$60 parking fee irks students

The parking fee at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools is $60 per year. Some local students and parents say the charge is excessive. Parking is free at several nearby high schools.

Parking at several area high schools is free or relatively inexpensive, a fact that irks Plymouth Canton and Salem students and parents who say the district's $60 annual parking fee is excessive.

If you're a student who drives to Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer or Belleville high schools, you can park for free.

Ypsilanti High School students who maintain a 3.7 grade point average park at no charge in the lot closest to school. Others park half a block away in the student lot, for free.

At Novi High School, space is at a premium because of construction, but anyone may purchase a $3 yearly parking permit.

Space at Northville High is tight. There, it costs seniors $30 per year to park, and juniors aren't permitted to park.

Livonia high schools attack their space problem with a lottery, and charge drivers $20 per year.

"I can understand $30, but $60 is way overboard. It's terrible. It's pathetic," said Julie Pappas, a Canton senior. "For some kids, that's hard. It seems like the money is going toward trucks and stupid stuff."

"Sixty dollars for each kid; that's a lot," said Stephanie Jardine, a Canton junior. "I don't see what they are using the money for."

Salem sophomore Chris Bonga agreed. "It's overpriced. It's outrageous."

Autumn is here, and once again the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band is helping usher in the season with rollicking musical performances.

On Sept. 17 the band took first place at its season-opener, the Clinton Invitational band competition, competing against 10 bands from across the state for top honors. The group wowed judges with its performance of music based on "The Kiss of the Spider Woman," a hit Broadway musical.

For Marching Band director David Tippet, it's just a hint of the good things to come.

"I'm very pleased with the band's performance. The music is based on a play that deals with prisoners of conscience and their strife in the world. We've been practicing the music all summer," Tippet said.

Indeed they have. The group began working on the music, which will be their main performance piece

City to appeal decision on trains at crossings

BY KEVIN BROWN

The railroads so far have prevailed in a battle with the city over how long they can block street crossings — but the city isn't giving up.

The city has filed a notice to appeal in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati and is scheduled to file a brief by Oct. 6, said Ron Lowe, city attorney.

Lowe said the appeals court typically will give the other party, CSX Transportation, several weeks to prepare a response.

The city appeal was sparked by a July 1 ruling by Judge George LaPlata in U.S. District Court in Detroit.

LaPlata ruled that railroads shouldn't be fined when crossings are blocked for longer than five minutes. The city in recent years has written

Township plans response in dispute

So far, Plymouth Township officials aren't saying much in response to Temple Baptist Church's suit against the township. The church is bringing suit over rejection of plans to build a 4,000-seat church on a 56-acre site at North Territorial and Ridge roads.

Township attorney Tim Cronin said Thursday the township has 21 days to file a response in Wayne County Circuit Court to the suit, but declined further comment.

Church officials maintain their freedom to worship was denied by the township planning commission Aug. 17 when the church development was denied.

"I haven't even seen a copy of the suit, there is another side to it," said planning commission chairman Dennis Cebulski, who also declined further comment.

In denying the church's request to rezone the land parcel currently zoned agricultural, planning commissioners stressed that it is the size of the church and Temple Baptist's scheduling of concerts by Christian performers, along with major programs scheduled during holidays, that concerned them.

Church neighbors turned out in force for several public meetings where the development was proposed.

Several told planning commissioners that the traffic sparked by the programs was too much for roads to handle in the residential neighborhood.

Church officials have said they would pay for road improvements.

St. John's Seminary's fate delayed

The fate of the former St. John's seminary in Plymouth Township has yet to be determined, as a deadline has again been extended for a developer to show he has $15.5 million in financing to build a senior housing complex on the property.

H. Rollin Allen, attorney for developer Eric Lindquist, said a Sept. 23 deadline for Lindquist to produce a letter of credit detailing necessary financing for his project has been extended to Oct. 7 before Wayne County Circuit Judge William Giovan.

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, which had earlier entered into an agreement to sell the property to Lindquist, voided the agreement earlier this year when Lindquist didn't produce documents detailing financing for his project by a contracted deadline, church officials said.

In March, Archbishop Adam Maida announced plans to build a youth and family center at the 175-acre site southeast of Sheldon and Five Mile roads.

An Archdiocese spokesman has said the church plans to go ahead with the youth and family center, and could start bringing in youth groups early next year.

Board of Education to meet Monday

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 26, at the E.J. McClendon Educational Center, 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth.

First on the agenda are "Extra Miller" and "VIPS" awards. Under the superintendent's report are a technology update and a review of due process for expelled students.

The only citizen who has asked to speak is student Jennifer Schroer who will give an Executive Forum update.

Under the consent calendar are bills for payment; approval of leaves and new hires; appointment of a faculty athletic coordinator and endorsement of Michigan Career Development Month.

Action items include consideration of textbooks for seventh grade social studies; approval to award furniture bid for Plymouth-Canton Educational Park; and approval of payment plan for County Special Education Center charge-backs.

Also on the agenda is approval of designation of a delegate to the Michigan Association of School Boards; expulsion of a student; and approval of a Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools joint project at PCEP.

Discussion items include Miller Woods.

In closed session, the board will discuss employee negotiations and litigation.

lice," said Tony Nicholas, Canton sophomore.

A Canton senior who declined to give his name because he's "in enough trouble already" said, "I think it's a rip-off. They use the money to help fix lots and pave. If they tow your car, you have to pay $75 to get it back."

Thomas George, Plymouth-Canton's chief security officer, said parking fees at the high schools — expected to total close to $49,000 this year — are used to help pay for his employees and vehicles, necessary to maintain a closed campus.

The revenue "is split half and half between us and the board office," he said. George says he's received calls from disgruntled parents who stop grumbling about the fee once they're told about the logistics involved in keeping "insiders in and outsiders out."

A lot of other schools don't have closed campuses, he said. "Here, you're not allowed to leave campus without a pass. Parents like it, and we like it."

George's department has a staff of eight full-time guards; six or seven part-time guards; three trucks; and a budget of about $450,000.

The good news is that Canton and Salem students are no longer being denied parking permits. Expansion at the schools increased the parking capacity from 535 to 1,135 spots. About 800 juniors and seniors have bought passes.

"Liability-wise, we couldn't have cars parked here without some kind of security or we'd open ourselves to vandalism and theft," said George. The fee was increased from $50 last year after the millage failed.

George said students are given two or three warnings before their cars are towed. The fee to retrieve them is $70.

citations when trains blocked crossings, a practice that cost CSX $127,410 in 1990 and more than $59,000 in 1991.

The judge sided with CSX which maintained that the five-minute rule could affect safety.

"Compliance with the ordinance by increasing the speed at which the continuously moving interstate trains travel certainly relates to railroad safety," LaPlata wrote.

He cited law passed by Congress which forbids municipalities from regulating matters relating to railroad safety.

Lowe said he disagrees with LaPlata's contention that railroad safety is an issue.

gan working on the music, which will be their main performance piece this season, at a week-long band camp in northern Michigan earlier this August. The group continued to practice the musical number throughout the summer, meeting for at least two hours each day, sometimes practicing six out seven days a week.

For Tippet, a Toledo resident who commutes to the Plymouth-Canton area, the practice sessions are a labor of love.

"This is a really talented group of kids, with a fantastic record," said Tippet, referring to the group's long list of accomplishments. Bands of American Class AAA National Champions in 1992, the group also was named Grand National Champions in 1990 and 1991. In addition to the honors, the group has received the Governor's Trophy every year since 1986.

Tippet, an accomplished musician himself, is hoping for continued success, but said he doesn't feel comfortable aiming for trophies, and tries to concentrate instead on solid performances.

"I don't like to put ultimate limitations on how we perform. We like to use our opponents to our advantage to make us stronger, but we really are focusing on our own performance. As always, we work for our personal best and try to treat our performances like we'd treat ourselves, and give full throttle," he said.

For Tippet, it is the concentration on giving one's best that has guided his career. The 30-year old father of two honed his own musical instincts while growing up in Boise, Idaho. His involvement playing the trumpet in school bands and local musical festivals led to a stint as lead trumpet player for Buddy Rich, and he has toured with the Columbia Artist's groups, providing music for Lawrence Welk and many others. He began serving as the director of the award-winning marching band last year, and currently directs two other bands, the Toledo Jazz Orchestra and the Toledo-based Glassman Drum and Bugle Corp.

In addition to practicing, the band is working toward another goal this season. The group is trying to raise money for new uniforms. The uniform replacement program is sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters, and is aimed at both individuals and businesses in the community. For more information, contact the Music Boosters at 459-6302 or write the Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters Marching Band Uniform Replacement Program, 8415 Canton Center Road, Plymouth, Mich. 48187.

Young musicians have a busy year

More than 200 area high school students are participating in this year's Plymouth-Canton Marching Band under the direction of bandleader David Tippet.

The band's 10-week season got off to a successful start on Sept. 17 at the Clinton Invitationals. The award-winning band will continue to participate in competitions in and around Michigan for the remaining season. Fans may also catch the band's performances during half-time at home football games held at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

The schedule for competitions is as follows:

Sept. 24 — Trenton Invitational

Oct. 1 — Bands of America Midwest Regionals in Toledo, Ohio

Oct. 8 — Bands of America Eastern Regionals in Morgantown

Oct. 15 — Great Lakes Invitational Plymouth

Oct. 22 — Huron Valley Invitational

Oct. 29 — State Championship

Nov. 5 — Bands of America Grand Nationals in Indianapolis, Ind.

Volunteers raise money for Special Olympics athletes

Thanks to staff and inmates from Plymouth Township's Western Wayne and Scott correctional facilities, Michigan Special's Olympics will offer more opportunities for developmentally-challenged athletes.

Led by Western Wayne Officer Steve Ostrovich of Redford, more than a dozen Scott and Western Wayne employees raised pledges and covered a three-mile leg of the 10th Annual Michigan Law Enforcement Torch Run Friday morning.

The Torch Run, which traverses more than 2,500 miles, last year raised nearly $370,000 for Michigan Special Olympics.

This year's run began Sept. 17 in Copper Harbor in the Upper Peninsula and ended Saturday in East Lansing at the Michigan State-Miami of Ohio football game, where an Olympic-style torch was presented to Lois Arnold, Special Olympics executive director, at halftime.

Escorted by Northville Township police, the officers, teachers, secretaries and bookkeepers set out from Western Wayne on Five Mile, traveling east to Beck, and north to Six Mile to Our Lady of Providence school to visit with students before heading back to Scott.

Many of Scott's 875 inmates walked for Special Olympics Thursday. They collected $5,000 in pledges. Scott's staff collected an additional $900. At Western Wayne, where the prison population is about 500, pledges from staff and inmates was $1,200 as of Friday.

"The Torch Run goes on throughout the U.S. and provides year-round athletic training and competition for children and adults with mental retardation," said Ron Read, southeastern Michigan regional director for Special Olympics.

Special Olympics was founded 26 years ago by Eunice Kennedy Shriver. It accepts no governmental money.

Michigan Special Olympics is based at Central Michigan University, host of the summer and winter games, in which more than 20,000 athletes take part.

"These folks raise pledges for every stage of their run. We really appreciate their efforts; it gives us a big boost," said Read of Westland.

Read accompanied a group of sheriffs and police from Washtenaw and Jackson counties on a 10-mile leg Thursday. "There must have been 30 of them, and they were running down a country road, singing as they were running," he said. "The Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police host the run and do a great job. They really do," said Read.

Ann Farnell, a Scott employee, and her poodle Archie, joined the Friday run.

Others joining Farnell and coordinator Ostrovich - a marathoner who ran for Ferris State University - include Western Wayne special education teacher Lisa Brown; Scott teacher Jean Martinelli; Lynn Laird, Western Wayne records worker; Sue Budlong, a Western Wayne personnel worker; and Al Hovatter, a Western Wayne bookkeeper.

Others were Starr Tiekling and Arnetta Ford, Western Wayne secretaries; Regina Hill, a Western Wayne dental assistant; Ella Michalak, a Scott prison accounts employee; Wendy Edwards, a Scott business employee; William Myles, resident unit officer at Scott; and Western Wayne officers Larry Carpenter and Carl Horn. Anyone wishing to donate may send a check payable to Michigan Special Olympics to: Lt. David Clifton, Michigan Special Olympics, Scott Correctional Facility, 47500 Five Mile, Plymouth Township, 48170. Deadline is Oct. 3.

Episcopalian priest plans to build new congregation

BY JILL HALPIN
STAFF WRITER

Out alongside a dusty stretch of Warren Road on the western side of Canton Township sits Steve Rottgers' field of dreams.

The seven-acre parcel of land between Beck and Ridge roads, now owned by the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, is the future home of a church and worship center, which Rottgers, an Episcopalian priest, intends to build from the ground up.

"Build it and they will come," they said in the movie, and that is exactly what Rottgers plan to do.

"Seven acres is a lot of land to fill. We are looking for people who have a creative interest in building a new church. The sky is the limit," said Rottgers, adding that both he and the diocese are hoping for a positive response from the community.

A native of Cincinnati, Rottgers, a graduate of the Episcopalian Theological Seminary in Kentucky, was sent to the area to head up the "Canton Township Mission," in July.

He has spent the past couple of months exploring the area and is anxious to have his family - wife, Mary, and children ages 13, 9 and 3 - join him. They are currently living in Williamsburg, Va., attempting to sell the house where the family lived while Rottgers guided the development of the Christ The King Episcopalian church on 10 acres of land.

Rottgers said the land in Canton Township, purchased from the Roman Catholic diocese, was particularly attractive to Episcopalian church leaders based on demographic studies.

"Of all of the areas, Canton really looked good. The rapid development and the exceptional planning of the development by local officials were some of the reasons that this area was selected as a site," said Rottgers.

Specific building plans for the site have not yet been set. But the possibilities are endless, said the self-described "eternal optimist," and there is a chance that a school may be built on the site.

"In architecture, form follows function and that is how I hope to help build this church. Although there aren't plans for a school at this time, if we find that there is a need, we can respond to that. We need to get people focused on the function of the church before we plan on the form," he said.

Building a strong church takes time and Rottgers hopes to utilize a two-step plan for development. The first step is the "Sunday Celebration," a worship time and fellowship time for the whole family.

The second part of the plan revolves around the creation of a group of support networks, groups of 10-12 people who meet for prayer and Bible study. Each group would adopt their own personal ministry and work with outreach organizations such as "Meals on Wheels" or senior citizens groups, Rottgers said. He is hoping to center the church on the strengthening of faith and the development of spirituality rather than focusing in political agendas.

"I want the church to be user-friendly and work on faith formation rather than fragmenting and clouding the issue," he said.

The Canton Township Mission will begin meeting for worship services at 9 a.m. on Oct. 2 at the Tonda Elementary School on Warren. In the meantime, Rottgers has set up an office near the Canton Township Chamber of Commerce building at 5820 N. Canton Center Road.

Rottgers said that he welcomes calls from interested residents and is available at the office or by calling 207-1817.

Tradeport plan aims to lure manufacturing here

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Michigan may see its first international tradeport in 1995 at Willow Run Airport once the state Senate completes work on an authorization law.

Chairman David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and Sen. George Hart, D-Deerborn, were among supporters when the Senate Local Government Committee approved a House-passed bill sought by Wayne and Washtenaw counties' economic development officials.

"Willow Run Airport is neglected and under-used," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti. Profit became a champion of the cause when General Motors Corp. moved out of its plant next door to the commercial airport.

"A group of 15 or 20 has grown to 100. This bill sets up an authority that can capture local revenue, accumulate land and finance the infrastructure," he said.

"A tradeport is a new concept in Michigan," said Joseph Joachim, consultant to Wayne County and retired Oakland County economic development chief. The goal is to attract manufacturers — many with scientific products — whose shipping could benefit from next-door access to a 10,300-foot-long runway.

Wayne owns the 2,300-acre Willow Run Airport, which straddles the county line. The two counties envision a 6,700-acre tradeport. A Conrail railroad line passes by.

The tradeport area is bounded on the south by the I-94 freeway, on the north by Michigan Avenue, on the west by Wiard Road, and on the east by Belleville Road.

Each county would contribute to the operating authority. The authority would be allowed to "capture" half of the incremental property tax revenues from the counties and half of the incremental income tax revenue from the state.

The authority's governing board would be Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, the chair of the Washtenaw County board, state Commerce Director Arthur Ellis, and three citizens — a gubernatorial appointee and appointees of each county. Five other Michigan areas would be eligible to form tradeport authorities: Battle Creek, Grand Rapids, Saginaw-Midland-Bay City, Oscoda (the former Wurtsmith Air Force Base), and the area around Sawyer Air Force Base.

Refer to House Bill 5464 when writing to your state senator, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Clean water group likes Lynn Rivers

Clean Water Action today announced its endorsement of 13th Congressional district U.S. Representative candidate Lynn Rivers, an Ann Arbor Democrat.

The national environmental organization has 80,000 members in Michigan, including 8,000 in the 13th district which includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Garden City, Westland and part of Livonia.

"Lynn Rivers has emerged as one of the brightest shining environmental stars in the Michigan legislature. We can count on her to carry that commitment to Washington," said Dave Dempsey, Michigan director for Clean Water Action.

Rivers earned a perfect 100 percent rating from Clean Water Action in her first term in the Michigan state house, voting the pro-environment position on issues from stronger protections of groundwater to protecting the public health and safety from pesticide applications. Rivers also co-sponsored bills to expand recycling programs for state agencies and to require safe disposal of hazardous waste.

"Every voter in the 13th district who cares about the environment should pull the lever for Lynn Rivers on election day," said Dave Dempsey, Michigan director for CWA. "She is the most pro-environment candidate in this race."

According to a recent EPA report, all of Michigan's Great Lakes shoreline is too polluted for fishing, swimming or supporting aquatic life at some point during the year. People cannot safely eat fish caught in 35 stretches of river, 19 lakes and along the entire Great Lakes shoreline because the fish are contaminated with PCBs, mercury, dioxin and chlor-dane. In 1992, 750,000 pounds of toxic chemicals were dumped directly into Michigan waters.

S'craft board off to Canton

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees will conduct its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28, at the Canton Township Administration Building.

"We realize we're part of the community we serve," said board Chairman Steve Ragan in a press release. "By moving some of our meetings to locations in our district, we hope to encourage our taxpayers to interact with the board."

The agenda includes college President Richard McDowell, who will provide a campus update. The board will consider replacement of the mainframe computer, too.

MADD offers open house

The Wayne County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving has a new office.

The new place is located at 515 N. Wayne Road between Cherry Hill and Ford Road in Westland.

The public is invited to an open house 5-8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 29.

There will be clowns and food available.

It was a smart business move. We made a lot of money and we could concentrate on the Rochester store at a time when the Rochester community was taking off."

The brothers never thought they'd end up in retail. Monty got a law degree from Wayne State University. Brad earned a psychology degree from the University of Michigan. They grew up in Rochester and attended high school at Cranbrook. They worked in the store to help out one summer and just fell into it.

Both are active in the community. Brad served on the Rochester Downtown Development Authority for eight years, the past three as president. He's also helped promote the Meadow Brook Music Festival. Monty serves on the DDA's Promotions Committee, has been president of the Greater Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and a longtime supporter of Crittenton Hospital.

Monty and his wife, Julie, have a teenage daughter. Brad and his wife Pamela, have a son and daughter in elementary school.

"We enjoy what we do," Brad said. "We see our friends from childhood shopping in the store with their kids. We see their kids working here during the holidays and summers. Our customers enjoy seeing the owners in the store. They like being greeted by us. At Mitzelfeld's, there's not a lot of management layers. Most of the time it's, 'Hey, Brad, got any more of these in a large in back?' It's great."

Monty was more philosophic about his job.

"Hey, there are many ways people part with their money, and most of them are unpleasant — like taxes, the price of a root canal, car repairs... At Mitzelfeld's people part with their money, but they're happy about it! They get nice stuff and enjoy the shopping experience."

The secret to Mitzelfeld's success, according to Monty, is carrying name brands, priced competitively and sold with a lot of personal service.

"Oh, I know lots of retailers make claims to giving service, but at Mitzelfeld's it's the way we do business," Monty said. "The other day a woman came in looking for a sweater for her husband and we didn't have the one she wanted in stock. One of our associates was on the phone on the spot, calling New York to order it for her. No request for a deposit. No hassles. Just, 'we'll call you when it comes in.'"

Monty pointed out that many of his staff of 85 have been working at the store for 15 and 20 years. This makes them very knowledgeable about the merchandise.

What's in store for Mitzelfeld's through the next decade?

"We'd rather be the best, nicest store to shop in, than the largest chain," Monty said. "We hope to sustain growth and prosper, maybe expand the store out the back to give us more room. We want to continue playing an up note in the lives of our customers."

As downtown Rochester acquires more and more destination stores, all the Main Street businesses will profit, according to the Mitzelfelds. Joyce Renfrew of Waterford agreed.

"I visit Mitzelfeld's every three or four months when I come into Rochester to eat at the Chop House," she said. "The town is getting some of the nicest stores. I always stop in The Dandy Lion and Golden Unicorn to browse. Penn and Paige is also wonderful. I love the Silk Worm and Peggy's Dolls and Toys. There's always a lot of new things to discover."

Mitzelfeld's is open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday noon to 5 p.m.

There are seats for 1,000 guests at the fashion show and promoters are hoping for a sell-out crowd, though tickets are still available. Last year the event raised $13,500 for Beaumont's work with children diagnosed with cancer. Organizers hope to top that figure this year.

Linda Jackson of Birmingham was buying a ticket for herself and her daughter. (Tickets are being sold at Jacobson's and most every other store in town.) She said it will be her first time, but she was impressed with the event's offerings and the good cause.

"I never heard of any downtown coming together like this for a fund-raiser that everyone can relate to," she explained. "We all know of someone who fights the cancer battle. I'd like to help them, especially the children."

Guests to the 5th Annual Birmingham Fashion Show will be treated to food samples from 220 Merrill Street, Ocean Grille, Alban's, the Townsend Hotel, Midtown Cafe, Max & Erma's, City Grill, Old Woodward Grill, Machus and Peabody's to mention a few.

Afterward, they can peruse the auction packages that include weekends at the Townsend Hotel, jewelry, gift baskets, antiques, salon services, season symphony tickets, dinners, floral arrangements and "neat stuff" from the gift shops in town.

The fashion show emcee is Jim Harper of WNIC radio (who has been known to bid on a few of the items himself in years past.) The looks will be sublime to serendipitous as they begin coming down the runway at 8 p.m.

The grand finale is a dessert afterward to tempt patrons to linger and mingle until the party officially ends at 11 p.m.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for the retailers of Birmingham to show case our talents and unique offerings as a community," Astrein said. "Every cent we raise goes directly to the Children's Cancer Center at Beaumont. Every day is a miracle for these kids, and we want to help make miracles."

For a real value, take advantage of reserved seating and complimentary bar with patron tickets priced at $100. Tickets will be available at the door.

For more information, or to volunteer auction items or help, call Astrein at 810-644-1651.

UM-Dearborn responds to employers, chief says

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

With one ear to the ground, James Renick promised, "You'll hear more about this institution. We're ready to take off. It has been an incredible one and a half years."

Renick is chancellor of the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus, which in October will break ground for $14 million in state-funded buildings for the engineering and management schools.

His ear is to the ground because UM-D listens to employers. It was founded 35 years ago at the prompting of, and with a 200-acre land gift from, Ford Motor Co. Ford foresaw a shortage of engineers and junior managers. Nowadays, UM-D listens to the entire Big Three and other companies, besides. It does sponsored research for Perceptron, a Farmington Hills supplier of 3-D image processing equipment to the auto industry.

"We respond to the people — the needs of the community. For instance, we found, in talking with supporters and employers, there was a need to supply technical skills for managers and managerial skills for engineers. We ended up designing a master's degree program, engineering management. It's been a runaway success."

Terry Gallagher, UM-D's information officer, added that the state won't pay to equip the forthcoming new buildings. Industry will do that.

"Partnership," a term UM-D officials often repeat, has been a buzzword in academia for several years. UM-D has been using it for 35. "We don't believe in town and gown. We're in the same community," Renick said.

In 1984 when UM-D turned age 25, its enrollment appeared to be leveling off at 6,000. Now it's up to 8,000. Renick doesn't project a cap. "We'll grow incrementally, in response to the people," he said.

Renick knows colleges. He was raised in Rockford, Ill., the son of a college professor father and a mother who was assistant superintendent of the public schools. His father died young. Renick used scholarships and fellowships to get degrees at Central (Ohio) State, Kansas University and Florida State. He was vice provost for academic initiatives and external affairs at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., when the University of Michigan hired him in January of 1993 to lead the Dearborn campus.

UM-D is no party school. Its history contains no tales of student pranks or demonstrations. "They're smart. They work hard. They're competitive. This is the most selective division one commuter school in the country. The top students are heavily recruited," the chancellor said.

Unlike its residential big brother in Ann Arbor, where 30 percent of all undergraduates hail from other states, UM-D is 73 percent Wayne County residents, mainly suburban, and 99 percent Michigan residents. The breakdown:

- 50 percent liberal arts (though many will switch to engineering in their junior years).
- 26 percent engineering.
- 10 percent management.
- 10 percent education.

U-M officials constantly say the Dearborn campus is comparable in quality to the Ann Arbor campus, and Renick says there is much contact on research between faculties on the two campuses.

But UM-D clearly is different with its heavy emphasis on cooperative programs — where students are placed in jobs related to their studies.

"In engineering, it's 35 percent; in management, 30; in CASL (liberal arts) it's a bit lower. In teaching, all," Renick said. Their jobs were not only in business but in the U.S. and Canadian governments.

A further benefit: Few graduate students (19 percent of the enrollment) work as teaching assistants, so freshmen and sophomores see more tenured faculty sooner than at other universities.

Biggest sources of UM-D students: Henry Ford, Schoolcraft, Oakland and Macomb community colleges. A Catholic high school in Dearborn sees 25 percent of its graduates enroll at UM-D — at lower tuition than they paid in high school.

Lawmakers and Gov. John Engler appreciated UM-D's growth enough to boost its appropriation 4.7 percent this year while other state universities got 3 to 3.3 percent more. "It's a reaction to the growth of the campus. We have a space crunch," Renick said.

UM-D won prestige when Renick was invited to join the Business-Higher Education Forum, a 100-member group split evenly between academic and Fortune 500-type business leaders, led by retired Ford chairman Harold (Red) Poling. The group meets twice a year for several days. Topics: competitiveness, human resources, development, school reform, assistance to central and

McMaster refuses to let McNamara go back on TV

BY MARY RODRIGUE
AND RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITERS

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara will have to wait a few more weeks before he can go back on his TV show with Oakland County Executive Brooks Patterson and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer.

Redford Township resident Paul McMaster, McNamara's Republican challenger for Wayne County executive, has refused to waive his rights to equal time so that McNamara might swap Sunday afternoon jokes with Patterson once again.

"It's not in the best interest of the Wayne County Republican Party to have Ed McNamara go on that show and bash Republicans," McMaster said. "If he wants to go on TV, let him buy commercial time."

The request to sign the waiver came to McMaster from Patterson's public relations man, Bob Dustman. Dustman said that Rob Zeiger, who works for McNamara, relayed the request to him.

Patterson said he approved the move to ask a fellow Republican to yield to a Democratic opponent, but "it's not a big deal. Either way, I can live with the outcome."

The show, Patterson said, isn't as good without McNamara. "Archer and I are putting more people to sleep than Dr. Kevorkian. McNamara is probably a little more lively."

McMaster, 26, who is first vice chairman of the Redford Zoning Board of Appeals, works as general manager of Redford Villa Condominiums.

The lifetime Redford resident ran unsuccessfully for Redford Township trustee two years ago.

"I've been active with Redford politics for years," he said. "I'm bothered by the continual shift in responsibility from county to local municipalities, for instance on the maintenance of unpaved roads. Redford has 50 miles of them and is increasingly responsible for their upkeep while the county gets the gas tax money for maintenance."

Focus:HOPE plans event

Detroit and suburban groups will pair up for this year's Focus:HOPE WALK for Justice on Sunday, Oct. 9.

Thousands have participated in past WALKS, but organizations usually stayed with their own members. This year Focus:HOPE is encouraging groups to pair up with groups from other parts of the metro Detroit area, to mingle with them and chat as they walk through Detroit and Highland Park. The WALK for Justice will convene at Focus:HOPE's complex at 1355 Oakman Blvd. in Detroit.

Representing Detroit's culturally diverse community, the WALK emphasizes our connection with and interdependence on one another, with a goal of "building together a metropolitan community where all people may live in freedom, harmony, trust and affection." Community groups of all kinds are invited to call Focus:HOPE at 494-5000 to be matched with a sister organization.

In conjunction with this year's walk, Focus:HOPE also presents Countdown to Eternity, a photographic exhibition that depicts the last days of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as seen through the photographs of Benedict Fernandez. Focus:HOPE is one of just 13 organizations nationally to host the exhibition, which is open through Oct. 23, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

Free depression counseling available

Feeling sad or irritable? Losing interest in pleasurable activities? Losing energy?

If this sounds like you, you may be suffering from clinical depression. Free confidential screening will be offered on National Depression Screening Day, Thursday, Oct. 6.

"Depression is an illness that can be successfully treated. Seeking help could change your life," said Tipper Gore, wife of Vice President Al Gore and spokeswoman for this national event.

Screening sites include the Center for Behavior & Medicine in Canton, (313) 981-3800; St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, (313) 591-2943; and Annapolis Hospital in Westland, (313) 467-2600.

The Depression Education Coalition is sponsoring "Older Is Wiser — Learning About Depression As You Age," scheduled Thursday, Sept. 22, at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi.

Co-sponsors include the American Association of Retired Persons, Area Agency on Aging, Mental Health Association in Michigan, and Michigan Department of Mental Health.

Cost is $5 for senior citizens, $10 general admission, and $20 for professionals. Registration fee includes the 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. conference and lunch — with speaker Amyre Makupson, WKBD news anchor.

Four sessions include Identifying Depression in the Elderly; Treatments for Depression; Coping With a Family Member Who Has Depression; and Accessing Services.

WXYZ reporter Jim Herrington will be the master of ceremonies.

Registration must be made in advance. Checks should be made payable to the Mental Health Association in Michigan, 15920 W. 12 Mile, Southfield, Mich. 48076.

House library privacy bill fuels parents' rights rift

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A minor bill-collecting amendment is turning into a semi-religious battle over "parents' rights" in the state House of Representatives.

The issue: Should the library privacy law be amended to force librarians to reveal to parents what materials their youngsters are checking out?

"I believe in privacy of adults, but I believe parents should know what their children are doing," said Rep. Harold Voorhees, R-Wyoming.

In the House Local Government Committee Tuesday, Voorhees ran into a brick wall of opposition from committee members, library professionals and Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, sponsor of a minor bill to help libraries track down overdue books.

Voorhees, a religious conservative, withdrew his amendment but vowed a floor fight when the full House takes up Honigman's Senate Bill 1067.

Under privacy laws, librarians may not reveal a patron's reading habits. Honigman is seeking House approval of his Senatepassed bill to allow librarians to reveal the title of a book someone has borrowed under limited circumstances.

"The libraries found an unintended problem: A child has an overdue book; the library tries to track it down; the parent says 'which book?' The librarian can't tell them which book," Honigman said.

"Under my bill, a librarian may disclose the title for the limited purpose of recovering the book or collecting a fine."

Supporting the Honigman bill, Mary Ann Hartsell of the Michigan Library Association said librarians tracking down books that are many weeks overdue may need to talk to parents, college roommates or landlords of the borrower.

"We have been leery of opening up this act (to amendment)," she said — and Voorhees made her fears come true.

If parents distrust their child's reading choices, Hartsell said, they can refuse to let the child have a card and make him or her check out books under the parents' card.

Honigman opposed Voorhees' amendment. "Who knows what the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) will do (if it were adopted)? You should introduce a separate bill next session, as a matter of good procedure, not introduce controversy into my bill," Honigman said.

"You cannot hold minors to a different standard of privacy," freshman Rep. Lynn Martinez, D-Lansing, told Voorhees. "In my area, parents can place restrictions on the (child's) card — certain kinds of material can't be taken out," she added.

"You're missing the point," Rep. Vincent Porreca, D-Trenton, told Voorhees. "You're saying parents have no control. I don't see what you're saying to be true."

Allowing a parent to see a child's reading list can put the child in an awkward position, said Rep. Howard Wetters, D-Kawkawin. Example: a confrontational divorce suit where a child checks out a book on divorce to prepare himself for the battle.

Voorhees stuck to his parental authority guns. He said he would continue to pursue his amendment "so parents can feel good about knowing their child is in the library."

Westland police back Schall

John Schall, an Ann Arbor resident and Republican candidate for the U.S. House in the 13th District, has been endorsed by the Westland Police Officers Association.

The 13th District includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

Schall's opponent is state Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor.

The election is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 8.

"I'm proud to have the support of the police officers in my district," said Schall in a press release. "Before, people were just concerned about crime in the streets, but now people are afraid even to go home to a dark house at night. Let's help the Westland police return the security that my parents had when they grew up in Westland in the 1940s."

Schall has also been endorsed by the Washtenaw County Deputy Sheriffs Association and the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Enjoy your holiday party, hire a caterer

With the holidays fast approaching, now is the time to consider hiring a caterer. As a matter of fact, seven of the 10 caterers I called last week were already booked. Stop making excuses for not having friends over for a holiday dinner. Caterers are the answer for people who too busy, don't have the time, or talent to cook a special meal. Not all caterers are expensive. There are many affordable options. While you'd be surprised at how affordable dinner can be, why not consider serving just desserts or appetizers.

The last time momma hired a caterer, she was appalled that the cook came and set up a tossed salad that was already drenched and wilted with Italian salad dressing, and then proceeded to unwrap bags of cheap dinner rolls purchased from the local grocery.

Times have changed. The best approach to take when looking for a caterer is to ask your friends and co-workers. The majority of caterers today rely on up to 75 percent of their business from repeat and referred customers.

The thought of hiring a caterer could send shivers down the spine of any frantic host or hostess.

There are a few suggestions to follow that can make the process relatively easy, and can make the host or hostess a guest at their own party. So say the pros, which in this case are Chef Paul Tootikian of Dad's Cafe and Catering in Livonia, and Chefs Kelli Lewton and Vera Ambrose-Shiels of 2 Unique Catering in Bloomfield Hills.

Communication is key

Tootikian, who recently left a successful career at one of metro Detroit's finest Italian restaurants to open his cafe and catering operation at 28430 Joy Road in Livonia, said the secret to catering the best parties begins with communication between himself and the client.

"The customer should know about the reliability and the quality of the food the caterer offers before the logistics of the party are even discussed," he said.

"Beware of folks who operate out of their basements and are not licensed operators. Also check the caterer's liability insurance," said Tootikian as he confirmed a date with a customer during the interview.

The what, the when and the wheres are the first topic of business as Tootikian tries to get as many details of the party as possible before making menu suggestions.

He claims that what sets his company above the rest is that he "is willing to work with the customer rather than the customer working around the caterer."

Dad's Catering offers their customers a pre-selected menu, but is always willing to honor special requests, especially for health and religious reasons. Tootikian's per plate prices start at $5 per person with a medium range of $7.50 per person, and a high end of $10 per person.

For the record, he still has a few select dates available for the holidays, but cautions, "they're filling up fast!" Call (313) 425-4220.

Know what you want

The owners of 2 Unique Catering suggest that the customer know whether they want to work or be a guest at their own party before they call the caterer. A full service caterer, 2 Unique offers a package that includes table decorations, linens, skirting, and all rentals.

Lewton and Ambrose-Shiels pride themselves on their company's quality food preparation, and before any contract is signed, they insist their clients know exactly what they are getting, all of which is accomplished by extensive communication.

After the logistics are settle 2 Unique makes it a point to contact their clients a week or so before the event to go over the party step-by-step.

"We've never had a problem because our customers know up-front just what to expect," said Ambrose-Shiels. Their prices start at $25 per person for an all inclusive package.

If you are interested in learning more about 2 Unique Catering, call (810) 642-5240.

The earlier you contact a caterer, the better. What's the best thing that we as clients can do for a caterer? If they did an outstanding job, and delivered everything you requested, at the agreed upon price, pass along the praise to others.

See Larry Janes' family-tested recipes inside. To leave a message for Chef Larry, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then mailbox number 1886.

What to watch for in Taste next week:

■ Pumpkin pie, muffins and information about a festival too. Get ready for Halloween.

■ Visit southern France with wine columnists Ray and Eleanor Heald, and discover tasty sips for $8.

■ Chef Larry Janes offers pointers for hiring a caterer for the holidays.

Cooks from Observer & Eccentric communities made a good showing at the 16th annual Michigan Championship Chili Cook-off held Sunday, Sept. 11, under two big tents on the ground of Acadia Restaurant in Auburn Hills. Of the 47 competing, 14 were from our home towns.

This year, the event was moved from The Lark Restaurant to Acadia to allow room for more cooks and guests. Five $1,000 culinary arts scholarships were awarded from event proceeds.

There were a lot of familiar faces at the cook-off. Paul Huyck of Farmington Hills, winner of the 1991 Michigan Championship Cook-off, was competing again this year with his Michigan Heat Chili.

Husband and wife Marilyn and Ray Frederick of Farmington Hills competed side by side. Marilyn, 1991 North Central Regional champ, stirred her pot of Time Bomb Chili, while her husband tended to his Tiger's Bite Chili.

Mary Ellen Janes of Wyandotte got her "Spouse's Revenge," by winning the cook-off, and chance to compete in the World Cook-off in Reno, Nev., on Oct. 2. Her husband, John, last year's winner, and a distant cousin to our own Chef Larry Janes, came in third with his Lightning Strikes Twice Chili.

Ken Horn of Plymouth placed second with Fireworks Chili. Jim Weller of Bloomfield Hills placed fifth with Mactown Chili. Fourth place was awarded to Ronald Cubberly of Chelsea.

There are a lot of hotheads in our communities - Chiliheads I mean. They gathered on the grounds of Acadia Restaurant in Auburn Hills on Sept. 11 to create pots of their prize-winning chili for the judges. Of the 14 local cooks competing, two were among the five winners.

Diane Adamski of Redford was manning booth 51 with Mario Borbolla of Garden City, a member of the prize-winning cooking team since 1980. This year's competition was bittersweet, Diane's husband, Jim, a five-time chili cook-off winner who created the winning Original Sin Chili recipe, passed away in January. "I'm doing this in memory of him," said Diane.

Vaughn Irish of Walled Lake, winner of the first ever Birmingham District Chili Cook-off in June, made his prize-winning Thunder Road Chili.

Mike Maiman of Birmingham was stirring a pot of G S Chili, and Ed McCoy of Plymouth made Bucka's Chili.

Gary Ray of Livonia was in booth 84, making his Old No. 7 Chili, and Stephen Robertson of Troy was in booth 85 creating Chili Inferno Chili.

Nick Roncone of Beverly Hills had a booth showing the favorite Chili of the Stars. I remembered him from last year.

Unlike the chili you might make at home,

With mouths aflame judges seek a winner

Judging: Taste editor Keely Wygonik.

With medals draped around our necks, identifying us as judges, we began our work by visiting each of the booths, and talking with the contestants. Besides judging chili, we judged best booth and showmanship.

Ed Gallaudet of Birmingham and his team made a good effort with their Ducks Unlimited Chili, as did Nick Roncone of Beverly Hills with his Chili of the Stars. Leo Buk II of Trenton and his team dressed in black and white striped prisoner uniforms won Best Booth.

The best showmanship award went to booth 83, Troll's Breth Chili, manned by John Mikulak of Rockford.

Then came the hard part - picking the best chili. This year, for the first time, there were three chefs on the judging panel - Ed Janos, Corporate Executive Chef - Machus Enterprise, Marcus Haight - Chef de Cuisine at The Lark in West Bloomfield, and Brian Polcyn - Chef de Cuisine at Acadia in Auburn Hills.

Having three experts join our celebrity panel didn't make the job any easier. There were 17 judges.

Some of us were old pros, having judged the contest before. This was my fourth time.

Before dipping our plastic spoons into cartons of chili, Jim Lark gave us instructions.

"We're looking for someone who has a chance of winning the 1994 World Championship Cook-off,

See JUDGING, 2B

Judging guidelines

1. Good flavoring and chili pepper taste (not too hot or not too mild).
 2. The texture of the meat (not too tough or not too mushy).
 3. Consistency (not too thick or not too thin).
 4. The blend of the spices and how well they have permeated the meat.
 5. Aroma - usually a personal preference.
 6. Color - however, it should not be a material factor in determining the winners.
- The best way to determine your choice is to say - if I am only to have one type of chili for the rest of my life - which container on this table would I choose?

Healthy sandwich You can make better fast food is so easy to build

Here are some suggestions for healthful sandwiches from Brenda Thomas, registered dietitian for Total cereals.

- Low-fat cheese and a tomato slice on a toasted whole wheat English muffin.
- Pita bread with your favorite raw vegetables topped with low-fat dressing. Try shredded cabbage, sliced tomatoes, diced peppers, thinly sliced cucumbers and shredded carrots.
- Fat-free dressings to dress up tuna, chicken or turkey salad. Try fat-free versions of ranch, creamy Italian or thousand island.
- Chutney or salsa combined with a fat-free mayonnaise, cream cheese or sour cream as a tasty spread for bread or topping for low-fat meats.

- Low-fat cottage cheese mixed with applesauce or with chopped and drained fruits such as apricots, peaches or pineapple.
- A bagel topped with herb-flavored cream cheese. Accent with crisp salad greens, shredded carrot, sliced cucumber and alfalfa sprouts.
- Lean cooked pork, chopped and mixed with celery, onions and plain low-fat yogurt. Tuck in a French roll with a little lettuce and tomato.

"Fast food" restaurant meals are usually cheap and quick, but high in fat and low on nutrition. But you can keep the cheap and quick benefits, while adding nutrition and taste, by making your own "fast food" at home in the time it would take to go to a fast-food restaurant. All it takes is a little planning.

First, stock your kitchen with the right essentials. For quick flavor, keep a variety of herbs, spices, flavored vinegars, and condiments like mustard, fruit preserves, catsup, cocktail sauce, hot pepper sauce, steak sauce, lemon juice, soy or teriyaki sauce, and other non-fat items that go well with the foods you like.

Also keep canned and dry goods that cook or heat up in minutes. These could include carbohydrate items such as noodles and pasta, quick-cooking rice, and canned beans and lentils. Whole-grain breads and crackers are also essential for quick meals. Sauce bases like low-sodium broth or bouillon, dried or canned soups, and canned tomato paste and tomatoes are always handy.

Buy bags of frozen, chopped vegetables, which have more nutrients than canned. Use as much as you want for a meal and keep the rest frozen. Add frozen vegetables to soups, sauces, rice, and other quick dishes.

Canned water-packed tuna, salmon and chicken chunks are healthful quick-meal staples. Canned chopped clams with their liquid can make an instant clam sauce for pasta when heated with a little olive oil, dried parsley and oregano. Bags of cooked, frozen shrimp are also easy to pour in with vegetables or pasta during the last 5 minutes of cooking.

Prepare extra portions to refrigerate or freeze for later use. As for cooking methods, some of the quickest — broiling, steaming and stir-frying are among the healthiest and lowest in fat.

Quick meal: Delicious Pasta with Tuna Sauce can be prepared in 15 minutes.

Delicious Pasta with Tuna Sauce can be prepared in 15 minutes. Add chopped frozen or fresh vegetables such as green peas, broccoli or carrots, to the sauce while it is cooking, or serve vegetables on the side.

PASTA WITH TUNA SAUCE

¾ pound pasta (use whole wheat pasta for extra fiber)

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 garlic cloves, minced (or 1 teaspoon garlic powder)
- 2 (6½ ounce) cans water-packed white tuna, drained
- 1 (29-ounce) can tomato puree or crushed tomatoes
- 1 tablespoon dried parsley
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese

For the pasta, bring two quarts of water to a boil in a large pot. While the water is heating, prepare the sauce. Heat the olive oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Add the garlic and saute, stirring constantly, until just golden. Add the remaining ingredients and simmer, uncovered, for 15 minutes. Stir occasionally, and add a little water if the sauce gets too thick.

While the sauce simmers, add the pasta to the boiling water and cook until it is tender but still firm. Drain and serve, topped with sauce and cheese.

Each of the four servings contains 8 grams of fat and 555 calories.

Macaroni pie sounds dull, but just try it

AP — Although the following recipe is called Macaroni Pie, it is best made with angel hair pasta, or capellini.

MACARONI PIE

- ¾ pound capellini, or angel hair pasta
- 6 eggs
- ¼ pound prosciutti, diced
- ¼ pound mozzarella, diced
- Freshly ground black pepper

- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley (optional)
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons butter

Cook noodles according to package directions. Do not overcook. Rinse with cold water and drain. Beat eggs, adding prosciutti and mozzarella. Season with black pepper and parsley, if desired. Do not add salt; the prosciutti has enough already.

Mix in the cooked pasta. Heat 2 tablespoons of the oil and 2 tablespoons of the butter in a non-stick frying pan. When hot, add noodle mixture. Cook on medium heat until bottom is lightly browned and crusty; remove from heat.

Cover pan with a large plate. Make sure bottom of the noodle mixture is loose before you do this. Turn noodles onto plate.

Scrape any loose particles from pan. Add remaining 1 tablespoon butter and 1 tablespoon oil to the pan. Slide noodles back into the pan. When noodles feel firm to the touch and the bottom is lightly browned, remove from pan. May be eaten warm or cold.

If your home doesn't measure up...

Sometimes when we take a hard look around we decide that some things have gotten a little... well, not exactly shabby, but they could use a little help.

Perhaps a coat of paint, maybe a new flower bed where those weeds love to grow. Or maybe a bit of new wallpaper here or a spot of carpet there. Little things that will spruce up the place and lift your spirits as well. Or maybe you have a full-scale renovation in mind.

Whatever you decide, we can help:

Turn to our Classified section's business directory and find dozens of people who will be glad to help you with whatever it is you want to do.

And remember to support your local merchants when you buy your home improvement supplies—there are a lot of specials in today's paper. Check them out!

Choose the leanest meat to make the best stir-fry

AP — Stir-frying can be low in fat, especially if you use a minimum of oil and lean cuts of meat. For beef, that means choosing such lean cuts as flank steak, round steak, top loin or sirloin. Trim away as much visible fat as possible before stir-frying the meat.

BEEF-AND-NOODLE STIR-FRY
 4 ounces fettuccine
 1 cup beef broth
 2 tablespoons soy sauce
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 1 teaspoon grated gingerroot
 Dash pepper
 1 teaspoon sesame oil

1 medium summer squash, halved lengthwise and sliced 1/2 inch thick (1 1/4 cups)
 1 small green pepper, cut into bite-size pieces
 1/4 cup sliced green onion
 1 clove garlic, minced

8 ounces cooked lean beef, thinly sliced into bite-size pieces
 1 cup quartered cherry tomatoes
 Snipped fresh cilantro or parsley
 Cook fettuccine according to package directions; drain. Set aside. Meanwhile, for sauce, in a small mixing bowl stir together beef broth, soy sauce, cornstarch, gingerroot and pepper. Set aside. In a large nonstick skillet, heat 1/2 teaspoon of the sesame oil until hot. Stir-fry the squash, green pepper, green onion and garlic in hot oil about 3 minutes or until squash is crisp-tender. Remove vegetables from skillet. Add remaining oil to skillet. Stir-fry meat in hot oil until heated through. Push meat from center of skillet. Stir soy sauce mixture, add to center of skillet. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly.
