewish people, the State of Israel became the symbol and reality of survival after the Holocaust. The Jewish State was the answer to homelessness and powerlessness. It embodied the hope of Jewish redemption. But it remained officially unrecognized by the Roman Catholic Church.

In 1965, the second Vatican Council Declaration, "Nostra Aetate," ushered in a positive era for Catholics and Jews and sent a strong message of reconciliation, but it made no mention of the State of Israel.

Since 1965, Catholic and Jewish leaders and laity have addressed the need for greater understanding and responsiveness. Vatican-Israel diplomatic relations could not have been established without nearly 30 years of dynamic and constructive Catholic-Jewish relations, much of it in the United States. Nor could it have progressed without the leadership of many Catholic clergy and laypeople.

Will the Vatican-Israel relations mean the end of anti-Semitism? No, but they will aid in the Eternal struggle against that deadly social disease.

Will Vatican-Israel relations mean the end of theological differences between Catholics and Jews? Of course not. But relations will release fresh energy in both communities, and the dialogue will move into new areas.

Will Vatican-Israel relations mean the end of flash points between Catholics and Jews? No, but relations will provide a firm foundation to face future crises and a spirit of cooperation and SEE FOR YOURSELF AS JOE DID...

Why you should select us for your RK surgery.

Dr. Robert D. Beitzman, M.D., F.A.C.S.
Radial Keratotomy Institute of Michigan
5813 W. Maple Road, Suite 137

Dear Dr. Beitzman:

I would like to commend you and your staff on a job well done. I am very pleased with my experiences with you and your staff. Being a Manager of a Customer Support Department, I expect the best from my employees when it comes to providing good customer service. I also expect excellent service whenever I am the customer. I felt that the service received at your office exceeded my expectations.

Starting with my initial phone call requesting a consultation, my experiences were very pleasant. After watching the video, reading the various pieces of literature and talking with Peggy and yourself, I felt very comfortable with my decision to have RK performed at your office. Julie, Carla, Nat and Sue just made the experience even more pleasant (I hope I remembered all their names correctly). The personalities of these individuals actually made the experience fun (it's hard to believe that going to a doctor's office can be fun). During the tests and examinations, your staff was professional and personable. The conversations and joking that we had made the testing process go very quickly.

The actual surgery itself was painless and much quicker than I had imagined. I am definitely a "big chicken" when it comes to having anyone (including me) near my eyes. I was amazed that I made it through the surgery on my first eye, and still had the desire to have my second eye done. In the back of my mind, I thought for sure that I might not have enough nerve to return to have my other eye done. Considering I actually was looking forward to my second surgery, you and your staff must have done a good job.

It has really been fantastic to be able to do whatever I want without wearing glasses. I am still not used to going through the day without them. I find myself trying to adjust my glasses, even though I am not wearing them. Hopefully, I will be able to break this habit soon. Having people watch me reaching for glasses that don't exist is getting very embarrassing.

I would be happy to talk to any of your future clients regarding you, your staff and RK. Feel free to give them my number.

Sincerely, Joseph K. Chris

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I have read your column with interest for some time and decided to write and ask you to tell me what you can about me from my writing. I am a "young senior," right handed and enjoy reading, painting, travel and my grandchildren.

Thank you for your consideration.

G.G.,
Westland

The full loops that quickly vie for our attention speak to us of a prolific imagination. Hers is alive and well in all areas of her life. She can visualize and create mental images. Many related ideas associate one with the other and pass through her mind. This makes her an excellent idea person. She can visualize what she wants to achieve and see more possibilities.

For her, imagination has both good and bad aspects. While she benefits in some ways, she is at a disadvantage when the same imagination amplifies the negatives for her. So vivid is her imagination that it can cause pain also.

She has a rich fantasy life. At times she tends to exaggerate, possibly without even realizing it. She can also splash a little color around to help the impact of her story and may not always be realistic in her thinking.

Seemingly, our writer cannot escape certain influences from her past. Early in life she had strong female influence. It is quite possible that criticism was more available than acceptance and love.

She continues to be hurt or offended by real or imagined criticism. Even though she may feel she does not deserve it, she anticipates being censored or rebuked. Even unintended slights make her vulnerable. She may find it difficult to trust people because she is afraid of being hurt.

Our writer may have a tendency to exaggerate trivial incidents and may also fabricate painful episodes a tad. Magnified fear can lead to the development of various forms of protective measures, such as defense, among them secretiveness, procrastination and/or withdrawal.

I have read your column for some time and decided to write and ask you to tell me what you can about me from my writing. I am a "young senior," right handed and enjoy reading, painting, travel and my grandchildren.

This is a very observant woman. I visualize her as more of an observer than a participant in the game of life.

She might like to play a higher profile but needs her privacy and has a minimal need to interrelate on the social level. This is a paradox which may cause ambivalent feelings for her.

This is a beautiful person who would blossom with encouragement and love, although at first she might be reluctant to trust it.

Occasionally, feelings of hostility, perhaps toward the opposite sex, seem to be present. Then a bit of dissatisfaction can surface.

Our writer is a woman of strong self discipline. She is goal-directed, dependable and determined to complete what she sets out to do. She appears to be willing to accept more responsibility.

There is restlessness in her writing. Travel would be both enjoyable and rewarding for her.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful and objective feedback is always welcome.

Angela Hospice Home Care Center on Newburgh Road in Livonia are replicas of the monarch. The Angela Hospice logo in the lobby includes a monarch and the stained glass windows in the chapel that tell the story of Lazarus include three of the monarch's stages of life — the caterpillar, the cocoon and the butterfly.

"It's like our life process," Sister Giovanni said. "The egg takes nine days, we take nine months. The caterpillar is our life on earth and the chrysalis is our dying process. And the transformation . . . with our death, we ascend to a new form and with this (chrysalis) bursts forth a butterfly."

It's in the bag

Sister Nancy uses a cup with a small amount of water as the incubator. There six or so leaves are kept moist while the eggs mature. The young caterpillars are then transferred to the brown paper grocery bag, where they chow down on fresh milkweed.

A heavy stack of newspapers sits on the bag as part of her crowd control. A mature caterpillar tends to move about looking for a high spot to cocoon and the papers keep it in one spot . . . most of the time.

"For the most part, they behave themselves, but one didn't this year," Sister Nancy said, carefully lifting a hanger off a closet door hook. There, dangling from the hanger is the cocoon, pale green in color with a gold band and several golden dots.

She laughs at Sister Giovanni's description of the "blood curdling scream" in the night caused by another wayward caterpillar. Actually, it was in the early morning and it was a swallow tail butterfly. The sister found it in her wastebasket and thought it was a mouse, she said.

Once the caterpillar cocoons, she snips a paper square containing the chrysalis, folds it in thirds and staples it to a narrow strip of cardboard. She folds up one end, sticks tape on the other and affixes it to a bookshelf.

The tag is dated and carries a name. Sister Nancy names each and every cocoon and starting with all girls' names, this year she is up to Una and Vivian. When she makes to Z, she'll start over with boys' names, and if there's time, the third set will alternate — boy, girl, boy, girl.

"I've found people take good care of them, if I name them," she explained. Yes, Sister Nancy finds foster parents for her brood and has about 25 who request a cocoon every year and another list taped to her office computer is of people who didn't get one last year.

The sisters can be seen walking the fencing of the Felician Sisters' property and along Eckles and Haggerty roads, even behind the power plant by the motherhouse, dubbed Monarch Meadow by Sister Nancy — looking for milkweed for their caterpillars and for more eggs.

"I've had people look at me like I'm nuts," Sister Giovanni said with a chuckle. "I've had people ask, 'Sister, can we help you look for something?' while I'm looking for a fresh branch."

Like birds, the monarch butterflies fly south, wintering in Zitacuaro, Mexico. A gathering point for the trip south is the tip of Pte. Pelee on the Canadian side of Lake Erie. There during September, the monarch butterflies rest on the trees while waiting for the right winds to carry them southward.

The second and third weeks of the month are the best time to see the amassed butterflies, according to the sisters.

"Last year, we had a retreat Sunday, so we did a prayer ride and went there," said Sister Nancy. "They were flying around and it was so pretty to see them lighting on the flowers. It was just a delight."

It's such a fine sight to see that there's even a hotline number — (519) 322-2317 — telling how many of the black and orange butterflies have congregated there.

"As many years as I've done this I still find it just amazing," Sister Nancy said.

"I just like the beauty of it all," added Sister Giovanni. "If I gave it a name, then I'd get attached to it."

essarily have to go out and buy a squirt gun or a bubble wand," Griffin said.

Back inside, Andrew Masty, a shy 4-year-old from Canton, made a card for his parents, inviting them to visit him during his last class. Sitting intently at the computer, he quietly whizzed through challenging educational games that he learned at New Morning School.

Earlier in the day, the children got a first-hand account of what it's like to be on the radio by WJR newscaster Tom Campbell, whose child attended "Discovery Days." He passed out transcripts for the kids to look at. As gifts he gave the kids Detroit Tiger baseball hats and bumper stickers.

A private school, New Morning School recognizes personal learning styles and encourages individualized studies. The school is at 14501 Haggerty, Plymouth Township. For more information, call (313) 420-3331.

grocery store was. She was, it appeared, unaccustomed to that sort of inquiry. Most of the questions she was asked had to do with "Phantom of the Opera" tickets or art museum tours or the dress code for the Imperial Room, not the location of a plain old grocery store.

Well, she did the best she could and came up with the name and the whereabouts of a small party-type store where we could buy party-type stuff. But we didn't want that; we wanted meal-type stuff. "Oh," she sniffed and rifled through some dusty papers and found "Mr. Grocery, a full-line grocery — reasonable prices." It was 10 city blocks away.

Our 'parade'

With directions in hand, we set out. Ron pushed the two babies in the double stroller as the two older children and I walked in parade formation behind them. We walked past skyscrapers and cathedrals and construction sites and loads of men and women bustling from one office building to another.

We paraded past restaurants and exchanged smug grins, thinking of all the money and embarrassment we were saving ourselves. We saw buses and trolleys and bicycles and taxis, switching lanes and honking horns and turning suddenly, without warning, directly in front of us. We even learned some French along the way.

The store was right where the information lady had said it was. It was spotless and very well stocked with all the things we were looking for. We pushed our cart from one aisle to the next, loading up with food a family of six would consume over the next five days.

The children got stuck in the cereal aisle, reading cereal boxes. They couldn't believe that Tony the Tiger could roar in French like that. And the Honey Nut Cheerios bees could buzz in French. A bit later, the hot dogs cracked them up. And the "biscuits" which were actually cookies made them laugh aloud for reasons still not clear to me.

Ron took the cart, now brimming with good things to eat, to the checkout while I wheeled the stroller out of the store so I could find a quiet place in which to feed the baby. As I sat there with Jack in my arms and the stroller at my feet, I suddenly realized we had 10 blocks to go in the hot summer sun to get to our cupboards and refrigerator in our little kitchen back in the hotel. And we had too many heavy, bulky, melting items and too few available, capable pairs of arms.

to be gone an awful long time, you know. Our hotel is kind of a long way down the road."

"Don't worry," our hero replied. "I really wasn't doing anything much anyway. I don't think they'll miss me." And he laughed a friendly sort of laugh and began chatting with Ron who pulled up beside him with the stroller.

So there we were. Two babies in a stroller being pushed by Dad, the older children and Mom falling in behind them parade-style and there up front, leading the way clad in his green apron with Mr. Grocery emblazoned in white across the front, was the most unlikely hero.

He wheeled the large cart full of groceries, without complaint, through the bustling streets of Toronto, past skyscrapers, cathedrals, construction sites, restaurants, right up to the entrance of the hotel. He handed us our bags and wished us well and walked off into the sunset, pushing an empty cart . . . A hero in the streets of Toronto.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Land preservation issue approved by U.S. House

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending July 29

HOUSE

California Desert: By a vote of 298 for and 128 against, the House sent to conference with the Senate a bill (S 518) to protect much of the vast desert in southeastern California from commercial and recreational use. The bill designates about eight million acres within the 25 million-acre desert as national park, national preserve or wilderness areas. It is the most extensive land conservation act since Congress protected 56.6 million pristine Alaskan acres in 1980. It creates the largest government expanse in the lower 48 states. It allows continuation of certain mining and grazing activities, and permits hunting in the proposed 1.5 million-acre East Mojave National Preserve.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, D-Pontiac, Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield and William Ford, D-Ypsilanti. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

National Park Concessions: By a vote of 386 for and 30 against, the House sent to conference with the Senate a bill (S 208) to begin requiring competitive bidding for the hundreds of concessions, from hotels to canoe rentals, operating in the National Park Service's 132 units. Contracts would be awarded on the basis not only of cost but also commitment to preserving natural resources.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin, Joseph Knollenberg, William Ford. Not voting: Carr.

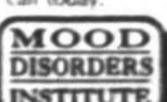

Radon Gas: By a vote of 193 for and 227 against, the House refused to remove homeowner disclosure language from a bill (HR 2448) to increase regulation of radioactive radon gas within dwellings. The vote retained the bill's requirements that people selling their property provide buyers with pamphlets on radon hazards and divulge results of any radon testing. In addition to regulating property owners, the bill gives the Environmental Protection Agency expanded authority to identify and reduce high radon concentrations. The bill was sent to the Senate.

A yes vote was to soften the bill's requirements on property owners. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Kildee, Levin and Ford. Not voting: Carr.

SENATE

Ellis Island Bridge: By a vote of 43 for and 56 against, the Senate refused to kill a proposed bridge from New Jersey to Ellis Island in New York harbor. This vote kept the project alive despite opposition from the House and the National Park Service. Its fate could be determined when House-Senate conferees draft final language soon on the FY '95 Interior Department appropriations bill (HR 4602).

Congress already has appropriated $15 million to erect a quarter-mile, mainly pedestrian bridge to the island where millions of immigrants entered America. Visitors now reach the Ellis Island National Landmark by ferry from Manhattan.

A yes vote opposed a New Jersey-Ellis Island bridge. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted no. Donald Riegle, D, voted no.

State set to choose

The state, not the federal government, will pick the Michigan teacher who will win the 1995 Christa McAuliffe Fellowship to improve schools.

The $41,500 taxable award is named for the New England high school teacher who was killed with six other astronauts in a 1986 space shot from Cape Kennedy, Fla. Although the program is federally funded, a 1992 congressional act shifts its administration to the state Department of Education.

Michigan's State Board of Education recently approved criteria for the fellowship. All public and private school teachers with eight years employment are eligible. Winners may use the money in one of six ways:

■ Improve one's own skills with either general education students or special populations, such as gifted and talented, disabled, and those with limited English.

- Serve as a consultant to other schools, either public or private.
- Develop an innovative program.
- Develop business-school partnerships.
- Develop the sharing of technologies.
- Expand model programs of staff development.

Applications are available from the Superintendent of Public Instruction, P.O. Box 30008, Lansing 48909.

Ask for form PD-4740, "Competitive Grant Application for Christa McAuliffe Fellowship Program." The grant period will run from May 1995 to the end of September 1996.

Let's get those animal names right

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Our family enjoyed watching the movie "Anais in the Outfield" the other day. In the movie, one of the characters who had just finished singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" had a revelation. He thought he had finally learned the words to the first line in the song. I don't know what he was singing before his revelation, but after it he thought the words were, "Jose can you see . . ."

This comical situation reminded me of how names of animals are often confused and completely changed. I remember when I was growing up I always thought that a water strider was a water spider. They are the black, long-legged insects that float on the water surface of streams and lake shore. Their long legs end in busy feet which allows them to float on the water without breaking the surface tension.

The people who identified these insects probably told me they were water striders, but the insect looked so much like a spider, I thought they were saying spider. Both words do sound similar, don't they? Later I learned that the word strider comes from the way they glide/stride across the water. I don't remember realizing that until I actually saw the word written down.

We often learn something from others without having written documentation to verify its credibility. That person has been reliable in the past, why shouldn't I believe them now? Well, without that documentation, the same error can be easily perpetuated.

How many of you identify a common grayish-green snake with two yellow stripes going lengthwise down its back as a garden snake? Be honest. I know many of you do, because that is what I hear most frequently.

Identifying the garter snake as a garden snake seems logical.

They are often seen in the garden and garter sounds something like garden, which can be confusing if you have never seen any written verification. Garter snakes were named after the garters people wore in earlier years. Many garters in the old days had a dark background and two light stripes as accents.

So, Jose, next time you see a spider on the water, or a garden snake in your garden, think, Oh say, that's a water strider and a garter snake.

Hospices announce merger

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan will merge next week with Hospice of Western Michigan to form the new statewide Hospice of Michigan.

Meanwhile, the two largest hospices in the state will continue to operate as decentralized and community-based organizations, said Carolyn Fitzpatrick Cassin, president and CEO of Hospice of Southeastern Michigan and of the new Hospice of Michigan.

The merger will enable Hospice of Michigan to offer services to much of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan. HSEM serves approximately 580 patients a day in the seven counties of southeastern Michigan. HWM serves approximately 250 patients every day in 14 counties.

Cassin noted that Hospice of Western Michigan started as Hospice of Greater Grand Rapids and grew to its current size by incorporating six community-based hospice programs. "They've shown that growth can be accomplished without losing the personalized, high-touch care that has always characterized hospice," she said.

Hospices provide comfort care for terminally ill patients and support for their families. The focus of hospice is to keep patients at home surrounded by their loved ones.

"Combining the two organizations will increase the quality, standardization and comprehensiveness of hospice services throughout the state," said Tom Nobel, president and CEO of Hospice of Western Michigan and vice president and chief operating officer of Hospice of Michigan.

Phases of Venus visible with telescope

The second half of August begins with the moon at first-quarter phase. This officially will occur at 1:57 a.m. on the 14th. The moon will have completed the first-quarter of its orbit around the earth and will look "half-full" in the evening sky.

The moon will be approaching the star Antares, the "heart" of Scorpius the scorpion, on the evening of the 14th. The name of this orange-red star means "rival of Mars," because its color and brightness are about the same as those of the red planet. By the next evening the moon will have "passed Antares. If you have a telescope, use it to keep track of bright Venus during the next few months. Venus goes through phases like the moon! If you observe Venus beginning on the 16th, you will see it looking like the first-quarter moon; one-half of it will be illuminated. Because Venus is such a bright object, it's best to observe it during bright twilight. If you wait until darkness, Venus' intensity will dazzle your eyes.

While you're using your telescope to view Venus, be sure to swing it toward the southwest and look at Jupiter as well. Even a small telescope will be able to show you as many as four of its largest moons.

The planet Mars will have just entered the constellation of Gemini the twins on the morning of the 17th. (Look high in the east 45 minutes before dawn.) A telescopic view of Mars will show a small disk, but you will not be able to see either of Mars' two tiny moons. Aug. 17 is also the anniversary of the discovery of one of the moons; Phobos was discovered in 1877 by Asaph Hall, using a fairly large telescope. (He had discovered Deimos just six days earlier.)

This discovery had been anticipated by the astronomer Johannes Kepler, unfortunately not through any scientific means. When he learned that Galileo had discovered four moons orbiting Jupiter in 1610, Kepler took a shot in the dark. Since the earth has but one moon, Kepler reasoned, and since Jupiter has four moons, then Mars, which is located between the earth and Jupiter, just HAD to have two moons!

A more remarkable coincidence occurred in 1726. In Jonathan Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," Gulliver reported that the Laputian astronomers had discovered two satellites orbiting Mars! It wasn't until 151 years later that Hall made his discovery.

Full moon will occur at 2:47 a.m. on Aug. 21. The moon will be opposite the sun, as seen from the earth, and will be fully lighted. The August full moon was called the Green Corn Moon by some American Indians; to others it was the Grain Moon. The moon will be located six degrees above the planet Saturn on the evening of the 21st. Unfortunately, the full moon is the brightest object in the night sky, and the light it scatters will interfere with observing Saturn. On the following evening the moon will have passed Saturn, but it will still be scattering a considerable amount of light.

Venus will be at its maximum elongation (greatest apparent distance from the sun) on the evening of the 24th. This is an unfavorable elongation because of the low angle Venus' orbit makes with the horizon. Nonetheless Venus will be a bright object, about six degrees below and to the right of Spica. In just six nights Venus will pass less than one degree below Spica.

On the evening of the 27th Venus will have cut its apparent distance to Spica in half. The planet will be three degrees below and to the right of the star. The motion of a fast-moving planet like Venus is readily apparent when it passes near a bright "unmoving" star.

The moon will be very close to its Aug. 1 position on the morning of the 28th. It takes the moon less than a full month to complete an orbit around the earth, so it duplicates a portion of its orbit each month. You will find the moon in Taurus, below and to the right of the Pleiades star cluster.

Last-quarter moon will occur at 2:41 a.m. on Aug. 29. The moon will be entering the last-quarter of its orbit around the earth. You will find the moon directly above the star Aldebaran, the "eye" of Taurus.

Venus will have its close encounter with Spica on the evenings of Aug. 30 and 31. On the 30th Venus will be 0.8 degrees below Spica, on the following evening Venus will be the same distance to the left of Spica. The two objects may look like they are risking a collision, but don't worry; they are light-years apart.

CREATIVE LIVING

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

June Wells of Plymouth and Jim Cottrill of Southfield are both avid gardeners and grow many plants, but each has a favorite flower. In the spring Jim is eagerly anticipating the first blooms of Columbine (Aquilegia Ranunculaceae), which grow in several areas of the yard. He has planted one bed on the north side of the house near the dryer vent so the heat of the dryer gets them off to an early start for the season. These have dark purple blooms.

He also grows varieties that are bi-color, deep purple with white, deep pink, pink with white, red with a yellow center and petals and the traditional wild one with pink, white and yellow blossoms.

Jim lets them self-sow and propagate, never knowing what the color will be. If he would separate the various species they wouldn't cross-breed and the colors would be the same. Variety is the spice of life when it comes to columbine.

Although he lets the plants self-sow, he has found that the roots die out in about two years. Thus, by letting them self-sow he has a continual supply.

Jim has filled many areas of his garden with a variety of plants.

"I am most happy when neighbors stop to enjoy their beauty," he said.

Keeping order

I was very interested in his system of keeping all the information about the plants in order. He numbers each page in a three-ring binder, gives a number to a plant and records information about it on that page. Then he uses a grid with numbers across and up the sides to represent each foot of garden space.

For instance, if a plant is three feet behind an edge of a bed and two feet in from the side, the number of that plant is written on a small square of self-stick paper to correspond with the number in the notebook. If a plant needs special care such as fertilization, a colored sticker is used - green for acid fertilizer, etc. If he moves a plant all he has to do is reposition the self-stick square to another spot on the grid. Ingenious!

Jim and his wife, Dorothy, volunteer many hours in Cranbrook gardens.

Flower power

Later on in the season, June Wells, a Plymouth resident, looks forward to the time when her Yarrows (Achillea) bloom. She grows many varieties such as Moonshine, Summer Pastels, Rosea, Coronation Gold and White and enjoys each in its own way. June dries only the gold and yellow to use in arrangements because she finds they dry better than the other ones.

She buys many of her plants from Graye's Nursery in Plymouth.

"I cannot throw a flower away," she said.

Consequently, when a "surprise" plant grows unexpectedly in the garden, she takes it to Mrs. Graye, who identifies it.

"I haven't stumped her yet."

Her border garden marches all along the fence across the back yard and the side and front of another part of the property. June has lived in the house only two years, but the flowers (many of them perennials) look as though they have been there far longer. They are healthy and vigorous. She said that only two "old beat up" lilac bushes and a couple of other plants were in the yard when she arrived; she had some good top-soil brought in and began planting.

Loving touch

She doesn't fertilize other than spraying the roses with Ortho rose spray and she watches the plants. If she sees a problem she applies a systemic, made by Ortho, 1-1/2 inches deep five inches from the stem of the plant, following package directions. By the way, the lawn was in healthy condition and she uses no chemicals on it either.

Everything in the garden is labeled and it is obvious she loves the plants. I saw delphiniums, silver king, hollyhocks, foxglove, Indian paint brush, peonies, dahlias, columbine, violets, astilbe, asters, mums, coreopsis, daisies, several clematis, as well as annual begonias, sedums, impatiens and more. The tomatoes were very large.

The large poppies, bright orange and apricot, had blooms as large as saucers and are probably 90 years old. They grew in her mother's garden when June was a little girl and she has taken them with her when she moved. The iris are also from her mother's home. June uses yarn to tie the plants for support because it doesn't hurt the stem. I didn't look, but I bet this gardener's thumb is green!

Gardens reflect artists' work and creativity

BY LINDA CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

French Impressionist Claude Monet created breathtaking gardens at his home in Giverny where visitors still flock to today. Observerland artists are just as creative, building abstract and formalized gardens usually with an abundance of color.

Gardens are a lot like artworks evolving over time, growing and changing in scale, form and palette. If you've ever wondered whether an artist's garden reflects their art, the answer is yes as a recent peek into their private gardens revealed.

Todd Erickson paints his family's Redford Township gardens with abstract splashes of color and his thought provoking sculpture. An avid gardener since the age of 12, Erickson studied botany in college. When he moved into this rural setting five years ago, the gardens were strictly grass. In fact, Erickson and Plymouth Township potter Kathy Sandberg, whose functional work mirrors traditional forms, both started their gardens with a relatively clean canvas.

"It was great to have a blank slate. The hardest part was cutting the sod and removing it," said Erickson, assistant professor of sculpture at Center for Creative Studies, College of Art and Design in Detroit.

"The soil is good because it's old orchard territory, sandy loam soil. All of the perennials were started from seedlings. It's an expensive proposition to buy one or two year old plants, and it doesn't take long before a seedling becomes a big phlox."

While Sandberg's garden uses a cool green palette contrasted by areas of salmon-colored annuals, Erickson dabs a virtual potpourri of color everywhere. Splashes of purple phlox play against the industrial elements of the large scale sculptures constructed of cast materials and found objects. The abstract work, rusted by the weather, focuses primarily on the decline of the automobile industry, and the importance of shelter and family. An ancestral arch, dealing with American Indian culture, is from a series created several years ago. The flowers beneath it serve a practical function.

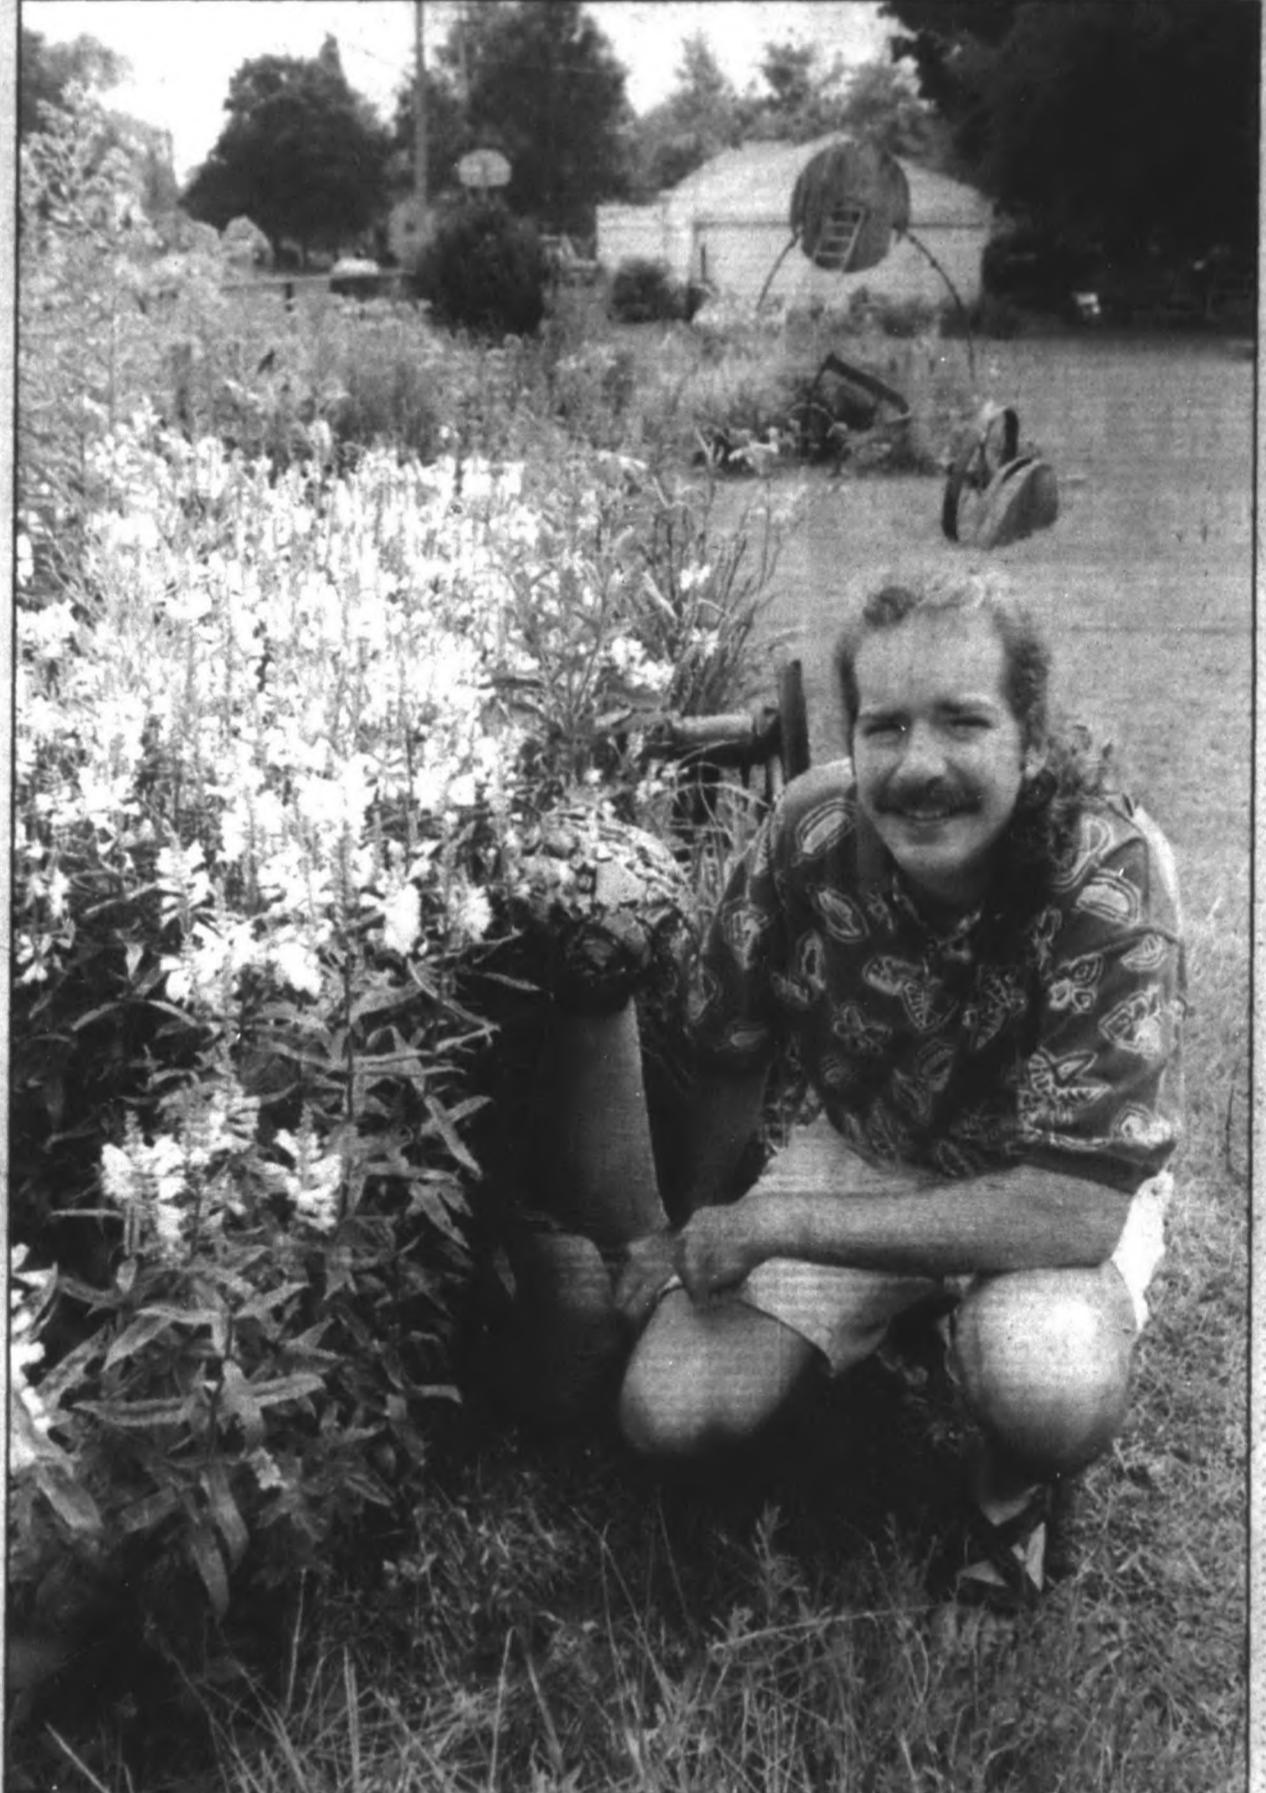

"I was worried about the kids hitting their heads, so I built a garden underneath it. Gardening has a lot in common with my work as a sculptor nurturing and watching it grow."

Team approach produces proliferation of paintings

Hugh and Liz Burley work as a team to produce oil paintings of flowers and birds to sell at art fairs. The Livonia Arts Commission presents an exhibit of the heavily textured, expressionistic artworks created with impasto technique through Aug. 29 in the circular showcases on the second floor of the Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

The Burleys are well known in the Plymouth-Canton area for their reasonably priced paintings that can be displayed individually or in groups. Blue herons, Canada geese, irises, roses and daisies by Hugh were painted from life. The couple's Ann Arbor acreage complete with pond serves as home for all sorts of wildlife. Burley spends untold hours studying the birds and other animals that roost there.

"I try to see if the bird will come over and eat from me. In the chickadees, the black shows in strongly. If you head north, they're more gray," said the 80-year old artist.

CHILDREN'S ART SHOW

"Art from Outer Space" created during a series of summer art camps held by D & M Art Studio and the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Dept. will be displayed at the fourth annual Children's Art Show 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

The public is invited. This is the largest children's art exhibit in Michigan featuring more than 350 artworks by students ranging in age from 3 to 16. Media include painting, clay, scratchboard, foil and sand as well as pointillism in a miniature form using tempera.

In addition to individual pieces, a 15 by 10 foot mural with 50 panels has been created focusing on this year's theme - art from outer space. Since each camp session has worked on only one panel, the mural is a secret until all the pieces are assembled for the show.

ARTIST IN ACTION

Westland artist, Laurel Raisanen will demonstrate the fine art of pastel portraiture 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18, at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia.

Raisanen, who studied under master portrait artist Josef Difler while living in Hawaii, has her first one-woman show continuing through Aug. 20 at the gallery. Athlete celebrities like Secretariat, Seattle Slew, Steve Yzerman and Cecil Fielder star in her portraits. People and animals are Raisanen's favorite subjects.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Nelson's is at 16376 Mizdelleib Road between Five and Six Mile.

Much more frequently however, Burley paints on the spot at art shows while Liz, 72 takes care of customers. He does all of the painting, Liz all of the framing, paperwork and tending to the patrons.

"If she didn't take care of it, I probably wouldn't pay too much attention," said Burley in reference to marketing the work.

For 32 of the 48 years the Burleys have been married, they have exhibited in art fairs. Due to a series of strokes and heart attacks suffered by Hugh in the last three years, the couple will only do 10 shows this year instead of the 20 in years past. Although they have declined showing in the Ann Arbor Art Fairs for the last two years, they will exhibit in the Plymouth Community Arts Councils' Artists and Craftsmen Show Sept. 10-11 at Central Middle School.

"The art is something we can do together as a team. It's satisfying for me to have him doing what he enjoys," said Liz.

Born in Peck, Michigan Burley began painting at age five. He grew up in an artistic family, acquiring a longing to paint early on. His father was a pharmacist who did decorative painting on glass. After his death in 1917, Hugh picked up his brushes and has never put them down.

Burley graduated from Cass Technical High School in Detroit. Later, he studied painting at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

More than $7,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the winning paintings and crafts at the four-day event designed around the Amish heritage and folk art of the historic restoration in the Nappanee area. Horse and buggy rides, guided tours and demonstrations provide an intriguing background for the art. Amidst the colorful awnings surrounding the Amish Acres' farm pond, potters will spin their wheels while silversmiths and weavers work to the sounds of fiddles, guitars and banjos. Silhouette cutters, portrait artists, woodcarvers and doll makers will ply their trade and sell their wares.

The 1911 Round Barn Theatre comes alive with the musical comedy, Plain & Fancy, the story of Amish life and love with performances Aug. 11-13. Family style restaurant dinners plus festive food from carts, wagons and tents dishing out sweet corn, ice cream, preaching pies and apple cider will refresh visitors.

Admission is $4 with free parking. Children under 12 are free. Amish Acres is on Highway U.S. 6, one mile west of downtown Nappanee, 20 miles south of the Indiana Toll Road. National Corvette museum made in Michigan

The National Corvette Museum has a distinctively local flavor. Neumann Smith & Associates of Southfield was the architect, Exhibit Works of Livonia the interior designer.

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

Corvette aficionados say it's more than just a car.

It's teenage fantasy and middle-aged reality. It's nostalgia and romance; precision and performance. It's style, design and status.

Some 50,000 people annually drop by unsolicited to the Corvette factory in Bowling Green, Ky. More was needed - a museum.

The National Corvette Museum, four years in the planning, opens Sept. 2 one-half mile from the factory. A big celebration is planned, along with concerts by the Beach Boys.

Corvette displays date from 1950 to the present, starting with the first white models with red interiors.

The building measures more than 68,000 square feet. In addition to the exhibit areas, the museum contains an auditorium, library/archive and souvenir store. The lobby of the $10 million structure features the one-millionth Corvette.

"It's interesting, because it is the only sportscar in the history of the world, which produced a million automobiles," said architect

Corvette museum: A National Corvette Museum developed by professionals with local roots will feature display areas, a small auditorium, archives and a souvenir shop.

Kenneth Neumann, of Neumann Smith & Associates, of Southfield. His firm designed the museum.

Adds Don Fee, project design director at Exhibit Works, Livonia, which pulled the interior presentation together. "We're taking the car and trying to answer why it was built in the first place."

A barber shop from the 1950s, a Mobil station from the 1960s, a scene touching on Route 66, both the highway and the TV series, the manufacturing process of the old

St. Louis factory, as well as a recreation of a 1960s dealership are included.

Major materials used in construction include 520 tons of steel, 2,700 cubic yards of concrete, 52,000 special black-and-white concrete blocks, 1,600 sheets of drywall and 26 miles of wire.

The first Corvette was built in 1953 in Flint. Three years later, assembly was moved to St. Louis.

"It was the first production car ever to use fiberglass," Fee said.

Zora Arkus-Duntov, often called the Father of the Corvette because he is credited with the engineering and design successes of the early models, was the first to think of using it as a performance car, Fee said.

Duntov was an invaluable resource for museum planners, Fee and Neumann agreed.

Neumann also owned a 1960 Corvette, which he bought for $3,500. "A comparable car (today) would cost $35-$38,000," he said.

Financial support has come from private and corporate sectors. General Motors is supplying the artifacts and contributed financial support. The museum will house about 50 cars.

"The first Corvettes manufactured were given to movie stars," Fee said. "John Wayne had one." Johnny Carson and Jay Leno are also enthusiasts.

The Corvette was America's response to the MG sportscar which American GIs brought back after World War II, Neumann said.

"It appeals to a variety of people," Neumann said, adding that a high proportion of Corvette owners are women.

Sales were slow after 1955 and, until Duntov got involved, there was some thought of dumping the Local Corvette owners will queue up at 8 a.m. Thursday Sept. 1 at Jack Cauley Chevrolet, 720 Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield, then head south.

Both new and old Corvettes will form one leg of a 10-city caravan that will descend on Bowling Green, Ky., to usher in the grand opening of the National Corvette Museum over Labor Day weekend.

The Detroit group will meet in Louisville the first night and then proceed by police escort to Bowling Green," said Jeannine Dailey, a dealership employee.

More than 80 Corvettes will participate, including a 1959, 1973 and 1982 collector autos owned by the dealership.

Besides Detroit, Corvette caravans will leave from Seattle, San Francisco, Sioux Falls, Minneapolis, Boston, Los Angeles, San Antonio, Miami and Richmond.

He helps businesses in trouble

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Richard Gorges, a Rochester Hills resident with a consulting practice in Troy, specializes in helping troubled companies establish firmer financial footing.

He and others in the growing field usually deal with smaller, privately owned enterprises experiencing cash flow difficulties.

Gorges, 48, spent 18 years as a treasurer/controller for several manufacturing, retail and service companies after receiving a business degree from the University of Detroit.

He went into business for himself in 1989.

Experience is just as important to the turnaround expert as formal education, Gorges said. "It's not a trade you go to school for or get book learning."

Gorges also is president of the Metro Detroit Chapter of the Turnaround Management Association, a group of 17 members looking to expand their numbers.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview.

What exactly do you do?

Gorges: A turnaround manager is basically a person who specializes in working with stressed companies on financial, operational or marketing problems.

There are two different styles of turnaround managers.

One, you literally come in and take control of the company. It could be from three months to one year to resolve problems and get them back on their feet. You either hire new people or leave existing management in place.

The second style is what I do. I come in and work with existing management. I'm more a counselor. What I try to do is offer options.

My philosophy is to take the existing company management, work with them, teach them to work the company so when I leave . . . they maintain rhythm . . . and just go forward.

What's the biggest problem you come across?

Gorges: Usually I get involved with cash-flow difficulties. It's like a runny nose. It's a symptom you have a cold.

What created the problem? It might be forecasting, trouble collecting receivables.

The first thing I try to do is get a handle on cash balance outflow to what inflow is. A lot of times, I restructure the debt of a company, work out a repayment plan.

What you try to do is buy time to get in and find out what created problems.

What do you find?

Gorges: You can make a company that's very profitable go bankrupt due to a lack of cash flow. Then you might have a company in trouble, but, as long as cash is turning, it has time to work out difficulties.

Troubleshooter: Richard Gorges specializes in helping struggling companies survive

Most companies are started out by an entrepreneur who had a particular skill. At some point in time, it will out-stretch the owner's capability.

He can't jump to the next level. In a lot of situations, it's a lack of expertise, not knowing what they don't know.

In some cases, management is slow to react.

I try to come in and give an overview of the company. In most instances, it's a triangle - manufacturing, administration and sales. If one is lacking, the triangle is going to topple. It's trying to keep the three in balance.

How do you measure success?

Gorges: By how well a company does. Was I able to add value to a company? Has a company demonstrated significant improvement?

Are some beyond salvation when you get the call?

Gorges: About 20 percent. They would be better off selling . . . or closing the doors.

How do you know when it's time to give up?

Gorges: To a large degree, it can be done at first analysis if the debt is high and there no longer is a viable business. If debt is 10 times assets, no way a guy is going to dig out. (Also), when they're non-responsive or withhold information from the standpoint of working with a client.

O&E ONLINE
EMORY DANIELS

For about a year now the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers has been operating O&E On-Line, an electronic newspaper featuring all 12 of our newspapers and several other features users have come to love, use and abuse.

The local on-line information and dialogue we offered expanded greatly in July when a full Internet connection was added. In an instant, our local sources of information was supplemented by this huge network of more than 200,000 computers and 200 million computer users throughout the nation and in 70 countries.

The goal of this column is to describe in layman's words (the only ones I know) the features of O&E On-Line, how to use available tools, and how to take full advantage of everything on our board. This includes how to use the Internet tools and how to travel this expressway of the Information Highway (I-Way).

For those aboard the Internet, who are moving at a snail's pace, with abrupt stops, blown tires, wrong turns, and too many beeps, take comfort. Few of us are in the high speed lane. So let's travel together.

In the weeks ahead, we will try each tool the Internet has to offer. Gopher, Hytelnet, Lynx, Archie, Veronica, Telnet and IRC will become among your favorite roads traveled. The early columns will explore the magic of e-mail and our wonderful e-mail post office (Pine). Readers will feel very comfortable sending e-mail to family members, friends, whomever else they know who has a personal computer and modem. Readers may send e-mail comments, questions, and suggestions to me at "emory@oeonline.com" (do not use quotes).

If you have not yet signed up for O&E On-Line but are interested, you can sign up now and then travel with me in the weeks ahead. You need a personal computer, a modem, and communications software. A modem is simply a device that one computer uses to dial another computer, just like a telephone. Communications software (like Procom or Telix) are the instructions that dial the number and make the connection for you.

Your software will ask for a few tips on how to connect with us. When it asks for a Terminal Emulation, choose the "VT100," or ANSI options. When it asks for a download/upload protocol, choose "Zmodem." Your software also will ask about many data bits (the answer is 8), about parity (none), and stop bit (one). In computerese shorthand, these last three answers are 8N1.

When your software's dialing directory asks for the phone number to use, enter "O&E On-Line" as the destination, and (313) 591-0903 for Wayne County residents or (810) 901-4711 for Oakland County residents. Then all you have to do is dial (by pushing RETURN, typing the letter "D," or maybe CONTROL D. The instructions on screen will tell you).

After the number is dialed, some screeching noises will come from your computer. Don't be alarmed. This is your modem converting the digital signals coming from your computer into analog or sound waves so it can pass through the telephone lines and then be converted again into digital signals when connected with our computer. This is known as modulating and demodulating, thus the word modem. Fax machines do the same thing.

When you connect, a "login" prompt appears on your screen. Type "new" (again, without quotes). Hit RETURN. At the "key" prompt, enter GL6NY2. When asked for terminal type, enter vt100 (in lower-case) or ansi. Hit RETURN.

A welcome menu appears. First choose option 4 to read our system policies. Later you can download our users guide or "The Big Dummies Guide to the Internet."

Now that you are connected, play around for awhile. You can't get into too much trouble. But don't get too frustrated either. That's what this column is all about, to move your frustrations closer to zero. If you get in trouble, use CONTROL H to hang up. If that doesn't work, turn off your computer. That will work.
